Before the statute of West. 2. c. 10. [13 Ed. 1. A. D. 1285] all attornies were made by letters patent under the great seal, commanding the justices to admit the person to be his attorney. These patents, where they were obtained, seem to have been inrolled by a proper officer, called the clerk of the warrants; and also the courts inrolled those patents on which any proceedings were. If such letters patent could not be obtained, the persons were obliged to appear each day in court in their proper persons. Gilb. H. C. B. 32, 33.

The said statute of West. 2. gives to all persons a liberty of appearing, and appointing an attorney, as if they had letters patent; and therefore the clerk of the warrants received each person's warrant, and upon the warrant it equally appeared to the court, that he had appointed such a one his attorney to the end of the cause, unless revoked; so that on each act there is no occasion of the plaintiff's and defendant's presence, as was used before that time. This authority continues till judgment; and for a year and a day, and afterwards to sue out execution, and for a longer time, if they continue execution; but if not, the judgment is supposed to be satisfied; and to make it appear otherwise, the plaintiff must again come into court, which he either does by a scire fac', or an action of debt on the judgment. Gilb. H. C. B. 33.

1. Statutes concerning attornies.

2. Orders of the judges in relation to attornies.

1. Statutes concerning attornies.

Stat. 20 Hen. 3. cap. 10. Every freeman that oweth suit to the county, tithing, hundred, or wapentake, or to a court-baron, may make an attorney to his suit for him.

Stat. West. 2. c. 10. 13 Ed. 1. Every person may make a general attorney to sue for him in all pleas in the circuit of the justices, but such attornies shall not be exempted from serving on juries.

Stat. 12 Edw. 2. cap. 1. The tenants in writs of novel disseisin may make attornies: yet they may plead by bailiffs if they will, as they have used to do.

Stat. 15 Edw. 2. stat. 1. Parties to fines, as well demandant or plaintiff as tenants or defendants, that will acknowledge their right of lands unto other in pleas of warrantia chartæ, covenant, &c. before the fines pass, shall appear personally, so that their age, idiocy, or other default (if any be) may be discerned: provided that if any, by age, impotence, or casualty, is not able to come in court, one of the justices shall go to the party and receive his cognizance, and shall take with him a knight or man of good fame. Barons of the Exchequer and justices shall not admit attornies, but in pleas that pass before them, and where they be assigned. Reserved to the Chancellor his authority in admitting attornies, and to the Chief Justices.

Stat. 7 Ric. 2. cap. 14. They who shall depart the realm with the King's licence, being of good fame, may, before their departure, leave a patent from the chancellor (with the advice of the justices) enabling them to make general attornies to answer for them in writs of præmunire facias, and all other writs and plaints, in which patent particular mention shall be made of writs and plaints of præmunire facias. And those attornies may make attornies under them.

Stat. 4 Hen. 4. cap. 18. All attornies shall be examined by the justices; and by their discretion put into the roll. And those that are by them approved, shall swear truly to serve in their offices, and to make no suit in a foreign county. And the other attornies shall be put out by the like discretion of the justices; and their masters shall have notice thereof, lest they be prejudiced thereby. And as any die or cease, the justices shall appoint others, being virtuous, learned, and sworn, as aforesaid. And if any attorney be found notoriously in fault, he shall forswear the court, and be never admitted into any other court. The treasurer and barons of the Exchequer shall pursue the like course there, at their discretion.

Stat.

Stat. 4 Hen. 4. cap. 19. No officer of a lord of a franchiſe, which hath return of writs, ſhall be an attorney in the ſame franchiſe.

Stat. 7 Hen. 4. cap. 13. Impotent perſons that are outlawed may make their attorney, by permiſſion of any juſtice, or of the Chief Baron: howbeit, in the writ of capias ad ſatisfaciendum, the common law ſhall hold place.

Stat. 33 Hen. 6. c. 7. [A. D. 1455.] It is recited, that not long before, within the city of Norwich, and the counties of Suffolk and Norfolk, there were but ſix or eight attornies at moſt, in which time great tranquillity reigned there; but that now in the ſaid city and counties, there were above fourſcore attornies, the greater part of whom having nothing elſe to live upon, ſpent their time in fomenting and encouraging little trifling and vexatious ſuits, to the no ſmall damages of the ſaid city and counties. Wherefore it was enacted, that from thenceforth there ſhould be but ſix common attornies in Norfolk, ſix in Suffolk, and two in the city of Norwich, who ſhould be approved by the Chief Juſtices; and that the election and admiſſion of all other attornies by the Juſtices, above the ſaid number, ſhould be void; and if any other ſhould preſume to practiſe, he ſhould forfeit twenty pounds.

Stat. 32 Hen. 8. c. 30. 18 Eliz. c. 14. Every attorney ſhall cauſe his warrant to be entered of record, in ſuch ſuits as he is concerned, the ſame term the iſſue is entered, on pain of forfeiting ten pounds for every default, and of being impriſoned at the diſcretion of the Juſtices.

Stat. 29 or 28 Eliz. cap. 5. ſect. 21. If any perſon ſhall be ſued upon a penal law in the King's Bench, Common Pleas or Exchequer, where ſuch perſon is bailable, or by leave of the court may appear by attorney; in every ſuch caſe the perſon ſo ſued may, at the day contained in the firſt proceſs, appear by attorney of the ſame court.

Stat. 31 Eliz. cap. 10. ſect. 20. The above clauſe ſhall extend only to natural-born ſubjects and denizens.

Stat. 3 Jac. 1. cap. 7. ſect. 1. An attorney, ſolicitor, or ſervant to any, ſhall not be allowed any fees given to counſel, or for copies, unleſs he have tickets thereof ſigned by the hand of them that receive ſuch fees; and he ſhall alſo give unto his client true bills of all the charges of ſuit under his own hand, before he can charge his client with the payment thereof. And if he delay his client's ſuit for gain, or demand by his bill allowance for money which he hath not diſburſed, the client ſhall recover againſt him his coſts and damages, and he ſhall be for ever after diſabled from being an attorney or ſolicitor.

Sect. 2. None ſhall be admitted attornies in courts of record, but ſuch as have been brought up in the ſame courts, or otherwiſe well practiſed in ſoliciting of cauſes, and found ſkilful, and of honeſt diſpoſition; and none but ſuch ſhall be hereafter ſuffered to ſolicit cauſes in the courts aforeſaid. And an attorney ſhall not admit any other to follow a ſuit in his name, on pain that each of them ſhall forfeit 20*l.* to be divided betwixt the King and party grieved; and the attorney ſhall be excluded.

Stat. 12 Geo. 1. cap. 29. ſect. 4. If any perſon convicted of forgery, or of wilful and corrupt perjury, ſhall practiſe as an attorney, ſolicitor or agent, in any ſuit or action, in any court of law or equity within England, the judges of the courts where ſuch ſuit or action is brought ſhall, on complaint or information thereof, examine the matter in a ſummary way in open court; and if it ſhall appear to the ſatisfaction of ſuch judges, that the perſon complained of hath offended contrary to this act, the judges ſhall cauſe ſuch offender to be tranſported for ſeven years, to one of his Majeſty's plantations in America, in ſuch a manner, and under ſuch penalties, as felons are by law to be tranſported.

Stat. 2 Geo. 2. cap. 23. ſect. 1. No perſon ſhall be permitted to act as an attorney, or to ſue out proceſs, &c. in the name of any other perſon, in his Majeſty's courts of King's Bench, Common Pleas, or Exchequer, or dutchy of Lancaſter, or in the courts of great ſeſſions in Wales, or the counties palatine of Cheſter, Lancaſter, and Durham, or in any other court of record in England, where attornies have been accuſtomably admitted and ſworn, unleſs ſuch perſon ſhall take the oath herein after appointed, and ſhall alſo be admitted and inrolled in ſuch of the ſaid courts where he ſhall act as an attorney, in the manner herein after directed.

Sect. 3. No perſon ſhall be permitted to act as ſolicitor, or to ſue out proceſs, &c. in the name of any other perſon, in any court of equity, either in the court of Chancery, court of equity in the Exchequer Chamber, court of the Dutchy Chamber of Lancaſter at Weſtminſter, or courts of the Counties Palatine of Cheſter, Lancaſter, or Durham, or in any other inferior court of equity in England, unleſs he take the oath hereby appointed to be taken by ſolicitors in equity, and ſhall be admitted and inrolled in the ſaid courts of equity where he ſhall act as a ſolicitor.

Sect. 4. The Maſter of the Rolls, two of the Maſters in Chancery, the Barons of the Exchequer, the Chancellor of the Dutchy, and the Judges of the other courts of Equity, ſhall, before they admit any perſon to take the oath, examine and enquire touching his capacity; and if the ſaid Maſter of the Rolls, &c. ſhall be ſatisfied, that ſuch perſon is duly qualified, then the ſaid Maſter of the Rolls, &c. ſhall adminiſter to ſuch perſon the oath to be taken by ſolicitors, and ſhall cauſe him to be admitted a ſolicitor in ſuch court of equity, and his name to be inrolled as ſuch, without any fee, other than 1*s.* for adminiſtring ſuch oath; which admiſſion ſhall be written on parchment in Engliſh, and in a common hand, and ſigned by a Maſter of the Rolls, &c. whereon a treble 40*s.* ſtamp ſhall be firſt impreſſed, and ſhall be delivered to the perſon admitted.

Sect. 5. No perſon ſhall be permitted to act as an attorney, or to ſue out proceſs, &c. in the name of any other perſon, in any courts of law, unleſs ſuch perſon ſhall have been bound, by contract in writing, to ſerve as a clerk for five years, to an attorney duly ſworn and admitted, in ſome of the ſaid courts; and ſuch perſon, during the ſaid term of five years, ſhall have continued in ſuch ſervice; and alſo unleſs ſuch perſon, after the expiration of the ſaid five years, ſhall be examined, ſworn, admitted and inrolled, in the ſame manner as herein required.

Sect. 6. The judges of the ſaid courts ſhall, before they admit ſuch perſon to take the oath, examine and enquire touching his capacity to act as an atrorney; and if ſuch Judge ſhall be ſatisfied that the perſon is duly qualified, he ſhall adminiſter in open court to ſuch perſon the oath hereby directed to be taken by attornies, and ſhall cauſe him to be admitted an attorney in ſuch court, and inrolled, without any fee, other than 1*s.* for adminiſtring the oath, which admiſſion ſhall be written on parchment in Engliſh, in a common legible hand, and ſigned by the Judge, whereon the lawful ſtamp ſhall be firſt impreſſed, and ſhall be delivered to the perſon admitted.

Sect. 7. After the firſt of December 1730, no perſon, who ſhall not before that day have been admitted, ſhall be permitted to act as a ſolicitor, or to ſue out proceſs, &c. in the name of any other perſon, in any courts of equity, unleſs ſuch perſon ſhall have been bound by contract in writing, to ſerve as a clerk for five years to a ſolicitor, duly ſworn, and admitted in one of the ſaid courts of equity, and during the ſaid term ſhall have continued in ſuch ſervice; and alſo unleſs ſuch perſon, after the expiration of the ſaid five years, ſhall have been examined, ſworn, admitted and inrolled, in manner as hereby before required.

Sect. 8. The Maſter of the Rolls, two of the Maſters in Chancery, the Chancellor of the Dutchy of Lancaſter, and the Judges of the other courts of Equity, ſhall, before they admit any perſon to take the oath, examine touching his capacity to act as ſolicitor in courts of equity; and if the Maſter of the Rolls, &c. ſhall be ſatisfied that he is qualified, the ſaid Maſter of the Rolls, &c. ſhall adminiſter in open court to ſuch perſon, the oath hereby directed to be taken by ſolicitors, and after ſhall cauſe him to be admitted a ſolicitor in ſuch court of equity, and his name to be inrolled as ſuch, without any fee, other than 1 s. for adminiſtring the oath; which admiſſion ſhall be written on parchment in Engliſh, in a common hand, and ſigned by the Maſter of the Rolls, &c. whereon a treble 40 s. ſtamp ſhall be impreſſed, and ſhall be delivered to the perſon admitted.

Sect. 9. Nothing in this act ſhall exclude any perſon from being admitted an attorney in any of the courts of law aforeſaid, who hath, on or before the twenty-fifth of March 1729, been bound by contract in writing to ſerve as clerk to an attorney, or perſon practiſing as ſuch in ſome of the courts of law aforeſaid, for four years; or from being admitted as a ſolicitor in the courts of equity, who hath, on or before the ſaid twenty-fifth of March 1729, been bound, by contract in writing, to ſerve as clerk to a perſon practiſing as a ſolicitor in any of the ſaid courts of equity, for four years; ſo as ſuch writing, in caſe any money has been paid in reſpect of ſuch clerkſhip, hath the legal ſtamp, and ſhall be regiſtered in the ſtamp-office.

Sect. 10. It ſhall be lawful for any attorney in any of the ſaid courts of law, or ſolicitor in any of the ſaid courts of equity, with the conſent and permiſſion of any attorney in any of the ſaid other courts, ſuch conſent being in writing, ſigned by ſuch attorney, and in the name of ſuch attorney, to ſue out proceſs, &c. or to proſecute, or defend any action, or proceeding in ſuch court, notwithſtanding ſuch perſon is not ſworn or admitted an attorney of ſuch court.

Sect. 11. Nothing in this act ſhall extend to authorize any judge of any court of record, to admit any greater number of attornies, than by the antient uſage of ſuch court hath been allowed.

Sect. 12. If any attorney or ſolicitor, to whom any perſon hath been bound as a clerk for five years, or four years, ſhall die before the expiration of the term; or if ſuch contract ſhall, by conſent, be vacated; or if ſuch clerk be diſcharged by any rule or order of the court wherein ſuch attorney or ſolicitor ſhall practiſe; then, if ſuch clerk ſhall by contract be obliged to ſerve, and ſhall ſerve accordingly as clerk, to any other attorney or ſolicitor, during the reſidue of the ſaid term, ſuch ſervice ſhall be deemed good.

Sect. 13. Every perſon, who ſhall be admitted an attorney in the ſaid courts, ſhall, before he is admitted, take and ſubſcribe the oath following, inſtead of the oath heretofore taken.

I A. B. do ſwear, that I will truly and honeſtly demean myſelf in the practice of an attorney, according to the beſt of my knowledge and ability. So help me God.

Sect. 14. Every perſon who ſhall be admitted a ſolicitor in Chancery, or in any of the other courts of equity, ſhall, before he be admitted, take the oath following, viz.

I A. B. do ſwear, that I will truly and honeſtly demean myſelf in the practice of a ſolicitor, according to the beſt of my knowledge and ability. So help me God.

Sect. 15. No attorney or ſolicitor ſhall have more than two clerks at the ſame time, bound by contract in writing.

Sect. 16. It ſhall be lawful for the prothonotaries of the Common Pleas, and the ſecondary of the King's Bench, and the prothonotaries of the reſpective courts of the Counties Palatine, and the great ſeſſions in Wales, to have three clerks at the ſame time; and ſuch clerks having ſerved a clerkſhip to any of the ſaid prothonotaries, or ſecondary, for five years, may be examined, admitted and inrolled, attornies of any of the courts of law aforeſaid.

Sect. 17. If any ſworn attorney, of any of the ſaid courts of law, ſhall knowingly and willingly permit any other to proſecute or defend any action in his name, not being a ſworn attorney or ſolicitor, the perſon convicted thereof ſhall be diſabled to act as an attorney, and his admittance ſhall be void.

Sect. 18. The chief clerk of the King's Bench, the clerk of the warrants in the Common Pleas, the prothonotaries of the Counties Palatine, and of the great ſeſſions in Wales, or their deputies, and ſuch officers of the ſaid inferior courts of law, as the judges of the ſaid courts ſhall appoint, ſhall, without fee, inroll the name of every perſon who ſhall be admitted in the ſaid courts, purſuant to this act and the time when admitted, in alphabetical order; and the ſenior clerk of the Petty-Bag Office in Chancery, the King's Remembrancer of the Exchequer, the chief clerk of the Dutchy Chamber of Lancaſter, the regiſters of the courts of equity in the Counties Palatine, and of the great ſeſſions of Wales, or their deputies, and ſuch officers of the inferior courts of equity, as the judges of thoſe courts ſhall appoint, ſhall, without fee, inroll the name of every perſon admitted a ſolicitor in the ſaid courts, and the time when admitted, in alphabetical order; to which rolls all perſons ſhall have free acceſs without fee.

Sect. 19. The admiſſion of an attorney may be written on parchment without any ſtamp, in caſe he hath, on or before the firſt of June 1729, been ſworn and admitted an attorney of any of the ſaid courts.

Sect. 20. Any perſon who ſhall be admitted an attorney in the King's Bench, Common Pleas, Exchequer, Counties Palatine, and great ſeſſions in Wales, may be ſworn, admitted, and inrolled a ſolicitor in all or any of the ſaid courts of equity, without any fee for the oath, or any ſtamp on the parchment whereon ſuch admiſſion ſhall be written, if the Maſter of the Rolls, two Maſters of the Chancery, the Barons of the Exchequer, the Chancellor of the Dutchy of Lancaſter, and the Judges of the ſaid other courts of equity, ſhall, upon examining ſuch perſon, be ſatisfied that he is duly qualified.

Sect. 21. Any perſon who ſhall be admitted a ſolicitor in any of the ſaid courts of Chancery, Exchequer, Dutchy of Lancaſter, Counties Palatine, and great ſeſſions in Wales, may be ſworn, admitted, and inrolled a ſolicitor in all or any of the ſaid other courts of equity, or in any inferior court of equity, without fee for the oath, or ſtamp on the parchment, in caſe the Maſter of the Rolls, &c. ſhall be ſatisfied that he is duly qualified.

Sect. 22. No attorney or ſolicitor of any of the ſaid courts ſhall commence or maintain any action for fees, diſburſements at law, or in equity, till the expiration of one month after he ſhall deliver to the party, or left for him at his dwelling-houſe, or laſt place of abode, a bill of ſuch fees, &c. written in a common hand, and in Engliſh (except law-terms and names of writs) and in words at length (except times and ſums); which bill ſhall be ſubſcribed with the proper hand of ſuch attorney or ſolicitor; and upon application of the party chargeable by ſuch bill, or of any other perſon in that behalf authorized, to the Lord Chancellor, or the Maſter of the Rolls, or to any of the courts aforeſaid, or to a Judge or Baron of any of the ſaid courts, in which the buſineſs contained in ſuch bill, or the greateſt part thereof in value ſhall be tranſacted; and upon the ſubmiſſion of the ſaid party, or ſuch other perſon authorized, to pay the ſum that upon taxation ſhall appear to be due, it ſhall be lawful for the Lord Chancellor, &c. to refer the ſaid bill (though no action or ſuit ſhall be then depending in ſuch court touching the ſame) to be taxed by the proper officer, without any money being brought into court; and if the attorney or ſolicitor, or the party chargeable by ſuch bill, having due notice, neglect to attend ſuch taxation, the officer may proceed to tax the bill ex parte, (pending which reference and taxation, no action ſhall be proſecuted, touching the ſaid demand) and upon taxation of ſuch bill, the party ſhall pay to the attorney or ſolicitor, or to any perſon by him authoriſed, that ſhall have been preſent at the taxation, or as the court ſhall direct, the ſum which ſhall be found due, which payment ſhall be a diſcharge of the bill; and in default thereof the party ſhall be liable to an attachment, or proceſs of contempt, or ſuch other proceeding, at the election of the attorney or ſolicitor, as ſuch party was before liable to; and if on ſuch taxation it ſhall be found, that the attorney or ſolicitor ſhall have been over-paid, he ſhall refund to the party entitled, or to any perſon by him authoriſed, if preſent at the ſettling thereof, or otherwiſe as the court ſhall direct, all the money that the officer ſhall certify to have been over-paid; and in default thereof, the attorney or ſolicitor ſhall in like manner be liable to an attachment, or proceſs of contempt, or ſuch other proceeding, at the election of the party, as he would have been ſubject to, if this act had not been made; and the ſaid courts are required to award the coſts of ſuch taxation, to be paid by the parties according to the event of the taxation, viz. if the bill taxed be leſs by a ſixth part than the bill delivered, then the attorney or ſolicitor is to pay the coſts; but if it be not leſs, then the court in their diſcretion ſhall charge the attorney or client in regard to the reaſonableneſs or unreaſonableneſs of ſuch bills.

Sect. 23. If any perſon in his own name, or in the name of any other, ſhall ſue out any writ or proceſs, or proſecute or defend any action, ſuit or proceeding, in any court of law or equity aforeſaid, as an attorney or ſolicitor, for gain or reward, without being admitted and inrolled, he ſhall, for every ſuch offence, forfeit 50 l. to the uſe of the proſecutor; and is made incapable to maintain or proſecute any action or ſuit, in any court of law or equity, for reward.

Sect. 24. The penalties incurred by offenders againſt this act, may be recovered by action of debt, &c. in any of the courts of record at Weſtminſter, or of the Counties Palatine, or of great ſeſſions in Wales, for offences committed within the juriſdiction of ſuch courts, or at the aſſizes, or quarter ſeſſions of the peace, where ſuch offence ſhall be committed, by any perſon who ſhall ſue for the ſame within twelve months after the offence, with treble coſts; and no ſuch ſuit or information ſhall be removed before judgment, or ſtayed by certiorari, &c.

Sect. 25. Nothing in this act ſhall extend to the examination, ſwearing, admiſſion or inrolment of the ſix clerks of the court of Chancery, or the ſworn clerks in their offices, or the waiting clerks belonging to the ſaid ſix clerks, or the curſitors, or the clerks of the Petty-Bag Offices, or the clerks of the King's coroner, and attorney in the court of King's Bench, or the filazers of the ſaid court, or the filazers of the court of Common Pleas at Weſtminſter, or the attornies of the court of the Dutchy Chamber of Lancaſter, or of the court of Exchequer at Cheſter, or of the courts of the lord mayor and ſheriffs of London.

Sect. 26. Nothing in this act ſhall extend to the examination, &c. of the attornies or clerks of the offices of the King's remembrancer, treaſurer's remembrancer, pipe, or office of pleas, in the court of Exchequer at Weſtminſter; but the ſaid attornies and clerks ſhall be approved, ſworn, admitted, and practiſe in the ſaid court of Exchequer, or may practiſe in any other of the courts of record before mentioned; in and with the conſent of ſome ſworn attorney of ſuch court; ſuch conſent to be in writing, and ſigned by ſuch attorney; and it ſhall be lawful for any perſon who ſhall be admitted an attorney or ſolicitor in any of the ſaid ſeveral courts, to practiſe and ſolicit in the ſaid reſpective offices, in the ſame manner as heretofore has been done.

Sect. 27. Nothing herein contained ſhall extend to the examination, &c. of ſolicitors of the treaſury, cuſtoms, exciſe, poſt-office, ſalt, or ſtamp-duties, or of any other branch of his Majeſty's revenue, or of the ſolicitor of the city of London, or of the aſſiſtant to the council for the affairs of the admiralty and navy.

Sect. 28. This act ſhall continue in force from the firſt day of June 1729, for nine years, and to the end of the next ſeſſion of parliament.

Made perpetual by 30 Geo. 2. c. 19. ſect. 75.

By ſtat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 18. ſect. 2. No attorney, ſolicitor, or proctor, in any court whatſoever, ſhall be capable to continue or be a juſtice of the peace, within any county for that part of Great Britain called England, or the principality of Wales, during ſuch time as he ſhall continue in the buſineſs and practice of an attorney, ſolicitor, or proctor.

6 Geo. 2. cap. 27. ſect. 1. Perſons qualified as mentioned in the act may, on or before the laſt day of Michaelmas term 1733, be ſworn, admitted, and inrolled attornies in the ſeveral courts.

Sect. 2. Any perſon admitted an attorney in any of the courts of record at Weſtminſter, ſhall be capable of being admitted to practiſe as an attorney in an inferior court of record, provided he be qualified according to the cuſtom of ſuch inferior court.

Stat. 12 Geo. 2. c. 23. ſect. 4. And be it enacted, that, from and after the twenty-fourth day of June in the year of our Lord 1739, the not ſubſcribing the name of the attorney's clerk in court, or ſolicitor, on any warrant that ſhall be made out upon any writ, proceſs, or execution, ſhall not vitiate the ſame; but ſuch writ, proceſs, and execution, and all proceedings thereon, ſhall be as valid and effectual, notwithſtanding ſuch omiſſion, as if the ſaid recited act for regulating attornies and ſolicitors had not been made; provided the writ whereon ſuch warrant is made out be regularly ſubſcribed or indorſed according to the ſaid act; and every ſheriff or ſheriffs, or other officer, who ſhall make out any warrant upon any writ, proceſs, or execution, and ſhall not ſubſcribe or indorſe the name of the attorney, clerk in court, or ſolicitor, who ſued out the ſame, ſhall forfeit the ſum of 5 l. to be aſſeſſed as a fine upon ſuch ſheriff, or other officer, by the courts out of which ſuch writ, proceſs, or execution ſhall iſſue; one moiety thereof to be paid to his Majeſty, his heirs and ſucceſſors; and the other moiety to the perſon or perſons aggrieved by ſuch omiſſion.

Sect. 5. And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, that from and after the ſaid twenty-fourth day of June 1739, it ſhall and may be lawful to and for every attorney, clerk in court, and ſolicitor, to write his bill of fees, charges, and diſburſements, with ſuch abbreviations as are now commonly uſed in the Engliſh language; any thing in any former law to the contrary notwithſtanding.

Sect. 6. And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, that from and after the ſaid twenty-fourth day of June 1739, the ſaid act of the ſecond of his preſent Majeſty, for the better regulating of attornies and ſolicitors, or any clauſe, matter, or thing therein contained, ſhall not extend to any bill of fees, charges and diſburſements, that are now, or ſhall hereafter become due from any attorney or ſolicitor, to any other attorney, or ſolicitor, or clerk in court; but that every ſuch attorney, ſolicitor, or clerk in court, may uſe ſuch remedies for the recovery of his fees, charges, and diſburſements againſt ſuch other attorney or ſolicitor, as he might have done before the making of the ſaid act.

Sect. 7. And be it further enacted, that in caſe any perſon ſhall, from and after the ſaid twenty-fourth day of June 1739, commence or defend any action, or ſue out any writ, proceſs, or ſummons, or carry on any proceedings in the court commonly called the County Court, holden in any county, and in that part of Great Britain called England, who is not or ſhall not then be legally admitted an attorney or ſolicitor, according to the ſaid act in the ſecond year of the reign of his preſent Majeſty; that ſuch perſon ſhall for every ſuch offence forfeit the ſum of twenty pounds, to be recovered with coſts, by any other perſon who ſhall ſue for the ſame within twelve months next after ſuch offence ſhall be committed, in any of his Majeſty's courts of record.

Sect. 8. And be it enacted by the authority aforeſaid, that any perſon, being one of the people called quakers, who may have ſerved, or ſhall hereafter ſerve, a clerkſhip with an attorney or ſolicitor, and ſhall be qualified as by the ſaid act before is required, ſhall, upon taking his ſolemn affirmation, inſtead of the oaths thereby directed to be taken, before ſuch judges, and others, who are hereby authoriſed and required to adminiſter the ſaid affirmation, be admitted and enrolled as an attorney or ſolicitor, as if he had taken the ſaid oaths; any thing in the ſaid act to the contrary notwithſtanding.

Sect.

Sect. 9. And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, that from and after the twenty-fourth day of June 1739. no attorney or ſolicitor who ſhall be a priſoner in any gaol or priſoner, or within the limits, rules, or liberties of any gaol or priſon, ſhall, during his confinement in any gaol or priſon, or within the limits, rules, or liberties of any gaol or priſon, in his own name, or in the name of any other attorney or ſolicitor, ſue out any writ or proceſs, or commence or proſecute any action or ſuit in any courts of law or equity; and that all proceedings in ſuch action ſhall be void and of none effect; and ſuch attorney or ſolicitor, ſo commencing or proſecuting any ſuch ſuit as aforeſaid, ſhall be ſtruck off the roll, and incapacitated from acting as an attorney or ſolicitor for the future; and any attorney or ſolicitor permitting or impowering any ſuch attorney or ſolicitor as aforeſaid to commence or proſecute any action or ſuit in his name, ſhall be ſtruck off the roll, and be incapacitated from acting as an attorney or ſolicitor for the future.

Sect. 10. Provided nevertheleſs, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, that nothing in this act contained ſhall extend, or be conſtrued to extend, to prevent any attorney or ſolicitor ſo confined as aforeſaid, from carrying on, or tranſacting any ſuit or ſuits commenced before the confinement of ſuch attorney or ſolicitor as aforeſaid; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithſtanding.

Stat. 22 Geo. 2. c. 46. ſect. 3. And for the better preventing unqualified perſons from being admitted attornies and ſolicitors, and for rendering the ſaid act of 2 Geo. 2. more effectual for the purpoſes thereby intended; Be it enacted by the authority aforeſaid, that every perſon who ſhall, from and after the firſt day of July 1749, be bound by contract in writing to ſerve as a clerk to any attorney or ſolicitor, as by the ſaid act is directed, ſhall within three months next after the date of every ſuch contract, cauſe an affidavit to be made, and duly ſworn, of the actual execution of every ſuch contract, by every ſuch attorney or ſolicitor, and the perſon ſo to be bound to ſerve as a clerk as aforeſaid; and in every ſuch affidavit ſhall be ſpecified the names of every ſuch attorney and ſolicitor, and of every ſuch perſon ſo bound; and their places of abode reſpectively, together with the day of the date of ſuch contract; and every ſuch affidavit ſhall be filed within the time aforeſaid, in the court where the attorney or ſolicitor, to whom every ſuch perſon reſpectively ſhall be bound as aforeſaid, hath been inrolled as an attorney or ſolicitor, with the reſpective officer or officers, or his or their reſpective deputy or deputies, in the reſpective courts herein after-mentioned, who ſhall make and ſign a memorandum, or mark of the day of filing every ſuch affidavit, at the back, or at the bottom thereof.

Sect. 4. And be it further enacted, that no perſon, who ſhall after the ſaid firſt of July become bound as aforeſaid, ſhall be admitted or inrolled an attorney or ſolicitor in any court in the act mentioned, before ſuch affidavit, ſo marked by the proper officer as aforeſaid, ſhall be produced and openly read in ſuch court, where ſuch perſon ſhall be admitted and inrolled an attorney or ſolicitor.

Sect. 5. And it is hereby enacted and declared, that the ſeveral perſons following ſhall be deemed and taken to be the proper officers for filing ſuch affidavits, in the reſpective courts herein after-mentioned (that is to ſay) in the High Court of Chancery, the ſenior clerk of the Petty-Bag Office, or his deputy; in the Court of King's Bench, the chief clerk of that court, or his deputy; in the Court of Common Pleas, the clerk of the warrants of that court, or his deputy; in the court of Exchequer, the King's remembrancer of that court, or his deputy; in the court of the Dutchy Chamber of Lancaſter at Weſtminſter, the chief clerk of that court, or his deputy; and in the ſeveral Counties Palatine of Cheſter, Lancaſter, and Durham, the reſpective prothonotaries of the ſaid Counties Palatine, and their reſpective deputies; and in the ſeveral courts of the great ſeſſions of Wales, the reſpective prothonotaries of the ſaid courts and their reſpective deputies.

Sect. 6. And be it further enacted, that every ſuch officer or officers, or their reſpective deputy or deputies, filing ſuch affidavit as aforeſaid, ſhall keep a book, wherein ſhall be entered the ſubſtance of ſuch affidavit, ſpecifying the names and places of abode of every ſuch attorney or ſolicitor, and clerk, or perſon bound as aforeſaid, and of the perſon making ſuch affidavit, with the date of the articles, or contract in ſuch affidavit to be mentioned, and the days of ſerving and filing every ſuch affidavit reſpectively; and every ſuch officer or officers, or his or their deputy or deputies, ſhall be at liberty to take, at the time of filing ſuch affidavit, the ſum of two ſhillings and ſix-pence, and no more, as a recompence for his trouble in filing ſuch affidavits, and preparing and keeping ſuch books as aforeſaid, and which ſaid books ſhall and may be ſearched, in office hours, by any perſon or perſons whatſoever, without fee or reward.

Sect. 7. And be it further enacted, that from and after the ſaid firſt day of July no attorney or ſolicitor ſhall take, have or retain any clerk who ſhall become bound by contract in writing as aforeſaid, after ſuch attorney or ſolicitor ſhall have diſcontinued or left off, or during ſuch time as he ſhall not actually practice as, or carry on the buſineſs of, an attorney or ſolicitor.

Sect. 8. And be it further enacted, that every perſon who ſhall, from and after the ſaid firſt day of July, become bound, by contract in writing, to ſerve any attorney or ſolicitor, as by the ſaid act is directed, ſhall, during the whole time and term of ſervice, to be ſpecified in ſuch contract, continue and be actually employed by ſuch attorney or ſolicitor, or his or their agent or agents, in the proper buſineſs, practice, or employment of an attorney or ſolicitor.

Sect. 9. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, if any ſuch attorney or ſolicitor, to or with whom any ſuch perſon ſhall be bound, ſhall happen to die before the expiration of ſuch term, or ſhall diſcontinue or leave off ſuch his practice as aforeſaid, or if ſuch contract ſhall by mutual conſent of the parties be cancelled, or in caſe ſuch clerk ſhall be legally diſcharged by any rule or order of the court wherein ſuch attorney or ſolicitor ſhall practiſe, before the expiration of ſuch term, and ſuch clerk ſhall in any of the ſaid caſes be bound by another contract, or other contracts in writing, to ſerve, and ſhall accordingly ſerve, in manner herein before mentioned, as clerk to any other ſuch practiſing attorney or attorneys, ſolicitor or ſolicitors as aforeſaid reſpectively, during the reſidue of the ſaid term of five years; then ſuch ſervice ſhall be deemed and taken to be as good, effectual, and available, as if ſuch clerk had continued to ſerve as clerk for the ſaid term, to the ſame perſon to whom he was originally bound, ſo as an affidavit be duly made and filed of the execution of ſuch ſecond or other contract or contracts, within the time, and in like manner, as is before directed concerning ſuch original contract.

Sect. 10. And be it further enacted, that every perſon, who from and after the ſaid firſt day of July ſhall become bound as a clerk as aforeſaid, ſhall, before he be admitted an attorney or ſolicitor according to the ſaid act, cauſe an affidavit of himſelf, or ſuch attorney or ſolicitor to whom he was bound as aforeſaid, to be duly made and filed with the proper officer herein before for that purpoſe appointed, that he hath actually and really ſerved, and hath been employed by ſuch practiſing attorney or attornies, ſolicitor or ſolicitors to whom he was bound as aforeſaid, or his or their agent or agents, during the ſaid whole term of five years, according to the true intent and meaning of this act.

Sect. 11. And whereas divers perſons, who are not examined, ſworn, or admitted to act as attornies or ſolicitors in any court of law or equity, do, in conjunction with, or by aſſiſtance or connivance of certain ſworn attornies and ſolicitors, and by various ſubtile contrivances, intrude themſelves into, and act and practiſe in, the office and buſineſs of attornies and ſolicitors, to the great prejudice and loſs of many of his Majeſty's ſubjects, and the ſcandal of the profeſſion of the law; Be it therefore enacted, That from and after the 29th day of September, which ſhall be in the year of our Lord 1749, if any ſworn attorney or ſolicitor ſhall act as agent for any perſon or perſons not duly qualified to act as an attorney or ſolicitor as aforeſaid, or permit or ſuffer his name to be any ways made uſe of upon the account or for the profit of any unqualified perſon or perſons, or ſend any proceſs to ſuch unqualified perſon or perſons, thereby to enable him or them to appear, act or practiſe in any reſpect as an attorney or ſolicitor, knowing him not to be duly qualified as aforeſaid, and complaint ſhall be made thereof in a ſummary way to the court from whence any ſuch proceſs did iſſue; and proof made thereof upon oath, to the ſatisfaction of the court, that ſuch ſworn attorney or ſolicitor hath offended therein as aforeſaid; then, and in ſuch caſe, every ſuch attorney or ſolicitor ſo offending ſhall be ſtruck off the roll, and for ever after diſabled from practiſing as an attorney or ſolicitor; and in that caſe, and upon ſuch complaint and proof made as aforeſaid, it ſhall and may be lawful to and for the ſaid court to commit ſuch unqualified perſon, ſo acting or practiſing as aforeſaid, to the priſon of the ſaid court, for any time not exceeding one year.

Sect. 12. And whereas frequent delays, inconveniencies, and unneceſſary expences ariſe and happen, as well to pariſhes as private perſons, by the miſmanagement and unſkilfulneſs of perſons employed as ſolicitors or agents at the ſeſſions held for the ſeveral counties, ridings, diviſions, cities, towns corporate, and other places of this kingdom, who have never been regularly bred to the law, and being ignorant of the forms and operations thereof, offenders againſt the laws of the land have frequently eſcaped with impunity: for remedying therefore of theſe inconveniencies, Be it enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That from and after the 29th day of September, which will be in the year of our Lord 1749, no perſon whatſoever ſhall act as a ſolicitor, attorney, or agent, or ſue out any proceſs at a general quarter-ſeſſions of the peace, for any county, riding, diviſion, city, town corporate, or other place within this kingdom, either with reſpect to matters of a criminal or civil nature, unleſs ſuch perſon ſhall have been heretofore admitted an attorney of one of his Majeſty's courts of record at Weſtminſter, and duly inrolled purſuant to an act made in the ſecond year of his preſent Majeſty's reign (intitled, an act for the better regulation of attornies and ſolicitors); or unleſs ſuch perſon ſhall hereafter be admitted an attorney, and inrolled as aforeſaid by virtue of this act, or ſuch other law as ſhall be then in being, and unleſs ſuch perſon ſhall continue ſo entred upon the roll at the time of ſuch acting in the capacity aforeſaid; but all and every perſon or perſons reſpectively, who ſhall ſo act, not being admitted and inrolled as aforeſaid, ſhall be ſubject and liable to a penalty of fifty pounds; to be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of the the courts of record at Weſtminſter, by any perſon or perſons who ſhall ſue for the ſame within twelve months after the offence committed, with treble coſts of ſuit; and if any attorney or attornies ſhall permit and ſuffer any perſon or perſons whatſoever, not being admitted and inrolled as aforeſaid, to make uſe of his or their name or names reſpectively, in the courts of general or quarter-ſeſſions aforeſaid, ſuch attorney or attornies reſpectively ſhall be ſubject and liable to a like penalty of fifty pounds, to be recovered in manner aforeſaid.

Sect. 13. Provided always, that nothing herein contained ſhall extend, or be conſtrued to extend, to deprive the attornies of the dutchy of Lancaſter, or of the counties palatine of Cheſter, Lancaſter, and Durham, from acting within their reſpective juriſdiction.

Sect. 14. And, to the end that juſtice may be impartially adminiſtred in the ſeveral general or quarter-ſeſſions of this kingdom, Be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That no clerk of the peace or his deputy, nor any under-ſheriff or his deputy ſhall, from and after the ſaid 29th day of September, act as a ſolicitor, attorney or agent, or ſue out any proceſs, at any general or quarter-ſeſſions of the peace to be held for ſuch county, riding, diviſion, city, town corporate, or other place within this kingdom, where he ſhall execute the office of clerk of the peace, or deputy clerk of the peace, under-ſheriff or deputy, on any pretence whatſoever; but if any clerk of the peace or his deputy, or any under ſheriff or his deputy, ſhall preſume to act as ſolicitor, attorney, or agent as aforeſaid, ſuch clerk of the peace or his deputy, under-ſheriff or his deputy reſpectively, ſhall be ſubject and liable to a like penalty of fifty pounds, to be recovered in manner aforeſaid.

Sect. 15. And whereas ſeveral perſons have been bound by articles in writing to attornies of one of his Majeſty's courts at Weſtminſter, to ſerve them as their clerks for the term of five years, which attornies have died before the expiration of the ſaid five years, and after their deaths ſuch perſons ſo bound have ſerved the remainder of the ſaid term with ſome other attornies of the ſaid court, but have neglected to enter into articles with the ſaid other attornies for the remainder of the term of five years; and therefore doubts have ariſen, whether ſuch perſons could be admitted attornies of any of his Majeſty's courts, by reaſon that ſuch ſervice was not ſtrictly in purſuance of the direction of the before-mentioned act; Be it therefore enacted and declared by the authority aforeſaid, That all ſuch perſons, who ſhall have been ſo bound as aforeſaid for the term of five years, to attornies of any of his Majeſty's courts at Weſtminſter, which ſaid attornies ſhall have died before the determination of the ſaid term, if ſuch perſons ſhall afterwards, and before the 25th day of March 1749, have ſerved the reſidue of the ſaid term of five years with other attornies of one of his Majeſty's ſaid courts, tho' without entring into any articles; ſuch perſons having ſo ſerved during the term of five years, ſhall and may be admitted attornies in any of his Majeſty's courts at Weſtminſter; any thing in the ſaid act contained to the contrary in any wiſe notwithſtanding.

Sect. 16. And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, that any perſon, who ſhall have been admitted a ſworn clerk in the office of the ſix clerks of the court of Chancery, or ſhall have been bound by contract in writing, to ſerve as a clerk for and during the ſpace of five years, to a ſworn clerk in the ſaid office, and for and during the ſaid term of five years ſhall have continued in ſuch ſervice, or ſhall have continued in ſuch ſervice for the ſpace of three years or more, and ſhall have been admitted a writing clerk, and acted as ſuch during the reſidue of the ſaid term of five years, may be examined, ſworn, admitted, and inrolled as a ſolicitor, in the ſame manner as ſolicitors in courts of equity are by the ſaid act required to be examined, ſworn, admitted, and inrolled; any thing in the ſaid act to the contrary notwithſtanding.

Sect. 17. Provided alſo, and it is hereby further enacted, that if any ſworn clerk in the ſaid ſix clerks office, with and to whom any perſon hath been, or ſhall be bound by contract in writing as aforeſaid, to ſerve as a clerk for the term of five years, ſhall happen to die before the expiration of the ſaid term of five years; or if ſuch contract ſhall, by mutual conſent of the parties, be vacated; or in caſe ſuch clerk be legally diſcharged by any rule or order of the ſaid court of Chancery, before the expiration of the ſaid term of five years; then, and in any of the ſaid caſes, if ſuch clerk ſhall by contract in writing be obliged to ſerve, and ſhall accordingly ſerve as a clerk to any other ſworn clerk in the ſaid ſix clerks office, or to any ſolicitor who ſhall be ſworn, admitted, and inrolled, purſuant to the ſaid act of the ſecond year of his preſent Majeſty, during the reſidue of the ſaid term of five years; then ſuch ſervice ſhall be deemed and taken to be as good and effectual, as if ſuch clerk had continued to ſerve as clerk for the term of five years to the ſame perſon to whom he was originally bound by contract in writing as aforeſaid.

Sect. 18. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That no ſworn clerk in the ſaid ſix clerks office ſhall have more than two clerks at one and the ſame time, including the clerk who ſhall be entred on the roll kept by the Maſter of the Rolls or his ſecretary, for that purpoſe.

Sect. 19. Provided alſo, and it is hereby further declared and enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That nothing in this act contained ſhall extend to the taking or binding, examination, ſwearing, admiſſion, or inrolment of the attornies, or clerks of the officers of the King's remembrancer, treaſurer's remembrancer, fine or office pleas in the court of Exchequer at Weſtminſter for the time being; but the attornies and clerks of the ſaid reſpective offices ſhall and may be taken, bound, approved, ſworn, admitted, and practiſe in the ſaid court of Exchequer, in like manner as they uſually have been, and might have done before the making of this act, and may practiſe in any other of the courts of record before-mentioned, in the name and with the conſent of ſome ſworn attorney of ſuch court, ſuch conſent being in writing, and ſigned by ſuch attorney as aforeſaid, in the manner as they have uſually been, and might have done before the making of this act; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithſtanding.

Stat. 23 Geo. 2. c. 26. ſect. 15. And whereas by an act of parliament made and paſſed in the ſecond year of the reign of his preſent Majeſty, (intituled an act for the better regulation of attornies and ſolicitors) it was enacted, That from and after the firſt day of December 1730, any perſon who ſhould be ſworn, admitted, and inrolled to be an attorney in any of his Majeſty's courts of King's Bench, Common Pleas, Exchequer, counties palatine of Cheſter, Lancaſter, and Durham, and great ſeſſions in Wales, as is therein directed, might be ſworn, admitted, and inrolled to be a ſolicitor in all or any of the courts of equity in the ſaid act ſpecified, without any fee for the oath, or any ſtamp to be impreſſed on the parchment, whereon ſuch admiſſion ſhould be written, if the Maſter of the Rolls, two Maſters of the Chancery, the Barons of the court of Exchequer, the Chancellor of the dutchy of Lancaſter, and the judges of the courts of equity, in the ſaid act mentioned, for the time being, or any of them reſpectively, ſhould, upon examination of ſuch attorney touching his fitneſs and capacity to act as a ſolicitor in courts of equity, be ſatisfied that ſuch attorney is duly qualified to be ſo admitted; but there being no proviſion made in the ſaid in part recited act, for admitting perſons (who had been, or ſhall be ſworn, admitted, and inrolled ſolicitors of any of the courts of equity in the ſaid act mentioned) attornies of any of his Majeſty's courts of law therein mentioned, although ſuch ſolicitor ſhould be duly qualified in all other reſpects; wherefore, and to ſupply ſuch omiſſion, Be it enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That from and after the ſecond day of May 1750, any perſon who hath been already, or who at any time or times hereafter ſhall be ſworn, admitted, and inrolled a ſolicitor in any of his Majeſty's courts of equity at Weſtminſter, in ſuch manner as by the ſaid act is directed, may be ſworn, admitted, and inrolled to be an attorney of his Majeſty's courts of King's Bench or Common Pleas at Weſtminſter, without any fee for the oath, or any ſtamp to be impreſſed on the parchment whereon ſuch admiſſion ſhall be written (his having been ſworn, admitted, and inrolled a ſolicitor in any of the courts of equity aforementioned notwithſtanding) if the judges of the ſaid courts of King's Bench or Common Pleas for the time being, or any of them reſpectively, ſhall, upon examining ſuch ſolicitor touching his fitneſs and capacity to act as an attorney in the ſaid reſpective courts, be ſatisfied that ſuch ſolicitor is duly qualified to be ſworn, admitted, and inrolled an attorney, purſuant to the ſaid in part recited act, and other the laws now in force concerning attornies and ſolicitors.

2. Orders of the judges in relation to attornies.

In the reign of Queen Anne, the following orders were made by the judges in relation to attornies, viz.

De termino ſancti Michaelis anno regni dominæ Annæ, nunc Reginæ Angliæ, &c. tertio.

Whereas divers complaints have been made to us, that many attornies and clerks of the ſeveral courts at Weſtminſter are not admitted of the inns of court, or Chancery, according to ancient courſe and uſage, by which they might be reſorted to, and buſineſs of law better managed, to the greater eaſe of the Queen's ſubjects: the neglect whereof is to the great detriment and decay of the ſocieties of the law, and divers inconveniencies do thereupon daily happen; for prevention whereof, and to eſtabliſh a remedy for the future,

It is ordered by the judges of the ſeveral courts of Queen's Bench and Common Pleas, and the barons of the court of Exchequer at Weſtminſter, that all attornies and clerks of the ſaid courts, not already admitted into one of the inns of court, or Chancery, ſhall procure themſelves to be admitted into one of the ſaid inns of court, (if thoſe honourable ſocieties ſhall pleaſe to admit them) or into one of the inns of Chancery, before the end of Trinity term now next enſuing, and take chambers there, (if conveniently they may be had) or elſe, that they take lodgings in ſome convenient place near the ſaid inns, and leave notice in writing, with the butler or porter of ſuch inn, whereof they are admitted, where their lodgings or habitations are; (except ſuch perſons who are, or ſhall be hereafter, inhabitants or houſekeepers in London, Weſtminſter, Southwark, or the ſuburbs thereof, and liberty of the Tower of London and St. Katherine's there) and ſuch who are ſworn attornies of any courts within the ſaid cities, towns and liberties.

And it is further hereby ordered, that for the future no perſon whatſoever ſhall be ſworn an attorney, or admitted or entered a clerk of any of the ſaid courts, or offices thereunto belonging, (except the perſons before excepted) unleſs firſt admitted of one of the inns aforeſaid, and bring and produce at the time of his being ſworn an attorney, or admitted or entred a clerk as aforeſaid, a certificate under the hand of the treaſurer, or principal of the inn whereof he is admitted, which they are reſpectively to give without being paid any thing for the ſame, teſtifying ſuch his admiſſion; which certificate every attorney or clerk, ſo ſworn of the ſaid court of Queen's Bench, ſhall deliver to the ſecondary of the ſaid court; and every attorney or clerk ſo ſworn of the ſaid court of Common Pleas, ſhall deliver to the clerk of the warrants of the ſaid court; and every clerk of the ſaid court ſo admitted or entred, ſhall deliver to the reſpective prothonotaries, of whoſe office he ſhall be admitted; and every attorney ſo ſworn of the ſaid court of Exchequer, or clerks ſealed in any of the offices belonging to the ſaid court, ſhall deliver to the Queen's remembrancer, or his deputy for the time being, to be by the ſaid reſpective officers filed, before the name of ſuch attorney ſhall be entred into the roll of attornies, or ſuch clerk admitted, entred, or ſealed as aforeſaid; unto which file of certificates the reſpective treaſurers and principals of the ſaid inns of court and Chancery ſhall or may from time to time reſort, as they ſhall ſee cauſe, without paying any thing for the ſame.

And it is further ordered, that no attorney already ſworn, or clerk already admitted, entred or ſealed, or which hereafter ſhall be ſworn, admitted, entred or ſealed, and which are or ſhall be admitted into any of the ſocieties aforeſaid, ſhall put himſelf out of the ſociety whereof he is, or ſhall be admitted, until he be admitted of ſome other of the ſaid ſocieties, and deliver to the treaſurer, or principal of ſuch ſociety whereof he firſt was a member, a certificate in writing, ſigned by ſuch treaſurer, or principal, teſtifying his being admitted of ſuch other ſociety, (except ſuch perſon ſhall totally leave off the practice of the law as an attorney, or clerk in any of the ſaid courts.)

And whereas by the uſage, cuſtom, or orders of the inns of Chancery, the members thereof were obliged to, and did come into commons, and continue therein, according to the orders of ſuch ſociety, to their great eaſe in tranſacting their cauſes one with another, and much benefit to their clients. But of late, moſt, or a great number of the ſaid attornies and clerks, have neglected to come into commons, or continue therein, according to the reſpective orders of the ſaid inns of Chancery, to the great decay and detriment of theſe ſocieties;

It is further ordered, that from the end of this preſent term the attornies and clerks which now are, or ſhall be admitted into any of the inns of Chancery, do and ſhall come into and continue in commons for the time or times, as by the orders of ſuch ſociety, whereof they are or ſhall be admitted, is, are or ſhall be ordered, limited or appointed for them ſo to do. And in caſe any attorney or clerk aforeſaid ſhall offend againſt this rule or any part thereof, ſuch attorney ſhall be put out of the roll of attornies, and ſuch clerk ſo offending ſhall be diſcharged and diſplaced from ſuch offices to which he belongs, until he or they give obedience to this order; and the ſecondary of the ſaid court of Queen's Bench, and the reſpective prothonotaries and clerk of the warrants of the court of Common Pleas, and the Queen's remembrancer of the court of Exchequer, or his deputy for the time being, and all other officers whom it may concern, are hereby required to give obedience to this order, and ſee that the ſame (as to themſelves) be truly obſerved.

And for the more effectual and better putting in execution this order, and that it may procure the good hereby deſigned and intended;

It is hereby further ordered, that the reſpective treaſurers, and the principals of the inns of Chancery, and the ancients, rulers and governors of the ſame, do and ſhall from time to time, by ſuch ways and means as they ſhall ſee fit and convenient, procure and get a liſt of the names of ſuch attornies and clerks of the ſaid reſpective courts, who are not admitted of any of the ſaid inns of court or Chancery; which liſt the ſaid treaſurers and principals, ancients, rulers, and governors ſhall yearly, in Michaelmas term, deliver unto the right honourable the lords chief juſtices, and lord chief baron of the ſaid reſpective courts for the time being, to the intent the offenders againſt this order may be compelled to give obedience to the ſame.

And it is alſo hereby further ordered, that the ſaid treaſurers, principals, ancients, rulers, and governors, in like manner, procure and get a liſt of the names of ſuch perſons as take upon them to practiſe as attornies or clerks, in any of the ſaid courts, who are neither ſworn attornies, or admitted, entred, or ſealed clerks, in any of the offices of the ſaid courts; which liſt is to be delivered as above, to the intent that ſuch offenders may be proceeded againſt in ſuch manner as ſhall be thought fit.

Attorney of the dutchy court of Lancaſter, (Atturnatus curiæ ducatus Lancaſtriæ) Is the ſecond officer in that court; and ſeems for his ſkill in law to be there placed as aſſeſſor to the Chancellor, and choſen for ſome ſpecial truſt repoſed in him, to deal between the King and his tenants. Cowell.

Attorney of the court of wards and liveries, (Atturnatus regis in curia wardorum et liberaturarum) Was the third officer in that court: At his admiſſion into the office, he took an oath before the maſter of the ſaid court, well and truly to ſerve the King, &c. But the court of wards and liveries being taken away by ſtat. 12 Car. 2. c. 24. this office is alſo gone. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Attorney general, Is a great officer under the King, made by letters patent. It is his office to exhibit informations, and proſecute for the crown in matters criminal; and to file bills in the Exchequer, for any thing concerning the King in inheritannce or profits; and others may bring bills againſt the King's attorney. His proper place in court, upon any ſpecial matters of a criminal nature, wherein his attendance is requir'd, is under the judges, on the left hand of the clerk of the crown: But this is only upon ſolemn and extraordinary occaſions; for uſually he does not ſit there, but within the bar in the face of the court. Jacob.

Attornment, Attornamentum, (from the Fr. tourner, to turn) Signifies the tenant's acknowledgment of a new lord; as when one is tenant for life, and he in reverſion grants his right to another, it is neceſſary that the tenant for life agree thereto, which is called attornment; without which nothing paſſes by the grant; for otherwiſe he that buyeth any lands or tenements which are in the occupation of a third perſon, cannot get the poſſeſſion. But ſee 27 Hen. 8. c. 16. The words uſed in attornment are ſet down by Littleton, lib. 3. c. Attornment, viz. I agree to the grant made to you, &c. or, more uſually, Sir, I attorn to you by force of the ſame grant, or, I become your tenant, or elſe deliver unto the grantee a penny by way of attornment. In the ſame place may be ſeen divers other caſes, whereunto attornment appertaineth, and that it is the tranſpoſing thoſe duties the tenant owed to his former lord unto another, and is either by word, or by act, &c. Attornment is alſo voluntary or compulſory, by the writ termed per quæ ſervitia. Old Nat. Brev. fo. 155. Or ſometimes by diſtreſs. F. N. B. fo. 147. Laſtly, attornment may be made to the lord himſelf, or to his ſteward in court. Kitchin, fo. 70. There is alſo attornment in deed, and attornment in law. 6 Co. 113. Attornment in law is an act, which tho' it be no expreſs attornment, yet in intendment of law is all one. Cowell.

Attornment, ſays chief baron Gilbert, is the conſent of the tenant to the grant of the ſeigniory or the reverſion, putting him into the poſſeſſion of ſervices due from ſuch tenant. The reaſons are threefold, 1ſt, from the ancient feudal law; when the ſeigniories ſubſiſted in their ancient clans, they uſed to be continually contending with each other, and it was frequent in thoſe times to make peace upon amicable conceſſions to each other; but if upon ſuch grants they ſhould have ſubjected any feudaries to the other lord, it might have been to the infinite prejudice of ſuch tenants; for tho' ſuch contending lords might agree, yet the grudge might continue to the tenants, and therefore the policy of that old law was, that their fealty was not to be carried over to any other without their conſent, from whom they might expect oppreſſion rather than protection; 2dly, that the tenant might know to whom the rents and ſervices were due, and to diſtinguiſh the lawful diſtreſs from the tortious taking of his cattle; and this reaſon was ſo prevalent, that when the law gave a free alienation in reſpect of the ſuperior lord, yet the tenant's right of attornment continued unaltered; 3dly, that by the tenant's lawful payment of ſuch ſeigniory or reverſion, he might be put into poſſeſſion of ſuch ſeigniory or reverſion; and that, by the payment of ſuch rents, and doing ſuch ſervices, which anciently lay in going to the wars with their lords, and plowing their grounds, all men might know in whom ſuch rights were veſted; and here the moſt general rule is, that the tenant cannot alter the grant, but only attorn to it, and by ſuch attornment can make no variation in the grant itſelf; for the tenant has no right to the reverſion, and therefore cannot alter the diſpoſition of it one way or the other, but he has right to the poſſeſſion, and therefore can put whom he pleaſes into that poſſeſſion which he has in him. Gilb. Treat. of Tenures, 75, 76.

Attornment was a large head in our Common law; but much of this learning is now of very little uſe; for it is enacted by

Stat. 4 Ann. c. 16. ſect. 9. that all grants or conveyances by fine or otherwiſe, of any manors or rents, or of the reverſion or remainder of any meſſuages or lands, ſhall be good without attornment of the tenants.

Sect. 10. Provided that no ſuch tenant be damaged by payment of rent to any ſuch grantor or conuſor, or by breach of any condition for non-payment of rent, before notice given him of ſuch grant by the conuſee or grantee.

11 Geo. 2. cap. 19. ſect. 11. Attornment of tenants to ſtrangers, claiming title to the eſtate of their landlords, ſhall be abſolutely null and void to all intents and purpoſes whatſoever, and the poſſeſſion of their reſpective landlord and landlords, leſſor or leſſors, ſhall not be deemed or conſtrued to be any wiſe changed, altered, or affected, by any ſuch attornment or attornments; provided always, that nothing herein contained ſhall extend to vacate or affect any attornment made purſuant to, and in conſequence of, ſome judgment at law, or decree, or order of a court of equity, or made with the privity and conſent of the landlord or landlords, leſſor or leſſors, or to any mortgagee, after the mortgage is become forfeited.

Audience court, (Curia audientiæ Cantuarienſis) Is a court belonging to the archbiſhop of Canterbury, having the ſame authority with the court of arches, though inferior to it in dignity and antiquity. It is held in the archbiſhop's palace; for in former times the archbiſhops were wont to try and determine a great many eccleſiaſtical cauſes in their own palaces; but before they pronounced their definitive ſentence, they committed the matter to be argued by men learned in the law, whom they named their auditors; and ſo in time it grew to be the buſineſs of one ſpecial man, who at this day is called Cauſarum negotiorumque audientiæ Cantuarienſis auditor officialis. And to the office of auditor was formerly joined the Chancery of the archbiſhop, which meddleth not with any point of contentious juriſdiction; that is, deciding of cauſes between partyand party, but only ſuch as are of office, and eſpecially ſuch as are voluntariæ juriſdictionis, as the granting the cuſtody of ſpiritualties, during the vacancy of biſhopricks, inſtitutions to benefices, diſpenſations, &c. but this is now diſtinguiſhed from the audience. The auditor of this court anciently by ſpecial commiſſion was vicar general to the archbiſhop, in which capacity he executed eccleſiaſtical juriſdiction of every dioceſe becoming vacant within the province of Canterbury. Cowell. 4 Inſt. 337.

The archbiſhop of Canterbury had formerly his court of audience, in which at firſt were diſpatched all ſuch matters whether of voluntary or contentious juriſdiction, as the archbiſhop thought fit to reſerve for his own hearing. They who prepared evidence, and other materials to lay before the archbiſhop, in order to his deciſion, were called auditors. Afterwards this court was removed from the archbiſhop's palace, and the juriſdiction of it was exerciſed by the maſter or official of the audience, who held his court at the conſiſtory place at St. Paul's. But now the three great offices of official principal of the archbiſhop, dean or judge of the peculiars, and official of the audience are, and have been for a long time paſt, united in one perſon under the general name of Dean of the arches, who keepeth his court in Doctors Commons hall. Johnſ. 254.

The archbiſhop of York hath in like manner his court of audience. Johnſ. 255.

Audiendo et terminando, A writ, or rather a commiſſion to certain perſons, when any inſurrection or great riot is committed in any place, for the appeaſing and puniſhment thereof. F. N. B. 110. See Oyer and terminer.

Audita querela, Is a writ that lieth againſt him, who having taken a ſtatute-merchant, or a recognizance, in the nature of a ſtatute-ſtaple, or a judgment or recognizance of another, and craving, or having obtained execution of the ſame from the mayor and bailiffs, before whom it was entred, at the complaint of the party who entred the ſame, upon ſuggeſtion of ſome juſt cauſe, why execution ſhould not be granted; as a releaſe or other exception. This writ is granted by the Lord Chancellor of England, upon view of the exception ſuggeſted, to the juſtices of either bench, willing them to grant ſummons to the ſheriff of the county where the creditor is, for his appearance at a certain day before them. Old Nat. Brev. fo. 66. F. N. B. fo. 102. To writs of execution the defendant cannot plead; ſo that if there be any matter ſince the judgment to diſcharge him of the execution, he is to have audita querela; upon which the juſtices ſhall hear the complaint and do right: And audita querela cannot be brought on a releaſe, until judgment is entred of record. 1 Mod. 111.

An audita querela is a writ to be relieved againſt an unjuſt judgment or execution, by ſetting them aſide for ſome injuſtice of the party that obtained them, which could not be pleaded in bar to the action; for if it could be pleaded, it was the party's own fault, and therefore he ſhall not be relieved, to the end that proceedings may not be endleſs. 1 New Abr. 193.

1. Where audita querela lies to avoid execution on judgments, ſtatutes, recognizances, and other ſecurities, and where not.

2. Where audita querela lies by bail, and where not.

3. Proceedings and pleadings in audita querela.

1. Where audita querela lieth to avoid execution on judgments, ſtatutes, recognizances, and other ſecurities; and where not.

Audita querela lieth as well upon matter of fact ſuggeſted by the party, as upon writings and records; as for inſtance, an audita querela was brought to avoid an execution for 500*l.* in which the plaintiff ſuggeſted, that after the judgment the money was paid to Sir John Hawkins in diſcharge of the ſaid judgment, whereupon a ſci. fa. grounded on this audita querela was awarded to the ſheriff, who returned, that Sir John Hawkins was dead; then the plaintiff ſuggeſted, that his wife was executrix, and ſo a new ſci. fa. was awarded againſt her, who appeared and pleaded, that the ſaid 500*l.* was not paid in diſcharge of the judgment; upon which they were at iſſue, and the jury found, that illæ quingent' libræ ſolutæ fuerunt to the ſaid Sir John Hawkins by G. D. to have the judgment aſſigned to him; adjudged, that by the finding, that illæ quingent' libræ ſolutæ fuerunt, &c. it ſhall be intended to be the ſame ſum for which the judgment was obtained, and that it was ſufficient for the plaintiff's iſſue, and the reſt was but ſurpluſage; but becauſe this audita querela was an original out of Chancery, and the ſheriff had returned that Sir John Hawkins was dead, his executrix muſt not be charged without a new audita querela; therefore this was abated, but the plaintiff, who was in execution, was bailed. Cro. El. 634.

The debtor being taken in execution, he brought an audita querela, and ſuggeſted, that after the judgment he had paid the whole debt; adjudged, againſt the opinion of Popham chief juſtice, that this being a ſuit in equity as well as at law, it being only a commiſſion to the judges to examine the matter, that this is a good ſuggeſtion; for if the money is paid, 'tis unreaſonable the party ſhould lie in execution. 2 Cro. 29.

The cogniſor of a ſtatute being taken in execution brought an audita querela in Chancery, and ſuggeſted, that the ſtatute was void, and thereupon he found ſureties, who who entred into recognizance, that he ſhould appear, &c. & ad ſtandum juri & ad proſequendum cum effectu, and ſo he was diſcharged; afterwards it was adjudged, that this ſuggeſtion was inſufficient to diſcharge the cognifor of this ſtatute, and thereupon the cogniſee of the ſtatute brought a ſci. fa. upon the recognizance againſt the ſureties, and aſſigned the breach, that the cogniſor of the ſtatute had not paid the condemnation-money, nor rendred himſelf to priſon; it was objected in behalf of the ſureties, that their recognizance was only for the appearance of the cogniſor, &c. and that there was not a word in it, that he ſhould render himſelf, or pay the condemnation-money; but it was adjudged, that it being for his appearance & ad ſtandum juri, &c. thoſe words muſt be intended, that if he be condemned he ſhould ſatisfy the condemnation-money, or render himſelf again in execution for the debt; for the other words of the recognizance, viz. to appear and proſecute with effect, are only, that he would not ſuffer a nonſuit or uſe any delay; and if the words ad ſtandum juri ſhould not import, that he ſhould pay the money if he were condemned, then the ſtatute 11 H. 6. would be eluded, which was made to remedy the miſchief, that thoſe who were in execution ſhould not be delivered upon ſuggeſtions without good ſureties, which muſt be intended not only to appear, but to ſatisfy the party if he be condemned, &c. 2 Cro. 67.

The plaintiff obtained a judgment in an action of aſſault, and 200 l. damages, and had the body of the bail in execution, who brought an audita querela, ſuggeſting, that the principal had paid the money, and therefore prayed he might be diſcharged; but it was not allowed without an affidavit of payment of the money. Moor 850.

If an infant acknowledges a recognizance, ſtatute-merchant or ſtaple, or recognizance in nature of a ſtatute-ſtaple, he cannot avoid this without an audita querela brought before his full age, becauſe his nonage ought to be tried by inſpection. 2 Inſt. 673.

If A. being within age becomes bail for B. and after two ſcire fa. and nihil returned, judgment is given againſt A. &c. he may have an audita querela and avoid the recognizance, and ſo the judgment thereupon of conſequence ſhall be avoided. Yelv. 155.

But if A. being within age enters into a bond, who procures C. without any warrant, to appear for A. and confeſſes a judgment thereupon, yet A. ſhall not have an audita querela, but he muſt take his remedy by action of diſceit againſt the attorney. Cro. Jac. 694.

If tenant in tail acknowledges a ſtatute and dies, and the conuzee ſues execution againſt the heir, he may avoid it by aſſiſe, without being put to his audita querela. 1 Rol. Abr. 304.

So if a diſſeiſor acknowledge a ſtatute, and the diſſeiſee enters, the conuſee extends the land, the diſſeiſee is not put to his audita querela to avoid the extent; the conuſor having only a tortious and unlawful ſeiſin of the land, and conſequently no power to charge it. 1 Rol. Abr. 304.

But if A. be tenant for life, remainder to B. his ſon in tail, and A. enters into a recognizance to C. and dies; C. brings a ſci. fac. and B. is returned heir and tertenant, and warned, but makes default; he can have no audita querela to avoid this execution, becauſe he had a day given him in court to ſet aſide the recognizance, and it was his folly not to appear when warned. Raym. 19. 1 Sid. 54.

If a ſtatute be acknowledged to two, of which one is an infant, and they make a defeazance, and after ſue execution contrary to it, an audita querela ſhall be brought againſt both; for it does not appear within the deed that he was an infant; alſo the deed of an infant is only voidable, and peradventure he will affirm it. 1 Rol. Abr. 312.

An executor obtained a judgment in accompt, and the defendant was taken in execution for the arrears; afterwards the will of the teſtator was made void in the ſpiritual court, for that he was an ideot, and ſo not capable to make a will, and the record was removed out of that court into Chancery, and ſent from thence into the King's Bench, where the action of accompt was brought, and thereupon the defendant brought an audita querela; it was made a queſtion, whether it would lie; but we are told in Dr. Drurie's caſe, that it was adjudged in the Exchequer-Chamber, that it would lie. Dyer 203.

The cogniſor of a ſtatute, after it was acknowledged, made a feoffment of part of the lands to the cogniſee, and then he conveyed the other part to his ſon and his wife for her jointure, &c. the cogniſee ſued forth execution, and the ſon alone brought an audita querela, without his wife; adjudged, that it did lie, and that the cogniſee, by purchaſing part of the lands, had deſtroyed his ſtatute. Dyer 193, 194.

Where a ſtatute or recogniſance is acknowledged before one who hath power to take it, and afterwards the cogniſor makes a feoffment of the land to another, and the cogniſee taketh out execution, in ſuch caſe the feoffee may have an audita querela, and avoid the execution. Dyer 93.

A ſtatute-ſtaple was acknowledged, and the cogniſor being ſeiſed of lands in two counties, afterwards made a feoffment of his lands in one county to two, and of his lands in the other county, to another; the cogniſee ſued out execution, and extended the lands of one of the two in one county only, and thereupon the feoffee of thoſe lands brought an audita querela, and had a ſcire facias returnable by the ſheriff of the other county where his other lands were, to make the feoffee of thoſe lands contributory; to which he pleaded in abatement, that the plaintiff had omitted the lands of one of the two feoffees in the firſt county; adjudged, that this was an ill plea, for the plaintiff is not bound to take notice of all the lands of the cogniſor which were liable to the ſtatute. Dyer 331.

In audita querela, the caſe was this; the conuſee gave a defeaſance, that if he ſued execution of the lands the conuſor had in Kent, the ſtatute ſhould be void; the conuſee, contrary to his defeaſance, extended the land in that county; and it was adjudged this writ well lay to avoid the execution and vacate the ſtatute; for the defeaſance was no way repugnant to the ſtatute, becauſe the conuſee might ſtill extend the lands of the conuſor in any other county, and take his body and goods. Moor pl. 1097.

If A. enters into a ſtatute to B. and pays the money at the day aſſigned, upon which the ſtatute is cancelled, and after B. forges a new ſtatute in the name of A. in this caſe A. may relieve himſelf by audita querela; for the forged ſtatute having all the eſſentials of a true one, the court was obliged to look on it as ſuch till the contrary appeared, which the conuſor could not ſet forth before execution, having no day to appear judicially in court, and therefore is put to this writ to avoid the execution founded on the injuſtice of the pretended conuſee. F. N. B. 104.

If the conuſee of a ſtatute, upon agreement with the conuſor, delivers up the ſtatute in lieu of an acquittance, and after ſues execution, and the conuſor prays a re-extent, becauſe that the land was extended too low, and has it granted him, he ſhall never avoid the extent by audita querela; becauſe by his praying the re-extent he admits the ſtatute good and executory. 1 Rol. Abr. 313.

If upon an elegit the ſheriff takes an inquiſition, and there are ſeveral lands found ſubject to the extent, and ſeveral values found, and the ſheriff returns, that he has delivered ſome of the lands in particular for the moiety, where it appears according to the values found, that an equal moiety is not delivered to the party who recovered, but more than a moiety; yet this is not void, nor is it a diſſeiſin by the entry, but only voidable by audita querela. 1 Rol. Abr. 305.

If a man in execution upon a judgment for debt or damages, be delivered out of execution by the ſheriff or gaoler who hath him in execution, with the aſſent of him at whoſe ſuit he is in execution, and after, by colour of this judgment, he takes him again and puts him in priſon, an audita querela lies upon this matter, and thereupon he ſhall be delivered. 1 Rol. Abr. 307.

But if A. be in execution at the ſuit of B. and after A. eſcapes with the conſent of the ſheriff, and after A. returns to the priſon, and the ſheriff keeps him in priſon upon the ſaid execution, A. ſhall not be diſcharged by audita audita querela, for B. has it ſtill in his election to have him in execution at his ſuit, and ſhall not be compelled to take his remedy againſt the ſheriff for this voluntary eſcape, who perhaps may be worth nothing. 1 Rol. Abr. 307.

If a ſtatute be made to baron and feme, and they make a defeaſance, and ſue execution contrary to it, the audita querela ſhall be brought againſt both, although the defeaſance be void as to the wife; for this action is in lieu of an anſwer of the execution, which is ſued by both; and this is all one as if the baron alone had made the defeaſance, which would have been a ſufficient diſcharge. 1 Rol. Abr. 312.

If a ſtatute be acknowledged to a feme ſole and J. S. and after the feme takes huſband, and J. S. releaſes, and after execution is ſued, the audita querela may be brought againſt the baron and feme and J. S. 1 Rol. Abr. 312.

If two executors ſue execution for damages recovered by the teſtator, where one hath releaſed, an audita querela lies againſt both. 1 Rol. Abr. 312.

If A. conuſee of a ſtatute releaſes to the tenant all right, intereſts, and demands, together with all ſuits and executions, and afterwards ſues execution, the tertenant ſhall have an audita querela to ſet aſide this execution. Cro. Eliz. 40. 1 And. 133.

So in treſpaſs or other action, if it be found for the plaintiff by niſi prius, and after, before the day in bank, the plaintiff releaſes to the defendant, and after judgment is given for the plaintiff, the defendant ſhall have an audita querela upon this matter; becauſe he could plead the releaſe at the day in bank. 1 Rol. Abr. 307.

If a conuſee of a ſtatute gives a deed of defeaſance to the conuſor, and afterwards ſues execution, contrary to the form of the defeaſance, the conuſor may have an audita querela, becauſe the defeaſance precludes the execution, if the terms or condition of it be performed by the conuſor; and he may have the audita querela, though the condition be broken, becauſe the conuſee extended before his time; and therefore the execution being unjuſtly ſued, muſt conſequently be an injury to the conuſor. 1 Rol. Abr. 307.

A ſtatute-merchant was acknowledged in London, which had but one ſeal to it, when by the ſtatute 13 Ed. 1. de Mercatoribus, it ought to have two ſeals, and execution being taken upon this ſtatute, the cogniſor brought an audita querela; it was objected, that a writ of error was the proper remedy in this caſe; but adjudged that the audita querela did lie, for where a ſtatute is erroneouſly acknowledged, 'tis for that reaſon no record, and therefore a writ of error will not lie, but an audita querela is the proper remedy to avoid the execution. Cro. Eliz. 233.

An infant entered into a ſtatute, and afterwards brought an audita querela; adjudged, that it did lie in B. R. or in the court of Common Pleas, and upon inſpection he was adjudged within age, therefore he had a ſci. fa. againſt the cogniſee. Cro. E. 208.

Audita querela upon a ſtatute-merchant was brought in the court of Common Pleas; but upon a ſtatute-ſtaple, it muſt be brought in the court of Chancery, or by ſci. fa. directed to the ſheriff quod ſit in cancellaria. 1 Leon. 140.

The cogniſor of a ſtatute-ſtaple was taken in execution, and whilſt he was in priſon the money was brought into court; thereupon he brought an audita querela, and moved to be bailed, which was granted, and the money to lie in court till the audita querela was determined; but the cogniſor put in bail to anſwer the coſts of ſuit. 1 Leon. 141.

An action of detinue was brought for a ſtatute merchant; the defendant pleaded garniſhment, the plaintiff recovered againſt the garniſhee, and had judgment; now tho' the judgment was erroneous, yet the defendant delivered the ſtatute to the plaintiff, who afterwards ſued out execution; then the garniſhee brought a writ of error, in which the judgment was reverſed, and he was reſtored to all that he loſt; but that would not avoid the execution, but he might be helped in an audita querela. 5 Rep. 90.

Audita querela brought by ſeveral concerning perſonal things, the nonſuit of one ſhall not prejudice the other, becauſe the writ is only by way of diſcharge of the perſon, and therefore the default of one ſhall not hurt the reſt. 6 Rep. 25.

An adminiſtrator durante minore ætate of an infant executor, had judgment in an action of debt brought by him for money due to the teſtator, and the defendant being in execution, the infant executor came of full age; it was moved, that he might be diſcharged out of priſon, becauſe the authority of the adminiſtrator being now determined by the executor's coming of age, he could not acknowledge ſatisfaction, tho' the priſoner ſhould pay the money; but the court were of opinion, that the judgment was ſtill in force, and that the party might be relieved by an audita querela. Godb. 104.

Two entered into a recogniſance, and cogniſee extended the lands of one of them by elegit, and took the body of the other by a ca. ſa. who brought an audita querela, and was relieved; becauſe the land of the other being extended, that ſhall be intended a full ſatisfaction for the debt. 5 Rep. Blomfield's caſe.

Upon a judgment in treſpaſs, the plaintiff extended lands in ancient demeſne, by virtue of an elegit, but the defendant was relieved by an audita querela. Hob. 47.

In trover by an adminiſtrator for the goods of the inteſtate; the defendant pleaded, that the letters of adminiſtration were repealed in the ſpiritual court, per debitam legis formam, and granted to another; adjudged no plea, becauſe he might be relieved by an audita querela, which is the moſt proper remedy. Yelv. 125.

If the principal be taken in execution upon a judgment, and after a ſcire facias returned according to the courſe of the court, judgment is given againſt the bail, and thereupon he is taken in execution; and after the principal is delivered upon an audita querela, becauſe the recoveror had acknowledged ſatisfaction, &c. in this caſe, though the recogniſance was forfeited by the bail, by not bringing in the principal at the time appointed by law; yet inaſmuch as the judgment and execution againſt the bail depends upon the judgment againſt the principal, and he was but a ſecurity for the payment of the money, of which the recoveror is ſatisfied, the bail ſhall be diſcharged. 1 Rol. Abr. 308.

If A. and B. are bound in an obligation jointly and ſeverally, and judgment given againſt each on ſeveral actions brought, and both taken in execution, and after A. eſcapes, yet B. ſhall not be delivered upon an audita querela; for though the obligee may have an action againſt the ſheriff for the eſcape, yet till he is actually ſatisfied, the other ſhall not have an audita querela, for perhaps the ſheriff is worth nothing. 5 Co. 86.

If A. leaſes Black-Acre for years to B. and then acknowledges a ſtatute to C. and afterwards another to D. then C. takes a leaſe of the reverſion and the rent from A. by which he has ſuſpended the execution of the ſtatute during the term, and conſequently laid the land open to the extent of D. the ſecond conuſee, who ſues execution; if therefore C. ſhould extend the reverſion and rent during his own leaſe, B. the leſſee is not obliged to pay him the rent, but may avoid the extent by plea without audita querela, becauſe C. hath ſuſpended the execution of his ſtatute, the firſt in date, by the acceptance of the leaſe from the conuſor. 1 Rol. Abr. 304.

If a ſtatute is erroneouſly acknowledged, as before one that has no authority; or if a ſtatute-merchant hath but one ſeal, an audita querela lies, and not a writ of error, for this is no record; but if a ſtatute is well acknowledged, and the execution erroneous, a writ of error lies. Cro. El. 233, 319, 810.

If a ſtatute be delivered to B. to keep in an indifferent hand, upon certain conditions between the conuzor and the conuzee; if B. before the conditions performed, delivers it to the conuzee, and he ſues execution, the conuzor at his election may either have an audita querela upon this matter, or a writ of diſceit againſt B. F. N. B. 104.

If the conuzor is taken in execution upon a ſtatute, and the conuzee covenants to diſcharge him from the ſtatute, the conuzor ſhall not thereupon have an audita querela, but muſt take his remedy by action of covenant. Cro. Jac. 218.

If a man makes a feoffment, upon condition to re-infeoff him, and after the feoffee, to the intent to deceive him, falſly and by covin between him and B. acknowledges a recognizance to B. and after re-infeoffs him, the feoffee may have an audita querela upon this matter; for this is grounded upon the matter of record, as well as upon the matter of deceit, which is in pais. 1 Rol. Abr. 310.

If a man acknowledges a ſtatute, which is uſuriouſly entred into, and the conuſee ſues execution, the conuzor ſhall have an audita querela upon this matter. 1 Rol. Abr. 310.

The cogniſee of a ſtatute took out a ca. ſa. againſt the cogniſor, upon which he was taken in execution; but there being a defeaſance on the ſtatute, which was not performed by the cogniſee, therefore the cogniſor brought an audita querela, and was bailed. 1 Brownl. 39.

There was a judgment againſt a debtor, who afterwards ſold the lands, and being unable to pay the money, the judgment creditor brought a ſci. fa. againſt him, and had judgment therein by default, and by virtue of an elegit extended the lands of the purchaſer; but the whole being not extended, the purchaſer had no remedy but by an audita querela, ſetting forth the ſpecial matter. 1 Brownl. 39.

Two were taken in execution for debt, and afterwards one of them eſcaped; adjudged, that an action of debt lies againſt the ſheriff for this eſcape; and that after the debt is recovered againſt him, the other, who was ſtill in execution, ſhall have an audita querela, and be diſcharged from his impriſonment; for the body can be no ſatisfaction for the debt, becauſe 'tis taken only to enforce ſatisfaction, and the debt being already ſatisfied by the ſheriff, the body of the other ſhall no longer remain in priſon. 2 Bulſt. 320.

There was judgment for the king and the informer, upon an information for recuſancy; it was moved to ſtay execution, for that the defendant had conformed; but adjudged, that the court cannot judicially take notice of his conformity, and that he hath no remedy but an audita querela, for that lies where he cannot plead, but not againſt the king; therefore the audita querela doth not hinder the execution as to the king, but he may have it againſt the informer. 2 Bulſt. 324.

Judgment againſt the defendant in treſpaſs, and damages to 14 l. and coſts to 5 l. 10 s. which judgment was affirmed on a writ of error, and coſts to 5 l. 10 s. for delay of execution: Now, after the judgment in treſpaſs, and before the judgment on the writ of error, the plaintiff releaſed all executions and demands, and notwithſtanding that releaſe he ſued out execution, as well upon the firſt as the ſecond judgment, for the damages and coſts, upon which the defendant in the action brought an audita querela, and ſet forth all this matter, and the releaſe, and iſſue was taken upon the releaſe which was found againſt him; it was inſiſted in arreſt of judgment, that this releaſe would not help the plaintiff in the audita querela, becauſe it was given before the laſt judgment in the writ of error, and not pleaded, and execution being now on that judgment, he ſhall not have the benefit of the releaſe, which was given before it; but adjudged, that the execution was for the damages and coſts upon the firſt judgment in treſpaſs, as well as for the increaſe of coſts upon the judgment in the writ of error, and he had no time to plead the releaſe to that judgment, becauſe it came before it; and though the execution is intire for the whole, yet ſince the releaſe diſcharges the firſt judgment and damages, the plaintiff in the audita querela ſhall have the benefit of it. 2 Cro. 337.

In a ſcire facias, in the nature of an audita querela, the plaintiff ſet forth, that Sir William Blackſtone was ſeiſed of lands in D. and of other lands in the poſſeſſion of the defendants, and that he acknowledged a ſtatute, and that the lands which were in the poſſeſſion of the plaintiff were taken in execution, whereupon he brought this action ex gravi querela, to be relieved againſt the defendants by way of contribution; adjudged, that though the action was brought generally againſt the defendant, without alledging, that they were tenants tempore brevis, and alſo without alledging, that he himſelf was the tenant; yet being ex gravi querela, it ſhall be intended, that he was then tenant. 3 Bulſt. 305.

After a ſtatute was acknowledged, the cogniſor made a feoffment of lands liable to the ſtatute to two ſeveral perſons, and the cogniſee ſued out execution againſt one of them alone, whereon he brought an audita querela, in which he ſet forth this matter, and that his lands were delivered to the cogniſee by liberate; it was objected in arreſt of judgment, that the declaration was not good, for that the plaintiff did not ſet forth all the extent in ſpecial; and alſo the execution of the liberate; for his ſaying, that the lands were delivered to the cogniſee by liberate, was not an expreſs allegation, that the plaintiff was turned out of poſſeſſion, or of any manner of grievance; but adjudged, that it was a ſufficient averment, that he was turned out of poſſeſſion. Winch. 20.

Judgment againſt the defendant, who was afterwards taken by virtue of a ca. ſa. and eſcape; the ſheriff did not return the ca. ſa. at the day, &c. and thereupon an alias ca. ſa. iſſued againſt the defendant, upon which he was retaken by the ſheriff, and thereupon the defendant brought an audita querela, and it was held good. Moor 57.

If A. hath lands in ſeveral counties, and enters into a recognizance to B. and after acknowledges a ſtatute to C. upon which C. extends the lands in one county, and after B. ſues execution upon the recognizance, and hath the moiety of the ſame lands delivered to him, but ſued no execution of the moiety of the lands in the other county, A. hath no reaſon to complain, becauſe B. hath taken in execution only a moiety of his lands, but C. may have an audita querela againſt B. becauſe it is prejudicial to him. 2 And. 170. Yelv. 12. Noy 47.

If A. brings an audita querela againſt B. and declares, that whereas B. had recovered againſt A. 200 l. debt, &c. and thereupon the ſaid A. was outlawed, and upon a capias utlagatum taken, and in execution at the ſuit of the ſaid B. and after from the ſaid execution was delivered, and ſuffered to go at large, &c. and yet B. hath taken out execution upon the ſaid judgment, and endeavours, &c. the defendant may plead and ſhew, how that after the ſaid enlargement, and before the purchaſe of the audita querela, the outlawry was ſet aſide, and made void, and ſo conclude quod non habetur tale recordum. 8 Co. 141.

If A. hath judgment againſt B. for coſts and damages, and releaſes to B. all executions, and after B. brings a writ of error, and thereupon the judgment is affirmed, and further coſts given for the delay of execution, and A. takes B. in exeeution for the whole, upon an audita querela, B. ſhall be diſcharged quoad the damages and firſt coſts, but not quoad the ſecond coſts. Cro. Jac. 337.

If A. as adminiſtrator recovers damages in trover againſt B. and after his adminiſtration is repealed, and granted to another, upon a ſurmiſe that A. intends and endeavours to ſue execution, B. may have an audita querela; for by the repeal of the adminiſtration the power of A. is abſolutely determined. 2 Sand. 148.

Audita querela was brought before judgment entered; it was agreed by the court, that it could not be done; but if 'tis brought the day in bank, though the judgment is not entered, the court will compel, that the judgment be entered as of that term, ſo that they ſhall not plead nul tiel record. 1 Mod. 111.

Judgment againſt the principal, and a ſcire facias brought againſt the bail; judgment thereon, then the bail brought a writ of error, and the judgment on the ſcire facias was affirmed; then the principal brought another writ of error upon the judgment obtained againſt him, him, and it was reverſed, and thereupon the bail brought an audita querela; and it was objected, that it did not lie, becauſe the judgment on the ſci. fa. was collateral to the judgment in the principal action of debt. Sed per curiam, the reverſal of that judgment ſhall likewiſe reverſe the judgment on the ſci. fa. and though the judgment on the ſci. fa. was affirmed upon the writ of error brought, yet that affirmance only removed the errors aſſigned; ſo the audita querela will lie, and the bail is diſcharged. 2 Rol. Rep. 254.

The caſe was, four perſons made an aſſault and battery on the plaintiff, who brought an action againſt one of them in C. B. and had a verdict and judgment, and the party was taken in execution for the damages; afterwards he brought another action of aſſault, &c. in B. R. againſt the other three, and had judgment likewiſe againſt them; then the party againſt whom the firſt judgment was had in C. B. paid the damages, and ſatisfaction was acknowledged; and afterwards one of the three, againſt whom the laſt judgment was had, was taken in execution, and all three brought an audita querela; the queſtion was, whether it would lie or not, becauſe the two who were not taken in execution were not grieved? Et per curiam, the audita querela will lie by all three, for though the plaintiff may have ſeveral actions for the ſame aſſault, he can have but one ſatisfaction; as where two are bound in a bond jointly and ſeverally, and the obligee ſues one in C. B. and recovers, and afterwards ſues the other in B. R. and recovers againſt him, yet if one of them make ſatisfaction, the other ſhall have an audita querela to avoid the execution. W. Jones 377.

The cogniſor of a recognizance in 2000 l. to one acknowledged a ſtatute of 100 l. to another; the cogniſee of the ſtatute extended the lands of the cogniſor in D. who had alſo other lands not extended; afterwards the cogniſee of the recogniſance extended a moiety of the ſame lands which had been before extended and delivered in execution to the cogniſee of the ſtatute, who thereupon brought an audita querela, upon which he was relieved, and had judgment, which was affirmed in error becauſe he was in poſſeſſion of the lands by a lawful title by virtue of an extent, and therefore thoſe lands were only liable to the execution of the recogniſance pro rata; ſo that the cogniſor of the recogniſance ought to have included all the other lands of the cogniſor in his execution, which were not extended by the cogniſee of the ſtatute. Yelv. 12.

The judgment creditor took out execution by elegit, and extended the lands of the debtor; afterwards he aſſigned theſe lands to others, and then he gave the debtor a releaſe of all judgments and executions, whereupon he brought an audita querela; and upon demurrer, it was objected, that this writ being brought againſt the judgment creditor was wrong, for it ought to be brought againſt the aſſignees of the extent; but adjudged good, for he being a party to the judgment, his releaſe had diſcharged it. Cro. Car. 155, 214.

The debtor being taken in execution, the creditor conſented, that he might come to him at ſuch a tavern, which was out of the rules, and without a keeper, or a rule of court; accordingly they met together at the place, and not agreeing, the creditor took him again in execution, whereupon he brought an audita querela, and was relieved, becauſe the execution was diſcharged by the priſoner's going at large, and he could not be retaken by law. Style 117.

The judgment creditor extended the lands of his debtor in one county by elegit, which were delivered to him in execution, and enjoyed by him ſix years; then he made his wife executrix, and died, and ſhe brought a ſci. fa. upon the judgment directed to the ſheriff of another county, where the debtor had other lands; and upon two nihils returned, ſhe had judgment and execution againſt the debtor for the ſame debt, who brought an audita querela, and was relieved; for after an elegit returned, and the lands are extended, the party cannot have another elegit. Style 454.

Scire facias againſt executors, the ſheriff returned nulla bona, &c. afterwards, upon a teſtatum, that they had waſted the goods of the teſtator, a new ſci. fa. with a fi. fa. iſſued againſt them, upon which there were two nihils returned, and thereupon judgment was given againſt them de bonis propriis; but, becauſe they were never ſummoned, nor had any manner of notice of theſe proceedings, they were relieved by an audita querela. Style 372.

The cogniſor entered into a recogniſance of 1000 l. to two perſons, and afterwards he gave them the manor of Dale, &c. one of the cogniſees ſued out execution, and took the cogniſee in London, who ſuppoſing that by the gift of this manor the recogniſance was diſcharged, brought an audita querela; adjudged, that it will not lie, becauſe the body, and not the land of the cogniſor was the debtor, for the land was not liable to the debt, but at the election of the cogniſee; but if the cogniſor had made a feoffment to the cogniſee of part of the land, and to a ſtranger of another part, and had reſerved part to himſelf, in ſuch caſe the cogniſee ſhall not have execution againſt the ſtranger, becauſe he being one of the feoffees, the lands in poſſeſſion of the other feoffee, who is the ſtranger, are not chargeable with the execution; for the cogniſee himſelf cannot be contributory for his part with the ſtranger, towards the charge of the execution, becauſe he cannot be contributory to himſelf. Plowd. Com. 72.

The father and ſon were bound jointly in a ſtatute merchant, and their lands extended, they brought a joint audita querela, and held not good, for it ought to be ſeveral, becauſe their grievance by the execution was ſeveral. Owen 106.

An infant acknowledged a recogniſance in the nature of a ſtatute-ſtaple, and afterwards, when he came of full age he brought an audita querela to avoid it; but adjudged, that it did not lie, becauſe his age is not to be tried by inſpection of the court, which could not be after his full age; the law had been the ſame if he had died within age, therefore he ought to bring the audita querela before he is of full age. Dyer 232.

The cogniſor of a ſtatute had lands in two counties, which were chargeable by the ſtatute, afterwards he made two feoffments, by which he conveyed part of theſe lands to one of the feoffees, and the reſidue to the other feoffee, and the cogniſee having taken out an extent againſt the lands of one of the feoffees, that very feoffee levied a fine of the ſame lands to the uſe of G. D. the purchaſer, who brought an audita querela againſt the other feoffee to have contribution; it was inſiſted for him, that an audita querela demands nothing, for 'tis only a commiſſion to the judges to hear the complaint of the party; and 'tis a rule in law, that a purchaſer for a valuable conſideration ſhall not be charged, but only pro rata; but adjudged, that this audita querela did not lie by the purchaſer, becauſe the land was clogged with the extent before he bought it, et tranſit terra cum onere, ſo that he is not the party grieved. 2 Bulſt. 15.

2. Where audita querela lieth by bail, and where not.

Judgment againſt the principal, and upon a ſcire facias againſt the bail there was a nihil returned, and thereupon judgment was againſt the bail, who moved for an audita querela, for that he was within age; it was objected, that he ought in the firſt place to bring a writ of error to reverſe the judgment againſt the principal; becauſe, whilſt that was in force, the bail muſt be chargeable; but it was anſwered, that it might be in vain to bring a writ of error, becauſe there might be no error in that judgment; therefore, if the bail could not have an audita querela, they were without a remedy, though he was ſtill an infant; for they could not plead his infancy to the ſcire facias, and thereupon an audita querela was granted. Yelv. 155.

Judgment againſt the principal, who died without paying the money, or rendring himſelf to priſon; afterwards a ſci. fa. was brought againſt the bail, and the plaintiff had had judgment againſt them, whereupon they brought an audita querela, and had relief, becauſe they could not by law be taken in execution, till ſome default be returned againſt the principal upon a capias awarded againſt him; and there being no ſuch proceſs againſt him while he was living, 'tis now impoſſible for him to yield his body to priſon, being dead. Goldſb. 174.

There was a judgment againſt the principal, and afterwards another judgment upon a ſci. fa. againſt the bail, and upon a writ of error brought the laſt judgment was affirmed; afterwards the principal judgment was reverſed upon a writ of error, and thereupon an audita querela was brought by the bail; it was objected againſt it, for that the reverſal of the principal judgment was not a reverſal of the judgment upon the ſci. fa. that being a collateral judgment, and ſtanding by itſelf; but adjudged, that it depends on the firſt judgment, and 'tis that which brings the charge on the bail, which being now diſcharged, the bail ought to be ſo in like manner. 2 Cro. 645.

After an eſcape made by the principal, there was a judgment againſt the ſureties, and they were taken in execution; upon which they brought an audita querela, and ſuggeſted they would bring the money into court, or give ſufficient ſecurity to pay to the obligee, and ſo prayed that they might be bailed; but adjudged, that if the audita querela had been grounded on a ſpecialty, or other matter in writing, or on record, the court would grant a ſuperſedeas to diſcharge them, if they were not in execution, and would bail them if they were; but upon this ſuggeſtion, which is only matter of fact, they would neither grant a ſuperſedeas in one caſe, nor bail them in the other. 2 Brownl. 108.

3. Proceedings and pleadings in audita querela.

In an audita querela, the proceſs is a venire facias, diſtringas, alias, pluries, and if non eſt inventus be returned, or that he hath nothing, the plaintiff ſhall have a capias againſt the defendant. F. N. B. 104. Dyer 297. b.

And if the plaintiff be in execution, a ſcire facias goes; if not, a venire. Mo. 811. 1 Salk. 92. So, if the audita querela be founded upon a record. 1 Salk. 92. And if there be a default by the defendant upon a ſcire feci, or two nichils returned, the plaintiff ſhall have judgment. 1 Salk. 93. But, where an audita querela is ſued quia timet, and the party is at large, there ſhall never be a ſcire facias. 1 Salk. 92.

An audita querela ſhall be granted out of the court, where the record, upon which it is founded, remains, or it may be returnable in the ſame court. F. N. B. 105. b. And therefore if a man recover in B. R. or C. B. the defendant having a releaſe after judgment, and before execution, ſhall ſue the audita querela out of B. R. or C. B. where the record is. F. N. B. 105. So, if a recognizance be acknowledged in C. B. and execution be ſued upon it after releaſe, the defendant ſhall ſue the audita querela out of C. B. F. N. B. 105. But an audita querela may be by original, and upon a judgment in C. B. It goes out of Chancery returnable in C. B. F. N. B. 105.

The writ of audita querela ſhall be allowed only in open court. 1 Bulſt. 140. 2 Bulſt. 97. 2 Show. 240.

Upon a motion for an allowance of an audita querela, it was held, that bail muſt be given in court, and not elſewhere, unleſs in caſes of neceſſity, to be allowed by the court, and then it may be put in before two judges. Palm. 422.

G. A. and M. A. were jointly and ſeverally bound to one Tatnell, in a bond of 700 l. the obligee ſued both, and obtained two judgments, and both of them were outlawed, and one of them was taken upon the capias utlagatum, and the ſheriff voluntarily ſuffered him to eſcape; whereupon Tatnell the obligee brought an action of debt againſt the ſheriff for this eſcape, and recovered. and received ſatisfaction, and yet he proceeded againſt the other, who thereupon brought an audita querela, in which he ſet forth all this matter; but upon a demurrer to the declaration there was judgment againſt him, becauſe the time when and place where ſatisfaction was made by the ſheriff was not ſpecially ſet forth. 1 Mod. 170.

Adjudged, that where the plaintiff in audita querela gets judgment, he ſhall have reſtitution of his goods, though they were taken in execution before the writ brought, and though there is no ſuch thing mentioned in the judgment. Sid. 74.

Judgment in replevin for the avowants; afterwards one of them releaſed, and thereupon an audita querela was brought; and a motion was made, that it might be allowed, in order that the execution might be ſuperſeded, and the releaſe being produced, but the witneſſes to it being in the country, it was offered to prove their hands; but that was not allowed, ſince the witneſſes themſelves were living and in health; and they would not allow the audita querela, unleſs the releaſe was proved, nor ſcarce then; becauſe it appeared by affidavits, that the perſon who executed this releaſe was joined with the other avowants by practice, and without the conſent. Sid. 351.

In audita querela the party appeared upon the ſcire facias, and demurred, for that the ſcire facias bore date the twenty-third day of October, and the audita querela the third day of November following; but adjudged, that this ſcire facias is in nature of a meſne proceſs; 'tis only to bring in the defendant to anſwer, and the judgment muſt be given upon the audita querela, therefore this being only a fault in meſne proceſs, 'tis cured by the defendant's appearance; 'tis true, ſuch a fault would not be cured by an appearance of the defendant, where the ſcire facias is brought upon a judgment, becauſe in ſuch caſe 'tis quaſi an original, and the judgment is given on the ſci. fa. 1 Vent. 7.

Judgment in debt againſt two defendants, one of them was taken in execution, and afterwards diſcharged out of cuſtody by the plaintiff himſelf, the other brought an audita querela againſt the plaintiff, praying, that he might likewiſe be diſcharged from the judgment quia timet; and after two ſcire facias's and two nihils returned, he moved for a ſuperſedeas (which ſhews that an audita querela is no ſuperſedeas of itſelf) but it was denied; becauſe a ſcire facias is improper where the ſuit is quia timet, and the party at large; he ſhould bring a venire, and have a diſtreſs infinite; but if he had been in execution, he might either have a ſcire facias or venire. 1 Salk. 92.

Adjudged, that where the party hath ſome matter which he might have pleaded to the ſci. fa. in his diſcharge, and two nihils are returned, and judgment againſt him, the court will relieve him upon motion, without putting him to bring an audita querela. 1 Salk. 93.

A writ of audita querela.

GEORGE the third, &c. To our juſtices aſſigned to hold pleas before us, greeting. We having received information, by the grievous complaint of A. B. that whereas C. D. in Eaſter term, &c. and now hath to the damage of the ſaid A. &c. wherefore the ſaid A. hath beſought us to provide him relief, and being unwilling that the ſaid A. ſhould be any ways injured, and deſirous that what is right and juſt ſhould be done in this caſe: We command you, that in order to hear the complaint of the ſaid A. you call before you the aforeſaid parties, and ſuch others as it ſhall ſeem meet to you to convene; and having heard the aforeſaid parties, and their ſeveral reaſons, you cauſe to be done full and ſpeedy juſtice to the ſaid parties, which of right, and according to the laws and cuſtoms of our kingdom, you ſhall ſee ought to be done. Witneſs, &c.

Auditor, (Lat.) Is an officer of the king, or ſome other great perſon, who examines yearly the accounts of all under officers, and makes up a general book, which ſhews the difference between their receipts and charge, and their ſeveral allowances, commonly called allocations:

As the auditors of the Exchequer take the accounts of thoſe receivers who collect the revenues. 4 Inſt. 106. Receivers general of fee-farm rents, &c. are alſo termed auditors, and hold their audits for adjuſting the accounts of the ſaid rents at certain times and places appointed. And there are auditors aſſigned by the court to audit and ſettle accounts in actions of account, and other caſes, who are proper judges of the cauſe, and pleas are made before them, &c. 1 Brownl. 24.

Auditor of the Receipts, An officer of the Exchequer, that files the tellers bills, and having made an entry of them, gives the lord treaſurer, &c. weekly a certificate of the money received: He makes debentures to the tellers, before they pay any money, and takes their accounts: he alſo keeps the black book of receipts, and the treaſurer's key of the treaſury, and ſees every teller's money locked up in the treaſury. 4 Inſt. 107.

Auditors of the Impreſt, Are officers in the Exchequer, who have the charge of auditing the great accounts of the King's cuſtoms, naval and military expences of the mint, &c. and any money impreſſed to men for his Majeſty's ſervice. Pract. Excheq. 83.

Auditores, Is the ſame with audientes, i. e. the catechumens, or thoſe who were newly inſtructed in the myſteries of the Chriſtian religion before they were admitted to baptiſm; and auditorium is that place in the church where they ſtood to hear, and be inſtructed. 'Tis what we now call navis eccleſiæ: and in the primitive times, the church was ſo ſtrict in keeping the people together in that place, that the perſon who went from thence in ſermon-time was excommunicated: it was ſo declared by the fourth council of Carthage, c. 24. Cowell edit. 1727.

Avenage, (from the Lat. avena, oats) A certain quantity of oats paid by a tenant to his landlord as a rent, or in lieu of ſome other duties. Cowell, ib.

Avenor, (avenarius, from the Fr. avoine, i. e. oats) Is an officer belonging to the King's ſtables, that provides oats for his horſes: he is mentioned 13 Car. 2. cap. 8. Cowell, ib.

Aventure, Adventures or trials of ſkill at arms, and ſignifies military exerciſes on horſeback.——Aſſiſa de armis 36 Hen. 3. Brady's Appen. Hiſt. Eng. 250. And 'tis mentioned in addit. Mat. Paris, p. 149. Quod nulli conveniant ad turniandum, vel burdandum, nec ad alias quaſcunque aventuras. Cowell, ib.

Aventure, (properly adventure) A miſchance, cauſing the death of a man: as where a perſon is ſuddenly drowned, or killed by any accident, without felony. 1 Inſt. 391.

Avera, (quaſi overa, from the Fr. oeuvre and ouvrage velut operagium) Signifies a day's work of a plowman, formerly valued at 8 d. It is found in Domeſday. 4 Inſt. 269.

Average, (averagium) Is ſaid to ſignify ſervice which the tenant owes to his lord by horſe or carriage: but it is commonly uſed for a contribution that merchants and others make towards their loſſes, who have their goods caſt into the ſea for the ſafeguard of the ſhip, or of the other goods and lives of thoſe perſons that are in the ſhip during a tempeſt. It is in this ſenſe called average, becauſe it is proportioned and allotted after the rate of every man's goods carried. Stat. 32 Hen. 8. 14 Car. 2. By the laws of the ſea, in a ſtorm, when there is an extreme neceſſity, the goods, wares, guns, or whatſoever elſe is on board the ſhip, may (by conſulting the mariners) be thrown over board by the maſter, for the preſervation of the ſhip; and it ſhall be made good by average and contribution. Stat. 49 Ed. 3. But if the maſter takes in more goods than he ought without leave of the owners and freighters, and a ſtorm ariſeth at ſea, and part of the freighters goods are thrown over board, the remaining goods are not ſubject to average; but the maſter is to make good the loſs out of his own eſtate: and if the ſhip's geer or apparel be loſt by ſtorm, the ſame is not within the average. Leg. Rhod. If goods are caſt over board before half the voyage is performed, they are to be eſtimated at the price they coſt: but if they are ejected afterwards, then at the price the reſt are ſold at the port of arrival. Leg. Oleron. Where goods are given to pirates by way of compoſition to ſave the reſt, there ſhall be averages, by the civil law. Moor 297.—— Average is likewiſe a ſmall duty, paid to maſters of ſhips when goods are ſent in another man's ſhip, for their care of the goods, over and above the freight. Paying ſo much freight for the ſaid goods, with primage and average accuſtomed. Words in bills of lading. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Average of Corn Fields, The ſtubble or remainder of ſtraw and graſs left in corn fields after the harveſt is carried away. In Kent called the gratten, and in other parts the roughings, &c. Cowell, ib.

Averare, To carry goods in a waggon, or upon loaded horſes, a duty required of ſome cuſtomary tenants. Spelman.

Aver Corn, Is a reſerved rent in corn, paid by farmers and tenants to religious houſes: and ſignifies by Somner corn drawn to the lord's granary, by the working cattle of the tenant. 'Tis ſuppoſed that this cuſtom was owing to the Saxon cyriac ſceat, church ſeed, a meaſure of corn, brought to the prieſt annually on St. Martin's day, as an oblation for the firſt-fruits of the earth: under which title the religious had corn rent paid yearly; as appears by an inquiſition of the eſtate of the abbey of Glaſtonbury, anno dom. 1201. Cowell, ib.

Averland, Seems to have been ſuch lands as the tenants did plough and manure cum averiis ſuis, for the proper uſe of a monaſtery, or the lords of the ſoil. Mon. Angl.

Aver Penny, (or average peny) Money paid towards the King's averages or carriages, or to be freed thereof.--- Aver penny hoc eſt, quietum eſſe de diverſis denariis pro averagiis domini regis. Raſtal.

Averia, Cattle: Spelman deduces the word from the Fr. ouvrer, to work, as if chiefly working cattle: though it ſeems to be more probably from avoir, to have or poſſeſs; the word ſometimes including all perſonal eſtate, as Catalla did all goods and chattels. This word is uſed for oxen or horſes of the plough; and in a general ſenſe any cattle.——Homines per averia ſua, viz. equos & boves et affros graviter diſtrixit. W. Thorn. in Ed. 2. 'Tis uſed in the ſame ſenſe in W. 2. Ca. 18. Averia elongata; ſee Elongata. Cowell.

Averiis Captis in Withernam, A writ for the taking of cattle to his uſe, who hath cattle unlawfully diſtrained by another, and driven out of the county where they were taken, ſo that they cannot be replevied by the ſheriff. Reg. Orig. 82. If the cattle are put into any ſtrong place in the ſame county, the ſheriff may take the poſſe comitatus, and break into it, to make the replevin. 1 P. & M. But when they are driven out of the county, he hath no authority to purſue them. Cowell.

Averland. Item cellarius libere ſolebat capere omnia ſterquilinia ad ſuum opus in omni vico, niſi ante oſtia eorum qui habebant averland. Mon. Angl. 302. It ſeems to have been ſuch land as the tenants did plough and manure, cum averiis ſuis, for the proper uſe of a monaſtery or lord of the ſoil. Quod autem nunc vocatur averland, fuit terra ruſticorum, ib. This land was ſubject to averages, or the lord's carriages. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Averium ponderis, full weight, or aver de pois,— de quolibet panno ſine grano, et de qualibet libra de averio ponderis, tres denarios. Cart. 3 Ed. 2.

Averment, Verificatio, (from the French averrer, that is, verificare) Is an offer of the defendant, to make good or juſtify an exception pleaded in abatement, or bar of the plaintiff's action: and it ſignifies the act as well as the offer of juſtifying the exception; and not only the form, but the matter thereof. Co. Lit. 362. Cowell. Averment is either general or particular; a general averment is the concluſion of every plea to the writ, or in bar of replications and other pleadings (for counts and avowries in nature of counts need not be averred) containing matter affirmative, with theſe words, et hoc paratus eſt verificare, &c. Particular averments are, as when the life of tenant for life, or tenant in tail are averred. Co. Lit. 362.

had judgment againſt them, whereupon they brought an audita querela, and had relief, becauſe they could not by law be taken in execution, till ſome default be returned againſt the principal upon a capias awarded againſt him; and there being no ſuch proceſs againſt him while he was living, 'tis now impoſſible for him to yield his body to priſon, being dead. Goldſb. 174.

There was a judgment againſt the principal, and afterwards another judgment upon a ſci. fa. againſt the bail, and upon a writ of error brought the laſt judgment was affirmed; afterwards the principal judgment was reverſed upon a writ of error, and thereupon an audita querela was brought by the bail; it was objected againſt it, for that the reverſal of the principal judgment was not a reverſal of the judgment upon the ſci. fa. that being a collateral judgment, and ſtanding by itſelf; but adjudged, that it depends on the firſt judgment, and 'tis that which brings the charge on the bail, which being now diſcharged, the bail ought to be ſo in like manner. 2 Cro. 645.

After an eſcape made by the principal, there was a judgment againſt the ſureties, and they were taken in execution; upon which they brought an audita querela, and ſuggeſted they would bring the money into court, or give ſufficient ſecurity to pay to the obligee, and ſo prayed that they might be bailed; but adjudged, that if the audita querela had been grounded on a ſpecialty, or other matter in writing, or on record, the court would grant a ſuperſedeas to diſcharge them, if they were not in execution, and would bail them if they were; but upon this ſuggeſtion, which is only matter of fact, they would neither grant a ſuperſedeas in one caſe, nor bail them in the other. 2 Brownl. 108.

3. Proceedings and pleadings in audita querela.

In an audita querela, the proceſs is a venire facias, diſtringas, alias, pluries, and if non eſt inventus be returned, or that he hath nothing, the plaintiff ſhall have a capias againſt the defendant. F. N. B. 104. Dyer 297. b.

And if the plaintiff be in execution, a ſcire facias goes; if not, a venire. Mo. 811. 1 Salk. 92. So, if the audita querela be founded upon a record. 1 Salk. 92. And if there be a default by the defendant upon a ſcire feci, or two nichils returned, the plaintiff ſhall have judgment. 1 Salk. 93. But, where an audita querela is ſued quia timet, and the party is at large, there ſhall never be a ſcire facias. 1 Salk. 92.

An audita querela ſhall be granted out of the court, where the record, upon which it is founded, remains, or it may be returnable in the ſame court. F. N. B. 105. b. And therefore if a man recover in B. R. or C. B. the defendant having a releaſe after judgment, and before execution, ſhall ſue the audita querela out of B. R. or C. B. where the record is. F. N. B. 105. So, if a recognizance be acknowledged in C. B. and execution be ſued upon it after releaſe, the defendant ſhall ſue the audita querela out of C. B. F. N. B. 105. But an audita querela may be by original, and upon a judgment in C. B. It goes out of Chancery returnable in C. B. F. N. B. 105.

The writ of audita querela ſhall be allowed only in open court. 1 Bulſt. 140. 2 Bulſt. 97. 2 Show. 240.

Upon a motion for an allowance of an audita querela, it was held, that bail muſt be given in court, and not elſewhere, unleſs in caſes of neceſſity, to be allowed by the court, and then it may be put in before two judges. Palm. 422.

G. A. and M. A. were jointly and ſeverally bound to one Tatnell, in a bond of 700 l. the obligee ſued both, and obtained two judgments, and both of them were outlawed, and one of them was taken upon the capias utlagatum, and the ſheriff voluntarily ſuffered him to eſcape; whereupon Tatnell the obligee brought an action of debt againſt the ſheriff for this eſcape, and recovered. and received ſatisfaction, and yet he proceeded againſt the other, who thereupon brought an audita querela, in which he ſet forth all this matter; but upon a demurrer to the declaration there was judgment againſt him, becauſe the time when and place where ſatisfaction was made by the ſheriff was not ſpecially ſet forth. 1 Mod. 170.

Adjudged, that where the plaintiff in audita querela gets judgment, he ſhall have reſtitution of his goods, though they were taken in execution before the writ brought, and though there is no ſuch thing mentioned in the judgment. Sid. 74.

Judgment in replevin for the avowants; afterwards one of them releaſed, and thereupon an audita querela was brought; and a motion was made, that it might be allowed, in order that the execution might be ſuperſeded, and the releaſe being produced, but the witneſſes to it being in the country, it was offered to prove their hands; but that was not allowed, ſince the witneſſes themſelves were living and in health; and they would not allow the audita querela, unleſs the releaſe was proved, nor ſcarce then; becauſe it appeared by affidavits, that the perſon who executed this releaſe was joined with the other avowants by practice, and without the conſent. Sid. 351.

In audita querela the party appeared upon the ſcire facias, and demurred, for that the ſcire facias bore date the twenty-third day of October, and the audita querela the third day of November following; but adjudged, that this ſcire facias is in nature of a meſne proceſs; 'tis only to bring in the defendant to anſwer, and the judgment muſt be given upon the audita querela, therefore this being only a fault in meſne proceſs, 'tis cured by the defendant's appearance; 'tis true, ſuch a fault would not be cured by an appearance of the defendant, where the ſcire facias is brought upon a judgment, becauſe in ſuch caſe 'tis quaſi an original, and the judgment is given on the ſci. fa. 1 Vent. 7.

Judgment in debt againſt two defendants, one of them was taken in execution, and afterwards diſcharged out of cuſtody by the plaintiff himſelf, the other brought an audita querela againſt the plaintiff, praying, that he might likewiſe be diſcharged from the judgment quia timet; and after two ſcire facias's and two nihils returned, he moved for a ſuperſedeas (which ſhews that an audita querela is no ſuperſedeas of itſelf) but it was denied; becauſe a ſcire facias is improper where the ſuit is quia timet, and the party at large; he ſhould bring a venire, and have a diſtreſs infinite; but if he had been in execution, he might either have a ſcire facias or venire. 1 Salk. 92.

Adjudged, that where the party hath ſome matter which he might have pleaded to the ſci. fa. in his diſcharge, and two nihils are returned, and judgment againſt him, the court will relieve him upon motion, without putting him to bring an audita querela. 1 Salk. 93.

A writ of audita querela.

GEORGE the third, &c. To our juſtices aſſigned to hold pleas before us, greeting. We having received information, by the grievous complaint of A. B. that whereas C. D. in Eaſter term, &c. and now hath to the damage of the ſaid A. &c. wherefore the ſaid A. hath beſought us to provide him relief, and being unwilling that the ſaid A. ſhould be any ways injured, and deſirous that what is right and juſt ſhould be done in this caſe: We command you, that in order to hear the complaint of the ſaid A. you call before you the aforeſaid parties, and ſuch others as it ſhall ſeem meet to you to convene; and having heard the aforeſaid parties, and their ſeveral reaſons, you cauſe to be done full and ſpeedy juſtice to the ſaid parties, which of right, and according to the laws and cuſtoms of our kingdom, you ſhall ſee ought to be done. Witneſs, &c.

Auditor, (Lat.) Is an officer of the king, or ſome other great perſon, who examines yearly the accounts of all under officers, and makes up a general book, which ſhews the difference between their receipts and charge, and their ſeveral allowances, commonly called allocations:

As the auditors of the Exchequer take the accounts of thoſe receivers who collect the revenues. 4 Inſt. 106. Receivers general of fee-farm rents, &c. are alſo termed auditors, and hold their audits for adjuſting the accounts of the ſaid rents at certain times and places appointed. And there are auditors aſſigned by the court to audit and ſettle accounts in actions of account, and other caſes, who are proper judges of the cauſe, and pleas are made before them, &c. 1 Brownl. 24.

Auditor of the Receipts, An officer of the Exchequer, that files the tellers bills, and having made an entry of them, gives the lord treaſurer, &c. weekly a certificate of the money received: He makes debentures to the tellers, before they pay any money, and takes their accounts: he alſo keeps the black book of receipts, and the treaſurer's key of the treaſury, and ſees every teller's money locked up in the treaſury. 4 Inſt. 107.

Auditors of the Impreſt, Are officers in the Exchequer, who have the charge of auditing the great accounts of the King's cuſtoms, naval and military expences of the mint, &c. and any money impreſſed to men for his Majeſty's ſervice. Pract. Excheq. 83.

Auditores, Is the ſame with audientes, i. e. the catechumens, or thoſe who were newly inſtructed in the myſteries of the Chriſtian religion before they were admitted to baptiſm; and auditorium is that place in the church where they ſtood to hear, and be inſtructed. 'Tis what we now call navis eccleſiæ: and in the primitive times, the church was ſo ſtrict in keeping the people together in that place, that the perſon who went from thence in ſermon-time was excommunicated: it was ſo declared by the fourth council of Carthage, c. 24. Cowell edit. 1727.

Avenage, (from the Lat. avena, oats) A certain quantity of oats paid by a tenant to his landlord as a rent, or in lieu of ſome other duties. Cowell, ib.

Avenor, (avenarius, from the Fr. avoine, i. e. oats) Is an officer belonging to the King's ſtables, that provides oats for his horſes: he is mentioned 13 Car. 2. cap. 8. Cowell, ib.

Aventure, Adventures or trials of ſkill at arms, and ſignifies military exerciſes on horſeback.——Aſſiſa de armis 36 Hen. 3. Brady's Appen. Hiſt. Eng. 250. And 'tis mentioned in addit. Mat. Paris, p. 149. Quod nulli conveniant ad turniandum, vel burdandum, nec ad alias quaſcunque aventuras. Cowell, ib.

Aventure, (properly adventure) A miſchance, cauſing the death of a man: as where a perſon is ſuddenly drowned, or killed by any accident, without felony. 1 Inſt. 391.

Avera, (quaſi overa, from the Fr. oeuvre and ouvrage velut operagium) Signifies a day's work of a plowman, formerly valued at 8 d. It is found in Domeſday. 4 Inſt. 269.

Average, (averagium) Is ſaid to ſignify ſervice which the tenant owes to his lord by horſe or carriage: but it is commonly uſed for a contribution that merchants and others make towards their loſſes, who have their goods caſt into the ſea for the ſafeguard of the ſhip, or of the other goods and lives of thoſe perſons that are in the ſhip during a tempeſt. It is in this ſenſe called average, becauſe it is proportioned and allotted after the rate of every man's goods carried. Stat. 32 Hen. 8. 14 Car. 2. By the laws of the ſea, in a ſtorm, when there is an extreme neceſſity, the goods, wares, guns, or whatſoever elſe is on board the ſhip, may (by conſulting the mariners) be thrown over board by the maſter, for the preſervation of the ſhip; and it ſhall be made good by average and contribution. Stat. 49 Ed. 3. But if the maſter takes in more goods than he ought without leave of the owners and freighters, and a ſtorm ariſeth at ſea, and part of the freighters goods are thrown over board, the remaining goods are not ſubject to average; but the maſter is to make good the loſs out of his own eſtate: and if the ſhip's geer or apparel be loſt by ſtorm, the ſame is not within the average. Leg. Rhod. If goods are caſt over board before half the voyage is performed, they are to be eſtimated at the price they coſt: but if they are ejected afterwards, then at the price the reſt are ſold at the port of arrival. Leg. Oleron. Where goods are given to pirates by way of compoſition to ſave the reſt, there ſhall be averages, by the civil law. Moor 297.—— Average is likewiſe a ſmall duty, paid to maſters of ſhips when goods are ſent in another man's ſhip, for their care of the goods, over and above the freight. Paying ſo much freight for the ſaid goods, with primage and average accuſtomed. Words in bills of lading. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Average of Corn Fields, The ſtubble or remainder of ſtraw and graſs left in corn fields after the harveſt is carried away. In Kent called the gratten, and in other parts the roughings, &c. Cowell, ib.

Averare, To carry goods in a waggon, or upon loaded horſes, a duty required of ſome cuſtomary tenants. Spelman.

Aver Corn, Is a reſerved rent in corn, paid by farmers and tenants to religious houſes: and ſignifies by Somner corn drawn to the lord's granary, by the working cattle of the tenant. 'Tis ſuppoſed that this cuſtom was owing to the Saxon cyriac ſceat, church ſeed, a meaſure of corn, brought to the prieſt annually on St. Martin's day, as an oblation for the firſt-fruits of the earth: under which title the religious had corn rent paid yearly; as appears by an inquiſition of the eſtate of the abbey of Glaſtonbury, anno dom. 1201. Cowell, ib.

Averland, Seems to have been ſuch lands as the tenants did plough and manure cum averiis ſuis, for the proper uſe of a monaſtery, or the lords of the ſoil. Mon. Angl.

Aver Penny, (or average peny) Money paid towards the King's averages or carriages, or to be freed thereof.--- Aver penny hoc eſt, quietum eſſe de diverſis denariis pro averagiis domini regis. Raſtal.

Averia, Cattle: Spelman deduces the word from the Fr. ouvrer, to work, as if chiefly working cattle: though it ſeems to be more probably from avoir, to have or poſſeſs; the word ſometimes including all perſonal eſtate, as Catalla did all goods and chattels. This word is uſed for oxen or horſes of the plough; and in a general ſenſe any cattle.——Homines per averia ſua, viz. equos & boves et affros graviter diſtrixit. W. Thorn. in Ed. 2. Averiis Captis in Withernam, A writ for the taking of cattle to his uſe, who hath cattle unlawfully diſtrained by another, and driven out of the county where they were taken, ſo that they cannot be replevied by the ſheriff. Reg. Orig. 82. If the cattle are put into any ſtrong place in the ſame county, the ſheriff may take the poſſe comitatus, and break into it, to make the replevin. 1 P. & M. But when they are driven out of the county, he hath no authority to purſue them. Cowell.

Averland. Item cellarius libere ſolebat capere omnia ſterquilinia ad ſuum opus in omni vico, niſi ante oſtia eorum qui habebant averland. Mon. Angl. 302. It ſeems to have been ſuch land as the tenants did plough and manure, cum averiis ſuis, for the proper uſe of a monaſtery or lord of the ſoil. Quod autem nunc vocatur averland, fuit terra ruſticorum, ib. This land was ſubject to averages, or the lord's carriages. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Averium ponderis, full weight, or aver de pois,— de quolibet panno ſine grano, et de qualibet libra de averio ponderis, tres denarios. Cart. 3 Ed. 2.

Averment, Verificatio, (from the French averrer, that is, verificare) Is an offer of the defendant, to make good or juſtify an exception pleaded in abatement, or bar of the plaintiff's action: and it ſignifies the act as well as the offer of juſtifying the exception; and not only the form, but the matter thereof. Co. Lit. 362. Cowell. Averment is either general or particular; a general averment is the concluſion of every plea to the writ, or in bar of replications and other pleadings (for counts and avowries in nature of counts need not be averred) containing matter affirmative, with theſe words, et hoc paratus eſt verificare, &c. Particular averments are, as when the life of tenant for life, or tenant in tail are averred. Co. Lit. 362.

The uſe of an averment is to aſcertain that to the court which is generally or doubtfully alledged, that ſo the court may not be perplexed of whom, or of what it ought to be underſtood. Heath's Max. 42. cites Co. Lit. 352. b. The proper uſe of an averment conſiſts in this, viz. to add matter to the plea to make doubtful things clear, which otherwiſe ſhall be intended againſt the pleader. Arg. Mo. 376. pl. 506.

1. Where averment is neceſſary, and what is a ſufficient averment.
2. Where averment is not neceſſary.
3. Averments as to deeds, records, the life of a perſon, and to ſupply defects in wills.

1. Where averment is neceſſary, and what is a ſufficient averment.

Caſe, for that Queen Elizabeth was ſeiſed in fee of the manor of S. and granted to him 30 acres, parcel of the ſaid manor, by a copy of court-roll; and that ſhe granted four acres other parcel thereof, to the defendant; and alledged, that the copyholders of the thirty acres, time out of mind, had common in the four acres for certain cattle from the 1ſt of Auguſt to All-Saints, and that the defendant on the 1ſt of May in ſuch a year incloſed the ſaid four acres with hedges and ditches, per quod he could not have his common. After verdict for the plaintiff, it was moved that the plaintiff ſet forth that the incloſure was made on the 1ſt of May, but did not aver that it continued till the 1ſt of Auguſt, and ſo no cauſe of action appears; but it was ſaid, that if there is any thing which implies an averment, it is ſufficient; now here the per quod he could not have common is a ſufficient averment, that the incloſure continued till the 1ſt of Auguſt and after; for otherwiſe he could not loſe his common; beſides, the jury have found him guilty, which he could not be, unleſs the incloſure had continued. But Dodderidge J. ſaid, that the per quod is an inference out of the precedent declaration, and does not amount to an averment; but Ley Ch. J. held, that it amounted to an averment; but all the court agreed, that after verdict for the plaintiff, the judgment was not to be arreſted for the matter aforeſaid. 2 Rol. Rep. 379.

Error of judgment in aſſumpſit, in which the plaintiff declared, that in conſideration he would renounce an adminiſtration at the requeſt of C. and permit the defendant to adminiſter, that the ſaid defendant would diſcharge the plaintiff of two bonds, and alledged that he did renounce the adminiſtration, and ſuffer the defendant to adminiſter, but that the defendant had not diſcharged him of the two bonds. It was held by Berkley J. (the other judges being abſent) to be error, becauſe he did not aver that he renounced the adminiſtration at the requeſt of C. for perhaps he might be compell'd to renounce by a ſentence in the ſpiritual court, or of right the wife (as the defendant was) ought to adminiſter; adjornatur. Mar. 55. pl. 86.

In falſe impriſonment in London, the defendant pleaded that J. S. ſued forth a latitat the laſt day of Trin. term, directed to the ſheriff of R. by virtue whereof the ſheriff made his warrant to the defendant, who thereupon took the plaintiff, which is the ſame impriſonment, abſque hoc that he is guilty in London, vel aliter vel alio modo; the plaintiff replied, that the writ was truly proſecuted to ſuch a day after the impriſonment: Upon demurrer it was adjudged for the plaintiff, becauſe though the teſte of the writ is upon record, and the plaintiff cannot aver againſt it, yet great inconveniencies will be, if the plaintiff cannot ſet forth the very time of purchaſing the writ, and the relation of the teſte is only to prevent fraud, and not juſtify a tort. Raym. 161.

In replevin the defendant made cogniſance as bailiff to baron and feme, he being ſeiſed in right of the feme for rent in aretro exiſten'; the plaintiff demurr'd ſpecially; for that the life of the wife was not averr'd. But Hale Ch. J. held, that the rent in aretro exiſten' is quaſi an averment, and after verdict, or upon a general demurrer, had been good; and Twiſden and Wild held it good enough on a ſpecial demurrer, which Hale doubted, and judgment was for the avowant. 2 Lev. 88.

In debt on judgment the defendant pleaded in abatement, that a writ of error was ſued ſuch a day upon the judgment, which writ of error is ſtill depending undetermined, &c. the plaintiff replies, that the original in debt was ſued before the writ of error was ſued, as appears by the teſte of the original. The defendant rejoins, that the original bore teſte ſuch a day, which was before the writ of error was ſued; but that in fact the original was not ſued out until ſuch a day, which was after the writ of error was ſued; the plaintiff demurs, ſuppoſing that the defendant was eſtopped by the teſte of the original; and of that opinion was Treby Ch. J. but Powell J. was of the contrary opinion, and ſaid, that if a man is arreſted, and afterwards a writ is ſued with a teſte antedated, in falſe impriſonment, this may be avoided by pleading; adjornatur. Lord Raym. Rep. 212.

Debt was brought upon a penal law, which by the ſtatute ought to be ſued within a year; the defendant pleaded the ſtatute, and that one year was elapſed before the ſuing the action, &c. the plaintiff replied, that he ſued an original teſte ſuch a day, which was within the year; the defendant rejoined, that tho' the writ bore teſte within the year, yet it was ſued after the year. The plaintiff demurred; and adjudged by the whole court, that none ſhall be admitted to aver that an original was ſued at any time contrary to the teſte; per Treby Ch. J. cited as adjudged. Ld. Raym. Rep. 212.

A neceſſary implication amounts to an expreſs averment; arg. Gib. 123.

Indictment was that the defendant knowing the will of J. S. to have been proved in the prerogative court, cited the executor before himſelf, being chancellor of D. to prove the will there, in order to extort money from the ſaid executor. Lord Ch. J. Parker and the court, held, that it being laid that the defendant knew it, that knowledge muſt have been by a ſight of the probate of the will; cited by Mr. Juſtice Lee. Gib. 264, 265.

In an appeal of death of his brother brought againſt G. D. of H. in the county of W. as principal, and R. H. as acceſſary, whereas the name of the principal was W. D. the acceſſary pleaded, that there was no ſuch perſon in rerum natura as G. D. at the day of the writ brought, or after; adjudged, that if there was a man of that name in another county, yet if he was not of the ſame town mentioned in the writ, in ſuch caſe the appellee may aver in favour of life, that he is not the ſame perſon, and may traverſe the return of the ſheriff. Dyer 348.

The reverſioner in fee expectant of an eſtate for life, deviſed a rent to another, and died, and ſeveral years afterwards the deviſee made his executor, and died; the executor diſtrained for rent, but in his avowry he did not aver, that the lands remained in the ſeiſin of the tenant, who ought to pay it, or in ſome other perſon, who claimed under him by purchaſe or deſcent; neither did he aver, that the rent incurred after the death of the tenant for life, both which were adjudged good exceptions, upon a demurrer to the avowry, eſpecially the laſt; for if a reverſioner grants a rent-charge, it ſhall not begin till after the death of him who has the particular eſtate. Cro. E. 547.

Error of a judgment obtained in a court of piepowder, for that the plaintiff in his replication had not concluded with hoc paratus eſt verificare, nor demanded his debt and damages as he ought to have done; and for theſe cauſes it was reverſed. Cro. Eliz. 256.

Lands ſowed with woad were ſold, and the vendor promiſed, that if the vendee ſhould be prohibited by proclamation, or otherwiſe, to ſow woad, then he would return ſo much of the purchaſe-money; afterwards the vendee brought an action on the caſe againſt the vendor, and ſet forth this matter, and that proclamation was made, that no man ſhould ſow woad within four miles of any market and clothing town, and that his land was within four miles of a market town, but did not aver that it was a clothing town likewiſe; and upon demurrer it was adjudged, that he ought to have made ſuch an averment. Goldſb. 7.

Debt againſt huſband and wife, as executrix of G. D. &c. of London, taylor; the defendant pleaded in bar, a judgment judgment which was obtained againſt her in the King's Bench, as executrix of G. D. of London, barber ſurgeon; and upon demurrer to this plea, it was objected againſt the defendant, that ſhe did not aver that G. D. taylor, and G. D. ſurgeon, was one and the ſame perſon, and tho' it was ſaid that the plea might be good to a common intent, for they ſhall be intended the ſame perſon; yet it was adjudged, that it ſhall not be ſo intended; for where a thing is indifferent, there a common intent may prevail, but not where 'tis more ſtrong on the one ſide than the other; and here 'tis ſo ſtrong, that a taylor and ſurgeon being different occupations, they can never be intended the ſame perſon. Goldſ. 111.

By the opinion of Anderſon Ch. Juſt. where the teſtator intended to deviſe lands to the heirs of G. D. and the writer by miſtake wrote to G. D. and his heirs, this may be helped by an averment, becauſe what the teſtator intended is written, and more, therefore the deviſe ſhall be good to the heirs of G. D. but he himſelf ſhall take nothing by the will; but if the deviſe had been intended to G. D. and his heirs, and by miſtake it had been written to the heirs of G. D. there an averment ſhall not help; becauſe 'tis not the will of the teſtator in writing, and then 'tis to increaſe that which is defective in the will, and in ſuch caſe averments are never allowed, tho' they are uſually allowed to take away any ſurpluſage. Godb. 131.

Where the plaintiff libels in the ſpiritual court out of the proper dioceſe, for a legacy, if it doth not appear in the libel itſelf, that the ſuit is out of the proper dioceſe, the defendant may aver that it was ſo; in like manner where a ſuit is in the court of admiralty for a thing done upon the land, the defendant may aver, that it was done infra corpus comitatus. Godb. 214.

The father having two ſons, both of one name, levied a fine of lands to the uſe of W. his ſon and his heirs; in this caſe the judges cannot take notice to which of his ſons the land doth belong; but if the party averreth, that the conniſor had two ſons named W. the elder, and W. the younger, and that his intent was to levy the fine to W. the younger, this averment is good, it being of matter of fact not apparent in the fine, but out of it, and therefore it ſhall be tried by a jury: but if a man, by deed executed under his hand and ſeal, giveth goods to one of the ſons of G. D. who hath ſeveral ſons at that time, there an averment ſhall not be allowed which ſon he meant; becauſe, the deed itſelf being void for incertainty, it cannot be made good by an averment. 5 Rep. 155.

Debt upon this bill, viz. Memorandum, that I W. R. do bind myſelf to M. M. to pay him all ſuch monies as my brother oweth him. In witneſs, &c. and afterwards it was thus written, the brother oweth M. M. 40*l.* and it being ſo averred in the declaration, the plaintiff had judgment; for tho' the ſum was uncertain in the body of the bill, yet by the averment the debt is made certain. Cro. El. 563, 758.

In an action on the caſe for theſe words, viz. Thy ſon hath robbed me, the plaintiff cannot maintain the action, without averring, that the defendant had no more ſons; but if the words had been ſpoken to the ſon inſtead of the father or to the wife, viz. Thy father hath robbed me, there needs no averment, becauſe a ſon can have but one father, and a huſband but one wife. 2 Cro. 443.

Caſe, &c. wherein the plaintiff declared upon a promiſe made by the defendant to pay to the plaintiff 84*l. out of the money due for the freight of a ſhip:* upon non aſſumpſit pleaded, the plaintiff had a verdict; it was moved in arreſt of judgment, that the declaration was ill, becauſe the plaintiff had not averred, that there was money due for the freight of the ſhip; adjudged, that this was parcel of the promiſe, and that it ought to have been averred; and likewiſe the plaintiff ought to have laid a demand made of the money. Style 220.

In debt for 15*l.* 8*s.* 8*d.* the plaintiff declared on a deed, reciting, that ſeveral ſuits were likely to ariſe between the vicar of Shettlehampton and the plaintiff, concerning a modus in the ſaid pariſh, and that the vicar had already ſued the plaintiff in the ſpiritual court concerning the ſame, which modus likewiſe concerned all the pariſhioners, and that the defendant, being a pariſhioner, agreed to pay to the plaintiff and bear his proportionable part of all the charges of the ſuit, and all other ſuits by the vicar touching that matter; then he ſets forth, that between ſuch a time, &c. he had expended 350*l.* in defence of ſuits by the vicar concerning that modus, and that the defendant had lands in the pariſh of the yearly value of 53*l.* and averred, that his ſhare of the ſaid charge amounted to 15*l.* 8*s.* 8*d.* of which he had notice, &c. licet ſæpius requiſit', &c. had not paid it, &c. The defendant pleaded non eſt factum, and the plaintiff had a verdict; it was objected, that an action of debt would not lie on this agreement, but covenant, becauſe the ſum to be paid was uncertain; but the plaintiff had judgment; for tho' a ſum at firſt is uncertain, yet when 'tis reduced to a certainty by an averment, an action of debt will lie for it, as well as covenant. 3 Lev. 429.

In an action upon the ſtatute 32 H. 8. againſt buying pretended titles, if the plaintiff declares, that the defendant, or any of his anceſtors, or any other perſon under whom he claims, were not in poſſeſſion of the land, nor received the rents, &c. by the ſpace of a year, &c. he need not aver, that the title is pretended, becauſe the ſtatute makes it ſo; and therefore 'tis impertinent to aver a thing which clearly appears both by the ſtatute and the declaration. Plow. Com. 87.

In replevin, the defendant made conuſance, as bailiff to Thomas Lord Howard, and ſet forth, that the prioreſs of the late diſſolved priory of Holliwell, by deed, bearing date 4 Novem. 29 H. 8. and then enrolled, granted the manor of P. of which ſhe was ſeiſed, &c. to G. D. and his heirs, who entred, and ſo derives a title to the defendant under that grant; the plaintiff in bar to the avowry ſhewed, that after the making and inrolling the ſaid deed, the ſaid prioreſs leaſed the ſaid lands to R. H. for 99 years, and ſo conveyed a title to himſelf under the leaſe, and averred, that the deed mentioned by the defendant, was primo deliberat' on the fourth of Novemb. 31 H. 8. and traverſed, that the prioreſs granted it to G. D. on the 4th of Novemb. 29 H. 8. and upon demurrer, it was adjudged, that ſuch an averment could not be made againſt a deed inrolled. 2 Leon. 121.

Ejectment, &c. of a rectory; it was objected againſt the declaration, it was inſufficient, becauſe the plaintiff had not averred, that the parſon was living, only by implication; but becauſe it was, quod præd' W. R. rector eccleſiæ præd' fuit & adhuc eſt ſeiſitus de & in rectoria præd' in dominico ſuo ut de feodo in jure eccleſiæ, the declaration was adjudged good. Dyer 304.

Where a man is to take a benefit by an act of parliament, there in pleading he muſt aver, that he is not a perſon excepted; but where he claims no benefit by it, but only to keep that which he had before, in ſuch caſe 'tis not neceſſary to make ſuch averment. Plow. Com. 488.

Aſſumpſit, &c. wherein the plaintiff declared, that in conſideration he had paid to the defendant 40*l.* for the debt of G. D. the defendant promiſed to deliver him all the bonds, &c. wherein G. D. ſtood bound to the defendant: Upon non aſſumpſit pleaded, the plaintiff had judgment; but it was inſiſted for the defendant in arreſt of judgment, that the plaintiff ſhould have averred, that the defendant had bonds in which G. D. was bound to him; but adjudged, that he need not make any ſuch averment; becauſe he is not to recover the bonds, but damages for detaining them. Cro. El. 133.

Falſe impriſonment in London, the defendant pleaded a judgment had againſt the plaintiff in the court at Sandwich in Kent, and that by virtue of ca. ſa. he impriſoned the plaintiff at Sandwich, and traverſed, that there was any ſuch record, &c. et hoc paratus eſt verificare per recordum: Now it is abſurd to offer a proof by record, when he alledged that there was no record; but yet the replication might be good without any ſuch averment, it being in the negative, which needs no averment; for if upon traverſe of the record the plaintiff had concluded to the country, viz. ex hoc petit quod inquiratur per patriam, triam, then the defendant might have rejoined quod habetur tale recordum, & hoc paratus eſt verificare per recordum, &c. Cro. El. 418.

Error of a judgment in replevin, wherein the avowant ſet forth, that the tenant in tail made a leaſe of the lands for three lives, rendring rent, and that the reverſion deſcended to him as heir in tail, and the rent being in arrear he diſtrained, &c. and avowed the taking, &c. and averred, that at the time of the demiſe the lands had been formerly demiſed, and that the rent reſerved was verus & antiquus redditus: Upon demurrer to this avowry, it was adjudged, that the averment, that the lands were formerly demiſed, was not ſufficient, for he ought to have averred, that they had been lett for eleven years next before the leaſe made; becauſe the ſtatute 32 H. 8. limits the leaſes to be made by tenant in tail, that they ſhould be made only of ſuch lands which had been commonly lett by the greater part of twenty years next before the leaſe made; alſo the averment, that the rent was verus & antiquus redditus, is not ſufficient, for it may be ſo, yet the circumſtances of the ſtatute may not be obſerved; for that requires, that the uſual rent, or more, muſt be reſerved, which hath been paid for the greater part of twenty years preceding: Now the rent which hath been paid for ſeven years may be verus & antiquus redditus; but that is not the rent intended by the ſtatute, for the reaſon before mentioned. Cro. El. 707.

In a præcipe quod reddat, the ſheriff returned, the defendant ſummoned at the church-door, purſuant to the ſtatute 31 Eliz. when in truth he was not ſummoned; and he not appearing, a grand cape was awarded againſt him, and judgment given by default; upon which he brought a writ of error, and aſſigned for error, and averred, that he was never ſummoned; but the court would not allow this averment; for ſince the ſheriff returned him ſummoned, there could be no error in awarding the grand cape upon the ſummons, and the default recorded; but if in truth he was not ſummoned, he may either have an action againſt the ſheriff for his falſe return, or a writ of diſceit. Cro. El. 371, 397.

Aſſumpſit, &c. brought againſt an adminiſtrator in an inferior court; the plaintiff had a verdict; and it was objected againſt him, that he did not aver that the defendant had aſſets after the debts paid: adjudged, that he need not make any ſuch averment, for that ought to come on the other ſide. Plowd. Com. Woodward's caſe.

Leaſe for years of ſeveral meſſuages dated in November, and to commence at Michaelmas next following, in which the leſſee covenanted to repair all the ſaid meſſuages, except ſuch which the leſſor ſhould appoint to be pulled down during the term; in an action of debt on a bond, brought by the leſſor againſt the defendant, for non-performance of covenants, he pleaded performance, &c. the plaintiff replied, and ſhewed the breach in not repairing one meſſuage, parcel of the demiſed premiſſes, and averred, that the ſaid meſſuage was not appointed to be pulled down during the term; and upon this they were at iſſue, viz. whether the defendant had repaired it or not; and it being found for the plaintiff, it was moved in arreſt of judgment, that the averment was inſufficient; for the leaſe being dated in November, and the term being to commence not before Michaelmas following, the houſe might be appointed to be pulled down before the commencement of the term, and if ſo, the defendant is not bound to repair it; therefore this averment doth not come up to the exception; but adjudged, that this averment was ſuperfluous, for it had been ſufficient to aſſign the breach in not repairing, &c. without averring, that it was not appointed to be pulled down; for if A. had been ſo appointed, it ought to be ſhewed on the defendant's part, becauſe it tends to his advantage; for if any ſuch appointment had been made, it would diſcharge him of his covenant, as to that houſe appointed to be pulled down. 1 Leon. 17.

A man purchaſed lands with his proper money, which were held in capite, and it was to himſelf and an infant, and to their heirs; adjudged, that this purchaſe could not be averred to be by colluſion to take away wardſhip, which might accrue after his death, becauſe he was never ſole tenant, and no feoffment that he can make, can be averred to be by colluſion, if he make none; yet no benefit can accrue to the King by his death: adjudged likewiſe, that where the father makes a feoffment, for the advancement of his wife and children, or for payment of his debts, it cannot be averred to be a covin, ſo as to give the King cauſe to ſeiſe the land; adjudged likewiſe, that where the King's tenant conveys his lands, either for life, for years, or in tail to his children, or where a ſtranger is joined to the heir in tail, or where a remainder is limited in fee, or where an eſtate is declared by will; that in all ſuch caſes covin may be averred for the King, but only for a third part; becauſe the teſtator is enabled by the ſtatutes 32 & 34 H. 8. to convey two parts at his pleaſure. 8 Rep. 164.

There was a grant of an office for life, with an authority to nominate under-officers, and by the ſame deed an annuity was granted to him who had the office fyr the ſupport of the under-officers; the grantor died, and becauſe his ſon did not pay the annuity, a writ of annuity was brought againſt him, in which the plaintiff declared upon this grant; and upon a demurrer to the declaration, the plaintiff had jugment, whereupon the defendant brought a writ of error, and aſſigned for error, that the plaintiff had not averred in his declaration, that he had exerciſed this office; adjudged, that in all caſes, where an intereſt or eſtate doth commence upon a condition precedent, which is to be performed by the plaintiff, or any other, there the performance muſt be averred, becauſe he hath no intereſt 'till ſuch condition is performed; but when the intereſt paſſes immediately, as in this caſe it did, to the grantee of the office, which intereſt may be defeated by matter done afterwards; therefore the plaintiff may declare generally, without averring any performance; but the defendant, who is to take advantage of the non-performance, ought to ſhew it; but if the matter by which ſuch intereſt may be defeated, appears to the court to be matter of law, and that the action cannot be ſupported without averring the performance of the conſideration or condition, there the plaintiff muſt aver the performance. 7 Rep. 10.

Tenant in fee, in conſideration of natural love and affection, covenanted to ſtand ſeiſed, &c. of lands to the uſe of himſelf for life, and after his deceaſe to the uſe of his wife for life, and afterwards to other uſes, &c. The queſtion was, if any uſe did ariſe to the wife; adjudged, that a conſideration may be averred if it ſtands, and is not repugnant to the deed itſelf; but admitting a conſideration, other than that which is expreſſed in the deed, cannot be averred, yet there is an expreſs conſideration in itſelf; for when he limits the lands to the uſe of his wife for her life, that implies a ſufficient conſideration in itſelf, and needs not any averment; ſo where the father, who was tenant by knight-ſervice, made a feoffment to an infant, who was then his ſon and heir apparent, it need not be averred, that it was by colluſion, becauſe 'tis apparent that it was ſo. 7 Rep. 40.

3. Averment as to deeds, records, the life of a perſon, and to ſupply defects in wills.

One cannot avoid a ſtatute-merchant, obligation, releaſe, &c. againſt the party himſelf named in it, by averring a delivery thereof upon condition, unleſs he ſhews a writing of the condition. Br. Faits, pl. 10.

But 'tis otherwiſe in detinue againſt a ſtranger, where the thing is bailed into an indifferent hand; nota the diverſity; for there it is averrable, contrary againſt the party himſelf. Br. Faits, pl. 10.

A. has two ſons named W. and levies a fine to W. averment that this was to W. the younger ſon, is good; but in gift of goods to one of the ſons of J. S. no averment can be. 8 Rep. 155.

No averment debtors can make that good which is apparent, on conſideration of the deed, to be void, as feoffment to A. and his heirs; no averment can be that it was the intention of the parties, that the feoffee ſhould not have eſtate but to him, and the heirs of his body. 8 Rep. 155.

Buying of debts is maintenance at Common law, and puniſhable by indictment or information; but it is not pleadable in bar of an obligation; for the condition of the obligation was to pay a ſum of money not for debts bought, and this buying is collateral to the condition. So a bond for payment of a ſum of money upon condition, in the caſe of ſimony, the ſimony may be pleaded againſt ſuch bond by virtue of the 31 Eliz. cap. 1. So for uſury, 13 Eliz. cap. 8. So againſt a bond given to the ſheriff or gaoler, contrary to the ſtatute of 23 H. 6. cap. 10. Theſe ſtatutes give averment in ſuch caſes, but there is no ſtatute which gives ſuch averment in the caſe of maintenance. Jenk. 108.

It was agreed, that if a caſe be within the ſtatute of gaming, the defendant may aver againſt his own deed. Comb. 328.

Two manors were known by the name of W. and ſometimes diſtinguiſhed with an alias; an annuity of 200 l. per ann. is granted out of the manor of W. one of them is but 80 l. per ann. and the other of more than the annuity. It is a good averment in law, that the greater manor ſhould be liable to the rent-charge. Chan. Rep. 138.

If one has two manors known by the name of W. and levies a fine of his manor of W. he ſhall by averment aſcertain which of them it was; per cur'. 6 Mod. 235.

Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. cap. 16. In debt on ſingle bill, debt, or ſcire facias upon a judgment, the defendant may plead payment in bar; in debt upon bond, if the defendant before action brought hath paid the principal and intereſt, due by the defeaſance or condition, he may plead payment in bar.

Bill to have the benefit of a marriage-ſettlement, and covenants therein contained, &c. The caſe was; Rooke upon his firſt marriage ſettled lands upon himſelf for life, remainder to his wife for life for her jointure, remainder to the firſt and other ſons in tail male, remainder to the heirs female of the body of the wife, and the heirs of the bodies of ſuch heirs female, remainder to the right heirs of the huſband, with a covenant that he was ſeiſed in fee, and had good right to make ſuch ſettlement, and that the perſons ſhould enjoy according to the limitation in the ſettlement, &c. The wife dies without a ſon, leaving only one daughter, who is the plaintiff. Rooke after the death of his wife, being ſeiſed of a remainder in tail, viz. to the heirs female of his body, levies a fine, and ſuffers a recovery, to bar the iſſue female, &c. Harcourt C. ſaid that here are no articles precedent to the ſettlement, and he cannot admit parol evidence of inſtructions to controll the deeds; for that would introduce ſtrange incertainty in deeds; that there is no relief in equity in this caſe upon the general covenant, to enjoy according to the limitation in the ſettlement, tho' tenant in tail doth levy a fine and ſuffer a recovery to bar the iſſue female and the remainder. Bill diſmiſs'd with coſts. Per Harcourt. Chan. M. S. Rep. cited in 3 Vin. 366.

A man makes a leaſe for years the 10*th of May*, and then the leſſor bargains and ſells this to another by deed inrolled, bearing date the 10*th of April*, and it was entered to be conveyed the 10*th of April before, but in truth* it was delivered, and acknowledged, and inrolled afterwards; and it was held, that the leſſee was without remedy at the Common law, for he cannot plead that it was acknowledged or delivered after the date of the day of acknowledging; and ſo was the opinion of Rhodes; Periam, Windham, and Anderſon being abſent; for he cannot aver that it was inrolled or acknowledged at another day than it is recorded, becauſe it is contrary to the record, for it is entered, that it was acknowledged the 10th of April, and then if ſuch a plea ſhould be admitted, it would ſhake moſt of the aſſurances in England. Ow. 138.

Upon the ſtatute of 13 Eliz. againſt uſury, and 27 Eliz. againſt frauds, altho' fines be levied; yet where there is uſury, or fraud, or covin, they may be averred ſo to be againſt any act whatſoever. Jenk. 254.

Where D. has appeared as an attorney for A. in an action brought by A. againſt B. it cannot be aſſigned for error, that D. was not an attorney, or that there is no ſuch perſon in rerum natura; for it is againſt the record; and the admittance of him for an attorney by the court makes him an attorney, if he was not an attorney before this admittance; in a writ of error brought in this ſuit, and error aſſigned ut ſupra, the defendant in the writ of error in this caſe pleads in nullo eſt erratum: this does not confeſs that he was not an attorney; but this plea eſt quaſi a demurrer, that this is not an error at all; adjudged and affirmed in error. Jenk. 232.

In ſcire facias againſt C. to repeal a ſpecial livery granted to him upon his coming of age. Upon demurrer, the queſtion was, whether the attorney general could aver againſt an inquiſition returned into the petit bag, tho' not taken before the eſcheator, but put in by another; and it was reſolved that he could not; for this cannot be tried by a jury, but upon an examination in court, and there to be redreſſed. Jo. 389.

Where a ſtatute is recited, there one may not aver that there is no ſuch record; for generally an averment, as this is, doth not lie againſt a record; for a record is a thing of ſolemn and high nature, but an averment is but the allegation of the party, (21 Car. B. R.) and not ſo much credit in law to be given to it. Lil. P. R. 155.

In a quare impedit the plaintiff declared, that W. was ſeiſed of the advowſon in groſs, and granted it to the plaintiff and others, to the uſe of the grantor for life, and afterwards to the uſe of R. his ſon in tail; proviſo, that if the grantor died, R. being within the age of 23 years, that then the grantees and their heirs ſhould be ſeiſed to themſelves and their heirs, until R. ſhould arrive to that age. The grantor died, R. being then 14 years old, and no more, ſo that the grantees were poſſeſs'd of the ſaid advowſon, &c. and afterward the church became void, and ſo it belong'd to them to preſent. Exception was taken againſt this declaration, becauſe the plaintiff had not averr'd the life of R. upon whoſe life his intereſt did depend; but it was anſwer'd, per Pickering ſerj. that the declaration is good enough; for tho' the life of R. is not expreſsly averr'd, yet an averment is ſtrongly implied, for the plaintiff ſets forth that the father died, his ſon being of the age of 14 years and no more, by force whereof he was poſſeſſed of the advowſon, and being ſo poſſeſſed the church became void; now he could not have been ſo poſſeſſed, if R. had not been then alive, and that is as ſtrong as an averment. And the court diſallowed the exception; for ſeiſin ſhall be intended to continue till the contrary appears. 2 Leo. 50.

In dower or appeal, the life of the husband, or of the party killed, may be averred in any place; per tot cur'. Bulst. 43.

Jointenants in fee of a manor intermarried, and afterwards levied a fine thereof to G. D. who rendered back again to them in general tail; they had issue three daughters, then the husband died, and the widow married a second husband, and he and his wife levied another fine, and took back the manor in special tail; then the second husband made a lease for years of the manor, and the lessee distrained a copyholder for rent, who brought a replevin, and the defendant avowed the taking, &c. but did not aver the life of the lessor, and for that reason the avowry was adjudged void. Cro. Eliz. 524.

The testator devised all his lands to T. S. but his (the testator's) name was not mentioned in any part of his will, yet adjudged, that by an averment of his name, and proof that it was his will, it was good. 2 Leon. 85.

The testator had issue two sons and one daughter then living, and he devised his lands to his youngest son, and the heirs of his body, remainder to the heirs of the body of the eldest son, remainder in fee to the daughter, afterwards the youugest son died without issue, leaving both his father and elder brother, then the elder brother died, leaving issue; adjudged, that the issue of the elder brother cannot take by this devise, because he himself could not take by the name of heir in the life-time of his father, who being now dead, the eldest son produced witnesses on oath, to prove that his father had declared his meaning concerning his will, viz. that as long as his eldest son had any children, his daughter should not have the land; but there being nothing like it to be collected out of the words of the will, this proof was rejected. 2 Leon. 70.

So where Sir Thomas Cheney devised several lands to his sons Henry and John in tail, upon condition that he, or they, or any of them, shall not alien, remainder to the next heir male of Sir Thomas, the testator in tail male; afterwards, Henry, his eldest son, suffered a common recovery to the use of himself and his heirs, and then sold the lands; adjudged, that no proof or any collateral averment shall be allowed, which cannot be collected out of the words of the will, whether the testator intended to restrain Henry, and the heirs of his body, as well as John, and the heirs of his body, not to alien. 5 Rep. 68.

The husband devised lands to his wife for life generally; adjudged, this cannot be averred to be for her jointure, and in bar of her dower, because a devise imports a consideration in itself, and an averment shall not be allowed where the intention of the testator cannot be collected out of the words of the will. 4 Rep. 44.

The testator had a son and a grandson both named Robert, and anno 29 Car. 2. he devised his lands to his son Robert and his heirs, and a legacy to his grandson Robert; afterwards Robert the son died in the life-time of his father, who then republished his will, and declared his intention to be, that Robert, his grandson, should take by his will, instead of Robert his son; adjudged by three judges, that a new publication is equivalent to a new writing the will, and though the grandson is not within the words of the written will, yet he may be averred to be a son, for so he is with a distinction by the adjective grand; but this judgment was reversed in B. R. because no parol averment shall carry the lands to one, when by the words of the will they are devised to another; 'tis true, a new publication may be equivalent to a new writing the will, but that must be where the words in the written will are apt and proper, and do not disagree with the words in the new publication, which they do in this case, for the word son in the written will can never be construed to be grandson in the new publication, because they are names of different appellation. 1 Mod. 267.

Where the husband devised lands to his wife for her provision and maintenance, this may be averred to be for her jointure, though that word is not in the will, because 'tis consistent with the other words in it; but where a widow brought a writ of dower, and the tenant pleaded, that her late husband made a will, and devised the lands to her during her widowhood, and averred this was in recompense of her dower; this averment was rejected, because there was nothing to be collected out of the words of the will to that purpose. 1 Lut. 374.

Augmentation, (Augmentatio) The name of a court erected 27 Hen. 8. for determining suits and controversies relating to monasteries and abbey lands. The intent of this court was, that the King might be justly dealt with touching the profits of such religious houses as were given to him by act of parliament. It took its name from the augmentation of the revenues of the crown, by the suppression of religious houses: and the office of augmentation, which hath many curious records, remains to this day, though the court hath been long since dissolved. *Cowell. Auncell-weight, (quasi hand sale weight, or from ansa, the handle of the balance) An ancient manner of weighing, by the hanging of scales or hooks at each end of a beam or staff, which, by lifting up in the middle with one's finger or hand, discovered the equality or difference between the weight at one end, and the thing weighed at the other. This method of weighing being subject to great deceit, was prohibited by several statutes, and the even balance commanded in its stead, as 25 Ed. 3. st. 5. c. 9. 34 Ed. 3. c. 5. 8 Hen. 6. c. 4. and 22 Car. 2. c. 8. Avoidance, as opposed to plenarty, is where there is a want of a lawful incumbent on a benefice, during which vacancy the church is quasi viduata, and the possessions belonging to it are in abeyance. God. Intro. 42.

1. What acts make an avoidance.
2. In what cases the patron must have notice of the avoidance.

1. What acts make an avoidance.

Avoidance happeneth several ways: First, the most usual and known means, by which any spiritual promotion doth become void, is by the act of God, viz. by the death of the incumbent thereof. And such avoidance doth commence from the day of the death of such incumbent. And the patron is obliged to take notice of it at his peril, and not to expect an intimation from the ordinary. Watſ. c. 1. Secondly, by resignation; which is the act of the incumbent. And this being necessarily made into the hands of the ordinary, and not valid but as admitted by him; the voidance consequent upon it is to be notified by the ordinary to the patron. Gib. 792. Thirdly,——by cession, or the acceptance of a benefice incompatible; which also is the act of the incumbent. In which case, the benefice, if of the yearly value of 8 l. or above, is void by act of parliament, and no notice is needful; if under 8 l. a year, it is void by the common law, and the patron may either present his clerk immediately, and require admission, or may sue in the court christian for sentence of deprivation, and wait for the notice to be given thereupon; or the ordinary himself may ex mero officio proceed to deprivation, and then give notice. In like manner, when a parson possessed of ecclesiastical benefices of any kind is promoted to a bishoprick, and there is no dispensation to hold them in commendam with the bishoprick; in such case, upon the consecration of the bishop, they become void, and the right of presentation belongs to the crown. Gibſ. 792. Watſ. c. 22. But by law in Ireland, no person can take any dignity or benefice there, till he has resigned all his preferments in England; by which resignation the king is prevented of the presentation. Which is said to have been agreed in the case of the bishops of Durham and Salisbury, upon the promotion of Dr. Rundle to the bishoprick of Derry in the year 1735. Fourthly, by deprivation; which is the act of the ordinary: which voidance being created by sentence in the ecclesiastical court, must be notified to the patron; but takes not place presently, if an appeal is depending. Fifthly, By act of the law; as in case of simony; not subscribing the articles or declaration; or not reading of the articles, or the Common Prayer. All which being voidances by act of parliament, are to be understood (with regard to the times of the commencement of such voidances, aud the notice of them) according to the directions and limitations of the respective acts. Gibſ. 792.

By the Stat. 25 Ed. 3. ſt. 3. cap. 8. "Whereas the prelates have shewed and prayed remedy, for that the secular justices do accroch to them cognisance of voidance of benefices of right, which cognisance, and the discussing thereof, pertaineth to the judges of holy church, and not to the lay judge; the king will and granteth, that the said justices shall from henceforth receive such challenges made, or to be made, by any prelate of holy church in this behalf, and moreover thereof shall do right and reason."

And the distinction which hath obtained is this: If it come in question, whether the church be full of an incumbent or not, the same shall be tried by the certificate of the bishop, who best knows of the institution; but if the issue to be tried be, whether the church be void or not, the same shall be tried by a jury at the common law, unless the issue to be tried be upon some special act of avoidance, for then the same shall be tried by the certificate of the bishop, so as the special cause of the avoidance be spiritual. Gib. 793. Hughes, c. 13. 1 Burn E. L. 78.

If a clerk is instituted to a benefice of the yearly value of 8 l. and before induction accepts another benefice with cure, and is instituted, the first benefice is void by the statute 21 H. 8. for he who is instituted only, is properly said to have accepted a benefice within the words of the act. 4 Rep. 78.

The patron granted the next avoidance to two jointly and severally; adjudged, that this grant is not good, because an interest cannot be divided; so where there was a grant of the next avoidance to three, habendum to them and to each of them jointly and severally, the first presented the third, and adjudged good; but if the bishop had refused to admit the presentee, he might have failed in a quare impedit, because the severance in the habendum is void in law; but 'tis otherwise in case of an authority, for that may be divided. Goldſ. 142.

But if he is inducted into a second benefice, the first is void in facto et jure, and not voidable only, quoad the patron, and until he presents another; and in such case the patron ought to take notice of the avoidance at his peril, and present within the six months. Cro. Car. 258.

Deprivation by a declaratory sentence in the ecclesiastical court is an avoidance of a benefice, and by the common law there are several causes of deprivation, as conſcientia criminis, debilitas corporis, defectus ſcientiæ, malitia plebis, grave ſcandalum, irregularitas perſonæ. Dodderidge's Parſon's Law.

In a special verdict in ejectment the case was, One Higden was incumbent of Wringleton, in the county of Somerſet, being a benefice of cure &c. and accepted the rectory of Elme in the said county, being a benefice with cure, &c. and was inducted, &c. and thereupon the patron of Wringleton, within two months, presented the plaintiff to that church; Higden, upon his acceptance of Elme, did ſubſcribe to the thirty-nine articles, according to the statute of Eliz. but did not read them in the church within two months after his induction, pursuant to the statute; the question was, whether his not reading the articles, as aforesaid, had excluded him not only from Elme, but from Wringleton, for it was insisted, that if he was ipſo facto deprived of Elme, by not reading the articles, then his induction into Elme was void, and as if it had never been, and by consequence he never accepted a second living, and if so, then the first is not void, but he still must continue incumbent thereof; but adjudged, that by his ſubſcribing the articles, upon his admission and institution into Elme, he was perfect incumbent thereof pro tempore, viz. to the time allowed him to read the articles, which is two months, &c. and if so, then he accepted Elme, and by that means he lost Wringleton, and by not reading the articles within two months after his induction into Elme, he lost that likewise. Vaugh. 120.

2. In what cases the patron must have notice of the avoidance.

Two patrons had a right to present by turns; one of them presented, and his clerk was instituted and inducted, and died; then the other presented, and his clerk being instituted and inducted, was afterwards deprived by the bishop (without giving notice to him who had the next turn) who collated his clerk, and afterwards he who had the next turn sold his moiety; the court inclined that by the collation the next turn was lost, but clearly if it had been by usurpation, but yet it was adjudged, that upon the deprivation the patron ought to have notice of it. Goldſb. 142.

So in cases of refuſal by the biſhop to inſtitute a clerk for any cause of disability, he must give notice to the patron of such refusal, and for what cause, that the patron may present another; for if he hath no notice of it, he shall not be prejudiced by any lapse. 5 Rep. 58.

But if he refuses to institute a layman presented to him by the patron, in such case he need not give notice to the patron, because it is notorious to the patron himself when he presented him, that he was incapable to take the benefice; but if such a layman had been inducted, this makes a plenarty de facto, and he must be deprived by a declaratory sentence before the patron can present another; and of such deprivation the bishop must give notice to the patron. Dyer 293.

Where

Where the avoidance is by the death of the incumbent, or by his being made a biſhop, in ſuch caſes the patron is to take notice of it at his peril; and the ſix months, in which he is to preſent another, ſhall be accounted from the death of the one, and the creation of the other; but if the avoidance be by reſignation, which is the act of the party himſelf, or by deprivation, which is the act of the law, in both thoſe caſes, the patron muſt have notice, and the ſix months ſhall be accounted from the time of the notice, and not from the reſignation or deprivation. Dyer 327.

Where the avoidance is by an act of parliament; as for inſtance, if a man hath one benefice with cure, &c. and take another with cure, &c. without any diſpenſation to hold two, in ſuch caſe the firſt is void by the act 21 H. 8. cap. 13. if it was above the value of 8 l. and the patron is now bound to take notice of ſuch avoidance, becauſe he is virtually a party to the act; but it was not ſo before that act of parliament was made, for then ſuch avoidance of the firſt benefice was by the eccleſiaſtical law, of which the patron was not bound to take notice; but yet he might take notice of it, and preſent, if he would. 4 Rep. 75.

Where the patron himſelf took notice of a deprivation, which was obtained at his own proſecution, for not reading the thirty nine articles; yet in ſuch caſe, lapſe ſhall not incur, without an actual notice of the deprivation given to him by the biſhop; for 'tis he, and no other perſon, who is required by the law to give notice, and it muſt not be a general notice, but it muſt be particular, and the cauſe be expreſſed for which he was deprived. 6 Rep. 29.

Where the biſhop refuſeth to inſtitute a cletk, he muſt give notice of ſuch refuſal to the patron himſelf, if he is within that county where the church is become void; but if he is not in that county, then notice muſt be given at the door of that church; but where 'tis doubtful who is patron, and upon jus patronatus awarded, 'tis found, that ſuch a one is patron, though it may happen he is not the true patron, yet if he gives him notice, and no preſentation is made within ſix months after ſuch notice, the biſhop may collate to the church; and though that collation ſhall not bind the true patron, yet the biſhop ſhall be excuſed from being a diſturber. 1 Leon. 32.

Avoirdupois, of Averdupois, (Fr. avoir du poids, i. e. habere pondus, aut juſti eſſe ponderis) ſignifies a weight different from that which is called Troy-weight, which contains but twelve ounces in the pound, whereas this containeth ſixteen. And in this reſpect it is probably ſo called, becauſe it is of greater weight than the other. It alſo ſignifieth ſuch merchandizes as are weighed by this weight, and not by Troy-weight, and is mentioned in divers ſtatutes; as in the ſtatute of York, 9 Ed. 3. in proœmio. 27 Ed. 3. ſt. 2. c. 10. 2 Ric. 2. c. 1. Averium ponderis, full weight or averdupois. Cart. 3 Ed. 2. Cowell, edit. 1727. Avowry, Is where a man takes diſtreſs for rent, or other thing, and the party on whom taken ſues forth a replevin, then the taker ſhall juſtify his plea for what cauſe he took it; and if in his own right, he muſt ſhew the ſame, and avow the taking; which is called his avowry. But if he took it in the right of another, then when he has ſhewed the cauſe, he ſhall make cogniſance of the taking, as bailiff or ſervant to him in whoſe right he did it. Termes de la ley. The learning of avowries is abridged, and the intricacies of proceſs in replevin, &c. much remedied in caſes of diſtreſſes for rent, by the following ſtatutes.

Stat. 7 Hen. 8. cap. 4. ſect. 3. Every avowant, and other perſon, that makes avowry or conuſance, or juſtifies as baily, in replevin or ſecond deliverance, for rent, cuſtom or ſervice, if the plaintiff be barred, ſhall recover damages and coſts. To the ſame effect is ſtat. 21 H. 8. cap. 19. ſect. 3.

Stat. 21 Hen. 8. cap. 19. ſect. 3. Whereſoever tenements be holden by rents, cuſtoms or ſervices, if the lord diſtrain upon the ſame tenements for ſuch rent, &c. and replevin be ſued, the lord may avow, or his bailiff or ſervant make coniſance, or juſtify the diſtreſſes upon the ſame tenements, as in tenements within his fee, alledging in the ſaid avowry, &c. the ſame tenements to be holden of him, without naming of any perſon certain to be tenant of the ſame, and without making avowry, juſtification, or coniſance, upon any perſon certain. And in like manner upon writ of ſecond deliverance.

Sect. 4. The ſaid plaintiffs and defendants in writs of replegiare, or ſecond deliverance, ſhall have like pleas and like aid prayers (pleas of diſclaim only excepted) as tho' the avowry, &c. had been after the order of the common law.

Sect. 5. Such perſons as by common law may join to the plaintiffs or defendants in replegiare, or ſecond deliverance, as well without proceſs, as by proceſs, ſhall from henceforth join unto the ſaid plaintiffs or defendants, and have like pleas and advantages, (diſclaim only excepted) as they might have done by the common law.

Stat. 17 Car. 2. cap. 7. ſect. 2. When any plaintiff in replevin ſhall be nonſuit before iſſue joined in any of the King's courts at Weſtminſter, the defendant making a ſuggeſtion in nature of an avowry or coniſance for ſuch rent, to aſcertain the court of the cauſe of diſtreſs, the court upon his prayer ſhall award a writ to the ſheriff, to enquire upon the oaths of twelve men, touching the ſum in arrear at the time of ſuch diſtreſs taken, and the value of the goods diſtrained, and thereupon notice of fifteen days ſhall be given to the plaintiff or his attorney, of the ſitting of ſuch enquiry: and upon the return of ſuch inquiſition, the defendant ſhall have judgment to recover againſt the plaintiff the arrearages of ſuch rent, in caſe the goods diſtrained ſhall amount unto that value; and in caſe they ſhall not, then ſo much as the value of the ſaid goods will amount unto, together with his coſts, and ſhall have execution as the law ſhall require. And in caſe ſuch plaintiff ſhall be nonſuit after coniſance or avowry made, and iſſue joined, or if the verdict ſhall be given againſt ſuch plaintiff, then the jurors ſhall, at the prayer of the defendant, inquire concerning the arrears, and the value of the goods diſtrained; and thereupon the avowant, or he that makes coniſance, ſhall have judgment for ſuch arrearages, or ſo much thereof as the goods diſtrained amount unto, together with his coſts.

Sect. 3. If judgment in any of the courts aforeſaid be given upon demurrer for the avowant, or him that maketh coniſance for rent, the court ſhall, at the prayer of the defendant, award a writ to enquire of the value of ſuch diſtreſs; and upon the return thereof judgment ſhall be given for the avowant, &c. for the arrears alledged to be behind in ſuch avowry or coniſance, if the goods diſtrained ſhall amount to that value; and in caſe they ſhall not, then for ſo much as the goods amount unto, together with coſts.

Sect. 4. In all caſes aforeſaid, where the value of the cattle diſtrained ſhall not be found to the full value of the arrears diſtrained for, the party to whom ſuch arrears were due, his executors or adminiſtrators, may from time to time diſtrain again for the reſidue of the arrears. Made to extend to Wales and Counties Palatine. 19 Car. 2. cap. 5.

Stat. 11 Geo. 2. cap. 19. ſect. 92. It ſhall be lawful for all defendants in replevin to avow or make coniſance generally, that the plaintiff in replevin, or other tenant of the lands whereon ſuch diſtreſs was made, enjoyed the ſame under a grant or demiſe at ſuch a certain rent, during the time wherein the rent diſtrained for incurred, which rent was then, and ſtill remains due; or that the place where the diſtreſs was taken, was parcel of ſuch certain tenements held of ſuch honour, lordſhip, or manor, for which tenements the rent, relief, heriot, or other ſervice, diſtrained for, was at the time of ſuch diſtreſs, and ſtill remains due; without further ſetting forth the grant, tenure, demiſe, or title of ſuch leſſors, or owners of ſuch manor; and if the plaintiff in ſuch action ſhall be nonſuit, &c. the defendant ſhall recover double coſts. Auſcultare. Formerly perſons were appointed in monaſteries to hear the monks read, and direct them how, and in what manner they ſhould do it with a graceful tone or accent, to make an impreſſion on the hearers, which was required before they were admitted to read publickly in the church; and this was called auſcultare, viz. to read or recite a leſſon.——Quicunque lecturus vel cantaturus eſt aliquid in monaſterio, ſi neceſſe habeat ab eo, (viz. cantore) priuſquam incipiat, debet auſculare. Lanfrancus in decretis pro ordine Benedict. c. 5.

Autefoits acquit, Is a plea by a criminal that he was heretofore acquitted of the ſame treaſon, or felony: for one ſhall not be brought into danger of his life, for the ſame offence, more than once. 3 Inſt. 213. There is alſo a plea of auterfoits convict, and auterfoits attaint; that he was heretofore convicted, or attainted, of the ſame felony. In appeal of death, auterfoits acquit, or auterfoits attaint, upon indictment of the ſame death, is no plea. H. P. C. 244. But in other caſes where a perſon is attainted, it is to no purpoſe that he ſhould be attainted a ſecond time. And conviction of manſlaughter, where clergy is admitted thereon, will bar any ſubſequent proſecution for the ſame death. 2 Hawk. P. C. 377.

Authority. That power of acting which one man has, being transferred to another, is called an authority, and this the law allows of; for as a contract is no more than the conſent of a man's mind to a thing, if ſuch conſent or concurrence appears, it would be very unreaſonable to oblige him to be preſent at the execution of every contract, ſince it may be as well performed by any other perſon delegated for that purpoſe. 11 Hen. 4. 71. 2 Rol. Abr. 8. Co. Lit. 52.

But ſuch delegation or authority muſt be by deed, that it may appear, that the attorney or ſubſtitute had a commiſſion or power to repreſent the party; alſo that it may appear that the authority was well purſued. Co. Lit. 48. b. 2 Rol. Abr. 8. Salk. 96.

4. Where an authority muſt be ſtrictly purſued.

1. What ſhall be deemed a good authority, and how it differs from an intereſt.

If A. by letter of attorney conſtitutes and appoints, and in his ſtead and place puts B. to ſurrender a certain copyhold, this authority is ſufficient, and as full as if it ſaid for him and in his name, &c. 1 Brownl. 94.

If a man ſigns and ſeals a leaſe of ejectment indented, but does not deliver it, and at the ſame time ſeals and delivers a letter of attorney, in which he recites, Whereas by indenture of leaſe, bearing ſuch a date, &c. hath demiſed to B. ſuch land habendum: now theſe preſents witneſs that he makes J. S. his lawful attorney, to deliver the ſaid indenture upon the land as his deed; though, according to the proper ſignification of the words, the leaſe ought to be taken to be delivered by him, and this letter of attorney void, to deliver it again; for this cannot be an indenture if it was delivered; yet all parts of the letter of attorney being laid together, and the intent of the parties, and proof being made that the leaſe was not delivered, but only ſigned and ſealed, it appears that this was only an improper expreſſion of his intent, by calling it an indenture and a demiſe; for if he had intended that this was an indenture ſealed and delivered, this letter of attorney to deliver it upon the land need not have been made. 1 Rol. Abr. 328.

If the authority in a letter of attorney be ad petend', recipiend' et recuperand' a certain debt, it is ſufficient to arreſt, &c. becauſe neceſſary, in order to recover. 1 Rol. Rep. 390. Palm. 394. Godb. 359.

If a ſteward makes a deputy hac vice to make a ſurrender of a copyhold, et ulterius ad faciend' quantum in ſe eſt; by virtue of theſe laſt words, the deputy may take a conditional ſurrender. Cro. El. 48.

An authority may be delegated by deed indented, tho' the attorney be not party to the deed; becauſe the attorney takes nothing by the deed, but has only a naked authority delegated to him; and therefore, ſince a man may take an eſtate in remainder, though he is no party to the deed, a fortiori one not party to the deed may receive a naked authority or power by it. 2 Rol. Abr. 8, 9.

A deviſe to another to have the diſpoſing, ſelling, and letting his land; ſo a deviſe to his ſon, but that his wife ſhall take the profits; ſo a deviſe, that his executor ſhall have the overſight and dealing of his lands; ſo a deviſe to an infant in tail, but that G. D. ſhall have the overſight of his will, and the education of his ſon till of age, and, to receive, ſet, and let for him; theſe and ſuch like words give the deviſee an authority, but no intereſt. Dyer 26. b. 2 Leon. 221. 3 Leon. 78, 216. Moor 635. S. P. Cro. Eliz. 674, 678, 734.

Where goods are deviſed to a particular purpoſe, there the deviſee hath no intereſt in them; as for inſtance, the teſtator deviſed ſeveral legacies, and after thoſe were paid, then he deviſed the reſidue to his wife to diſpoſe for the good of his ſoul, and payment of his debts, and made her ſole executrix; adjudged, that by this deviſe ſhe had no intereſt in the reſidue, for it was deviſed for a particular purpoſe, viz. to pay the teſtator's debts. Dyer 331.

The law makes a difference where lands are deviſed to executors to ſell, and where the deviſe is, that his lands ſhall be ſold by his executors; for in the firſt caſe an intereſt paſſes to the executors, becauſe the lands are expreſsly deviſed to them, but in the other caſe they have only an authority to ſell. Goldſ. 2. Dyer 219. Moor 61. Keilw. 107. b. 1 And. 145.

The teſtator deviſed, that his executors ſhould receive the iſſues and profits of his lands till his ſon came of age, to pay his debts and legacies, and to breed up his younger children; the teſtator died, ſo did the executor, during the minority of the ſon, having firſt made J. S. his executor; adjudged, that this executor of an executor may diſpoſe of the iſſues and profits for the purpoſes mentioned in the will during the infancy of the ſon; becauſe the firſt executor had not only a bare authority, but an intereſt veſted in him. Dyer 210.

Where the teſtator gives another authority to ſell his lands, he may ſell the inheritance, becauſe he gave him the ſame power he had himſelf, and in ſuch caſe the purchaſer ſhall be in by the deviſe. 2 Rep. 53.

An authority may be apportioned or divided, but an intereſt is inſeparable from the perſon, and where an act, which is in its nature indifferent, will work two ways,

Where the avoidance is by the death of the incumbent, or by his being made a biſhop, in ſuch caſes the patron is to take notice of it at his peril; and the ſix months, in which he is to preſent another, ſhall be accounted from the death of the one, and the creation of the other; but if the avoidance be by reſignation, which is the act of the party himſelf, or by deprivation, which is the act of the law, in both thoſe caſes, the patron muſt have notice, and the ſix months ſhall be accounted from the time of the notice, and not from the reſignation or deprivation. Dyer 327.

Where the avoidance is by an act of parliament; as for inſtance, if a man hath one benefice with cure, &c. and take another with cure, &c. without any diſpenſation to hold two, in ſuch caſe the firſt is void by the act 21 H. 8. cap. 13. if it was above the value of 8 l. and the patron is now bound to take notice of ſuch avoidance, becauſe he is virtually a party to the act; but it was not ſo before that act of parliament was made, for then ſuch avoidance of the firſt benefice was by the eccleſiaſtical law, of which the patron was not bound to take notice; but yet he might take notice of it, and preſent, if he would. 4 Rep. 75.

Where the patron himſelf took notice of a deprivation, which was obtained at his own proſecution, for not reading the thirty nine articles; yet in ſuch caſe, lapſe ſhall not incur, without an actual notice of the deprivation given to him by the biſhop; for 'tis he, and no other perſon, who is required by the law to give notice, and it muſt not be a general notice, but it muſt be particular, and the cauſe be expreſſed for which he was deprived. 6 Rep. 29.

Where the biſhop refuſeth to inſtitute a cletk, he muſt give notice of ſuch refuſal to the patron himſelf, if he is within that county where the church is become void; but if he is not in that county, then notice muſt be given at the door of that church; but where 'tis doubtful who is patron, and upon jus patronatus awarded, 'tis found, that ſuch a one is patron, though it may happen he is not the true patron, yet if he gives him notice, and no preſentation is made within ſix months after ſuch notice, the biſhop may collate to the church; and though that collation ſhall not bind the true patron, yet the biſhop ſhall be excuſed from being a diſturber. 1 Leon. 32.

Avoirdupois, or Averdupois, (Fr. avoir du poids, i. e. habere pondus, aut juſti eſſe ponderis) ſignifies a weight different from that which is called Troy-weight, which contains but twelve ounces in the pound, whereas this containeth ſixteen. And in this reſpect it is probably ſo called, becauſe it is of greater weight than the other. It alſo ſignifieth ſuch merchandizes as are weighed by this weight, and not by Troy-weight, and is mentioned in divers ſtatutes; as in the ſtatute of York, 9 Ed. 3. in proœmio. 27 Ed. 3. ſt. 2. c. 10. 2 Ric. 2. c. 1. Averium ponderis, full weight or averdupois. Cart. 3 Ed. 2. Cowell, edit. 1727. Avowee, Advocatus. See Advowee. Brit. c. 29. ſaith, That avowee is he to whom the right of advowſon of any church appertaineth, ſo that he may preſent in his own name, and is called avowee, to diſtinguiſh him from thoſe who ſometimes preſent in another's name; as a guardian, who preſenteth in the name of his ward: and alſo to diſtinguiſh him from thoſe which have lands, whereto an advowſon appertaineth, but only for term of their lives, of years, or by intruſion, or by diſſeiſin.

Avowry, Is where a man takes diſtreſs for rent, or other thing, and the party on whom taken ſues forth a replevin, then the taker ſhall juſtify his plea for what cauſe he took it; and if in his own right, he muſt ſhew the ſame, and avow the taking; which is called his avowry. But if he took it in the right of another, then when he has ſhewed the cauſe, he ſhall make cogniſance of the taking, as bailiff or ſervant to him in whoſe right he did it. Termes de la ley. The learning of avowries is abridged, and the intricacies of proceſs in replevin, &c. much remedied in caſes of diſtreſſes for rent, by the following ſtatutes.

Stat. 7 Hen. 8. cap. 4. ſect. 3. Every avowant, and other perſon, that makes avowry or conuſance, or juſtifies as baily, in replevin or ſecond deliverance, for rent, cuſtom or ſervice, if the plaintiff be barred, ſhall recover damages and coſts. To the ſame effect is ſtat. 21 H. 8. cap. 19. ſect. 3.

Stat. 21 Hen. 8. cap. 19. ſect. 3. Whereſoever tenements be holden by rents, cuſtoms or ſervices, if the lord diſtrain upon the ſame tenements for ſuch rent, &c. and replevin be ſued, the lord may avow, or his bailiff or ſervant make coniſance, or juſtify the diſtreſſes upon the ſame tenements, as in tenements within his fee, alledging in the ſaid avowry, &c. the ſame tenements to be holden of him, without naming of any perſon certain to be tenant of the ſame, and without making avowry, juſtification, or coniſance, upon any perſon certain. And in like manner upon writ of ſecond deliverance.

Sect. 4. The ſaid plaintiffs and defendants in writs of replegiare, or ſecond deliverance, ſhall have like pleas and like aid prayers (pleas of diſclaim only excepted) as tho' the avowry, &c. had been after the order of the common law.

Sect. 5. Such perſons as by common law may join to the plaintiffs or defendants in replegiare, or ſecond deliverance, as well without proceſs, as by proceſs, ſhall from henceforth join unto the ſaid plaintiffs or defendants, and have like pleas and advantages, (diſclaim only excepted) as they might have done by the common law.

Stat. 17 Car. 2. cap. 7. ſect. 2. When any plaintiff in replevin ſhall be nonſuit before iſſue joined in any of the King's courts at Weſtminſter, the defendant making a ſuggeſtion in nature of an avowry or coniſance for ſuch rent, to aſcertain the court of the cauſe of diſtreſs, the court upon his prayer ſhall award a writ to the ſheriff, to enquire upon the oaths of twelve men, touching the ſum in arrear at the time of ſuch diſtreſs taken, and the value of the goods diſtrained, and thereupon notice of fifteen days ſhall be given to the plaintiff or his attorney, of the ſitting of ſuch enquiry: and upon the return of ſuch inquiſition, the defendant ſhall have judgment to recover againſt the plaintiff the arrearages of ſuch rent, in caſe the goods diſtrained ſhall amount unto that value; and in caſe they ſhall not, then ſo much as the value of the ſaid goods will amount unto, together with his coſts, and ſhall have execution as the law ſhall require. And in caſe ſuch plaintiff ſhall be nonſuit after coniſance or avowry made, and iſſue joined, or if the verdict ſhall be given againſt ſuch plaintiff, then the jurors ſhall, at the prayer of the defendant, inquire concerning the arrears, and the value of the goods diſtrained; and thereupon the avowant, or he that makes coniſance, ſhall have judgment for ſuch arrearages, or ſo much thereof as the goods diſtrained amount unto, together with his coſts.

Sect. 3. If judgment in any of the courts aforeſaid be given upon demurrer for the avowant, or him that maketh coniſance for rent, the court ſhall, at the prayer of the defendant, award a writ to enquire of the value of ſuch diſtreſs; and upon the return thereof judgment ſhall be given for the avowant, &c. for the arrears alledged to be behind in ſuch avowry or coniſance, if the goods diſtrained ſhall amount to that value; and in caſe they ſhall not, then for ſo much as the goods amount unto, together with coſts.

Sect. 4. In all caſes aforeſaid, where the value of the cattle diſtrained ſhall not be found to the full value of the arrears diſtrained for, the party to whom ſuch arrears were due, his executors or adminiſtrators, may from time to time diſtrain again for the reſidue of the arrears. Made to extend to Wales and Counties Palatine. 19 Car. 2. cap. 5.

Stat. 11 Geo. 2. cap. 19. ſect. 92. It ſhall be lawful for all defendants in replevin to avow or make coniſance generally, that the plaintiff in replevin, or other tenant of the lands whereon ſuch diſtreſs was made, enjoyed the ſame under a grant or demiſe at ſuch a certain rent, during the time wherein the rent diſtrained for incurred, which rent was then, and ſtill remains due; or that the place where the diſtreſs was taken, was parcel of ſuch certain tenements held of ſuch honour, lordſhip, or manor, for which tenements the rent, relief, heriot, or other ſervice, diſtrained for, was at the time of ſuch diſtreſs, and ſtill remains due; without further ſetting forth the grant, tenure, demiſe, or title of ſuch leſſors, or owners of ſuch manor; and if the plaintiff in ſuch action ſhall be nonſuit, &c. the defendant ſhall recover double coſts. Auſcultare. Formerly perſons were appointed in monaſteries to hear the monks read, and direct them how, and in what manner they ſhould do it with a graceful tone or accent, to make an impreſſion on the hearers, which was required before they were admitted to read publickly in the church; and this was called auſcultare, viz. to read or recite a leſſon.——Quicunque lecturus vel cantaturus eſt aliquid in monaſterio, ſi neceſſe habeat ab eo, (viz. cantore) priuſquam incipiat, debet auſculare. Lanfrantus in decretis pro ordine Benedict. c. 5.

Autefoits acquit, Is a plea by a criminal that he was heretofore acquitted of the ſame treaſon, or felony: for one ſhall not be brought into danger of his life, for the ſame offence, more than once. 3 Inſt. 213. There is alſo a plea of auterfoits convict, and auterfoits attaint; that he was heretofore convicted, or attainted, of the ſame felony. In appeal of death, auterfoits acquit, or auterfoits attaint, upon indictment of the ſame death, is no plea. H. P. C. 244. But in other caſes where a perſon is attainted, it is to no purpoſe that he ſhould be attainted a ſecond time. And conviction of manſlaughter, where clergy is admitted thereon, will bar any ſubſequent proſecution for the ſame death. 2 Hawk. P. C. 377.

Authority. That power of acting which one man has, being transferred to another, is called an authority, and this the law allows of; for as a contract is no more than the conſent of a man's mind to a thing, if ſuch conſent or concurrence appears, it would be very unreaſonable to oblige him to be preſent at the execution of every contract, ſince it may be as well performed by any other perſon delegated for that purpoſe. 11 Hen. 4. 71. 2 Rol. Abr. 8. Co. Lit. 52.

But ſuch delegation or authority muſt be by deed, that it may appear, that the attorney or ſubſtitute had a commiſſion or power to repreſent the party; alſo that it may appear that the authority was well purſued. Co. Lit. 48. b. 2 Rol. Abr. 8. Salk. 96.

1. What ſhall be deemed a good authority, and how it differs from an intereſt.
2. Where an authority ſhall be deemed to be well purſued and executed.
3. Where an authority cannot be transferred, and when it ſhall be determined and revoked.
4. Where an authority muſt be ſtrictly purſued.

1. What ſhall be deemed a good authority, and how it differs from an intereſt.

If A. by letter of attorney conſtitutes and appoints, and in his ſtead and place puts B. to ſurrender a certain copyhold, this authority is ſufficient, and as full as if it ſaid for him and in his name, &c. 1 Brownl. 94.

If a man ſigns and ſeals a leaſe of ejectment indented, but does not deliver it, and at the ſame time ſeals and delivers a letter of attorney, in which he recites, Whereas by indenture of leaſe, bearing ſuch a date, &c. hath demiſed to B. ſuch land habendum: now theſe preſents witneſs that he makes J. S. his lawful attorney, to deliver the ſaid indenture upon the land as his deed; though, according to the proper ſignification of the words, the leaſe ought to be taken to be delivered by him, and this letter of attorney void, to deliver it again; for this cannot be an indenture if it was delivered; yet all parts of the letter of attorney being laid together, and the intent of the parties, and proof being made that the leaſe was not delivered, but only ſigned and ſealed, it appears that this was only an improper expreſſion of his intent, by calling it an indenture and a demiſe; for if he had intended that this was an indenture ſealed and delivered, this letter of attorney to deliver it upon the land need not have been made. 1 Rol. Abr. 328.

If the authority in a letter of attorney be ad petend', recipiend' et recuperand' a certain debt, it is ſufficient to arreſt, &c. becauſe neceſſary, in order to recover. 1 Rol. Rep. 390. Palm. 394. Godb. 359.

If a ſteward makes a deputy hac vice to make a ſurrender of a copyhold, et ulterius ad faciend' quantum in ſe eſt; by virtue of theſe laſt words, the deputy may take a conditional ſurrender. Cro. El. 48.

An authority may be delegated by deed indented, tho' the attorney be not party to the deed; becauſe the attorney takes nothing by the deed, but has only a naked authority delegated to him; and therefore, ſince a man may take an eſtate in remainder, though he is no party to the deed, a fortiori one not party to the deed may receive a naked authority or power by it. 2 Rol. Abr. 8, 9.

A deviſe to another to have the diſpoſing, ſelling, and letting his land; ſo a deviſe to his ſon, but that his wife ſhall take the profits; ſo a deviſe, that his executor ſhall have the overſight and dealing of his lands; ſo a deviſe to an infant in tail, but that G. D. ſhall have the overſight of his will, and the education of his ſon till of age, and, to receive, ſet, and let for him; theſe and ſuch like words give the deviſee an authority, but no intereſt. Dyer 26. b. 2 Leon. 221. 3 Leon. 78, 216. Moor 635. S. P. Cro. Eliz. 674, 678, 734.

Where goods are deviſed to a particular purpoſe, there the deviſee hath no intereſt in them; as for inſtance, the teſtator deviſed ſeveral legacies, and after thoſe were paid, then he deviſed the reſidue to his wife to diſpoſe for the good of his ſoul, and payment of his debts, and made her ſole executrix; adjudged, that by this deviſe ſhe had no intereſt in the reſidue, for it was deviſed for a particular purpoſe, viz. to pay the teſtator's debts. Dyer 331.

The law makes a difference where lands are deviſed to executors to ſell, and where the deviſe is, that his lands ſhall be ſold by his executors; for in the firſt caſe an intereſt paſſes to the executors, becauſe the lands are expreſsly deviſed to them, but in the other caſe they have only an authority to ſell. Goldſ. 2. Dyer 219. Moor 61. Keilw. 107. b. 1 And. 145.

The teſtator deviſed, that his executors ſhould receive the iſſues and profits of his lands till his ſon came of age, to pay his debts and legacies, and to breed up his younger children; the teſtator died, ſo did the executor, during the minority of the ſon, having firſt made J. S. his executor; adjudged, that this executor of an executor may diſpoſe of the iſſues and profits for the purpoſes mentioned in the will during the infancy of the ſon; becauſe the firſt executor had not only a bare authority, but an intereſt veſted in him. Dyer 210.

Where the teſtator gives another authority to ſell his lands, he may ſell the inheritance, becauſe he gave him the ſame power he had himſelf, and in ſuch caſe the purchaſer ſhall be in by the deviſe. 2 Rep. 53.

the one by an authority, and the other by an intereſt, the law will attribute it to the intereſt; as for inſtance, where a man is ſeiſed of three acres holden in capite, to the uſe of ſuch perſon, and of ſuch eſtate as he ſhall deviſe, and afterwards he, by his laſt will, deviſed all his lands to G. D. in fee, this ſhall only paſs two parts, viz. two acres and no more; but where an intereſt and authority meet, if the party declare, that the thing ſhall take effect by virtue of his authority, there it ſhall prevail againſt the intereſt; therefore, if the teſtator had recited his power, and relied upon it, the three acres would have paſſed by his expreſs declaration; nay, if he had not made ſuch a declaration, yet if the act itſelf doth import, that it muſt neceſſarily work by his power, or be void, the law will adjudge it to take effect according to the meaning of the party; therefore it was reſolved in Sir Edward Cleer's caſe, that he being ſeiſed of three acres of equal value, ſettled two of them in jointure upon his wife, and afterwards made a feoffment of the third acre to the uſe of ſuch perſon to whom he ſhould deviſe the ſame, and then deviſed it to G. D. that this deviſe was good by virtue of his authority to deviſe, or elſe the whole had been void. 6 Rep. 17.

Six carpenters came to a tavern, and called for a quart of wine, which they drank, but refuſed to pay for it upon requeſt; and in an action of treſpaſs brought againſt them, it was adjudged, that where an authority is given by law, as it was in this caſe (it being lawful for the defendants to enter into the tavern) and if they abuſe that authority (which they did in not paying for the wine) they ſhall be treſpaſſors ab initio; but where an authority is given to one by the act of the party, and he abuſes it, he ſhall be puniſhed according to the injury he hath done, but ſhall not be a treſpaſſor ab initio. 8 Rep. 146.

Deviſe of his land to his ſon, and that his wife ſhall take the profits till he comes of age; this is only an authority, and no intereſt in the wife. 2 Leon. 221.

So where the huſband deviſed, that if his wife Elizabeth ſhall think fit to bring up his children, and find them neceſſaries, that then ſhe ſhall have his lands till his eldeſt ſon comes of age, and the wife died before her ſon came of age; adjudged, that this was not only a bare truſt or confidence, but an intereſt veſted in her, tied to a condition to educate his children. Cro. Eliz. 252.

Deviſe of land to his ſon, when he ſhould be of age, and that his executor ſhould have the overſight and dealing of his lands and goods till that time; the executor made a leaſe at will, rendring rent at Lady-day, &c. the ſon died before that day; adjudged, that the executor had only an authority, and that the eſtate was in the ſon by deſcent. Moor 774.

2. Where an authority ſhall be deemed to be well purſued and executed.

Here it is neceſſary to take notice of a difference in the old books, between a naked authority and an authority coupled with an intereſt; for if a man deviſe that his executors ſhall ſell his land, this gives but a naked authority; and the lands, till the ſale is made, deſcend to the heir at law; and in this caſe all muſt join in the ſale; and if one die, it being a bare authority cannot ſurvive to the reſt. Co. Lit. 181, 112, 113.

But if a man by will give land to executors to be ſold, and one of them die, the ſurvivors may ſell; for the truſt being coupled with an intereſt, ſhall ſurvive together with it. Co. Lit. 113. b. 181. b.

Alſo, if lands be deviſed to A. for life, and that after his deceaſe his lands ſhall be ſold by his executors, and he makes three or four executors, and during the life of A. one of the executors dies, and then A. dies, the ſurviving executors may ſell, becauſe the land could not be ſold before, and the plural number of executors remains. Co. Lit. 112. b.

But it is ſaid, that if a will had given ſuch power to certain perſons, naming them by their names; as to J. S. J. N. J. D. and one of them died, the ſurvivors could not ſell; for the words of the will in that caſe could not be ſatisfied. Co. Lit. 113.

If A. being ſeiſed in fee of a reverſion in twenty acres expectant upon an eſtate for life, and of other twenty in poſſeſſion, and for the performance of his own and his father's will, deviſes all his lands and tenements to his executors, and wills that they ſhould take the profits thereof for ten years, and that after the expiration thereof, the ſame ſhould be ſold by his executors, or by one of them, and dies, and after the tenant for life dies, and then one of the executors dies, the other two may ſell the twenty acres; for as they may perform his will, ſo they may ſell in order thereto. 2 And. 59. Owen 155. Moor 341. Cro. Eliz. 524. S. C.

The plaintiff having obtained a decree in Chancery for 1000*l.* the defendant procured the plaintiff's ſon to give him (the defendant) a releaſe, upon payment of one hundred marks in ready money, and upon giving ſecurity to pay one hundred more in a little time; all this was done, and the ſon gave the releaſe in his own name, when he had only a letter of attorney from his father to compound and agree the ſuit with the defendant; and this releaſe was adjudged to be void. Moor 818.

At common law, if one of the executors who were impowered to ſell lands refuſed, the others could not ſell; but now, by 21 H. 8. cap. 4. notwithſtanding part of thoſe, to whom ſuch power is deviſed, refuſed, the reſt may ſell; and ſo may ſuch of thoſe to whom land is deviſed to be ſold, who are willing, though the others refuſe, by a favourable conſtruction of that ſtatute; but they cannot in either caſe ſell it to the executor that refuſed; for he is privy to the will, and executor ſtill. Co. Lit. 113, 181.

My Lord Coke obſerves, that it is ſafeſt in giving ſuch power by deviſe, to limit it to the ſurvivors or ſurvivor, or thoſe that prove the will, &c. and when an eſtate is deviſed to executors to be ſold, it is adviſeable to appoint that the profits taken by them before the ſale be aſſets; for otherwiſe they ſhall not. Co. Lit. 113.

If a man deviſes lands to his executors to ſell, and dies, the executors may ſell part of the land at one time, and part at another time, as they can find purchaſers. Co. Lit. 113.

A. by indenture deviſed to B. habend' a die datus (which was the tenth of June) indentur' prædict' for his life, with a letter of attorney to make livery, the attorney makes livery the 23d of July following; and the livery was held to be void, becauſe the eſtate for life being by the indenture to commence the tenth of June, the attorney had no authority to change the commencement of the eſtate; and therefore having not purſued his authority, by not giving livery, to let the freehold commence according to the deed, what he did afterwards was without any authority, and conſequently void; but in this caſe, if the deed had not been delivered till after the day of the date, and the attorney had given livery at the time of the delivery of the deed, this had been a good livery, becauſe the deed of feoffment was to govern the livery, but the deed itſelf had no effect till the delivery; and therefore the attorney making the livery at the time the deed of feoffment began to operate, which was to govern it, ſeems to have well enough executed his authority. Cro. Jac. 153. Mo. pl. 876. Cro. Eliz. 873. Lit. Rep. 144.

If a letter of attorney be to make livery upon condition, ſo as to make a conditional feoffment, and the attorney delivers ſeiſin abſolutely, the livery is not good; becauſe the attorney had no authority to create an abſolute fee-ſimple; and therefore ſuch abſolute feoffment ſhall not bind the feoffor, becauſe he gave no ſuch authority. 2 Rol. Abr. 9.

But if the letter of attorney had been to make livery abſolutely, and the attorney had made it upon condition, this ſeems a good execution of his power, and the feoffment good; becauſe when the attorney had once delivered ſeiſin, he has fully executed his power; and the condition annexed to it, being without authority, is void; and therefore ſhall not deſtroy the operation of the livery. 2 Rol. Abr. 9.

Aſſumpſit, &c. in which the plaintiff declared, that in conſideration that he would procure T. S. then in priſon, to be diſcharged, the defendant promiſed to repay all ſuch ſums ſums of money as he (the plaintiff) ſhould diſburſe in that behalf, &c. the defendant confeſſed the promiſe, but pleaded, that before the plaintiff had laid out any money, he (the defendant) revoked his promiſe, and countermanded the plaintiff, that he ſhould not do any thing towards the diſcharge of the perſon; the plaintiff replied proteſtando, that the defendant did not countermand, pro placito he demurred; it was inſiſted for the defendant, that he might countermand the authority given by him to the plaintiff; for he who gave the authority is the ſole actor, and the other is at no prejudice, for he is no more than a ſervant to him who gave him the authority; but in a contract 'tis otherwiſe, for there both parties are actors. Sed per curiam, He cannot countermand it, for probably the plaintiff might have agreed with the gaoler, and made himſelf debtor by promiſe to him. 2 Rol. Rep. 21, 39.

If a warrant of attorney be given to make livery to one, and the attorney makes livery to two; or if the attorney had authority to make livery of Black-Acre, and he made livery of Black-Acre and White-Acre, though the attorney has in theſe caſes done more, yet there is no reaſon that ſhall vitiate what he has done purſuant to his power, ſince what he did beyond it is a perfect nullity and void. Perk. ſect. 189.

If a letter of attorney be given to two jointly to take livery, and this feoffor makes livery to one in the abſence of the other, in the name of both, this is void; becauſe they being appointed jointly to receive livery, and to be conſidered but as one. Co. Lit. 49. b. 2 Rol. Abr. 8.

But if a feoffment be made to A. and B. and the feoffor gives a letter of attorney to deliver ſeiſin, and J. S. gives livery to A. in the abſence of B. in the name of both, this is a good livery; for though the intire poſſeſſion be delivered to one only, yet they being jointenants by the deed of feoffment, ſuch livery to one makes no alteration or change in the poſſeſſion; becauſe if the livery had been made to both, each had been placed in the whole poſſeſſion; beſides that, every man being preſumed to accept a gift for his advantage, A. is looked upon as the attorney of B. to receive the poſſeſſion for him; and therefore the livery to A. enures to the benefit of B. till he diſagrees to it. Co. Lit. 49. 2 Rol. Abr. 8.

But if a letter of attorney be made to three conjunctim & diviſim, and two only make livery, this is not good, becauſe not purſuant to their authority; for the delegation was to them all three, or to each of them ſeparately; yet if the third was preſent at the time of the livery made by two, though he did not actually join with them in the act of livery, yet the livery is good; becauſe when they all three are upon the land for that purpoſe, and two make livery in preſence of the third, there is his concurrence to the act, though he did not join in it actually, ſince he did not diſſent to it. Dyer 62. 1 Rol. Abr. 329. Co. Lit. 181. 1 Rol. Rep. 299. Yelv. 26.

Deviſe to Bernard for life, and after his deceaſe to the iſſue of his body by a ſecond wife, and for default of ſuch iſſue, remainder over, provided, that Bernard may make a jointure upon ſuch ſecond wife for life; Bernard, during the life of his firſt wife, ſuffered a recovery to the uſe of himſelf and his heirs; then the wife died, and he married again, and covenanted to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of himſelf and his ſecond wife for their lives, remainder to the heirs of their bodies, &c. the queſtion was, that admitting Bernard had only an eſtate for life, (but he had an eſtate-tail) then it being forfeited by the recovery, whether his power to make a jointure did ſtill remain, and if it did, whether it was well executed? They who argued for the affirmative, did admit, that a power coupled with an intereſt in the ſame perſon, would be deſtroyed by a fine, feoffment, or recovery; becauſe ſuch power is to be executed upon his own eſtate, and with that he had parted, by levying a fine, &c. but in the principal caſe, the power was not to be executed out of the eſtate of Bernard; for it was to charge the reverſion by making a jointure, which is not to take place till after his eſtate for life is determined, and ſo 'tis collateral to his eſtate, and ſuch collateral powers are not deſtroyed by feoffments, fines, &c. but adjudged, that the power was deſtroyed by the recovery; otherwiſe the execution of it was well enough. 2 Lev. 58.

If A. be diſſeiſed of Black-Acre and White-Acre, and gives a letter of attorney to enter into both, and make livery, if the attorney enters into one acre only, and makes livery ſecundum formam chartæ, this is not good, becauſe the attorney has not purſued his authority; for the eſtate of the diſſeiſor cannot be defeated without an entry into both acres; and till the eſtate be deſeated, the attorney cannot execute his power in the manner it was delegated; and therefore what he did in this caſe was void. Co. Lit. 52. 2 Rol. Abr. 9.

If a letter of attorney be given to A. to make livery of lands already in leaſe, the attorney may enter upon the leſſee in order to make livery; becauſe, whilſt the leſſee continues in poſſeſſion, the attorney cannot deliver ſeiſin of it; and therefore to execute the power given him by the letter of attorney, it is neceſſary he ſhould have a power to enter upon the leſſee. Co. Lit. 52. Poph. 103. Dyer 131. a. 340. a.

If the King grants a warrant to four officers of the Exchequer, by which he authoriſes them, or any of them, to pay out of the King's treaſure, the coſts and expences of any man who ſhall be employed in the ſervice of the King; and two of the four give a warrant for the payment of a certain ſum to J. S. this is a good warrant, though neither all four nor one only did it. 11 Co. 92. 1 Rol. Abr. 328, 329.

So if a judgment be aſſigned to the King in ſatisfaction of a debt due to the King, with a proviſo, that if the barons of the Exchequer, or any two of them revoke it, that it ſhall be void; and after three of the barons revoke it (there being four in all) this is a good revocation. 5 Co. 91. 1 Rol. Abr. 328.

But if the words had been, that if the barons, or any two of them, jointly or ſeverally revoke it, &c. there three of them could not revoke it; for this is neither jointly nor ſeverally. 5 Co. 91. 1 Rol. Abr. 328.

But if a ſheriff makes a warrant to four or three, or a capias jointly or ſeverally to arreſt one, two of them may arreſt the party, for the greater expedition of juſtice. Co. Lit. 181. Palm. 52. 2 Rol. Rep. 137.

Where the mayor and commonalty of London had conſtituted J. S. their bailiff to receive their rents, and to make demand of them, and to make entry, ſuch general authority is not ſufficient to authorize a bailiff to take advantage, and demand a rent accrued due after the authority given; for it is a new right attached, and there ought to be a ſpecial authority for that purpoſe. Skin. 413.

If the lord gives licence to a copyholder for life, to leaſe the copyhold for five years, the copyholder may leaſe it for three years; for this is comprehended within the licence, inaſmuch as he hath given him licence to leaſe for more years. 1 Rol. Abr. 330.

So if the lord gives licence to a copyholder for life, to leaſe the copyhold for five years if the copyholder tamdiu vixerit, and he leaſes it for five years generally without limitation, this is a good execution, and purſuant to the licence; for the leaſe is determinable by his death, by a limitation in law; and therefore as much is implied by law, as if he had made an actual limitation. 1 Rol. Abr. 330, 331. Cro. Jac. 436. S. C.

3. Where an authority cannot be transferred, and when it ſhall be determined and revoked.

One who has an authority to do any act for another, muſt execute it himſelf, and cannot trrnsfer it to another; for this being a truſt and confidence repoſed in the party, cannot be aſſigned to a ſtranger whoſe ability and integrity were not ſo well thought of by him for whom the act was to be done; therefore an executor having authority to ſell, cannot ſell by attorney. 9 Co. 77. b. 1 Rol. Abr. 330.

So if a leſſee for life hath power to make leaſes, rendring the ancient rent, he cannot make them by letter of attorney. 2 Rol. Rep. 303.

If

If A. lends B. a horſe to ride to York, B. cannot let his man ride him; for the licence is a matter of pleaſure annexed to the perſon of B. and cannot be transferred; adjudged upon a demurrer, in an action of treſpaſs, for immoderately riding the plaintiff's mare; where the defendant pleaded, that the plaintiff licentiam eidem dedit equitare; and that the defendant and his ſervant alternatim had rid upon the ſaid mare. 1 Rol. Abr. 330. 1 Mod. 110.

The authority given by letter of attorney muſt be executed during the life of the perſon that gives it; becauſe the letter of attorney is to conſtitute the attorney my repreſentative for ſuch a purpoſe, and therefore can continue in force only during the life of me that am to be repreſented; and hence it is, that if J. S. make a letter of attorney to deliver ſeiſin after my death, it is void; becauſe he cannot deliver ſeiſin during my life; for that were plainly without any authority from me; nor can he do it after my death, for the former reaſon. 2 Rol. Abr. 9. Co. Lit. 52.

But if any corporation aggregate, as mayor and commonalty, or dean and chapter, make a feoffment and letter of attorney to deliver ſeiſin, this authority does not determine by the death of the mayor or dean, but the attorney may well execute the power after their death; becauſe the letter of attorney is an authority from the body aggregate, which ſubſiſts after the death of the mayor or dean, and therefore may be repreſented by their attorney; but if the dean or mayor be named by their own private name, and die before livery, or be removed, livery after ſeems not good. Co. Lit. 52. 2 Rol. Abr. 12.

If the leſſor by deed licenſes his leſſee for years or life, to alien, who is reſtrained by condition not to alien without licence, and the leſſor dies before the leſſee aliens, yet this is no countermand of the licence; for the licence exempts the leſſee out of the penalty of the condition, and it was executed on the part of the leſſor as much as it could be. Co. Lit. 52. b.

4. Where an authority muſt be ſtrictly purſued.

A commiſſion was directed to eight perſons by name, and ſeven of them only made the return; it was inſiſted, that it was good, and the Earl of Leiceſter's caſe in Plow. Com. 393. was cited to prove it; where a commiſſion was granted to fifteen perſons, to take an indictment, and authority was given to them, or four of them, or more, whereof two to be of the quorum, and the indictment was taken by eight of them, whereof two were of the quorum, and it was held good; but in the principal caſe it was adjudged, that the authority given to theſe eight perſons was joint, and not ſeveral, and ought ſtrictly to be purſued. 1 Bulſt. 107.

The huſband was attainted, and the King granted a commiſſion under the ſeal of the court of augmentations, to certain perſons to aſſign to the wife the third part of the lands of the huſband, by virtue of which the commiſſioners aſſigned her the third part of the rent of an houſe, which the King confirmed, and ſhe accepted; adjudged, that this aſſignment of dower was not good, becauſe the commiſſioners had not purſued their authority; for that was to aſſign lands, and they had aſſigned rents iſſuing out of the lands, and if ſo, then the confirmation made by the King is void. Dyer 263.

The defendant being a recuſant convict, departed above five miles from his habitation, againſt the ſtatute 1 Jac. cap. 1. he pleaded, that two juſtices gave him licence under their ſeals, to come to London for ſix months; it was objected, that he had not purſued the ſtatute, becauſe that directs the licence to be under the hands and ſeal, and with conſent of the biſhop, &c. Judgment againſt the defendant. 1 Rol. Rep. 108.

Conveyance, &c. was made to the uſe of T. P. for life of ſeveral manors, lands, &c. with a power to make leaſes of the premiſſes, or any part thereof, ſo that ſuch rent be reſerved, or more, upon every leaſe which had been before reſerved within the ſpace of two years; afterwards he made a leaſe of part of the lands, which had not been leaſed within two years before; adjudged a good leaſe, and that any rent might be reſerved upon it, becauſe he had a general power to make leaſes of all the premiſſes; and this reſtrictive clauſe ſhall not be applied to ſuch lands which were in leaſe for two years laſt, but to ſuch lands which were in leaſe within two years before. 2 Rol. Rep. 263.

In treſpaſs, the caſe was, Martin made a leaſe to Warren, excepting the trees, in which leaſe Warren covenanted, that Martin and his aſſigns ſhould have power to ſell the trees and root them up, he or they repairing the hedges where they ſtood; Martin ſold ſome of the trees to the defendant, who with his ſervants entred and cut them down, for which Warren the plaintiff brought treſpaſs; and upon demurrer it was objected, that the defendant did not ſhew, that he repaired the hedges when he cut down the trees; for this, being a qualified power, ought to be ſet forth at large, and that it was a power annexed to the reverſion, and not aſſignable to any other perſon: Sed per curiam, A bare power is not aſſignable; but here is an intereſt annexed to the power, viz. that Martin might ſever the trees from the reverſion; and where a power is coupled with an intereſt, 'tis aſſignable. 2 Mod. 317.

In replevin, &c. the caſe upon the pleading was, a fine was levied to the uſe of T. P. for life, remainder to his executors, &c. for eighty years, with power to him and his aſſigns, to make leaſes in poſſeſſion or reverſion for twenty-one years, reſerving the ancient rent, and determinable upon three lives; T. P. deviſed this term to J. N. and died; afterwards J. N. died, and ſo the term came to his executor, who aſſigned it to W. R. and that aſſignee made a leaſe of the lands, &c. and whether an aſſignee of an executor of an executor of the leſſee for life could execute this power, or not, was the queſtion; it was objected, that he could not, becauſe this power was collateral to the eſtate, and therefore could not run with the land; but adjudged, that this power was coupled with an intereſt, and annexed to the eſtate; and that the tenant for life having deviſed the term, his deviſee was an aſſignee, and the power was in him, and conſequently it muſt be in his executor, and by the ſame reaſon in the aſſignee of the executor of that executor. 1 Vent. 338, 339.

Adjudged, where a man hath power to charge lands with a ſum not exceeding 3000 l. he may charge it with that ſum, and the intereſt, becauſe the ſum carries intereſt of courſe, for none will lend it without intereſt. 2 Salk. 538.

Autumn, Is the decline of the ſummer. Some computed the years by autumns; but the Engliſh-Saxons by winters. Tacitus ſays, that the ancient Germans knew the other diviſions of the year, but did not know what was meant by autumn. Lindewood tells us when the ſeveral ſeaſons of the year begin, in theſe lines,

Dat Clemens Hiemem, dat Petrus ver Cathedratus, Æſtuat Urbanus, autumnat Bartholomæus.

Autumnalia, Thoſe fruits of the earth which are ripe in autumn or harveſt.

Auxilium ad filium militem faciendum et filiam maritandam, A writ formerly directed to the ſheriff of every county where the King or other lord had any tenements, to levy of them an aid towards the knighting of a ſon, and the marrying of a daughter. F. N. B. 82. See Aid.

Bachelor, (Baccalaureus, from the Fr. bachelier, viz. tyro, a learner:) In the univerſities there are bachelors of arts &c. which is the firſt degree taken by ſtudents before they come to greater dignity; and thoſe that are called bachelors of the companies of London, are ſuch of each company, as are ſpringing towards the eſtate of thoſe that are employed in council, but as yet are inferiors; for every of the twelve companies conſiſts of a maſter, two wardens, the livery, (which are aſſiſtants in matters of council, or ſuch as the aſſiſtants are choſen out of) and the bachelors. The word bachelor is uſed 13 R. 2. and ſignifies the ſame with knight-bachelor. By 3 Ed. 4. c. 5. it is a knight, and not a knight banneret, or knight of the bath. Anno 28 Ed. 3. a petition was recorded in the tower, beginning thus: A noſtre ſeigneur le roy monſtrant votre ſimple bachelor, Johan de Bures, &c. Bachelor was anciently attributed to the admiral of England, if he were under a baron. In Pat. 8 R. 2. we read of a baccalarius regis: and touching the farther etymology of this word, Baccalaurei (teſte Renano) a bacillo nominati ſunt, quia primi ſtudii authoritatem quæ per exhibitionem baculi concedebatur jam conſecuti fuiſſent, &c.

Badger, (from the Fr. bagage, a bundel, and thence is derived bagagier, a carrier of goods) ſignifies with us one that buys corn or victuals in one place, and carries them to another to ſell and make profit by them: and ſuch a one is exempted in the ſtat. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. cap. 14. from the puniſhment of an ingroſſer within that ſtatute. But by 5 Eliz. c. 12. badgers are to be licenſed by the juſtices of peace, in the ſeſſions; whoſe licences will be in force for one year, and no longer; and the perſons to whom granted muſt enter into recognizance, that they will not by colour of their licences foreſtall, or do any thing contrary to the ſtatutes made againſt foreſtallers, ingroſſers, and regrators. If any perſon ſhall act as a badger without licence, he is to forfeit 5*l.* one moiety to the King, and the other to the proſecutor, leviable by warrant from juſtices of peace, &c.

Bail, Ballium, (from the French bailler, tradere, to deliver) Is uſed in our common law for the freeing or ſetting at liberty of one arreſted or impriſoned upon any action, either civil or criminal, on ſurety taken for his appearance at a day and place certain. Bract. lib. 3. tract. 2. c. 8. num. 8 & 9. The reaſon why it is called bail, is becauſe by this means the party reſtrained is delivered into the hands of thoſe that bind themſelves for his forthcoming, in order to a ſafe keeping or protection from priſon: And the end of bail is to ſatisfy the condemnation and coſts, or render the defendant to priſon. Cowell.

Bail in civil cauſes. Under this head is conſidered,

1. Who are authorized to take bail.

2. In what actions common or ſpecial bail is required.

3. Of putting in bail.

4. Proceedings againſt the bail, and what they may plead in their diſcharge.

1. Who are authorized to take bail.

When the ſheriff arreſts any one, he is not only authorized, but obliged to take bail, otherwiſe an action on the caſe lies againſt him.

This the ſheriff is obliged to by the following act:

Stat. 23 Hen. 6. c. 9. "The king conſidering the great perjury, extortion, and oppreſſion which be and have been in this realm by his ſheriffs, under ſheriffs, and their clerks, coroners, ſtewards of franchiſes, bailiffs and keepers of priſons, and other officers in divers counties of this realm, hath ordained by authority aforeſaid, in eſchewing of all ſuch extortion, perjury, and oppreſſion, that no ſheriff ſhall let to farm, in any manner, his county, nor any of his bailiwicks, hundreds, nor wapentakes; nor that the ſaid ſheriffs, under ſheriffs, bailiffs of franchiſes, nor any other bailiff, ſhall return, upon any writ or precept to them directed to be returned, any inqueſts in any panel thereupon to be made, any bailiffs, officers, or ſervants to any of the officers aforeſaid, in any panel by them ſo to be made; nor that any of the ſaid officers and miniſters, by occaſion or under colour of their office, ſhall take any other thing by them, nor by any other perſon to their uſe, profit, or avail, of any perſon by them or any of them to be arreſted or attached, nor of none other for them, for the omitting of any arreſt or attachment to be made by their body; or of any perſon by them or any of them, by force or colour of their office, arreſted or attached, for fine, fee, ſuit of priſon, mainprize, letting to bail, or ſhewing any eaſe or favour to any ſuch perſon ſo arreſted, or to be arreſted, for their reward or profit, but ſuch as follow; that is to ſay, for the ſheriff 20*d.* the bailiff which maketh the arreſt or attachment, fourpence, and the gaoler, if the priſoner be committed to his ward, fourpence: and that the ſheriff, under ſheriff, ſheriff's clerk, ſteward or bailiff of franchiſes, ſervant of bailiff or coroner, ſhall not take any thing by colour of his office, by him nor by any other perſon to his uſe, of any perſon for the making of any return or panel, and for the copy of any panel but fourpence. And the ſaid ſheriffs, and all other officers and miniſters aforeſaid, ſhall let out of priſon all manner of perſons by them or any of them arreſted, or being in their cuſtody, by force of any writ, bill, or warrant in any action perſonal, or by cauſe of indictment of treſpaſs, upon reaſonable ſureties of ſufficient perſons having ſufficient within the counties where ſuch perſons be ſo let to bail or mainprize, to keep their days in ſuch place as the ſaid writs, bills, or warrants ſhall require. Such perſon or perſons which be or ſhall be in their ward by condemnation, execution, capias utlagat', or excommunicatum, ſurety of the peace; and all ſuch perſons which be or ſhall be committed to ward by ſpecial commandment of any juſtice, and vagabonds refuſing to ſerve according to the form of the ſtatute of labourers only excepted. And that no ſheriff, nor any of the officers or miniſters aforeſaid, ſhall take or cauſe to be taken, or make any obligation for any cauſe aforeſaid, or by colour of their office, but only to themſelves, of any perſon, nor by any perſon which ſhall be in their ward by the courſe of the law, but by the name of their office and upon condition written, that the ſaid priſoners ſhall appear at the day contained in the ſaid writ, bill, or warrant, and in ſuch places as the ſaid writs, bills, or warrants ſhall require. And if any of the ſaid ſheriffs, or other officers or miniſters aforeſaid, take any obligation in other form by colour of their offices, that it ſhall be void; and that he ſhall take no more for the making of any ſuch obligation, warrant, or precept by them to be made, but fourpence. And alſo that every of the ſaid ſheriffs ſhall make yearly a deputy in the King's courts of his Chancery, the King's Bench, the Common Pleas, and in the Exchequer, of record, before that they ſhall return any writs, to receive all manner of writs and warrants to be delivered to them: and that all ſheriffs, under ſheriffs, clerks, bailiffs, and gaolers, coroners, ſtewards, bailiffs of franchiſes, or any other officers or miniſters, which do contrary to this ordinance in any point of the ſame, ſhall loſe to the party in this behalf indamaged or grieved, his treble damages; and ſhall forfeit the ſum of 10*l.* at every time that they or any of them do the contrary thereof in any point of the ſame; whereof the King ſhall have the one half, to be employed to the uſe of his houſe, and in no otherwiſe, and the party that will ſue, the other half. And that the juſtices of aſſiſes in their ſeſſions, juſtices of the one bench and the other, and juſtices of peace in their county, ſhall have power to enquire, hear, and determine of office without ſpecial commiſſion, of and upon all them that do contrary to theſe ordinances in any article or point of the ſame. And if the ſaid ſheriffs return upon any perſon cepi corpus, or reddidit ſe, that they ſhall be chargeable to have the bodies of the ſaid perſons at the days of the returns of the ſaid writs, bills, or warrants, in ſuch form as they were before the making of this act.

"Provided always, that the warden of the King's gaol of the Fleet, and the King's palace at Weſtminſter for the time being, ſhall not be indamaged nor prejudiced by this ordinance in the duty of his office."

The ſheriff took a bond of the defendant being in cuſtody to appear on ſuch a day in B. R. and alſo adtunc & ibidem ad reſpondendum the plaintiff in placito tranſgreſſionis, &c. It was objected, that the ſtatute 23 Hen. 6. requires only a bond for appearance, and not to anſwer the plaintiff in a plea of treſpaſs, which is another thing, and therefore the bond muſt be void; but adjudged that the bond was good, for there was nothing in it but what was compriſed in the writ; for that was to command the ſheriff quod habeat corpus of the defendant, &c. ſuch a day ad reſpondendum to the plaintiff. Godb. 136.

The condition of a bond to the ſheriff, on arreſt on a latitat was, that if the defendant perſonally appear in B. R. at Weſtminſter, and there to anſwer, &c. it was moved, that this differed from the form in the ſtatute, and therefore void; but as to the word (perſonally) the juſtices held it ſurpluſage, and well enough, notwithſtanding that, becauſe as the caſe is, the appearance of the defendant ouht to be in perſon upon a latitat, for he is ſuppoſed to be in cuſtodia mareſchalli; and ſo it has been adgudged in C. B. where the appearance of the party arreſted is de jure perſonal, &c. contra where perſonal appearance is not requiſite. And as to the other words (there to anſwer,) Wray put a difference, that in ſuch caſe the bond is well enough; for it is in effect only, that he ſhall appear eo animo ut reſpondeat; but if the words had been (appear and anſwer) it is a void condition; for it may be the plaintiff will never declare againſt him; but Gawdy and Ayliff J. e contra, and held the bond void by reaſon of the words aforeſaid, but would not give judgment againſt the plaintiff; but ex gratia curiæ ſuffer'd him to diſcontinue. 2 Lev. 78.

A man was bound to his creditor, who was not ſheriff nor ſheriff's officer, to appear at his ſuit in B. R. on ſuch a day, and then and there make anſwer, &c. but did not appear: all the judges agreed clearly, that this bond was not within the ſtatute 23 Hen. 6. and gave judgment for the plaintiff accordingly. Goldſb. 66.

Debt on a bond to a ſheriff, that if the defendant did perſonally appear in B. R. &c. that then, &c. the defendant dant pleaded, that he was taken by a latitat by the plaintiff (ſheriff,) who took this obligation for his deliverance, and that the obligation was not according to the ſtatute. All the juſtices, except Anderſon (who was abſent) held, that if it were in ſuch an action where a man may appear by attorney, it is void. At another day it was held by three judges againſt Anderſon Ch. J. that a man ought to appear in perſon upon a latitat. Ow. 90.

An officer by proceſs out of the county-court attached the goods of the defendant to anſwer a plaint levied there for a debt; K. redelivered the goods, and took the defendant's bond to appear at the day, or otherwiſe to deliver the goods back again. It was agreed per tot. cur. that this was out of the ſtatute of 23 H. 6. becauſe that relates only to thoſe whoſe bodies are taken and impriſon'd, and not where their goods are attach'd; and judgment accordingly. And. 267.

In debt upon bond, the defendant pleaded that the plaintiff was ſheriff, and took the bond upon arreſt for the inlargement of the priſoner, and that where the ſtatute appoints the ſheriff to take bonds of perſons ſufficient, the defendant ſaid that himſelf was not ſufficient, becauſe no freeholder, and demanded judgment of the obligation; upon demurrer the plea was held ill, becauſe the ſheriff is the judge of the ſufficiency, and inſufficiency is to his own damage only, he being to be amerced for not bringing in the body, and has no remedy beſides the bond. Mo. 636.

The ſheriff took a bond to appear at Weſtminſter; the term was adjourned to St. Alban's, and the defendant appear'd there; the bond is not forfeited; but Popham Ch. J. was of opinion, that the bond was void, becauſe of the word (Weſtminſter) in the condition; for there is no ſuch name in the writ for appearance. Mo. 430.

A ſheriff brought debt upon bond conditioned, that if H. L. ſhould perſonally appear before the Queen's Majeſty and her council of her court of requeſts, &c. forthwith to anſwer all contempts as ſhall be then laid to his charge; that then, &c. the defendant pleaded the ſtatute 23 Hen. 6. and that the ſheriff, colore præcepti under the ſeal of the Queen of the court of requeſts, took and impriſon'd the ſaid H. L. and detained him till the defendant and the ſaid H. L. became bound as aforeſaid: and upon demurrer it was adjudged for the defendant, becauſe the bond is void by that ſtatute. 2 And. 122.

In caſe the plaintiff declared that he ſued forth a latitat and delivered it to the ſheriff to arreſt J. S. and acquainted the ſheriff of his cauſe of action, and that he intended to declare in debt, and that he did arreſt him, and afterwards let him go abſque aliqua ſecuritate inventa; and at the day returned cepi corpus & paratum habeo, &c. which was falſe, &c. the defendant pleaded, that J. S. being arreſted, put in ſureties for his appearance J. N. and J. D. two ſufficient perſons in the county, who were bound to him in 40*l.* &c. and pleaded the ſtatute, and that by reaſon thereof he let him at large, abſque hoc that he let him at large without any ſecurity found, prout &c. adjudged that the traverſe was good, and that the ſtatute commands him to let the priſoner go upon bail, and that he is compelled to take bail, but their ſufficiency is left to his diſcretion; and tho' the return was falſe, viz. paratum habeo, when he was at large, yet that is but a contempt to the court, and finable; but the party ſhall take no advantage of ſuch return. Cro. E. 624.

Debt upon bond of 40*l.* the defendant pleaded the ſtatute 23 H. 6. that he was arreſted at the ſuit of J. S. and that he together with one M. gave this bond for his appearance, when neither of them had any thing in the county, or were inhabitants there, and ſo the bond was void; but all the court held that it was good, for the ſtatute doth not make any bonds void, but thoſe which oppreſs the people, and if the ſheriff takes bond with one ſurety, it is good enough. Cro. Eliz. 852.

In an action of debt upon an obligation dated 25th of Sept. the defendant pleads that a ca. ſa. was awarded againſt B. who was taken upon it the 30th of Sept. and that obligation was made for the enlargement of B. The plaintiff demurred, and had judgment, becauſe it appears that the obligation was made before the arreſt, and therefore it could not be avoided by 23 Hen. 6. cap. 10. but he ought to have pleaded that with a primo deliberat' of the arreſt; and it was agreed by Yelverton and Fenner, that if a capias be awarded againſt B. and before the arreſt the ſheriff takes an obligation of him for his enlargement when he ſhall be arreſted, that by ſpecial pleading it may be avoided by 23 H. 6. Noy 43.

A capias was directed to the ſheriff to arreſt G. R. to anſwer the plaintiff in placito debiti of 300*l.* the condition of the bond of appearance was to anſwer the plaintiff in placito debiti only, (leaving out the 300*l.*) upon an action of debt brought by the ſheriff on this bond, and a demurer, it was adjudged, that the bond and condition was good, for the ſtatute 23 Hen. 6. does not preſcribe any ſtrict form, but that it ought to be made to the ſheriff by his name of office, and to expreſs the day and place of appearance, and tho' it vary in other circumſtances, it is not material; neither doth the ſtatute reſtrain him to any ſum or ſecurity, tho' generally 40*l.* hath been held ſufficient to excuſe him for an eſcape, yet that is left to his diſcretion. Cro. Jac. 286.

Upon a fieri facias the ſheriff took a bond to pay the money in court at the return of the writ, and this was adjudged good, for the ſtatute extends only to ſuch bonds, which are made when the defendant is in cuſtody. 10 Rep. 99.

A bond was made to Neale who was ſheriff of Warwickſhire, and it was vicecomiti com. prædict', and Warwick was in the margin; per Dodderidge, this was held no good bond, for he ought to be named ſheriff, and of that county. 2 Rol. Rep. 365.

But though the ſheriff is obliged to take bail, yet if the plaintiff diſlikes the ſecurity, and does not take an aſſignment of the bail-bond, he may have him brought up; for the ſheriff having arreſted the party, muſt return a cepi corpus, on which return it is a breach of duty in him not to bring him up, for which the court amerces him as one of their officers. 1 Vent. 85. 1 Mod. 33, 57, 244.

But if the writ be not returned, and the court makes an order that the ſheriff ſhall return his writ in four days, as is uſual, there the diſobedience is to the pronounced order of the court, and conſequently a contempt of the court, for which an attachment lies.

If the ſheriff returns cepi on a meſne proceſs, & paratum habeo, he ſhall be only amerced, if he does not bring in the body, tho' he ſhall be attached if he does not return his writ; and the reaſon is, becauſe the ſheriff is bound to bail the party; and therefore if the ſheriff is miſtaken in his ſureties, he is not to ſuffer in his liberty; and the returning his writ is in his own power; but it may not be in his power to bring in the body which he was obliged to bail. 1 Rol. Abr. 807, 808. Cro. Eliz. 824, 852. Noy 39.

And if the plaintiff takes an aſſignment of the bail-bond, the ſheriff is not amerciable; for, by accepting of the bond, the plaintiff has waived the benefit of the amercement, and may now ſue it in his own name; though formerly he could ſue in the ſheriff's name; and if the ſheriff releaſed the action, he had his remedy in a court of equity. 1 Salk. 99. 6 Mod. 122.

But now by 4 & 5 Ann. for amendment of the law, it is enacted, "That if any perſon ſhall be arreſted by any writ, bill, or proceſs, out of any of her majeſty's courts of record at Weſtminſter, at the ſuit of any common perſon, and the ſheriff or other officer takes bail from ſuch perſon againſt whom ſuch proceſs is, the ſheriff or officer, at the requeſt and coſts of the plaintiff in ſuch action or ſuit, or his lawful attorney, ſhall aſſign to the plaintiff in ſuch action, the bail-bond or other ſecurity taken from ſuch bail, by indorſing the ſame, and atteſting it under his hand and ſeal, in the preſence of two or more credible witneſſes, which may be done without any ſtamp, provided the aſſignment ſo endorſed be duly ſtamped before any action be brought thereon; and if the ſaid bail-bond, or other ſecurity taken for bail, be forfeited, the plaintiff in ſuch action, after ſuch aſſignment made, may bring an action and ſuit thereupon, in his own name; and the court where the action is brought may, by rule or rules of the court, give ſuch relief to the plaintiff and defendant in the original action, and to the bail upon the

ſaid bond or other ſecurity taken from ſuch bail, as is agreeable to juſtice and reaſon; and that ſuch rule or rules of the ſaid court ſhall have the nature and effect of a defeaſance to ſuch bail-bond or other ſecurity for bail."

If the plaintiff accepts of an aſſignment of the bail-bond, the defendant may put in the ſame bail to the action that were bail to the writ; and the plaintiff cannot except againſt them. See 1 Salk. 97, 99. Fareſt. 62, 117.

By the 4 W. & M. cap. 4. "The judges in each court, or any two of them, whereof the chief to be one, may, by commiſſion under the ſeals of their reſpective courts, appoint commiſſioners to take recognizances of bail in ſuits depending before them, and upon affidavit of the true taking of them, ſuch recognizances ſhall be as effectual as if they were taken before themſelves; the cognizers, unleſs they live in London or Weſtminſter, or within ten miles, may juſtify before the commiſſioners in the country."

Before this ſtatute, bail was always taken de bene eſſe before a judge, as it may, and muſt be ſtill, if the cognizors live within ten miles of London or Weſtminſter; the commiſſioners are obliged by rule of court to keep a book, wherein are the names of the plaintiff and defendant, and bail, and the perſon who tranſmits the ſame, and who makes affidavit that the recognizance was duly acknowledged in his preſence; on ſuch affidavit, the judges make a conditional allocatur, and the bail are to ſtand abſolute, unleſs the plaintiff except againſt them within twenty days; and if he except the bail may juſtify by affidavit taken before the commiſſioners in the country. 1 New Abr. 207.

If one is arreſted in London by a ſerjeant of the mace, upon a plaint of debt entered in any of the counters, the ſerjeant cannot take bail, but the judge in court muſt. Cro. Car. 196. 1 Rol. Abr. 561. S. C. 1 Jones 226. S. C.

2. In what actions ſpecial or common bail are required.

It muſt be obſerved, that regularly after judgment, no bail is to be taken; for the plaintiff having aſcertained his right, and proved his demand, the defendant muſt pay the condemnation-money; for which purpoſe a writ of execution iſſues, to which the ſheriff can take no bail. 1 New Abr. 208.

But if one in execution brings an attaint, he may have a writ to the juſtices, commanding them to let him to mainprize. F. N. B. 106. 2 Rol. Abr. 112.

If an audita querela is founded upon a releaſe or record, the plaintiff may be bailed. Dyer 365. 1 Rol. Rep. 132.

But if upon a ſurmiſe of a matter of fact only, it is otherwiſe. 1 Rol. Rep. 132.

If one condemned by falſe verdict in debt or damages ſues an attaint, he ſhall have a ſpecial writ to bail him, upon ſureties taken, that if the attaint paſs againſt him he ſhall render himſelf to priſon, or ſatisfy the debt. F. N. B. 206.

One taken on an attachment iſſued out of Chancery is not bailable, and ſuch bond is void; per tot. cur. clearly. 3 Lev. 208.

If an audita querela be grounded on a releaſe or record, the party may be bailed; but not on a ſurmiſe of a matter in fact, as of an arbitrament or uſury; per Coke Ch. J. Rol. Rep. 133.

A perſon taken in withernam upon a homine replegiando, upon pleading non cepit, may be bailed. 2 Salk. 582.

One taken in execution is not bailable by law, unleſs an audita querela be brought, (Hill. 21 Car. B. R.) for bail is put in to ſecure the plaintiff, that the defendant ſhall perform the judgment of the court; aud now the law hath determined that matter; and what remains now is only for the defendant to perform the judgment, and for the not performing it he lies in execution. Lil. P. R. 172.

When the action is only for damages, there the party is not held to bail, unleſs in mayhem, or ſome notorious battery; and the reaſon is, there is no certain ſum for which the caution can be aſcertained; but in mayhem, and where by the injury it is apparent that the damage will exceed the ſum of 10*l.* there the judge may by ſpecial writ hold to bail. Gilb. H. C. B. 30.

On a bottomry bond for payment of money inter alia, the court inclined to think the defendant ſhould give bail. Rep. of Pract. in C. B. 34.

The defendant had been arreſted and held to ſpecial bail, and afterwards render'd in diſcharge of his bail, and the plaintiff proceeded againſt the defendant as a priſoner, and recovered judgment. In action of debt brought upon that judgment, and the former bail being vacated by the render, the court held that the plaintiff might well hold the defendant to bail in this action, he not now having bail in the firſt action. Rep. of Pract. in C. B. 77.

Motion in the treaſury for bail in an action for meſne profits, after a recovery in ejectment, upon the leſſor of the plaintiff's affidavit, that the meſne profits amounted to 89*l.* bail was order'd for 80*l.* this is a cauſe of action which is bailable or not, at the diſcretion of the court or a judge. Barnes's Notes in C. B. 87.

If in an homine replegiando an elongatus is returned, and the defendant taken upon a withernam, though this is no execution, yet the defendant ſhall not be bailed, unleſs he will confeſs the taking and having the party in cuſtody. Raym. 475. See 3 Mod. 121. 1 Sid. 210.

But if in an action for a falſe return of an elongatus againſt the ſheriff, it is found for the plaintiff, he may be bailed. Raym. 475.

The old rule in the compleat attorney is, that if the defendant be arreſted by meſne proceſs, as capias, alias or pluries, and the plaintiff holdeth him not ſufficient to anſwer to debt or damages contained in the writ, the ſame amounting to 20*l.* or upwards; that in this caſe the plaintiff, upon the return of the writ, by entring a ne recipiatur with philacer, out of whoſe office the capias did iſſue, may have ſpecial bail to be put in to his action, which the defendant muſt put in before ſome judge of the court where the cauſe depends, who will accept of ſuch bail as the validity or weight of the cauſe doth require, or in his diſcretion ſhall be thought fit. 1 New Abr. 280. Comp. Attor. printed in 1667.

This was the rule that both the courts of King's Bench and Common Pleas went by, but was afterwards ſunk to 10*l.* which has been long the ſtanding rule of the courts. 1 New Abr. 209.

And now by the 12 Geo. 1. cap. 39. it is enacted, that where the cauſe of action ſhall not amount to the ſum of 10*l.* in a ſuperior court, or 40*s.* in an inferior court, the plaintiff ſhall only ſerve the defendant with a copy of the proceſs, and ſhall not arreſt his perſon; and that in all caſes where the plaintiff's cauſe of action ſhall amount to the above ſum or upwards, affidavit ſhall be made and filed of ſuch cauſe of action, and the ſum or ſums ſpecified in ſuch affidavit ſhall be indorſed on the back of ſuch writ or proceſs; for which ſum or ſums ſo endorſed, the ſheriff, or other officer, ſhall take bail, and for no more.

In an attachment of privilege, which is a capias in the firſt proceſs, the defendant is held to bail for any ſum though never ſo ſmall; for this being a capias in the firſt proceſs, without ſummons, does not ariſe from a ſuſpicion of a nihil returned, but ariſes from a debt due to the officers of the court, by the acts of the court; and therefore another officer ought not to appear without ſeeing a ſecurity given for ſuch debt. 1 Sid. 63.

In an action brought upon the ſtatute 13 Eliz. of fraudulent conveyances, a rule was ſhewn by the juſtices that it was the practice in B. R. that in all actions brought upon penal ſtatutes the defendant ſhall only put in common bail. Yel. 53.

After judgment for the plaintiff it was aſſigned for error, that no bail was entered for the defendant. It was ſhewn to the court, that the attorney was dead, but had been paid his fees for entring it, and that this appeared by his own book; and the plaintiff prayed that the bail might be entered, and ſo it was by order of the court in this caſe, and between other parties. Rol. Rep. 372.

In treſpaſs againſt A. and B. verdict was for the defendants. It was moved in arreſt, for that no bail was entered for B. for every defendant is ſuppoſed to be in cuſtodia cuſtodia mareſchalli; and in this caſe the venire facias was to try the iſſue between the plaintiff and the defendants, whereas B. was no party in court, therefore he cannot have judgment, and it appearing that there was no fraud in the plaintiff, the judgment for this reaſon was arreſted; but if B. had appeared at the ſuit of any other perſon in the ſame term, it had been ſufficient. Poph. 145.

An executor, though ſued by an attorney of B. R. ſhall not be compelled to put in ſpecial bail, notwithſtanding his privilege as to other perſons ſued by him; and upon ſearch no precedent could be found where ſuch pretended privilege had prevailed. 3 Bulſt. 316, 317.

If, where ſpecial bail is required, the plaintiff's attorney doth (before any bail put in) deliver a declaration to the defendant's attorney, unleſs it be only to ſhew ſuch a cauſe of action as requires bail, he ſhall not afterwards compel the defendant to put in good bail, but common bail ſhall ſerve. Lil. P. R. 86.

After the roll is marked to have ſpecial bail, common bail ought not to be filed; but if the roll be not marked for ſpecial bail, nor the cauſe of action expreſſed in the writ, common bail may be entered: (Hill. 22 Car. B. R.) for nothing appears to the court that ſpecial was required, and then common bail is to be filed of courſe. Lil. P. R. 174.

In caſe againſt baron and feme, the feme appeared, but the baron would not; and bail being inſiſted upon, it was prayed, that ſhe might be delivered on common bail; but Glyn, Ch. J. ſaid, that if there be cauſe to have ſpecial bail, ſhe muſt lie in priſon till the huſband appears, and puts in bail for her; for ſhe cannot put in bail for herſelf, ſhe being covert baron. Sty. 475.

An executor of an executor brought debt upon bond for 2000*l.* and upon motion, that the plaintiff might accept common bail, becauſe the bond was only for performance of covenants, the court ordered that bail ſhould be accepted according to the breach aſſigned, and not according to the penalty. It was held in this caſe, that where execntors are defendants they need not find ſpecial bail becauſe in auter droit. Sid. 63.

In ſcand. magnatum, the court upon motion ordered ſpecial bail to be given. Raym. 74.

The defendant ſhipped goods at Braſil, without paying the cuſtoms, but promiſed to pay them at Liſbon, but came to London directly without touching at Liſbon, and offering to ſell the goods here, the Portugal ambaſſador complained to the privy council, and he ſtill refuſing to pay them, they committed him; and being brought by a habeas corpus, he moved to be bailed, but it was oppoſed, becauſe it might cauſe a breach between the two crowns; but the court inclined that he ſhould be bailed, and if the matter could be proved, he might be indicted, but they prayed time to inſpect the return before the filing it, and therefore he was remanded. Sid. 143.

Caſe for affirming that he was of full age, and by that means had borrowed large ſums on mortgages, when in facto he was under age; it was moved, that he might put in ſpecial bail, but denied; for ſpecial bail ſhall not be given by virtue of the ſtatute of 13 Car. 2. cap. 2. but where it was required to be given by the rules of the court, and the ac-etiam will not compel ſpecial bail, unleſs the cauſe expreſsly appears to be for real value, as debt, trover, &c. but where ſpecial damages may ariſe as in this caſe or other caſes, by reaſon of a ſpecial declaration, ſpecial bail ſhall not be required. Sid. 183.

On motion to have a ſpecial latitat, viz. with an ac-etiam, where the party intended to declare in treſpaſs only, and this was upon a ſurmiſe that there was a great mayhem, the court ſaid, that upon affidavit thereof they would make one with an ac-etiam, and ſo there ſhall be ſpecial bail. Sid. 276.

In an action upon a replevin bond, common bail ſhall be filed. 1 Salk. 99.

Action againſt maſter of a ſhip for imbeziling goods he had on board, and he was held to ſpecial bail; but if it were for negligent keeping, common bail would have done; per Holt. 12 Mod. 251.

Defendant ſhewed the compoſition act, and that the plaintiff's debt, according to the compoſition he had made with the reſt of his creditors, was under 10*l.* and that the plaintiff would be bound, though a non ſubſcriber; yet the defendant was held to ſpecial bail, becauſe non conſtat that the plaintiff will be bound, for he may deny the abſconding, &c. ſo that this would be to determine the merits of the cauſe, viz. that he was bound by the compoſition; aliter, if the plaintiff had ſubſcribed, or had been ſummoned before a judge, and the matter had received a determination. 1 Salk. 99.

Where the action is only for damages, there regularly the party is not to be held to ſpecial bail; for there is no certain ſum for which bail can be aſcertained. 1 New Abr. 209.

But in actions of aſſault and battery, ſcandalum magnatum, and for other perſonal wrongs, in which it is apparent the damages will exceed the ſum of 10*l.* the court, or any judge of the court, may and do, on good cauſe ſhewn, give leave to the plaintiff to ſue out a writ with the clauſe of ac-etiam billæ, to hold the defendant to ſpecial bail. 1 Sid. 307. 1 Roll. Abr. 335. 1 Lev. 39. 1 Brownl. 90. 1 Sid. 183. Raym. 74.

So upon an affidavit of a great mayhem, and that he intended to declare in treſpaſs, the court ordered a ſpecial latitat, with an ac-etiam, and that ſo there ſhould be ſpecial bail. 1 Sid. 276.

In debt upon a bond, for performance of covenants, the court will order bail according to the breaches aſſigned. 1 Sid. 63.

In an action of debt on a bond, though the defendant ſays it was by dureſs, or on an uſurious contract, yet there ſhall be ſpecial bail; for the merits of the cauſe ſhall not be determined on motion; neither will the court put a ſlur upon the plaintiff's cauſe, which ought to come down fairly to trial, without prejudice. 1 Salk. 100.

So in an action for money won at play, if the contract be lawful, as being under 100*l.* the defendant muſt put in ſpecial bail. 1 Salk. 100.

On a penal ſtatute the defendant is not held to bail, becauſe the penalty on a ſtatute is in the nature of a fine or amercement ſet on the party, for an offence committed, and therefore no perſon ought to ſuffer any inconvenience by reaſon of ſuch law, till he is convicted of the offence. Yel. 53. 2 Brownl. 293.

An heir, executor or adminſtrator, ſhall not be held to ſpecial bail; for the demand is not on the perſons, but on the aſſets of the deceaſed; and it would be unreaſonable to ſubject their perſons to an execution for the debt of another. 2 Brownl. 293. 3 Bulſt. 316.

So if there be a judgment againſt an executor for the debt de bonis teſtatoris, and for the damages only de bonis propriis; he may bring error, and have a ſuperſedeas, without giving ſureties according to 3 Jac. 1. c. 8. for though the words of the ſtatute are general, yet it muſt be intended where judgment is againſt the defendant himſelf, upon his own bond, or where the judgment is general againſt the executors; for it would be unreaſonable they ſhould find ſureties to pay the whole out of their own eſtate. Cro. Jac. 352. Cro. Car. 39. Lit. Rep. 2, 3.

In an action for money won at play, Gould and Turton were for denying special bail, for since the plaintiff played upon a trick they would not help his security; but per Holt, the practice has been otherwise, and the contract if under 100*l.* is lawful, and the plaintiff ventured his money against it, and to say they were not to better his security, would as well prove there should be no bail in an indebitatus assumpsit, &c. 1 Salk. 100.

One summoned before a judge, to shew cause why common bail should not be taken, did not come, whereupon a day was given him for to come, or else that common bail should be filed; he comes before the day, and consents to common bail, which was accordingly filed; and at the day came to make oath of a debt above 10*l.* but per cur. he ought not to be received, bail being regularly filed. 12 Mod. 324.

It was moved to have leave for the charging of M. being a prisoner in Newgate, with a scandalum magnatum and ac-etiam billæ of 100*l.* in order to hold him to special bail, for saying the D. of S. was a cheat, and has cheated the king and the army; Holt said, this being a poor man, to charge him thus will be a perpetual imprisonment to him, and special bail has been often demanded in these actions, yet it has been frequently denied; but he was ordered to find two that would swear themselves worth 25*l.* each, and himself to be bound in 100*l.* 12 Mod. 420.

It has been held once, that if the plaintiff had been non-prossed in a former action, that if he began again he should have but common bail; but this has not been abided by; per cur'. 12 Mod. 501.

If upon examination before a judge one do not make out a good cause of action, common bail shall be ordered; per Holt, Ch. J. 12 Mod. 526.

If one has several causes of action, each whereof is too small for special bail, he cannot join them to inforce special bail; per cur'. 12 Mod. 527. Per Holt, Ch. J. when, upon contest about common or special bail, it does appear that the plaintiff has misconceived his action, and that if any action lies it is of another sort, there common bail ought to be accepted. 12 Mod. 579.

Where the plaintiff was nonsuit for want of a declaration, and afterwards brought another action for the same cause, Holt, Ch. J. said, he had known it held by the court, that he should have but common bail to the said action. Ld. Raym. Rep. 679.

In an action of covenant brought by the patentee of Drury-Lane playhouse against defendant, for not performing dances upon the stage according to articles, whereby plaintiff swore himself damnified 100*l.* Defendant moved in the treasury for a common appearance, but did not obtain a rule, the plaintiff having sworn to a certain damage. Barnes's Notes in C. B. 57.

Action was brought upon a lease dated in 1727, for two years rent due since the year 1733, when defendant became a bankrupt. Defendant moved for a common appearance, and produced his certificate allowed, confirmed, and inrolled. Upon hearing counsel on both sides, neither the possession, nor the legal interest of the estate being in the defendant, a common appearance was ordered to be accepted. Barnes's Notes in C. B. 60.

In an action of debt upon bond attested by one witness only, plaintiff had been nonsuited on non est factum pleaded, the witness not making sufficient proof of the execution of the bond. Plaintiff brought a new action on the same bond. Defendant moved for a common appearance, and obtained a rule to shew cause, which was discharged on hearing counsel on both sides. Note; defendant did not in his affidavit deny the execution of the bond. Barnes's Notes in C. B. 68.

Plaintiff made affidavit, that the defendant had seized and detained his ship to his damage, and a capias ad respondendum was thereon indorsed for bail without a judge's order. Rule for common appearance and supersedeas was made absolute; for the damages in this case are uncertain, and the plaintiff was not intitled to bail without a judge's order; in debt assumpsit, trover, bail is of course; but in trespass and detinue, at discretion; for words, no bail, unless slander of title. Barnes's Notes in C. B. 78, 79.

An action was brought for a malicious prosecution for forgery. Upon an affidavit the plaintiff had obtained a judge's order for holding defendant to bail for 200*l.* The defendant being arrested and held to bail accordingly, applied to the judge who made the order; the judge, not being fully satisfied, directed the defendant to apply to the court; whereupon he moved to be discharged on entring a common appearance, and by affidavits shewed, that the plaintiff was acquitted on a flaw in the indictment, and not on the merits. Per cur'. Let the plaintiff shew cause why a common appearance should not be taken. Rep. of Pract. in C. B. 148.

Action was brought for 50*l.* penalty given by act of parliament for defendant's practising as an attorney, not being duly admitted, wherein the defendant was held to bail. Rule to shew cause why common appearance, and supersedeas was made absolute. This is for a fine or amercement, and is in the nature of a qui tam. Barnes's Notes in C. B. 80.

Upon the removal of a cause by habeas corpus out of any inferior court into the courts above, though the sum be under 10*l.* the party must file special bail; so that the plaintiff may not be in a worse condition than he was in the court below; and the reason hereof is, that those inferior jurisdictions being confined, they cannot follow the debt out of their own jurisdiction; and therefore it is requisite that they should be bail who live within their precincts. 1 Salk. 98.

If a cause be removed by habeas corpus out of the Marshalsea, or any other inferior court, and the bail there offer to be bail to the action in the court above, the plaintiff is compellable to take them, because he might, but did not, except to them below. 1 Salk. 97.

But it is otherwise where a cause comes out of London, for the sufficiency of the bail there is at the peril of the clerk, and he is responsible to the plaintiff; so that the plaintiff had not the liberty of excepting against them, and the clerk is not responsible for their deficiency in the court above, tho' he was in London. 1 Salk. 97.

If a cause is removed out of an inferior court by habeas corpus, and new bail found, and after in the same term it is remanded by procedendo, the old bail shall stand; for when a cause is remanded the same term in which it was removed, no record is made thereof. Cro. Jac. 263.

But where a replevin by plaint was sued in the sheriff's court of London, and pledges there found de retorno habend' si, &c. and this plaint was removed according to their custom into the mayor's court, and after into the King's Bench by certiorari; and there oyer of the certiorari being demanded, the party declared in B. R. and upon this a return awarded; and upon an elongat' returned a scire facias went against the pledges in the sheriff's court of London: the question was, whether this case being removed by certiorari, the pledges in the inferior court were discharged; and it was held that they were not. Skin. 244.

If a man arrested in a franchise sues writ of privilege, and removes the body and the cause, and after does not come to prove his cause of privilege, the plaintiff in the franchise may have procedendo, and therefore it seems that there the first sureties remain; contra if he had been dismissed by allowance of the privilege, for then his sureties are discharged; but it seems, that when they remove the body and the cause, they do not remove any sureties, but then there is not any record against them, and then it seems, that the privilege being allowed the sureties are discharged; contra where the privilege is not allowed; for then the prisoner and the cause was always remaining with those of the franchise. Br. Procedendo, pl. 13. cites 31 H. 8.

Where a cause is removed by habeas corpus, it is the course of C. B. to take recognizance of bail before an action brought; and the court said, they ought to take notice of the course of C. B. Cro. Jac. 98.

Bail was given in an inferior court, and upon a habeas corpus brought, Popham Ch. J. took bail; afterwards a procedendo was awarded, and judgment againſt the principal in the inferior court, which was affirmed on a writ of error; and upon a ſci fa. againſt the bail below, it was adjudged, that they were diſcharged, altho' the bail taken by the Ch. J. was not filed, for that could not be till the term; but it was agreed by all, that if the procedendo had not been delivered to the ſheriff before the taking of the bail by Popham, it would have been a ſuperſedeas to the firſt writ, and the bail in the inferior court muſt have ſtood. Yelv. 120.

Sci. fa. againſt the defendant, being bail in an inferior court, who pleaded, that after the firſt action brought and bail put in, the cauſe was removed by hab. corp. into B. R. and bail put in there and accepted, and afterwards the cauſe was remanded by procedendo, and then judgment was given againſt the principal; all the court held the bail in this caſe charged, for when the record is remanded by procedendo, it is as if it never had been removed, but if it be removed, and bail filed in this court, and afterwards in another term it is remanded, there it is otherwiſe, for there the court is poſſeſſed of the cauſe. Cro. Jac. 363.

In all caſes but that of devaſtavit, where bail is found below in an inferior court, and the cauſe is removed by hab. corp. ſpecial bail ſhall be found here, tho' the cauſe of action be of a leſs ſum than ſpecial bail by the courſe of the court ought to be found for; per cur'. Lev. 268.

If an habeas corpus be returned into any of the courts above, tho' the ſum be under 10*l.* they will hold him to bail, that ſo the plaintiff may not be in a worſe condition than he was below, where the defendant was held to bail. Gilb. Hiſt. C. B. 31.

Debt for 99*s.* upon a plaint in an inferior court, and bail put in; afterwards the cauſe was removed by habeas corpus into B. R. and there the plaintiff declared as in debt upon a bond for 6*l.* The queſtion was, whether the bail put in here upon a habeas corpus ſhould be liable; and adjudged that they ſhould not, for it was another cauſe of action than that to which they were bail. 3 Salk. 55.

If a man is arreſted in an inferior juriſdiction, bail out of the inferior juriſdiction will not do, becauſe their proceſs cannot reach ſuch bail; per Holt Ch. J. 12 Mod. 643.

The defendant condemned a ſhip for want of being regiſtred in England, and plaintiff brought trover and converſion in London, which was removed by habeas corpus. Holt Ch. J. ſaid, that tho' it was upon a habeas corpus, they might inquire into the cauſe of action, and if they ſaw occaſion, order ſpecial bail; for otherwiſe the inferior court might be made uſe of to oppreſs people, by laying great actions upon them there; and here if the defendant has acted as judge, and the matter was within his cognizance, his ſentence, whether right or wrong, binds till it be reverſed; and if it were in the admiralty of France it would be ſo, and the only remedy in ſuch caſe is to appeal. 7 Mod. 9.

By the ſtat. 3 Jac. 1. cap. 8. it is enacted, "That no execution ſhall be ſtayed or delayed, upon or by any writ of error, or ſuperſedeas thereupon, to be ſued for the reverſing of any judgment given, or to be given, in any action or bill of debt, upon any ſingle bond for debt, or upon any obligation with condition for the payment of money only, or upon any action or bill of debt for rent, or upon any contract ſued in any of the courts of Weſtminſter, counties palatine, or great ſeſſions in Wales; unleſs ſuch perſon or perſons in whoſe name or names ſuch writ ſhall be brought, with two ſufficient ſureties, ſuch as the court (wherein ſuch judgment is or ſhall be given) ſhall allow of, ſhall firſt before ſuch ſtay made, or ſuperſedeas awarded, be bound unto the party for whom any ſuch judgment is or ſhall be given by recognizance, to be acknowledged in the ſame court, in double the ſum adjudged to be recovered by the ſaid former judgment, to proſecute the writ of error with effect; and alſo to ſatisfy and pay (if the ſaid judgment be affirmed) all and ſingular the debts, damages and coſts adjudged, or to be adjudged upon the former judgment; and all coſts and damages to be alſo awarded for the ſame delaying of execution."

If A. becomes bail for B. in an inferior court, and there judgment is given for B. and thereupon the plaintiff brings a writ of error, and that judgment is reverſed, and judgment given for the plaintiff againſt B. the bail is liable; for when the firſt judgment is reverſed, it is as if that judgment had never been, and as if at the firſt the principal had been condemned in the inferior court. Cro. Jac. 94.

If error be aſſign'd in matter of law, then the uſe is to take bail of the party; but if the error be upon matter in fact, then the uſe is not to take bail before the matter in fact be tried; ſaid by Coke Ch. If an executor brings a writ of error, he ſhall not find bail, within the ſtatute 3 Jac. 1. cap. 8. to anſwer the principal debt; but he ſhall find bail to anſwer the double coſts upon the ſtatute 13 Car. 2. cap. 2. if 'tis found againſt him; ſo held in the cauſe mentioned by Twiſden. Sid. 183.

W. was indicted and convicted of deer-ſtealing, &c. at the ſeſſions, and brought error in B. R. it was moved to bail him till the error determined, but denied; for per cur', tho' the plaintiff in audita querela may be bailed, yet one in execution who brings a writ of error ſhall not. Sid 286.

Perſons in execution for a fine to the King brought hab. corp. and a writ of error, and aſſigned errors, and pray'd to be bail'd, but the court would not; but it was ſaid to be uſual in the Crown office to bail in ſuch caſes. Sid. 320.

Upon a writ of error brought in B. R. to reverſe an outlawry in this court, the queſtion was, if bail ought to be put in before the allowance of it by the ſtatute of 31 Eliz. cap. 3. and it was reſolved, that in all writs of error it ought, and ſo the words muſt be intended, or otherwiſe that part of the ſtatute will be of no effect, if it ſhould be extended only to caſes where the error is for want of proclamation; for it doth not appear at the time of the allowance of the writ of error, what errors the party will aſſign. Freem. Rep. 162.

Debt on bond. The condition was for payment of money and performance of covenants; judgment thereupon, on which error was brought; and it was ruled, that it is not within the ſtatute 3 Jac. cap. 8. which requires bail to be put in, in caſe of debt or contract. Comb. 105.

One in execution upon a judgment for uſury, brought a writ of error in B. R. and moved to be bailed, but it was denied, tho' there was no apparent error in the record, and tho' it was formerly the practice to bail in ſuch caſe; for per curiam, we ought not to enlarge a priſoner in execution; but it is otherwiſe upon an audita querela, per Holt. Ch. J. 3 Salk. 58.

If A. brings a writ of error upon a judgment obtained againſt him, according to the 3 Jac. 1. B. enters into a recognizance conditioned that A. ſhall proſecute his writ of error with effect, and if judgment ſhall be affirmed, that he ſhall pay the condemnation, &c. and after the judgment is affirmed, B. cannot render A. the principal; for this manucaption is not to render the body, but to pay the debt. Cro. Jac. 402.

If judgment be affirmed upon a writ of error in the Exchequer-Chamber, no execution ſhall go againſt the bail in the original action for the coſt occaſione dilationis executionis, and the party might have compelled the defendant in error to put in bail, purſuant to the ſtatute 3 Jac. 1. 1 Rol. Abr. 335. Cro. Jac. 630. Noy 18.

In debt on a bond in C. B. and judgment for the plaintiff, error was brought in B. R. and bail put in according to the ſtatute, and judgment affirmed thereupon; error was brought in parliament, and the clerk of the errors refuſed to allow the writ, unleſs the party would give a new recognizance. It was objected, that it was required by 3 Jac. 1. but per cur', The firſt recognizance does not include payment of coſts to be aſſeſſed in the houſe of Lords, and theſe coſts ought to be paid, and therefore therefore a new recognizance ought to be given within the intent of the ſtatute; and it is not the buſineſs of this court, to examine whether bail was put in upon the firſt writ; for the want of that does not hinder the proceſs of the writ of error, but only makes it no ſuperſedeas. 1 Salk. 97.

If there is a judgment in B. R. and the defendant is taken in execution, and after brings error in the Exchequer-chamber, and the record is removed, he cannot be bailed in B. R. becauſe there is no record there; nor can he be bailed in the Exchequer-chamber, for they have authority only to affirm or reverſe the judgment. Cro. Jac. 108. Cro. E. 731.

Upon a writ of error in Ireland, the record being removed in B. R. the court took bail here, and ſent directions to have the defendant ſet at liberty there. Palm. 286.

In debt upon a bail-bond in C. B. judgment was given for the plaintiff, and error brought in B. R. and bail put in according to the ſtatute, and judgment affirmed, and thereupon error was brought in parliament; it was inſiſted, that bail in this caſe was not requirable by the ſtatute 3 Jac. 1. but per cur. The firſt recognizance does not include payment of coſts to be aſſeſſed in the houſe of lords, and therefore a new recognizance ought to be given within the intent of the ſtatute. 1 Salk. 97.

Note; by the ſtatute 3 Jac. 1. cap. 8. when a writ of error is brought on a judgment had upon a bond to pay money (only) there ſpecial bail ought to be given; and after a year a ſcire facias ought to precede the levari, or fieri facias. 11 Mod. 2.

In error brought on a judgment in caſe on a bottomree bond, it was moved that the plaintiff in error might put in ſpecial bail; Holt Ch. J. ſaid, this is not a bond only for the payment of money, for if he does not go the voyage, he forfeits the penalty; for his going the voyage, return, and payment of the money, are all conditions; and inclined, that it did not require ſpecial bail; ſed adjornatur. 11 Mod. 260.

Sheriff brought debt upon bond, and judgment was had by nil dicit without oyer of the condition, and a writ of error was brought upon the judgment, and a ſuperſedeas taken out; it was moved to ſet aſide the ſuperſedeas, becauſe the plaintiff in error had not put in bail, according to 3 Jac. 1. cap. 8. on the other ſide it was ſaid, that the bond was for appearance, and ſo out of the ſaid ſtatute; to which it was anſwered, that it appeared upon record to be an obligation for payment of money, and that the court muſt confine themſelves to the record, and judge upon that only; but per tot. cur. it was held that they ought to examine into it by affidavit, for otherwiſe the plaintiff in error would be obliged to put in bail contrary to the intent of the ſtatute, becauſe the declaration was only upon the penalty, without mention of the condition. 3 Vin. 463. cites *MS. A. gave bond to B. conditioned that C. ſhould pay B. 20l. C. gave bond to A. reciting the bond given by A. to B. and then follows this condition, viz. that if the money be paid by C. according to the condition of the ſaid bond (given by A.) then this obligation to be void, otherwiſe, &c. A. brought an action on the laſt bond, and had judgment, whereupon C. brings a writ of error. The queſtion was, whether ſpecial bail was to be put in by the plaintiff in error by the ſtatute of 3 Jac. 1. cap. 8. Per Parker Ch. J. this bond ſtands only as a ſecurity for damages, and may be diſcharged without one penny to the plaintiff, and there is no difference between this bond and a bond to ſave harmleſs, and therefore out of the meaning of the act; and Prat J. thought this caſe, tho' poſſibly within the words of this act, yet is out of the meaning of it, which is plainly this, viz. that where a recovery does neceſſarily import a debt due, there this act takes place; but not where a recovery may or may not import a debt due, and the reaſon is, that delay in the latter caſe is not eſteemed ſo prejudicial as in the former; ſed adjornatur. 11 Mod. 281.

The filing of common bail is neceſſary, that it may appear that the court had conuſance of the cauſe. 1 New Abr. 213.

If a priſoner be diſcharged for want of being declared againſt within two terms, or upon non-proſſing the plaintiff, or if he ſurrender himſelf in diſcharge of his bail, and is not charged within two terms; in all theſe caſes he muſt file common bail, that it may appear by the acts of the court, that he was actually in court when diſcharged. See 1 Salk. 98, 99.

By the rules of B. R. no attorney ſhall be compelled to appear or file common bail for any defendant, unleſs ſuch attorney hath by a note in writing under his hand undertaken ſo to do, and ſuch note produced by the plaintiff's attorney; but if any attorney hath accepted a warrant to appear for the defendant (which warrant be in no wiſe revoked) or hath ſubſcribed the ſame, and do not cauſe bail to be filed accordingly, ſuch attorney ſhall be compelled to file common bail of the proper term, and take a declaration and plead to the ſame, or in default of pleading, judgment may be entered by default, if rules for pleading have been given; for that the default of the defendant or his attorney ſhall not tend to the plaintiff's prejudice. Cro. Jac. 620.

In an action upon a replevin bond, common bail ſhall be filed. 1 Salk. 99.

A judgment in ejectment againſt the caſual ejector is erroneous, unleſs a latitat was ſued out, and common bail filed for him. 2 Show. 249.

3. Of putting in bail.

By the printed rules of the courts, every attorney who ſhall appear for any defendant in any action, in which ſpecial bail is not required, ſhall duly file common bail for ſuch defendant, of the term of which he appears, and give notice thereof to the plaintiff or his attorney; and that where ſpecial bail is required and put in de bene eſſe, before any judge or commiſſioner on a cepi corpus, the defendant's attorney ſhall forthwith give notice thereof in writing to the plaintiff or his attorney, and of the names of ſuch bail, with their additions and places of habitation; and if no exception be taken to ſuch bail, and entred in the judge's book within twenty days after ſuch notice then upon oath thereof made, for which no fee is to be taken, ſuch bail ſhall be filed; and if ſpecial bail ſhall be put in before any judge de bene eſſe, on any writ of habeas corpus or certiorari, and no rule for better bail, or exception taken, or entred in the judge's book, againſt the bail ſo put in, within 28 days after putting in ſuch bail; that then ſuch bail ſhall be filed by the defendant's attorney after the end of the ſaid 28 days. 1 Salk. 98. 6 Mod. 24, 25.

It is ſaid, that after exception to bail, there is no ſet time to juſtify or exchange them for better, but it muſt be in convenient time. 6 Mod. 24, 25.

If the plaintiff accepts the bail, he may take away the bail-piece from the judge's chamber, and file it for his own expedition; but after 20 days then it becomes abſolute, and the defendant takes it away and files it. Comb. 263.

An infant being in execution upon a condemnation in debt brought a writ of error; his father and his brother were his bail; it was the opinion of the juſtices, that they two only ſhould enter into the recognizance, that the infant ſhall appear, and that if the judgment be affirmed, that they ſhould pay the money, and not that they ſhall render the body of the infant again to priſon; for that when once he is diſcharged of the execution, he ſhall never be in execution again. 3 Lev. 113.

One in execution for debt on a judgment in C. B. brought a writ of error in B. R. and prayed to be bailed; all the court held, that if there be any error apparent he ſhall be bailed, and the ſureties ſhall be bound to anſwer the debt if the judgment be affirmed, and not to deliver the body in execution, and the clerks ſaid that all the precedents in the court are ſo: and Gawdy ſaid, that in the 4 & 5 Eliz. all the precedents were altered, for before that time it was a doubt, but then the law was reſolved as above. Dyer. 139.

But where one is in execution on a ſtatute merchant, and he ſues an audita querela, and thereupon is bailed, his ſureties ſhall be bound to render his body to be impriſoned, as he was before; per Gawdy, and this was agreed per tot. cur'. Dyer 139.

Note, that in this caſe of bailing of a priſoner, the conſtant rule obſervable in B. R. is this, that where the return of the ſheriff is to be at a day to come, as Octavis Michael. proxime ſequent', and the priſoner is bailed (being bailable) before the day of the return, the bail then to be taken ought to be in a ſum of money, and not to be body for body; the reaſon of this is, for that before the return, he is not preſent in court; but if the priſoner be bailed after the day of the return, and when he is preſent in court, the bail is then to be de die in diem, and in this caſe the bail to be taken body for body, becauſe the priſoner is preſent in court; and this was agreed by the court to be the conſtant rule and courſe of the court, and Man ſecondary did affirm the conſtant rule of the court to be ſo. Bulſt. 45.

Error of judgment in debt, becauſethe entry of the bail was ſub pœna executionis in adjudicatione executionis, and ſo entred for the execution only, and not for the judgment, whereas it ought to have been ſub pœna condemnationis; the court held it to be well enough, for the bail being once taken, ſtands as well for the judgment as the execution; and ordered it ſhould be amended, and made ſub pœna executionis judicii. Cro. J. 272.

A latitat was againſt A. and B. for a conſpiracy: both were taken; A. put in bail to the action in Mich. term, and B. in Hil. term; the plaintiff prayed, that the bail be taken off the file of Mich. term, and put upon the file of this Hil. term, becauſe otherwiſe it would be error; for there can be no proceeding upon a joint action upon bail put in in ſeveral terms by two; quod Clench deputy-ſecondary affirmed. Lat. 183.

In B. R. though the bail of the defendant be taken and entred the laſt day of the term, and the bail be put in at any time the ſame term, this is well enough by the courſe of the King's Bench; though in ſtrictneſs of law the defendant is anſwerable but from the bail as in cuſtodia mareſchalli, and not before. 1 Rol. Abr. 333. Hob. 70. S. C.

If in trover commenced in Hilary term, the converſion is alledged to be the 3*d of February* in the ſame term, and bail is filed the laſt day of the term, yet this is well enough, for the action ſhall not be ſaid to be depending until the bail is filed. 1 Vent. 135.

If there be an original and capias in one county, and bail thereupon filed, and the plaintiff after declares in another county, and thereupon obtains judgment, by this variation the bail are diſcharged, and not liable to the damages upon this declaration. 3 Lev. 235.

If A. arreſts B. in an action of 200*l.* and bail is put in thereto, and afterwards A. delivers two declarations, one for 200*l.* and another for 500*l.* the bail ſhall be only liable for the 200*l.* 2 Show. 335.

One may depoſit a ſum of money in lieu of bail if the court pleaſe, and they may thereupon order the plaintiff to wave other bail, (22 Car. B. R. and Trin. 23 Car. B. R.) if the ſum depoſited be ſufficient to ſatisfy the plaintiff in caſe the trial paſs for him; for then the plaintiff can ſuffer no inconveniency by it, for the court may order him to take the money depoſited for his ſatisfaction after ſuch trial had. Lil. P. R. 173.

Till bail put in, the defendant is not in court to plead any thing, nor is the plaintiff obliged to declare againſt him. 3 Lev. 343.

There was a queſtion if bail be put in one term, and new bail is added the next term after, if this ſhould be a bail as of the firſt term, or only of the term when added? The clerks differed, but the court was of opinion it was only bail of that term when the additional bail was put in; for they ſaid it was not bail till compleated and accepted, and making the additional to be bail of the firſt term, might do a wrong to a third perſon, who might be a purchaſer after the firſt, and before the additional bail was put in; per cur'. 1 Salk. 100.

The cauſe returned upon a habeas corpus was a writ of excommunicato capiendo, which recited a ſignificavit of an excommunication of D. a quaker, for teaching ſchool without a licence; the defendant was bailed, whilſt the return was under conſideration; and the entry was traditur in ballium & interim curia vult adviſare, and the condition of the recognizance was to appear the firſt day of term, and ſo from day to day, and if this court ſhould adjudge the return good, then to render his body to priſon. 1 Salk. 105.

V. was arreſted by the name of J. V. eſquire, who pretended himſelf to be Earl of Buckingham, and upon a motion the queſtion was, how he ſhould put in bail ſo as not to eſtop him; the court held, this being in a civil action he need not join in the bail-bond, and then there is nothing to eſtop him; and in a criminal action the court allowed the Earl of Banbury in an indictment not to join, but to find others who gave bail for him, by the name of G. K. eſquire; for their act could not conclude him. 1 Salk. 3.

If a writ be returnable in one term, defendant ought to put in bail in that term, ſcilicet, at any time before the eſſoin day of the next term, and till then it is irregular to proceed upon the bail-bond; but one in the mean time might take an aſſignment upon it and a warrant. 6 Mod. 226.

A. brings a bill of Middleſex with an ac-etiam for 40*l.* and recovers 100*l.* and the court held, that the bail ſhould not be liable for more than the ac-etiam, which was the meaſure of his undertaking; and per Holt Ch. Juſt. he is not liable at all, for his recognizance is to anſwer the condemnation, and ſince that could not be, he is bound to nothing; and the clerk, ſecondary, affirmed, that there was a rule of court, that where the plaintiff recovers a greater ſum than is laid in the action, the bail ſhall not be chargeable in iſta actione. 1 Salk. 102.

If a writ be taken out in the name of A. and the officer takes a bail-bond to appear at the ſuit of B. and after there is a reddidit ſe by the ſame name, though this be vitium ſcriptoris in not making the bail-bond according to the writ, yet it cannot be amended, for the bail muſt be according to the bail-bond, and not according to the writ. 6 Mod. 309.

Bail was put in before a judge, and excepted againſt, and other bail added. The laſt bail juſtified before a judge, without giving notice to the plaintiff's attorney. The firſt bail juſtified in court, and the defendant moved to ſtrike off the additional bail, ſhewing by affidavit that the additional bail had voluntarily got himſelf added in the bail-piece, on purpoſe to have the defendant in his power, and ſurrender her when he thought proper. The court ordered the additional bail to be ſtruck off. Rep. of Pract. in C. B. 17.

The bail may enter into recognizance at different times, and before different judges; but the firſt is de bene eſſe, and no compleat bail is given till the laſt is taken, and the firſt is of no value till the laſt is taken, and ſo there is no relation to the taking of the firſt; for then the bail and entry is intire and perfect, and not before. 8 Mod. 188.

Notice of bail (on an arreſt, &c.) ought to be not only by a note given of the parties names, who are to be bail, but alſo of their addition, trade, ſubſtance, and place of abode, that ſo they may be the more eaſily inquired after by the plaintiff or his attorney. 11 Mod. 2.

By the ſtatute 4 W. & M. cap. 4. ſ. 2. The juſtices and barons reſpectively ſhall make ſuch rules for juſtifying ſuch bails, as to them ſhall ſeem meet, ſo as the cognizors be not compelled to appear in perſon in the courts (unleſs they live in London or Weſtminſter, or within ten miles thereof) but the ſame is to be determined by affidavits taken before the commiſſioners who are impowered to examine bail upon oath.

If the plaintiff accepts the bail, he may take the bail-piece from the judge's chamber, and file it for his own expedition, but after 20 days then it becomes abſolute, and the defendant takes it away, and files it. Comb. 263.

Per cur. In London the plaintiff never excepts againſt bail; but there is an officer who receives bail, and if he takes inſufficient bail, upon complaint made to the aldermen, he muſt either pay the debt, or the profits of his office are ſequeſter'd till the debt be ſatisfied; and when a cauſe is removed up higher, the bail and clerk below are diſcharged; and if the bail given below are offered here, they may be excepted againſt. 12 Mod. 249.

The plaintiff muſt except within twenty days after bail put in, and notice thereof, and of the place of their abode, otherwiſe the bail ſhall be filed. Upon a cepi corpus he has twenty days, and upon a hab. corpus twenty-eight. 1 Salk. 98.

Where a cauſe is removed out of an inferior court by habeas corpus, if the bail below offer themſelves to be bail above, the plaintiff is compellable to take them, becauſe he might, but did not, except againſt them below. Aliter where a cauſe comes out of London; per Holt Ch J. 1 Salk. 97.

After exception againſt bail they muſt juſtify themſelves, or the plaintiff muſt withdraw his exception, before he can proceed to trial, ſo as to charge them; per cur'. 12 Mod. 385.

The commiſſioners are to take bail, but are obliged by rule of court to keep a book wherein are the names of the plaintiff and defendant, and bail, and the perſon who tranſmits the ſame, and who makes affidavit that the recognizance was duly acknowledged in his preſence, and on ſuch affidavit the judges make a conditional allocatur, and the bail are to ſtand abſolute, unleſs the plaintiff excepts againſt them within twenty days, and if he excepts, the bail may juſtify by affidavit before the commiſſioners in the country. Gilb. H. C. B. 32.

Bail cannot be juſtified before a judge in his chamber, except it be by conſent, or for neceſſity in vacation; but in the latter caſe they ought to be juſtified again in term, and upon that the defendant is compelled to accept a declaration to go to trial at the aſſiſes, if it be an iſſuable term; and upon putting in bail it is not enough to give notice of their being put in, but it ought to be of their names, places of abode, and trade or vocation, that the plaintiff may know how to enquire after them; and after exception to bail there is no ſet time to juſtify, or change them for better, but it muſt in convenient time. 6 Mod. 24, 25.

All the clerks ſaid that they knew the ſheriff amerced after the aſſignment of the bail-bond; but Holt Ch. J. ſaid he had known it denied per reliquos juſticiarios. 6 Mod. 122.

If one accepts of an aſſignment, and the ſame are given as bail to an action that were bail to the ſheriff, he cannot deny them; but per Holt, If the ſame that were bail (before) become bail to the action, and he excepts againſt them, and they do not juſtify, he may go on with amercements againſt the ſheriff. 6 Mod. 122.

Upon a writ of error, where bail is put in, the defendant in error has 20 days to except, and he need not give the plaintiff notice that he excepts; but he cannot take out execution without giving the plaintiff a four days rule to put in better bail; but in all other caſes he muſt give notice; per Clarke, ſecondary. 1 Salk. 98.

Bail was put in upon bringing a writ of error; the courſe is, that the other ſide ſhall have twenty days to except againſt them, which exception muſt be entered in the book of the clerk of the errors, and then he who excepts takes out a rule to put in better bail, and ſerves the attorney on the other ſide with it, but ſuch rule needs not to be ſerved within twenty days. 3 Salk. 56.

Upon a motion to ſtay proceedings on a bail-bond, the court declared it ſhould be a ſtanding rule of practice, that in all caſes of exception to bail, ſuch exception ſhould be made in the filazer's book, or on the bail piece with the commiſſioner before it is tranſmitted, and afterwards above in the filazer's book, or on the bail-piece. Rep. of Pract. in C. B. 55.

Affidavit of juſtification by bail, that they were ſeverally worth the ſum wherein they were bound by their recognizances, after all their juſt debts paid and ſatisfied, was held to be inſufficient, not being in common form; the word (juſt) ought to be omitted. Barnes's Notes 57.

The defendant became bail to the ſheriff for the appearance of W. R. at the return of the writ, bail was filed above, but excepted to, and that exception entered on the bail piece; afterwards, without any complete juſtification, the plaintiff delivers his declaration generally, and proceeded to iſſue, trial, and judgment, and then brings this action; to which the defendant pleaded comperuit ad diem, and in order to maintain that plea, the court was now moved for leave to ſtrike out the exception on the bail-piece, that it might be filed, inſiſting that the proceeding generally was a waver of the exception; and the court ordered them to ſhew cauſe. Rep. of Pract. in C. B. 155, 156.

It being doubtful whether Sunday ſhould be reckoned as one day in notice to juſtify bail, it was determined per cur. that for the future Sunday ſhall not be counted one (it not being a proper day to enquire after bail upon), but two days notice muſt be given, of which Sunday ſhall not be one; upon motion for defendant to juſtify bail, notice was ſerved Saturday June 23, to juſtify bail Monday 25; the notice being inſufficient, the bail were not ſuffered to juſtify. Notes in C. B. 220.

4. Of putting in bail by a wrong name, and the offence of perſonating bail.

In ejectment bail was put in for the defendant by the name of Parkes, but the declaration and all the proceedings were by the name of Parkhurſt. After verdict for the plaintiff the judgment was arreſted, becauſe it did not appear that the defendant was in cuſtodia mareſchalli; for Parkhurſt and Parkes cannot be intended the ſame perſon. Cro. Eliz. 223.

The plaintiff having recover'd againſt the principal, and ſued ſci. fa. againſt the bail, and having judgment againſt him, whereupon he was taken; the bail complained to the court that he was not the man, but perſonated by another, and which he proved by divers witneſſes; and it was confeſs'd by the defendant and thoſe that procured the bail. It was awarded that a vacat ſhould be made of that bail quoad him, and of the judgment on the ſcire facias. Cro. Jac. 256.

Stat. 21 Jac. 1. cap. 26. enacts, that it is felony without benefit of clergy to acknowledge, or procure to be acknowledged, any bail in the name of other perſon not privy or conſenting thereto, provided that it ſhall not corrupt the blood, or take away dower.

R. offered himſelf to bail in an action before Juſtice Whitlock, affirming upon oath he was a ſubſidy-man, and aſſeſs'd 4*l.* for goods in the ſubſidy-book; but afterwards, upon further examination, he confeſs'd he was not a ſubſidy-man, and alſo confeſs'd he had been bail in other actions, and had ſworn he was a ſubſidy-man, whereas now he confeſs'd he was not. He was by the judgment of the court committed to priſon, and to ſtand upon the pillory, with a paper mentioning his cauſe, viz. for falſe bail. Cro. Car. 146.

Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. cap. 4. ſ. 4. enacts, that any perſon repreſenting or perſonating another before commiſſioners appointed to take bail, ſhall be adjudged guilty of felony.

5. Of the proceedings againſt the bail, and what they may plead in their diſcharge.

The act of the court in delivering the defendant to bail being of record, intitles the plaintiff to a ſcire facias, when it appears that the defendant has not ſatisfied the judgment; hence it appears that there muſt be a capias returned againſt the principal before the ſcire facias is to iſſue againſt the bail. 1 New Abr. 216. 1 Rol. Abr. 308, 333. Moor 432. Cro. E. 597. Goldſ. 174.

But though on the return of the capias the plaintiff is intitled to ſcire facias, and the recognizance in ſtrictneſs is forfeited, yet if the defendant render himſelf at any time before, or on the day of the return of the ſecond ſcire facias againſt the bail, where two nihils are returned, or on or before the day of the return of the firſt ſcire facias, facias, where a ſcire facias is returned ſedente curia, and notice of ſuch render is given to the plaintiff or his attorney, the bail ſhall be diſcharged. 1 Salk. 101.

If an action of debt be brought on the recognizance, if the defendant renders himſelf in cuſtody within eight days in full term, after the day of the return of the proceſs againſt the bail, they ſhall be diſcharged. 1 Rol. Abr. 600, 897. 1 Jones 29. Winch 61, 62. Godb. 354. Raym. 14. 2 Show 77.

If the defendant dies before the return of a capias ad ſatisfaciendum againſt him, his bail pleading the ſame, may be diſcharged. 1 Rol. Abr. 336. 1 Jones 29. Winch 61, 62. Cro. Jac. 97. Godb. 354. Moor 175.

Upon a writ of error brought, the bail enter'd into a recognizance, conditioned, that if the judgment is affirmed to pay the money, &c. and a ſci. fa. being brought on this recognizance, it was objected againſt the ſci. fa. that it was not returnable on any return-day, but on a day certain; and it not being grounded on any bill, or thing in nature of a bill, it ought to be returnable on a return-day; but if the ſci. fa. had recited the condition of the recognizance, then it had been in nature of a bill, and well, but here it is a writ, and therefore ill; and all the clerks ſaid, that ſo was the conſtant uſage, and the court ſtayed the judgment. Lev. 246.

M. the defendant and two others entred into a recognizance for the good behaviour of M. afterwards M. was indicted, for that he being ſo bound, did aſſault J. S. and ſo had forfeited his recognizance; but this indictment was quaſhed, becauſe he ought to have been proſecuted by ſcire facias, and not by indictment. Raym. 196.

A writ of error was brought by the bail to reverſe two judgments in Ireland, viz. that againſt the principal, and that againſt the bail. The court held, 1ſt, That the writ was abated in the whole. 2dly, That the record of the judgment againſt the principal was not removed by this writ, and ſo it was ſaid it had been reſolved formerly in one Booth's caſe, which was cited by the Ld. Ch. J. and remembered by Jones Attorney General; but the queſtion was, how the defendant in the writ of error ſhould proceed to have the fruit of his judgment againſt the bail, the record being removed hither, and ſo they could not grant out execution in Ireland? And it was propoſed by Hale Ch. J. to take out ſci. fa. into Middleſex upon the recognizances which are now here, and upon the return of them to grant execution in Ireland. But afterwards it appearing that thoſe judgments were not made records here, by reaſon they were not entered upon the rolls, they ſaid they would ſend a certificate to the judges in Ireland, that nothing was removed here before them, and thereupon they might grant execution; but upon the judgment againſt the principal, the party might have execution there, for that record was never removed. Freem. 416, 417.

There muſt be ſeven days excluſive betwixt the teſte and return of every ca. ſa. to warrant a ſci. fa. againſt the bail, and the capias ought to be delivered to the ſheriff of the county, or his under ſheriff, four days excluſive (and none of them muſt be Sunday) before the return thereof, for the defendant cannot render himſelf but to the ſheriff or under-ſheriff, and in the county where he is ſheriff or under-ſheriff. Lil. P. R. 249.

If A. as bail, enters into a recognizance that B. upon eight days warning comparebit to any action that ſhall be brought by C. necnon that if B. ſhall be condemned in the ſaid action, and does not pay, &c. that then he will anſwer the condemnation, and C. does bring an action againſt B. and he is condemned, and does not pay, &c. in debt upon this recognizance, it muſt be averred that he gave B. eight days warning to appear, &c. for A. is bound only to anſwer the condemnation in ſuch action, upon which eight days warning was given, for that is the foundation of the whole; and there is no reaſon that B. by his voluntary appearance without warning ſhould prejudice his bail. Cro. Jac. 45. Yelv. 52.

If a defendant gives judgment with a ſtay of execution until a certain day, the plaintiff may, notwithſtanding ſuch ſtay of excution, ſue forth a capias ad ſatisfaciendum to the ſheriff of the county where the action is laid, and returnable before the day, to make out a teſtatum againſt the defendant; but no ſuch capias ad ſatis faciendum ſhall be ſued forth to warrant a ſcire facias againſt the bail, becauſe it is to the prejudice of a third perſon. 1 New Abr. 217.

Where the ſci. fa. is againſt the bail, it ſhould be in ea parte; but where it is againſt the defendant himſelf, it ſhould be in hac parte. 2 Salk. 599.

Judgment in ſci. fa. againſt the bail was reverſed upon a writ of error, becauſe there was no warrant of attorney; for ſuch a warrant in the principal action is no warrant to the ſci. fa. becauſe theſe are diſtinct actions; therefore there ought to be a particular warrant of attorney to this ſci. fa. againſt the bail, and it ought to be entered upon the return of the ſci. fa. for then the ſuit commences. 2 Salk. 603.

In C. B. there is but one ſcire facias againſt the bail, and upon a nihil returned there is execution; but in B. R. the courſe is to have two ſcire facias's againſt the bail, (viz.) a ſci. fa. and an alias ſci. fa. but both muſt not be ſued out together, as formerly; for the firſt ſhall be duly returned before the alias ſci. fa. is ſued out, which muſt bear teſte on the day of the return of the firſt, and there muſt be fifteen days incluſive between the teſte of the firſt and the return of the alias; now the court was moved to ſet aſide a judgment obtained againſt the bail upon two ſcire facias's brought againſt them, becauſe it did not appear that the judgment was had on the return of two nihils, and it was referred to the maſter to examine this matter. 8 Mod. 227.

If the firſt ſci. fa. againſt the bail bears teſte the ſame day on which the ca. ſa. is returnable, it is good; for in many caſes the law takes notice of the fraction of a day; and here it ſhall be taken that the ca. ſa. was returned before the ſci. fa. was ſued out, which might very well be, though both were on the ſame day. 2 Ld. Raym. Rep. 1567, 1568.

The bail cannot join in a writ of error to reverſe the judgment againſt the principal, and alſo the other judgment againſt the bail; but the bail alone ſhall have error to reverſe the judgment againſt themſelves, and the principal another writ to reverſe the firſt judgment. And a writ brought by the bail to reverſe the firſt and ſecond judgment was held ill. Jo. 396.

If the plaintiff does not declare againſt the principal within two terms after bail put in, the bail will be diſcharged, as likewiſe the principal on filing common bail. Cro. Jac. 620. Salk. 98, 99. Comb. 295.

But if, after bail put in, and before the plaintiff hath declared, the defendant obtains an injunction, and this is continued for ſeveral terms, and after diſſolved, and the plaintiff ſoon after declares and gets judgment and brings a ſcire facias againſt the bail, they cannot plead that no declaration was delivered or filed againſt the principal within two terms after the action commenced and bail entered, for there was no default in the plaintiff that he did not declare ſooner. 3 Mod. 274.

J. S. acted as attorney for the plaintiff in the original action, and after judgment in that action took out a ſcire facias, and proceeded to judgment againſt the bail without any new or ſecond warrant; on a writ of error, as well of the principal judgment, as upon that againſt the bail, the court held, that any body might have taken out the ſcire facias; but as to the further proceedings they were irregular, the attorney's authority determined with the firſt judgment, and therefore reverſed the judgment. 1 Salk. 89.

If judgment be given againſt the principal, and after, upon a ſcire facias againſt the bail, judgment be alſo given againſt them, theſe judgments are ſeveral; and they ſhall not join in a writ of error no more than tenant for life, and he in reverſion, or the tenant and vouchee may join. Cro. Car. 300. 1 Jones 325. Godb. 440. S. C.

If the condition of a recognizance be, that the principal ſhall ſurrender himſelf, or pay the money; and the breach aſſigned is that he hath not ſurrendered himſelf; this is naught, for he might have paid the money, and then the condition is not broken. Skin. 100.

Judgment

Judgment on a ſci. fa. againſt the bail, who brought a writ of error as well upon the judgment againſt the principal, as upon the judgment on the ſci. fa. but it was quaſhed, becauſe they were not parties to the original judgment. 5 Mod. 397.

It was ruled per Holt Ch. J. that the ancient courſe was, that a bail-bond could not be put in ſuit till a rule was had to amerce the ſheriff, for not having the body at the return of the writ; and the courſe now is, to ſtay proceedings on the bail-bond, if there is no retnrn of a cepi corpus. 3 Salk. 56.

If one who becomes bail has a warrant of attorney to indemnify him, yet he cannot enter it up, and take out execution upon it, tlll ſome proceſs is gone out upon the bail-bond, whereby he has an injury done him. 11 Mod. 2.

There ought not to be a ſtay of proceedings on a bail-bond, upon bringing principal, intereſt, and coſts into court, after notice of trial, unleſs it be brought in ſuch time as the plaintiff may not be delay'd of his trial; per cur'. 6 Mod. 25.

If the defendant in the ſcire facias will confeſs judgment, and enter into a rule to pay the debt, or to deliver up the principal within four days after the judgment ſhall be affirmed; in ſuch caſe the proceedings on the ſci. fa. ſhould be ſtayed. 8 Mod. 130.

A motion to ſtay proceedings in an action of debt on a recognizance, becauſe a writ of error was brought upon the original judgment; the court were unanimous, that the plaintiff might proceed to judgment, but execution to ſtay till the error was determined. Rep. of Pract. in C. B. 24.

A motion to ſtay proceedings on a bail-bond. The caſe was, one H. being defendant in the original action, was arreſted on a teſtatum capias into Suffolk out of London, and by miſtake the bail was taken and filed with the filazer of Suffolk, but ſhould have been filed with the filazer of London. The court held the proceedings on the bail-bond regular, and would not ſtay them, but upon payment of coſts, and the defendant's giving the plaintiff judgment on the bond to the ſheriff, to ſtand as a ſecurity for the plaintiff's debt, and the original defendant's accepting a declaration, and pleading thereto, and taking notice of trial after term; but the defendant not conſenting to theſe terms, no rule was made. Rep. of Pract. in C. B. 44.

Proceedings on the bail-bond were ſtay'd, the plaintiff having declared on the original action, and thereby had concluded himſelf. Rep. of Pract. in C. B. 81.

But if in a joint action againſt two, J. S. is bail for one of them, and there is judgment againſt the principals; in a ſcire facias againſt J. S. the bail, it is ſufficient to alledge, that the defendant, for whom he was bound, did not pay the money, and if the other had paid it, he ſhould have pleaded it. 2 Show. 147.

A. and B. are bail to an action in B. R. where judgment is given againſt the principal, who brings a writ of error in the Exchequer-Chamber, pending which the bail brings in the principal, or the principal renders himſelf to priſon; though the recoveror cannot pray him in execution, nor can the court put him in execution, becauſe the writ of error is a ſuperſedeas to it; yet this is a good diſcharge of the bail; for the marſhal ought to keep him in priſon as a pledge, till the judgment be affirmed or diſ-affirmed, as he does upon mean proceſs for want of bail. 1 Rol. Abr. 334, 335. Moor 853. Cro. Jac. 402. 3 Bulſt. 191. 1 Rol. Rep. 392. Raym. 130. 3 Mod. 87.

If the principal ſurrenders himſelf, or the bail render him up, this will diſcharge the bail, and may be pleaded to the ſcire facias; but ſuch ſurrender or render are not ſufficient, unleſs the plaintiff or his attorney have notice of it; and this is required, that the plaintiff may, if he pleaſes, charge him in execution; alſo, that he may not be at any further trouble or charge in proceeding againſt the bail. 1 Rol. Abr. 337. Moor 888. 1 Leon. 58. 2 Bulſt. 260.

In a ſci. fa. againſt the bail, they pleaded the death of the principal on the day of the judgment; the court held they might plead it, becauſe in ſuch caſe they cannot have a writ of error to reverſe the judgment. Cro. E. 199.

The plaintiff recovered in debt in B. R. and immdiately upon the awarding a ca. ſa. the defendant died; it was a quære if in ſuch caſe an action of debt lieth againſt the ſpecial bail; the executor having nothing, a ſci. fa. doth not lie againſt the bail; and in C. B. the court was divided in that caſe. Godb. 354.

The bond was that if the defendant be convicted in the ſaid action, and does not pay the ſaid condemnation-money or render his body to the priſon, that he would pay the debt. In ſcire facias againſt the bail he pleaded, that before any ca. ſa. ſued the defendant died, and judgment was given againſt the plaintiff; but Hobart was at one time againſt the judgment when it was moved, becauſe he took it that the defendant in the original action ought in convenient time after the judgment to have offered himſelf, or that otherwiſe the recognizance was forfeited; but the three other judges e contra, becauſe the ſtatute is in the disjunctive, viz. to render his body to priſon, or to pay, and the one by death of the party, being the act of God, becomes impoſſible, and this being before any capias ſued, which is a demand in law, he is diſcharged; and afterwards on view of precedents adjudged for the bail. Jo. 29.

If the principal dies before the return of the capias, the bail are diſcharged; but if he dies after the return of the capias and before the return of the ſci. fa. they are not diſcharged, for the ſci. fa. is as it were but a writ of grace; per cur'. Freem. Rep. 338.

A bail-bond is entred into to appear the firſt day of Michaelmas term; the defendant dies the 10th of November, and the 12th of November the bond is aſſigned over, and ſued; and upon a motion the ſuit was ſtay'd, paying of coſts; for the plaintiff was at no damage upon the defendant's not appearing the firſt day of the term, for if he had appeared and filed bail, the plaintiff could not have tried his cauſe that term; ſo that the defendant dying within the term, the bail ought (as well upon the bail-bond, as if they had been put in court to the action) to be diſcharged. 2 Lil. P. R. 254.

The principal died before the return of the ſecond ſci. fa. againſt the bail, and after a capias returned againſt the principal, and it was urged, that ſince the bail would have been diſcharged by rendering the principal at any time before the ſecond ſci. fa. returned, and that they were now deprived of that advantage by the act of God, it were reaſonable to diſcharge them; but per cur', It cannot be, for it is indulgence to allow a render after a capias returned in diſcharge of them; and their recognizance is forfeited upon the capias returned againſt the principal and the court will only diſcharge the bail after, where they render, but not where they cannot; but the death of the party before a capias returned, had been a good plea to the ſci. fa. and ſo was the rule. 12 Mod. 601.

Sci. fac. againſt the bail, who pleaded that the principal died before the return of the capias &c. and upon a ſpecial demurrer, this was adjudged ill, for it ſhould be that he died before the return of any capias, that it may appear he was not alive at the return of the firſt capias, for if he was, the recognizance is forfeited. 3 Salk. 57.

If A. ſues B. in three actions, and B. puts in three ſeveral bails, the plaintiff recovers in all, and the defendant renders himſelf, on which one of the bail only enters an exoneratur, though the rendring is a diſcharge in poſſe as to all, yet it is not compleat and actual as to all, till an exoneratur entered upon all. 1 Salk. 98.

If the bail plead a render of the principal, they muſt conclude their plea prout patet per recordum; for this is not to be tried per pais, but by the record. Latch 149. Noy 82. Poph. 185. S. C. Hob. 210.

Alſo in pleading a render of the principal, the bail muſt ſay quod venit hic in curia & in eadem curia reddidit ſe, & per eandem curiam commiſſus fuit; but it being here laid to be done the ſecond of February, (being Candlemas day, and ſo dies non juridicus) it judicially appears there could be no court that day, and ſo the render and commitment void. 3 Bulſt. 192.

In

In a ſcire facias againſt bail, they cannot plead that the plaintiff hath arreſted the principal in the ſtannary court, per quod they could not have his body, for they might have removed him by habeas corpus. Moor 406.

So in a ſcire facias againſt bail, they cannot plead that before the return of the ſecond ſcire facias the plaintiff proſecuted a teſtatum capias againſt the principal, directed to the ſheriff of, &c. who took the principal in execution upon the ſaid judgment, &c. adhuc habet & detinet; for the recognizance was forfeited before. 2 Jones 75. 2 Mod. 312. 1 Vent. 314, 315. S. C.

In an action upon the recognizance of the bail, they pleaded the death of the principal ante emanationem brevis; Parker Ch. J. held this an immaterial plea; for death before the iſſuing out of the capias is death before the return of it; but if it be found that the principal did not die before the iſſuing out of the capias, it is plainly nothing to the purpoſe, for notwithſtanding this, he may die before the return of it; and the others being of the ſame opinion, the plaintiff would have had his judgment, had not another objection been ſtarted. 10 Mod. 267, 269.

The plea of the death of the principal before the return of a capias is good, but the pleading his death generally, without confining it to ſome time, is not good; per Pratt J. 10 Mod. 306.

One T. S. was arreſted at the ſuit of H. the plaintiff, and S. the defendant became bail to the ſheriff for the appearance of the ſaid T. S. at the return of the writ; but before any further proceedings H. died, yet his attorney took out an aſſignment of the bail-bond, and proceeded to judgment and execution againſt the bail; and now the court was moved to ſet aſide theſe proceedings as irregular, and the matter being ſo reported by the maſter, they were ſet aſide. 8 Mod. 240.

The principal died after a ca. ſa. returned, but before the return of the ſecond ſci. fa. the bail are chargeable, becauſe it was their omiſſion that they did not ſurrender him, he being alive at the return of the ca. ſa. 2 Lord Raym. Rep. 1452.

A man condemned in debt renders himſelf to the court and prays his ſureties may be diſcharged, and the plaintiff was demanded, for the court ſaid he may elect either body, or to take his goods in execution; but by this offer the ſureties were diſcharged. Cro. El. 22.

After judgment againſt the principal, he came into court and rendered himſelf, and prayed that the court in diſcharge of his bail would record his render, which was granted; and the court demanded of the plaintiff, whether he would have execution of the body, who replied he would not, thereupon the court awarded that the ſureties be diſcharged. Lev. 58.

Upon a capias againſt the principal after a judgment in debt, and non inventus returned, a ſci. fa. was awarded againſt the bail, which was returned nihil; and upon a ſecond ſci. fa. againſt them, the principal was brought in, and the bail prayed that he might be in execution; but the court ordered it to be obſerved as a rule, that if a ca. ſa. be awarded returnable the next term, whereon nihil is returned, the principal ſhall never afterwards render himſelf in their diſcharge; but if it be returnable de die in diem, then the body might be brought in upon the firſt ſci. fa. and that there ſhall be fifteen days between the teſte and return of the ſcire facias, ſo that there may be convenient time to ſeek the principal. Cro. Eliz. 738.

The render ought to be in the court where the judgment is; per cur'. Cro. J. 98.

The plaintiff by practice with the principal would charge the bail, and diſcharge the principal upon oath (the practice being very flagrant, and both principal and bail being in execution, the bail firſt, and afterwards the principal) the bail was diſcharged by the court. 1 Bulſt. 43.

If the principal after judgment renders himſelf in diſcharge of his bail, it is ſtill at the election of the plaintiff to take out execution either againſt him or his bail; but if he takes and arreſts the bail, tho' he has not full ſatisfaction, he ſhall never afterwards charge the principal. Cro. Jac. 320.

After judgment againſt the principal a ca. ſa. iſſued againſt him, which was returned; but before it was filed a ſci. fa. iſſued againſt the bail. One of them brought an action againſt the principal, and he being taken upon the proceſs, and brought into court, the bail prayed that he might be delivered in execution for the debt upon the judgment, which was done accordingly, and the plaintiff was inforced by the court of neceſſity to pray the body of the principal to be committed in execution for his debt. 2 Bulſt. 260, 261.

Bail in criminal cauſes. Bail in criminal cauſes is regularly to be allowed in all ſuch caſes wherein it ſeems doubtful, whether the perſon accuſed be guilty of the offence or not; in which caſe it may be allowed and taken by that perſon who has cognizance of the crime, and therefore being judge of the offence, may, if he thinks fit, bail the offender. 2 Inſt. 189. 2 Hawk. P. C. 93.

Under this head is conſidered,

1. Who may or may not be bailed.
2. What perſons are authorized to take bail.
3. Of ſufficient, inſufficient, and exceſſive bail.
4. Of granting bail where it ought to be denied, and denying it where it ought to be granted.
5. Of bail by writ of habeas corpus.

1. Who may or may not be bailed.

At the Common law, bail was allowed in all caſes but homicide; but now the ſtatute of 3 Ed. 1. c. 15. directeth what offenders ſhall be bailed, and what not. Hal. P. C. 97. It is true, the ſaid ſtatute only preſcribeth, who ſhall or ſhall not be let to bail by the ſheriff; but by the 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 13. it is enacted, that no juſtice or juſtices of the peace ſhall let to bail or mainpriſe any perſon not repleviſable by the ſaid ſtatute of 3 Ed. 1. c. 15. Which ſtatute is as follows:

Stat. 3 Ed. 1. c. 15. "For as much as ſheriffs and others, who have taken and kept in priſon perſons detected of felony, and incontinent, have let out by replevin ſuch as were not repleviſable, and have kept in priſon ſuch as were repleviſable, becauſe they would gain of one party and grieve the other; and for as much as before this time it was not determined which perſons were repleviſable and which not, but only thoſe that were taken for the death of a man, or by commandment of the King, or of the juſtices, or for the foreſt; it is provided, and by the King commanded, that ſuch priſoners as before were outlawed and they which abjured the realm, provers, and ſuch as be taken with the manner, and thoſe which have broken the King's priſon, thieves openly defamed and known, and ſuch as be appealed by provers, ſo long as the provers be living (if they be not of good name) and ſuch as be taken for houſe-burning feloniouſly done, or falſe money, or for counterfeiting the King's ſeal, or perſons excommunicated, taken at the requeſt of the biſhop, or for manifeſt offences, or for treaſon touching the King himſelf, ſhall be in no wiſe repleviſable by the common writ, nor without writ; but ſuch as be indicted of larceny by inqueſts taken before ſheriffs or bailiffs by their offices, or of light ſuſpicion, or of petit larceny, that amounteth not above the value of twelve pence, if they were not accuſed of ſome other larceny aforetime, or accuſed of receipt of thieves or felons, or of commandment, or force, or of aid in felony done, or accuſed of ſome other treſpaſs, for which one ought not to loſe life or member, and a man approved by a prover after the death of the prover (if he be no common thief nor defamed) ſhall be henceforth let out by ſufficient ſurety, whereof the ſheriff will be anſwerable, and that without giving aught of his goods. And if the ſheriff, or any other, let any go at large by ſurety that is not repleviſable, if he be ſheriff or conſtable, or any other bailiff of fee, which has keeping of priſons, and thereof be attainted, he ſhall loſe his fee and office for ever. And if the under-ſheriff, conſtable, or bailiff of ſuch as have fee for keeping priſons, do it contrary to the will of his lord, or any other bailiff being not of fee, they ſhall have three years impriſonment, and make fine at the King's pleaſure. And if if any withhold priſoners repleviſable, after that they have offered ſufficient ſurety, he ſhall pay a grievous amercement to the King. And if he takes any reward for the deliverance of ſuch, he ſhall pay double to the priſoner, and alſo ſhall be in the great mercy of the King."

Sheriffs and others] The words (ſheriffs and others) intend ſheriffs and gaolers that have cuſtody of gaols, ſo as this act extends not to any of the King's juſtices, or judges of any ſuperior courts of juſtice; firſt, for that they being ſuperiors are not comprehended in the general words, as often hath been obſerved; 2dly, (who have taken and kept in priſon) which judges do not; 3dly, becauſe in thoſe days priſoners were commonly bailed by the King's writ de homine repleg', and then alſo by the writ de odio & atia, both which were directed to the ſheriff. 2 Inſt. 185, 186.

Felony] In thoſe days felony comprehended in it as well treaſon, as homicide, rape, or burglary, robbery, arſons, and all larcenies and thefts. 2 Inſt. 186.

And have kept in priſon] Here it is proved, that it is an offence as well to bail a man not bailable, as to deny a man bail that ought to be bailed; and the reaſon is yielded wherefore the ſheriffs and others did ſo offend, becauſe they would gain of the one, and grieve the other, viz. either for avarice, or for malice. 2 Inſt. 186.

Not determined] It was not certainly determined what people were repleviſable and what not, within the general words of the writ de homine repleg'. 2 Inſt. 186.

Repleviſable] This word (repleviſable) proves that this act intends what perſons were to be replevied by the common writ de homine replegiando, which was directed to the ſheriff under whoſe cuſtody the priſoners are, and of whom this act ſpeaks, and ſo it appears by the Regiſter; and replevy, or plevy, is applied to the ſheriff to take pledges and bail to the higheſt courts of record; and the writ de manucaptione directed to the ſheriff is grounded upon this act, in which writ not only replegiare but manucapere alſo is uſed. 2 Inſt. 186.

Death of a man] Here our act firſt ſets down, what perſons were not bailable for certain offences by the common writ de homine repleg', and they are in number four; but by the ancient law of the land, in all caſes of felony, if the party accuſed could find ſufficient ſureties, he was not to be committed to priſon; but afterwards it was provided, that in caſe of homicide, the offender was not bailable. 2 Inſt. 186.

By commandment of the King] The words (by command of the King) are as much as to ſay (as ſome affirm) by the King's courts of juſtice; for all matters of judicature and proceedings in law are diſtributed to the courts of juſtice, and the King does judge by his juſtices, 8 H. 4. fol. 19. and 24 H. 8. cap. 12. and regularly no man ought to be attached by his body, but either by proceſs of law, that is, (as has been ſaid) by the King's writs, or by indictment, or lawful warrant, as by many acts of parliament is manifeſtly enacted and declared, which are but expoſitions of Magna Charta; and all ſtatutes made contrary to Magna Charta, which is lex terræ, from the making thereof until 42 E. 3. are declared and enacted to be void; and therefore if this act of Weſtm. 1. concerning the extra-judicial commandment of the King, be againſt Magna Charta, it is void; and all reſolutions of judges concerning the commandment of the King, are to be underſtood of judicial proceedings. 2 Inſt. 187.

Or of his juſtices] The words (or of his juſtices) intend, upon any cauſe, whereof they are judges, appearing to them. 2 Inſt. 187.

Or for the foreſt] And all theſe four are particularly excepted out of the common writ de homine replegiando, that the ſheriff in his county court, which is not a court of record, ſhall not replevy any of theſe four that are committed; for example, tho' the party be committed by the perſonal command of the King, albeit the commitment be unlawful, yet the ſheriff ſhall not deal therein by the writ de homine replegiando; but the ſuperior courts at Weſtminſter, upon a habeas corpus, &c. ſhall do juſtice to the party in all theſe four caſes; ſo as Stamford, being well conſidered, impugneth not in any ſort this opinion; for his opinion extends only to the county court upon the writ de homine replegiando, and not to the ſuperior courts. 2 Inſt. 187.

Outlawed] Perſons outlawed are attainted in law, and therefore are not repleviſable, or to be bailed; for if a man be arraigned of homicide, and pleads Not guilty, and is found guilty, and for difficulty of clergy is reprieved, it was reſolved by the juſtices, that he was not bailable; for the intendment of the law in bails is quod ſtat indifferenter, whether he be guilty or no; but when he is convict by verdict or confeſſion, then he muſt be deemed in law to be guilty of the felony, and therefore not bailable at all; a fortiori, when the party is attainted in law. 2 Inſt. 187, 188.

And yet if the party upon the cap. utlag. plead miſnomer, or alledge error, &c. he may be bailed. 2 Inſt. 188.

Abjured the realm] Perſons having abjur'd, are alſo attainted upon their own confeſſion, and therefore not bailable at all by law. 2 Inſt. 188.

Provers] The reaſon whereof provers or approvers be not bailable, is; for provers do firſt confeſs the felony to be done by themſelves, and therefore they are not bailable, becauſe it appears that they be guilty of the fact. 2 Inſt. 188.

Taken with the manner] For in this caſe non ſtat indifferenter, as hath been ſaid, whether he be guilty or no, being taken with the manner, or mainer, that is, with the thing ſtolen, as it were in his hand, anciently called handhabend; the like is anciently called backberind, as a bundle or fardle at his back, which Bracton uſes for a manifeſt theft, furtum manifeſtum; and ſo doth Britton. 2 Inſt. 188.

Broken the King's priſon] Here are two offences, 1ſt, his breaking of the priſon; for it is preſumed, that he that is innocent will never break priſon; and 2dly, his flying, quia fatetur facinus, qui judicium fugit. 2 Inſt. 188.

Appealed by provers] The appeal of the approver is forcible againſt the appellee, becauſe the approver confeſſes him guilty of the ſame felony, and therefore it ſerves in nature of an indictment againſt the appellee ſo long as the approver lives, unleſs the appellee be of good fame; but yet the general words do receive qualification; for albeit the prover be alive, yet if the approver waive in his appeal, the appellee ſhall be bailed, if no other appeal be againſt him. 2 Inſt. 188.

Houſe-burning] Burning of houſes, &c. was felony by the Common law, as it appeareth by this act, and by our ancient authors, viz. Glanvil, The Mirror, Bracton, Britton, and Fleta; and this ſeemeth to be the law before the Conqueſt. 2 Inſt. 188.

Falſe money] This appears to be treaſon by the Common law. 2 Inſt. 188.

Counterfeiting the King's ſeal] This was alſo treaſon by the Common law, as it appeareth by the ſaid ancient authors; and both theſe were declared to be high treaſon at the Common law by the ſtatute of 25 Ed. 3. cap. 1. See more hereof in the third part of the Inſt. 2 Inſt. 189.

Perſons excommunicate] That is, he that is certified into Chancery by the biſhop to be excommunicated, and after is taken by force of the King's writ of excommunicato capiendo, (which is ſo called of words in the writ called a ſignificavit) is not bailable, for in ancient time men were excommunicated but for hereſies, propter lepram animæ, or other heinous cauſes of eccleſiaſtical conuſance, and not for ſmall or petty caſes; and therefore in thoſe caſes the party was not bailable by the ſheriff or gaoler without the King's writ; but if the party offered ſufficient caution de parendo parendo mandatis eccleſiæ in forma juris, then ſhould the party have the King's writ to the biſhop to accept his caution, and to cauſe him to be delivered, and if the biſhop will not ſend to the ſheriff to deliver him, then ſhall he have a writ out of the Chancery to the ſheriff for his delivery: or if he be excommunicated for a temporal cauſe, or for a matter whereof the eccleſiaſtical court hath no conuſance, he ſhall be delivered by the King's writ without any ſatisfaction. 2 Inſt. 189.

One taken by an excommunicato capiendo upon the ſtat. 5 Eliz. cap. 23. and brought to the bar by hab. corp. was bailed, by the opinion of all the juſtices, contra Williams. Bulſt. 122. Paſch. 9 Jac. Anon. Ibid. Yelverton J. ſaid that ſo it was reſolved in one Keyſer's caſe, where he was taken by a writ de excommunicato capiendo, brought hither by a habeas corpus, and upon cauſe ſhewed, he was bailed by the court de die in diem; but neither the ſheriff, nor any juſtice of the peace in the county can bail ſuch a one, but the court here may well bail one, as in the caſe before, de die in diem.

Manifeſt offences] Or for open or manifeſt offences; for, as has been ſaid, bail is quando ſtat indifferenter, and not when the offence is open and manifeſt. 2 Inſt. 189.

One was found guilty of felony, but it being doubted whether clergy was allowable or not, he was reprieved without judgment; and the juſtices held, that he is not bailable, becauſe by his being convicted, he is more than one vehemently ſuſpected; and the intendment of the law in bails is quod ſtat indifferenter, if he be guilty or not, till trial, &c. D. 179. a. pl. 42. Paſch. 2 Eliz. Anon. Jenk. 219. pl. 88. S. P. And as to him that is convicted, two juries have paſſed upon him, and it is evident that he is guilty; by all the judges of England.

Treaſon] For by the Common law, a man accuſed or indicted of high treaſon, or of any felony whatſoever, was bailable upon good ſurety; for at the Common law, the gaol was his pledge or ſurety that could find none; and this appears by Glanvil, who ſays, Is qui accuſatur, ut prædiximus, per plegios ſalvos & ſecuros ſolet attachiari, aut ſi plegios non habuerit, in carcerem detrudi; ſo as a man by the Common law was bailable for any offence until he were convicted; and this ſeems to be the old law of the land before the Conqueſt, viz. Ingenuus quiſque fidejuſſores, qui eum (ſi quando in crimen vocetur) jus ſuum cuique tribuere quam paratiſſimum fore præſtent, fidiſſimos adhibeto. 2 Inſt. 189.

In no wiſe repleviſable] That is, the ſheriffs ſhall not replevy them by the common writ de homine replegiando; nor without writ, that is, ex officio; but all or any of theſe may be bailed in the King's Bench, &c. 2 Inſt. 189.

Larceny] This act divides larceny into two kinds, viz. grand and petit; grand larceny is when the thing ſtolen is above the value of 12*d.* and petit larceny is, when it is of the value of 12*d.* or under, and the things ſtolen are to be reaſonably valued; for the ounce of ſilver, at the making of this act, was at the value of 20*d.* and now it is of the value of 5*s.* and above. 2 Inſt. 189, 190.

Sheriffs] That is, of ſheriffs in their tournes, or lords in their leets, or thoſe that have infang-thief, and out-fang-thief, &c. 2 Inſt. 190.

Let out by ſufficient ſurety] That is to be underſtood where the indictment was taken before the ſheriff in his tourn, for here he was judge of the cauſe, for other priſoners could not be bailed without writ; and if the ſheriff, having ſufficient ſurety offered to him, refuſed to bail him, he ſhould have a writ de manucaptione directed to the ſheriff to take pledges of him; and if the bailiff of a hundred (which is intended of a ſteward in a leet) refuſed to take pledges of one indicted before him, the priſoner ſhould have had a writ de manucaptione to the ſheriff to take pledges of him, and all this appears by the writ de manucaptione; but ſince this time this writ of manucaptione is taken away by the ſtatute of 28 Ed. 3. 2 Inſt. 190.

Without giving aught of their goods] For neither the ſheriff, nor other of the King's officers, could take any thing for doing his office. 2 Inſt. 190.

If he be ſheriff, &c. of fee] So that at this time there were ſheriffwicks in fee, and conſtablewicks and bailiwicks in fee, which had the keeping of priſons; theſe, being attainted of letting to bail of any priſoner not bailable, ſhould loſe the fee and bailiwick for ever; and upon office found, the King ſhould have the inheritance of the office in him to be grantable over. 2 Inſt. 190.

And if the under ſheriff] Note; the action of the under-ſheriff, or under-bailiff, without the aſſent of his ſuperior, is no forfeiture of the fee, or bailiwick of his ſuperior, tho' in many other caſes the ſuperior ſhall anſwer for his deputy. 2 Inſt. 191.

If any withhold priſoners repleviſable] Here it appeareth that to deny a man plevin that is pleviſable, and thereby to detain him in priſon, is a great offence, and grievouſly to be puniſhed. 2 Inſt. 191.

By ſtat. 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 13. ſect. 2. No juſtice or juſtices of peace ſhall let to bail or mainprize, any perſons forbidden to be repleviſed or bailed by ſtat. 3 Ed. 1. c. 15.

Upon an aſſembly of all the juſtices and barons of the Exchequer at Serjeants-Inn in Fleet-Street, this term, it was reſolved by them, and ſo agreed to be hereafter put in execution in all circuits; that if a man taken for felony be examined by a juſtice of peace, and it appeareth that the felon is not bailable by law, and yet the juſtices commit him to gaol as upon ſuſpicion of felony, not making mention for any cauſe for which he is not bailable, whereby he is brought before another juſtice of peace not knowing of any matter why he ought not to be bailed, whereupon they bail him, theſe juſtices ought to be fined by the ſtatute of 1 & 2 Ph. & Mar. for they offend if they bail him, who by the ſtatute of Weſtm. 1. is not bailable, and therefore they at their peril ought ſo to inform themſelves, before the bail taken, of the matter, that they may be well ſatisfied that ſuch a one is bailable by law; and therefore obſerve well the ſtatute of Weſtm. 1. cap. 18. who is bailable and who is not by the law. Poph. 96. pl. 1. Trin. 37 Eliz.——2 Hawk. Pl. C. 90. cap. 15. ſ. 12. S. P. and cites S. C.——And ibid. ſ. 15. ſays, that the offence of denying or obſtructing bail, where it ought to be granted, ſeems to be a miſdemeanor not only by the Statute, but alſo by the Common law, and puniſhable thereby as an offence againſt the liberty of the ſubject, not only by action at the ſuit of the party wrongfully impriſoned, but alſo by indictment at the ſuit of the King. But ibid. ſ. 14. ſays, It ſeems clear, that he who has power to bail another, is not bound to demand of him to find ſureties, and to forbear committing him till he ſhall refuſe to find them, but may well juſtify his commitment, unleſs the party himſelf ſhall offer his ſureties.

One indicted and found guilty of the death of a man by miſadventure, as by caſting a ſtone over a houſe, and by chance killing a man, woman, or child, is not bailable. Coke of Bail, &c. c. 5. cites 3 Ed. 3. Corone 354.

So if one indicted be found guilty of the death of a man ſe defendendo, he ought not by law to be bailed; for according to Bracton's rule, Invenientur culpabiles. Coke of Bail, &c. c. 5.

One indicted of conſpiracy, viz. that he with others conſpired falſely to indict another of murder or felony, by means whereof he was indicted, and afterwards convicted, ſhall not be bailed. Coke of Bail, &c. cap. 5. and ſays, that this was the reſolution of all the judges, upon the queſtion demanded by King Ed. III. himſelf, as appears 27 Aſſ. 1.

One indicted for burglary may be bailed. Coke of Bail, &c. c. 5. cites 29 Aſſ. 44.

One indicted or appeal'd of robbery may be bailed. Coke of Bail, &c. c. 5. cites 44 Ed. 3. 3.

One indicted or appeal'd of rape may be bailed; yet that was no felony at Common law, till the ſtat. Weſtm. 2. cap. 34. Coke of Bail, &c. c. 5. cites 44 Ed. 3. 38.

Appeal

Appeal in B. R. againſt R. for ſtealing eight pigs, and it was awarded that the defendant ſhall remain, without being let to mainpriſe, becauſe it was reported to the court by a ſolicitor, that he was not of good fame, and he ſaid that he bought pigs of two men; and it was held by the juſtices, that if he could bring in any proof that he bought them, that then he ſhould go by mainpriſe; and the ſame if thoſe, of whom he ſaid he bought them, would come and teſtify that they ſold them to the appellee. Br. Corone, pl. 162.

A man was taken by capias utlagatum in felony by name of J. S. gent. who ſaid that his name is yeoman, and not gentleman, and ſo is not this perſon who is outlawed, and had the plea; and becauſe it was in appeal, ſcire facias was awarded againſt the appellant, if he could ſay any thing againſt this plea, and the defendant was let to bail. Br. Utlagary, pl. 42.

The intendment of law in bails is, that it ſtands indifferent whether he be guilty or not, till trial, &c. Dyer 179.

If a perſon be committed by her Majeſty's commandment from her perſon, or by order from the council-board, or if any one or two of her council commit one for high treaſon, ſuch perſons ſo in the caſe before committed, may not be delivered by any of her courts without due trial by the law, and judgment of acquittal had; nevertheleſs the judges may award the Queen's writ, to bring the bodies of ſuch perſons before them; and if upon return thereof the cauſes of their commitment be certified to the judges, as it ought to be, then the judges in the caſes before mentioned ought not to deliver him, but to remand the priſoner to the place from whence he came, which cannot conveniently be done, unleſs notice of cauſe in generality, or elſe ſpecially, be given to the keeper or gaoler that ſhall have the cuſtody of ſuch priſoner; and to this all the judges and barons, &c. did ſubſcribe their names, and deliver'd one to the lord chancellor, and one to the lord treaſurer. And. 298.

If a man be indicted as principal of the death of a man, he is not to be bailed; but if indicted as acceſſary before or after, he is bailable. Coke of Bail, &c. c. 5.

If one be appealed by an approver, and be of good and honeſt fame, he may be bailed during the life of the approver. Coke of Bail, &c. c. 5.

One indicted for putting out eyes, or cutting out of tongues, may be bailed. Coke of Bail, &c. c. 5.

The defendant was indicted for murder, and the trial coming on, the proſecutor alledged, that there had been great labouring of the jury, and therefore did non proceed, ſuſpecting a partial jury, but brought an appeal; and tho' by the appeal the indictment ſtill continued, and was not gone, yet the delay being occaſioned by the proſecutor, the party was bailed; but by Crooke J. If the labouring the jury had been prov'd, peradventure he would not be bailable. Bulſt. 85.

The jury on an indictment of murder found a ſpecial verdict, whereupon the court were divided, two againſt one, and thereupon the priſoner moved to be bailed, but all the court denied it; and as for the verdict, there was a curia adviſare, and the matter adjourned, and the priſoner carried away in cuſtody. Bulſt. 89.

A precedent was ſhewn, where a man was indicted for high treaſon, and bailed. Bulſt. 85.

If the court of B. R. commits a man, or if the chief juſtice of B. R. commits a man, he is not bailable by any, tho' no cauſe be declared, and peradventure there is a cauſe which touches the ſtate, and which is not convenient to be known. Rol. Rep. 134.

The defendant was found guilty of manſlaughter on the coroner's inqueſt, and moved to be bailed, becauſe there was no indictment, but denied; and per Coke and Haughton, the ſtatute of Weſtm. is, that no bail ſhall be taken, but that muſt be intended no ordinary bail; and the ſtatute of Queen Mary is, that bail ſhall be taken where the party is bailable by law in manſlaughter, ſo that it appears he is not bailable at all if he confeſs the fact, or if it is notorious. Rol. Rep. 268.

Bail was allowed in murder, becauſe the priſoners were in danger of ſtarving, and no trial could ſoon be had, tho' it was againſt the ſtatute, but it may have a favourable conſtruction at the diſcretion of the judges. Lat. 12.

The court did take bail for a priſoner againſt whom an appeal of murder was brought, becauſe he did not fly for the murder ſuppoſed, and had been formerly indicted for this murder, and acquitted upon the indictment (Mich. 22 Car. B. R.) upon which preſumptions they conceived he was not guilty, elſe they would not have bailed him. Lil. P. R. 173.

A woman who had been twice indicted of witchcraft before, and acquitted, being indicted a third time, moved to be bailed, inſiſting that the proſecution was for malice, and ſhe was bailed accordingly to appear at the next aſſizes. Sty. 116.

A. and C. to whom A. was ſecond in a duel, were formerly indicted for killing a man, and found guilty of manſlaughter only by the grand inqueſt, and being brought to the bar to be arraigned for it, were denied to be bailed. Sty. 371.

Roll Ch. J. ſaid, he doubted whether one indicted of perjury may be bailed, tho' the clerks of the criminal ſide ſaid he might. Sty. 368.

One committed by the council of ſtate and the parliament, for publiſhing a ſeditious pamphlet, was denied to be bailed. Sty. 397.

One indicted on ſuſpicion of robbery was outlawed, and taken on the outlawry, and brought writ of error, and being brought to B. R. by habeas corpus, prayed to be bailed, and took two exceptions to the indictment; 1ſt, That he was in priſon, and knew nothing of the outlawry; 2dly, That the charge is too general, and nobody proſecutes; but per Roll Ch. J. he cannot be bailed. Sty. 418.

One brought out of Wales by habeas corpus, moved to be bailed, becauſe they had no gaol-delivery there; and by Roll Ch. J. he was bailed to the next aſſizes. Sty. 418.

A perſon accuſed of high treaſon, and not within the habeas corpus act, is not de jure to be bailed by this court. Raym. 381. Trin. 32 Car. 2. B. R. in a memorandum there, cites it as reſolved in Ld. Stafford's caſe.

The defendant being indicted for murder at the quarter ſeſſions, and the indictment being removed into B. R. by certiorari, the defendant appeared, and pleaded Not guilty, and he moved to be bailed, which the court granted, being ſatisfied by ſeveral affidavits that there was good reaſon for it. 2 Jo. 222.

The court of B. R. has power to bail in all caſes of treaſon. Skin. 163. cites the opinion of the judges in the houſe of Lords, 1678, in Zachary Crofton's caſe.

B. R. may bail in caſes where they cannot try the party bailed; perſons taken here for offences committed in Ireland are bailed here to appear in Ireland, tho' they cannot be tried here. Skin. 163.

So any lord of parliament committed for high treaſon by a juſtice of peace, or ſecretary of ſtate, may be bailed in B. R. tho' he cannot be tried there. Skin. 163.

Per cur', We are not bound to bail a man committed for ſuſpicion of murder, where 'tis expreſſed that a man was killed, tho' the coroner's inqueſt find it but manſlaughter; but we ought to have the examination before us, and if it appears to be a caſe of hardſhip, we may bail. Comb. 298.

'Tis not proper for juſtices of peace to give copies of examinations about murder, and where it is found homicide by the coroner, yet he ought to commit the criminal. Comb. 298.

Two were committed by warrant from the ſecretary of ſtate for high treaſon, in aſſiſting the eſcape of Sir James Montgomery, who was committed by the ſecretary of ſtate for high treaſon; but becauſe it was not expreſs'd in the commitment what was the ſpecies of Sir James Montgomery's treaſon, and theſe perſons are to be charged with the ſame ſpecies of treaſon, therefore the court held that they were bailable. Comb. 343.

An indictment was found againſt B. at the ſeſſions at N. for petty treaſon, and murder of her huſband; ſhe was brought to the bar, and moved to be bailed, and it appearing pearing upon affidavits of the fact, that the profecution was malicious, and nothing being done, either upon this indictment or the coroner's inqueſt, and the man being dead above a year, ſhe was bailed. 5 Mod. 323.

The Lord Mohun having been bailed by Holt Ch. J. appeared upon the laſt day of the term; and he being in court, it was prayed that he ſtand committed, there being an indictment of murder found againſt him by the grand jury; this was oppoſed by his council, becauſe he being bailed by the Ch. J. and he having all the informations before him, and the ſame witneſſes being ſworn upon the indictment as upon the inquiſition before the coroner, there would be the ſame reaſon for him to ſtand upon the firſt bail, as there was at firſt to admit him to bail; but it was anſwered, that there would be a difference between an inquiſition found before a coroner where the depoſitions are in writing, and examinable, and an indictment for murder, found before a grand jury where the evidence is ſecret, and they are ſworn not to diſcover it; and there may be more evidence given to a grand jury than was given to the coroner, and more evidence may be alſo given upon the trial than was given to the grand jury, for the party may conceal part of his evidence to prevent practices; and the court ſeemed to incline ſtrongly, to commit him upon what had been ſaid; but when it was added, that there would be a ſeſſions of parliament within two or three days, they committed him; and it was ſaid, that if the lords in parliament pleaſed, they might remove the judgment by certiorari, and admit him to bail there. Skin. 683.

The defendant was indicted for murder; the court would not bail him, tho' the evidence upon the reading did not ſeem ſufficient to prove him guilty; for per Holt, Allowing bail may diſcourage the proſecution, and it is not fit the court ſhould declare their opinion of the evidence beforehand. 1 Salk. 104.

One charged with buggery is not bailable, per Holt Ch. J. 12 Mod. 435.

A man brought to this court by hab. corp. upon a commitment by a juſtice of the peace, who had cognizance of the cauſe, is not bailable till the order is quaſhed, becauſe till then he is in execution. 11 Mod. 45.

A motion was made for a habeas corpus to bring up the body of the defendant, charged with picking a pocket, and offered to bring unexceptionable bail, and to ſend down a tipſtaff to inquire of his reputation; per Holt Ch. J. Tho' we have diſcretionary power, yet it being certified (ſworn) that he was charged with the fact, I think we ought to refuſe to bail him; which (on conſulting his companions) he accordingly did. 11 Mod. 261.

It was doubted, whether perſons committed by rule of court are intitled to the benefit of the habeas corpus act; and it was reſolved by two judges, viz. Eyre and Forteſcue, (abſente Powis & diſſentiente Pratt) that none are intitled to make their prayer, but ſuch as are committed by warrant of a juſtice of peace, or ſecretary of ſtate, and not thoſe committed by rule of court; for that is not in the meaning of the act of parliament, (a commitment by warrant.) 10 Mod. 429.

2. What perſons are authorized to take bail.

By the Common law, according to ſome opinions, the ſheriff, without any writ, might ex officio, as principal conſervator of the peace, bail any perſon arreſted on ſuſpicion of felony; and it is certain, that by the Common law he might bail any perſon who was indicted before him at his torn for felony, or any other crime that is bailable. See 2 Hawk. P. C. 93.

Alſo bail is grantable by a ſheriff by virtue of the following writs; 1. By that of odio & atia, by which a perſon committed for the death of a man might, on an inqueſt taken by the ſheriff, if he were found to have done the fact by miſadventure or ſe defendendo, be mainprized by 12 men, upon the writ de ponendo in ballium; but this ſeems obſolete at this day. Co. Bail and Mainprize, c. 10. 2 Hawk. P. C. 93. 1 Hawk. P. C. 76.

2dly, By writ of mainprize, which of late has been diſuſed, but ſeems ſtill in force, and may be brought by perſons bailable, as thoſe who are impriſoned for a ſlight ſuſpicion of felony or indicted of larceny, before the ſteward of a leet, or of a treſpaſs before juſtices of the peace, &c. Regiſter 269. H. P. C. 103, 104. 2 Hawk. P. C. 93.

3dly, That of homine replegiando, whereon if he return that the plaintiff is eſloigned, he may by capias of withernam impriſon the defendant, whether he be a peer or commoner, till the plaintiff ſhall be replevied. F. N. B. 66. Regiſt. 78, 79.

It ſeems clear, that wherever juſtices of the peace have power to hear and determine any offence which is bailable within the ſtatute Weſtm. 1. any one of ſuch juſtices ſeems conſequently to have power to bail any perſon indicted at the ſeſſions for ſuch offence, becauſe every ſuch juſtice is a judge of the court which is to determine it. H. P. C. 105. Coke, Bail and Mainprize, cap. 6. Lamb. 347. 2 Hawk. P. C. 103.

Alſo every juſtice of the peace has a diſcretionary power of admitting perſons to bail who have given a dangerous wound. 2 Hawk. P. C. 103.

But the power of juſtices of admitting to bail, is chiefly regulated by acts of Parliament, to which purpoſe it is recited by 1 R. 3. cap. 3. "That divers perſons had been daily arreſted and impriſoned for ſuſpicion of felony, ſometime of malice, and ſometime of a light ſuſpicion, and ſo kept in priſon without bail or mainprize, to their great vexation and trouble; and thereupon it is enacted, That every juſtice of the peace, in every ſhire, city or town, may by his or their diſcretion let ſuch priſoners and perſons ſo arreſted to bail or mainprize, in like form as though the ſame priſoners or perſons were indicted thereof of record before the ſame juſtices at their ſeſſions."

But this ſtatute, ſo far as it gives ſuch power to a ſingle juſtice, is repealed by 3 Hen. 7. cap. 3. which enacteth, "That juſtices of the peace, or two of them at the leaſt, whereof one to be of the quorum, have power to bail any perſon mainpernable by law, to their next general ſeſſions, or to the next general gaol-delivery, as well within franchiſe as without; and that the ſame juſtices, or one of them, ſhall certify the ſame to ſuch ſeſſions or gaol-delivery, on pain of 10*l.*"

But theſe ſtatutes have been often abuſed, by juſtices of the peace bailing perſons in the name of two juſtices, where one only was preſent, and for offences not bailable; therefore,

It is enacted by 1 & 2 Ph. & Mar. cap. 13. "That no juſtice ſhall bail any perſon for offences declared to be irrepleviſable by Weſtm. 1. and that no perſon arreſted for manſlaughter or felony, or ſuſpicion thereof, ſhall be let to bail or mainprize by any juſtices of the peace, if it be not in open ſeſſions, except it be by two juſtices at the leaſt, and one to be of the quorum, and the ſame juſtices to be preſent together at the time; which bailment or mainprize they ſhall certify in writing, ſubſcribed or ſigned by them at the next general gaol-delivery; and ſuch juſtices, before ſuch bailment for felony, ſhall take the examination of the priſoner, and the information of them that bring him, of the fact and circumſtances thereof, and ſhall put in writing ſo much thereof as ſhall be material, before they make the bailment, and ſhall certify ſuch examination and bailment to the next general gaol-delivery, and ſhall have authority to bind all ſuch by recognizance or obligation, as to declare any thing material to prove the ſaid offences, to appear at the next general gaol-delivery, and to give evidence, &c. and ſhall certify the ſaid evidence and bonds, &c. before the time of the trial; and if any juſtice of quorum ſhall offend againſt this act, he ſhall be fined in diſcretion by the juſtices of gaol-delivery, or proof by examination before them, &c. But it is provided, That juſtices in Middleſex, and in cities, boroughs, and towns corporate, ſhall have authority to bail priſoners in ſuch manner as was before accuſtomed, and alſo ſhall take examination and bonds as aforeſaid upon every bailment-bond and examination at the next general gaol-delivery."

The authority given to one juſtice of the peace by 1 Ric. 3. to admit perſons to bail for felony, being repealed by 3 H. 7. and 1 & 2 Ph. & Mar. one juſtice of the peace cannot admit perſons to bail, unleſs it be for an offence directly tending to the breach of the peace, the reſtraint whereof is the chief end of his office, or for an offence by ſtatute put under the conuzance of one juſtice, or for an offence indictable at the ſeſſions. 2 Hawk. P. C. 105.

But though the ſtatute of Ph. & Mar. has preſcribed the ſtatute of Weſtm. 1. as a pattern for juſtices to follow in relation to bail, and it therefore follows, that a perſon under an actual arreſt for any crime, declared to be irrepleviſable by that act, cannot be bailed by any juſtice; yet if a perſon at large be only accuſed of ſuch crime on a ſlight ſuſpicion, before a juſtice of the peace, it ſeems that the juſtice ought not to commit him, but ought to take ſurety from him to appear before a proper court. 2 Hawk. P. C. 105.

Alſo the ſtatute of 1 & 2 Ph. & Mar. expreſly mentioning the bailing of perſons for manſlaughter, as well as for other felonies, it is clear, that juſtices of the peace may by force thereof ſafely bail any perſon impriſoned on a ſlight ſuſpicion of a fact appearing to be no higher an offence than manſlaughter; and much more if it appear to amount to no more than homicide by miſadventure, or in ſelf-defence; but the juſtices ought to be cautious the offence does not amount to murder; alſo that there be no violent preſumptions that the party did the fact; for if any ſuch appear, the party ought not to be bailed, though the offence amount to no more than homicide by miſadventure or ſelf-defence. 2 Hawk. P. C. 105. 1 Rol. Rep. 268. H. P. C. 99. Dalt. c. 114. Lamb. 346. 2 Inſt. 314.

Juſtices of gaol-delivery not being within the reſtraint of the ſtatute of Weſtm. 1. may bail perſons convicted before them of homicide by miſadventure, or ſelf-defence, the better to enable them to purchaſe their pardon. Cromp. 154. a. H. P. C. 101. F. N. B. 246. S. P. C. 15.

Alſo it ſeems that in diſcretion they may bail a perſon convicted before them of manſlaughter, upon ſpecial circumſtances, as if the evidence againſt him were ſlight, or if he had purchaſed his pardon. H. P. C. 101. Cromp. 153.

Alſo if an appellee plead an excommunication in diſability of the plaintiff, it ſeems they may bail him till the plaintiff ſhall be abſolved; for otherwiſe the appellee might lie in priſon for ever, without having any opportunity of coming to his trial. 2 Hawk. P. C. 106. 1 Salk. 61.

And whereas ſuch juſtices have power to admit perſons to bail, it ſeems that they may do it after their ſeſſions is over, as well as during their ſeſſions. 2 Hawk. P. C. 106.

The court of King's Bench, by the plenitude of its power, may in diſcretion admit perſons to bail, though committed by other courts for crimes not bailable by thoſe courts, on conſideration of the nature and circumſtances of the caſe. Vaugh. 157. 6 Mod. 73. 2 H. P. C. 112.

But here it muſt be obſerved, that with reſpect to the nature of the offence, although this court is not tied down by the rules preſcribed by the ſtat. of Weſtm. 1. yet it will in diſcretion pay a due regard to the rules preſcribed by it, and not admit a perſon to bail who is expreſly declared to be irrepleviſable, without ſome particular circumſtances in his favour. 2 Inſt. 185, 186, 189. H. P. C. 104. 1 Salk. 61. 3 Bulſt. 113. 2 Hawk. P. C. 113, 114. 5 Mod. 454.

And therefore if a perſon be attainted of felony, or convicted thereof by verdict general or ſpecial, or notoriouſly guilty of treaſon or manſlaughter, &c. by his own confeſſion or otherwiſe, he is not to be admitted to bail without ſome ſpecial motive to induce the court to grant it. Kelynge 90. Dyer 79. 1 Bulſt. 87. 2 Hawk. P. C. 114.

As where a perſon taken by a capias utlagatum on an appeal of felony, by the name of J. S. gentleman, pleads that his name is J. S. yeoman, and not gentleman, and ſo he is not the ſame perſon that was outlawed; in which caſe, the court in diſcretion may bail him, for until the plea be determined, it appears not whether he were the perſon intended or not. 2 Hawk. P. C. 114.

So if a man is convicted of felony upon evidence, by which it plainly appears to the court that he is not guilty of it; in which caſe even the juſtices of gaol-delivery may bail him. Cromp. Juſtice 154. 2 Hawk. P. C. 114.

Or where a proſecution is unreaſonably delayed, or where the priſoner may be in danger of loſing his life, either by famine or dangerous diſtemper, &c. unleſs he be bailed. 5 Mod. 455. 1 Sid. 78. 1 Bulſt. 85. Palm. 558. 1 Keb. 305. Latch 12. Cro. Jac. 356. Co. Lit. 289.

The court of King's Bench hath always admitted perſons to bail impriſoned by the King's ſpecial command, or by order of the privy council, where the commitments expreſſed the crime or cauſe for which the party was committed, or the like circumſtances, on which in diſcretion it will grant bail on other commitments. 5 Mod. 78. 1 Sid. 143. Palm. 559.

But it was formerly holden by many, and at length adjudged in Sir John Corbet's caſe, that perſons committed by the ſpecial command of the King, ſignified by warrant from the lords of the privy council, were not bailable without the King's conſent, unleſs there appeared ſome extraordinary circumſtances in the caſe, it being to be preſumed that the King would not exert his prerogative in ſuch a manner, without ſome good reaſon for the ſafety of the ſtate, not fit to be divulged; but this being thought to be a great ſtrain of the prerogative, and to make the liberty of the ſubject precarious, and contrary to the purport of Magna Charta, and many other ſtatutes, which declared, that no man ſhall be impriſoned but by due proceſs of law, &c. occaſioned the petition of rights 13 Car. 1. and the 16 Car. 1. cap. 10. by which it ſeems now eſtabliſhed, that where commitments by the privy council do not with convenient certainty expreſs the crime alledged againſt the party, he ought to be bailed. 33 Hen. 6. 28. b. 1 And. 298. 1 Rol. Rep. 134, 192, 219. Con. Moor 839. 1 And. 158. F. N. B. 66. S. P. C. 72. See Ruſhworth's Collections, part 1. fo. 458.

The great regard which is ſo juſtly due, and which has always been paid, to the proceeding of either houſe of parliament, who are the guardians of the liberty of the ſubject, make it ſomewhat doubtful in what caſes the court of King's Bench will diſcharge or bail a perſon committed by either of thoſe houſes. See Cro. Car. 507, 579, 593. 2 Hawk. P. C. 110.

Hence no precedent can be found, where the court of King's Bench has bailed a priſoner, ſitting the parliament, on a commitment, which on the return of it ſtands indifferent whether it be ſtrictly legal or not. 2 Hawk. P. C. 110.

And therefore in the Lord Shaftſbury's caſe, who upon his habeas corpus in the King's Bench was returned to have been committed by the houſe of lords, for a high contempt committed againſt the houſe; the court would not take notice of any exceptions againſt the form of the commitment; as that was it too general, and did not expreſs the nature of the contempt, or in what place it was committed, &c. for that it ſhall be preſumed that it was ſuch for which the lords might lawfully make ſuch an order, and no other court ſhall preſcribe to them in what form they ought to make it. 1 Mod. 144, 145, &c.

But a perſon committed for a contempt by the order of either houſe of parliament may be diſcharged by the court of King's Bench after a diſſolution or prorogation of the parliament, whether he were commited during the ſeſſions or afterwards; for that all the orders of parliament are determined by a diſſolution or prorogation, and all matters before either houſe muſt be commenced a-new at the next parliament, except only in the caſe of a writ of error; and if the ſubject ſhould be deprived of his liberty till the next parliament, which perhaps may not meet again in many years, no one could ſay when his impriſonment would end. 2 Hawk. P. C. 111. 1 Keb. 871, 887, 889. 1 Sid. 245. 1 Lev. 165. 1 Mod. 155, 157.

And though the court of King's Bench may in their diſcretion bail a lord upon an impeachment of high treaſon, ſon, after a diſſolution or prorogation of the parliament, yet may they refuſe it, not as a matter out of their power, but as a thing which they are not bound to do, and improper on conſideration of the whole circumſtances of the affair. Raym. 381. Lord Stafford's caſe.

B A I

The Earl of Shaftſbury was impeached for being reconciled to the church of Rome, by the convention that was turned into a parliament 1 W. & M. and lay in the Tower till the next parliament, which being adjourned for two months, he moved to be diſcharged on the act of oblivion wherein neither his crime nor his perſon were excepted, but clearly within the act of pardon; the court held, that it ſhould be pleaded with proper averments, which could not be done here, becauſe there was nothing before the court upon which to ground ſuch plea; and that as to the bailing him, this being a ſhort adjournment, the application for that purpoſe ſhould be to the parliament. Carth. 131, 132. 1 Show. 100.

In former days, and particularly at the time when Sir Edward Coke was chief juſtice, ſeveral perſons committed to the Fleet by the lord chancellor were bailed by the court of King's Bench, upon exceptions to the generality of the form of the commitments. 1 New Abr. 225.

Alſo one Glanvil, who was generally committed by the command of the lord chancellor, without ſetting forth any cauſe of ſuch command, ſeems to have been bailed upon examination of the merits of the decree, for diſobeying whereof he was in truth committed; whereby it appeared that the decree related to a matter before adjudged at the Common law; which was thought contrary to the purport of 27 Ed. 3. cap. 1. and 4 H. 4. cap. 23. But this proceeding being reſented by the lord chancellor, the ſaid Glanvil was afterwards recommitted by him for the ſame matter, and yet was afterwards on another habeas corpus bailed the ſecond time by the court of King's Bench. 1 Rol. Rep. 111, 219. Moor 838. 2 Bulſt. 301. Cro. Jac. 343. 3 Bulſt. 115. 1 Rol. Rep.

But as there have been no ſuch proceedings of late days, the diſuſe of them has certainly leſſen'd, if not wholly removed the force of theſe reſolutions, eſpecially as it is now eſtabliſhed, that a court of equity can give relief after a judgment at law; for otherwiſe it would have no power of moderating the rigour of the law, it being in many caſes very doubtful what the law is before it be determined; the ſuperior courts therefore will put the moſt favourable conſtruction on one another's proceedings, and not intend that they acted beyond their juriſdiction. 2 Hawk. P. C. 111, 112.

The court of King's Bench having the ſupreme controul of all inferior courts, may in diſcretion admit perſons to bail committed by ſuch courts, upon conſideration of the whole circumſtances of the caſe; as the length of the impriſonment, the enormity, or dangerous tendency, or notoriety, or ſmall conſequence of the offence, or obſtinacy of the offender, or the dignity of the court by which he was committed, and other ſuch like circumſtances; of which the court will receive information by ſuggeſtion or affidavit, being conſiſtent with the return of the habeas corpus. Vaugh. 157. 6 Mod. 73. 2 Hawk. P. C. 112.

The courts of Common Pleas and Exchequer, at any time during term, and the Chancery, either in term or vacation, may by the Common law award a habeas corpus for any perſon committed for a crime under the degree of felony or treaſon; and thereupon diſcharge him, if it ſhall plainly appear by the return that the commitment was illegal, or bail him if it ſhall appear doubtful. 2 Inſt. 53, 55, 615. 4 Inſt. 290. Vaugh. 154. 2 And. 297. Daliſon 81. 3 Leon. 18. 2 Jones 13, 14. 2 Mod. 198.

3. Of ſufficient, inſufficient, and exceſſive bail.

No perſon ſhall be bailed for felony by leſs than two, and it is ſaid not to be uſual for the King's Bench to bail a man on a habeas corpus, on a commitment for treaſon or felony, without four ſureties; the ſum in which the ſureties are to be bound, ought to be never leſs than 40*l.* for a capital crime; but it may be higher in diſcretion, on conſideration of the ability and quality of the priſoner and the nature of the offence; and the ſureties may be examined on oath concerning the ſufficiency, by him that takes the bail; and if a perſon be bailed by inſufficient ſureties, he may be required either by him who took the bail, or by any other who hath power to bail him, to find better ſureties, and on his refuſal may be committed; for inſufficient ſureties are as none. 2 Hawk. P. C. 88. H. P. C. 97.

But juſtices muſt take care that, under pretence of demanding ſufficient ſurety, they do not make ſo exceſſive a demand, as in effect amounts to a denial of bail; for this is looked upon as a great grievance, and is complained of as ſuch by 1 W. & M. ſeſſ. 2. by which it is declared, that exceſſive bail ought not to be required. 2 Hawk. P. C. 89.

If the party bailed by inſufficient ſureties, do not appear according to the condition of the recognizance, the juſtice, &c. who bailed him is fineable by the juſtices of aſſiſe; but if he appear, it ſeems that the perſon who bailed him is excuſed. S. P. C. 333. H. P. C. 97.

By the declaration of rights 1 Will. ſeſſ. 2. c. 2. exceſſive bail ought not to be required.

4. Of granting bail where it ought to be denied, and denying it where it ought to be granted.

The bailing a perſon not bailable by law, is puniſhable at Common law, as a negligent eſcape, or as an offence againſt the ſeveral following ſtatutes. 2 Hawk. P. C. 89.

By the ſtatute of Weſtm. 1. cap. 15. it is enacted, "That if the ſheriff or any other let any go at large by ſurety that is not repleviſable, if he be ſheriff or conſtable, or any other bailiff of fee, which hath keeping of priſons, and be thereof attainted, he ſhall loſe his fee and office for ever; and if the under-ſheriff, conſtable or bailiff of ſuch as have fee for keeping of priſons, do it contrary to the will of his lord, or any other bailiff, being not in fee, they ſhall have three years impriſonment and make fine at the King's pleaſure."

Alſo it is enacted by 27 Ed. 1. commonly called the ſtatute de finibus levatis, cap. 3. "That the juſtices aſſigned to take aſſiſes, &c. when they deliver the gaols, &c. ſhall enquire if ſheriffs, or any other, have let out by replevin priſoners not repleviſable, or have offended in any thing contrary to the form of the ſaid ſtatute of Weſtm. 1. and whom they ſhall find guilty, they ſhall chaſten and puniſh in all things according to the form of the ſaid ſtatute."

And it is further enacted by 4 E. 3. cap. 2. "That at the time of the aſſignment of keepers of the peace, mention ſhall be made, that ſuch as ſhall be indicted or taken by them, ſhall not be let to mainprize by the ſheriffs, nor by none other miniſters, if they be not mainpernable by law, nor that none who are indicted ſhall be delivered but by the common law; and that the juſtices aſſigned to deliver gaols, ſhall have power to enquire of ſheriffs, gaolers and others, in whoſe ward ſuch perſons indicted ſhall be, if they make deliverance, or let to mainprize any ſo indicted, which be not mainpernable, and to puniſh the ſaid ſheriffs, gaolers and others, if they do any thing againſt the ſaid act."

And it is enacted by 1 & 2 P. & M. cap. 13. "That no juſtice or juſtices of the peace ſhall let to bail or mainprize, any perſon or perſons, which for any offence or offences by them or any of them committed, be declared not to be repleviſed or bailed, or be forbidden to be repleviſed or bailed by the abovementioned ſtatute of Weſtm. 1. cap. 15. and that the juſtices of gaol-delivery of the place where ſuch juſtices of the peace ſhall be guilty of ſuch offence, upon due proof thereof, by examination before them, ſhall for every ſuch offence ſet ſuch fine on every ſuch juſtice, as the ſame juſtices of gaol-delivery ſhall think meet."

Juſtices of the peace, before they bail a man under commitment, muſt at their peril inform themſelves of the cauſe for which he was committed; for if he were in truth committed for a cauſe not bailable by law, it is no excuſe that they did not know that he was committed for

for ſuch cauſe. Poph. 96. Dalt. c. 114. 2 Hawk. P. C. 90.

It is clearly agreed to be an offence by the Common law, as well as by Statute, and puniſhable by indictment, as well as by action, to deny or delay, or obſtruct bail where it ought to be granted. 14 H. 7. 7. H. P. C. 97. Dalt. 114. 2 Hawk. P. C. 90.

But it ſeems alſo clear, that he who has power to bail another, is not bound to demand of him to find ſureties, and to forbear committing him till he ſhall refuſe to find them, but may well juſtify his commitment, unleſs the party himſelf ſhall offer his ſureties. H. P. C. 97. 2 Hawk. P. C. 90.

The principal ſtatutes relating to this offence, are the above-mentioned ſtatute of Weſtm. 1. cap. 15. and the ſtatute De finibus, cap. 3. and 31 Car. 2. cap. 2. commonly called the Habeas corpus act; by the firſt whereof it is enacted, "That if any withhold priſoners repleviſable after that they have offered ſufficient ſurety, he ſhall pay a grievous amercement to the King; and if he take any reward for the deliverance of ſuch, he ſhall pay double to the priſoner, and ſhall alſo be in the great mercy of the King."

And by the latter of the ſaid ſtatutes it is enacted, "That juſtices of aſſiſe ſhall inquire if ſheriffs, or any other, have offended in any thing contrary to the ſaid ſtatute of Weſtm. and whom they ſhall find guilty, they ſhall puniſh in all things according to the form of the ſaid ſtatute."

5. Of bail by writ of habeas corpus.

If bail cannot otherwiſe be obtained, the law hath provided a remedy in moſt caſes by the habeas corpus act, 31 Car. 2. c. 2.

By this act it is recited, "That great delays had been uſed, by ſheriffs, gaolers, and other officers, to whoſe cuſtody the King's ſubjects had been committed for criminal, or ſuppoſed criminal matters, in making return of writs of habeas corpus, or by ſtanding out an alias and pluries, and ſometimes more; and by other ſhifts to avoid their yielding obedience to ſuch writs, contrary to their duty and the known laws of the land; whereby many ſubjects had been detained in priſon in ſuch caſes where by law they were bailable, &c. And thereupon it is enacted, "That whereſoever any perſon ſhall bring an habeas corpus directed to any perſon whatſoever, for any perſon in his cuſtody, and the ſaid writ ſhall be ſerved upon the ſaid officer, or left at the gaol or priſon with any of the under-officers, under-keepers, or deputy of the ſaid officers or keepers, or deputies; the officer, &c. ſhall within three days after ſuch ſervice thereof (unleſs the commitment were for treaſon or felony, plainly and eſpecially expreſſed in the warrant of commitment) upon payment or tender of the charges of bringing the ſaid priſoner, to be aſcertained by the judge or court that awarded the ſame, and endorſed on the ſaid writ, not exceeding 12*d. per* mile; and on ſecurity given by his own bond, to pay the charges of carrying back the priſoner, if he ſhould be remanded; and that he will not make any eſcape by the way; make return of ſuch writ, and bring, or cauſe to be brought, the body of the party ſo committed or reſtrained, unto or before the lord chancellor or lord keeper, or the judges or barons of the court from which the ſaid writ ſhall iſſue, or ſuch other perſons before whom the ſaid writ is made returnable, according to the command thereof; and ſhall then likewiſe certify the true cauſes of his detainer or impriſonment, unleſs the commitment be in a place beyond twenty miles diſtant, &c. and if beyond the diſtance of twenty, and not above one hundred miles, then within the ſpace of ten days; and if beyond the diſtance of one hundred miles, then within the ſpace of twenty days."

And it is further enacted, ſect. 3. "That all ſuch writs ſhall be marked in this manner, per ſtatutum tricesimo primo Caroli ſecundi regis, and ſhall be ſigned by the perſon that awards the ſame; and if any perſon ſhall be or ſtand committed or detained as aforeſaid, for any crime, unleſs for treaſon or felony, plainly expreſſed in the warrant of commitment, in the vacation time, it ſhall be lawful for ſuch perſon ſo committed or detained, (other than perſons convict or in execution by legal proceſs) or any one in his behalf, to complain to the lord chancellor or lord keeper, or any juſtice of either bench, or baron of the exchequer of the degree of the coif; and the ſaid lord chancellor, &c. juſtice or baron, on view of the copy of the warrant of the commitment, or otherwiſe on oath that it was denied, are authorized and required, on requeſt in writing, by ſuch perſon, or any in his behalf, atteſted and ſubſcribed by two witneſſes who were preſent at the delivery of the ſame, to grant an habeas corpus under the ſeal of the court whereof he ſhall be one of the judges, to be directed to the officer in whoſe cuſtody the party ſhall be, returnable immediatè before the ſaid lord chancellor, &c. juſtice or baron; and on ſervice thereof, as aforeſaid, the officer, &c. in whoſe cuſtody the party is, ſhall within the times reſpectively before limited, bring him before the ſaid lord chancellor, juſtice or baron before whom the writ is returnable; and in caſe of his abſence, before any other of them, with the return of ſuch writ, and the true cauſe of the commitment and detainer; and thereupon, within two days after the party ſhall be brought before them, the ſaid lord chancellor, juſtice or baron before whom the priſoner ſhall be brought, as aforeſaid, ſhall diſcharge the ſaid priſoner from his impriſonment, taking his recognizance with one or more ſureties, in any ſum according to their diſcretion, having regard to the quality of the priſoner and nature of the offence, for his appearance in the King's Bench the term following, or in ſuch other court wherein the offence is properly cognizable, as the caſe ſhall require, and then ſhall certify the ſaid writ, with the return thereof, and the recognizance into ſuch court, unleſs it be made appear to the ſaid lord chancellor, &c. that the party ſo committed is detained upon a legal proceſs, order, or warrant, out of ſome court that hath juriſdiction of criminal matters, or by ſome warrant ſigned and ſealed with the hand and ſeal of any of ſaid juſtices or barons, or ſome juſtice or juſtices of the peace, for ſuch matters or offences for which by law the priſoner is not bailable."

But it is provided, ſect. 4. "That if any perſon ſhall have wilfully neglected, by the ſpace of two whole terms after his impriſonment, to pray a habeas corpus for his enlargement, he ſhall not have a habeas corpus to be granted in vacation time, in purſuance of this act."

And it is further enacted, ſect. 5. "That if any officer, &c. ſhall neglect or refuſe to make the returns aforeſaid, or to bring the body of the priſoner, according to the command of the writ, within the reſpective times aforeſaid, or ſhall not within ſix hours after demand, deliver a true copy of the commitment, &c. he ſhall forfeit for the firſt offence 100*l.* for the ſecond 200*l.* and be made uncapable to hold his office."

And it is further enacted, ſect. 6. "That no perſon who ſhall be ſet at large upon a habeas corpus, ſhall be again impriſoned for the ſame offence, by any perſon whatſoever, other than by the legal order and proceſs of ſuch court wherein he ſhall be bound by recognizance to appear, or other court having juriſdiction of the cauſe; on pain of 500*l.*

And it is further enacted, ſect. 7. "That if any perſon, who ſhall be committed for treaſon or felony, plainly and ſpecially expreſſed in the warrant of commitment, upon his prayer or petition in open court, the firſt week of the term, or the firſt day of the ſeſſions of oyer and terminer, or general gaol-delivery, to be brought to his trial, ſhall not be indicted ſome time in the next term, ſeſſions of oyer and termtner, or general gaol-delivery, after ſuch commitment, the juſtices of the ſaid courts ſhall, upon motion in open court, the laſt day of the term or ſeſſions, ſet at liberty the priſoner upon bail; unleſs it appear upon oath, that the witneſſes for the King could not be produced the ſaid term, &c. and if ſuch priſoner upon his prayer, &c. ſhall not be indicted and tried the ſecond term or ſeſſions, he ſhall be diſcharged from his impriſonment."

And it is further enacted, ſect. 10. "That it ſhall be lawful for any priſoner, as aforeſaid, to move and obtain his habeas corpus, as well out of the Chancery or Exchequer, as the King's Bench or Common Pleas; and if the ſaid lord chancellor or lord keeper, or any judge or judges, baron or barons, for the time being, of the degree degree of the coif, of any of the courts aforeſaid, in the vacation time, upon view of the copy of a warrant of commitment or detainer, or on oath made that ſuch copy was denied, ſhall deny any writ of habeas corpus by this act required to be granted, being moved for as aforeſaid, they ſhall ſeverally forfeit to the party grieved the ſum of 500*l.*"

But it is provided, ſect. 18. "That after the aſſiſes proclaimed for that county where the priſoner is detained, no perſon ſhall be removed from the common gaol upon any habeas corpus granted in purſuance of this act; but upon ſuch habeas corpus ſhall be brought before the judge of aſſiſe in open court, who thereupon ſhall do what to juſtice ſhall appertain: But it is provided neverthleſs, par. 19. that after the aſſizes are ended, any perſon detained may have his habeas corpus according to the direction of this act."

Where a perſon actually preſent in court is bailed for a crime puniſhable with loſs of life or member, it ſeems to be in the diſcretion of the court to take recognizance from each of the bail, either in a certain ſum, or body for body, or both ways; however ſuch recognizance of body for body, doth not make the bail liable to the ſame puniſhment with the priſoner, but only to be fined, &c. 2 Jones 210. 1 Lev. 106. 1 Sid. 211. 4 Inſt. 178.

But for a crime of an inferior nature, it ſeems that the recognizance ought to be only in a certain ſum of money, and not body for body. 2 Hawk. P. C. 115.

It was moved that the defendant might be bailed upon the hab. corp. act, for want of proſecution within a term. Per cur. The grand ſeſſions held at Cheſter, where the cauſe ariſes, is in nature of a term, and if this prayer had been enter'd there, we might have bailed him (upon motion) the firſt day of this term; but the prayer being here upon the firſt day, that can give him no advantage; the diſcretion of bailing, which the court had before, is now reſtrained by that act; and where it ſaith (witneſſes,) yet if one witneſs only be ſick, it is within the act; and the words of the act being (upon oath made) an affidavit was taken in court viva voce; but this was afterwards waived, and the priſoner was bailed by the conſent of the attorney general. Comb. 6.

C. was brought by hab. corp. the laſt day of Mich. term, and prayed to be diſcharged or bailed, having enter'd his prayer the firſt day of Trin. term laſt, and was indicted in that term, and now this term was indicted again for the ſame ſpecies of treaſon, but never tried on either of them. The attorney general inſiſted, that the firſt indictment was for a foreign treaſon, but the ſecond was for a treaſon in England; but by Holt Ch. J. the commitment and both indictments are for the ſame ſpecies of treaſon, tho' the overt-acts are differently laid; but the laſt indictment agrees exactly with the commitment; beſides, the prayer relates to the commitment; ſo that the party ought to be tried for the treaſon for which he is committed, within two terms; and the deſign of the act was to prevent a man's lying under an accuſation for treaſon &c. above two terms; to which Eyre J. agreed; but both declared they would give no opinion in the caſe, but bailed him by virtue of their diſcretionary power. 12 Mod. 66.

The defendant was committed to Newgate by the privy council, for aiding col. D. to eſcape out of the tower, where he was committed for high treaſon; and being brought here by hab. corp. was bailed; becauſe tho' the commitment was for high treaſon, yet there was no proſecution, and a ſeſſions was paſt. 1 Salk 103.

One committed for treaſon or felony ought to enter his prayer the firſt week of the term, or day of the ſeſſions next after his commitment, or he ſhall not have the benefit of the hab. corp. act; but if an act of parliament be made which takes away the power of bailing for a time, he need not then enter his prayer; for that is thereby diſpenſed with; but then he ought to enter it the firſt week of the term, or day of the ſeſſions, after the expiration of that act of parliament; and for want thereof, the benefit of the hab. corp. act was denied; but becauſe the defendant had been long in priſon, and his trial had been delayed, and affidavit was made that his life was in danger, the court bailed him. 1 Salk. 103, 104.

In an act for ſuſpenſion of the hab. corp. act of 31 Car. 2. cap. 2. were theſe words, viz. 'That no judge or juſtices ſhall bail or try, &c. without leave from the King ſigned by ſix privy counſellors. It was inſiſted, that the hab. corp. act was not ſuſpended, nor is B. R. reſtrained by theſe words (judges or juſtices,) becauſe the power and juriſdiction cannot be taken away but by plain and poſitive words expreſſing the ſame, nor do they extend to the lord chancellor, &c. and that a ſtatute which deprives a man of his liberty ſhall not be conſtrued ſo favourably as other acts of parliament; and the caſes of Lord Ayleſbury, Fitzpatrick, and Sir William Windham were cited, who were bail'd during former ſuſpenſions of this act. But it was anſwered, that thoſe words muſt certainly relate to this court, becauſe before the act of ſuſpenſion was, no judge or juſtice could bail for high treaſon, and therefore thoſe words muſt relate to this court, which is compoſed of judges; that the Lord Ayleſbury's caſe was not parallel to this, the hab. corp. being ſuſpended only as to him, and them that were then committed on ſuſpicion of treaſon, or treaſonable practices, but not ſuch as were committed expreſsly for high treaſon; that if the judges are reſtrained, the court muſt be ſo too, becauſe it is compoſed of judges; and that it is to be obſerved, that this act is penn'd in the moſt general words that could be thought on, and that the law-makers could have no other intention than to reſtrain the judges from bailing either in or out of court; and this ſeems to be the plain conſtruction of the act; therefore if this court can neither bail the priſoners or try them, it will be to no purpoſe to grant our hab corp. and ſo it was denied, and the rather becauſe it was denied in Layer's caſe; for the court would not try him till they had an order from the King, as the act directs. 8 Mod. 98.

Sir William Windham was committed to the tower for high treaſon by Mr. ſecretary Stanhope, and being now brought into court the third day before the end of the term, by the deputy lieutenant of the tower, upon a hab. corp. to him directed, it was prayed by Mr. ſerjeant Pengelly that the return to this writ might be filed.

The return was read, and the warrant was as follows, viz.

> "James Stanhope, Eſq; one of his Majeſty's moſt honourable privy council, and principal ſecretary of ſtate.
> THESE are in his Majeſty's name to authorize and require you to receive into your cuſtody the body of Sir William Windham, bart. herewith ſent you for high treaſon, and you are to keep him ſafe and cloſe, until he ſhall be delivered by due courſe of law; and for your ſo doing this ſhall be your warrant. Given at Whitehall the 7th of October 1715.
> James Stanhope.
> To the lieutenant of the tower of London, or his deputy."

Then Mr. ſerjeant Pengelly inſiſted, that Sir W. W. ought to be admitted to bail upon this warrant of commitment by Mr. ſecretary Stanhope, dated the 7th of October laſt, and this becauſe of the length of time of his impriſonment, without any proſecution againſt him; that eight or nine months and four terms had interven'd, and nothing done; that there was another inducement of great weight, in his apprehenſion, from the frame and form of the warrant; and as to the generality of the commitment, beſides the ill ſtate and condition of his health, the danger his life would be expoſed to without a proſecution; that he had been there always ready to have anſwer'd any proſecution, or any thing that might have been objected againſt him; and nothing had been done by him to delay and protract the proſecution; that Mr. Attorney general had had four full terms; that Sir W. had omitted taking advantage of the hab. corp. act, by not making his prayer the firſt term after his commitment, which he might have done. Upon theſe circumſtances, where there had been a long default of proſecution, nothing proceeded from Sir W. W. It was the right of every Engliſh ſubject to pray to be admitted to bail; that every perſon committed for capital offences muſt be tried in a convenient time, or in default of a proſecution, he ought to be diſcharged upon bail. All commitments before conviction were for ſafe cuſtody only: and the ſame rule of juſtice, the ſame adminiſtration of law that puniſhed offenders, provided for them a courſe to eaſe their impriſonment, and to diſcharge themſelves from the imputation of their offence.

That this court had full power, in theſe caſes, to bail; it had been exerciſed in ſeveral inſtances; and would obſerve in general how this was at common law. It was the liberty of every perſon who was accuſed, tho' indicted of treaſon, or of any felony whatſoever, to be bailed upon good ſecurity; ſo that a man was then bailable for high treaſon. Co. 2 Inſt. Ha. Pl. Cor. 99, 104. An accuſation was of no force to deprive a man of his liberty; he was either bailable by the ſheriff ex officio, or by the writ de homine replegiando; but tho' the ſtatute of Weſtm. 1. cap. 15. which was made 3 Ed. 1. took away this power of the ſheriff to bail ex officio, or upon the writ de homine replegiando; yet it had been always held, that the court of B. R. was excepted out of this act. The ſame power which it had at Common law ſtill remain'd; this was agreed in both the authorities before mentioned, and was confirmed by conſtant experience. Hence it was that this court was intruſted with the liberty of all perſons whatſoever; they were to inquire into the reaſons of the confinement of any perſon.

That after this, in proceſs of time, when commitments grew more frequent and general, the ſame conſtant experience held good as to the power of this court. There were then commitments by the council-board, the ſtar-chamber, and other courts, by the immediate warrant and command of the King, and by the lords and others of his Majeſty's privy council; and this was for ſome time, and during the reigns of King James I. and King Charles I. it was in ſome meaſure ſubmitted to. Then came the ſtatute of the 16 Car. 1. an act made to prevent any of theſe inconveniences; it was thereby (cap. 10*)* provided, that every perſon ſo committed, reſtrained of his liberty, or ſuffering impriſonment, upon demand or motion made by his counſel, or other employ'd by him for that purpoſe, unto the judges of the court of B. R. or C. B. in open court, ſhould, without delay upon any pretence whatſoever, &c. have forthwith granted unto him a writ of habeas corpus: then the act directed what was to be done by the ſheriff or other officers upon this writ, and upon making a return, and certifying the true cauſe of the detainer and impriſonment, the court, within three days after ſuch return made and deliver'd in open court, were to proceed to examine and determine whether the cauſe of ſuch commitment appearing upon the ſaid return were juſt and legal or not, and ſhould thereupon do what to juſtice ſhould appertain, either by delivering, bailing, or remanding the priſoner; ſo that upon this act, the remedy which the party had, prevented any long delay. The cauſe of the impriſonment was to be juſt and legal, and this upon the form of the commitment as well as upon the ſubſtance of it; and tho' the cauſe were juſt and legal, yet the court was obliged either to deliver or bail the party, if the warrant was not formal and good; that by the expreſs words of this act it did not appear, that it was in their diſcretion either to diſcharge or bail, and this act did not give the court any new power.

That before the habeas corpus act, there were inſtances of the court's inquiring into the nature of the commitment, and letting the party to bail. 2 Sid. 179. Sir Robert Pye's caſe. The caſe was this; Sir R. Pye and Ma. Fincher, being committed to the tower, moved by their counſel for an habeas corpus; and this being granted and returned, it was moved that they might be bailed, they having been a long time impriſoned, without any proſecution made againſt them. And it was then ſaid by the court, that tho' they had been impriſoned for ſuſpicion of treaſon, they could not deny to them bail, in caſe the counſel of the commonwealth that then was, did not proceed againſt them; for it was the birth-right of every ſubject, to be tried according to the law of the land, and ought not to periſh in priſon; whereupon they were bailed. He ſaid, that a man ought not to periſh under an accuſation or commitment. There was alſo Zach. Croſton's caſe, 1 Keb. 305, 306. 1 Sid. 78. Trin. 14 Car. 2. The books ſay, that after he had been in the tower, being committed there for high treaſon by the lords of the council, March 23, 1660, he was brought into court upon an alias habeas corpus the beginning of that term; and upon the King's ſerjeant offering to indict him that term, he was removed, and by rule brought up the laſt day of the term; and through the delay of the proſecution, and no indictment being againſt him, he was admitted to bail. That it was ſaid in Keble, Cornwelling's caſe was only by length of time; ſo that in this caſe it appeared, that bailing of the party was the event of it. He ſaid, that there were later inſtances than theſe, where bail had been the event of a long impriſonment. Yates's caſe, Hill. 2 W. & M. Show. 190, 191. B. R. Yates was committed to the priſon of Hull for high treaſon, and it was moved that he might enter his prayer here, that he might be tried; but it was denied by the court, becauſe it muſt be at the aſſizes for the place; yet becauſe of the length of time to the aſſizes, it not being for that county till the ſummer, to prevent his impriſonment during that time, he was bailed. Perſons muſt be tried in a reaſonable time; and Sir Barth. Shower there inſiſted, that otherwiſe by a commitment to Dover, Canterbury, or any place where the aſſizes were but rare, a man might be a priſoner a year or two; ſo that in theſe extraordinary inſtances, as well as in the nature of the thing, this court had taken ſecurity to the government, and let the priſoner out upon bail; that a man was not to be confined ſix or eight months by way of puniſhment; that this here was a much harder caſe; eight or nine months had been endured, and no cauſe ſhewn, or a ſtep taken towards a proſecution.

That after this there were other inſtances, as lord Ayleſbury's caſe, Hill. 8 W. 3. that he having neglected to make his prayer in proper time, and having lain a long time in priſon, and the King delaying to try him, the court thought fit to bail him. That in the caſe of The King v. Gage & al' for the murder of Conway Seymour, Ld. Ch. J. Holt ſaid, that there are many caſes omitted out of the hab. corp. act, and that before this act there was a rule at Common law, that perſons in priſon, in convenient time, muſt be bailed; and that trials for capital offences ought to be recent; and that the court would conſider of the circumſtances, if the party were to be admitted to bail. He ſaid, that to be continued in cuſtody a long vacation, when the commitment was ſo long ſince, would be very hard; but the court would regard a proper time for theſe proſecutions; that here was not the leaſt preparation or attempt made towards carrying on a proſecution. That tho' there was no time expreſsly limited by the ſtatute of King Charles 1. for theſe proſecutions; yet it was apprehended, that now by the habeas corpus act of the 31 Car. 2. there was a full obligation upon the diſcretion of the court to admit priſoners to bail, tho' upon this act there is no limited time for a proſecution. The words are, viz. "If any perſon ſhall be committed for high treaſon or felony, &c. upon his prayer or petition in open court, the firſt week of the term, or the firſt day of the ſeſſions of oyer and terminer, &c. to be brought to his trial, ſhall not be indicted ſome time in the next term or ſeſſions, &c. after his commitment, the judges of B. R. juſtices of oyer and terminer, &c. ſhall the laſt day of the term or ſeſſions ſet at liberty the priſoner, upon bail, unleſs oath be made that the King's witneſſes could not be produced the ſame term or ſeſſions; and if any ſuch perſon, &c. ſhall not be indicted and tried the ſame term or ſeſſions, &c. after his commitment, &c. he ſhall be diſcharged from his impriſonment." He agreed that this was a proper meaſure for the court to go by. What the parliament have thought a reaſonable time, ought to govern the diſcretion of the court. By this act the King did declare that to be an obligation upon himſelf and his courts of juſtice; and he conſented by that law, that if there was no proſecution in that time, the priſoner ſhould be bailed the firſt term, without an affidavit of the King's witneſſes being then out of the way, and diſcharged the

That in the preſent caſe, as there had been no attempt to ſhew any reaſon for a delay of the proſecution, notwithſtanding the length of time, this neglect had been ſufficient to have induced the diſcretion of the court to bail Sir W. W. yet he ſaid further, that from the form here of this warrant he ought to be admitted to bail; firſt, for that there was great incertainty in it, (a perſon generally for high treaſon) without the particular ſpecies of treaſon had been expreſſed, the court will not continue Sir W. W. longer in cuſtody; by law, the warrant ought to expreſs the ſpecies of treaſon. It was not ſufficient to commit a man for treaſon generally, or elſe at that rate it would be in the power of the perſon who makes the warrant, whenever he thinks a matter is a treaſon, to commit the party for it. The Lord Coke had laid it down as a rule, 2 Inſt. 591. that a mittimus muſt contain the cauſe, tho' not ſo certainly as an indictment ought, yet with ſuch convenient certainty as it might appear judicially to the court what the offence was, whether for high treaſon againſt the perſon of the King, or for counterfeiting the Great ſeal, or for counterfeiting the King's money. So it was in the caſe of petit treaſon; it was not ſufficient to ſay in a warrant, that it was for petit treaſon generally, but it muſt be expreſſed for the death of ſuch an one his maſter, &c. if it were in the caſe of felony, it muſt not be for felony generally, but it ought to ſay for the death of ſuch an one, or for burglary, or for robbery, or for the ſtealing of an horſe, or the like, that it might appear judicially to the court, that it was an offence for which he ought to ſuffer death; for in a caſe of ſo high a nature, concerning the life of a man, the convenient certainty ought to be ſhewn to the court, and this not only for the ſake of the party in priſon, but for the benefit of the King, in caſe there ſhould be a breach of priſon, if any one ſhould aſſiſt him to make his eſcape; therefore in the firſt place, as the ſpecies of the treaſon ought to be ſet forth, ſo it muſt in caſes of felony, or elſe the felony might be only ſtealing of charters of land, or wood growing, or the like, which a juſtice of peace might apprehend to be felony, tho' in law they were not ſo. And a farther reaſon Lord Coke gave, was, that if a man were indicted of treaſon, or indicted or appealed for felony, the capias thereupon which iſſued to apprehend the party did comprehend the cauſe of that indictment, &c. a fortiori the mittimus whereby the party was to be arreſted, having no ground of record as the capias has, muſt, purſuing the effect of the capias, comprehend the cauſe in convenient certainty. With this agreed Ha. Pl. C. 109. he ſaid, that upon this point there had been an inſtance in this court expreſly for this cauſe, Mich. 7 W. 3. Kendal, Roe & al', of which there was a ſhort report 5 Mod. 78, 85. the caſe was this; They were committed to a meſſenger by Sir W. Trumball, one of the ſecretaries of ſtate, for aiding and aſſiſting Sir James Montgomery to make his eſcape, he having before been committed for high treaſon, without mentioning what ſpecies of high treaſon he was charged with, and upon debate they were admitted to bail, becauſe the particular ſpecies was not mentioned. It was held not ſufficient to commit them for aiding and aſſiſting a perſon charged with high treaſon in his eſcape, without a particular deſcription of the treaſon in the perſon committed, and it not appearing to the court that the cauſe was ſufficiently aſcertained they admitted them to bail. Sir Barth. Shower, of counſel with the priſoners, ſaid, that if Sir James Montgomery had been committed for ſuch a cauſe generally, for which the priſoners there ſtood committed, in aiding and aſſiſting him in the making his eſcape, he ought to have been bailed, and this was denied by the court. The reaſon given in that book (5 Mod.) was a general rule, that if the warrant had expreſſed the ſpecies of treaſon, they had been guilty of the ſame particular ſpecies; this was not for the ſake of the party, but for the better cuſtody of him by the gaoler. But he ſaid, that upon his general return here, as it is, it was entirely in the diſcretion of the magiſtrate to make what he will to be high treaſon; he may not confine himſelf to the particulars within the ſtatute of 25 Ed. 3. So that, for the ſatisfaction of the court, the particular ſpecies of treaſon ought to be mentioned, whether it be for compaſſing the death of the King, the levying war againſt him, &c. or elſe a man may be continued in cuſtody only upon the apprehenſion of the magiſtrate. He ſaid, that this caſe of Kendal and Roe was a very ſtrong and poſitive opinion; that the ſtatute of K. Ch. 1. and experience ever ſince, had confirmed this opinion, and from the expreſs words of this ſtatute the court ought to examine, whether the cauſe of commitment were juſt and legal, not from the circumſtances of the fact only, but from the form and frame of the warrant; that in the ſtatute of Car. 2. the words were ("Committed for high treaſon or felony plainly and ſpecially expreſſed in the warrant of commitment") this muſt go to the ſpecific offence; you cannot ſay a man is committed for felony, without ſpecifying the act.

He ſaid, that there was a further inſtance which would move the diſcretion of the court in this matter, and that was Sir W. W.'s ill ſtate of health, and the condition he had been in during his confinement; and longer confinement without a proſecution would expoſe his life to great danger; that he would not enter into the expreſſions of the terms of his indiſpoſition; there were affidavits of that from his phyſicians; that he had for ſome years been under this indiſpoſition, an inflammation in his lungs; that his phyſicians did ſay it had affected him in ſuch a manner already, that a remedy might come too late without the air of the country; that there was alſo this circumſtance in the family, his father died of the ſame diſtemper in the lungs about the ſame age; that the danger might ſtill be increaſed by two or three months longer confinement this hot ſeaſon of the year, and then there would be no need to carry on a proſecution or indictment againſt him. That Sir W. W. had done every thing that ſignified his obedience; he would not attempt or do any thing that might give offence; that this was no ſurprize; on the other ſide, he had given all opportunities he could to their carrying on a proſecution; and that upon theſe circumſtances he hoped that the court would exerciſe their diſcretion, in granting him an enlargement upon ſecurity; that there were preſent four noble perſons to be his bail; that he ſhould anſwer any accuſation againſt him, and for his good behaviour in general, which would be a better ſecurity to the government than to keep him in cuſtody.

Then Mr. Jeffrys, of counſel for Sir W. W. prayed the affidavits might be read; which being done, he obſerved, that from the firſt affidavit it appeared that Sir W. W. had this inflammation in his lungs from his youth; that his father died of it about the age he was now of; that in 1710 he was forced to leave this town, and go into the country; that in 1714 the cough returned upon him very violently; that his ſickneſs and indiſpoſition now was to be imputed to his want of air and exerciſe; that Dr. Herney, the phyſician of the Tower, was of opinion, that if his diſorder ſhould increaſe upon him this hot ſeaſon of the year, it might endanger his life.

Then the affidavits of two of his ſervants were read, how his indiſpoſition had been during his confinement, &c. upon which Mr. Jeffrys proceeded, and ſaid, that they did not pretend to move for a diſcharge of the commitment; that Sir W. W. was very willing to give teſtimony of his innocence, and therefore now only prayed to be bailed.

Then he took notice of the form of the warrant, viz. I ſend you herewith the body of Sir William Windham for high treaſon, to be ſafely and cloſely kept, until he ſhall be delivered by due courſe of law, &c. and ſaid that the liberty of all the ſubjects of England were concerned in this matter, and that here was a commitment without oath. That my Lord Coke, 2 Inſt. 51. on his reading upon the ſtatute of Magna Charta ſaid, that where there was any witneſs againſt an offender, he might be taken and impriſoned by lawful warrant, and committed to priſon; that the ſtatute of 25 Ed. 3. cap. 4. took notice and recited the ſtatute of Magna Charta, and then enacted, that none ſhould be taken by petition or ſuggeſtion made made to our lord the King, or to his council, unleſs it were by indictment or preſentment, or by proceſs made by writ original at the Common law; that in this caſe there did not appear ſo much as a bare ſuggeſtion. Here was a commitment without any fact made out, without any proof of a crime, that our liberties from that time forward would be at the diſpoſal of the ſecretaries of ſtate; we ſhould be but tenants at will to them. He ſaid, that from the generality of the crime in the warrant it was void, becauſe the crime was not ſpecified; it did not appear what this offence was; that it was very well known the ſpecies of high treaſon were very different; that the judgment was very different: in ſome caſes it was to be drawn, hang'd and quarter'd; in others, as counterfeiting the coin, the quartering is not part of the ſentence. The ſpecies of treaſon to be expreſſed in the warrant was not for the benefit of the party only, but was alſo for the benefit of the crown, that it might be known what ſort of crime it was, and what judgment was due; that it was ſaid 2 Inſt. 52. that it was for the King's benefit, and that the priſoner might be the more ſafely kept.

That if the lieutenant of the Tower ſhould have permitted Sir W. W. to have made his eſcape, could he be charged with high treaſon? what ſort of judgment muſt there be given here? there was no ſuch thing as a judgment in law generally for treaſon.

That in the caſe of Kendal and Roe, Mich. 7 W. 3. three things were objected, 1ſt, Whether the ſecretary of ſtate had power to commit; but this was over-ruled. 2dly, Whether the commitment could be to a meſſenger. And this not prevailing; it was, 3dly, inſiſted upon, that the ſpecies of treaſon which Sir James Montgomery was committed for ought to have been ſet forth, and upon this they were admitted to bail.

That there was another matter of weight here as to the manner of the commitment; he was to be ſafely and cloſely kept, and the lieutenant of the Tower has done this very fully; that there was a form and proper concluſion to all warrants; that Ld. Coke took notice of this form, and of the concluſion, that if the party behaved himſelf ill in cuſtody, he might be ſo cloſely kept for the ſafer cuſtody of him; but that the magiſtrate had only power to commit the party, not to direct any ſuch thing concerning his confinement.

That this caſe here was the ſame as Ld. Ayleſbury's caſe; he ſaid, he had ſome particular reaſon to know it very well, he was committed 21 May 1695, and he continued in cuſtody till Hill. term following; that this term, when he came to make his prayer according to the habeas corpus act, he was told he was not within it, for that he ought to have made his prayer the firſt week in the term after he was committed, the act of ſuſpenſion not reaching this caſe.

Mr. Reeves argued of the ſame ſide, that here was ſufficient to make the court exerciſe their power of bailing; firſt, the length of time of the impriſonment, and no proſecution; there was beſides this, the ſtate and condition of Sir W. W.'s health; his life would be in danger by a longer continuance in cuſtody; then there was the form and generality of the warrant; that either of theſe reaſons was ſufficient, but when all three concurred, that caſe would be the ſtronger.

That firſt, as to the length of time, Sir W. W. was committed the 7th of October laſt; that between eight and nine months had paſſed, and during that time there had been no proſecution; that tho' there was no time limited by law for a proſecution, yet it ought to be on foot in ſome reaſonable time, and here was not any reaſon given why Sir W. W. had not been proſecuted.

That as to the habeas corpus act, it appeared from it that perſons were to be kept in cuſtody but for ſome convenient time, and he would ſubmit it, whether this act did not ſay what ſhould be a ſufficient time. It was enacted, that if any perſon committed, &c. ſhould enter his prayer the firſt week of the term, &c. to be brought to trial, and ſhould not be indicted that term, &c. he was to be ſet at liberty upon bail the laſt day of the term &c. that in this caſe Sir W. W. had neither enter'd his prayer the firſt term after his commitment, or the ſecond, or third, but at the end of the fourth; that if he had come with his prayer the firſt term, the courts of juſtice muſt have bailed him; and it muſt be ſubmitted whether the court now in their diſcretion ought not to do it. Then as to his health; as to the circumſtances of this caſe, the nature of Sir W. W.'s indiſpoſition, the great danger he is under, the inflammation in his lungs, it being a diſtemper his father died of about the ſame age, and the dangerous ſymptoms now upon him; theſe things too muſt be ſubmitted to the court; that as to the form and generality of the warrant, the caſe of Kendal and Roe was in point, that if the warrant were ill, the party ought to be admitted to bail. There was a commitment generally for high treaſon, "Receive and take into your cuſtody Kendal and Roe for high treaſon." And if this were good, could then what came afterwards make that warrant a bad one, by deſcribing the ſpecies of treaſon? If the general part be good, the other could never make it bad. Then it ſaid "for aiding and aſſiſting Sir James Montgomery to make his eſcape, being in cuſtody for high treaſon"; now this might be a treaſon for compaſſing the King's death, levying of war againſt him, &c. in which caſe perſons aiding and aſſiſting knowingly, would have been guilty of high treaſon; but if the offence were harbouring a jeſuit, counterfeiting of money, coining of money, &c. that the aiding and aſſiſting the offender to make his eſcape would not be high treaſon; that the court there did not go into any examination to ſupply the defect of the warrant, but they took it upon the face of the warrant; and becauſe there was not a ſufficient charge of high treaſon, and purely upon the generality of the warrant, Kendal and Roe were admitted to bail.

Then to apply this, if there were a caſe of high treaſon for which he might be committed, the court will bail him. He might be committed for counterfeiting of the coin; and if ſo, would not the court after four terms bail him? ſurely the court would have done it: That the court could not take any notice of what he was committed for, but from what was expreſs'd in the warrant; and tho' the warrant were good, yet upon the uncertainty of it he ought to be bailed: That upon the habeas corpus act it did ſeem to be the opinion of the parliament, that the ſpecies of treaſon ought to be expreſſed. What was elſe the meaning of the words "plainly and ſpecially expreſs'd in the warrant of commitment?" No one was to have the benefit of this act to be bail'd, if in the warrant the treaſon or felony were plainly and ſpecially mentioned.

That as this caſe was, he hoped they had a very ſtrong one; that there were four noble perſons of great fortune who would have the cuſtody of this gentleman, and that he ſhould appear at all times; that this was as ſafe a cuſtody as that of a ſingle perſon, the gaoler; that from the circumſtances of his health, and the expoſition of the warrants, the court might exerciſe their diſcretion of bailing.

Then Sir Joſeph Jekyll (King's chief ſerjeant at law) ſpoke on the behalf of the crown, and ſaid, that there was no doubt but the court had a power of bailing; they had it at Common law, and it was not taken away by any ſtatute; that gives no reaſon in this caſe for the length of time, which only holds when there is a failure of proſecution, &c. which did always ſuppoſe the innocence of the party; the commitment on the 7th of October laſt, at which time many perſons were involved in the rebellion, and the proſecution of theſe perſons, had taken up the time of thoſe who had the honour to ſerve the crown; ſo that it was not a neglect, nor to be imputed to thoſe engaged in the proſecution, becauſe he might have accelerated the proſecution, and called upon the crown to have been brought to his trial by the habeas corpus act; ſo that the reaſon turns upon them; that the length of time was owing to his neglect, that he did not make his prayer in proper time.

That as to the habeas corpus act, it was reaſonable the court ſhould copy after it; but when that act came to be conſidered, it would appear directly otherwiſe than as the objection had been made; that act was deſigned for thoſe that would take the benefit of it, and not to aſſiſt thoſe that would not, nor was any reaſon to be drawn from the ſtatute to induce the bailing, for it took away the benefit from thoſe who did not claim it, and never deſigned to grant the ſame advantage to thoſe that did not deſire it, as to thaſe that did.

That all the caſes which had been cited, except that of Kendall and Roe and Yeates, Show. 190, 191. went upon the general length of time only; but whether this and the preſumption of the party's innocence were not anſwered by the publick buſineſs that the King's counſel had been concerned in, he would ſubmit to the court.

That as to the liberty of the ſubject, which had been thown in, that was to be regarded only as a popular way of talking; but they, who had the honour to ſerve the crown, had more reaſon to do it, againſt the rebellion that was raiſed to deſtroy the liberties of England, as well as the perſon of the King.

That theſe warrants were legal warrants, and this objection was made in Crofton's caſe, but not allowed; that the habeas corpus act inſiſted upon in this matter, ſaying "the treaſon or felony muſt be plainly and ſpecially expreſſed in the warrant," (there plainly and ſpecially) muſt be the ſame thing; it was never the deſign of the ſtatute to conſider the difference of high treaſon; they were of the ſame conſequence in law; they were all capital offences; it was the ſame crime in law, and therefore the ſpecies need not be expreſſed. That as to the diſcretion of the magiſtrate, it was for him to judge of accuſations that come before him; where was the extending and amplifying of his power, if he were left to diſtinguiſh between offences; all treaſons were in a written law, they were all enumeraed in the ſtatute of 25 Ed. 3. or in ſubſequent ſtatutes, otherwiſe there would be leſs power left to the magiſtrate than there was in a judge upon an accuſation before him; that as to the caſe of Kendal and Roe, that was plainly different, for there was a commitment for having aided and aſſiſted Sir J. M. in his eſcape, being committed for high treaſon; it ought to have been particular as to the ſpecies of treaſon, becauſe the crime committed by Kendal and Roe was for ſecondary treaſon, and this depended ſolely and intirely upon the firſt warrant of commitment, and therefore ſuch a particularity might be neceſſary to bring theſe perſons to be puniſhed for the high treaſon, and yet not ſo in the principal caſe; for if Sir J. M. had been before the court, that would have been ſome doubt whether the treaſon muſt be ſpecified; but that in the caſe of Kendal and Roe for ſecondary treaſon, it would be ſo no further than the treaſon expreſſed in the warrant, ſo that there may be a difference between that and the preſent caſe.

That as to the matter of the ſtate of Sir W. W.'s health, the court muſt go according to law and juſtice; it was a tender and compaſſionate point to intermeddle with; he ſaid they were on the harſher ſide in this caſe, from what it would be in the caſe of another perſon; it did not appear to be any chronical diſtemper; it did not return by fits. That Sir W. W. did not apply upon the habeas corpus act, but thought then the indiſpoſition he lay under not a ſufficient ground; that he was not now in worſe condition than he had been.

Then Mr. Attorney general ſaid, that as to the objections which had been made concerning the liberty and property of the ſubject, that they would be at the pleaſure of a ſecretary of ſtate; and as to the warrant of commitment, that it was not ſaid that he was charged upon oath; this latter objection had been over-ruled oftentimes, and if there ſhould be a miſtake in the warrant, that would not make the liberty of all the ſubjects of England at the diſcretion of a ſecretary of ſtate.

As to the length of time ſince this commitment, it had been ſaid, that where the ſtatute of habeas corpus was ſilent, the court would bail by Common law, but length of time was only good reaſon in diſcretion; he argued, that there was a rebellion in the kingdom at the time of that commitment, and ſince the rebellion had been quell'd, all perſons concerned for the crown, and who ſhould have taken care for this proſecution, had been employed. That Sir W. W. might himſelf, if he had thought fit, have demanded a proſecution; that he knew ſo much of a proſecution againſt Sir W. W. that as far as the matter appeared unto him, it muſt be in Somerſetſhire, and tho' one aſſizes had lapſed, yet what was before ſaid was a ſufficient anſwer to it.

That as to the legality of the warrant not mentioning the ſpecies of the treaſon, this exception was taken in Z. Crofton's caſe, 1 Sid. 78. and not allowed, and the bill of rights in Ruſh. collections, was only that warrants without cauſe ſhewn were illegal. That the officer which commits muſt judge of the treaſon, whether it were generally or ſpecially committed; and if it were ſpecified in the warrant, that it was for treaſon in conſpiring the death of the King, that might be proved by levying a war, and what light could he have more than now; ſo that ſuch a ſpecifying did not make it more certain, or more for the advantage of the party, and the warrant was not traverſable. That as to the time in Crofton's caſe, there was a year and half's confinement; that there had been many inſtances of ſuch commitments as theſe; and the caſe of Kendal and Roe, if it had been an illegal commitment, they muſt have been diſcharged without bail; that in that caſe it did appear that Sir J. M. was dead, and that he being not to be convicted, there could be no conviction of thoſe that let him eſcape, and they were bailed without debate, chiefly for that reaſon; the warrant indeed was only juſt touched upon. That moſt of the things which had been ſaid, were inſiſted upon in Mr. Harvey's caſe this term, and diſallowed.

That as to the ſtate of Sir W. W's. health; if he had known any thing of that being inſiſted upon, he would have ſent the phyſician of the tower to ſee him, but as far as it appeared, he ſaid Sir W. W. looked very well; that the aſſizes were not far off, and then might apply for a trial, or enter his prayer, and be diſcharged.

Mr. Solicitor general obſerved, that in the habeas corpus act there were three ſections, wherein mention was made of the cauſes to be contained in warrants of commitment: the firſt had the words "felony or treaſon plainly expreſſed in the warrant of commitment"; the ſecond had the words "high treaſon or felony plainly and ſpecially expreſſed in the warrant of commitment"; that the third had the words "petty treaſon or felony plainly and ſpecially expreſſed in the warrant of commitment"; and by comparing all theſe three together, it appeared that the parliament did not intend any other, but that it ſhould only appear whether the offence was high treaſon or felony. Then to conſider the caſe at Common law, he ſaid that this act had not altered the law, but the return upon the commitment will have the ſame conſtruction as at Common law. To what purpoſe ſhould the ſpecies of treaſon be ſet forth? There was no neceſſity to mention the overt act, yet if any thing more than high treaſon was to be ſet forth, it muſt be the overt act; it would be of no uſe to the priſoner, nor of any uſe to the court; that it ſhould appear that the court had juriſdiction, without aſſigning the overt act.

That as to the objection about the power of the ſecretary of ſtate, he ſaid there was no doubt but he had a power to commit; in the caſe of Kendal and Roe, this objection was ſcouted at; and my Ld. Ch. J. Holt there ſaid, that it was more for delight than neceſſity; that by a reſolution in Leonard's Rep. it appeared, that the court took this difference, that where one was committed by one of the privy council, the cauſe of committing ought to have been ſet down in the return, but contrary where the party was committed by the whole council, there no cauſe ought to have been alledged; that this was offered, to ſhew that the ſecretary of ſtate had power to commit; that theſe words (plainly and ſpecially) were ſufficiently anſwered by a warrant for high treaſon only, without any particular ſpecies of treaſon; for ſuppoſe it had been laid for high treaſon in compaſſing the King's death, of which there were divers overt acts, would the priſoner hereby be better informed? In Z. Crofton's caſe there was another reaſon given, for it was ſaid that the King need not diſcover the particulars, for it might be inconvenient to him, and no one could know what the conſequence of this might be.

That in the great caſe of an habeas corpus, 3 Car. in the caſe of Sir John Corbet, Sir Edward Hampden, & al', upon the general return of a commitment per ſpeciale mandatum domini regis; it was agreed, that if there had been been any particular deſcription of the offence, it had been ſufficient. In 27 H. 7. a commitment pro ſuſpicione feloniæ was by all ſides allowed to be good. So it was in the time of H. 8. pro homicidio facto. So 30 Eliz. Brown's caſe, pro ſuſpicione proditionis. That in Vaug. 142, 143. Buſhell's caſe, this return was taken for granted; that was on a commitment of Buſhell and al', for having acquitted Pen and Mead on an indictment for a riot, &c. and it is there ſaid by my Ld. Ch. J. Vaughan, that it might have been objected, that as the return of an habeas corpus for treaſon or felony had been good, ſo the return there was ſufficient, and he wondered it had not been mentioned; and it was not objected to either at the bar or at the bench; but it was obſerved, that there was a difference between the two caſes; for upon a general commitment for treaſon or felony, the priſoner (the cauſe appearing) might preſs for his trial, which ought not to have been denied or delayed, and upon his indictment and trial, the particular cauſe of his commitment muſt appear; as to the caſe of Kendall and Roe he ſaid, that the judgment of the court was not upon the ſpecies of treaſon being not ſet forth; my Ld. Ch. J. Holt gave no opinion as to that matter, but an objection was there made, that Sir J. M. was not charged to be guilty of high treaſon; now he muſt be guilty of this, to make the others guilty of high treaſon in aiding and aſſiſting him to make his eſcape; he added, that it was not ſaid in that caſe, that a general commitment for high treaſon was not good.

As to the length of time, he ſaid that was to be conſidered upon the habeas corpus act, whether it was not a good deal owing to Sir W.'s own neglect, by not applying to the court ſooner, when that act had chalked out a method; for upon entering his prayer in proper time, if he had not been indicted that term, upon motion in open court the laſt day of that term, he muſt have been diſcharged: that theſe were conditions put upon the party, of which if he would have the benefit, he muſt follow what was by them preſcribed. That there had been attempts upon the government, every body knew; it was not neceſſary to ſpecify that; could it be ſaid the warrant was void for want of this; ſurely it was legal and juſt, and the ſecretary in doing what he had done, had but done his duty.

On the reply Mr. ſerjeant Pengelly ſaid, that the Attorney general had not given any reaſon for his delay of a proſecution; that it was not inſiſted upon that they had any witneſſes, or that any of thoſe witneſſes were out of the way or abſent, to obſtruct the carrying on a proſecution; that, this being ſo, it was plain from the hab. corp. act, there was no other excuſe to be given to the court, viz. that the witneſſes could not be found, or were not in the way, or by reaſon of ſome abſence; if Mr. Attorney general had been pleaſed to have given any account of that, it might have given ſome ſatisfaction in the caſe. That upon every commitment for high treaſon, there muſt be expreſs evidence of that fact, and this ſhews that every thing muſt then be in a readineſs to make out the ſubſtance of the commitment; it deſtroyed all preſumption of the witneſſes being out of the way; they ought to have proceeded freſhly; that their delay of not ſuing for an hab. corp. could not be imputed to their prejudice, but it might evidence how much they were preſſed at that time, as that Mr. Attorney general ſhould happen not to think of this particular caſe; that Sir W. W. was not to be involved in the caſe of thoſe that were in the rebellion; whatever they deſerved, whether a recent proſecution or not, he was not within the act made for their trial; his was a partieular caſe; his confinement was to be anſwered for by default of their proſecution; that he was not to be neglected, becauſe others of an inferior quality were to be tried; that others of a leſs quality had been proceeded againſt in the country, and a perſon of his quality had been neglected tho' in town, always ready to be brought to juſtice, and that tho' there was no pretence of a proſecution againſt him, he muſt now go down into Somerſetſhire; that it was not ſaid there was ever an intention to proſecute him; that this looked like a wilful looking over his caſe, and if this proſecution in Somerſetſhire ſhould not ſucceed, yet it might be a ſatisfaction to ſome people. He ſaid, that the liberty of a gentleman of quality ought not to be reſtrained upon ſuch ſuggeſtion, or a report that Mr. Attorney general would proſecute; impriſonment was only for ſafe cuſtody; the clauſe of the habeas corpus act, if their prayer was not entered in due time, took away only the remedy the party might have againſt the judge or officer as to any penalty upon that act, but it was never intended to prevent his being bailed; this was the conſequence, that the party ſhould not have the benefit of that act, ſo as to bring an action for the penalty. It was a waver of the penalty, but ſtill he did not forfeit his liberty; it gave him leave to get his liberty ſooner than he elſe could, nor took away any benefit he had at Common law; that Sir W. W. ſtood clear ſtill to have the advantage of that ſtatute; that Mr. Attorney had no interruption either in Mich. or Hill. term, eſpecially in this town; there were two terms compleat; that the hab. corp. act ſaid, that two terms were a reaſonable time for a proſecution, but his client had laid two terms more; this was a double time, and a double puniſhment; it doubled the inconvenience upon the proſecuted: for by law the proſecution ought to be freſh. That as to the form of the warrant, he ſaid that they (the King's counſel) had not given any inſtance where it had been adjudged good. The event of Croſton's caſe was againſt them, when he was brought up upon his hab. corp. he was remanded for two or three days, and at the end of the term he was let to bail; the court thought that a general commitment was not ſufficient to continue him in cuſtody. That there was great reaſon why the ſpecies of high treaſon ſhould be mentioned; was there any inſtance of a commitment for felony generally held to be good, and allowed? If a commitment for murder or felony were not good, could there be any difference, why it ſhould not be ſo too in caſe of high treaſon? for as treaſon is the genus, ſo is felony. He ſaid, the reaſon of this was, becauſe the court of B. R. which was a ſuperior court, might have ſome controul over the actions of inferior magiſtrates, and ought to have ſatisfaction ſhewn them; that it was a crime of that nature for which a perſon ought to be committed, and in order to this, there muſt be ſome convenient certainty in their warrants as to the ſpecies of treaſon; the fact imported it, as if a man were taken in actual rebellion. That particular ſpecies aroſe immediately from that fact; ſhall an inferior magiſtrate be truſted with the examination of facts, and yet make the court a general certificate without having the ſpecies, tho' it were not neceſſary to ſet forth the overt act?

As to the caſes in Ruſhworth, and the ſeveral inſtances inſiſted upon, as for ſuſpicion of treaſon, ſo for ſuſpicion of felony, ſo pro homicidio, he ſaid that theſe were not law, and that there were at that time ſeveral commitments made, when the ſecretaries of ſtate pleaſed, without the particular ſpecies of the treaſon; that the certificate of the judges in Ruſhworth was made only to excuſe themſelves; that they had not ſet any perſons at liberty, but where the cauſe of the commitment had not been certified or returned to them; that as to the caſe of Kendal and Roe, my Lord Ch. J. Holt ſaid, It was a ſtrong objection, that the particular ſort of treaſon was not mentioned, and this was inſiſted upon at the bar in Montgomery's caſe.

That as to the caſe in Vaugh. it was ſtrong for him; for upon ſuch a general commitment for treaſon or felony, the priſoner (the cauſe appearing) might preſs for his trial, which ought not to be denied or delay'd; which ſhews, that if this commitment be allow'd, yet the party ought to be proſecuted immediately, and this proſecution ought not to be deferr'd.

That if Mr. Attorney general deſired any recognizance or bail to be given, Sir W. W. ſhould ſubmit to it, and would be forthcoming to appear at any time, which would be a far greater ſecurity than his commitment.

Mr. Jeffrys by way of reply alſo ſaid, that Sir W. had been ſo cloſe kept, that he had not uſe of pen, ink, or paper for two months, ſo that he could not apply for any enlargement from his impriſonment.

That

That as to the caſe of Kendal and Roe, no anſwer had been given to it; for tho' Sir James Montgomery was dead, yet his death could not alter that caſe; as to the ſaying by Mr. Solicitor, that the objection about the power of a ſecretary of ſtate to commit, was there ſcouted at by the court, it was there mentioned by my Ld. Ch. J. Holt; and tho' their power be now agreed to, yet they were but formerly clerks of the council, and are but of late grown to be great miniſters of ſtate. The Attorney general has ſaid, that we ſhould ſtay till next term; ſo much he knew of a proſecution; ſo that as yet he does not know it with any certainty. The hab. corp. act ſays, that there ought to be oath made that the witneſſes cannot be produced. Mr. Attorney did not ſay that he had directions to proſecute, or that he would proſecute.

Mr. Reeves by way of reply further added, that it was not ſaid how long time Mr. Attorney had direction to proſecute in Somerſetſhire: there had been already an aſſizes in Somerſetſhire; there was a conſiderable time between October and that aſſizes, and two terms had ſince interven'd. Sir W.'s commitment was in this town, and if he had enter'd his prayer in time, he would have been intitled to be bail'd long ſince: That if Mr. Attorney did intend to try him in Somerſetſhire, he would have an opportunity to do it after his being bailed as well as now; but as to Sir W.'s own caſe, it was of far greater conſequence; for if he were kept in cuſtody, he would be in danger of his life; but the proſecution might nevertheleſs go on; and as to the crown, there could be no inconvenience.

As to the caſe of Kendal and Roe, that had been anſwer'd: it was there determined that it was an ill commitment. The judgment of the court there was, that ſuch a general commitment was a reaſon for the court to bail; tho' not a void commitment; that this was what they now inſiſted upon. Take it to be a good commitment, the party ſtill ought to be bailed; this did not ſhew that it was an illegal commitment. As for that which was ſaid further, that Sir James Montgomery was dead, this was not taken notice of by the court; but judgment was given upon the form of the commitment; that as to the objection, that it ought to have been there averr'd that Sir James Montgomery committed high treaſon, this made the preſent caſe the ſtronger.

That as to the reaſon given for a delay of the proſecution by the rebellion, it did not appear that Sir W. W. was in cuſtody for an act done in the rebellion, or for any other act of high treaſon whatſoever.

That for the length of time, the generality of the warrant of commitment, tho' not a void warrant, their being ready to give bail to appear in Somerſetſhire, after ſo long being in cuſtody, he hoped the diſcretion of the court would be induced to bail him.

Then Sir W. W. himſelf ſpoke; that for two months after his having been committed, he was ſo cloſely confined that he could not enter his prayer, if he had known it was neceſſary; that no-body was allowed to come to him till the habeas corpus act was ſuſpended, not even his wife; and afterwards only the duke of Somerſet and his lady, and his own wife; that there had been 16 or 17 in the tower, and all the warrants of commitment contained the patticular ſpecies of treaſon except 2 or 3; that he had lately had an opportunity to look upon the habeas corpus act, and there was a clauſe in it, that no perſon which ſhould be ſet at liberty upon an habeas corpus, &c. ſhould be again committed or impriſoned for the ſame offence; then how could that be made appear, but only by the ſpecies of offence expreſs'd in the firſt warrant? That his commitment was before any of the reſt that were in the tower.

That as to the proſecution in Somerſetſhire, there had been three quarter ſeſſions and one aſſizes already paſſed; that if Mr. Attorney would ſay upon his honour, that he had evidence upon oath to find a bill againſt him, he would be content to lie by the next vacation.

The Ch. J. then ſaid, that the caſes which had been mentioned were ſoon found out; and that his brother Pengelly had had, he did believe, a very full account of them; that as to what Sir W. W. had mention'd concerning his confinement, it would be proper that affidavits ſhould be filed of it that night, that they might have time and opportunity to lay before the court the matter of facts as well as the matter of law; and the laſt day of the term let Sir W. W. be brought here again.

Then a requeſt being made to the court, that counſel and a ſolicitor might have leave to have acceſs to Sir W. W. the Ch. J. ſaid, that as to the counſel and ſolicitor's going to him, that would be proper to be mention'd to the ſecretaries of ſtate.

Major Doyley, the lieutenant of the Tower, being aſked concerning the nature of the confinement, ſaid that no-body had been let in to Sir W. W. but by particular warrants; no perſon whatſoever, or any letter, was to be admitted to go to or from him. Upon which the Ch. J. aſked the lieutenant about Sir W. W.'s being able to ſend any meſſage, what he could do as to that; and the lieutenant anſwer'd, no-body but (ſuch an one), and that not without communicating the meſſage to one of the ſecretaries of ſtate. Then the Ch. J. ſaid to the lieutenant, Let us have theſe warrants brought up with you. If any anſwer be put in as to the nature and circumſtances of Sir W.'s health, let theſe affidavits be filed by to-morrow night. Let us look upon theſe caſes that have been mentioned, when they were, and how they are, viz. Yate's caſe, Ld. Montgomery's caſe, Zach. Crofton's caſe, and the caſe of Kendal and Roe.

Then a rule was made for the lieutenant of the Tower to bring up Sir W. W. again the laſt day of the term; which being done, the Ch. J. delivered the opinion of the court, viz.

That Sir W. W. being brought up there from the Tower by a habeas corpus, the return to it was, that he was charged there by a warrant under the hand and ſeal of Mr. Secretary Stanhope, (in the words as above.)

That it was directed to the governor of the Tower of London, or his lieutenant.

That it had been pray'd that Sir W. W. might be let out upon bail; and to induce the court to do this, ſeveral reaſons had been offered to the court; that it had been admitted on all ſides, that the court had power to bail upon a commitment for high treaſon, tho' there were a good and proper commitment; yet as for the circumſtances of the caſe, that the firſt thing inſiſted upon or objected, was from the form of the warrant; and there the firſt objection was, that he was to be kept in ſafe and cloſe cuſtody; that this was more than by law could be juſtified; it was only a ſafe cuſtody for the party, ſo to be taken care of, that he might not make his eſcape. He ſaid this was advanced without any authority, or one ſingle inſtance, and againſt 40 precedents; that there had been many occaſions when this exception might have been taken; that in Kendal and Roe's caſe ſome notice was taken of this exception; but it was there allowed as proper to be done. What had been the conſequence, if the impriſonment had been more cloſe than by law it ought to have been? that is not the conſequence that the court ſhould diſcharge the priſoner.

That the next objection that was made, that this warrant was not ſaid to be made upon oath, and this was preſſed in a pretty ſtrong manner, that if people might be committed in this manner, it was making them for their liberties tenants at will to the ſecretaries of ſtate. But in the firſt place, he ſaid it was a hard way of arguing, that becauſe no oath was expreſs'd in the warrant, therefore he was committed without oath; and if the oath were not expreſs'd in the warrant, it was not neceſſary. This was alſo preſs'd, without one ſingle authority; that many commitments had been in that form; many had been brought before the court in that form. In ſome of them mention had been made of this thing, but it was not taken to be of any weight; but on the contrary, Trin. 2 W. & M. this matter was particularly inſiſted upon, that a warrant of commitment without oath was illegal, and it was over-ruled. This was Farguſon's caſe. In the caſe of Kendal and Roe, it was inſiſted upon, and not allowed; that there might be an impriſonment in many caſes without an oath; that this matter was lately under conſideration in the houſe of lords, and the judges were aſked their opinions upon it, which were delivered by my Ld. Ch. J. King, that warrants of commitment were good without being upon oath; that in many inſtances warrants without an oath could not be illegal. There might be many inſtances where an oath was not neceſſary; any perſon may be found with treaſonable papers about him, or may be taken in the fact. The magiſtrate that commits, muſt ſee that the party is guilty. Where a magiſtrate executed a matter within his juriſdiction, it ſhould never be preſumed that he abuſed that juriſdiction.

As for the next objection that was made, that the warrant was too general, not ſaying for what ſpecies of high treaſon the commitment was, he ſaid, that this was likewiſe advanced without any authority; none of the books cited did prove it; Ld. Coke, tho' he ſaid the warrant muſt contain the cauſe of commitment, did not ſay that the magiſtrate muſt go into a ſpecification of the offence; the firſt reaſon given for this was grounded upon 2 Co. Inſt. 591. that the warrant muſt contain the cauſe, that it might appear to the court judicially, that the offence was for high treaſon, either againſt the perſon of the King, or for what elſe; but he ſaid, he would not go over the reaſons mentioned in that book, for that they could not be ſupported in all parts. But the court did in all caſes rely upon the judgment of the magiſtrate; that it had been admitted that it was not neceſſary to ſet forth the overt act; and if it be not neceſſary to ſet forth the overt act, it muſt be left to his diſcretion, whether the offence were high treaſon or not; the court could never from thence form any judgment, whether it were high treaſon or not. In the ſame book it was allowed, that a commitment pro alta proditione contra perſonam domini regis would be ſufficient, but what judgment could the court form of that? one ſpecies was for compaſſing the King's death, and another was for levying of war, &c. each was high treaſon againſt the King's perſon; could the court form any better judgment upon the one than they could upon the other? So again for levying of war, there were many ſpecies of levying of war, and there were ſome riots which were very near treaſon. Then this objection was urged further, that this certainty was required, becauſe it might be extended to others who might be aſſiſting to a perſon ſo committed in making his eſcape. But he ſaid, that this only ſhewed that the party was not ſo ſtrictly guarded as he ought to have been; but was the party therefore to be permitted to go at large? The next objection was made by Sir W. W. himſelf, and very plauſibly, that the habeas corpus act did ſuppoſe the offence ſhould be ſpecified in the commitment, (becauſe there was a clauſe in it, that no perſon which had been delivered, or ſet at large upon an habeas corpus, ſhould at any time thereafter be again impriſoned or committed for the ſame offence) or elſe it could not appear upon the ſecond commitment that it was for the ſame offence as the firſt was for; as to this, he ſaid it was true, the offence could not appear to be the ſame in both commitments, without being ſpecified, but this muſt ariſe upon circumſtances, and for proof the evidence of the identity of the fact did not turn upon the warrants, but upon the examination of the facts upon which the warrants were grounded. If the firſt were for high treaſon in killing the King, the next might be for compaſſing the death of the King. Here this muſt not turn upon the expreſſions of the warrant; the act is penal againſt him that made the commitments, and it will lie upon him to make out that there is a ſecond act; ſo it would be if the expreſſion in the warrant ſhould be different; as in the firſt for levying war againſt the King, this was one ſpecies of high treaſon; if the ſecond, for compaſſing the King's death, that was another ſpecies of high treaſon; yet if the fact was the ſame, the party muſt be delivered upon this act; he would be intitled to bring his action for the penalty againſt the officer, and it puts the proof upon the officer, that the ſecond commitment was not for the ſame offence with the firſt; ſo that this expoſition of the act, by ſpecifying the particular treaſon, will not anſwer the end of it, for if the ſpecies were not the ſame in both commitments, the facts might be the ſame, or, if the ſpecies were the ſame, the facts might be different.

There was a further objection, and that was the caſe of Kendal and Roe; he ſaid, that caſe was thus: they were committed for high treaſon, for aſſiſting in the eſcape of Sir James Montgomery who had been committed for high treaſon, and their warrant of commitment ran thus, viz.

> " Sir W. Trumbal, Knt. one of his Majeſty's moſt honourable privy council, and principal ſecretary of ſtate.
> THESE are in his Majeſty's name to authorize and require you to receive into your cuſtody the bodies of Thomas Kendal and Richard Roe, herewith ſent you, they being charged with high treaſon, in having been privy to and aſſiſting the eſcape of Sir James Montgomery out of the cuſtody of William Sutton, one of his Majeſty's meſſengers in ordinary, and charged with high treaſon, you are to keep them in ſafe and cloſe cuſtody until they ſhall be delivered by due courſe of law, and for ſo doing this ſhall be your ſufficient warrant. Given at the court of Whitehall, 24th day of October 1695.
> William Trumbal.
> To the keeper of Newgate, or his deputy."

He ſaid there was an imperfect report of that caſe in 5 Mod. 78. and in this court there were ſeveral exceptions taken to that warrant of commitment, but they were all over-ruled; the exception there taken that the ſecretary of ſtate could not commit, was ſcouted at by the court, as Mr. Solicitor General has obſerved; another objection was, that the commitment by Sir W. T. ought to have ſpecified what the treaſon was, for it was inſiſted upon that there might be a ſort of high treaſon, the aſſiſting of which would not be treaſon, as the aiding, receiving, abetting and comforting a counterfeiter of the great ſeal, Co. 12. 81, 82. or of a counterfeiter of money. It was alſo inſinuated that Sir James Montgomery being dead, they could not be tried, and therefore they ought to be admitted to bail. He ſaid, this caſe did not at all turn upon the ſpecies of treaſon, but upon this, that their fact and their crime were ſpecifyed as not depending upon Sir James Montgomery's crtme, but upon the words of his warrant of commitment. It was, that he was committed for high treaſon, but not charged with high treaſon. If they aided and aſſiſted him in his eſcape, their crime muſt be dependant upon him; therefore he muſt be committed for a particular ſpecies of treaſon, to make them liable to the ſame puniſhment he was ſo committed for. He ſaid that this matter turn'd upon two things; firſt, That Sir James Montgomery was guilty. 2dly, That he was committed for that particular offence. It was then objected very ingeniouſly by Mr. Reeves, that if a commitment generally for high treaſon were good, what came afterwards in it could not make it bad. He ſaid the anſwer to this was, that he that was committed for high treaſon might not be committed for the ſame ereaſon of which he was guilty, ſo that what came afterwards might make it ill. He was not committed for high treaſon generally, but for a particular treaſon, ſo that he may not be guilty of that treaſon; as it was in the caſe of felony for ſtealing fruits or apples growing, ſo that when you come to ſpecify the particular fact, the general words may loſe their force. So it was in caſe of calling one (thief), if the words went only (for ſtealing apples growing), theſe words were not actionable, tho' (thief) in general was actionable. He concluded that theſe were the objections which had been made; theſe were the reaſons which had been offered in this caſe; but then, on the contrary, it appear'd from the 2 Inſt. 52. that this warrant was good. It ſays, the cauſe muſt be contained in the warrant, as for treaſon, felony, &c. or for ſuſpicion of treaſon or felony, &c. So was 1 And. 298 Kyſh. Coll. vol. 1. pa. 507, 509, 538. that caſe was very full to the purpoſe, and upon a very particular occaſion; for it it was, as it was ſaid by my Ld. Ch. J. Coke, then the Solicitor general, to be a direction for all council commitments. The occaſion was, that ſeveral perſons had been committed at ſeveral times to ſeveral priſons, without good cauſe, part of whom being brought up into the King's Bench, were according to law ſet at large and diſcharged of impriſonment, at which ſeveral great men were offended, and procured a command to the judges that they ſhould not do ſo afterwards; notwithſtanding which the judges did not ſurceaſe, but by advice amongſt themſelves made certain articles, and delivered them to the lord chancellor and lord treaſurer. The words were theſe, viz. That where it pleaſed their lordſhips to will divers of us to ſet down in what caſes a perſon ſent to cuſtody by her Majeſty, her council, ſome one or two of them, are to be detain'd in priſon, and deliver'd by her Majeſty's courts or judges; we think that if any perſon be committed by her Majeſty's command from her perſon, or by order from the council board, or if any one or two of her council commit, and for high treaſon, ſuch perſons ſo in the caſe before committed may not be deliver'd by any of her courts without due trial by the law, and judgment of acquittal had; nevertheleſs the judges may award the Queen's writs to bring the bodies of ſuch perſons before them; and if upon return thereof the cauſes of their commitment be certified to the judges, as it ought to be, then the judges in the caſes before ought not to deliver him, but to remand the priſoner to the place from whence he came, which cannot conveniently be done, unleſs notice of the cauſe in generality or elſe ſpecially (or, as the words are in Ruſhworth, in general or elſe in ſpecial) be given to the keeper or gaoler that ſhall have the cuſtody of ſuch priſoner; this was ſigned by all the judges and barons, &c. and they delivered one to the lord chancellor, and another to the lord treaſurer.

Mr. Selden in Ruſhworth inſiſts upon this as the opinion of all the judges, and produced the report under Ld. Anderſon's own hand, and this was afterwards ordered to be entered in the council books; ſo that this was not an excuſe only made by the judges, as was objected by his brother Pengelly, but a direct opinion of theirs; it was their deſire to remedy the inconvenience that then was; it was an application of the judges themſelves to prevent the hardſhips that were exerciſed then upon the ſubjects. It was there put, that if the cauſe of commitment was certified, the priſoner muſt be remanded; ſo that if the cauſe appear either in general or in ſpecial in the warrant of commitment, according to this reſolution it will be well; and Keyling (who was a great man) in Zach. Croſton's caſe, affirmed, that if the cauſe of commitment were for high treaſon generally, it was a good warrant. He ſaid, that the houſe of commons, immediately after the debates in Ruſhworth, came to a reſolution, that no freeman ought to be detained or kept in priſon, or otherwiſe reſtrained by the command of the King, or the privy council, or any other, unleſs ſome cauſe of the commitment, detainer, or reſtraint were expreſſed, for which by law he ought to be committed, detained or reſtrained; ſo that a commitment for high treaſon generally is good; ſo was Vaugh. 142. Ld. Ch. J. Vaughan there allowed it for law, by not denying the objection there raiſed from ſuch warrants, but by diſtinguiſhing upon it, and Buſhel's caſe was final and concluſive. Theſe were the great opinions in the time of Queen Eliz. and in 3 Car. 1. when this very matter was under conſideration; they were the opinions in Ld. Ch. J. Vaughan's time, and have been the conſtant practice ever ſince. So he concluded, that theſe objections, which had been made, were not of any weight as to the warrant of commitment. As for the other points, upon the length of time ſince the commitment, and the indiſpoſition of Sir W. W. he ſaid that as to the former, the caſes that had been cited did not come up to this caſe, and it would not be neceſſary to go through them all; but yet, though this were here a good warrant, the court were of opinion, that Sir W. W. ought to be bailed.

As to the affidavits concerning the indiſpoſition, he ſaid they were nonſenſe, and that the indiſpoſition muſt be a preſent indiſpoſition, not in purpoſe or expectation, but the length of time was to be conſidered; the commitment was about the middle of October laſt; there had been ſomething ſaid of a crime elſewhere, but nothing of that was laid before the court. Here was no oath or charge of any crime, nor was it ſaid directly that there would be certainly a proſecution elſewhere. If the act did ariſe in Middleſex, there had been four terms paſt; and if it aroſe in the country, there had been three quarter ſeſſions, which tho' not conſiderable in this caſe, yet there had been an aſſiſes, and yet no proſecution forwarded. There had not been any preparation towards it, nor yet was it laid certainly that there could be one.

He ſaid there was a thing that might have been a great objection againſt Sir W. W.'s then being bailed; that he ſhould lie ſtill ſo long, and not make any application. But the reaſon given for this was of weight in determining the diſcretion of the court; it was, that the habeas corpus act was ſuſpended at that time, tho' not as to this particular caſe. The gentleman might think himſelf included, and be miſtaken in it. However under theſe circumſtances he ſaid it ſeemed very reaſonable that Sir W. W. ſhould be bailed, and to appear here again the firſt day of next term.

That had Sir W. W. made his prayer the firſt day of this term, and it had appeared that the matter did ariſe in another county, the court could not have bailed him by the habeas corpus act; but they were not then upon that act, but at Common law; he ſaid that they were intruſted with the liberties of the ſubjects of England, and as they were bound on the one hand to take care of them, ſo they there were on the other hand to take care of the government, that a perſon might not eſcape juſtice, where there was a due proſecution againſt him; that he would have taken Mr. Attorney general's word, if he had ſaid at the bar that he would certainly have indicted Sir W. W. but there not being any thing of that in this caſe, they were all of an opinion to bail him.

He concluded that there had been a great many objections made by the counſel; but to ſtart objections againſt that which had been newly heard and determined by the court, that they might throw a greater hardſhip upon the courſe of the court, and make it look more odious in the world, where they overruled a great many objections (tho' theſe great many were made up but of a few) it was not fair, nor a practice to be ſuffered, but he hoped it would not be done any more.

The Attorney general ſaid, that he had notice of Sir W. W.'s bail, and did not object againſt them; and thereupon Sir W. W. entered into recognizance of 10,000*l.* and the duke of Somerſet, the lord Rocheſter, the lord Tumont, and the lord Gower, as his bail, in a recognizance of 5000*l.* to appear here again the firſt day of the next term.

Mich. 3 Geo. Sir W. W. appeared the firſt day of this term, and was continued according to the courſe of this court to the laſt day thereof; when he appeared again, the Attorney general ſaid, that he had his Majeſty's commands for proſecuting him for miſpriſion of treaſon, and would proceed againſt him accordingly; and to anſwer the delay of ſuch a proceeding an affidavit was read, that a material witneſs for the crown was then in Holland, &c. upon which the court declared, that the Attorney general's ſaying he would proſecute, &c. was a good ground for them to continue Sir W. W. upon bail till the next term.

Hill. 3 Geo. The firſt day of this term Sir W. W. again appeared, and was continued till the laſt day thereof; upon which day he was diſcharged; the Attorney general declaring, that he had his Majeſty's order for proſecuting Sir W. W. for a miſpriſion of treaſon, in concealing the high treaſon for which my Lord Landſdown was indicted; but the King having been pleaſed to pardon my lord Landſdown, and to order him to ſurceaſe the proceedings upon the ſaid indictment, he now conſented that Sir W. W. might be diſcharged. Trin. 2. Geo. 1. B. R. 3 Vin. 515 to 534.

Two lords have been committed to the tower by my lord Townſend, one of the ſecretaries of ſtate, for treaſonable practices againſt the government, upon the late ſuſpenſion of the habeas corpus act, which being expired upon upon the 24th day of May laſt, they applied upon the 26th day of May to Mr. baron Price at his chambers, for an habeas corpus according to the 31 Car. 2. c. 2. which being granted; and they (being brought up to him from the tower) did inſiſt upon their privilege as peers to be diſcharged, a peer not being required to give bail for a miſdemeanor; but the judge being of an opinion that they ought to give him bail, elſe he could not diſcharge them, &c. they waved their claim of privilege, and entered into recognizance (with bail) to appear at B. R. the firſt day of this term, which was upon the firſt of June; and they appearing accordingly, it was moved by their counſel that they might be diſcharged, and continued upon their recognizance till the laſt day of the term; and my lord Marlborough's caſe in the houſe of lords was quoted; but it was refuſed by the court; and Parker Ch. J. ſaid, that the court could not take notice of what they were committed for; that they had nothing before them but the recognizance, and they could not take notice of the warrant of commitment, or for what they ſtood committed; and that the lords muſt be continued upon their recognizance till the laſt day of the term, according to the courſe of the court, the whole term being in law accounted for as one day. The ſame day (theſe lords going immediately into the houſe of peers) debate aroſe upon this matter, and the opinion of the judges then preſent being (as it was delivered by the Ch. J. King) that baron Price and the court had done their duty, &c. that the judge was obliged to take bail upon the habeas corpus act, and ought not to have diſcharged the ſaid peers; but this debate being adjourned to inſpect their journals for precedents, &c. upon the 4th of June, the court of B. R. was again moved to diſcharge this recognizance, to which Mr. Attorney general conſented, ſaying, he had received his Majeſty's command to conſent to the diſcharge of the ſaid recognizance, &c. The King v. Lord Scarſdale and Lord Duplin. Trin. 2 Geo. 1. B. R. 3 Vin. 534.

Mr. Harvey having been committed for high treaſon by my lord Townſend's warrant (one of the ſecretaries of ſtate) to the priſon of Newgate, was about the beginning of this term brought upon an habeas corpus; and Mr. ſerjeant Darnel and Mr. Hungerford, being of counſel for him, moved that he might be diſcharged upon bail, and they alledged the ill ſtate of health he was in, of which they produced affidavits; and further inſiſted upon the inſufficiency of the warrant of commitment; as 1ſt, that he was not charged with any offence; 2dly, that this charge againſt him muſt be upon oath, the warrant being only "Receive into your cuſtody Edward Harvey, herewith ſent you for high treaſon;" and 3dly, that the ſpecies of treaſon ought to have been mentioned; that Mr. Harvey was on the 21ſt of Sept. laſt committed, for treaſonable practices againſt the government, to the cuſtody of a meſſenger, and about the beginning of May he was ſent to Newgate on this warrant; that he was a member of parliament, and his attendance there was very neceſſary.

Upon this one Claxton, an apothecary, was examined upon oath by the Ch. Juſt. concerning the nature and danger of Mr. Harvey's indiſpoſition.

To this it was anſwer'd by Mr. Attorney general, and Solicitor general, that the habeas corpus act was generally for high treaſon or felony, the words were "plainly and ſpecially expreſſed," not ſpecifically; that the bailing was a matter in the diſcretion of the court, and Mr. Harvey was not intitled to that favour till the laſt day of the term; that an offence was ſufficiently charged in the warrant, "ſent thither for high treaſon," is charging a man with high treaſon; that in the late duke of Ormond's caſe, the act for his attainder was generally for high treaſon; and in caſe of commitment for murder, the warrant need not mention the particular perſon killed, nay, it was not neceſſary in an indictment. It was replied by Mr. Harvey's counſel, that the ſpecies of treaſon ought to be expreſſed in the warrant. The habeas corpus act was, that the priſoner ſhould be bailed, except where the charge againſt him was plainly and ſpecially expreſſed, and cited Croſton's caſe, 1 Sid. 78. and as to the late duke of Ormond's caſe, the act for his attainder refers to the articles of impeachment.

Then it was ſaid by my Ld. Ch. J. Parker, that this was an illneſs which had been a good while upon Mr. Harvey, and it was proper they ſhould be ſatisfied about it, there ſeeming not to be any immediate haſte or danger; that they could not take notice of the matter about the warrants, unleſs it had been more particularly expreſs'd, and perhaps the firſt commitment was of more ſervice to Mr. Harvey than his liberty could have been, conſidering his examination before the ſecretary of ſtate; for then there might have been ſome reaſon for his being detained in cuſtody; that in my lord Montgomery's caſe, his ſickneſs was occaſioned by his confinement; but here he knew not how Mr. Harvey had been kept in Newgate, or was kept before going thither. He ſaid he knew him very well, and that he ſeemed not to be in that ſtate of health he formerly enjoy'd. Pratt J. ſaid, that he did not think that an indiſpoſition was, in all caſes, a reaſon for the court to bail. And then the Ch. J. added, that a magiſtrate might be miſtaken in his opinion about the offence, but yet he was bound to ſet out all the evidence: it could not ſignify any thing to the party, whether one ſpecies of treaſon or another was expreſſed in the warrant; but there was a fault in the commitment, the court could not therefore admit him to bail. In caſes of felonies it was every day practiſed, that if, upon examination of fact, it did appear that the party ought not to be bailed, the court did order the juſtice of peace, who made the firſt warrant inſufficiently, to make a new one, to ſupply the defect of the former.

Then Mr. Harvey's counſel pray'd, that his prayer might be enter'd, purſuant to the habeas corpus act, which was done accordingly.

About two or three days afterwards, Mr. Harvey was brought up again by rule, and the court were of an opinion againſt bailing him; but ordered him to be brought up again the laſt day of the term. Several affidavits were read, and particularly one of the meſſenger's, deſcribing the nature of Mr. Harvey's diſorder, and the circumſtances how he came to be under it; the judges delivered their opinions ſeriatim, and the ſubſtance of what they delivered is as follows.

That it appeared from the affidavits, that this indiſpoſition came upon Mr. Harvey by his own hand; for when he was firſt in cuſtody of the meſſenger, he ſeemed to be very eaſy and well, but after he was examined by the council, he was very much dejected, and did not ſpeak for 6 hours, and the next morning ſtabb'd himſelf in the breaſt; being under theſe circumſtances, he was confined in the meſſenger's hands, and not ſent to priſon till lately; ſo that, in the firſt place, this indiſpoſition was not ſuch as to induce the court to bail him, becauſe it was occaſioned by his own act after he was in cuſtody, and he was then much better than he had been; neither was the indiſpoſition ſuch as manifeſtly endangered his life, as it might be in the caſe of an acute diſtemper; the affidavits were only that his being confined for a few days would make his caſe the more doubtful, there being then ſome ill ſymptoms upon him.

2dly, That the behaviour of this gentleman after his examination, the changing of his countenance, and ſtabbing himſelf in the manner aforeſaid, carried a ſtrong ſuſpicion of guilt, tho' it was not ſufficient to charge him with any crime.

3dly, That the delay of a proſecution, as attended with theſe circumſtances, was not ſuch as to incline the diſcretion of the court to bail him. Crofton's caſe, lord Montgomery's caſe, and lord Ayleſbury's caſe, were much ſtronger in this point. Beſides, this gentleman was not before in a condition to be tried; and ſince he was moving towards his diſcharge, the Attorney general ought to have ſome time to prepare a charge againſt him, if he ſhould think fit.

4thly, That there was a grand jury then ſitting; that there had been a rebellion in the nation, and there was a great deal of the ſame ſpirit left; that in ſuch a time of danger to the government, the court ought to be very careful how they diſcharge a perſon committed for high treaſon.

5thly,

B A I

5thly, That there had been no precedent of this kind produced, and if the court ſhould bail this gentleman, every one who ſhould be committed for high treaſon, and ſhould be indiſpoſed by his own act, would have a right to be bailed. Their compaſſion ought to be conſiſtent with juſtice and the rules of the court. That if this indiſpoſition had been by the viſitation of God, or had been occaſioned by his confinement, it might have been of another conſideration; but here he was remanded, and ordered by rule to be brought up again on the laſt day of term, when he was bailed, but to appear again the firſt day of the next term, when he entered into a recognizance of 10,000*l.* and his bail into one of 5000*l.* each. Trin. 2 Geo. 1. B. R. The King v. Harvey.

Bailiff or Baily, (Ballivus) Saith lord Coke, is an old Saxon word, which ſignifies a keeper or protector; and though there be ſeveral officers called bailiffs, whoſe offices and employments ſeem quite different from each other, yet doth ſomething of keeping or protection belong to them all. Hence the ſheriff is conſidered as bailiff to the crown; and his county, of which he hath the care, and in which he is to execute the King's writ, is called his bailiwick; alſo his officers, who by his precept execute writs, are called bailiffs; there are likewiſe bailiffs of liberties, who are officers under lords who have franchiſes exempt from the juriſdiction of the ſheriff; there are likewiſe bailiffs of lords of manors, who collect their rents and levy their fines and amercements; alſo he is called a bailiff who hath the adminiſtration or charge of lands, goods or chattels, to make the beſt benefit for the owner, againſt whom an action of account doth lie for the profits which he hath raiſed or made, or might by his induſtry and care reaſonably have made, his reaſonable charges and expences deducted; there are likewiſe thoſe termed bailiffs, to whom the King's caſtles are committed, as the bailiff of Dover caſtle, &c. The chief magiſtrates in divers ancient corporations are called bailiffs; as in Ipſwich, Yarmouth, Colcheſter, &c. There are likewiſe officers of the foreſt which are termed bailiffs. 1 New Abr. 231. cites Co. Lit. 61. b. See *Co. By ſome opinions, a bailiff in Magna charta, c. 28. ſignifies any judge; but as there is but little ſaid of ſome of theſe in our books, and as what relates to others will more properly fall under other heads, it is thought proper in this place only to conſider,

1. Sheriffs bailiffs.
2. Bailiffs of liberties or franchiſes.
3. Bailiffs to lords of manors.
4. Pleadings.

1. Sheriffs bailiffs.

A ſheriff's bailiff is an officer appointed in every hundred to execute all writs within the hundreds, directed to the ſheriff; he is likewiſe to collect the poſt-fines, fee-farms of the King, &c. for the ſheriff, and to attend the juſtices of aſſize and gaol-delivery, and juſtices of peace in their courts. 1 New Abr. 232.

If an under-ſheriff takes bond from a bailiff, conditioned to ſave him harmleſs in executing all proceſſes, &c. and in an action brought on this bond, the ſheriff aſſigns for breach, that the bailiff had not executed a certain warrant ſent to him upon a proceſs directed to him out of the Exchequer, to levy iſſues upon certain land in D. and it is not alledged that D. is within his hundred, this is no breach of the condition; for the bailiff cannot execute a precept out of the hundred where he is bailiff. Style 18.

A ſworn bailiff, commonly known to be an officer acting within his own precinct, need not ſhew his writ to the perſon he arreſts; but when he has made his arreſt, he is to inform him of the ſubſtance of his writ, at whoſe ſuit the action is, and out of what court the proceſs iſſues; but a ſpecial bailiff is obliged to ſhew his warrant. 8 E. 4. 14. a. 14 Hen. 7. 9. b. 6 Co. 54. 9 Co. 69. Style 405. Cro. Jac. 485, 486.

A ſheriff who has a writ directed to him, may authoriſe others to execute it; but the perſon to whom he directs it, muſt perſonally execute it; yet it ſeems that one may lawfully aſſiſt him. Dalt. c. 117.

A bailiff caught one by the hand (whom he had a warrant to arreſt) as he held it out of a window, and the court ſaid, that it was ſuch a taking of him that the bailiff might juſtify the breaking open of the houſe to carry him away. 1 Vent. 306. 6 Mod. 173. S. P.

One who is arreſted by a ſheriff's bailiff is in the ſheriff's cuſtody, and if reſcued, the ſheriff may alledge that he was reſcued out of his cuſtody. 2 Jones 197. 1 Lev. 214. 2 Lev. 26.

A bailiff having a warrant againſt A. went to him in his yard, and being at ſome diſtance told him he had a warrant, and ſaid he arreſted him; A. having a fork in his hand, keeps off the bailiff from touching him, and retreats into his houſe; and on motion for an attachment for a contempt, the court held, that bare words will not make an arreſt; but if the plaintiff had touched him, that had been an arreſt, and the retreat a reſcous, and the bailiff might have purſued and broke open the houſe, or might have an attachment or reſcous againſt him; but as this caſe is, the bailiff has no remedy but an action for the aſſault; for the holding up of the fork at him when he was within reach, is good evidence of that. 1 Salk. 79. 6 Mod. 173.

By the 29 Car. 2. c. 7. it is enacted, That no perſon or perſons, upon the Lord's day, ſhall ſerve or execute, or cauſe to be ſerved or executed, any writ, proceſs, warrant or order, judgment or decree, (except in caſes of treaſon, felony, or breach of the peace) but that the ſervice of every ſuch writ, proceſs, warrant or order, judgment or decree, ſhall be void to all intents and purpoſes whatſoever; and the perſon or perſons ſo ſerving or executing the ſame ſhall be as liable to the ſuit of the party grieved, and to anſwer damages to him for doing thereof, as if he or they had done the ſame, without any writ, proceſs, order, judgment or decree at all.

A ſpecial verdict found that a fieri facias bore teſte the 4*th of June*, but was really ſued forth the 11*th of June*, and executed the 12*th of June*; and that the party, againſt whom it went, became a bankrupt the 6*th of June*, and a commiſſion was taken out the 17*th of June*, and trover and converſion was brought againſt the bailiff, who executed the writ; and the court held, that tho' the property was ſo bound, that the execution ſhould not have effect of the aſſignment of the commiſſioners, yet it was hard to puniſh the officer in trover, and make him a treſpaſſor for doing what he was obliged to do, and from which he could not plead to excuſe himſelf, and therefore gave judgment for the defendant. 1 Sid. 271. 1 Lev. 173. 1 Keb. 930, 932. S. C.

The ſtatute 23 H. 6. cap. 10. enacts, "That for an arreſt, or attachment, the ſheriff ſhall have 20 d. and the bailiff who makes the arreſt 4 d. and that the ſheriff or bailiff who doth contrary ſhall pay treble damages to the party grieved, and forfeit the ſum of 40 l. one moiety to the King, and the other to the party that will ſue; and that the juſtices of aſſiſe in their ſeſſions, juſtices of one bench and of the other, and juſtices of peace in their county, may determine the ſaid offences."

By the 1 H. 5. cap. 4. it is enacted, "That they which be bailiffs of ſheriffs by one year, ſhall be in no ſuch office for three years next following, except bailiffs of ſheriffs which be inheritable in their ſheriffwicks; and that no under ſheriff, ſheriff's clerk, receiver, nor ſheriff's bailiff, be attorney in the King's courts, during the time that he is in office with any ſuch ſheriff."

Bailiffs being officers who are to execute the King's writs, are moſt commonly puniſhed in thoſe courts out of which ſuch writs iſſue, by attachment; but it is impoſſible to ſet down all ſuch miſdemeanors and oppreſſive practices, of which the court is to determine, for which they ſhall be puniſhed; however, attachments have been granted againſt them where they have uſed needleſs force, violence and terror in making an arreſt; or where they broke open doors where by law they could not, and there was no plauſible excuſe for doing it; where they have treated the perſons arreſted baſely and inhumanly, or kept them in cuſtody till they conſented to pay money for their deliverance; or for making an arreſt without authority, by force of a blank warrant, filled up with the name of a ſpecial bailiff, by the party himſelf, without the privity or ſubſequent agreement of the ſheriff; or if a bailiff levy a debt by virtue of an execution, and keep the money in his hands, and imbezil it; but even in theſe caſes there may be ſuch circumſtances or matters of alleviation as will induce the court to excuſe, if not wholly diſcharge them. Finch 237. 5 Mod. 314. Hob. 62, 263, 264. Noy 101. Moor 770.

2. Bailiffs of liberties or franchiſes.

A bailiff of a liberty is one who hath the ſame juriſdiction with the ſheriff's bailiff, granted to him by the lord of a liberty or franchiſe. 1 New Abr. 234.

Theſe franchiſes proving very inconvenient, becauſe the ſheriff could not enter into them to execute the King's writs, but was to direct them to the bailiff of the liberty, who had the execution of all writs, the ſtatute Weſtm. 2. cap. 29. enacts, That if ſuch bailiffs gave no anſwer to the ſheriff, the court ſhould grant a ſpecial warrant, with a non omittas, which authoriſes the ſheriff to enter the franchiſe; and it being uſual to take out the capias and non omittas together, we have but little material in our books relating to this matter. 1 New Abr. 234.

But there are ſome caſes in which the ſheriff might enter without any clauſe of non omittas; as in caſe of a quo minus. So where the ſheriff is by Weſtm. 1. cap. 17. to make deliverance by replevin; ſo where he is judge, as in a writ of rediſſeiſin; ſo in waſte; ſo in executing a warrant for breach of the peace. Bro. Offic. 34. Br. Ret. 26. 2 Hen. 4. 1.

If the ſheriff executes the writ of a common perſon, without a non omittas, the execution is good; but the ſheriff is liable to an action to the lord, for entring into his bailiwick. F. N. B. Finch 54.

The bailiff of a franchiſe cannot enter into the guildable; and if he does, it is erroneous, becauſe he has no authority out of the franchiſe more than the ſheriff has in another county. Br. Offic. 35. Dalt. Sher. 464.

If there be two liberties within a county, viz. St. Edmond de Bury and St. Ethelbed de Ely, in the com' Suffolk, and a capias is directed to the ſheriff to take the body of B. and the ſheriff returns that he has made his mandate to the bailiff of Ethelbed, who has made no anſwer, the ſheriff, on a non omittas, ſhall enter into the liberty of Bury, though the bailiff of that liberty has made no default. Offic. Brev. 135. Theſ. Brev. 166.

If the bailiff of a franchiſe had made an inſufficient return, which the ſheriff returned to the court, they formerly held the ſheriff was anſwerable, and not the bailiff; for an inſufficient return is no return, and the bailiff making no return, the ſheriff ought to have ſaid nullum dedit mihi reſponſum; but this is altered by the 27 H. 8. cap. 24. which ſays, that the amercement for inſufficient returns made by bailiffs of franchiſes, ſhall be ſet on the bailiff's head, and not on the ſheriff's. 3 Hen. 7. 12. 5 Hen. 7. 27. See 2 Hawk. P. C. 142.

If the bailiff of a liberty dies after he has returned cepi, a diſtringas iſſues againſt his ſucceſſor, becauſes he takes it up under the return of his predeceſſor. Bro. Ret. Brev. 99. 14 Ed. 4. 1.

3. Bailiffs to lords of manors.

Bailiff of a manor may himſelf, or may command another to take cattle damage-feaſant upon the land; for he hath the care of all things within the manor. 1 Rol. Abr. 339.

But if a diſtreſs be taken for damage-feaſant, amends cannot be tendred to the bailiff; for he cannot deliver a diſtreſs, when it is once taken, no more than he can change the avowry of his maſter, or demand a rent upon a condition of re-entry. 5 Co. 76.

A bailiff of a manor, though he has no intereſt in the land, has an authority to receive rents, take fealty, pay quit rents, repair houſes and fences, and in other things act for his maſter's benefit; but he cannot do any thing to his prejudice, nor can he tile a houſe that was before thatched, nor impale a place before mounded with a hedge. See Cro. Jac. 178. Owen 28. Hob. 154.

A bailiff may be ſteward of the ſame manor; for thoſe are offices which are compatible. Cro. Jac. 178.

A bailiff hath no permanent eſtate, but is removable at the lord's pleaſure. Cro. Jac. 178.

A bailiff of a manor may leaſe the piſcary for years, but he cannot by any uſage make a leaſe of his maſter's land. 1 Rol. Abr. 339.

A bailiff may give licence to another to go over the land; for this is a treſpaſs to the poſſeſſion only, and the bailiff hath the diſpoſal of the profits of the poſſeſſion. 1 Rol. Abr. 339.

If a man takes cattle without any command, for ſervices due to the lord, if the lord after agree to the taking, he ſhall be adjudged his bailiff, altho' he was not his bailiff in any place before. 1 Rol. Abr. 685.

In debt for rent, upon a leaſe for years, the defendant pleaded that the plaintiff made J. S. bailiff of his manor, of which the lands in leaſe were part, and gave him power to receive the rents of the leſſee, &c. and alſo power to make leaſes for years; and that an agreement between the ſaid bailiff and defendant was made, that he ſhould pay 100*l.* and alſo ſurrender his leaſe to the uſe of the lord, and then he ſhould be diſcharged of the rent, which he hath done; and whether this agreement would bind the lord was doubted, and a peremptory day given to the defendant to maintain his plea, after which the reporter nil plus inde audivit. Palm. 402.

A. leaſes to B. for ninety-nine years, if B. C. or D. ſhall ſo long live, reſerving a heriot of 5*l.* upon the death of every of them; A. dies, and the bailiff of A. makes conuzance as bailiff generally for a heriot, but does not ſhew that A. had made his election; and whether this was not good and incident to the place of bailiff, or at the leaſt whether this ſhould not be intended for the benefit and advantage of the maſter till the contrary was ſhewn, dubitatur; and after the parties agreed. Lit. Rep. 33, 70, 71. Hetl. 12, 16, 17, S. C.

No bailiff can diſtrain for a fine or amercement, without a ſpecial warrant for ſo doing, which muſt be ſet forth by him in an avowry or juſtification of ſuch a diſtreſs. 3 Mod. 138. Cro. Eliz. 698, 748. Moor 574. 1 Salk. 107, 108. Skin. 587. 2 Keb. 745.

In treſpaſs the defendant juſtified as bailiff of J. S. to diſtrain for rent arrear, and the plaintiff ſaid, that riens arrear, and a good iſſue againſt the bailiff; contra againſt the lord himſelf; note the diverſity. Br. Treſpaſs, pl. 206.

Bailiff ſhall have every challenge to the array and polls as his maſter ſhall have. Br. Baille, pl. 29. And may ſay, that the tenements are in another vill, but bailiff ſhall not diſclaim in the land, contra of attorney, and bailiff may plead, miſnomer of his maſter, and the other plead triable by the aſſiſe. ib.

If there are two coparceners of a rent, and the one diſtrains and avows for himſelf, and juſtifies as bailiff of his companion, it is not traverſable that he is not bailiff. Br. Traverſe per, &c. pl. 118.

In aſſiſe, if J. S. appears as bailiff of the tenant, it is not traverſable if he be bailiff or not. Br. Traverſe per, &c. pl. 345.

Replevin, the defendant made cognizance as bailiff to the E. of Bedford, whereas in truth he was not his bailiff, but took the diſtreſs againſt his will. It was held, that the plaintiff cannot traverſe, that he was not his bailiff, for it is not iſſuable; nor can th eearl diſavow it, for he is not party; nor can the earl have an action upon the caſe, becauſe he is not damnified; but the party whoſe cattle are taken may bring an action of treſpaſs for taking his cattle; and if the defendant juſtifies as bailiff, he may ſay de ſon tort demeſne abſque tali cauſa, and ſo puniſh him. Cro. E. 14. pl. 3.

In treſpaſs the defendant juſtified as bailiff to J. S. the plaintiff replied, that he took his cattle of his own wrong, and traverſed his being bailiff. Anderſon Ch. J. ſaid, that if one has cauſe to diſtrain my goods, and a ſtranger of his own wrong takes my goods not as bailiff or ſervant to the other, and I bring treſpaſs againſt him, he cannot excuſe himſelf by fathering his miſdemeanors upon me; for once he was a treſpaſſer, and his intent was manifeſt. But if one diſtrains as bailiff, tho' in truth he is not bailiff, if he, in whoſe right he does it, does afterwards aſſent to it, he ſhall not be puniſhed as a treſpaſſer; for the aſſent ſhall have relation to the time of the diſtreſs taken; and ſo is the book of 7 H. 4. and to all this Periam agreed. And Anderſon held clearly, that the taking in this caſe is not good, to which Rhodes agreed. Godb. 109, 110.

In replevin the defendant made conuſance as bailiff to J. S. for damage feaſant; the plaintiff replied, that one A. did pretend right to the land where, &c. and the defendant took them in right of the ſaid A. abſque hoc that he took them as bailiff to J. S. and upon demurrer all the juſtices held clearly, that the traverſe is good. And as to a matter which was objected, that if this traverſe ſhould be allowed, the meaning of the defendant will be drawn in queſtion, they ſaid, that the ſame is not any miſchief; for ſo it is in other caſes, as in the caſe of recaption. 2 Leon. 215, 216.

In an avowry for an amerciament in a court leet upon a vill, for not making a tumbrel and ſtocks, he muſt alledge that the pain is unpaid to the lord, becauſe if any other of the vill has paid the pain, the plaintiff is not determinable; alſo he muſt plead the precept of the ſteward for taking the diſtreſs, or levying the pain, and the extract of the court, which the plaintiff ought to have for his warrant. Mo. 574. pl. 789.

An appointment of a bailiff of a manor.

KNOW all men by theſe preſents, that I W. B. of, &c. eſq; lord of D. in the county of G. have made, ordained, deputed and appointed J. G. of, &c. my bailiff, for me and in my name, and to my uſe, to collect and gather, and to aſk, require, demand and receive of all and every my tenants, that have held, enjoyed, or now do, or hereafter ſhall hold or enjoy any meſſuages, lands, or tenements, from, by or under me, within my ſaid manor of D. all rents, and arrears of rent, heriots, and other profits, that now are, or hereafter ſhall become payable, due, owing or belonging to me, within the ſaid manor; and in default of payment thereof, to diſtrain for the ſame from time to time, and ſuch diſtreſs or diſtreſſes to impound, detain and keep, until payment be made of the ſaid rent and profits, and the arrears thereof. And I do alſo further impower and authoriſe the ſaid J. G. to take care of and inſpect into all and every my meſſuages, lands and woods, within the ſaid manor, and to take an account of all defects, decays, waſtes, ſpoils, treſpaſſes, or other miſdemeanors, committed or permitted within my ſaid manor, or in any meſſuages, lands or woods there; and from time to time, to give me a juſt and true account in writing thereof: And further to act and to do all other things that to the office of a bailiff of the ſaid manor belongs and appertains during my will and pleaſure. In witneſs, &c.

Bailment, (from bailler, to deliver) Is a delivery of things, whether writings, goods, &c. to another, ſometimes to be delivered back to the bailor; that is, to him who ſo delivered them; ſometimes to the uſe of the bailee, that is, of him to whom they are delivered; and ſometimes alſo to be delivered to a third perſon: This delivery is called a bailment. Cowel.

1. Of general bailment; where bailee is anſwerable, and where not.

2. Of ſpecial or conditional bailment.

3. Pleadings.

1. Of general bailment; where bailee is anſwerable, and where not.

If a man deliver goods to another to be kept, or, which is all one, to be ſafely kept, the bailee undertakes to keep them only from all damages that ariſes from his own negligence; and the undertaking being only to keep them, he ought not to uſe them as though he had an intereſt in them. See hereafter the caſe of Coggs and Barnard under this title.

So a fortiori, if a man delivers goods to another to keep as a man would keep his own; and this is called a ſpecial bailment, in which the bailee doth undertake for no more than for his diligence in the keeping of them, and as no manner of uſe of the thing to him committed, but the naked poſſeſſion only. Co. Lit. 89. a. 4 Co. 83. b. Doct. & Stud. 129.

If the bailee of certain plate will not deliver it, detinue lies; but if he changes it, trover and converſion lies. Arg. Rol. Rep. 59, 60.

If I lend you my horſe, and he die ſuddenly without your default, you are diſcharged; per Kirton. Br. Charge, pl. 2.

In detinue, goods were bailed at the jeopardy of the plaintiff, and the defendant ſhew'd how W. had taken the goods. Per Rede; This is no plea, for the defendant might have action againſt the taker. Per Keble; The bailor ſhall have the action, for he has the property; and it was touched, that if goods are robbed from the bailee, he ſhall not be charged over, but if they are taken by a treſpaſſor of whom he may have conuſance, he ſhall be charged, for he has his remedy over. But per Brian; This is of a general bailment, but otherwiſe it is of a bailment at the peril of the bailor, for the bailee ſhall recover no damages, for he is not charged over to the bailor. Br. Bailment, pl. 8.

If on bailment of goods for ſafe cuſtody, the goods for want of cuſtody are loſt or deſtroyed, caſe or detinue lies, and bailee ſhall be charged by ſuper ſe aſſumpſit; per Frowike, Ch. J. Kelw. 77.

If A. leaves a cheſt locked with B. to be kept, and takes the key away with him, and acquainteth not B. what is in the cheſt, and the cheſt together with the goods of B. are ſtolen away; B. ſhall not be charged therewith, becauſe A. did not truſt B. with them as this caſe is; and that which hath been ſaid before of ſtealing, is to be underſtood alſo of other like accidents; as ſhipwrecks by ſea, fire by lightening, and other like inevitable accidents. And all theſe caſes were reſolved and adjudged in B. R. and by theſe diverſities are all the books concerning this point reconciled. Co. Lit. 89, a. b.

A. delivers money to B. to diſpatch his buſineſs in the Exchequer; B. does not do it, action of debt lies for it. Noy, arg. 72.

The naked poſſeſſion of chattles perſonal cannot be aliened, for ſuch alienation, if admitted, would deſtroy the right of the proprietary; and if allowed to be tranſlated or handed about from one to another, by concealment or imbezilment, might be loſt and deſtroyed, and would not be returned as they ought, to the right owners. Br. Attachment on Aſſiſe, 20.

If the goods of A. are bailed by B. to C. C. muſt deliver them to B. for C. cannot pretend to remove or alter that poſſeſſion committed to him, in order to reſtore it to the right owner; for the right of the reſtitution muſt be demanded of him that did the injury, of which C. has no pretence to judge; and therefore it would be downright treachery in him to deliver it to any other than him from whom he had it. 1 Rol. Abr. 607.

But if A. bail goods to B. to which C. has a right, and B. dies, his executors are chargeable only to C. that has right, for the executors came to the poſſeſſion by the law, and therefore muſt deliver it to thoſe perſons in whom the law has eſtabliſhed the property; and the taking up of an executorſhip is an engagement to anſwer all debts of the deceaſed, and all undertakings that create a debt, ſo far as there are aſſets, but doth not imbark him in the perſonal truſts of the deceaſed, no more than he is obliged to anſwer for his ſeveral injuries, which no man can tell how they might have been diſcharged or anſwered by the teſtator. 1 Rol. Abr. 607.

Snow, Mr. Warner's partner, a goldſmith, having loſt 21 lottery-tickets and a lottery-order for 50 l. immediately upon the loſs of them ſends to the goldſmiths company, and gets a number of printed tickets of the loſs, with the number and deſcription of the ſeveral lottery-tickets and order, which the beadle and ſervants of the company, according to the uſage in ſuch caſes, delivered at all the goldſmiths ſhops in London, and ſeveral coffee-houſes in and about the Royal Exchange, and at the Exchequer, &c. and the next day he put advertiſements in ſeveral publick prints, Gazette, &c. Some few days after theſe tickets and order were loſt, one Samuel Snow, a broker, but of bad credit and reputation in his buſineſs, brings theſe tickets and the order to the defendant's ſhop, being a goldſmith in Lombard-Street, where the ſaid Samuel Snow did uſually take up money, upon pawning or leaving lottery-tickets, or other government ſecurities, as a pledge for the money ſo received; but the defendant did never give him credit for any ſum of money, without having ſome pledge in his hands for his ſecurity; and in this way of dealing, they had paid and re-paid 20,000 l. in three months time. The defendant Jenkins advances to Samuel, upon the delivery of theſe tickets and order, a ſum of money near to the value of them. A bill being brought by the plaintiffs for a ſatisfaction for theſe tickets and order; the defendant inſiſts upon the property, they being payable to bearer, and that he is a fair purchaſer, and denies expreſs notice that they were loſt by the plaintiff Snow, and ſays that he took the tickets and order without examining the number, and only caſt up the ſums and value of them, being left in his hands only as a pledge and by a broker, and that is the uſual way of tranſacting between goldſmiths and brokers, where money is taken up upon ſuch publick ſecurities, which are left with the goldſmith only as a pledge till the money is re-paid. Per Parker C. If a perſon will buy lottery-tickets, or any other publick ſecurities payable to bearer or indorſee, with notice that they were loſt or ſtolen, and that the vendor came to them without a fair conſideration; this will not veſt a right or property in the buyer. In this caſe, though here is not proof of expreſs notice to the buyer, yet the printed notice left at his ſhop, and the ſeveral advertiſements in the printed papers, will amount to ſufficient notice ſo as to avoid the purchaſe; and though there is no direct proof of fraud in the defendants, yet here is a very groſs neglect in not examining the tickets and order; and ſince the plaintiff did every thing in his power to retrieve the tickets and order, and it was the defendant's fault and careleſſneſs not to examine them before he bought them, and Samuel Snow being a broker and run away, the defendant Jenkins ought to make ſatisfaction to the plaintiff, and decreed accordingly, but without coſts. 4 Vin. 6, 7. cites M. S. Rep. Trin. 4 Geo. 1. in Canc.

The plaintiff, living in the country, leaves with the defendant, his banker in town, ſome lottery-tickets and lottery-orders, for which the defendant gives him a note, promiſing to be accountable for them on demand. There was no letter of attorney, or any expreſs authority given to the defendant about them. The defendant continues to receive the intereſt, and once received 50 l. of the principal, which the plaintiff approved of; but whether this 50 l. was by ſale of any of them, or was paid in the courſe of diſcharge by the government, or whether the defendant had any particular authority concerning this 50 l. did not appear. The defendants, without any expreſs authority, ſubſcribed theſe into the S. S. company in the name of the plaintiff, and ſtock for them was made out in the books in the plaintiff's name alſo. The plaintiff brings his bill for an account and ſatisfaction, &c. For the plaintiff the arguments turned upon the defendant's being only a depoſitory to receive the intereſt; that this was the only power that a banker is underſtood to have in ſuch caſes, which are common; and in regard to the 50 l. principal, he muſt be ſuppoſed to have had a particular order for that, as it appeared to be a particular tranſaction. As to the lottery-tickets, that he admitted himſelf to be accountable for the loſs that accrued upon them, by an offer he made to pay ſuch loſs or difference; that this was within the old rules of a loſs ariſing from the unauthoriſed act of a depoſitory; and therefore, if it was a new caſe, it was only ſo on the defendant's ſide, and the conſequences would be too extenſive to make a precedent in his favour. For the defendant it was inſiſted, that he had the legal intereſt in theſe things, as bearer, was the plaintiff's truſtee, and therefore is fully indemnified by the S. S. act, which impowers all truſtees to ſubſcribe; that his poſſeſſion of theſe things imply'd a power to diſcharge or diſpoſe of them. The law infers ſuch a power from the leaving a bond in the hands of a ſcrivener, who was agent in lending the money: he may receive it, and on payment deliver up the bond, without any expreſs authority. The caſe of Parry and Stokes lately decreed, was much ſtronger: The defendant there gave a note to transfer 150 l. Bank annuities to the plaintiff on demand; but when the plaintiff demands them, he ſays he has ſubſcribed them. There the only queſtion was, whether they were indeed ſubſcribed, being in the defendant's own name; but if they were ſubſcribed, it was agreed the plaintiff would be bound by it. Here the ſubſcription is in the name of the plaintiff. The laſt act deſigned to give validity, and cure all defects in the ſubſcriptions. In this caſe the company don't want its aſſiſtance, in regard to them; the ſubſcription is certainly valid, and therefore, if private perſons are bound, as to the company, the act has certainly concluded all queſtions between themſelves; for the ſame ſubſcriptions cannot be valid in regard to one, and void as to another. But if this caſe is not within any of the acts, if the defendant is not a truſtee, but only an agent or factor, or any thing elſe, yet he is unattended with any of thoſe circumſtances which ſhould induce a court of equity to charge him with the loſs. He has been guilty of no fraud, and had good reaſon to juſtify his miſtake. The legiſlature recommended theſe ſubſcriptions; it was the opinion of moſt men, that they would be advantageous. The court ſhould take notice of the hurry people were then in. The defendant acted as well for the plaintiff as he did for himſelf; he could have no advantage from this ſubſcription, becauſe it was in the plaintiff's name. The plaintiff might have received benefit from it, ſince he proved it bore a premium: there was therefore no reaſon to charge the defendant. Per Maſter of the Rolls, This caſe ariſes upon the conſtruction of ſeveral acts of parliament; the S. S. act, and the ſubſcription acts, that were made to confirm and ſupply what was done upon it. He ſeemed to expreſs ſome doubts concerning the equity of thoſe acts, and enlarged much upon the conſtruction of ſome parts of them out of this caſe; but he ſaid, that every one that ſits in this court ſhould act according to law; that he ſat there jus dicere, non dare. This was agreeable to the rule of judging ſecundum diſcretionem boni viri; for Vir bonus eſt quis? Qui conſulta patrum, qui leges juraq; ſervat. That this caſe is not at all accompany'd with any impoſition or fraud, or deſign of profit to the defendant. The two ſorts of ſecurity depoſited, ſhould receive a diſtinct conſideration. As to the lottery-tickets, the defendants are plainly truſtees; but I don't think in all caſes, where a thing is payable to bearer, the bearer will have the legal property; as where a ticket is ſtolen: and yet in ſuch caſe, if ſuch ticket was ſubſcribed, the company would have good right from the bearer: here plainly the defendants were truſtees by being bearers, becauſe, by having the ſecurities, they had a power to receive the principal, which alſo the owner muſt know. I think this is a ſtronger caſe than that of a ſcrivener; for if he is enabled to diſcharge the debt by only having a cuſtody of the bond, without any legal property, a fortiori here, where the defendant is truſted with the legal property: But if the ſcrivener does deliver up the bond without payment of the money, that will not diſcharge even the debtor, but he will continue ſtill liable for the debt. The defendant's offer ſhall not bind him; for he would always ſtick to Ld. Cowper's rule, that no offer ſhould prejudice the perſon offering. As to the caſe of Mr. Lutwich put of a perſon intruſted to deliver over a thing to another, he is in no ſenſe a truſtee, but a meer porter or carrier; he can receive nothing, and yet even this perſon would be a truſtee in regard to the S. S. company, but not ſo as to be himſelf indemnified for a ſubſcription; but he thought there was no caſe of a real truſtee that was not within the act. 'Tis plain the legiſlature intended to take in all ſorts of truſts whatſoever; if a man was anyways intruſted, tho' not a formal truſtee, he had a power to ſubſcribe; even creditors are bound by the ſubſcription of executors, which is the hardeſt caſe. And yet, tho' the defendants are truſtees, if there had been any fraud, any advantage to themſelves, I would charge them, tho' their ſubſcriptions would be valid as to the company. The courſe of dealing in theſe caſes is very well known; the hurry was very great, the defendants thought they were acting for the benefit of the plaintiff, and for a ſmall time it was for his benefit; he might have ſold them (contracted for them) at a premium. The ſecond point concerning the lottery-orders is not ſo clear to be a truſt, nor do I think I need declare any opinion whether it was a truſt or not; ſo far it reſembles a truſt, becauſe the defendants plainly had a power over the principal and intereſt, and that by the delivery of the party himſelf; he has made uſe of that power, as to the principal, by receiving the 50*l.* The aſſignment of theſe orders is with a blank. The bearer has a power to fill up that blank. The defendants had a power to make themſelves truſtees, by filling it up to themſelves, and then they would have been good truſtees in the ſenſe of the act. But tho' he had the power to make himſelf a truſtee, he has not made himſelf one; but the form of a truſtee ſeems not to be conſidered by the act, but whether the perſon was in any ſenſe intruſted. Upon the late act, I will not ſay how it will be where the company have got poſſeſſion of orders without the act of the proprietor, or any authority from him, expreſs or implied, that is a queſtion of right: but ſuppoſe here this ſubſcription is a void ſubſcription, and not within the proviſo of the late act, can the plaintiff make the defendants ſtand in the place of the S. S. company, and make that ſatisfaction which the company ought to make, without making the company parties? I think the defendant ſhould not be charged. If he has done wrong, it is without any ingredient of fraud to bring it into this court, and therefore, as a tort, ſhould be proſecuted at law. What can this court decree for a tort? Can they decree that the defendant ſhall pay to the plaintiff the intereſt of theſe annuities, till the government would have redeemed them? and ſhould we decree the payment of a certain ſum, this would be directly to decree damages for a tort, and ſuch an invaſion upon the Common law, as I hope never to ſee in this court. If this act has authenticated this ſubſcription as to the company, it has alſo as to the proprietor. Bill diſmiſſed per Jekyll, Maſter of the Rolls. 4 Vin. 7, 8, 9. cites MS. Rep. Paſch. 8 Geo. 1.

Securities were delivered by A. to B. in order that B. ſhould advance a ſum of money upon them the next day; but no money was then advanced. The queſtion was, whether B. can keep theſe ſecurities, ſo delivered to him for this particular purpoſe, in order to have a ſatisfaction for a precedent debt due to him from A. Per Ld. C. Macclesfield, B. ought not to retain theſe ſecurities in ſatisfaction of a precedent debt due to him from A. ſince they were delivered to him for another purpoſe, viz. as a pledge or ſecurity for another ſum of money, intended and propoſed to be advanced and lent to him; and ſince B. did not advance the money according to the agreement, he ought to return the pledge upon demand; and ſince he has not complied with his part of the agreement, he ſhall not retain the ſecurities which he got into his hands by ſuch a pretence and artifice, to ſecure to himſelf a ſatisfaction for a precedent debt; and gave coſts againſt the defendant. 4 Vin. 9. cites *MS. Plaintiff brought trover againſt defendant for a diamond ear-ring, and other jewels, to which the defendant pleaded Not guilty. Upon ſpecial verdict the caſe was, that plaintiff being owner of the goods mentioned in the declaration on the 12th of January 1729, lodged them, for ſafe cuſtody only, in the hands of Seymour the goldſmith, incloſed in a paper and bags, and took the receipt following; 12 Jan. Received of Sir John Hartop the following jewels, [mentioning them all] which are ſealed up in a bag; which bag ſealed up, I promiſe to take care of for him." That afterwards Seymour broke open the ſeals, and carried the jewels to defendant's ſhop, which is an open ſhop in London, as a banker; that Seymour borrowed of defendant 300*l. upon the pledge of the jewels*, and gave him his note for that ſum. No authority is found from the plaintiff to ſell them; but he demanded them of the defendant, who, not being paid his money, refuſed to deliver them. Seymour was in poſſeſſion of the jewels till he pledged them as aforeſaid, which was in the year 1736. Seymour afterwards became a bankrupt; (but that is not material to the preſent queſtion.) The value of the jewels is found to be 750*l.* After ſeveral arguments, the Ch. J. pronounced the reſolution of the court. The general queſtion upon this ſpecial verdict is, whether, by any facts found, the plaintiff is barred from having the goods delivered to him, or from having ſatisfaction; and firſt, it is to be conſidered in what relation Seymour ſtands with reſpect to the plaintiff; 2dly, whether any thing that is found, diveſted the property of theſe diamonds from the plaintiff. As to the firſt delivery to Seymour, it was nothing more than a naked bailment for the uſe of the bailor, lodged there for ſafe cuſtody only. Holt Ch. J. calls it a depoſiting, Southcote's caſe, 4 Co. in ſome reſpect the bailee has a property to keep, for the uſe of the bailor only. That upon Seymour's breaking the ſeal, he was a treſpaſſor to the plaintiff, and that treſpaſs would lie againſt him; cites Moor 248. and Salk. 655.

The

The opinion of Trevor Ch. J. The ſecond conſideration is, how far the plaintiff is affected by any thing done by Seymour; whether his property is diveſted by any thing that is found. Seymour had the poſſeſſion originally by right, but by breaking the ſeal he became a treſpaſſor, and from thence a poſſeſſor of the goods by wrong. It is objected, that the defendant was not privy to Seymour's wrong; that he lent his money innocently, and therefore, as is objected, more reaſonable the loſs ſhould fall on the plaintiff than defendant; and for this was cited Salk. 289. But that is not this caſe; the jewels here were ſealed up with the plaintiff's own ſeal, which reſembles the locking a box, and taking away the key. 1 Inſt. 19. There is no fault in the plaintiff. Then to conſider what is the law touching ſales in open ſhops; that ſales in open ſhops do not alter the property of a ſtranger, as ſales in market-overt or fairs. Moor 625. That a cuſtom of London pleaded, that every freeman might buy all manner of wares in every ſhop in London, is too general; for then a ſcrivener might buy plate in his ſhop, and the like, which is unreaſonable. Cro. Jac. 69. Bacon's Uſe of the Law 80. 5 H. 7. 15. By theſe caſes it appears, that the true owner never loſt the property of his goods by ſale, unleſs in a market-overt. For the defendant it was inſiſted, that if a perſon who loſt money with the plaintiff at play, and gave him for payment a goldſmith's note, the goldſmith ſhall not be obliged to pay this note, the plaintiff being a perſon within the meaning of the gaming act. This is true; but if the plaintiff had negociated this note to a third perſon, then the caſe would have been between two perſons, ſtrangers to the proviſions of the gaming acts, and ſo thoſe acts would not take place, as between acceptor and aſſignee of the note. Carth. 357. Salk. 344. So where a bank-bill, payable to A. or bearer, and A. loſes the note, and the ſtranger who found it transfers it, for valuable conſideration, to C. the money being paid to bearer, diſcharges the drawer; for 'tis the very terms of the note, and by courſe of trade, the notes are looked upon as change of money for money; but there is no ſuch courſe of trade with reſpect to goods: The property does not follow the poſſeſſion, unleſs in caſes where the owner has no mark to know his own again, as in money. Cro. Eliz. 746. Higgs and Holiday. Salk. 283. Ford and Hopkins. In the preſent caſe, the owner never gave any power to ſell or diſpoſe of them, and poſſeſſion merely does not change the ownerſhip of goods, tho' it does of money. If bill or note is made payable to A. or bearer, if no indorſement, the vendee is without remedy againſt vendor; for theſe notes are look'd upon as lodging money for money. The next matter for conſideration is is, whether the place where the pawn is made will intitle the defendant to retain theſe jewels. On the finding, it is inſiſted, that ſales in open ſhops are the ſame as ſales in markets-overt: but by this ſpecial verdict no cuſtom is found, and unleſs it was found, rhe court cannot take notice of ſuch a cuſtom; as was determined in the caſe of Argyle and Hunt, in this court, Trin. 5 Geo. 1. where a libel in the ſpiritual court, for calling a woman whore, and after ſentence, applied for a prohibition, yet denied; for that the court would not take notice of the cuſtom of London, where 'tis actionable to call a woman a whore. Carth. 75. Then 'tis objected, that upon the finding of the jury, the cuſtom is to be certified. Hob. 86. Cro. 516. Cro. Jac. 69. But this caſe is not within the cuſtom, as ſales in market-overt; for pawns, as this is, and ſales, are quite different; and a cuſtom which extends to ſales in market-overt will not include pawns or pledges; and for that purpoſe 35 H. 6. fo. 25. is in point, where 'tis expreſsly ſaid, that the cuſtom extends to a ſale, and not to a pawn. There is no inſtance where this caſe has been allowed, with reſpect to pawns. 4 Vin. 9, 10, 11. cites MS. Rep. Eaſt. 1743. in B. R.

But if a horſe be committed to an Hoſtler, he ſhall detain him till he is paid for his meat. 2 Rol. Abr. 85.

So if cloth be committed to a taylor to make up into a garment, he ſhall detain the cloth until he is ſatisfied for his labour. Cro. Car. 271. 8 Co. 147.

A taylor hath cloth delivered to him to make up into a garment, which he doth accordingly; he ſhall have an action for his work, without delivering the garment; and if the taylor refuſe to deliver the garment upon requeſt, it ought to be ſhewn on the other ſide in excuſe of the action; for the taylor's action is founded upon the promiſe, and if he hath done the work and is ready to deliver the garment, he hath performed all that the law requires on his part, and on that conſideration is intitled to the benefit of the defendant's promiſe. Palm. 223, 224.

Detinue againſt baron and feme, and counted of bailment of ſheep to the feme before the coverture, by which the defendant ſaid, that after he took the feme to wife, and the ſheep were bailed to him to compeſter the land, by which he commanded him to take his cattle, and he would not, wherefore the defendant took the cattle in the land, damage-feaſant; and demanded judgment, if of ſuch taking, &c. and the opinion of Thorpe was, that it is a good diſcharge of the bailment, without other poſſeſſion in the plaintiff again, by which the plaintiff traverſed the commandment; quod nota. *Br. Where I bail 10 l. to J. N. to deliver to P. and J. N. offers it, and P. refuſes, I ſhall have debt againſt J. N. for he ſhall not retain the 10 l. for the refuſal of P. where there is no default in me. Br. Conditions, pl. 53.

If a feme covert bails goods to a man, and after ſhe takes him to baron, and he dies, the feme ſhall not have action of bailment; for the bailment was diſcharged by the intermarriage, but ſhe may declare upon trover; quod nota; per Fineux. Br. Bailment, pl. 6.

If a man lends another his ſheep, oxen, or his cart, the borrower hath a qualified property in them, according to the purpoſes for which they were borrowed; and by force of this loan they may be uſed reaſonably for theſe purpoſes and for the time agreed on; and if they periſh in ſuch occupation, it is at the peril of the lender; but if they periſh in any other manner, the borrower muſt anſwer for them. Doct. & Stud. 129.

If A. borrows a horſe to ride to Dover, and he rides out of his way, and the owner of the horſe meets him, he cannot take the horſe from him; for A. has a ſpecial property in the horſe till the journey is determined; and being in lawful poſſeſſion of the horſe, the owner cannot violently ſeize and take it away, for the continuance of all property is to be taken from the form of the original bargain, which in this caſe was limited till the appointed journey was finiſhed. Yelv. 172.

But if A. borrows a horſe to go to Dover, and goes to other places, the owner may have an action on the caſe againſt him for exceeding the purpoſes of the loan; for ſo far it is a ſecret and fallacious abuſe of his property; but no general action of treſpaſs, becauſe it is not an open and violent invaſion of it. 1 Rol. Rep. 128.

If a man lend another his ſheep to ſtock his land, the borrower hath the bare uſe of them; but if he kill them, the owner ſhall have a general action of treſpaſs, or an action of trover at his election; for though the uſe is in the borrower, yet the property is in the lender, and the killing of the ſheep is an open violation of another's property, which is complained of in the general action of treſpaſs. *Co. As to borrowing a thing periſhable, as corn, wine, money, or the like, a man muſt, from the nature of the thing, have an abſolute property in them; otherwiſe it could not ſupply the uſes for which it was lent, and therefore he is obliged to return ſomething of the ſame ſort, the the ſame in quantity and quality with what is borrowed. Dr. & Stud. 129.

It is held by ſome, that if A. commits goods to B. to be kept, or, which is all one, to be ſafely kept, and they are ſtolen, that B. muſt anſwer the value of them to A. Others have made a diſtinction, that if B. had undertaken for a price to keep them, that then he ſhould have been bound to anſwer for them if they had been ſtolen; becauſe there is a conſideration to found the promiſe; but where no reward is agreed on, there they ſay there can be no conſideration on which the promiſe is built, and therefore a naked promiſe which affords no action; but the reaſons urged againſt this are, that where another loſes by an undertaking, I am equally bound to make good the value of my promiſe, as if I myſelf was to receive gain by the bargain; for ſince another's man's property, and poſſibly the whole fruits of a long and painful induſtry, is loſt and waſted by my undertaking to ſecure it, certainly I, from whom the damage aroſe, ought to make him ſatisfaction; for every man is preſumed to guard his own, and not eaſily to part with that which cannot be acquired without great difficulty; and therefore it muſt be preſumed, that he would have ſafely kept it, and not have committed it to me, unleſs I had undertaken to ſecure it; and if I fail in that undertaking, I am bound to a reſtitution; for I am equally obliged to a reſtitution, where another man ſuffers an injury by my means, as where I myſelf commit an injury; and had the law any other courſe in theſe caſes, it were a perfect inlet into all colluſion; for agreements and contrivances might ariſe between the men of violence and ſuch treacherous undertakers, as are not eaſy to be diſcovered. 4 Co. 83. Dr. & Stud. 129. See the caſe of Coggs and Barnard, at the end of this diviſion.

If a carrier, ferryman, or hoſtler be robbed, he ſhall anſwer the value of the goods; for the carrier hath his hire, which implies an undertaking for the ſafe cuſtody and delivery of them; for no man would give another money for ſecuring his own, if the party that received it were not to undertake on his part to ſecure it. 8 Co. 84. Co. Lit. 89. 1 Sid. 36. Palm. 523. 1 Rol. Abr. 124. 2 Rol. Abr. 367. 1 Rol. Rep. 79. Hob. 17, 18. Cro. Jac. 162, 330.

If A. delivers goods to B. to be delivered over to C. C. hath the property, and C. hath the action againſt B. for B. undertakes for the ſafe delivery to C. and hath no property or intereſt but in order to that purpoſe. 1 Rol. Abr. 606.

But if the bailment were not on valuable conſideration, the delivery is uncountermandable; and in that caſe, if A. the bailor bring trover, he reduces the property again in himſelf, for the action amounts to a countermand of the gift; but if the delivery was on a valuable conſideration, then A. cannot have trover, becauſe the property is altered, and in trover the property muſt be proved in the plaintiff. 1 Bulſt. 68.

If a man delivers goods to another, the bailee ſhall have a general action of treſpaſs againſt a ſtranger, becauſe he is anſwerable over to the bailor; for a man ought not to be charged with an injury to another, without being able to retire to the original cauſe of that injury, and in amends there to do himſelf right. 13 Co. 69. 14 Hen. 4. 28. 25 H. 7. 14.

If I deliver goods to B. and C. that hath right demands them of him, if B. either before or pending the action deliver over the goods to me, this is a good bar to the action of C. brought againſt B. for ſince B. hath undertaken to deliver the goods back to me, he ſhall not be chargeable for the honeſt performance of that undertaking; for B. that is truſted with my poſſeſſion, ſhall not remove nor alter my poſſeſſion, and therefore ſhall not be put to anſwer for that to which the law obliges him. F. N. B. 137. 1 Rol. Abr. 607.

But if I find goods and convert them, and another recover them from me, yet a ſtranger that has right ſhall have his action againſt me, and therefore two perſons claiming in trover ſhall interplead with each other; for I have by my finding the property in me till another ſhews a better right; now this property continues till the real owner appears; and if I by weak defences do not ſupport that property, that ſhall be no injury to the right of another; for the original injury begins from me, by undertaking to intermeddle with what is another's, and which I was ſure was none of my own. 1 Rol. Abr. 607.

If a bailee deliver the goods to another, there he ſhall have an action of detinue againſt him, becauſe he hath his poſſeſſion, and undertakes for the cuſtody; and the original bailor may have his action againſt either of them, becauſe in him is the property which both are bound to anſwer to him. 1 Rol. Abr. 607.

B. ſells the goods in market-overt, yet at the day bailor may ſeize the goods, becauſe the property of the goods was always in him, and not altered by the ſale in market-overt. Godb. 160.

A. indebted in 100*l.* to B. delivers goods to C. amounting to the value of the debt, to ſatisfy B. the ſaid 100 l. with the goods in his hands; B. has an intereſt and property in the goods. Yelv. 164.

A. delivers 20*l.* to B. to the uſe of C. a woman, to be delivered her the day of her marriage. Before her marriage A. countermands it, and calls home the money. C. ſhall not be aided in Chancery, becauſe there is no conſideration why ſhe ſhould have it. Cary's Rep. 12.

If goods be bailed to bail over on a conſideration precedent, on his part, to whom they ought to be bailed, the bailor can't countermand it; otherwiſe where 'tis voluntary, and without conſideration. But where 'tis in conſideration of a debt, it is not countermandable; otherwiſe if it be to ſatisfy the debt of another; per Egerton. 1 Leon. 30. pl. 36.

If a man lend or hire his horſe, and for want of ſafe keeping he die, the other hath an action on the caſe for to repair the damage ſuſtained by the negligence; ſo if a man lend another ſheep to tath his land, and by negligence of the borrower they are drowned, an action on the caſe lies; for if a man lend another a horſe, and he put him into a ſtable that is ruinous, and the ſtable tumbles in upon the horſe and kills him, an action on the caſe lies; but if the ſtable had been ſtrong and ſubſtantial, and had fallen by violent tempeſt, then is the borrower excuſed; ſo if a man lend another a horſe, and he dies of divers diſeaſes, the borrower is excuſed. 5 Co. 14. Cro. Eliz. 777, 784. Owen 52. Dyer 121. Godb. 72. Dr. & Stud. 128.

If A. take a gelding to paſture, and the gelding be ſtolen, no action lies againſt A. unleſs he had made a ſpecial aſſumpſit to deliver him; for the undertaking of A. is to feed the gelding in the fields and in the open air, and not to keep ſafely as the hoſtler is obliged to do in his ſtable; and the law will not ſtretch men's promiſes beyond their firſt undertaking. Moor 543.

If a man find goods and abuſe them, or if he find ſheep and kill them, this is a converſion; but if a man find butter, and by his negligent keeping it putrifies; or if a man finds garments, and by negligent keeping they are moth-eaten, no action lies; ſo it is if a man finds goods and loſes them again; and the reaſon of the difference is this, for where a man delivers goods to another, the bailee by acceptance of the goods undertakes for the ſafe cuſtody of them; and it is to be preſumed that the owner would not have parted with them but under the confidence of that ſecurity; but where a man only finds the goods of another, the owner did not part with them under the caution of any truſt or engagement; nor did the finder receive them into his poſſeſſion under any obligation; and therefore the law only prohibits a man in this caſe from making an unjuſt profit of what is another's, but the finder is not obliged to preſerve thoſe goods ſafer than the owner himſelf did; for there is no reaſon for the law to lay ſuch a duty on the finder in behalf of the careleſs owner; for it ſeems too rigorous to extend the charity of the finder beyond the diligence of the proprietor; it is therefore a good mean to puniſh an injurious act, viz. the converſion of the goods to his own uſe, but not to puniſh a negligence in him that is much greater in the ownerſhip. 1 Leon. 123, 223. Owen 141. 2 Bulſt. 21.

A carrier is bound to the ſafe delivery of a box, though he doth not know what is in the box, unleſs he refuſes to carry it without he be inſtructed in the particulars, for the party is not obliged to tell him. Allen 93.

In an aſſumpſit, the caſe was this; the defendant did undertake to remove a quantity of brandy from Brook's-Market to Water-Lane, and by reaſon of his neglect one of the caſks broke; and on Not guilty, a verdict was for the plaintiff; and in arreſt of judgment two exceptions were taken: 1ſt, Becauſe in the declaration he was not alledged to be a common porter. 2dly, Becauſe it was not averred that he had a reward.

But the whole court reſolved, that in this caſe the plaintiff ought to have his judgment.

Holt, Ch. J. his argument was to this purpoſe.

There are ſix ſeveral ſorts of bailments, which lay a care and obligation upon the party to whom the goods are bailed.

The firſt is a bare and naked bailment to another, to keep for the uſe of the bailor, which is called depoſitum.

2. A delivery of goods to another which are in themſelves uſeful to keep, and theſe are to be reſtored again in ſpecie, which is called accommodatum.

3. A delivery of goods for hire, which is called locatio or conductio.

4. A delivery by way of pledge, which is called vadium.

5. A delivery of goods to be carried for a reward.

6. Such a delivery as here in the caſe at bar, where the goods are delivered to do ſome act about them, as the carrying, and without a reward, which is called mandatum, by Bracton, lib. 3. 100. in Engliſh, an acting by commiſſion.

And though I do not think all theſe immediately neceſſary to the caſe in queſtion, yet the explanation of them will make the caſe clearer.

Then as to the firſt, if a perſon out of kindneſs keeps the goods of another, he ſhall not be anſwerable if they be ſtolen, without there be a particular default in him: and 2dly, ſuch a bailee is not chargeable for a common neglect, for it muſt be a groſs neglect for which he ſhall be liable. I muſt confeſs I have a great authority to encounter, which is Southcott's caſe, 4 Rep. 83. b. howſoever my Lord Coke in his Report goes farther than the caſe itſelf, for he there makes a difference between keeping generally, and ſafe keeping; which in the caſe itſelf is not mentioned, but in his note at the end of it; and I cannot think it to be juſtice to charge the bailee if the goods be loſt without any default of his; for why ſhould he anſwer for the wrongs of other people againſt whom he undertook not?

There never was before Southcott's caſe, any ſolemn determination of this matter; the firſt caſe of it was 20 Aſſ. pl. 28. 8 Ed. 2. Fitz. Detinue 59. both quoted in Southcott's caſe; but I cannot agree to the reaſons of thoſe caſes; for the neglect of the party may be as great where goods are locked up in a cheſt, as where not, and by that reaſon ought to be chargeable as much in the one caſe as in the other; and the 4 Ed. 4. is only a debate of two council at the bar, for ——— was not then Ch. J. and what he ſaid was only for his client, and not of authority; and the 3 H. 7. is only a ſudden opinion; now Southcott's caſe came long after, viz. 43 Eliz. and there two judges in the abſence of the other two gave that opinion, which cauſe was improved by my Lord Coke; but it has been the conſtant practice for as long as I knew the court, that in all the trials at the Guildhall, where upon evidence no default appeared in the bailee, to direct for the defendant; nor did ever any one venture, upon the authority of Southcott's caſe, to find the matter ſpecially; I take it that this bailee is ſo far from being charged, that though the goods be loſt by a common neglect he ſhall not be anſwerable; as if he negligently keep his own goods, and that his own and his friend's goods are loſt; now the loſs of his own is an argument of his ſincerity, and therefore he ſhall not be chargeable; this is in Bracton 99. and though this is an antient author, yet it is agreeable to reaſon, and is not in this point only the law of England, but of foreign countries, as may be ſeen in Juſtinian's Inſt. where I believe Bracton got his notion; now if there be an apparent groſs neglect, it is looked upon to be a fraud; but otherwiſe, if it be not a groſs neglect; and I know no reaſon why the bailee, upon taking goods, if it were in writing, ſhall not be charged againſt the wrong of a third perſon, as in Hob. 34. 2 Cro. 425. and 3 Cro. 514. and yet without writing, as in Southcott's caſe, to be charged, and the Doctor and Student 123, 112. ſays, it is for the advantage of the bailee, and that an action does not lie unleſs they be loſt through negligent keeping; ſo that I do not find ſufficient reaſon nor authority to ſupport the opinion of Southcott's caſe.

2. A lending gratis to uſe for his advantage; there the borrower is ſtrictly bound to keep it, for if he be guilty of the leaſt neglect he ſhall be anſwerable; as if I lend a horſe to go to the North of England, and he goes to the Weſt, and the horſe is ſtolen, he ſhall in that caſe be chargeable; for if he had gone as I directed, the horſe, perhaps, would not have been ſtolen; this ſort of bailment is mentioned in Bracton 99. but in this caſe, if this horſe had been in the ſtable of the bailee, and ſtolen thence without his default, as perhaps the thieves might firſt have bound the bailee, and then have taken the horſe, he ſhall not be anſwerable; but if he left the ſtable door open, he ſhall for that neglect be anſwerable; Bracton ſays he ought to take the utmoſt care, but in no place ſays he ſhall be charged where no default was in him.

3. As to the third bailment, where goods are hired out for a reward, Bracton 62. ſays, the hirer is to take all imaginable care, and to reſtore them at the time, and he is bound to ſuch a care as a diligent maſter of a family uſeth to his family, which care if he ſo uſeth, he ſhall not be bound; now the moſt diligent man is liable to be robbed, and therefore I collect, that if he be ſo careful as according to Bracton's definition, and be robbed, he ſhall not be liable.

4. If goods be pawned, the pawnee has a ſpecial property, which is in nature of a ſecurity to compel the pawner to pay; and if the goods be the worſe for uſing, the pawnee muſt not uſe them; as clothes, &c. but if they be not the worſe for uſing, he may uſe them at his peril; as jewels pawned to a lady, and ſhe keeps them in a box, and they are ſtolen, ſhe ſhall not be charged; but if ſhe goes abroad with them to a play, and there they are ſtolen, ſhe ſhall be anſwerable. 2dly, If the pawnbroker be at charge in keeping of them, as if it were a horſe, and he gives it meat, he may uſe it for his reaſonable charge he has been at. Bracton 99. If a creditor takes a pawn, he is bound to reſtore it upon payment; but if he, notwithſtanding all his diligence, loſe it, he ſhall howſoever recover his debt, 29 Aſſ. pl. 28. for the law does not lay upon him an obligation to keep againſt all accidents; but if the money be tendred, and he after detains, and then it is loſt, he ſhall then be liable, for he is then a wrong-doer, and his keeping it after is the occaſion of its being ſtolen, and he is then anſwerable at all events.

5. Goods to be carried for a reward. 1. If you deliver them to a publick or common carrier, and they are ſtolen, he muſt be liable, for the law charges him at all events; but yet the act of God, or the enemies of the Queen, may excuſe: and this is a political inſtitution by the laws of England, that people may be ſafe in their dealing; for otherwiſe carriers, that are frequently truſted with things of greateſt value, would be often tempted to confederate with thieves. 2dly, But he who has a particular private employment, though he has a reward, yet he is not bound againſt all events, as a factor or a bailiff, if they do to the beſt of their power; and that is Southcott's caſe, and he is bound no otherwiſe than as his maſter himſelf ſhould do; for it were unjuſt to charge him with what he cannot prevent.

6. To this point; here is a man not entruſted to keep, but to carry, and not to have any thing for his pains, and through his negligence miſcarries; though he be to have nothing, yet it appears there was a neglect, and for that reaſon he is chargeable; but if the goods had been miſuſed by a third perſon in the way as he carried them, and without any neglect of his, I hold that he would not then be liable, becauſe he had nothing for a reward; in Bracton, lib. 3. 100. this is called mandatum, and ariſeth upon the emendatio, in Engliſh, acting by commiſſion; and if he thro' his negligence ſuffers the goods to be damaged, he is liable. Vivian's comment upon Juſt. Inſt. 684. Mandatum datum is there defined to be a contract, whereby any thing is committed gratis to be done for another; and with this agrees Bracton; and though this word be not uſed in any other book of the law, and this be an old authority, yet in this point he is ſupported by reaſon; and upon the whole, I am of opinion, that the defendant in this caſe is liable, for it is a deceit to the plaintiff his being negligent; for it is upon the confidence of his carefulneſs that the plaintiff intruſted him; and in Godb. 64. and 2 H. 7. for the negligent keeping of ſheep, &c. an action lay, for there is a conſideration, viz. the truſting, though no money be paid; and here he becomes chargeable by the miſchief he has done. 29 H. 6. 49. 33 H. 6. 34. 11 H. 4. 33. By theſe caſes, though a man promiſes to build an houſe for another, he ſhall not be bound, being nudum pactum; yet I doubt not, but if he had once gone about the building it, and he do it ſo ill that it falls, an action would lie; and in Yelv. 4. the plaintiff declared, that in conſideration that he delivered to the defendant twenty quarters of corn, the defendant aſſumed upon requeſt to deliver the corn again to the plaintiff; and it was there held, that the action lay; but this judgment was after reverſed in the Exchequer-Chamber; and contrary to it is a caſe in Yelv. 128. but in the ſame book 50. is the caſe fol. 4. of Biggs and Riches, confirmed and allowed good law; and there Gaudy and the court held it a bad reverſal, and contrary to that reverſal ſolemnly adjudged in 2 Cro. 667. Now if a truſt be once undertaken, and is a ſufficient undertaking, that is a ſufficient conſideration; the caſes in the Regiſter 110. are full in point, for there the very precedent is quod (the defendant) tam negligenter, &c. carriavit quod papa illa confracta fuit, without any mention of a reward, or that he was a common carrier; though in latter days for the greater caution they inſert theſe words, pro quadam mercede, ſo that he that is intruſted by commiſſion, if he enters upon the employment, and after any loſs accrueth to the owner through his neglect, he is liable tho' he receive no reward; but if any loſs accrues to the owner, not through any neglect of his, tho' he receive a reward as a factor, &c. yet ſhall not he be liable: ſo that upon this whole matter, I am of opinion, judgment ought to be given for the plaintiff. 1 New Abr. 243. Trin. 2 *Ann. in B. Detinue in London upon bailment made by the plaintiff to the defendant, &c. he ſaid that he bailed it to him in another county, in pledge, &c. and no plea, per Finch, if he does not traverſe the bailment in the firſt county; and after they were at iſſue, if it was bailed in pledge or not, and the viſne was where the receipt in pledge is ſuppoſed. Br. Traverſe per, &c. pl. 41.

Detinue of certain charters. The plaintiff counted of bailment by him to the defendant, who ſaid that he found the deeds by fortune in his houſe, and J. N. had brought the like writ againſt him to return them now, and pray'd that they interplead, abſque hoc that the plaintiff bailed to the defendant as here; and a good plea, per Martin, and the bailment traverſable as here; for if he confeſſes bailment, then he charges himſelf to the plaintiff, and to the ſaid *J. Detinue, ſuppoſing the bailment to the defendant at B. in the county of N. to rebail, &c. The defendant ſaid, that the ſame day and year, at B. in the county of B. the plaintiff bought the goods of the defendant for 10 l. upon condition, that if he did not pay the 10 l. ſuch a day, that the ſale ſhall be void, and that he did not pay at the day, abſque hoc that the plaintiff bailed them in the county of N. to rebail, prout, &c. and admitted for a good plea. *Br. Treſpaſs of taking his bowl. The defendant ſaid, that the plaintiff delivered it to W. E. in pledge, who bailed it to the defendant, who rebailed it to W. E. and the plaintiff ſaid that R. C. gave it to him, and the defendant took it, abſq; hoc that he bailed it to W. E. in pledge, and did not traverſe the bailment by W. E. to the defendant, and well; for the bailment of the plaintiff to W. E. is the effect of the bar, which binds the plaintiff. Br. Traverſe per, &c. pl. 373.

Detinue by feme upon bailment made by herſelf of a cheſt of charters; the defendant ſaid, that they came to him as executor of the executor of the father of the plaintiff, whoſe heir ſhe is, and that he had delivered them to the baron of the plaintiff, who is dead, abſque hoc that the plaintiff bailed them prout, &c. and a good plea; for the bailment of the baron with the traverſe, nor the traverſe without the plea precedent, is not good. Br. Traverſe per, &c. pl. 374.

In detinue, the plaintiff counts upon ſingle bailment, the garniſhee may ſay that it was upon condition, without traverſing the ſimple bailment, and if the plaintiff ſays, that it was bailed upon other condition, then he ought to traverſe the condition alledged by a garniſhee, and ſo he did, and well; per Cur'. Br. Confeſs and avoid, pl. 62.

If the plaintiff brings detinue in the county of C. and counts upon ſingle bailment, it is a good plea that it was delivered in another county, upon condition, &c. abſque hoc that it was delivered in the place, &c. by reaſon of the double charge, if action be brought of this again in the county; quod non negatur. Br. Traverſe per, &c. pl. 22.

Detinue of a box of charters, and one charter ſpecially bailed to the defendant, and he pleaded to the bar non detinet, and to the charter ſpecially made title to the land, of which, &c. abſque hoc that the plaintiff bailed to him to rebail, &c. and no plea, becauſe the defendant did not confeſs any livery made by the plaintiff; quod fuit conceſſum. *Br. Contra where he confeſſes delivery by the plaintiff, to him to bail over, which he has done, abſque hoc that he bailed to rebail to him; this is a good traverſe. Br. ib.

And per Moil, he may intitle himſelf to the land and deed, and give colour of poſſeſſion to the plaintiff, and nevertheleſs well, but not to traverſe the bailment as above. Br. ib.

Treſpaſs againſt H. G. of a box of evidences taken, the defendant ſaid, that J. G. his father was poſſeſſed thereof, and gave it to the defendant, by which he was poſſeſſed, and after delivered it to A. B. to keep to the uſe of the defendant, and the defendant required him to deliver it, and he refuſed, by which the defendant took it; the plaintiff ſaid, that J. G. gave them to him, abſque hoc that he gave them to the defendant prout, &c. and ſo to iſſue, and found for the plaintiff, who prayed judgment; and the defendant pleaded in arreſt of judgment, that the bar is anſwered, for the ſubſtance of the bar is, that the defendant bailed them to his uſe, which ought to be traverſed, and not the gift, but after a long argument tota curia e contra. Br. Traverſe per, &c. 200.

In detinue of charters, the defendant may traverſe the bailment, becauſe he cannot wage his law. Br. Traverſe per, &c. pl. 228.

But where he may wage his law, there he cannot traverſe the bailment, by all the juſtices. Br. ib.

If bailee brings treſpaſs, he ſhall ſay, ad damnum to himſelf, for he ſhall be charged over. Br. Damages, pl. 124.

Detinue of charters againſt J. N. ſon and heir of J. N. and counted of bailment made by the plaintiff to the defendant, who ſaid, that he is ſon and heir of W. and not ſon and heir of J. N. per Moyle, this is no plea, becauſe it is of his poſſeſſion, and not brought againſt him as heir, and ſo it is ſurpluſage, as in treſpaſs, de ſon tort demeſne is no plea. Br. Traverſe per, &c. pl. 235.

Contra in debt againſt him as heir, or in detinue againſt him as heir. Br. ib.

In detinue of bailment of the plaintiff to the defendant to rebail to him, it is a good plea that he bailed to him to bail to J. N. which he has done, without that that he bailed to him to rebail to the plaintiff, prout, &c. and a good plea, tho' the defendant may wage his law. Br. Traverſe per, &c. pl. 243.

Of bailment upon condition in another county, there he ſhall traverſe the bailment in the firſt county. Br. ib.

Detinue of goods, and counted of bailment, the defendant ſaid, that the ſame day, &c. and at another time the plaintiff gave to the defendant the ſame goods, abſque hoc that he bailed them to the defendant, prout, &c. and per tot. cur. except Bryan, it is no plea, for it is only argument. Br. Traverſe per, &c. pl. 275. cites 22 E. 4. 29.

If A. delivers B. cloth to keep, and B. keeps it negligently, A. may have either detinue, or action on the caſe; per Gawdy J. Goldſb. 152.

Debt was brought againſt T. becauſe N. was indebted to the plaintiff, and delivered the money to the ſaid T. to deliver to the plaintiff, which he did not do; quod nota. Br. Dette, pl. 6.

If money is delivered to a man to buy cattle, or to merchandiſe with, tho' the money be ſealed up in a bag, yet the property of the money is in the bailee, and the bailor cannot have action for the money, but only an account, tho' he never buys or merchandizes. 3 Leo. 38.

If A. lends money to B. and B. delivers a thing of the value to A. in pawn, now the converſion is traverſable, tho' generally converſion is not traverſable but upon ſpecial matter; per Wray and Fenner J. and ſo in the principal caſe, which was, a bag of money was delivered to C. by A. and B. to keep till A. and B. were agreed. Leo. 247.

Debt upon bill ſealed, whereby defendant acknowledged that he had received 7 l. ad emend' ſuch and ſuch things, and avers, that he had not bought the things, or paid the money; it was held, that plaintiff might bring either debt or account at his election. Cro. E. 644.

If money is delivered to be re-delivered, it cannot be known, and therefore the property is altered, and debt lies for it; but if Portugal, or other money which may be known, may be delivered to be re-delivered, detinue lies. Ow. 86.

Action on the caſe, ſuppoſing that he delivered to defendant certain wools to keep, and the defendant had converted them to his own uſe; per two juſtices, the action well lies; (tho' it was urged, that the converſion doth not take away the property from the plaintiff; but that he may always have detinue) for they held, that the converſion did take away the property, and was an offence, for which this action lies, and adjudged accordingly, cæteris juſticiariis abſentibus. Cro. E. 781.

Bailee, in caſe of robbery, where he accepted the goods to keep ſafely, is chargeable in detinue for them, becauſe he has his remedy over by treſpaſs or appeal to have them again. Cro. E. 815.

A. delivers to B. a bag of money ſealed. B. promiſes to deliver it on requeſt, no aſſumpſit lies for this, for B. has no benefit by it; for the money being in a bag ſealed, B. cannot have any uſe or employment of the money at all, and ſo has only a charge impoſed for the keeping. Yelv. 50.

A. delivered money to B. to the uſe of C. in ſuch caſe C. may have debt or account againſt B. for the ſame at his election. Godb. 210.

In caſe the plaintiff declared, that he delivered a bond to the defendant, to keep and re-deliver it upon requeſt; and afterwards the defendant tore it. The defendant pleaded, that the plaintiff delivered it to him to be cancelled, and which he did; and upon demurrer Dodderidge and Crooke held, that delivery to be re-delivered ought to have been traverſed; but Coke and Haughton e contra; for they held, that the delivery is only an inducement, but that the tearing is the point of the action, and therefore the delivery need not be traverſed. Rol. Rep. 394.

If A. bail the goods of C. to B. and C. the owner brings detinue againſt bailee for them, B. may plead the bailment by A. to him to be re-delivered by A. and ſo bring in A. as garniſhee to interplead with C. per Holt Ch. J. 6 Mod. 216.

If A. bails goods to C. and after gives his whole right in them to B. B. cannot maintain detinue for them againſt C. becauſe the ſpecial property that C. acquires by the bailment is not thereby transferred to B. per Holt Ch. J. 6 Mod. 216.

Ban, or bans, (from the Brit. ban. i. e. clamor) Is a proclamation or publick notice; and publick ſummons or edict, whereby a thing is commanded or forbidden. It

It is a word ordinary among the feudiſts; and there is both bannus and bannum, which ſignifie two ſeveral things. This word bans we uſe here in England, eſpecially in publiſhing matrimonial contracts, which is done in the church before marriage, to the end that if any man can ſpeak againſt the intention of the parties, either in reſpect of kindred, precontract, or for other juſt cauſe, they may take their exception in time, before the marriage is conſummated: And in the Canon law, Bannæ ſunt proclamationes ſponſi & ſponſæ in eccleſiis fieri ſolitæ. But there may be a faculty or licence for the marriage, and then this ceremony is omitted; and miniſters are not to celebrate matrimony between any perſons without a licence, except the bans have been publiſhed three ſeveral times; upon pain of ſuſpenſion, &c. Can. 62. Bane, (from the Sax. bana a murderer) ſignifies deſtruction or overthrow: as, I will be the bane of ſuch a man, is a common ſaying; ſo when a perſon receives a mortal injury by any thing, we ſay, it was his bane: and he who is the cauſe of another man's death, is ſaid to be le bane, i. e. a malefactor. Bract. lib. 2. tract. 8. c. 1.

Baneret, (Banerettus, miles vexillarius) Sir Tho. Smith, in his Republ. Angl. cap. 18. ſays, is a knight made in the field, with the ceremony of cutting off the point of his ſtandard, and making it as it were a banner, and accounted ſo honourable, that they are allowed to diſplay their arms in the King's army as barons do, and may bear arms with ſupporters. Camden, in his Britan. fol. 109. hath theſe words, baneretti, cum vaſſalorum nomen jam deſierat, a baronibus ſecundi erant: quibus inditum nomen a vexillo; conceſſum illis erat militaris vertutis ergo, quadrato vexillo (perinde ac barones*) uti, unde* & equites vexillarii a nonnullis vocantur, &c. 'Tis ſaid that they were antiently called by ſummons to parliament: and that they are next to the barons in dignity, appears by the ſtatute 14 Rich. 2. c. 11. and the 5 Rich. 2. ſtat. 2. cap. 4. William de la Pole was created baneret by K. Edward the third, by letters patent, anno regni ſui 13. And thoſe banerets, who are created ſub vexillis regiis, in exercitu regali, in aperto & ipſo rege perſonaliter præſente, explicatis, take place of all baronets; as we may learn by the letters patent for creation of baronets. 4 Inſt. 6. Some maintain that knights banerets ought not to be made in a civil war; but Hen. 7. made divers banerets upon the Corniſh commotion, in the year 1495. See Selden's Titles of Honour, fol. 799.

Baniſhment, (Fr. Baniſſement) exilium, abjuratio, Is a forſaking or quitting of the realm; and a kind of civil death, inflicted on an offender: there are two kinds of it, one voluntary and upon oath, called abjuration; and the other upon compulſion, for ſome offence. Staundf. Pl. Cr. f. 117. By Magna Charta, none ſhall be outlawed or baniſhed his country, but by lawful judgment of his Peers, or according to the law of the land. 9 H. 3. cap. 29. And by the Common law no perſon ſhall be baniſh'd, but by authority of parliament; or in caſe of abjuration for felony, &c. but this is taken away by ſtatute. 3 Inſt. 115. Stat. 21 Jac. 1. cap. 28. See Abjuration.

Bank, (Lat. Bancus, Fr. Banque) In our Common law, is uſually taken for a ſeat or bench of judgment; Bank le Roi, the King's bench, Bank le Common Pleas, the Bench of the Common Pleas or the Common Bench; called alſo in Latin Bancus Regis, and Bancus Communium Placitorum, Crompt. Juſt. 67, 91. Jus banci, or the privilege of the bench, was antiently allowed only to the King's judges, qui ſummam adminiſtrant juſtitiam; for inferior courts were not allowed that privilege. There is another ſort of bank, which ſignifies a place where a great ſum of money is let out to uſe, returned by exchange, or otherwiſe diſpoſed of to profit. The Bank of England is managed by a governor and directors, eſtabliſhed by parliament, with funds for maintaining thereof, appropriated to ſuch perſons as were ſubſcribers; and the capital ſtock, which is enlarged by divers ſtatutes, is exempted from taxes, accounted a perſonal eſtate aſſignable over, not ſubject to forfeiture; and the company make dividends of the profit half yearly, &c. The funds are redeemable by the parliament, on paying the money borrowed: and the company of the Bank is to continue a corporation, and enjoy annuities, till redeemed, &c. During the continuance of the Bank, no body politick, &c. other than the company, ſhall borrow any ſums on bills payable on demand; and forging or altering bank notes, or tendering ſuch forged notes in payment, demanding to have them exchanged for money, &c. is felony. And officers or ſervants of the company, that imbezil any bank note, &c. wherewith they are intruſted, being duly convicted, ſhall ſuffer death as felons. Vide the ſtatutes 5 & 6 and 8 & 9 W. 3. and 7 Anne, &c. See alſo 1 Geo. 1. and 3 and 11 Geo. 1. c. 8. and 13 Geo. 2. c. 13. See ſtat. 24 Geo. 2. c. 4. for enabling the bank of England to hold general courts and courts of directors in the manner therein mentioned.

Bankers, The monied goldſmiths firſt got the name of bankers in the reign of King Charles the Second, as by the words of an act of parliament, anno 22 & 23 Car 2. appears, —— Whereas ſeveral perſons, being goldſmiths, and others, by taking up or borrowing great ſums of money, and lending out the ſame again for extraordinary hire and profit, having gained and acquired to themſelves the reputation and name of bankers, &c. Thus runs the ſtatute: but bankers of late are thoſe goldſmiths and private perſons in whoſe hands money is lodged and depoſited for ſafety, to be drawn out again as the owners have occaſion for it; and the bankers, inſtead of lending abroad the money thus depoſited, uſually traffick with it in Exchange-Alley on the ſtock, &c. oftentimes to their great advantage, they being generally men of great eſtates. Jacob.

Bankrupt, Lord Coke ſays, that banque in French ſignifies the ſame as menſa in Latin; and that route is a ſign or mark, as we ſay a cart route is the ſign or mark where the cart hath gone; and that metaphorically a bankrupt, or banqueroute, is taken for him who hath waſted his eſtate, and removed his banque, ſo that there is left but the mention thereof. 4 Inſt. 277. But as the firſt bankers came from Italy, it ſeems the more probable, that they brought their name along with them; and conſequently that the word bankrupt, or banqueroute, cometh from the Italian, banco rotto, the bench being broken: The word rotto is what remains in that country of the Latin word ruptus, broken. The banker himſelf was ſo called from the bench or table which he uſed, with his name inſcribed, and when he failed his bench was broken. Burn 66. Billing. 85.

The granting commiſſions of bankruptcy ſeems to be derived from the civil law, which conſtituted a guardian to a prodigal in the ſame manner as to a madman; and ſuch guardian the prætor appointed on the petition or application of relations, as well as creditors. But the feudal law, though it admitted of commiſſions of lunacy ex neceſſitate, would allow of none for prodigality, not being eſteemed injurious, becauſe ſuch prodigal could not alien his lands without leave of his lord; alſo the condition of a freeman was not to be altered without the crime of felony. But as trade and commerce encreaſed, it was found neceſſary, for the ſupport of credit, to introduce ſuch a law amongſt us, and therefore our acts of parliament have confined it to traders and creditors only. 1 New Abr. 246. Digeſt. lib. 27. tit. 10.

Statute 13 Eliz. cap. 7. ſect. 1. If any merchant, or other perſon uſing the trade of merchandize, by way of bargaining, exchange, re-exchange, bartry, cheviſance, or otherwiſe, in groſs or by retail, or ſeeking his trade of living by buying and ſelling, ſhall depart the realm, or begin to keep his houſe, or otherwiſe to abſent himſelf, or ſuffer himſelf willingly to be arreſted for debt or other thing, not due for money delivered, wares ſold, or other good conſideration; or will ſuffer himſelf to be outlawed, or yield himſelf to priſon, or depart from his dwelling-houſe, to the intent to defraud or hinder any of his creditors of the juſt debt of ſuch creditors, he ſhall be deemed a bankrupt.

Sect. 2. The lord chancellor, upon complaint in writing, againſt ſuch perſons being bankrupts, ſhall have power, by commiſſion under the great ſeal, to appoint ſuch perſons as to him ſhall ſeem good; who, or the moſt part of them, ſhall have power to take by their diſcretions ſuch order, with the body of ſuch perſon, by impriſonment; as alſo, with all his lands, as well copyhold as freehold, which he ſhall have in his own right, before he became bankrupt; and alſo with all ſuch lands as ſuch perſon ſhall have purchaſed for money, or other recompence, jointly, with his wife or child, to the only uſe of ſuch offender, or for ſuch uſe or title as ſuch offender then ſhall have in the ſame, which he may depart withall, or with any perſons of truſt to any ſecret uſe of ſuch offender, and alſo with his money, goods, merchandizes and debts; and cauſe the ſaid lands, &c. to be appraiſed to the beſt value, and by deed indented and inrolled to make ſale of the ſaid lands, &c. and of all deeds touching only the ſame, belonging to ſuch offender; and alſo of all fees, offices, goods and chattels; or otherwiſe to order the ſame for ſatisfaction of the creditors; to every of the creditors, a portion, rate like, according to their debts: and every direction, and other thing done by the perſons ſo authorized, ſhall begood in law againſt the ſaid offender, his wife, heirs, children, and ſuch perſons, as by ſuch joint-purchaſe with the offenders ſhall have any eſtate or intereſt in the premiſſes, and againſt all other perſons claiming by, from, or under ſuch offender, by any acts done after ſuch perſon ſhall become bankrupt, and alſo againſt the lords of the manors, whereof the ſaid copyhold lands be holden.

Sect. 3. Provided that every perſon, to whom any ſuch ſale of copyhold land ſhall be made, ſhall, before they take any profit of the ſame, agree with the lords of the manors for ſuch fines as hath been accuſtomed to be paid: And upon ſuch agreement, the lords, at the next court, ſhall not only grant unto the vendees, upon requeſt, the ſame cuſtomary lands, by copy of court-roll, for ſuch eſtate as to them ſhall be ſold, reſerving the ancient rents, cuſtoms and ſervices, but alſo admit them tenants, and receive their fealty.

Sect. 4. Such of the commiſſioners as ſhall put the commiſſion in execution ſhall, upon requeſt made by the bankrupts, not only make declaration to the bankrupt, of the employing and beſtowing of their lands, goods and debts, but alſo make payment of the overplus, if any be, to the bankrupt.

Sect. 5. If any, after ſuch act committed, and complaint thereof made to the commiſſioners, or the major part of them, by any party grieved, ſuſpecting any of the goods or debts of ſuch offender to be in the poſſeſſion of any perſon, or any perſons to be indebted to ſuch offender, do make relation thereof to the commſſioners, they ſhall have power to call before them, by ſuch proceſs or means as they ſhall think convenient, all ſuch perſons ſo ſuppoſed to have any ſuch goods or debts in their cuſtody, or ſuppoſed to be in debt to ſuch offender; and upon their appearance to examine them, as well by their oaths as by ſuch means as the commiſſioners ſhall think meet, for the knowledge of all ſuch goods and debts.

Sect. 6. If ſuch perſons, upon examination, do not diſcloſe the whole truth of ſuch things as they ſhall be examined of, or deny to ſwear, then ſuch perſons, upon proof made before the commiſſioners, by examination, or otherwiſe, ſhall forfeit double the value of all ſuch goods and debts by them concealed; which forfeiture ſhall be levied by the commiſſioners, of the lands, goods and chattels, of ſuch perſon ſo denying to ſwear, or not diſcloſing the whole truth, in ſuch manner as is before appointed for the principal offenders; the ſame forfeitures to be diſtributed for ſatisfaction of the debts of the creditors, in ſuch rate as is before declared.

Sect. 7. If any perſons fraudulently by colluſion claim or detain any debts, goods or tenements, which ſhall be appertaining to ſuch offender, other than ſuch as they prove to be due for money paid, wares delivered, or other juſt conſideration before the commiſſioners; every ſuch perſon ſhall forfeit double as much; which forfeiture ſhall be levied and employed as is before rehearſed.

Sect. 8. If the creditors of any ſuch bankrupt be ſatisfied their debts with the proper lands, goods and debts of the bankrupt, or with the ſame and ſome part of the forfeiture,s and there ſhall remain an overplus of the ſaid forfeitures of the double values; the one moiety of the overplus of the forfeitures ſhall be by the commiſſioners paid unto the Queen, and the other moiety ſhall be diſtributed amongſt the poor within the hoſpitals in every city, town or county, where ſuch bankrupt ſhall be.

Sect. 9. If any ſuch perſons which ſhall be indented, do of purpoſe withdraw themſelves from their uſual manſion-houſes, upon complaint, the commiſſioners ſhall have power to award five proclamations to be made, in the Queen's name, upon five market-days, in ſuch places near the place where ſuch bankrupt hath moſt commonly made his abode, commanding him to return with all convenient ſpeed, and to yield his body before the commiſſioners, or one of them, at ſuch time and place as by the proclamation ſhall be appointed: And if he do not according to ſuch proclamation yield his body, then the body of ſuch offender ſhall be adjudged out of the Queen's protection; and every perſon that ſhall wittingly help to hide or convey, or ſhall wittingly receive or keep ſecretly any perſon ſo demanded by proclamation, ſhall ſuffer impriſonment, or pay ſuch fine to the Queen, as to the lord chancellor (being informed thereof by the commiſſioners) ſhall ſeem meet.

Sect. 10. If the creditors of any ſuch offenders which ſo depart the realm, keep their houſes, or otherwiſe withdraw into places unknown, or ſuffer themſelves to be arreſted or outlawed, or yield their bodies into priſon purpoſely, and for the cauſes aforeſaid, be not fully ſatisfied for their debts, by the means before ſpecified, they ſhall have remedy for levying the reſidue againſt the offenders, as they might have had before the making of this act. And the ſaid creditors ſhall be only barred for ſuch part of the ſaid debts as ſhall be paid unto them as aforeſaid.

Sect.

Sect. 11. If any perſon declared a bankrupt by virtue of this act, ſhall at any time after purchaſe lands or chattels; or any lands or chattels ſhall deſcend or come to ſuch bankrupts before their debts be fully ſatisfied or agreed for; the ſaid lands and chattels ſhall by the commiſſioners be bargained, ſold, extended, delivered and uſed for payment of the ſaid creditors, in like manner as other the lands and chattels of the ſaid bankrupt.

Sect. 12. This act ſhall not extend to any lands which be aſſured by any bankrupt before he become bankrupt, ſo that ſuch aſſurance be made bona fide, and not to the uſe of the bankrupt himſelf only, or his heirs; and that the parties to whoſe uſe ſuch aſſurance ſhall be made, be not privy to the fraudulent purpoſe of ſuch bankrupt, to deceive his creditors.

Statute 1 Jac. 1. cap. 15. ſect. 2. Every perſon uſing merchandize, &c. who ſhall wilfully or fraudulently procure himſelf to be arreſted, or his goods, money or chattels to be attached or ſequeſtred, or depart from his dwelling-houſe, or make any fraudulent grant or conveyance of his lands or chattels, whereby his creditors may be defeated or delayed for the recovery of their debts; or being arreſted for debt, ſhall after his arreſt lie in priſon ſix months upon that arreſt, or any other arreſt or detention for debt, ſhall be adjudged a bankrupt.

Sect. 3. The like commiſſions, orders and remedies which are provided by the former act 13 Eliz. againſt any bankrupts therein deſcribed, or concerning their lands, goods and debts, ſhall be had againſt perſons that are herein expreſſed to be bankrupts, &c.

Sect. 4. It ſhall be lawful for any creditors of the bankrupt within four months after commiſſion ſued forth, and until diſtribution made by the commiſſioners, to join with the other creditors that ſhall ſue forth commiſſion for ſatisfaction of their debts; and if the creditors come not in within four months, the commiſſioners ſhall have power to diſtribute.

Sect. 5. If any perſon which ſhall be a bankrupt by intent of this ſtatute, ſhall convey to any of his children, or other perſons, any manors, lands, goods, or transfer his debts into other men's names, except the ſame ſhall be conveyed or transferred upon marriage of any of his children, both the parties married being of the years of conſent, or ſome valuable conſideration, it ſhall be in the power of the commiſſioners to ſell or diſpoſe thereof in as ample manner as if the bankrupt had been actually ſeiſed or poſſeſſed thereof.

Sect. 6. The commiſſioners may call before them the bankrupt, and if upon warning left in writing three times at the dwelling-place where the bankrupt, his wife or family, for the moſt part of his abode, did remain, within one year next before he became bankrupt, the ſaid bankrupt ſhall not appear before the commiſſioners; it ſhall be lawful for the commiſſioners to appoint to proclaim the ſaid party a bankrupt, at ſuch public places where the commiſſioners ſhall think meet, warning him to appear before them upon the commiſſion, at ſome time appointed: And if upon five proclamations, the party offending appear not before the commiſſioners, and yield his body, the commiſſioners may award a warrant to ſuch perſons as they think meet, to apprehend the body of the offender, and to bring him before the commiſſioners, whereſoever the party may be found, in place priviledged or not, to be examined.

Sect. 7. It ſhall be lawful for the commiſſioners to examine the ſaid offender upon interrogatories touching the lands, goods, debts, books of account, and ſuch other things, as may tend to diſcloſe his eſtate, or ſecret grants, and eloining of his lands, goods, money, and debts, as they ſhall think meet.

Sect. 8. If therein the offender ſhall refuſe to be examined, or to anſwer fully, it ſhall be lawful for the commiſſioners to commit the offender to cloſe impriſonment, until he ſhall better conform himſelf.

Sect. 9. If upon his examination it ſhall appear that he hath committed any wilful or corrupt perjury, tending to the damage of the creditors to the value of 10 l. the party ſo offending may thereof be indicted in any of the King's courts of record, and ſhall ſtand upon the pillory in ſome public place two hours, and have one of his ears nailed to the pillory and cut off.

Sect. 10. If any perſons known or ſuſpected to detain any of the lands, hereditaments, goods or debts of the bankrupt, or to be indebted to or for the benefit of the bankrupt, ſhall after lawful warning to the ſaid perſons given to come before the commiſſioners to be examined, refuſe to come, or ſhall not come at the time appointed, having no lawful impediment (ſuch as ſhall be allowed of by the commiſſioners, and which ſhall be then made known to the commiſſioners) or having knowledge of any other meeting of the commiſſioners, ſhall not appear before them at ſuch time as they may, or being come ſhall refuſe to be ſworn, and to make anſwer to ſuch interrogatories as ſhall be miniſtred; it ſhall be lawful for the commiſſioners to commit them to ſuch priſon as to them ſhall be thought meet, and all ſuch perſons as ſhall ſo refuſe to be ſworn and make anſwer; and alſo to direct their warrants to ſuch perſons as to them ſhall be thought meet, to apprehend ſuch perſons as ſhall refuſe to appear, and to bring them before the commiſſioners to be examined; and upon their refuſal to come, or to be examined, to commit the party ſo refuſing to ſuch priſon as the commiſſioners ſhall think meet, until the ſaid perſon ſhall ſubmit himſelf to the commiſſioners, and be by them examined, according to the ſaid ſtatute 13 Eliz. and this preſent act.

Sect. 11. Provided, that ſuch witneſſes as ſhall be ſo ſent for, ſhall have ſuch coſts as the commiſſioners ſhall think fit; to be ratably born by the creditors. And if any perſon, other than the bankrupt, either by ſubornation of others, or by his own act, ſhall wilfully and corruptly commit wilful perjury by his depoſition to be taken before the commiſſioners; the party ſo offending, and all perſons that ſhall unlawfully and corruptly procure any ſuch unlawful, wilful, and corrupt perjury, may therefore be indicted in any of the King's courts of record, and ſhall ſuffer ſuch pains as are limited by the ſtatute concerning perjury. 5 Eliz. cap. 9.

Sect. 12. All money which ſhall be forfeited by this act, ſhall be recovered by the creditors only, or any of them that will ſue for the ſame, by action of debt, &c. in any of the King's courts of record; and the money ſo recovered, the charges of ſuit being deducted, ſhall be diſtributed towards payment of the creditors.

Sect. 13. The commiſſioners of bankrupts ſhall have power to aſſign or diſpoſe all the debts due to and for the benefit of the bankrupt, to the uſe of the creditors, and the ſame diſpoſition of the debts ſhall veſt the property in the perſons to whom it ſhall be aſſigned by the commiſſioners, as fully as if the bond, judgment or contract, whereupon the debt ſhall ariſe, had been made to the perſons to whom the ſame ſhall be ſo aſſigned; and after ſuch aſſignment, neither the bankrupt, nor any other to whom ſuch debt ſhall be due, ſhall have power to recover the ſame, nor to make diſcharge thereof; neither ſhall the ſame be attached as debt of the bankrupt, or ſuch other perſon; but the party to whom the ſame ſhall be aſſigned, ſhall have remedy to recover the ſame in the name of the perſon to whom the ſame ſhall be ſo aſſigned or ordered, as the party himſelf might have had.

Sect. 14. Provided that no debtor of the bankrupt be hereby endangered for the payment of his debt bona fide to ſuch bankrupt, before that he ſhall know that he is a bankrupt.

Sect. 15. Such of the commiſſioners as ſhall put the commiſſion in execution ſhall, upon requeſt by the bankrupts, not only make declaration to the bankrupts, of the employing and beſtowing of their lands, hereditaments, goods, and the debts, but alſo make payment of the overplus, if any be, to the bankrupts; and the bankrupts, after full ſatisfaction of the creditors, ſhall have power to recover the reſidue of the debts.

Sect. 16. If any action ſhall be brought againſt any commiſſioner, or other perſon having authority under the commiſſion, for any matter, by force of the ſaid ſtatute, or this ſtatute, the defendants may plead Not guilty, or juſtify that the act whereof the plaintiff complained, was done by authority of the ſaid act 13 Eliz. cap. 7. or this act, without expreſſing any other matter of circumſtance contained in either of the ſaid acts, whereunto the plaintiff ſhall be admitted to reply, that the defendant did the fact ſuppoſed of his own wrong, without any ſuch cauſe alledged by the ſaid defendant, whereupon iſſue ſhall be joined.

Sect. 17. If after any commiſſion of bankrupts ſued forth, and dealt in by the commiſſioners, the offender happen to die, before the commiſſioners ſhall diſtribute the goods, or any of them; the commiſſioners ſhall in that caſe proceed in execution, upon the commiſſion, for the offenders goods, lands, and debts, as they might have done if the party were living.

Statute 21 Jac. 1. cap. 19. ſect. 1. The ſtatutes againſt bankrupts, and for relief of creditors, ſhall be in all things largely and beneficially conſtrued for relief of the creditors.

Sect. 2. Every perſon uſing the trade of merchandize, by way of bargaining, exchange, bartering, cheviſance, or otherwiſe, in groſs, or by retail, or ſeeking his living by buying and ſelling, or that ſhall uſe the trade or profeſſion of a ſcrivener, receiving other men's monies or eſtates into his truſt or cuſtody, who ſhall obtain any protection (other than ſuch perſons as ſhall be lawfully protected by privilege of parliament) or ſhall prefer unto his Majeſty, or unto any of the King's courts, any petition or bill againſt his creditors, or any of them, thereby deſiring or endeavouring to compel them to accept leſs than their juſt and principal debts, or to procure time or longer days of payment, than was given at the time of their original contracts, ſhall be adjudged a bankrupt.

Sect. 3. The like commiſſions and remedies, which are provided for by the former acts 13 Eliz. and 1 Jac. 1. cap. 15. againſt bankrupts, or for their lands, goods, and debts, ſhall be had againſt ſuch perſons as are herein deſcribed to be bankrupts, and againſt their lands and debts.

Sect. 4. The ſame remedies, which are provided by this act, againſt any bankrupts, or concerning their lands, goods, and debts, or the diſcovery of them, ſhall be had againſt ſuch as are declared to be bankrupts, by the ſaid former acts.

Sect. 6. After ſuch time as any perſon ſhall by the commiſſioners be lawfully declared a bankrupt, the ſaid commiſſioners ſhall have power to examine upon oath the wife of ſuch bankrupt, for the diſcovery of the eſtate of ſuch bankrupt, concealed or diſpoſed of, by ſuch wife, or by any other perſons. And the ſaid wife ſhall incur ſuch penalty for not coming before the ſaid commiſſioners, or for refuſing to be ſworn and examined, or for not diſcloſing the truth, as by the ſaid former laws is already provided againſt any other perſon in like caſes.

Sect. 7. If any bankrupt ſhall, upon his examination before the commiſſioners, be found fraudulently to have conveyed away his goods, lands, or other eſtate, to the value of 20 l. to the end to hinder the execution of the ſtatutes, or to defraud or hinder his creditors of the ſame, and ſhall not upon his examination diſcover unto the commiſſioners, and (if it lie in his power) deliver unto them all that eſtate ſo fraudulently conveyed away or detained, or that cannot make it appear unto the commiſſioners that he hath ſuſtained ſome caſual loſs, whereby he is diſabled to pay what he there owed, may be indicted for ſuch fraud or abuſe at the aſſiſes or general ſeſſions of the peace of the county or place where he ſhall become bankrupt: and if the bankrupt be thereof convicted, he ſhall be ſet upon the pillory for two hours, and have one of his ears nailed to the pillory, and cut off.

Sect. 8. It ſhall be lawful for the commiſſioners, or any other perſons, or officers, by them to be appointed by their warrant under their hands and ſeals, to break open the houſes, chambers, ſhops, warehouſes, doors, trunks or cheſts of the bankrupt, where the ſaid bankrupt, or any of his goods or eſtate, ſhall be reputed to be, and to ſeize upon, and order the body, goods, money and other eſtate of ſuch bankrupt, as by the ſaid former laws are appointed, by impriſonment, or otherwiſe, as to the commiſſioners ſhall be thought meet.

Sect. 9. The commiſſioners may examine upon oath, or by any other ways, any perſons for the diſcovery of the debts owing to all ſuch creditors as ſhall ſeek relief by ſuch commiſſion: and every creditor having ſecurity for his debts, by judgment, ſpecialty, or other ſecurity, or having no ſecurity, or having made attachments in London, or other place, of the goods of ſuch bankrupt, whereof there is no execution or extent ſerved and executed upon any the lands, goods, and eſtate of ſuch bankrupt, and before ſuch time as he ſhall become bankrupt, ſhall not be relieved upon any ſuch judgment, ſpecialty, attachments, or other ſecurity, for any more than a ratable part of their debts with the other creditors, without reſpect to any penalty contained in ſuch judgments, ſpecialty, or other ſecurity.

Sect. 10. If any lands, goods, or other eſtate of any bankrupt, ſhall be extended, after ſuch time as he is become bankrupt, under colour of his being an accountant, or indebted unto the King; it ſhall be lawful for the commiſſioners to examine upon oath, whether the ſaid debt were due to ſuch debtor or accountant upon any bargain or contract originally made, betwixt ſuch accountant and the ſaid bankrupt; and if ſuch bargain or contract was originally made with any other perſons than the ſaid debtor or accountant, or for the uſe and truſt of any other perſon, it ſhall be lawful for the commiſſioners, to diſpoſe of all ſuch lands, goods, and debts ſo extended, for the uſe of the creditors.

Sect. 11. If any perſons ſhall become bankrupt, and at ſuch time ſhall, by the conſent of the owner, have in their poſſeſſion and diſpoſition, any goods whereof they ſhall be reputed owners, and take upon them the ſale or diſpoſition as owners, the commiſſioners ſhall have power to ſell the ſame for the benefit of the creditors, as fully as any other part of the eſtate of the bankrupt.

Sect. 12. The commiſſioners ſhall have power by deed indented and inrolled within ſix months after the making, in ſome of his Majeſty's courts of record at Weſtminſter, to bargain, ſell and convey any manors, or hereditaments, whereof any bankrupt ſhall be ſeiſed of any eſtate in tail, in poſſeſſion, reverſion or remainder, and whereof no reverſion or remainder ſhall be in the King, of the gift or proviſion of his Majeſty, his progenitors, or ſucceſſors, for the benefit of the creditors; and all ſuch bargains, ſales and conveyances ſhall be good againſt all perſons whom the bankrupt by common recovery, or other means, might debar from any remainder, reverſion, rent, title, or poſſibility, of the ſaid manors or hereditaments.

Sect. 13. If any bankrupt ſhall convey or aſſure any lands, or eſtate, unto any perſons, upon condition, or power of redemption at a day to come, by payment of money, or otherwiſe, it ſhall be lawful for the commiſſioners, before the time of the performance of ſuch condition, to appoint, under their hands and ſeals, perſons to make tender of money, or other performance, according to the nature of ſuch condition, as fully as the bankrupt might have done; and the commiſſioners ſhall, after ſuch tender or performance, have power to ſell ſuch lands, goods and eſtates, for the benefit of the creditors, as fully as they may ſell any the eſtate of the bankrupt.

Sect. 14. No purchaſor for good conſideration ſhall be impeached, unleſs the commiſſion be ſued forth againſt ſuch bankrupt within five years after he ſhall become bankrupt.

Sect. 15. All acts againſt bankrupts ſhall extend to ſtrangers born, as well aliens as denizens, as effectually as to natural-born ſubjects, both to make them ſubject to the laws as bankrupts, as alſo to make them capable of the benefit as creditors.

Stat. 13 & 14 Car. 2. cap. 24. ſect. 3. No perſons who ſhall adventure any money in the Eaſt-India company, or Guinea company, or any joint ſtocks of money by them raiſed, for carrying on the trade by the ſaid Eaſt-India company, or Guinea company, to be managed, or who ſhall adventure any money in any ſtocks, for managing the fiſhing trade, or the trade called the Royal Fiſhing Trade, and ſhall receive their dividend of fiſh or merchandize in ſpecie, and ſhall ſell, or exchange the ſame, ſhall, by reaſon of ſuch adventure, ſelling or exchanging, be be adjudged a merchant or trader within any ſtatute for bankrupts.

Sect. 4. Provided that every perſon who ſhall trade in any other way than in the ſaid royal fiſhing trade, or the trade managed by the ſaid Eaſt-India company, or the Guiney company, ſhall, by reaſon of this trading and merchandizing, be liable to commiſſions againſt bankrupts, as fully as if this act had never been made.

Stat. 10 Ann. cap. 15. ſect. 3. The diſcharge of any bankrupt, by force of any acts relating to bankrupts, from the debts by him owing at the ſame time that he did become a bankrupt, ſhall not be conſtrued to diſcharge any other perſon who was partner with the bankrupt in trade, or ſtood jointly bound, or had made any joint contract together with ſuch bankrupt.

Stat. 7 Geo. 1. cap. 31. ſect. 1. Every perſon, who ſhall give credit on ſecurities payable at future days to perſons who are or ſhall become bankrupts, upon good conſideration bona fide, for money or other thing not due before the time of ſuch perſons becoming bankrupts, ſhall be admitted to prove their ſecurities or agreements, as if they were payable preſently, and ſhall have a dividend in proportion to the other creditors, diſcounting five per cent. per annum from the actual payment to the time ſuch money would have become due.

Sect. 2. The bankrupt ſhall be diſcharged from ſuch ſureties, as if ſuch money had been due before the time of his becoming bankrupt.

Stat. 5 Geo. 2. cap. 30. ſect. 1. If any perſon, who ſhall become bankrupt, and againſt whom a commiſſion of bankrupt under the great ſeal ſhall be iſſued, whereupon he ſhall be declared bankrupt, ſhall not within forty-two days after notice in writing left at the uſual place of abode of ſuch perſon, or perſonal notice in caſe ſuch perſon be in priſon, and notice in the London gazette, ſurrender himſelf to the commiſſioners, and ſubſcribe ſuch ſurrender, and ſubmit to be examined upon oath, or ſolemn affirmation, and conform to the ſtatutes concerning bankrupts; and upon his examination diſcover all his effects, and how he hath diſpoſed of his effects (and all books and writings relating thereto) of which he was poſſeſſed or intereſted, or whereby ſuch perſon or his family hath, or may expect, any poſſibility of advantage (except ſuch parts as ſhall have been bona fide diſpoſed of in the way of his trade, and except ſuch money as ſhall have been laid out in the ordinary expence of his family) and alſo, upon ſuch examination, deliver up unto the commiſſioners ſuch part of his effects, and all books and writings relating thereto, as ſhall be in his power (his neceſſary wearing apparel, and the neceſſary wearing apparel of the wife and children of ſuch bankrupt excepted); then the bankrupt in caſe of default in not ſurrendring as aforeſaid, or in caſe he ſhall conceal, or imbezzle his eſtate, to the value of 20*l.* or any books of accounts, or writing relating thereto, with intent to defraud his creditors (and being convicted by indictment or information) ſhall be deemed guilty of felony without benefit of clergy; and ſuch felon's goods and eſtate ſhall go among the crediditors ſeeking relief under ſuch commiſſion.

Sect. 2. The commiſſioners ſhall appoint, within the ſaid forty-two days for the bankrupt to ſurrender and conform as aforeſaid, not leſs than three meetings, the laſt of which ſhall be on the forty-ſecond day limited for ſuch bankrupt's appearance; and three weeks notice ſhall be given in the gazette of the time and place of ſuch meeting.

Sect. 3. It ſhall be lawful for the lord chancellor to enlarge the time for ſuch perſon ſurrendering himſelf, and diſcovering his effects, not exceeding fifty days from the end of the ſaid forty-two days; ſo as ſuch order for enlarging the time be made ſix days before the time on which ſuch perſon was to ſurrender himſelf.

Sect. 4. Every ſuch bankrupt, after aſſignees ſhall be appointed, is to deliver upon oath, or affirmation, before one of the maſters in Chancery, or juſtice of peace, unto ſuch aſſignees, all his books of accounts and writings, not ſeized by the meſſengers of the commiſſion, or not before delivered up to the commiſſioners, and then in his power, and diſcover ſuch as are in the power of any other perſon that any ways concern his eſtate; and every ſuch bankrupt, not in priſon, ſhall, after ſuch ſurrender, be at liberty, and is required to attend ſuch aſſignees upon notice in writing in order to aſſiſt in making out the accounts of the eſtate.

Sect. 5. Every bankrupt having ſurrendered ſhall at all ſeaſonable times, before the expiration of the ſaid forty-two days, or ſuch further time as ſhall be allowed to finiſh his examination, be at liberty to inſpect his books and writings, in the preſence of ſome perſon to be appointed by the aſſignees, and to bring with him, for his aſſiſtance, ſuch perſons as he ſhall think fit, not exceeding two at one time, and to make extracts and copies to enable him to make a full diſcovery of his effects; and the ſaid bankrupt ſhall be free from arreſts in coming to ſurrender, and from actual ſurrender for the ſaid forty-two days, or ſuch further time as ſhall be allowed for finiſhing his examination, provided ſuch bankrupt was not in cuſtody at the time of ſurrender; and in caſe ſuch bankrupt ſhall be arreſted for debt, or on any eſcape warrant, coming to ſurrender, or after his ſurrender, within the time beforementioned; then on producing ſuch ſummons or notice, under the hands of the commiſſioners or aſſignees, and giving the officer a copy thereof, he ſhall be diſcharged; and in caſe any officer ſhall detain ſuch bankrupt, ſuch officer ſhall forfeit to ſuch bankrupt for his own uſe 5*l.* for every day he ſhall detain him.

Sect. 6. In caſe any bankrupt be in cuſtody at the time of iſſuing of the commiſſion, and is willing to ſubmit to be examined, and can be brought before the commiſſioners and creditors, the expence thereof ſhall be paid out of the bankrupt's eſtate: but in caſe ſuch bankrupt is in execution, and cannot be brought before the commiſſioners, then the commiſſioners ſhall attend the bankrupt in cuſtody, and take his diſcovery; and the aſſignees are required to appoint perſons to attend ſuch bankrupt in priſon, and to produce his books and writings, in order to prepare his diſcovery; a copy whereof the aſſignees ſhall apply for, and the bankrupt ſhall deliver to their order ten days before ſuch laſt examination.

Sect. 7. All bankrupts who ſhall ſurrender and conform, as by this act is directed, ſhall be allowed five per cent. out of the neat produce of the eſtate that ſhall be received, in caſe the neat produce of the eſtate, after ſuch allowance made, ſhall be ſufficient to pay 10*s.* in the pound, and ſo as the ſaid 5 per cent. ſhall not amount to above 200*l.* and in caſe the neat produce of the eſtate ſhall be ſufficient to pay 12*s.* 6*d.* in the pound, then all perſons ſo conforming ſhall be allowed 7*l.* 10*s.* per cent. ſo as ſuch allowance ſhall not amount to above 250*l.* and in caſe the neat produce ſhall over and above the allowance be ſufficient to pay 15*s.* in the pound, the perſons ſo conforming ſhall be allowed 10 per cent. ſo as ſuch 10 per cent. ſhall not amount to above 300*l.* and every ſuch bankrupt ſhall be diſcharged from all debts owing at the time that he did become bankrupt. And in caſe ſuch bankrupt ſhall afterwards be impleaded for any debt due before he became bankrupt, ſuch bankrupt ſhall be diſcharged upon common bail, and may plead in general, that the cauſe of action did accrue before ſuch time as he became bankrupt; and the certificate of ſuch bankrupt's conforming, and the allowance thereof, ſhall be ſufficient evidence of the trading, bankruptcy, commiſſion, and other proceedings precedent to the obtaining ſuch certificate; unleſs the plaintiff can prove the ſaid certificate was obtained unfairly, or make appear any concealment by ſuch bankrupt to the value of 10*l.*

Sect. 8. If the neat produce of ſuch bankrupt's eſtate ſhall not amount to ten ſhillings in the pound, ſuch bankrupt ſhall not be allowed the 5 per cent. but ſhall be allowed ſo much as the aſſignees and commiſſioners ſhall think fit, not exceeding 3 per cent.

Sect. 9. In caſe any commiſſion ſhall iſſue againſt any perſon, who after the 24th of June 1732, ſhall have been diſcharged by virtue of this act, or ſhall have compounded with his creditors, or delivered to them his effects and been releaſed by them, or been diſcharged by any act for relief of inſolvent debtors, then the body only of ſuch perſon conforming ſhall be free from arreſt and impriſonment; but the future eſtate of ſuch perſon ſhall remain liable to his creditors (the tools of trade, neceſſary houſehold goods, and neceſſary wearing apparel of ſuch bankrupt and his wife and children excepted) unleſs the eſtate of ſuch perſon ſhall produce clear 15 s. in the pound.

Sect. 10. No diſcovery ſhall intitle ſuch bankrupt to the benefits allowed by this act, unleſs the commiſſioners, or the major part of them, ſhall under their hands and ſeals certify to the Lord Chancellor, that ſuch bankrupt hath made a full diſcovery of his eſtate, and in all things conformed himſelf according to the directions of this act, and that there doth not appear to them any reaſon to doubt of the truth of ſuch diſcovery; and unleſs four parts in five in number and value of the creditors, who ſhall be creditors for not leſs than 20*l.* reſpectively, or ſome other perſon by them duly authorized, ſhall ſign ſuch certificate; but the commiſſioners ſhall not certify till they ſhall have proof by affidavit or affirmation in writing of ſuch creditors, or of the perſons by them authorized, ſigning the certificate, and of the power by which any perſon ſhall be authorized to ſign for any creditor (which affidavit or affirmation, together with ſuch authority to ſign, ſhall be laid before the Lord Chancellor with the ſaid certificate) and unleſs ſuch bankrupt make oath, or ſolemnly affirm in writing, that ſuch certificate was obtained without fraud; and unleſs ſuch certificate ſhall, after ſuch oath or affirmation, be allowed by the Lord Chancellor, or by ſuch two of the juſtices of the King's Bench, Common Pleas, or barons of the Exchequer, to whom the conſideration of ſuch certificate ſhall be referred by the Lord Chancellor; and any of the creditors of ſuch bankrupt are to be heard, if they think fit, againſt the making ſuch certificate, and againſt the confirmation thereof.

Sect. 11. Every ſecurity to be given to the uſe of any creditor, as a conſideration to perſuade him to ſign ſuch certificate, ſhall be void; and the party ſued on ſuch contract may plead the general iſſue.

Sect. 12. Nothing in this act ſhall give any advantage to any bankrupt, who ſhall upon marriage of any of his children have given above the value of 100*l.* (unleſs he ſhall prove by his books, or otherwiſe upon his oath or affirmation before the commiſſioners, that he had remaining other eſtates ſufficient to pay every perſon, to whom he was indebted, their full debts) or who ſhall have loſt in one day the value of 5*l.* or in the whole the value of 100*l.* within twelve months next preceding his becoming bankrupt, at cards, dice, tables, tennis, bowls, billiards, ſhovel-board, or cock-fighting, horſe-races, dog-matches, or foot-races, or other game, or by bearing a ſhare in the ſtakes, or betting, or that within one year before he became bankrupt, ſhall have loſt 100*l.* by contracts for ſtock, or ſhares of any publick funds, where ſuch contract was not to be performed within one week from the making, or where the ſtock was not actually transferred.

Sect. 13. If any bankrupt, who ſhall have obtained his certificate, ſhall be taken in execution, or detained in priſon on account of any debts owing before he became bankrupt, by reaſon that judgment was obtained before ſuch certificate was allowed; it ſhall be lawful for any one of the judges of the court, wherein judgment has been ſo obtained, on ſuch bankrupt's producing his certificate allowed, to order any ſheriff or gaoler, who ſhall have ſuch bankrupt in cuſtody, to diſcharge ſuch bankrupt without fee.

Sect. 14. Upon certificate under the hands and ſeals of the commiſſioners, that ſuch commiſſion is iſſued, and ſuch perſon proved before them to become bankrupt, it ſhall be lawful for any of the juſtices of his Majeſty's courts of King's Bench, or Common Pleas, or barons of the Exchequer, and the juſtices of peace within England and Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, and they are required upon application made, to grant their warrants for apprehending ſuch perſon, and him to commit to the common gaol of the county where he ſhall be apprehended, there to remain until he be removed by order of the commiſſioners; and the gaoler, to whoſe cuſtody ſuch perſon ſhall be committed, is required to give notice to one of the commiſſioners, of ſuch perſon being in his cuſtody, and the commiſſioners are impowered to ſeize the effects of ſuch bankrupt (the neceſſary wearing apparel of ſuch bankrupt, or of his wife or children, excepted) and his books or writings, which ſhall be then in the cuſtody of ſuch bankrupt, or of any other perſon in priſon.

Sect. 15. If any perſon ſo apprehended ſhall within the time allowed ſubmit to be examined, and conform as if he had ſurrendered, ſuch perſon ſhall have the benefit of this act, as if he had voluntarily come in.

Sect. 16. It ſhall be lawful for the commiſſioners to examine every perſon againſt whom any commiſſion ſhall be awarded, touching all matters relating to the trade and effects of ſuch bankrupt; and alſo to examine every other perſon duly ſummoned or preſent at any meeting of the commiſſioners, touching all matters relating to the perſon and effects of ſuch bankrupt, and any act of bankruptcy committed by him; and alſo to reduce into writing the anſwers of ſuch bankrupt, or other perſon, which examination the party examined is required to ſubſcribe; and in caſe ſuch bankrupt, or other perſon, ſhall refuſe to anſwer, or ſhall not fully anſwer to the ſatisfaction of the commiſſioners, all lawful queſtions put by the commiſſioners, or ſhall refuſe to ſubſcribe his examination (not having a reaſonable objection to the wording thereof, to be allowed by the commiſſioners) it ſhall be lawful for the commiſſioners by warrant to commit him to ſuch priſon as the commiſſioners ſhall think fit, there to remain without bail, until ſuch perſon ſhall ſubmit himſelf to the commiſſioners, and full anſwer make to the ſatisfaction of the commiſſioners to all ſuch queſtions as ſhall be put to him, and ſubſcribe ſuch examination as aforeſaid.

Sect. 17. In caſe any perſon ſhall be committed by the commiſſioners for refuſing to anſwer, or not fully anſwering any queſtion, the commiſſioners ſhall in their warrant of commitment ſpecify ſuch queſtion.

Sect. 18. In caſe any perſon committed by the commiſſioners warrant, ſhall bring a habeas corpus in order to be diſcharged, and there ſhall appear any inſufficiency in the form of the warrant, it ſhall be lawful for the court or judge, before whom ſuch party ſhall be brought by habeas corpus, by rule or warrant, to commit ſuch perſon to the ſame priſon, there to remain until he ſhall conform as aforeſaid, unleſs it ſhall be made appear, that he hath fully anſwered all lawful queſtions put to him by the commiſſioners; or (in caſe ſuch perſon was committed for not ſigning his examination) unleſs it ſhall appear that the party had good reaſon for refuſing to ſign the ſame. And in caſe any gaoler, to whom ſuch perſon ſhall be committed, ſhall wilfully ſuffer ſuch perſon to eſcape, or to go without the walls or doors of the priſon, ſuch gaoler ſhall for ſuch offence, being convicted by indictment or information, forfeit 500*l.* for the uſe of the creditors.

Sect. 19. The gaoler ſhall, upon requeſt of any creditor, having proved his debt, and producing a certificate thereof under the hands of the commiſſioners (which the commiſſioners are to give gratis) produce ſuch perſon ſo committed; and in caſe ſuch gaoler ſhall refuſe to ſhew ſuch perſon ſo committed, and being in his actual cuſtody at the time of ſuch requeſt, to ſuch creditor requeſting to ſee ſuch perſon, ſuch gaoler ſhall forfeit 100*l.* for the uſe of the creditors, to be recovered by action of debt in the name of the creditor requeſting ſuch ſight.

Sect. 20. Every perſon who ſhall (after the time allowed to ſuch bankrupt) voluntarily make diſcovery of any part of ſuch bankrupt's eſtate, not before come to the knowledge of the aſſignees, ſhall be allowed 5 per cent. and ſuch further reward as the aſſignees, and the major part of the creditors, in value, preſent at any meeting of the creditors, ſhall think fit.

Sect. 21. Every perſon who ſhall have accepted of any truſt, and ſhall wilfully conceal any eſtate of any bankrupt, and ſhall not, within forty-two days after ſuch commiſſion ſhall iſſue, and notice given in the Gazette, diſcover ſuch truſt and eſtate in writing to one of the commiſſioners or aſſignees, and ſubmit to be examined (if required) ſhall forfeit 100*l.* and double the value of the eſtate concealed, to the creditors.

Sect. 22. It ſhall be lawful for perſons taking bills, notes, or other ſecurity for money payable at a future day, to petition for a commiſſion, or join in petitioning.

Sect. 23. No commiſſion of bankrupt ſhall be awarded, unleſs the ſingle debt of the creditor, or of more perſons being partners petitioning for the ſame, amount to 100 l. or unleſs the debt of two creditors petitioning amounts to 150 l. or unleſs the debt of more creditors petitioning amount to 200 l. and the creditors petitioning ſhall, before the ſame be granted, make affidavit or ſolemn affirmation, before one of the Maſters of Chancery, of the truth of their debts, and give bond to the Lord Chancellor, in the penalty of 200 l. to be conditioned for proving their debts, as well before the commiſſioners, as upon a trial at law, in caſe the due iſſuing forth of the ſame ſhall be conteſted, and alſo for proving the party a bankrupt, and to proceed on ſuch commiſſion as herein is mentioned; and if ſuch debts ſhall not be really due, or if after ſuch commiſſion taken out it cannot be proved that the party was a bankrupt, then the Lord Chancellor ſhall, upon petition of the party grieved, order ſatisfaction to be made for the damages ſuſtained; and, in caſe there be occaſion, aſſign ſuch bond to the party, who may ſue for the ſame in his own name.

Sect. 24. If any bankrupt ſhall, after iſſuing of any commiſſion againſt him, pay to the perſon who ſued out the ſame, or deliver to ſuch perſon goods, or ſecurity for his debt, whereby ſuch perſon, ſuing out ſuch commiſſion, ſhall privately have more in the pound than the other creditors, ſuch payment, delivery of goods, or giving ſecurity, ſhall be deemed an act of bankruptcy, whereby ſuch commiſſion ſhall be ſuperſeded: And it ſhall be lawful for the Lord Chancellor to award to any creditors petitioning, another commiſſion; and ſuch perſon receiving ſuch goods, or other ſatisfaction, ſhall forfeit as well his whole debt, as the whole he ſhall have received, and ſhall pay back and deliver up the ſame, or the full value thereof, to be diſtributed amongſt the other creditors.

Sect. 25. The creditors, who ſhall petition for a commiſſion of bankrupt, ſhall be obliged at their own coſts to proſecute the ſame, until aſſignees ſhall be choſen; and the commiſſioners ſhall, at the meeting appointed for the choice of aſſignees, aſcertain ſuch coſts, and by writing ſhall order the aſſignees to reimburſe ſuch petitioning creditors, out of the firſt effects of the bankrupt that ſhall be got in; and every creditor ſhall be at liberty to prove his debt without paying contribution.

Sect. 26. The commiſſioners ſhall forthwith, after they have declared the perſon a bankrupt, cauſe notice thereof to be given in the Gazette, and ſhall appoint a place for the creditors to meet, (which meeting for the city of London, and all places within the bills of mortality, ſhall be at Guildhall) in order to chooſe aſſignees; at which meeting the commiſſioners ſhall admit the proof of any creditor's debt that ſhall live remote from the place of ſuch meeting, by affidavit or ſolemn affirmation, and permit any perſon duly authoriſed by letter of attorney (oath or affirmation being made of the execution thereof, either by an affidavit ſworn, or affirmation made before a Maſter in Chancery, ordinary or extraordinary, or before the commiſſioners viva voce; and in caſe of creditors reſiding in foreign parts, ſuch affidavits or affirmations to be made before a magiſtrate where they ſhall be reſiding, and ſhall, together with ſuch creditor's letters of attorney, be atteſted by a notary publick) to vote in the choice of aſſignees in the place of ſuch creditor; and the commiſſioners ſhall aſſign ſuch bankrupt's eſtate unto ſuch perſons, as the major part in value of ſuch creditors, according to the debts then proved, ſhall chooſe; and the aſſignees ſhall be obliged to keep books of account, wherein they ſhall enter all ſums of money, or other effects, which they ſhall have received out of the ſaid bankrupt's eſtate, to which books every creditor ſhall have free reſort.

Sect. 27. No creditor, or other perſon on the behalf of any creditor, ſhall be permitted to vote in ſuch choice of aſſignees, whoſe debt ſhall not amount to 10 l.

Sect. 28. Where it ſhall appear that there hath been mutual credit given, or mutual debts, between the bankrupt and any other perſon, the commiſſioners or aſſignees ſhall ſtate the account, and one debt may be ſet againſt another, and the ballance of ſuch account ſhall be claimed or paid.

Sect. 29. If any perſon ſhall before the commiſſioners, or by affidavit or affirmation exhibited to them, ſwear or affirm, that any ſum of money is due to him from any bankrupt, which is not really due, knowing the ſame to be not due, and being convicted by indictment or information, ſuch perſon ſhall ſuffer the penalties inflicted by the ſtatutes againſt wilful perjury, and ſhall be liable to pay double the ſum ſo ſworn or affirmed to be due.

Sect. 30. It ſhall be lawful for the commiſſioners immediately to appoint aſſignees, which aſſignees ſhall be removed at the meeting of the creditors for choice of aſſignees, if the major part in value of them then preſent, and of ſuch perſons authoriſed as aforeſaid, ſhall think fit; and ſuch aſſignees as ſhall be removed, ſhall deliver up the effects unto the aſſignees choſen by the creditors, and all the eſtate; and if ſuch firſt aſſignee ſhall neglect by the ſpace of ten days (after notice in writing) to make ſuch aſſignment and delivery, every ſuch firſt aſſignee ſhall forfeit 200 l. to be diſtributed amongſt the creditors, and to be recovered by ſuch perſon as the commiſſioners ſhall appoint to ſue for the ſame.

Sect. 31. It ſhall be lawful for the Lord Chancellor, upon petition of creditors, to make ſuch order for the choice of new aſſignees as he ſhall think juſt; and in caſe a new aſſignment ſhall be ordered, then ſuch effects of ſuch bankrupt ſhall be thereby effectually veſted in ſuch new aſſignees, and it ſhall be lawful for them to ſue for the ſame in their names, and to give acquittance for debts, as the aſſignees in the former aſſignment might have done; and the commiſſioners ſhall cauſe publick notice to be given in the two Gazettes that ſhall immediately follow the removal of ſuch aſſignees and the appointment of others.

Sect. 32. Before the creditors ſhall proceed to the choice of aſſignees, the major part in value of the creditors preſent ſhall, if they think fit, direct how, and with whom, the monies to be received out of the bankrupt's eſtate ſhall remain until the ſame be divided, to which rule ſuch aſſignees ſhall conform, as often as 100 l. ſhall be got in.

Sect. 33. Perſons choſen aſſignees ſhall after the expiration of four months, and within twelve months from the time of iſſuing ſuch commiſſion, cauſe twenty-one days notice to be given in the Gazette, of the time and place the commiſſioners and aſſignees intend to meet to make a dividend, at which time the creditors, who have not proved their debts, ſhall be at liberty to prove the ſame; which meeting for the city of London, and all places within the bills of mortality, ſhall be at Guildhall; and upon every ſuch meeting, the aſſignees ſhall produce accounts of their receipts and payments, and of what remain out-ſtanding, and ſhall (if the creditors preſent require the ſame) be examined upon oath, or ſolemn affirmation, touching the truth of ſuch accounts; and the aſſignees ſhall be allowed all juſt allowances; and the commiſſioners ſhall order ſuch part of the neat produce of the ſaid bankrupt's eſtate in the hands of the aſſignees as they ſhall think fit, to be divided amongſt the creditors; and ſhall make ſuch order for a dividend in writing, and ſhall cauſe one part of ſuch order to be filed amongſt the proceedings under the commiſſion, and ſhall deliver unto each of the aſſignees a duplicate of ſuch order, which order ſhall contain an account of the time and place of making ſuch order, and the ſum total of the debts prov'd, and the ſum total of the money remaining in the hands of the aſſignees, and how much in the pound is then ordered to be paid; and the aſſignees in purſuance of ſuch order, and without any deed of diſtribution, ſhall forthwith make ſuch dividend, and take receipts in a book from each creditor.

Sect. 34. It ſhall be lawful for the aſſignees, with the conſent of the major part in value of the creditors preſent at any meeting purſuant to notice in the Gazette, to ſubmit any difference between ſuch aſſignees and any perſon whatſoever, or by reaſon of any matter relating to ſuch bankrupt, to the determination of arbitrators, or otherwiſe otherwiſe to compound the matters in difference, as the aſſignees with ſuch conſent can agree.

Sect. 35. The aſſignees are impowered, with conſent of creditors, to make compoſition with any debtors to ſuch bankrupts, where the ſame ſhall appear neceſſary.

Sect. 36. After ſuch bankrupt ſhall have obtained his certificate, and the ſame ſhall be confirmed, ſuch bankrupt ſhall be obliged to give his attendance, upon notice in writing to attend the aſſignees, in order to ſettle any account of ſuch bankrupt's eſtate, or to attend any court of record, to be examined touching the ſame, or for ſuch other buſineſs, which ſuch aſſignees ſhall judge neceſſary, for getting in the bankrupt's eſtate; for which attendance the bankrupt ſhall be allowed 2 s. 6 d. per diem; and in caſe ſuch bankrupt ſhall neglect to attend, or refuſe to aſſiſt in ſuch diſcovery, without good cauſe to be ſhewn to the commiſſioners, to be by them allowed (ſuch aſſignees making proof thereof, upon oath or ſolemn affirmation, before the commiſſioners) the commiſſioners are required to iſſue a warrant to ſuch perſons as they ſhall think proper, for apprehending ſuch bankrupt, and him to commit to the county gaol, there to remain in cloſe cuſtody until he ſhall conform to the ſatisfaction of the commiſſioners, or to the order of the Lord Chancellor, or by due courſe of law diſcharged; and ſuch gaoler is required to keep ſuch perſon in cloſe cuſtody, within the walls of the priſon, under the penalties before mentioned for ſuffering ſuch priſoners to eſcape.

Sect. 37. Within eighteen months after the iſſuing of any ſuch commiſſion, the aſſignees ſhall make a ſecond dividend, in caſe the eſtate was not wholly divided upon the firſt, and ſhall cauſe notice to be inſerted in the Gazette, of the time and place the ſaid commiſſioners intend to meet to make a ſecond dividend, and for the creditors, who ſhall not before have proved their debts, to come and prove the ſame; and at ſuch meeting every aſſignee ſhall produce upon oath or affirmation his accounts, and what upon the ballance ſhall appear to be in his hands, ſhall by like order of the commiſſioners be forthwith divided; which ſecond dividend ſhall be final, unleſs any ſuit ſhall be depending, or any part of the eſtate ſtanding out, or unleſs ſome future eſtate of the bankrupt ſhall afterwards come to the aſſignees; in which caſe the aſſignees ſhall, as ſoon as may be, convert ſuch future eſtate into money, and ſhall, within two months after, by the like order of the commiſſioners, divide the ſame.

Sect. 38. No ſuit in equity ſhall be commenced by aſſignees, without the conſent of the major part in value of the creditors preſent at a meeting purſuant to notice in the Gazette.

Sect. 39. Bankers, brokers, and factors, are declared liable to the ſtatutes concerning bankrupts.

Sect. 40. No farmer, grazier, or drover, or receiver general of taxes, ſhall be intitled, as ſuch, to the benefits given by this act, or be deemed a bankrupt.

Sect. 41. Upon petition of any perſon, the Lord Chancellor may order ſuch commiſſions, depoſitions, proceedings, and certificates, to be entered of record; and in caſe of the death of the witneſſes proving ſuch bankruptcy, or in caſe the ſaid commiſſions, or other things ſhall be loſt, a copy of the record of ſuch commiſſions or things, ſigned and atteſted as herein is mentioned, may be given in evidence to prove ſuch commiſſions, and bankruptcy, or other things; and all certificates which have been allowed, or to be allowed, and entered of record, or a true copy of every certificate ſigned and atteſted as herein mentioned, ſhall and may be given in evidence in any courts of record, and without further proof taken to be a bar and diſcharge againſt any action for any debt contracted before the iſſuing of ſuch commiſſion; unleſs any creditor of the perſon that hath ſuch certificate ſhall prove that ſuch certificate was fraudulently obtained; and the Lord Chancellor ſhall appoint a place near the inns of court, where the matters aforeſaid ſhall be entred of record, where all perſons ſhall be at liberty to ſearch; and the Lord Chancellor ſhall, by writing, appoint a proper perſon, who ſhall (by himſelf or deputy, to be approved by the Lord Chancellor by writing) enter of record ſuch commiſſions, and other things, and have the cuſtody of the entries thereof; and alſo appoint ſuch fee for his labour therein, as the Lord Chancellor ſhall think reaſonable, not exceeding what is uſually paid in like caſes; and the perſon ſo to be appointed, and his deputy, ſhall continue to enter of record all the matters aforeſaid, and to have the cuſtody of the ſame ſo long as they ſhall behave themſelves well; and ſhall not be removed, but by order in writing under the hand of the Lord Chancellor, or good cauſe therein ſpecified.

Sect. 42. There ſhall not be paid out of the eſtate of the bankrupt any monies for expences in eating or drinking of the commiſſioners, or of any other perſons, at the times of meeting of the commiſſioners or creditors: and no ſchedule ſhall be annexed to any deed of aſſignment of the perſonal eſtate of ſuch bankrupt; and if any commiſſioner ſhall order ſuch expences to be made, or eat or drink at the charge of the creditors, or out of the eſtate of ſuch bankrupt, or receive above 20*s.* each commiſſioner for each meeting, every ſuch commiſſioner ſhall be diſabled to act in any commiſſion of bankrupts.

Sect. 43. The commiſſioners ſhall not be capable of acting until they reſpectively ſhall have taken an oath to the effect following:

I A. B. do ſwear, that I will faithfully, impartially, and honeſtly, according to the beſt of my ſkill and knowledge, execute the ſeveral powers and truſts repoſed in me as a commiſſioner in a commiſſion of bankrupt againſt ; and that without favour or affection, prejudice or malice.

So help me God.

Sect. 44. Which oath any two of the commiſſioners are impowered to adminiſter to each other, and they are required to keep a memorial thereof ſigned by them among the proceedings on each commiſſion.

Sect. 45. No commiſſion of bankrupt ſhrll abate by the death of his Majeſty, his heirs or ſucceſſors, but ſhall continue in force; and if it ſhall be neceſſary to renew any commiſſion by reaſon of the death of the commiſſioners, or any other cauſe, ſuch commiſſion ſhall be renewed, and but half the fees uſually paid ſhall be paid for ſuch renewed commiſſion.

Sect. 46. All bills of fees or diſburſements demanded by any ſolicitor employed under any commiſſion of bankrupt, ſhall be ſettled by one of the maſters of Chancery, and the maſter who ſhall ſettle ſuch bill ſhall have for his care in ſettling the ſame, as alſo for his certificate thereof, 20*s.*

Sect. 49. This act ſhall continue for three years, from the twenty-fourth of June 1732, and to the end of the next ſeſſion of parliament. Continued afterwards by ſeveral acts; and by 31 Geo. 2. c. 35. ſect. 2. it was continued to Sept. 29, 1764, and from thence to the end of the then next ſeſſion of parliament.

Stat. 19 Geo. 2. c. 32. ſect. 1. From and after 29 October 1746, no perſon, who is and ſhall be really and bona fide a creditor of any bankrupt for and in reſpect of goods really and bona fide ſold to ſuch bankrupt, or for or in reſpect of any bill or bills of exchange really and bona fide drawn, negotiated, or accepted, by ſuch bankrupt, in the uſual and ordinary courſe of trade and dealing, ſhall be liable to refund or repay to the aſſignee or aſſignees of ſuch bankrupt's eſtate, any money which before the ſuing forth ſuch commiſſion was really and bona fide, and in the uſual and ordinary courſe of trade and dealing, received by ſuch perſon of any ſuch bankrupt before ſuch time as the perſon receiving the ſame ſhall know, underſtand, or have notice, that he is become a bankrupt, or that he is in inſolvent circumſtances.

Sect. 2. From and after the ſaid 29th October 1746, the obligee in any bottomree, or reſpondentia bond, and the aſſured in any policy of inſurance made and entered into upon a good and valuable conſideration bona fide, ſhall be admitted to claim; and after the loſs or contingency ſhall have happened before the time of the iſſuing of the commiſſion of bankruptcy againſt ſuch obligor or inſurer; and ſhall be intitled unto, and ſhall have and receive a proportionable part, ſhare and dividend of ſuch bankrupt's eſtate, in proportion to the other creditors of ſuch bankrupt, rupt, in like manner as if ſuch loſs or contingency had happened before the commiſſion iſſued; and all and every perſon or perſons againſt whom, from and after the ſaid 30th day of October, any commiſſion of bankruptcy ſhall be awarded, ſhall be diſcharged of and from the debt or debts, owing by him, her or them, on every ſuch bond and policy of inſurance, as aſſigned, and ſhall have the benefit of the ſeveral ſtatutes now in force againſt bankrupts in the ſame manner to all intents and purpoſes, as if ſuch loſs or contingency had happened, and the money due in reſpect thereof had become payable, before the time of the iſſuing of ſuch commiſſion.

Stat. 24 Geo. 2. c. 57. ſect. 9. Whereas many abuſes have been committed by bankrupts, and perſons who with their privity have attempted to prove fictitious and pretended debts under commiſſions of bankruptcy, in order that ſuch perſons might be enabled to ſign their conſent to the certificate, for diſcharging ſuch bankrupts from their debts; for remedy whereof, and in order to prevent the ſo fraudulent and wicked practices for the future, Be it enacted, &c. that where any perſons ſhall fraudulently ſwear or depoſe, or, being of the people called quakers, affirm before the major part of the commiſſioners named in any commiſſion of bankruptcy, or by affidavit or affirmation exhibited to them, that a ſum of money is due to him or her from any bankrupt or bankrupts, which ſhall in fact not be really ſo due and owing, and ſhall, in reſpect of ſuch fictitious and pretended debt, ſign his or her conſent to the certificate for ſuch bankrupt's diſcharge from his debts, that in every ſuch caſe, unleſs ſuch bankrupt ſhall, before the time that ſuch major part of the ſaid commiſſioners ſhall have ſigned ſuch certificate, by writing by him to be ſigned and delivered to one or more of the ſaid commiſſioners, or to one or more of the ſaid aſſignees of his eſtate and effects, under ſuch commiſſion, diſcloſe the ſaid frauds, and object to the reality of ſuch debt, ſuch certificate ſhall be null and void to all intents and purpoſes, and ſuch bankrupt ſhall not in that caſe be intitled to be diſcharged from his debts, or to have and receive any of the benefits or allowances given or allowed to bankrupts by the ſaid act of the 5 Geo. 2.

Sect. 10. And where the creditor or creditors of any bankrupt reſide in foreign parts, the letter of attorney of ſuch creditor, atteſted by a notary public in the uſual form, ſhall be a ſufficient evidence of the power and authority by which any perſon thereby authorized ſhall ſign any bankrupt's certificate; any thing in the ſaid act of the 5th of Geo. 2. to the contrary notwithſtanding.

2. Who may be a bankrupt, and who not; what are acts of bankruptcy, and what not.

By the ſtatutes 13 Eliz. c. 7. and 21 Jac. 1. c. 19. (which ſee in the foregoing diviſion) it appears, that every perſon uſing the trade of merchandize, by way of bargaining, exchange, rechange, bartery, cheviſance, or otherwiſe, in groſs or by retail; or ſeeking his or her trade of living by buying and ſelling, being a natural born ſubject, or an alien, or being a denizen, or that ſhall uſe the trade or profeſſion of a ſcrivener, receiving other men's monies or eſtates into his truſt or cuſtody, may be a bankrupt.

Perſons dealing as bankers, brokers, and factors, being frequently intruſted with large ſums of money, and with goods and effects of very great value belonging to other perſons, are declared to be ſubject to all the ſtatutes made concerning bankrupts. See ſtat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. ſect. 39. in the preceding diviſion.

A ſhoemaker is within 13 Eliz. cap. 7. for he lives by his credit, in buying leather and ſelling it again in ſhoes, and not on his manual labour only, as labourers and huſbandmen do; for the thing bought and ſold under different forms is the leather; and though the ſhoemaker's labour is employed in the alteration of the form, yet men do not contract for the labour, but for the thing itſelf. Cro. Eliz. 268. Cro. Jac. 584. Cro. Car. 31. 3 Mod. 330.

A weaver and dyer are within the ſtatute, for they get their living by buying and ſelling, and therefore may have an action for calling them bankrupts. Cro. Jac. 584.

An ironmonger, who buys rod iron, or bar iron, and cauſes it to be worked up into wares, may be a bankrupt. Good. 11. Stone 120.

A ſaleſman may be a bankrupt. Good. 12.

A nobleman, who hath granted to him the ſole importing of cards or glaſſes, may be a bankrupt. Stone 120.

An officer of the court takes a leaſe of the King, of the ſole pre-emption of tin, he is a bankrupt for all debts he contracts during his term. Stone 120.

Trading phyſicians may be bankrupts. Dav. 9.

A carpenter that ſells wrought timber ſeems to be within the ſtatute, for he ſells the materials though altered by his workmanſhip, ſo that he gets his living by buying in and ſelling out the timber; but otherwiſe it ſeems it is of a meer working carpenter. 3 Mod. 155.

If a trader become ſecurity for another, he is a bankrupt within the ſtatute, becauſe he is truſted upon the reputation of his ſtock and dealings, as well where he is ſecurity, as where he contracts for his own debts. Palm. 325.

If a man buy in England only, and ſells in Ireland, he may be a bankrupt, for many merchants buy beyond ſea, and ſell in England only, and others buy here, and ſell beyond ſea; for it is a trading that makes a man capable of being a bankrupt. Raym. 375.

A gentleman of the Temple went from thence to Liſbon, where he turned factor and traded to England, and broke; it was inſiſted upon that the ſtatutes of bankruptcy did not extend to perſons out of the realm, the ſubject of them being caſes of arreſts, outlawries, and departing the realm; and the 21 Jac. 1. which extends to aliens, is to be underſtood of aliens here; but the court held him a bankrupt by reaſon of his trading hither and back again, which gained him a credit here. 1 Salk. 110.

There have been commiſſions of bankruptcy taken out againſt femes ſole merchants, and one was taken out on the 20th of March 1741, againſt Mary Dennis of the pariſh of St. Botolph without Biſhopſgate, linendraper, ſole trader within the city, and wife of Peter Dennis, citizen and watchmaker of London; and it appearing in the commiſſion that no part of the eſtate and effects which were delivered by her to the commiſſioners any ways belonged to her huſband, a proper aſſignment was made of her eſtate and effects, and ſhe conformed herſelf in all reſpects to the acts relating to bankrupts; and on the 17th of July 1742, her certificate was allowed under that deſcription. Dav. 23.

A member of parliament is liable to a commiſſion of bankruptcy, and accordingly on the 23d of January 1741, a joint commiſſion was taken out againſt John Caſwell and John Mount of London, bankers and partners; and Mr. Caſwell was then a member of parliament, and the parliament then ſitting; and on the 21ſt of May 1717, a commiſſion was taken out againſt John Burridge of London, merchant, who was alſo a member of parliament; and the author likewiſe ſets forth a reſolution of the houſe of commons, bearing date the 16th of November in the 9th year of King George, 1722, whereby it is unanimouſly declared, that no co-partner in any trade or undertaking, was intitled to the privilege of that houſe, in reſpect of any matter relating to ſuch copartnerſhip. Dav. 6.

The ſtatutes relating to bankrupts have been adjudged to extend to phyſicians, when they have been proved to have traded or merchandized, or to have bought and ſold goods, effects, and merchandizes, and accordingly on the 29th of October 1726, a commiſſion of bankruptcy was taken out againſt Doctor John Lane, a phyſician in Briſtol, and he was found a bankrupt, on his being proved a dealer in copper and lead. Dav. 9.

Private gentlemen may be bankrupts tho' never bred up to trade, but have only inveſted their money in it, in order to make better intereſt thereof, notwithſtanding they have never acted or appeared in the trade, or been known to any perſons trading with the perſon to whom they ſo lent the money, or been perſonally concerned in the buying and ſelling any goods whatſoever. See Dav. 9.

A gentleman of the bar, who had a colliery and dealt in coals at Durham, was held ſuch a trader as might be a bankrupt. Stra. 514.

Adventurers in the Eaſt-India or Guinea company, or in the royal fiſhing trade, are not liable to the ſtatutes of bankruptcy on account of their ſtock in the ſaid companies or trades. See the ſtat. 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 24. ſect. 3. under the firſt diviſion of this title.

But if a trader put money into the Eaſt-India company and abſcond, he is a trader within this act, becauſe ſuch goods being bought and ſold, were within the original ſtatutes touching bankrupts; for they make no diſtinction between the manner of trade, whether in companies or out of them; and though this ſtatute hath excepted the nobility and gentry for the encouragement of theſe companies, yet trades are left out. 2 Keb. 487. Hugh. Abr. 315, 316. See Goodw. 20. where it is ſaid to have been adjudged, that ſuch trading did bring a man within the ſtatutes before this act.

Having Eaſt-India ſtocks, or the dealing in them, will not make a man liable to bankruptcy, nor do they ſeem to be wares, goods or merchandizes within the intent of the clauſe of the above ſtatute of Car. 2. Said by Lord Chancellor King, in the caſe of Colt v. Netterwill, 2 Will. Rep. 308.

By ſeveral acts of parliament relating to the bank of England, the Eaſt-India company, the South-Sea company, the Royal-Exchange and London Inſurance companies, no member of any of the ſaid companies ſhall be liable to any of the ſtatutes made againſt bankrupts, on account of their ſtock in the ſaid companies.

By ſtat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. ſect. 40. No farmer, graſier, or driver of cattle, or any receiver general of taxes, ſhall be deemed a bankrupt.

But ſuch farmer, if he ſhall deal in wool, hops, or the like, ſhall be deemed a bankrupt; otherwiſe any perſon by taking a farm might avoid the ſtatutes. Stran. 513.

A pawn-broker, merely as ſuch, is not liable to the ſtatutes relating to bankrupts, becauſe he does not buy nor ſell for himſelf, and is only a common lender of money at intereſt, and the pledges which he ſells are for the benefit of the borrower: And on the 18th of September 1742 a commiſſion of bankruptcy was taken out againſt Richard Read, a pawn-broker; and the commiſſioners, in regard it did not at firſt appear to them that he was a trader, abſolutely refuſed to find him a bankrupt as a broker; but it afterwards being proved that he was a trader as well as a pawn-broker, the conmiſſioners thought proper to find him a bankrupt as a pawn-broker, dealer and chapman. And on or about the 17th day of December, 1737, a commiſſion of bankruptcy was taken out againſt Robert Highmore, of Brick-Lane, in the pariſh of Whitechapel, in the county of Middleſex, pawn-broker and chapman; and he petitioned to have ſuch commiſſion ſuperſeded, inſiſting upon it in his petition, that, as a pawn-broker, he was not liable to the ſtatutes relating to bankrupts; but afterwards it was agreed between all parties, that the commiſſion ſhould go on, and he ſubmitted to the ſame; and on the firſt day of April 1738, as appears by the Gazette, a dividend was made of his eſtate. Several commiſſions have been ſince taken out againſt pawn-brokers by the deſcription of pawn-brokers and chapmen. Dav. 25.

A common working taylor, who only makes clothes, is not, as has been held, liable to be a bankrupt; becauſe he only works as a ſervant for hire: But as their buſineſs is now greatly altered, and a good part of their trade conſiſts in buying and ſelling, ſo they are liable to the ſtatutes; and ſeveral commiſſions have been lately taken out againſt them by the deſcription of taylors and chapmen. Dav. 25.

A ſpecial verdict was found, that one Richard Baxter rented a farm, for which he paid three hundred pounds a year, and that he planted potatoes on part of the lands which he farmed, and bought great quantities thereof to plant there, and that, for ſeveral years paſt, he dealt with divers perſons in potatoes at ſeveral times and places, and had employed warehouſes where he had put his potatoes, and ſerved ſeveral markets therewith; and had ſold great quantities thereof for profit and for his living, &c.

On this ſpecial verdict two points were made; viz. If the jury had found enough to make Baxter a trader within any of the ſtatutes made againſt bankrupts; and whether a farmer who ſells potatoes, though he buys ſeveral other large quantities thereof, and gets his living thereby, is within any of the ſaid acts. It was here argued, as to the firſt point, that the jury had found enough to make him a trader within the ſtatutes of bankruptcy, for, though farmers or innkeepers, meerly as ſuch, are not within thoſe ſtatutes, yet as traders they are: And here the jury have found not only that Baxter was a farmer, but likewiſe a trader in potatoes, which he bought and ſold.

If a man hath ſeveral trades, and one is within, but another not within the ſtatutes, he ſhall nevertheleſs be adjudged a trader, ſo as to make him a bankrupt; and ſo ſhall a lawyer dealing in coals; and the dealing in one commodity more than another does not alter the caſe; for no perſon, except the trader himſelf, can tell in what commodity he moſtly deals; wherefore that trading which is the moſt viſible means of livelyhood is to be regarded: And in this caſe it is apparent that by dealing in potatoes Baxter got credit, and probably of ſeveral perſons that did not know he rented a farm; but if he did not, yet there are ſufficient words in this verdict to make him a trader, it being found that he ſold ſeveral great quantities of potatoes.

The argument on the ſecond point was this; That in England there are many hop-merchants who have hop-yards of their own, but ſtill ſhall be accounted traders, ſo as to ſubject them to the ſtatutes of bankrupts; and this trade of dealing in potatoes, though Baxter was a farmer, may be compared to the caſe where the plaintiff libelled for tythes of faggot-wood, and the defendant ſuggeſted for a prohibition, that no tythes ought to be paid for oak faggots. The plaintiff, in his prayer for a conſultation, may ſhew that the defendant had ſo ſorted the faggots, that it was impoſſible for him to take the tythes of one without the other.

It was anſwered by the other ſide, that this caſe, as found by the verdict, is not within the intention of any of the ſtatutes againſt bankrupts, becauſe it is found that Baxter got his livelyhood by buying and ſelling of potatoes: here if he bought ſome and had ſome of the growth of the lands which he rented, he is not a trader within any of the ſaid ſtatutes; for a farmer that bought and ſold cattle was held no trader, ſo as to make him a bankrupt; nor an innkeeper, who lays in malt and corn; neither ſhall a farmer who deals in turnips be accounted a trader.

The court being here divided, no judgment was given; but two of the judges ſeemed to be of opinion, that where a man bought great quantities of wool, or hops, though he hath a farm and ſheep of his own, and ſeveral hop-gardens, he ſhall be deemed a trader in thoſe commodities; and ſo ſhall an innkeeper, if he turn cornchandler. It is true, the jury have not found that Baxter got the chief part of his livelyhood by buying and ſelling potatoes; but it is not the quantity which is material, if it be in proportion to other goods that he buys and ſells; for if a perſon has an orchard, and buys ſeveral quantities of fruit of other people, though not ſo many as he hath in his own orchard, yet this ſhall make him a trader, and conſequently ſubject him to the ſtatutes of bankrupts.

The other two juſtices were of a contrary opinion, viz. that there was not enough found by the verdict to make Baxter a bankrupt. A farmer is no trader within any of the acts before mentioned, as a farmer, and notwithſtanding he was of another trade, if that is not the principal means of his livelyhood, he is not a trader within thoſe ſtatutes. It is indeed true, where buying and ſelling in any trade is the chief means of a man's livelyhood, then he is a trader within the acts of bankruptcy; but that is matter to be given in evidence, and found by the jury, which was not done in this caſe; therefore they held that it was an inſufficient verdict, becauſe the jury did not find that Baxter, by buying and ſelling potatoes, got the chief part of his livelyhood, or that it did exceed his farming trade; for all that the ſtatute requires, is that trading ſhould be the chief matter to make him a bankrupt.

Upon the judges thus differing in their opinions in this caſe, the counſel for the plaintiff afterwards moved for a new venire facias, or that the court would give leave to amend this ſpecial verdict on the affidavit of one of the witneſſes at the trial; that Baxter bought potatoes ſeveral years, to the value of five hundred pounds per annum, and thereupon a rule was made for the other ſide to ſhew cauſe why the verdict ſhould not be amended; and they not ſhewing cauſe ſufficient, though it was inſiſted to be without precedent to amend the verdict, which is a record, by ſuch an affidavit; for being the ſame which was given in evidence before, the jury did not believe it; yet the court was of opinion, that a ſpecial verdict might be amended by notes taken by the clerk at the trial, or on proof of the certainty of what was there given in evidence; and the ſame was adjudged accordingly on payment of coſts. *Mod. If one covenants with the King to victual the fleet at a certain rate, and thereupon buys up a great quantity of proviſion, &c. tho' with the ſurplus he victuals merchants, yet being originally deſigned for the uſe of the navy, it will not make him a trader within the act; it is one act or contract only, and not a continued trading. 1 Vent. 270.

An innkeeper, as ſuch, can be no bankrupt, for though he buys proviſions to be ſpent in his houſe, yet he does not properly ſell them, but utter them at ſuch rates which he thinks reaſonable; and the attendance of his ſervants, furniture of his houſe, &c. are to be conſidered; and the ſtatutes only mention merchants that uſed to buy and ſell in groſs or by retail, and ſuch as get their living by buying and ſelling; ſo that their principal ſubſiſtence is by buying and ſelling: Now the contracts with innkeepers are not for any commodities in ſpecie, but they are contracts for houſe-room, trouble, attendance, lodging and neceſſaries, and therefore cannot come within the deſign of ſuch words, ſince there is no trade carried on by buying and bartring commodities; and though in this caſe a jury ſhould find that the innkeeper got his living by buying and ſelling, it would not bring him within the ſtatute for the reaſons aforeſaid. *Cro. The buying part of a ſhip makes no trading, becauſe it is buying and ſelling within the ſtatute; but the buying part in the ſhip, and the party's employing it in carrying and re-carrying goods for himſelf, is an evidence of trade, becauſe the exportation and importation of goods is the buſineſs of a merchant; but if a man buys a part of a ſhip which he lets to freight, this is no evidence of trade, for there is no exportation or importation; but if a man repairs a ſhip, which is uſual, on the credit of the bottom, and afterwards takes a ſhare in it for his debt, and employs the ſhip in exportation, it has been held by ſome, that ſince in this he is compulſory, having no other way to obtain his debt, that it ſhall not be taken as an evidence of trading, becauſe this is only accidental, and not the way the party hath put himſelf in to get his livelyhood. 1 Sid. 411. 1 Vent. 29. 2 Show. 268. 2 Keb. 487.

A man's buying and ſelling brings him not within the ſtatutes, for they intend ſuch as gain the greateſt part of their living thereby; and therefore where a farmer bought and ſold cattle, it was adjudged that he was not a bankrupt, for a farmer is not within the ſtatutes, becauſe he only ſells the profits originally raiſed from the ground, and if he buy in commodities, and ſells them again, this is only accidental. March 35. *Cro. If a man contracts a debt, while he is a trader, and after leaves off, and lives upon his eſtate in the country, and afterward abſconds for this debt, he is a bankrupt, becauſe he lived by his trade when the debt was contracted; but if a merchant leaves off his trade, and after contracts debts, and ſells off the ſurpluſage of his goods, but hath neither factor, correſpondent, nor packer, he is no bankrupt. Palm. 325. 1 Vent. 5. 3 Leo. 17. 1 Sid. 411.

If a trader gives over his trade, and then contracts debts, and then goes into trade again upon a new ſtock, it ſeems upon the petition of ſuch intermediate creditors he cannot be made a bankrupt, becauſe ſuch creditors did not truſt him upon the credit of his trade. 1 Sid. 411. 2 Show. 268. 1 Vent. 5.

The acts of bankruptcy, done by a perſon to make him a bankrupt, appear from the ſeveral ſtatutes in the firſt diviſion of this title, to be as follow.

1. To depart the realm.
2. To begin to keep his houſe, or otherwiſe to abſent himſelf.
3. To take ſanctuary.
4. To ſuffer himſelf willingly to be arreſted for any debt, or other thing, not grown due, for money delivered, wares ſold, or any other juſt or lawful cauſe, or good conſideration or purpoſe.
5. To ſuffer himſelf to be outlawed.
6. To yield himſelf to priſon.
7. To depart from his dwelling houſe, to the intent or purpoſe to defraud or hinder a juſt creditor or creditors of his or their juſt debt or duty. Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 7. 1 Jac. 1. c. 15. ſect. 2.
8. Willingly or fraudulently to procure himſelf to be arreſted, or his goods, money, or chattels, to be attached or ſequeſtered.
9. To make any fraudulent grant or conveyance of his lands, tenements, goods or chattels, to the intent, or whereby his creditors ſhall and may be defeated or delayed for the recovery of their juſt debts. 1 Jac. 1. c. 15. ſect. 2.
10. Being arreſted for debt, to lie in priſon two months, after his arreſt, upon that or any other arreſt, or detention for debt.
11. To obtain privilege other than that of parliament.
12. Being arreſted for 100*l.* or more, to eſcape out of priſon.
13. To prefer to any court any petition or bill againſt any of the creditors, thereby endeavouring to inforce them to accept leſs than their juſt debts, or to procure time, or longer days of payment, than was given at the time of their original contracts. Stat. 21 Jac. 1. c. 19. ſect. 2.
14. For a bankrupt to pay, ſatisfy, or ſecure the petitioning creditor his debt. Stat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. ſect. 24.

1. To depart the realm.] A merchant departs the realm to merchandize, and becomes indebted, and to avoid arreſts, defers his return; this doth tantamount to a departing of the realm. Stone 123.

If a merchant depart the realm with the conſent of his creditors, he does not thereby commit an act of bankruptcy. Dav. 30.

A capias de excommunicato capiendo is awarded againſt one, who for fear of arreſt departs the realm, he is no bankrupt. So, if a perſon departs the realm for fear of an attachment in Chancery. Stone 123. Good. 22.

2. To begin to keep houſe, or otherwiſe to abſent himſelf.] If a man keeps his houſe for a long time, this does not immediately make him a bankrupt; but if he conceals himſelf within his houſe but for a day or an hour to delay or defraud his creditors, he is a bankrupt. Palm. 325.

If there be a proceſs out againſt a merchant, who thereupon keeps houſe to ſave himſelf from an arreſt, and after goes out to market and other places, but hearing of a new proceſs keeps houſe again, and after goes at large; per cur', he is no bankrupt, becauſe he keeping in his houſe is an act of bankruptcy, for which a commiſſion might have been taken out at that time, yet by his going abroad it is afterwards purged; for though the ſtatute makes the keeping of houſe an act of bankruptcy, yet it muſt be underſtood of a keeping in order to conceal himſelf. Cro. E. 13. Godb. 25. 1 Lev. 13. 1 Sid. 177.

If a man commits a plain act of bankruptcy, as keeping houſe, &c. though he after goes abroad, and is a great dealer, yet that will not purge the firſt act of bankruptcy; but if that act was not plain but doubtful, then going abroad and trading will be an evidence to explain the intent of the firſt act, for if it was not done to defraud creditors, and keep out of the way, it will not be within the ſtatutes. Salk. 110. Lev. 13, 14, 17.

If a trader abſents himſelf for fear of being arreſted by a writ de excommunicato capiendo, or if a decree in Chancery be made againſt him to execute a conveyance, and he keeps in, or withdraws himſelf, for fear of being attached for not performing the decree, ſuch withdrawing doth not make him a bankrupt; contra, if the ſubſtance of the decree had been for payment of money, becauſe in ſuch caſe his withdrawing had been to defraud or delay the payment of his debt. Billing. 92. Goodw. 22.

Keeping houſe for fear of an attachment in Chancery, is no act of bankruptcy. Stone 123.

An apothecary is made a churchwarden, and being indebted, keeps in the church; this is a keeping of his houſe. Stone 124.

If the ſteward, or the lieutenant of the tower of London, be a merchant, and indebted, and keep the tower; he is a bankrupt. Stone 124.

If a man denies himſelf to a creditor wilfully, knowing he comes for money, and with an intent to defraud and delay him of his debt, ſuch denials are taken to be acts of bankruptcy; and ſeveral perſons have been found bankrupts on ſuch accounts.

But ſuppoſing a merchant or trader in good circumſtances, engaged in buſineſs of the utmoſt importance with reſpect to his own affairs, and not knowing a creditor would come for his money, ſhould generally ſay to his ſervants, whoever comes to enquire for me to-day, tell them I am not at home, but keeps his warehouſe or ſhop open; and the next day, or a day or two afterwards, goes abroad, and to the Exchange, and meeting his creditor pays him the money. The queſtion is, whether this is ſuch a denial to delay or defraud his creditor, as would induce a jury to find a perſon bankrupt on that account, becauſe he may ſue him at any time for his debt; and his going abroad, and publickly dealing, ſeems, according to the Ld. Ch. J. Holt's opinion in the beforementioned caſe of Hopkins and Ellis, (Salk. 110.) to be a purgation of the act of bankruptcy; and his words are theſe (if the act was not plain but doubtful): then going abroad and dealing will be an evidence to explain the intent of the firſt act; for if it was not done to defraud his creditors, and keep out of the way, it will not be an act of bankruptcy.

And in a petition which came on before the late Lord, Chancellor Hardwicke, on the 6th of Auguſt 1743, it was ſaid, that the being denied to a creditor was only an evidence of an act of bankruptcy; but that the abſconding was the material part of it. Dav. 92, 93.

If a man abſents himſelf for felony, it is not an act of bankruptcy, it not being to defraud the creditor of his juſt debt or duty due to him. Dav. 91.

But if a perſon who is a felon, will alſo commit an act of bankruptcy, by attempting to conceal or imbezil his goods and effects, he may be a bankrupt as well as a felon: and tho' he don't appear, or ſubmit to be examined, yet the commiſſioners will proceed in the commiſſion, and divide ſuch eſtates and effects as they can come at. Dav. 91.

Action againſt the defendant for a falſe return to two fieri facias's; and on evidence the caſe appeared to be thus, viz. the plaintiff ſent into Eſſex a writ on meſne proceſs, and a fieri facias againſt one Ward, and both writs were delivered to the ſheriff, and Ward was arreſted by virtue of the writ, about two hours before the ſheriff took his goods in execution by means of the fieri facias; ſoon after that arreſt, and before his goods were in execution, he was carried to Colcheſter to the officer's houſe, and deſired the officers that they would not let any one know that he was there; and on being told the next day, which was Sunday, that Finch, one of his creditors, aſked after him, he prayed, for God's ſake don't let him know that I am at your houſe; and upon Finch's coming the next day to inquire after him, he then deſired of the officers, that Finch might not be permitted to ſee him. In about a week after the ſecond fieri facias was executed on his goods; but the ſheriff, ſuppoſing that he became a bankrupt from his firſt arreſt, on the meſne proceſs, delivered the effects to the aſſignees of the commiſſion of bankruptcy taken out againſt Ward, and returned nulla bona to both the writs of fieri facias.

Upon hearing the evidence, the chief juſtice ordered the act of King James 1. cap. 15. ſect. 2. which deſcribes a bankrupt, to be read, and then ſaid, that between the time of executing the two writs of fieri facias, he had been guilty of an act of bankruptcy, for that he had withdrawn himſelf from the place of his habitation, and had abſented; but ſerjeant Darnell ſaying, that that muſt be done with intent to defraud his creditors, the chief juſtice told him, his very abſenting himſelf was ſufficient evidence of the fraud deſigned. Then ſerjeant Eyre ſaid, it muſt be a voluntary abſenting of himſelf, and not by means of an arreſt; and the chief juſtice ſaid, ſo it was here, for that it appeared on evidence, as indeed it did, that on the Monday after the arreſt, he was diſcharged out of cuſtody on the writ of meſne proceſs, and from that time he ſecretly withdrew.

Therefore the chief juſtice told the jury, that as here appeared not to be any act of bankruptcy committed by Ward till after the time of the firſt execution, upon that return they muſt find for the plaintiff; and that ſince he had between the time of the two executions ſo behaved himſelf, as to make himſelf a bankrupt, by which the intereſts in his goods was veſted in the aſſignees, they ought on the laſt return to find for the defendant, which they did accordingly.

N. B. The officers who took the goods in execution were called as witneſſes for the defendant; and the counſel for the plaintiff objected to their being ſworn, becauſe they generally gave ſecurity to the ſheriff. Here the chief juſtice ſaid, that did not yet appear; aſked them: upon which the officers owned they had given ſecurity, but that they had delivered the goods over to the aſſignees by order of the under ſheriff, and they had a warrant from the under ſheriff, which they called a ſuperſedeas, for their ſo doing; and upon its being produced and read, their teſtimony was allowed, for that it appeared to be a full indemnity to them from the ſheriff for what they had done. Gen. Syſ. Law B. cites MS. Rep. Philips and Peck againſt Eſſex Sheriff.

3. To take ſanctuary.] As to taking of ſanctuary, in former times it was uſual for perſons to fly to a monaſtery, or ſome other religious houſe, for ſecurity, but ſuch houſes are ſince aboliſhed; and the conſtruction which is now to be put on the word ſanctuary is, where a perſon takes refuge in any place where the law cannot be ſo readily executed upon him, and to delay the payment of his debts to his creditors, viz. within the verge of the court, or, before the act of parliament deſtroyed the mint, in that place, or in any other particular place of refuge; and whenever a perſon abſconds, or retires to ſuch places without the conſent of his creditors, it is deemed an act of bankruptcy. Stone 124. Billingh. 93. Dav. 90, 91.

If a merchant abſconds, and liſts himſelf a dragooner in the King's ſervice, or buys a captain's place, this is no protection; but if a trader be preſſed into the ſervice, it ſeems otherwiſe. Good. 22, 23.

4. To ſuffer himſelf willingly to be arreſted for any debt, or other thing, not grown due, for money delivered, wares ſold, or any other juſt or lawful cauſe, or good conſideration or purpoſe.] Where the party procures himſelf to be arreſted upon a ſham debt, that is immediately an act of bankruptcy within the above clauſe. 7 Vin. Abr. 62. Good. 23.

5. To ſuffer himſelf to be outlawed.] As to the outlawry, if a jury on a verdict find a man to be outlawed, it muſt be be proved to be done in fraudem creditorum, or to defraud his creditors. Keb. 11. 2 Sid. 69, 114, 176.

A man may be ſo unfortunate as to be outlawed, and know nothing at all of the matter, and may afterwards come and procure the outlawry to be reverſed; and if ſo, it is not an act of bankruptcy; and this was determined in the Caſe of Radford v. Bildworth, &c. above.

If an outlawry be reverſed for want of proclamations, all done in the mean time by the commiſſioners is void; but if it were reverſed for error, contrary. Stone 124. Good. 23.

6. To yield himſelf to priſon.] This is to be intended a voluntary yielding, and not when a man is impriſoned for non-payment of a fine, or for any refractory carriage; for although the act which cauſeth the impriſonment be voluntary, yet the impriſonment itſelf is involuntary. Billingh. 95. Good. 25.

7. To depart from his dwelling-houſe, to the intent or purpoſe to defraud or hinder a juſt creditor or creditors of his or their juſt debt or duty.] This departure, or removal from his dwelling-houſe, muſt, as is above obſerved, be proved to be done with an intention to defraud his creditors; for 'tis not the bare departure of a man from his dwelling-houſe that can make him a bankrupt, unleſs it be done with that intent. Dav. 96.

For ſuppoſing a perſon in an indifferent ſtate of health, ſhould go to Bath, Briſtol, Scarborough, or to any other part of England, for a conſiderable time, and ſtay there ſeveral months for the recovery of his health: Or if a trader in London, or elſewhere, ſhould go a long country journey, which is every day done in moſt trading towns in England, to carry on his trade and correſpondence; ſuch departure, if he is viſible, and within the reach of the laws of his country, and he leaves word with his family where he is gone, or may be ſent to, has not been deemed an act of bankruptcy; and the meaning of the departure from a perſon's houſe, in order to make it an act of bankruptcy, muſt be attended with an ill intention, and it muſt be proved to be done with a deſign to hide himſelf in ſome ſecret place in his own country, where it may be difficult to find him out, and where his creditors cannot reſort to, or have a communication with him, or know where to ſue him for the recovery of their debts, if there ſhould be occaſion. Dav. 96, 97.

On the 28th of November, Hall rode out of town, and returned in the evening, before which a bailiff had been at his ſhop to arreſt him: The next morning he ſent for the bailiff, and told him he went in order to get the term of the plaintiff; and now the return of the writ was out, if they would take out a new writ, he would give bail, which was done accordingly; and this was held to be an act of bankruptcy within this clauſe, in the caſe of Maylin v. Erloe. Stra. 809.

2. Willingly or fraudulently to procure himſelf to be arreſted, or his goods, money, or chattels to be attached or ſequeſtered.] B. was arreſted for 28 l. and though he had money ſufficient to pay the debt, yet choſe rather to go to priſon, in order, as he declared, to force his creditors to come to a compoſition; and per Lord Chancellor, This is an act of bankruptcy within this clauſe; though without ſuch intent, yielding himſelf to priſon was not an act of bankruptcy, unleſs he lay there two months. 7 Vin. Abr. 61, 62. pl. 15.

As to his cauſing his goods, money, or chattels to be attached or ſequeſtered, that may be done by ſuffering judgment to go againſt him wilfully by default, for want of pleading, or by permitting his effects by contrivance to be ſequeſtered or ſeized, or by letting a perſon attach his goods where no juſt debt is due to him, or by confeſſing a fraudulent or voluntary judgment for a ſum of money not actually due, or for a much larger ſum than is due, in order to cover his effects, and permitting execution to be taken out for ſuch larger ſum; the doing all theſe things are fraudulent, and acts of bankruptcy. Dav. 97.

But if a perſon is minded, before he becomes bankrupt, to give preference to one creditor before another, and confeſſes a judgment for a ſum that is actually and juſtly due, and execution is taken out on ſuch judgment for ſuch ſum, little more or leſs than is due; the confeſſing ſuch judgment is not, as has been held, an act of bankruptcy. Dav. 97.

A merchant hath an impropriate rectory, and the choir is not repaired; the tithes are ſequeſtered; it is no ſequeſtration within the ſtatute; for tho' this is his default in not repairing the church, yet it is not of his immediate procuring. Stone 124, 125. Billingh. 94. Good. 29.

So in caſes of other attachments out of any court. Goodw. 29.

9. Making any fraudulent grant or conveyance of his lands, tenements, goods or chattels, to the intent, or whereby his creditors ſhall and may be defeated or delayed for the recovery of their juſt debts.] If a man clandeſtinely carries or conveys away his caſh, bank-bills, goods or effects, or his ſhop-books, or books of account, or makes a fraudulent bill of ſale of his goods, with an intent to deceive his creditors of the benefit and property of ſuch goods, and to conceal his eſtate and effects, and his accounts and dealings from them; this is a fraudulent conveyance of his goods and chattels, and is an act of bankruptcy. Dav. 102.

Alſo if a man makes a fraudulent leaſe of his eſtate, and reſerves much leſs rent than the real value, and repoſes a ſecret truſt and confidence in ſome perſon, in order to defraud his creditors; this hath alſo been taken to be a fraudulent conveyance of his eſtate, and an act of bankruptcy. Dav. 102.

In trover and converſion a ſpecial verdict was found, that a merchant had made a fraudulent deed to the defendant of the goods contained in the declaration, and that afterwards he went to the Exchange, and appeared publickly in trade, and then abſconded; and afterwards a commiſſion being taken out, theſe goods were aſſigned by the commiſſioners; the executing of the deed does not make him a bankrupt, becauſe the jury found that he was afterwards abroad, and that then he abſconded, and that the commiſſioners pitched upon that act of bankruptcy to declare him a bankrupt; and though they have found it a fraudulent deed, yet they did not find it in fraudem creditorum, and it might be only a fraudulent deed in reſpect of ſome ſubſequent valuable ſale, and therefore no title was found for the plaintiff. Hutt. 42, 43.

10. Being arreſted for debt, to lie in priſon two months, after his arreſt, upon that or any other arreſt, or detention for debt.] Billinghurſt makes a quære, whether an arreſt for a fine be a detention for debt within this clauſe, for he ſuppoſes the fine, after it is once impoſed, becomes a debt, but yet it may not be within the meaning of the ſtatutes, which were made for the relief of creditors only, who had intruſted the party offending, and not for a fine judicially impoſed for ſome contempt. Billingh. 95.

Suppoſe (ſays he) a perſon be arreſted upon a bond before the day of payment; (for by the cuſtom of London a creditor may arreſt a debtor there before the day of payment, to find ſureties, 8 Co. 126. a. city of London's caſe:) and is in priſon two months, he conceives this caſe to be within the ſtatutes, for the debt ariſeth upon the obligation, and is a debt preſently upon ſealing and delivery of the deed; and he conceives the action for which he is arreſted muſt be an action of debt; although the end of that arreſt is not to inforce the payment of the debt, but to find ſureties, in caſe the creditor fears the debtor to be too weak for his ingagement; and in caſe the debtor upon ſuch arreſt finds not ſureties, his body is to continue in priſon, as a pledge for the debt; like law he conceives in caſe of a ſingle bill, or a debt ariſing upon a contract, for it is a debt preſently and before the day of payment. Billing. 96. See Cro. Jac. 300.

The above ſeems doubtful (ſays Mr. Serjeant Goodin) for though it be debitum in præſenti, and ſo a releaſe of all debts ſhall extend to it; yet it is not properly a debt within the words or intent of the ſtatute, for that muſt be ſuch a debt for which a cauſe of action is given; and there can be no cauſe of action properly till the forfeiture, for the obligation is guided by the condition; and the cuſtom of London will not help it; for the cuſtom is not that he ſhall be arreſted for the payment of money, but to find better ſureties; and the ſtatutes only intends detention in priſon for a juſt debt really due. But the ſerjeant ſubmits his reaſon to the judicious reader. Good. 26.

Lying in priſon makes a man a bankrupt from the firſt arreſt, that is from the time of the firſt arreſt upon which he lies in priſon, and not where he puts in ſufficient bail, for that might be infinitely prejudicial and miſchievous, and no man could ever ſafely pay or receive from a tradeſman. Salk. 109. adjudged in B. R. and affirmed in error. Came v. Coleman.

The firſt reſolution is contradicted by this, where it was held by Holt, C. J. that if a defendant renders in diſcharge of his bail, and lies in priſon two months, he is a bankrupt from the firſt arreſt, and from the render only; but the commiſſion being taken out before the two months were expired, it was held ill taken out. Salk. 110. 2 Show. 519.

Yet, in order to make it a compleat act of bankruptcy, his lying in priſon two months without putting in bail ought to be proved, otherwiſe a third perſon, who may be an innocent man, may be affected thereby; and the intention or deſire of any man to be a bankrupt, or to be unjuſt, ought not to prejudice ſuch innocent perſon, unleſs an eſſential fact, which creates an act of bankruptcy, is proved againſt the perſon ſo intending to be a bankrupt. Dav. 94.

The lying in priſon two lunar months, makes a man bankrupt from the firſt arreſt; and although the commiſſion was taken out before the two months were expired, yet he appearing afterwards to be a bankrupt by relation to a time before the ſuing it out, it was held ſufficient. Gen. Syſt. Law B. 35. adjudged by Ld. Ch. J. Raym. at Guildhall in Mich. term 5 Geo. 2. 1732.

11. To obtain privilege other than that of parliament.] No merchant or trader whatſoever, within the deſcription of the ſtatutes againſt bankrupts, who ſhall put himſelf into the ſervice of an ambaſſador, or public miniſter, ſhall have any privilege. Stat. 7 Ann. c. 12. ſect. 5.

12. Being arreſted for 100*l. or more, to eſcape out of priſon.*] This act of bankruptcy ſeems to depend upon the ſame reaſon and law as the tenth does, viz. lying in priſon for debt two months, where lying in priſon for a fine, judicially impoſed, is not within that clauſe; therefore it ſhould ſeem, if the priſon be broke open by rebels, or to be accidentally on fire, that eſcaping under theſe particular circumſtances, would not make the party a bankrupt; for though his eſcape was voluntary, yet the occaſion of it was not, as in the above caſe of lying in priſon for a fine; and beſides, all acts of bankruptcy muſt be done with an intent to defraud creditors. Gen. Syſ. 35.

13. Preferring to any court any petition or bill againſt any of his creditors, thereby endeavouring to enforce them to accept leſs than their juſt debts; or to procure time, or longer days of payment, than was given at the time of their original contracts.] As to this particular act of bankruptcy, I do not know that any court of law or equity has a right to controul the will of the creditor, or to compel him to compound with his debtor againſt his conſent, it certainly being in the creditor's power to chuſe whether he will or will not remit any part of his debt to his debtor. Dav. 110.

14. For a bankrupt to pay, ſatisfy, or ſecure the petitioning creditor his debt.] This act of bankruptcy depends upon a private agreement made between a bankrupt and a creditor, to prevail on him to take out a commiſſion, in conſideration of being paid his whole debt, or more than the reſt of his creditors.

The doing this is declared, ſhall be taken to be ſuch an act of bankruptcy, that on good proof ſuch commiſſion ſhall be ſuperſeded, and the lord chancellor, &c. may, on any creditor's petitioning, award a new commiſſion.

And ſuch perſon ſo taking or receiving ſuch goods, or ſatisfaction, ſhall loſe his whole debt, and the money received, and ſhall pay the ſame to ſuch perſons as the commiſſioners ſhall appoint, in truſt for the bankrupt's creditors in proportion. See the ſtat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. ſect. 24. &c. in the firſt diviſion of this title.

If a trader, hearing that a writ of fieri facias was iſſued againſt him, to the intent to preſerve his goods from being levied in execution, clandeſtinely conveys them out of his houſe, and conceals them privately; that does not amount to an act of bankruptcy. Ruled by Holt Ch. J. in the caſe of Cole v. Davis. Ld. Raym. 725.

If a banker or goldſmith, who has many peoples money, will refuſe payment, yet keeps his ſhop open; and as often as he is arreſted gives bail, he may by that means give preference of payment to his friends, and when he has done he runs away, yet ſuch payment ſhall ſtand good againſt a commiſſion of bankruptcy. And this was practiſed in the caſe of Sheppard the banker, who was arreſted almoſt every hour in the day for ſeveral days before he went off, and yet gave bail as often, and paid his friends, and then went and rendered himſelf in diſcharge of his bail. By Holt Ch. J. in the caſe of Hopkins v. Gary, 7 Mod. 139.

A banker being called upon for money in his hand, does not, or cannot pay it; Lord Chancellor King held, that this does not amount to an act of bankruptcy, in the caſe of Packhenham v. Bland. Select Ca. in Chan. 42, 43.

L. having two promiſſory notes, ſigned by A. payable to L. or order four months after date: L. when about three months were to run, indorſed them to M. for goods then delivered, and A. abſconded about one month after; L. on M.'s going to him, procures himſelf to be denied; and then M. ſues out a commiſſion of bankruptcy againſt L. who petitioned to ſuperſede the commiſſion. Firſt objection was, that L. had committed no act of bankruptcy. Secondly, that M. was not a proper creditor. Lord Chancellor: By the late ſtatute [7 Geo. 1. c. 31.] a creditor by note, payable at a future day, may ſue out a commiſſion, as well as come in as a creditor; but the debtor's denying himſelf to ſuch a creditor, is not an act of bankruptcy; it muſt be a keeping houſe, in order to defeat or delay creditors of their debts, which could not be in the preſent caſe, becauſe M. had then no debt due to demand; and ſo the commiſſion ſuperſeded. It was objected, that L. was debtor to M. immediately upon the goods delivered; ſed non allocatur; for by Lord Chancellor, it was part of the contract that M. would ſtay for the money, till the notes became due. 7 Vin. Abr. 61. pl. 14.

3. Of the commiſſion of bankruptcy; what creditors may obtain it, and how, and when.

The granting a commiſſion of bankruptcy is not a matter diſcretionary, but de jure; for though the words of the act of parliament are, that the chancellor may grant, yet that may was in effect muſt, and it was ſaid, that it had been ſo reſolved by all the judges. 1 Vern. 152. See ſtat. 13 Eliz. under the firſt diviſion of this title.

But though the granting of the commiſſion be ex officio, yet it muſt be at the requeſt of perſons intereſted; for if twenty ſwear that J. S. is a bankrupt, yet a commiſſion cannot be awarded without a petition for that purpoſe. 1 Vern. 152. 2 Chan. Ca. 199.

A commiſſion cannot iſſue five years after the party becomes bankrupt, ſo as to affect bona fide purchaſers. See ſtat. 21 Jac. 1. c. 19. ſect. 14. under the firſt diviſion of this title.

On a ſpecial verdict found, J. H. appeared to be a bankrupt, and was committed two months in 1651, and committed for another fact in the year 1657; and then the term of years whereof he was poſſeſſed was ſold to the defendant by the bankrupt; in the year 1660 the commiſſioners ſold the ſame to the plaintiff. It was moved by Baldwin to ſtay judgment, becauſe this commiſſion ſhall relate to the firſt act in the year 1651, which was the moſt notorious, being by impriſonment; though, had the firſt act been by concealment or outlawry, he agreed the party creditor need not take notice of it, by the 21 Jac. cap. 19. which act ſhall not be taken favourably againſt the purchaſer, but only againſt the bankrupt himſelf, and and cited the caſe of Grove, although after five years, yet the ſale of the bankrupt being after the laſt commiſſion ſued out, was adjudged void, becauſe in ſuch caſe it ſhall relate to the laſt act. But the court held that the words of the ſtatute are not after he ſhall firſt become a bankrupt; for then the earlier being bankrupt, would after five years be a perpetual ſuperſedeas to all tradeſmen; and if one hath ſold lands, &c. and then five years paſs without any act of bankruptcy, no act ſhall afterwards hurt the purchaſer: though where the bankrupt continues in poſſeſſion, any after-act is ſufficient to bind the term. Keb. 722. See Lev. 13.

No commiſſion of bankrupt ſhall abate by the death of the bankrupt. See ſtat. 1 Jac. 1. c. 15. ſect. 19. under the firſt diviſion of this title.

Nor ſhall any commiſſion of bankrupt abate by the death of the King. Stat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. ſect. 44.

A commiſſion of bankruptcy iſſues againſt H. at eleven o' clock in the morning; at three in the afternoon the commiſſioners declare him a bankrupt, and execute an aſſignment at ſix, and then have notice, that he died at ten o' clock that day. This is a dealing within the above act of parliament, and the proceedings ſhall ſtand. Lord Chancellor ſaid, he knew no particular act as diſtinct from another which can be called a dealing. It has been ſaid, that the declaring him a bankrupt was the act meant; but the declaration of the commiſſioners being only diſcretionary, and for caution, and not at all binding to any body, it is not probable that the act ſhould intend that only a dealing, which it has not any where given the commiſſioners power to do; whatever is done in purſuance of the commiſſion is a dealing in it, if never ſo minute; and the rather, for theſe being remedial laws, are to be beneficially conſtrued, in favour of the creditors; I cannot therefore put a narrow conſtrained conſtruction upon the words dealt in, in order to overthrow this commiſſion and all the juſt right of the creditors claiming under it. Talb. Ca. 184.

The debt of one petitioning creditor, or of more, being partners, muſt amount to 100 pounds, or upwards; the debt of two creditors, to 150 pounds; and the debt of three or more creditors, to 200 pounds. See ſtat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. ſect. 23. under the firſt diviſion of this title.

Toms and Allen having recovered judgment againſt one Barnaby, he was ſurrendered by his bail, and then charged in execution, after which the plaintiffs in that action preferred their petition to the Lord Chancellor, as creditors, for a commiſſion of bankruptcy, which iſſued, but was ſuperſeded upon the bankrupt's petition; the Chancellor being of opinion, that the body of the debtor being in execution, it was a ſatisfaction of the debt in point of law, ſo that they were not creditors who could petition. Str. 653. Read. Stat. Law 189.

A bankrupt preferred a petition to ſuperſede the commiſſion, on a ſuggeſtion, that the debts of the petitioning creditors did not amount to 200*l.* ſeveral of their debts being barred by the ſtatute of limitations. And the Lord Chancellor propoſed that this iſſue ſhould be tried at law, whether the petitioning creditors for 200*l.* were within the meaning of the act; in which trial the bankrupt was to have the benefit of the ſtatute of limitations, in the ſame manner as upon a plea of non aſſumpſit infra ſex annos; but the counſel for the creditors being unwilling to have this iſſue tried, the Lord Chancellor ſuperſeded the commiſſion, becauſe the ſtatute would be eluded, if the creditors, who had ſuffered it to run upon their demands, ſhould be allowed to take out a commiſſion. Moſely 37.

A commiſſion of bankruptcy was ſuperſeded, becauſe granted upon the petition of an aſſignee of a bond; who, though he is an equitable, yet is no legal creditor. Str. 899.

Perſons having bonds, notes or other ſecurities for money, payable at a future day, may petition for a commiſſion of bankrupt. Stat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. ſect. 22.

If A. being a trader, becomes indebted to B. in 100*l.* and then he quits his trade, and afterwards becomes indebted to B. in 100*l.* more, A. afterwards pays to B. 100*l.* without ſaying upon what account. Holt Ch. J. ſaid, that ſince ſo much in quantity is paid to B. as was due to him from A. when A. was capable of being a bankrupt, it would be too rigorous to admit B. to ſue out a commiſſion of bankruptcy for the old debt of 100*l.* But to this point he ſaid, he would not give an abſolute opinion, and none of the other judges contradicted it. Ld. Raym. 287.

It was ſaid by Holt, and not denied by the court, that if a man contracts debts while he is a dealer, and after leaves off his trade, and then commits an act of bankruptcy; there none of his creditors, becoming ſo ſince the leaving off his trade, can ſue out a commiſſion of bankruptcy; but if thoſe who were his creditors before his leaving off his trade ſue out ſuch a commiſſion, the other creditors may come in and join. 12 Mod. 159. Lord Raym. 287.

Indorſee of notes of one who afterwards become bankrupt, purchaſed in at an under-value, as at ten ſhillings in the pound, petitioned afterwards for a commiſſion againſt the drawer. And Ld. Ch. J. Macclesfield held that he was plainly a creditor, juſt as if the drawees had paid the bankrupt an under-rate for them; and his lordſhip held, that though they had been given without any conſideration, yet they are now his debts, and the legal right veſted in the indorſee; but otherwiſe in caſe of a bond aſſigned; for as much as ſuch aſſignee, not being the legal creditor, could not have taken out ſuch a commiſſion; and had the indorſement been made after the bankruptcy, it might be a queſtion, whether he would be intitled to a commiſſion, as not being a creditor for 100*l.* or capable of taking out a commiſſion, at the time of the party's becoming bankrupt. P. Will. Rep. 782.

In trover, by the aſſignees, under a commiſſion againſt Albertus Barnaby, it appeared he was a bankrupt in January 1724, and the debt of the petitioning creditor was a note, dated in September 1725, and the chief juſtice was of opinion, it was a void commiſſion; the acts of a man after an act of bankruptcy being void; ſo the plaintiffs were nonſuited. 2 Stra. 744.

The defendant W. being indebted to the plaintiff in 1730, afterwards committed an act of bankruptcy; upon which the plaintiff, being the petitioning creditor, took out a commiſſion of bankruptcy againſt the defendant, in order to over-reach, and make void as many of his conveyances and ſettlements, &c. as poſſible; the creditors, on a bill filed, endeavoured to prove him a bankrupt as far backward as they could; and did actually prove to the ſatisfaction of the court, that he committed an act of bankruptcy in the year 1726; then it became a queſtion, whether the commiſſion of bankruptcy, and all that was done under it, was not wrong, in regard that the debt of the petitioning creditor, on which it was grounded, was contracted ſubſequent in time to the firſt act of bankruptcy? After this matter had been argued, and time taken to conſider of it, the Lord Chancellor diſmiſſed the plaintiff's bill without prejudice; which decree was reverſed in the houſe of lords, by the opinion of all the judges. Talb. Ca. 243, 244.

But where A. had 100*l.* owing on ſimple contract, before an act of bankruptcy, and one is afterwards ſecretly committed, and then a bond taken; it ſhall not ſo far extinguiſh the ſimple contract, as to deprive the creditor of petitioning for a commiſſion. 2 Stran. 1042.

An action was brought by the plaintiff as aſſignee of a commiſſion of bankrupts, and the plaintiff's counſel were going to prove the bankruptcy, and the debt due by the defendant to the bankrupt; but Mr. P. the defendant's counſel objected to the commiſſion itſelf, for that the bankrupt was bound to one Mrs. Nevil in a bond of 100*l.* Mrs. Nevil died, and made Mrs. B. her executrix, who afterwards married one Hammerton; and on the bankrupt's failing, he alone petitioned, and ſued out the commiſſion of bankruptcy; whereas he inſiſted, that as this debt was due to the wife of Hammerton as executrix, ſhe claimed it in auter droit, and ought to have joined with her huſband in ſuing out the commiſſion.

Mr. C. contra inſiſted, that the huſband alone might have demanded the debt, and having received it, might have converted it to his own uſe, or, if he pleaſed, might might have releaſed it, and ſuch releaſe would well have diſcharged the debt without his wife's joining in it; and therefore he concluded he might properly petition without his wife.

C. J. The petition ought to have been by the huſband and wife, for the debt due to her in auter droit; and though it is true, that the wife alone could not bring an action for this debt without joining the huſband, yet the huſband's joining is only for conformity; and, on the other hand, the huſband could not have brought an action without joining his wife. Suppoſe the wife had died, the huſband would not by taking adminiſtration to her have been intitled to this debt, but there muſt have been adminiſtration de bonis non of the firſt teſtator. If the huſband had not been the petitioning creditor, but had wanted to have proved his debt under the commiſſion, he and his wife muſt have claimed it before the commiſſioners, and therefore he held it clearly, that the commiſſion was not properly ſued out, and thereupon the plaintiff was nonſuited. Gen. Syſ. vol. 1. p. 50. cites MS. Rep. 8 Geo. 2. 1735. B. R. 7 Vin. Abr. 76. pl. 10. S. P.

An order was made, that a ſolicitor's bill ſhould be taxed by a maſter, and that all proceedings at law ſhould in the mean time be ſtayed, and whilſt the bail was under taxation, the ſolicitor ſues out a commiſſion of bankruptcy againſt his client; and on a petition to ſuperſede the commiſſion, this was adjudged to be no contempt, nor a ſufficient cauſe to ſuperſede the commiſſion, becauſe the order of reference extended only to bringing an action, and to common and ordinary proceedings. Moſ. 27.

The charges of taking out a commiſſion of bankruptcy ſhall be paid by the aſſignees. See ſtat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. ſect. 25. under the firſt diviſion of this title.

The mother of one Hicks employed the plaintiff, who was an attorney, to take out a commiſſion of bankruptcy againſt her ſon, ſhe being a principal creditor to him; and this was done out of affection to her ſon, in order to ſet him up a clear man in the world again; but at the ſame time that ſhe gave theſe inſtructions to the plaintiff, ſhe told him he muſt not expect to be paid by her, but muſt be ſatisfied out of the effects of the bankrupt: the attorney accordingly laid out ſeveral ſums of money in procuring this commiſſion, before aſſignees could be appointed; and when they were nominated, and had agreed to take upon them this truſt, by ſetting their hand, as parties to the deed, he was at other charges too, upon which he now brought his action againſt the defendants as aſſignees, to be ſatisfied for the whole which he had laid out; it appearing now upon the face of the evidence as it ſtood at preſent, that the aſſignees had not received effects enough of the bankrupt in the whole, to anſwer ſo much as the bill of the attorney, nor were likely to do ſo; a doubt aroſe, whether the attorney ſhould come upon the aſſignees at all, or, at moſt, for any more than the attorney had laid out after they had accepted the aſſignment, for they could not be ſuppoſed to agree to any more than they themſelves were privy to; but the counſel obſerved, that as the effects of the bankrupt are not likely to anſwer this demand, and as the taking out the commiſſion by the mother was not in an adverſary way to get in her debt, but out of friendſhip and affection to her ſon, to the prejudice perhaps of many of the creditors; ſhe ought to be anſwerable to the attorney. The fact appearing thus, the chief juſtice ſaid, It was true indeed, the attorney ought to be ſatisfied firſt for procuring the commiſſion; but yet he thought too, that it would be ſomewhat of a hard caſe, that the aſſignees ſhould be any farther liable than the effects amounted to; but then it coming out upon a farther examination, that the effects were appraiſed to more than the bill came to, though the aſſignees have not got them into their actual poſſeſſion; the court ſaid, The plaintiff's demand was clearly good againſt them, becauſe they had a right to get them wherever they can find them. But yet there was another point, upon which the chief juſtice ſaid, he thought the plaintiff muſt be nonſuited, becauſe the ſtatute 3 Jac. 1. cap. 7. requires, that every attorney ſhall deliver a bill ſigned with his own hand before he commences a ſuit for fees; now in the preſent caſe it appeareth, that the warrant of arreſt was made out before a tender of a bill, for the plaintiff firſt ſhewed the defendants the bill, and demanded the money, and upon refuſal, immediately arreſted them. Now the chief juſtice ſaid, he was of opinion the ſuit began by taking out the firſt proceſs, which muſt be intended to be before the warrant made out, and therefore the tender after was void; and this opinion the chief juſtice was of, notwithſtanding two objections made by the counſel; one, that a taking out a commiſſion was not a ſuit within the act; the other, that a court ought not to go out of the record for the commencement of the ſuit, and, upon the face of the record, the ſuit appears to be of Michaelmas term laſt, and the tender of the bill was the 17th of October; ſo upon the whole of this matter, the parties agreed the plaintiff ſhould have the whole bill paid him, without coſts. *Barnard. Bills of fees and diſburſements, demanded by any ſolicitor, employed under a commiſſion of bankrupts, ſhall be ſettled by a Maſter in Chancery. See ſtat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. ſect. 40.

4. Of joint or ſeparate commiſſions in reſpect of partners bankrupts.

A joint commiſſion was taken out againſt two joint traders, bankrupts. The commiſſioners aſſign the real and perſonal eſtate of them, or either of them; afterwards the ſeparate creditors take out ſeparate commiſſions againſt them, and the ſeparate commiſſioners aſſign the ſeparate effects and eſtate to other aſſignees. Upon petition by the ſeparate aſſignees for liberty to ſue at law for the ſeparate eſtate, Lord Ch. King thought the firſt aſſignment paſſed as well the ſeparate as joint eſtate, and that the ſecond aſſignees could do nothing at law; and ſo denied the petition, but would not hinder their joining in a bill for an account in equity. 2 Williams's Rep. 500. Mich. 1728.

A petition came on before the Lord Chancellor on the behalf of D. There was a ſeparate commiſſion taken out againſt one P. only; and a petition by a creditor on the partnerſhip eſtate. The order pronounced was, that the partnerſhip eſtate ſhould be divided amongſt the partnerſhip creditors in the firſt place; and if there ſhould be any ſurplus of this eſtate due to the bankrupt, that the ſurplus, together with his ſeparate eſtate, ſhould be divided amongſt his ſeparate creditors; that on the other hand, the ſeparate eſtate ſhould in the firſt place be divided amongſt the ſeparate creditors; and if there ſhould be any ſurplus from that, that that ſurplus, together with the partnerſhip eſtate, ſhould be divided among the partnerſhip creditors. Barnard. Rep. in B. R. 470.

If A. and B. joint traders become bankrupts, and there are joint and ſeparate commiſſions taken out againſt them, and A. and B. before the bankruptcy become *jointly and ſeverally bound to J. But if two joint traders owe a partnerſhip debt, and one of the partners gives a bond as a collateral ſecurity for payment of this debt; here the joint debt may be ſued for by the partnerſhip creditor, who may likewiſe ſue the bond given by one of the traders. 3 Williams's Rep. 408.

5. Of the appointment, qualification, fees, and duty of the commiſſioners; and of their power and authority over the bankrupt's eſtate.

The commiſſioners of bankrupts are verbally appointed by the Lord Chancellor, Lord Keeper, or commiſſioners of the great ſeal. They take no oath of office, and are removable at pleaſure. Upon the death, ſurrender, or removal of any of them, another by his Lordſhip's order is entered on the liſt by his ſecretary. Gen. Syſt. B. vol. 1. p. 57.

The commiſſion and power of the commiſſioners is by force of the ſeveral acts of parliament relating to bankrupts, which ought to be purſued, or elſe they are ſubject to the action of the party grieved, for he hath no other remedy. 4 Inſt. 277. But if in their proceedings they commit ſome miſtake, which appears to be only an error of

On a petition to the Lord Chancellor in February 1739, in the caſe of Edward Holiday a bankrupt, againſt ſeveral of the commiſſioners, for taking more than 20*s.* apiece at each meeting, and likewiſe ordering great ſums of money to be charged for their eating and drinking, his Lordſhip declared them uncapable, by virtue of the above act, to be any longer as commiſſioners in the execution of the ſaid commiſſion, and that no further proceedings ought to be had thereupon; and alſo that all further proceedings on the preſent commiſſion be abſolutely ſtayed; and that the petitioners be at liberty to apply to his Lordſhip by petition, to have the commiſſion renewed, and directed to ſuch new commiſſioners to be named therein as he ſhall think fit, and for that purpoſe did order, that the ſolicitor for the petitioners, and the ſolicitor for the aſſignees, do reſpectively leave with his ſecretary to the commiſſioners of bankruptcy, the names of five perſons whom they ſhall propoſe for his Lordſhip's conſideration, in order that proper perſons may be appointed commiſſioners in ſuch renewed commiſſion; and did alſo further order, that the preſent aſſignees under the ſaid commiſſion, be removed from being aſſignees of the ſaid bankrupt's eſtate and effects; and that the ſaid bankrupt's creditors do proceed to a choice of new aſſignees in their room; and for that purpoſe, after the ſaid commiſſion ſhall be renewed, an advertiſement is to be publiſhed in the London Gazette, appointing a meeting of the creditors of the ſaid bankrupt for choice of ſuch new aſſignees; and after ſuch choice ſhall be made, his Lordſhip did order, that the ſurviving commiſſioners in the preſent commiſſion, or any three of them, and the ſaid aſſignees ſo hereby removed, do join with the major part of the commiſſioners to be named in the renewed commiſſion, in making an aſſignment of the ſaid bankrupt's eſtate and effects to the new aſſignees ſo to be choſen; and did further order, that forthwith, after the execution of ſuch aſſignment, the ſaid old aſſignees do reſpectively deliver over to the new aſſignees all the effects of the ſaid bankrupt, remaining in ſpecie, in the hands, cuſtody, or power of them, or any of them, upon oath; and alſo all books, papers, and writings in their reſpective hands, cuſtody, or power, relating to the ſaid bankrupt's eſtate or effects, upon oath; and that the ſaid old aſſignees do deliver poſſeſſion of the ſaid bankrupt's real eſtate to the new aſſignees; and did further order, that the ſaid old aſſignees petitioned againſt (naming them) do out of their own pockets pay to Mr. Skerry, ſolicitor for the petitioners in this matter, the coſt of the petitioners preſent application; and the coſts of renewing the ſaid commiſſion, to be taxed by Mr. Borroughs, one of the Maſters in Chancery, in caſe the parties ſhall differ about the ſame. 7 Vin. 77. pl. 3.

The commiſſioners are to appoint three meetings within 42 days; but the Lord Chancellor may enlarge the time. See ſtat. 5. Geo. 2. c. 30. ſect. 2, 3. under the firſt diviſion of this title.

They may break open houſes. Stat. 21 Jac. 1. c. 19. ſect. 8.

Commiſſioners of bankrupts iſſued their warrant to ſeize goods of a bankrupt on board 12 ſhips in Topſham bay; the goods were conſigned to perſons in Holland, who had not paid the bankrupt for them; the maſters refuſed to deliver the goods, notwithſtanding the warrant; and this occaſioned the commiſſioners themſelves to demand the goods in perſon, which were ſtill refuſed: the court, on motion for an order upon the maſters for their contempt, ordered them to deliver the goods upon payment of the freight money, and they to be indemnified by the creditors againſt the bill of lading, which was ſent to the conſignees. 2 *Eq. A. was declared a bankrupt, and the commiſſioners being informed, that he was imbeziling and concealing his effects, and fraudulently conveying away and alienating his eſtate, thought it neceſſary to have him before them before the firſt day appointed in the Gazette for his examination; and accordingly, at the requeſt of the petitioning creditor, they ſummoned him perſonally to attend them, to be examined touching the ſaid complaint, and upon his refuſing to comply with the ſummons, they got a judge's warrant, and the bankrupt, by virtue thereof, was committed to Newgate; and upon his being brought before the commiſſioners purſuant to their warrant, directed to the keeper of Newgate, and refuſing to be examined, they re-committed him to Newgate, there to remain without bail or mainprize, according to the intent of the ſtatutes in that caſe made and provided; and upon the bankrupt's petition, the commiſſioners right of committing the bankrupt was (among other things) conteſted; but upon great debate of this matter, Lord Chancellor Hardwicke was clearly of opinion, that the commitment by the commiſſioners was legal; and therefore his Lordſhip ordered, that ſuch part of A.'s petition as prayed to be diſcharged out of priſon, ſhould be diſmiſſed. 2 Eq. Abr. 99. pl. 8.

Commiſſioners may examine bankrupt's wife touching his eſtate. Stat. 21. Jac. 1. c. 19. ſect. 6.

But ſhe cannot be examined againſt her huſband touching his bankruptcy, or whether he had committed any act of bankruptcy, or as to how and when he became a bankrupt; and if they commit her, and though the warrant of commitment mentioned to be, as well for refuſing to diſcover the goods, &c. of the bankrupt, as the time and manner of his bankruptcy, yet the commitment was held illegal, and the wife ordered to be diſcharged. 1 Will. Rep. 610, 611.

A. was ſummoned before commiſſioners of bankrupts, and the queſtions demanded of him were: firſt, to give an account of all matters which he knew concerning the bankrupt's eſtate: ſecondly, when and in what manner did he aid and abet the bankrupt in carrying away his effects, or imbeziling or concealing the ſame; to which he refuſed to anſwer; becauſe the firſt was too general, and the ſecond tended to accuſe himſelf, and bring him within 13 Eliz. cap. 7. which gave a penalty of double the value of the goods againſt him who conceals them, for which refuſal the commiſſioners committed him; and their warrant of commitment concluded, that he ſhould be committed until he conform to the authority of the commiſſioners. On an an habeas corpus, brought by A. in K. B. the court inclined, that a witneſs was not to pay univerſal obedience to all queſtions aſked him by the commiſſioners, nor was he to anſwer to any thing which tended to accuſe himſelf; but for the concluſion of the warrant of commitment, they held clearly that he ſhould be diſcharged; for the act directs, that he ſhall remain without bail, until he ſubmit to the commiſſioners to be examined, which being a particular authority, and in reſtraint of liberty, ought to be conſtrued ſtrictly, and the very words of the ſtatute purſued. 5 Mod. 308. Salk. 348. Comb. 390. Ld. Raym. 99, 100.

The defendant was committed to priſon by warrant of the commiſſioners of bankrupts, viz. "Whereas we, &c. have found and adjudged, that S. N. did become bankrupt, &c. And whereas we have cauſed the ſaid N. to be brought before us, to the end we might examine him touching the diſcloſure and diſcovering his eſtate and effects; and it appearing to us on ſuch his examination, that the ſaid S. N. hath remitted and conveyed great ſums of money and effects unto parts beyond the ſeas, with intent to defraud his creditors; and the ſaid S. N. upon his examination before us, &c. hath notoriouſly prevaricated; we do therefore will, require, and authorize you, &c. to take into your cuſtody the body of the ſaid S. N. and him ſafely to convey to his Majeſty's priſon of the Fleet, and there to deliver him to the warden of the ſaid priſon, who is hereby authorized to receive the ſaid S. N. into his cuſtody, and him ſafely to keep without bail or mainprize, until he ſhall make a full and true diſcovery of his eſtate and effects, &c. or he be otherwiſe delivered by due courſe of law."

The defendant brought an habeas corpus, and the commitment and return to the writ being read, he moved to be diſcharged out of cuſtody, and took exceptions to the warrant; and this authority given to the commiſſioners to commit to priſon being a ſpecial authority, and a limited juriſdiction created by the ſtatute 1 Jac. c. 15. ſect. 8. they ought, in every inſtance where they commit to priſon, to ſhew they have acted within their juriſdiction, for this is not like a commitment founded upon a general authority; the defendant has not refuſed to be examined, nor does it appear he has prevaricated touching his examination; the word prevaricate is a term of a looſe and uncertain ſignification, and quite foreign to the ſtatute; neither does it appear he has prevaricated about the matter of his examination touching his effects; and the prevarication has no reſpect to the eloyning of his goods. The ſtatute enacts, that upon a commitment he ſhall be detained till he has better conformed himſelf; but this commitment is on quite different terms; viz. till he has made a full diſcovery of his effects, &c. the commiſſioners ought to keep themſelves to the form preſcribed by the ſtatute, as it is reſolved in Yoxley's caſe, Salk. 351. who was committed by the Earl of Nottingham, till he ſhould be delivered by due courſe of law, for refuſing to be examined, and anſwer whether jeſuit, or not, according to 35 Eliz. c. 2. which impowers the juſtices to examine and commit him, if he refuſe to anſwer ſuch queſtions. So Bracey's caſe above.

Mr. Reeve ſaid, that according to his notes of that caſe, Bracey was committed till he conform or otherwiſe be diſcharged by due courſe of law; which laſt words are omitted in the printed caſe.

Sir John Strange on the ſame ſide: the commiſſioners have ſtated in the commitment, that by his examination they find he has concealed his effects; but upon the ſtatute of the 1 Jac. they ought to have exhibited interrogatories in writing to the defendant, and examined him upon thoſe interrogatories; but no ſtep of that kind has been taken by the commiſſioners in this caſe, which is wrong in them; ſo that to conſtitute the offence, interrogatories ought to have been ſhewn him, and before that is done he is guilty of no crime, and therefore his commitment is illegal; and if he had miſbehaved himſelf, then he might have been ſet in the pillory, by the ſtatute 21 Jac. cap. 19. Eveay commitment of this, and all other of the ſame nature, ought to be very certain, and not grounded on ſlight expreſſions; and the continuance of the commitment cannot be juſtified, as may be evinced from the caſes in Salk. and ought to be ſtrictly taken, as depriving the ſubject of his liberty; in the caſe of the King againſt Tracey, Hill. 1. Will. 3. articles by way of interrogatories, ſhall be in writing.

Mr. Juſtice Page cited a caſe of a bankrupt in the city of Briſtol, committed by the commiſſioners, and there held, that the articles charged againſt the bankrupt in the interrogatories ought to be in writing; and if the bankrupt ſhould deſire time to anſwer the interrogatories, the commiſſioners ought to give him a copy of them.

Mr. Reeve againſt the defendant: The commiſſioners need not put the interrogatories in writing, much leſs inſert them in the warrant of commitment; but the court ſhould intend that he was examined in that manner, eſpecially it appearing by the warrant, that he was ſworn and examined. The ſubject matter of his examination is prevaricating to diſcover his effects, and that appears by this commitment. The ſtatute ſays, if he refuſes to be examined, or does not fully anſwer on interrogatories, then he is to be committed. Then it may be a queſtion, whether a man's being charged with prevarication does not fall within the deſcription of the act?

The court held the form of the commitment ſhould have been till he ſubmitted to be examined; every prevarication does not ſubject a man to a commitment, nor is it ſaid he prevaricated upon ſuch his examination, relating to the diſcovery of his effects, but only that he prevaricated upon his examination, which might be on ſome other matter; the commiſſioners ought to purſue their authority ſtrictly, nor can they commit in any other manner than that preſcribed by the ſtatute.

And by the Chief Juſtice: A man may prevaricate at his firſt examination for half an hour, yet in the concluſion he may make a full and ample anſwer, and therefore it is not at all proper to ſend a man to priſon for ſuch a piece of conduct; and nothing is more common than ſuch behaviour on trials at niſi prius.

The court were unanimouſly of opinion, that the commitment was void in point of form principally, as not appearing he was examined on interrogatories in writing, and the defendant was diſcharged from the commitment, but remanded on ſome civil actions depending againſt him. Seſſ. Ca. 264. 2 Stra. 880. Nathan's caſe.

N. B. In anſwer to Yoxley's and Bethel's caſe in Salk. 348, 351. this is ſuch an offence as is not bailable.

J. brings his habeas corpus; the return was, that he was committed by J. S. J. N. J. T. (to whom and others a commiſſion of bankruptcy was awarded) for refuſing to anſwer a queſtion put to him concerning the bankrupt's eſtate, &c. and ſo commiſſus fuit in cuſtodia, by warrant to the officer, virtute commiſſionis præd', et hæc eſt cauſa captionis ſeu detentionis, &c. Three exceptions were taken to the return. Firſt, For that there did not appear a ſufficient authority, for the commiſſion is ſaid to be granted to them and others, and then they could not act without the reſt, for the return does not expreſs any quorum, &c. in the commiſſion. Secondly, Inſtead of commiſſus in cuſtodia, it ought to be captus, for that is the uſual form; for this is as if the commitment were by the officer that makes the return. Thirdly, Hæc eſt cauſa captionis ſeu detentionis is uncertain; for it ought to be detentionis. And upon the firſt and laſt exception the priſoner was diſcharged by the court; but told him, that he muſt anſwer directly to ſuch queſtions as were put to him, in order to the diſcovery of the bankrupt's eſtate, or elſe he was liable to be committed. And becauſe it did not appear, that thoſe that committed him were a majority or a quorum, Rainſford and Jones held it ill, and diſcharged him, (the other juſtices being abſent); he did not refuſe to ſwear, but had ſworn, that he had none of the bankrupt's eſtate in his hands, but would not anſwer whether any of the bankrupt's eſtate came to his hands before the commiſſion ſued out, &c. having received his own debt before; nor per cur' is he compellable to ſwear ſo upon 1 Jac. cap. 15. ſect. 10. Vent. 323, 324. 3 Keb. 837. pl. 74.

H. was brought into K. B. upon an habeas corpus, and the return was, that ſhe was committed by commiſſioners of bankrupts for refuſing to be examined by them, and the concluſion of the warrant of commitment was, that ſhe ſhould remain in cuſtody until ſhe ſhould be otherwiſe diſcharged by due courſe of law; and by reaſon of this con-concluſion the court held the commitment to be ill, and diſcharged the defendant, becauſe the power given by 1 Jac. 1. c. 15. is to commit the party until he ſubmit himſelf to the commiſſioners, and ſhall be by them examined, and there is no mention made of being diſcharged by due courſe of law, and for this exception Bracey (committed on ſuch account) was diſcharged. 2 Ld. Raym. 851. Hollingſhead's caſe.

E. was found to be a bankrupt by 13 Eliz. c. 7. and was committed to the Fleet; the warrant to the warden of the Fleet was, to retain and keep in priſon, to anſwer and to ſatisfy all ſuch matters as ſhould be objected againſt him: and the queſtion now was, if the commiſſioners may licenſe him to go at large to treat about his debts. By the court: If the warrant had been, that the party ſhould have been in execution, then he could not be enlarged; but the court adviſed them to take ſecurity, leſt he ſhould withdraw himſelf; but if one had judgment againſt a bankrupt, and upon a habeas corpus brought he is committed in execution without a capias utlegat', then the commiſſioners cannot deal with him any more for to enlarge him. Noy 140. Edward's caſe.

It was agreed by the juſtices, that copyholds are within the intent and purvieu of all the ſtatutes concerning bankrupts, and may be ſold by the commiſſioners, ſome doubt whereof was made, becauſe they are named in one clauſe of 13 Eliz. and not in 1 Jac. cap. 15. or 21 Jac. c. 19. for the ſame being in the firſt ſtatute, and the other ſtatutes being made in further confirmation and approbation thereof, they ought to be expounded liberally, and ſhall be conſtrued accordingly, to make as ſtrong proviſion as they may againſt the bankrupt. *Cro. In treſpaſs, upon Not guilty pleaded; it was found, that the land was copyhold of inheritance, held of the manor of C. and that there was a cuſtom in that manor, that if a copyholder in fee died ſeiſed, living his wife, ſhe ſhould have the copyhold during her life and twelve years after; then they found the ſtatute 13 Eliz. and the 1 Jac. of bankrupts, and that upon a commiſſion of bankruptcy the huſband was adjudged a bankrupt, and that being ſeiſed in fee of the ſaid copyhold, the commiſſioners made a bargain and ſale thereof to the plaintiff, for the uſe of the creditors, &c. they find that the widow, at the court held, &c. was admitted tenant ſecundum conſuetudinem manerii, before the plaintiff was admitted; it was held by Berkley and Croke, juſtices, that the bargain and ſale binds the copyholder, and bars his eſtate, and that he is no longer a copyholder after the bargain and ſale inrolled; and that when the bargainee is admitted by the lord, the eſtate ſhall veſt in the bargainee, and the admittance ſhall have relation to the bargain and ſale, and deveſt the eſtate, which the feme claimed by the cuſtom; and judgment accordingly. Cro. Car. 568. Jo. 451. See 2 Vern. 194, 195.

In a ſpecial verdict in ejectment, the caſe was, the cuſtom of a manor was that a copyholder might ſurrender for three lives ſucceſſivè and that an heriot was due on the death of every tenant; a copyholder ſurrendered to W. R. for his own life, and for the lives of A. B. and C. D. and the queſtion was, whether this was warranted by the cuſtom; and adjudged that it was, for there could be no occupancy; but Powell, juſtice, doubted becauſe of the ſtatute of bankrupts; ſed per Holt, Ch. J. That ſtatute makes no difference, for if the copyholder becomes bankrupt, and his eſtate is aſſigned by the commiſſioners, the aſſignee would have it determinable upon the life of the copyholder bankrupt, and that the heriot would be then due, but not upon the death of the aſſignee, becauſe it was ſo originally, and cannot be altered by the act of the copyholder himſelf. 3 Salk. 181.

If the aſſignee dies during the life of the copyholder bankrupt, there will be a caſe out of the cuſtom by the tranſmutation of the grant by the act of parliament, and yet the lord ſhall have his heriot; for it never was the intent of the ſtatute to put the aſſignee in a better condition than his principal, whoſe eſtate he has, would have been in, nor to work an alteration of tenement to the prejudice of the lord; this is ſuppoſing the copyholder ſurviving ving ſhould not have it back again, and if he ſhall have it again upon the death of the aſſignee, during his life, then the lord by original cuſtom ought to have an heriot, and a ſubſequent act ſhall not defeat him of it; and if the copyholder had died, living the aſſignee, and thereby his intereſt determined, as ſome thought it would; quære, who ſhall pay the heriot? But upon this point they ſeemed cautious of delivering any opinion, but reſerved themſelves till that matter would come to be a queſtion, for they ſaid it was worth conſideration. 6 Mod. 68.

Though a ſurrender of a copyhold be void in law for want of a preſentment, and that might be the laches of the mortgagee in not procuring it, yet the ſurrender was a lien and bound the land in equity, and the ſurrenderor, or if he became bankrupt, the aſſignee, who ought not to be in a better caſe than the bankrupt, is plainly bound in equity by this defective conveyance; (et come moy ſemble, ſays the reporter, he became a truſtee for the purchaſer.) 2 Salk. 449. 2 Vern. 564.

A. purchaſed a copyhold to him and his ſon for their lives, remainder to his wife in fee, and about two years afterwards became a bankrupt, and his copyhold was ſold by the commiſſioners to the defendant; A. the bankrupt died (the wife died) B. his ſon entered and made a leaſe, &c. to the plaintiff, who brought ejectment; it was reſolved, that though a copyhold eſtate is liable to the ſtatutes, yet this copyhold is not, becauſe it was bought two years before the purchaſer was an innkeeper, ſo that he was not an offender when he bought the eſtate; and judgment was given for the plaintiff. March 34. Billing. 113.

The leſſor of the plaintiff was the perſon to whom the commiſſioners ſold the land for the benefit of the creditors; and adjudged for the defendant (the ſon) by all the juſtices, but Berkley contra; for they held that the purchaſe being before A. the father became a trader, and ſo long before he became a debtor, is not within the ſtatute; for the ſtatute intends ſuch perſons only as get their living by buying and ſelling, and by fraud had paſſed away their land to friends in truſt, and became indebted, and committed ſuch acts of bankruptcy; that for ſuch acts done by them after, it ſhould be within the commiſſioners power to ſell ſuch their lands. But here many years before, when he was a clear man, he procured this land to be ſettled upon his ſon (no fraud or purpoſe of being a bankrupt being found); it would therefore be a miſchievous caſe and full of inconveniencies if it ſhould be within the ſtatutes; for none might know with whom to deal by way of marriage or otherwiſe, when he is not a tradeſman, and ſettles land upon his wife and children bona fide, and without cauſe of being ſuſpected to be a bankrupt, and afterwards becomes a tradeſman and then a bankrupt, if this act ſhould overthrow a conveyance duly ſettled. Jones ſtates it, that the ejectment was brought by the ſon, and that judgment was given by all for the plaintiff, præter Barkley, who held for the defendant in omnibus. Same caſe.

Lord and tenant are, the tenant makes a feoffment to deceive the ward of the lordſhip, and then becomes a bankrupt; theſe lands ſhall be ſold by the commiſſioners, for although the conveyance was only fraudulent as againſt the lord, yet there was a truſt between the feoffor and feoffee. Stone 133.

Offices are likewiſe mentioned in 13 Eliz. c. 7. and made ſaleable by the commiſſioners; by which are intended offices of inheritance, &c. as the warden of the Fleet or a gaoler by inheritance, and not offices of truſt, &c. And by 5 & 6 Edw. 6. cap. 16. any offices which concern the adminiſtration of juſtice, or clerkſhip in any court of record, or which concerns the King's treaſure, revenue, cuſtoms, &c. cannot be bargained or ſold for money, but ſuch bargain and ſale is void, and both buyer and ſeller made incapable, &c. therefore doubtleſs ſuch offices cannot be aſſigned by the commiſſioners, in ſatisfaction of a debt of a bankrupt, nor are they comprehended within the ſaid ſtatute; there being other offices that may be ſold, and ſo the words of the ſtatute ſatisfied; and offices of truſt are indiviſibly annexed to the perſon. 9 Co. 48. a. Good. 87.

A rent-ſeck, whereof there is no ſeiſin, ſhall be ſold. Stone 125.

Commiſſioners may ſell a rent or a reverſion. Stone 128.

A tradeſman, in conſideration of marriage, made a conveyance of lands to himſelf and wife, and afterwards became a bankrupt; it was held per cur', That the wife was within the ſtatute 1 Jac. 1. c. 15. ſect. 5. and the providing viding for his wife and children to be a providing for himself. Style 288.

Quære, Whether the commiſſioners may not, by the equity of ſtatute 21 Jac. 1. c. 19. ſect. 13. appoint one to enter for a condition broken? As if a trader makes a feoffment, upon condition to be performed on the part of the feoffee, the feoffee breaks the condition, and before entry the feoffor becomes a bankrupt; it ſhould ſeem the commiſſioners may take advantage hereof, for the ſtatutes ſhall be liberally expounded for relief of the creditors; if not, yet it ſeems to be comprehended within theſe words of 13 Eliz. c. 7. whereby power is given to the commiſſioners, "to take order and direction with the bankrupt's lands, &c. for ſuch uſe, intereſt, right or title, as ſuch offender or offenders ſhall have in the ſame;" which word (title) ſeems to include an entry for a condition broken. Billing. 116. Good. 88. See Stone 12.

A merchant makes a feoffment in fee upon condition, upon payment of money to re-enter, he becomes a bankrupt, the commiſſioners may tender the money at the day, and ſell the land. Billing. 148, 149. Stone 125. Good. 89.

The commiſſioners may ſell an eſtate tail. See ſtat. 21 Jac. 1. c. 19. ſect. 12. under the firſt diviſion of this title.

Lands purchaſed after the bankruptcy, may be ſold by the commiſſioners. Stat. 13 Eliz. cap. 7. ſect. 11, 12.

If after the commiſſion awarded, &c. and diſtribution made of all the bankrupt's eſtate, towards the ſatisfaction of the creditors, every creditor having an equal part, lands, goods, &c. deſcend or come to the bankrupt; whether, in ſuch caſe, they ſhall be ſubject alſo to a new ſale or diſtribution; and it ſeems that they ſhall, for the comiſſioners power is not fully executed until the creditors be ſatisfied. Billing. 118.

The commiſſioners may proceed when the bankrupt by fraud makes himſelf accountant to the King. See ſtat. 21 Jac. 1. c. 19. ſect. 10. under the firſt diviſion of this title.

Two merchants became bound in a ſtatute 21 Jac. for a true debt, which being forfeited, the cogniſee ſued forth an extent the 30th of October 3 Car. and extended the goods the 31ſt of October following, and the third of November the cognizors became bankrupts, and upon the ſixth of November the defendant brought a liberate upon the extent, and the goods were delivered to him according to the appraiſement; on the eighth of November a commiſſion of bankruptcy was awarded againſt the cogniſors, and the 23d of November the commiſſioners ſold the goods to the plaintiff, who brought trover againſt the cogniſee, and the queſtion was, if this ſale was good; it was per tot. cur. reſolved, That as the goods were extended before the cogniſors became bankrupts, though delivered by the liberate afterwards, they could not be ſold by the commiſſioners, becauſe after the extent they were in cuſtodia legis, ſo as the cogniſors had no power to give, ſell, or diſpoſe of them; beſides, the extent was returned before they became bankrupts, and the goods were delivered to the cogniſee by the liberate before the commiſſion ſued out, and when the liberate is brought, it ſhall have relation to the extent, and they be quaſi but one extent. *Cro. Goods found in the poſſeſſion of the bankrupt, ſhall be liable to the bankrupt's debts. See ſtat. 21 Jac. 1. c. 19. ſect. 11. under the firſt diviſion of this title.

A. delivered diamonds to B. to ſell, and then B. became bankrupt, upon trover brought by A. againſt the aſſignees of the commiſſioners, it appearing upon the trial before Holt Ch. J. that the real property of them belonged to the plaintiff; the clauſe of 21 Jac. c. 19. ſect. 10, 11. being inſiſted upon by the defendant's counſel, and it ſeeming an hardſhip on the plaintiff, it was made a caſe in B. R. where it was adjudged upon argument, that the general words ought to be explained by the preamble; and that the jewels being originally the plaintiff's, and that the bankrupt, having no more than a bare authority to ſell them for the plaintiff's uſe, were not liable to the bankruptcy. 2 Will. Rep. 318.

A bill of ſale of leaſes and perſonal eſtates was made by A. to B. and C. in truſt for payment of A.'s debts; B. at firſt acted in the truſt, but afterwards C. took the whole into his poſſeſſion, and acted alone, and became a bankrupt; upon a bill by A. againſt C. and the aſſignees of the bankruptcy for an account, Ld. Ch. Cowper doubted by reaſon of 21 Jac. cap. 19. ſect. 10, 11. but afterwards held this caſe not within thoſe clauſes, in regard this aſſignment to B. and C. was with an honeſt intent, viz. for the payment of the debts of the aſſignor, and therefore decreed the aſſignees under the commiſſion againſt C. to account for all the eſtate of A. and that the ſame ſhould not be liable to C.'s bankruptcy. 1 Will. Rep. 314, 321.

It was argued, that if a factor becomes a bankrupt, the goods bought by him as factor ſhall not be ſubject to his debts. Lord Chancellor aſked, if there is any caſe of that? and ſaid, that if a factor continues a long poſſeſſion, by which they are taken as his own, and credit given to him on that account, it would alter the caſe; for if poſſeſſion and diſpoſition be given to a perſon that becomes a bankrupt, though no intent of fraud appear, yet if it gives a falſe credit, there is the ſame inconvenience as if fraud was intended; for if the bankrupt appear the viſible owner, ſo as to gain a falſe credit, there is the ſame inconvenience; and it matters not whether it was by fraud, or only by neglect, or out of a humour. 7 Vin. Abr. 88. pl. 5. in notes.

It was reſolved in this caſe, that if goods of A. are ſeized upon a fieri facias, and ſold to B. bona fide, upon valuable conſideration, though B. permits A. to have the goods in his poſſeſſion, upon condition that A. ſhall pay to B. the money as he ſhall raiſe it by the ſale of the goods, this will not make the execution fraudulent, and in ſuch caſe a ſubſequent act of bankruptcy by A. will not defeat the ſale; but though the original debt was juſt, yet if the execution was fraudulent, viz. upon any truſt, a ſubſequent act will defeat it. Ruled by Holt Ch. J. Ld. Raym. 725.

In an action upon the caſe, brought for words ſpoken by the defendant againſt the plaintiff, the plaintiff recovered of the defendant for damages and coſts, twelve pounds; and after the execution ſued, and the money levied by the ſheriff (before the return of the writ) the plaintiff becomes a bankrupt, and the ſaid twelve pounds are aſſigned by the commiſſioners to the creditors, and the money being brought into court, the plaintiff (now a bankrupt) moves for it: and the creditors to whom the ſame was aſſigned likewiſe moved for it; and by Jones and Hide juſtices, the aſſignment was good, becauſe it was the bankrupt's debt, and forfeitable by outlawry: but Whitlock and Crook juſtices contra, becauſe by the ſheriff's levying of the money before the party became a bankrupt, it was in cuſtodia legis, and the creditors cannot give a diſcharge, nor are the parties in court, and if the judgment ſhould be reverſed, not compellable to make reſtitution; and afterwards it was judged accordingly, and that the money be delivered to the plaintiff, he acknowledging ſatisfaction; alſo it was ſaid, that the money was not the plaintiff's until paid out of court. Cro. Car. 166, 167.

Suppoſe a bankrupt be indebted to one in 20 l. and to another 10 l. and hath a debt of 20 l. due to him by bond, whether may the commiſſioners aſſign the bond to the two creditors jointly? and it was held by the court, that it was to be divided and aſſigned according to the words of the act, viz. to every creditor a portion, part and part alike. Then another queſtion was offered, whether the aſſignees might join in ſuit? And by Warburton one of the juſtices, part being aſſigned to one, and part to another, the act of parliament ſo operates upon it, that they ſhall ſue ſeverally; for he ſaid, by the cuſtom of London part of a debt might be attached. Godb. 195.

If the ſheriff takes the goods of a bankrupt in execution, though it be before the commiſſion taken out, yet it ſeems that commiſſioners may ſell them if it be executed after the party became bankrupt. Freem. 397. Keb. 930. 2 Keb. 34.

On motion for money out of court brought in by the ſheriff on a vend. exponas, teſte before, but after a commiſſion of bankruptcy taken out, the court ſaid, that unleſs the goods were ſeized before the party became a bankrupt, though they were ſeized before the teſte of the commiſſion, yet the goods were bound by the bankruptcy. 3 Keb. 480.

In a ſpecial verdict in aſſumpſit, brought by an aſſignee of a commiſſion of bankrupts, the caſe was, T. obtained a judgment againſt W. for 400*l.* and on the 19th of June brought a fieri facias, which was delivered to the ſheriff the 30th of June in the morning, and at night W. left his houſe, and became a bankrupt on the firſt of October following; the ſheriff levied of the goods of W. to the value of 400*l.* and paid the ſame to T. and afterwards the commiſſioners aſſigned this money to the plaintiff, who brought this action againſt T. It was held by all the juſtices, that the aſſignment by the commiſſioners was good, for the new ſtatute makes no difference in this caſe, becauſe before that ſtatute was made, the goods were bound from the teſte of the writ; but now they are bound from the delivery of them to the ſheriff, that is, they are ſo bound that the bankrupt himſelf cannot diſpoſe of them, but the commiſſioners may by the expreſs words of the ſtatute 21 Jac. c. 19. (no execution thereof having been ſerved and executed) but then all the judges (except Levinz, who at laſt aſſented) held clearly, that the commiſſioners could not aſſign the money, for their power is only over the bankrupt's goods, but the money for which they were ſold was never the bankrupt's money, and ſo no action would lie for it. 3 Lev. 69, 191.

When a judgment is once executed, the goods are in cuſtodia legis, and ſhall not be taken away by any Exchequer proceſs, or aſſignment of commiſſioners of bankrupts. 3 Mod. 336. Comb. 121. Show. 146. 2 Vent. 169, 170.

Such things as the bankrupt himſelf diſpoſed of to the ſatisfaction of ſome of the creditors, after that he became a bankrupt, may be ſold, for the ſtatute of 13 Eliz. c. 7. is, that the commiſſioners muſt diſtribute to the creditors ſhare and ſhare alike, &c. and that every ſuch bargain, ſale, &c. ſhall be good and effectual againſt the offenders and all perſons, &c. and if the debtor, after he becomes a bankrupt, may prefer one creditor before another, it would be unreaſonable, and a great defect in the law, that, after he hath utterly diſcredited himſelf by becoming a bankrupt, the law ſhould intruſt him with the diſtribution of his goods. 2 Rep. 25, 26.

A debtor became a bankrupt, and, after a commiſſion awarded, he ſold part of his goods to one of his creditors in ſatisfaction of part of his debt, and afterwards the commiſſioners by indenture ſold thoſe goods jointly to the plaintiffs, who were the other creditors; it was reſolved, that the ſale by the ſaid commiſſioners was good; for the intent of the ſtatutes is to relieve the creditors equally in diſtribution of the bankrupt's eſtate, and that he himſelf cannot diſpoſe of his goods after the commiſſion awarded; and if a creditor refuſes to come into the commiſſion, and the goods are ſold to others, it is likewiſe good. Moſ. 594. 2 Rep. 23. See ſtat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. ſect. 24. under the firſt diviſion of this title.

A legacy was given to A. before he became a bankrupt, for which he had a decree, aſſignee ſhall have the benefit of the decree. 2 Vern. 432.

A legacy was left to a feme covert, and afterwards her huſband became a bankrupt, the commiſſioners aſſigned over the legacy, and then the bankrupt died; decreed, that the wife ſurviving ſhould have the legacy. Cha. Pre. 121.

A man had deviſed lands which were in mortgage to be ſold, and the ſurplus of the money to be paid to his daughter; the daughter married a man who ſoon after became a bankrupt, and the commiſſioners aſſigned this intereſt of the wife's; the huſband died, and the aſſignees brought this bill againſt the wife and truſtees to have the land ſold, and the ſurplus of the money paid to them; and the court would not aſſiſt in ſtripping the wife (who was wholly unprovided for) of this intereſt, but diſmiſſed the bill at the Rolls. Eq. Ca. Abr. 54.

And though it was objected, that the profits were forfeited by the act which was to veſt the ſeparate right in the wife, viz. the bankruptcy; and when two rights concur, fortior eſt diſpoſitio legis quam hominis; yet the court compared it to the caſe of a leaſe, where the leſſee is reſtrained from aſſigning without conſent of the leſſor, and the aſſignment has always been held to be void; the bill was diſmiſſed with coſts. 2 Stra. 947.

Bond was given to the father-in-law of the future huſband for 500*l.* payable at a day certain, but not to be put in ſuit but for ſecurity of the huſband, to be paid before other creditors.

Lord Chancellor: This is a fraudulent bond on the face of it, to diſappoint creditors. Select. Ca. in Ch. 46.

Feme before marriage veſts her eſtate in truſtees for her ſeparate maintenance; her debts will not be diſcharged by the bankruptcy, nor her eſtate out of the reach of the creditors, but ſuch ſettlement or conveyance quoad the creditors ſhall be deemed void and fraudulent; per Parker Ch. J. in delivering the opinion of the court. 10 Mod. 247. Will. Rep. 248.

M. a feme ſole entered into a bond, and married A. who afterwards became a bankrupt; it was reſolved by the court of K. B. that by the bankruptcy of the huſband, the bond-debt of the wife is diſcharged, and alſo, the debts due to the wife, though unrecovered, are within the act of 4 Ann. c. 17. to be aſſigned by the commiſſioners of the bankruptcy. Will. Rep. 249. 10 Mod. 160, 243.

A feme ſole legatee of 1000*l.* payable after the death of the teſtator's wife, and at her age of twenty years, if ſhe ſhould live ſo long, at about eighteen years of age; the aſſignees of the bankrupt's eſtate brought a bill claiming the 1000*l.* which was decreed by baron Price, in the abſence of Lord Ch. Cooper; but upon an appeal to Lord Chancellor, his Lordſhip declared, that the aſſignees were in no better condition than the bankrupt himſelf, and that, had he ſued for the legacy, the court would oblige him to make a proviſion for the wife and children, and that ſo muſt the aſſignees, if they come here for equity. But as to the intereſt of the 1000*l.* that having been commonly allowed to be received by the bankrupt, ſo ought the aſſignees to receive the ſame during his life. And if the bankrupt's wife ſhould die without iſſue, then the bankrupt would have been allowed to receive the whole money; and therefore, in ſuch caſe, the aſſignees ſhould be allowed to receive it alſo. Will. Rep. 382, 383, 384.

Feme ſole takes a mortgage for 800*l.* and marries B. a tradeſman, who becomes a bankrupt; the commiſſioners aſſign all his eſtate real and perſonal, B. dies, the wife claims the benefit of the mortgage, and brought her bill for that purpoſe, and to have the writings from the aſſignees; the Maſter of the Rolls delivered his opinion ſolemnly, firſt for the wife, and afterwards for the aſſignees; but ſaid, that if there had been any articles before the marriage, purporting, that this money ſhould continue in the wife as her proviſion, or ſhould be aſſigned in truſt for her, this would have been a ſpecifick lien upon the mortgage, and have preſerved it from the bankruptcy. And his Honour the Maſter of the Rolls held, that if the aſſignees had in this caſe brought their bill againſt the widow, equity would hardly have lent any aſſiſtance againſt her, becauſe they claiming under the huſband could be in no better plight than the huſband would have been, and had he ſued for the money, or prayed a foreclоſure, equity would (probably) not have compelled the payment to him, without his making ſome proviſion for his wife, or at leaſt, upon her application, the court might have prevented payment to him, unleſs he made ſome proviſion for her. Will. Rep. 459.

In an action of trover for certain South-Sea bonds, the queſtion fell out upon the trial, whether, if a bankrupt's wife employs another to buy bonds with the bankrupt's money, and he accordingly does ſo, and delivers them to the wife, the aſſignees under the commiſſion may come upon the buyer? Upon which queſtion the Lord Ch. J. whom the cauſe was tried before, ordered the poſtea to be ſtayed; and now the court ſeemed to be of an opinion, opinion, that the commiſſioners could not come upon the buyer, for they ſaid if they could it would be of dangerous conſequence, becauſe he only acts as an agent or ſervant to the other; however, it ſtood over. Barnard. Rep. 77, 118.

An eſtate was deviſed to be ſold, and the monies ariſing by ſuch ſale to be divided among ſuch of the children of A. as ſhould be living at A.'s death; B. one of A.'s children, became bankrupt, and the commiſſioners aſſigned over his eſtate, after which B. got his certificate allowed, and then A. died; decreed, that this ſhare of the money which on A.'s death belonged to B. ſhould be paid to the commiſſioners, becauſe not only the latter ſtatutes relating to bankrupts mention the word (poſſibility) but alſo becauſe 13 Eliz. cap. 7. ſect. 2. impowers the commiſſioners to aſſign all which the bankrupt might depart with; and here B. in the life-time of A. might have releaſed this contingent intereſt; beſides, the 21 Jac. c. 19. enacts, "that the ſtatutes relating to bankrupts ſhall be conſtrued in the moſt beneficial manner for creditors." Will. Rep. 385.

J. S. by will gives to his daughter A. then wife of one Beavis, his gold watch, jewels, china and houſhold goods, to be at her diſpoſal, and to do therewith as ſhe ſhall think fit; teſtator dies; Beavis becomes a bankrupt. This is a deviſe to the ſeparate uſe of the feme, and not aſſignable by the commiſſioners of the bankrupts, &c.

A caſe was cited before Lord Chancellor Cooper, viz. Deviſe to feme covert for her uſe and benefit; and held, that becauſe it was not for her ſeparate uſe, but only for her uſe and benefit, it was the huſband's; but the Maſter of the Rolls ſaid, he was much diſſatisfied with that determination, and here the intent appears to give it to the ſeparate uſe of the wife; and a married woman could not have, &c. to her own diſpoſal if in the power of the huſband, and the things were proper for her ſeparate uſe, and decreed for the wife. 7 Vin. Abr. 95. pl. 43.

Deviſe of 800*l.* to be inveſted in land for the benefit of the wife of J. S. for her life, and afterwards to her children, and the intereſt of the money to go in the mean time to ſuch perſon as would be intitled to receive the profits; J. S. the huſband becomes bankrupt; per cur. This not being a truſt created by the huſband, nor any thing carved out of his eſtate, but given by a relation of the wife's, and intended for her maintenance, it is not liable to the creditors of the huſband, and decreed the intereſt to be paid to the truſtee, to be laid out in land, and ſettled according to the will. 2 Vern. 96.

A. a trader, on marriage, gives bond to a truſtee to leave his wife worth 500*l.* or a third part of his perſonal eſtate, at her election; A. becomes a bankrupt; decreed, that the wife ſhould come in as a creditor on the 500*l.* and what ſhould be paid in reſpect thereof to be put out at intereſt, and received by the creditors during the life of the huſband; and if the wife ſurvived, then the money to be paid to her. 2 Vern. 662. 2 Will. Rep. 298.

But where a bond was given by the huſband for payment of a ſum of money to his wife, in caſe ſhe ſurvived him, and the huſband after became a bankrupt; Lord Ch. King held, that no part of the eſtate ſhould be deferred from being diſtributed within eighteen months, eſpecially here being neither debitum in præſenti, and perhaps might never be debitum in futuro, for ſhe might die in her huſband's life; beſides, after certificate allowed, ſhe might trade again, and become ſolvent, and able to pay the bond; but though the debt was contingent when the obligor became bankrupt, yet if the contingency happened before the diſtribution made, then ſuch contingent creditor ſhall come in for his debt. Ex parte Caſwell, ex parte Gazalet, ex parte Bateman. 2 Will. Rep. 497.

So if ſuch contingency happened before the ſecond dividend made, the creditor ſhould come in for his proportion thereof, though after the firſt dividend. By Lord Ch. King. 2 Will. Rep. 499.

Lands deviſed to his daughter, being a feme covert, for her ſeparate uſe, without appointing any truſtees, and it being expreſsly declared to be excluſive of the huſband, ſhall not be ſubject to the bankruptcy of the huſband, and decreed at the Rolls accordingly. 2 Will. Rep. 316, 319.

One not in debt, nor then a trader, makes a voluntary ſettlement on a child, and afterwards becomes a trader, and a bankrupt; this ſettlement is not liable to the bankruptcy. 3 Will. Rep. 298.

A. came to town, and hired herſelf a ſervant to do all manner of work; but it happened, that, after the ſpace of a year or two, her maſter and miſtreſs (the girl being of a lively and acute capacity) made propoſal to take her apprentice, which ſhe readily conſented to, and became bound, according to the cuſtom of the city of London, and in her ſaid apprenticeſhip, not only gained a full knowledge of her trade and dealing, but being induſtrious, got a ſmall ſum of money to trade withal, and ſuch a credit and reputation amongſt the merchants her maſter and miſtreſs dealt with, that ſhe was reſolved (being encouraged by them) to ſet up and carry on a trade for herſelf; but firſt of all marries one B. a cheeſemonger, who for ſome time carried on the trade ſeparate from her, and ſhe the trade of ſelling ſilk, alamodes, ſeparate from him; ſhe thrives, and gets money apace; he breaks or fails; whereupon it was agreed, that he ſhould be content to be maintained out of the profits of her trade like a gentleman, provided he would leave her to trade by herſelf, and not intermeddle with the ſame; this was mutually agreed upon; the ſaid A. for ſeveral years carried on the ſilk trade in her own name, and as a free trader bought and ſold the ſilks aforeſaid in her own name, till ſuch time as ſhe fell under a delirium or melancholy madneſs, whereupon B. began to inſpect into the management of the affairs, and to caſt up the accounts in the books, upon which he finds himſelf in money, ſtock, trade, and good debts, worth 8000*l.* at leaſt; he thereupon reſolves (having put his wife into a madhouſe) to leave off the trade, he not underſtanding it, to a brother-in-law, by marriage of his wife's ſiſter, which he accordingly did; and after having got a ſum for the goods of the houſe and trade, and got into his hands the monies, plate, and other things of value, beſides moſt part of the debts that were out, retires into the country, and there purchaſes 200*l. per annum* or thereabouts, letting his wife remain in a madhouſe, or ſome ſuch place, ſeveral years; at length, being informed that ſhe was pretty well recovered, by perſuaſion of his friends takes her home to his country ſeat, and uſed her ſo indifferently that ſhe comes up to London, and falls a trading again, and had again good buſineſs and good credit, till ſuch time as B. puts A. into the Gazette, and publickly forbids all perſons to give her any credit, notwithſtanding which ſhe had conſiderable dealings, and great credit given her, though a feme covert, as a free and ſeparate trader, till at length, through ſome loſſes and croſſes in trade, one D. a creditor, cauſes her to be arreſted for 400*l.* and notwithſtanding two or three habeas corpus's brought to remove the ſaid cauſe into the court of King's Bench, D. the plaintiff attends with his counſel the court of King's Bench thereon, and inſiſts on the cauſe being tried in the city, according to the cuſtom thereof, as a free and ſeparate trader; the court of King's Bench being pitifully inclined to help her if they could, orders the city records to be produced, which were accordingly produced; then the court told A. that they could not help her, the cauſe muſt be tried according to ancient cuſtom in the city, as in ſuch caſes are uſual, but would not admit the plaintiff to retard the trial; the plaintiff obtains judgment, and charges A. in execution, thereon A. brings her habeas corpus to turn herſelf over to the Fleet priſon, and there lies charged in execution at the ſuit of the ſaid D. for 400*l.*

Q. A. having many conſiderable debts abroad due to her on account of ſuch trading, if ſhe may not ſue for the recovery of them in her own name, to her own proper uſe, for and towards paying and ſatisfying her creditors their ſeveral juſt debts, though her huſband B. oppoſe it, and will not ſuffer her to make uſe of his name, having diſcharged ſeveral actions brought by A. on that account?

A. I am of opinion the wife, by a bill in Chancery againſt her huſband, may have relief againſt him, and he will be decreed to let his name be uſed to get in her debts by the cuſtom of London, contracted in her ſeparate trade.

Quære, If the creditors of the ſaid A. may not take out a ſtatute of bankruptcy againſt the ſaid A. ſo charged in execution as a free trader, though a feme covert, and by that means recover what debts are due to her and ſolvent?

A. I am of opinion ſuch commiſſion may be ſued out; but the other method propoſed I apprehend will be beſt, and they may be partakers with the wife againſt the huſband.

Q. Whether ſuch ſtatute, if ſo obtained, will not affect her huſband B.'s eſtate, ſhe having formerly by ſuch trade and dealings acquired the money that purchaſed the ſaid eſtate?

A. I apprehend it may.

Edward Northy, [Attorney General to Queen Anne.]

If I ſend goods to B. and before they are paid for B. dies inſolvent, I cannot have them again; but if I ſend goods to a factor to diſpoſe of to my uſe and he becomes a bankrupt, they are not liable to the debt of ſuch bankrupt. 3 Will. 185.

If an obligation be taken in the name of another to the uſe of a bankrupt, the commiſſioners may well aſſign that, unleſs the other party hath of his own money paid and ſatisfied debts due by the bankrupt, in conſideration of that alſo; creditors within 13 Eliz. c. 7. are intended for merchandizes, &c. and not creditors upon counterbonds; and the commiſſioners ſhall judge of that, for if they make an aſſignment to ſuch creditors, ſuch allegations afterwards come too late, for the ſtatute veſts the thing aſſigned in the party to whom, &c. Noy 142.

A leſſor and leſſee for years, the leſſor covenants with the leſſee and his aſſigns to renew, then the leſſee becomes bankrupt, and commiſſioners of bankrupts aſſign this covenant; the aſſignee brought this bill to have the defendant, the leſſor, renew to him; the caſe was referred to Wyndham J. and Baron Turner, and they certified the plaintiff ought not to be relieved, and ſo he was diſmiſſed. Ch. Ca. 17, 18.

A. mortgaged lands, and afterwards became a bankrupt, the title of the mortgagee ſhall not be impeached by the commiſſioners or aſſignees of the ſtatute of bankruptcy. Finch's Rep. 466, 467.

It has been ruled in Chancery, that the commiſſioners may aſſign an equity of redemption of a mortgage; but quære, for it ſeems to be againſt the ſtatute, which entitles them to the benefit of a condition that is performed, and not forfeited. Nelſ. Chan. Rep. 102.

A trader in London having money of J. S. (who reſided in Holland) in his hands, bought S. S. ſtock as factor for J. S. and took the ſtock in his own name, but entered it in his account book as bought for J. S. after which the trader became bankrupt; determined by the Lord Parker, that the truſt ſtock was not liable to the bankruptcy, and ſaid it would leſſen the credit of the nation to make ſuch a conſtruction. Ex parte Chien, 3 Will. 187. note.

Commiſſioners of bankrupt of one S. aſſign a bond of 80*l.* which was made to one W. who was former huſband to the wife of S. and to whom ſhe was executrix; and held per cur. that they could not aſſign any thing but what the bankrupt had in his own right. The power the huſband had of diſpoſing of it, does not make it his till he has diſpoſed of it. 11 Mod. 138.

A. was aſſignee of a commiſſion of bankruptcy iſſued out againſt one Boſwil, who had contracted with the defendant for goods to the value of 244*l.* but not having ready money to pay for them, offered to mortgage to him an eſtate he had in poſſeſſion, as a ſecurity for the money, and for that purpoſe left with defendant the title deeds to get the aſſignment drawn; defendant carried the deeds to an attorney to draw the aſſignment, who died without doing it; after that he carried them to a ſcrivener; but before the aſſignment was perfected, Boſwil became a bankrupt; A. now brought his bill to have the deeds delivered up for the ſelling of the eſtate to ſatisfy the creditors; defendant's counſel urged, that this was more than a pledge of the deeds, for that an aſſignment was intended to be made; that if it had been made the court would not have taken it from him without payment of the money; but it's not being made was owing to the death of the attorney, which was an accident, and this court often relieves againſt accidents; and therefore the deeds ought not to be delivered up without payment of the money. The court decreed the deeds to be brought before the maſter, and to be delivered by ſchedule to the plaintiff. But, note, no reaſon was given for this decree. Cha. Prec. 375.

The father on the ſon's marriage ſettles land on himſelf for life, remainder on his ſon for life, &c. and covenants, during his own life, to pay the ſon 15*l.* a year; the ſon becomes a bankrupt; the plaintiff, as aſſignee, brings a bill againſt the father, to have the benefit of this agreement, and to compel the payment of the annuity; but per cur. an aſſignee under a ſtatute is not intitled to have the performance of an agreement made with the bankrupt. 2 Vern. 194.

A. puts out 1000*l.* at intereſt to the Eaſt-India company, and takes bond for it in the name of J. S. his wife's relation, and afterwards A. is a bankrupt; J. S. is ſummoned before the commiſſioners; but before his examination tells the company, that the money was not his, but that they ſhould pay it to the perſon as ſhould bring the bond; accordingly A.'s wife brought the bond, and received the money; the court will not inforce J. S. to pay the money. Pre. Ch. 18.

A. was indebted to B. and A. and B. became bound for this money to M. L. in truſt for the bankrupt; a commiſſion iſſued, and this debt was aſſigned to a crediditor; M. L. died, and his creditors releaſed his debt; and adjudged that it lies, becauſe the intereſt of this debt was transferred to the creditor, by the ſtatute 21 Jac. c. 19. the bond being made to the uſe of the bankrupt, and therefore the releaſe afterwards was no bar; and ſo the bankrupt's being bound was not material, the bond being in truſt for him. Palm. 505.

C. poſſeſſed of a leaſe for years, contracted with the committee of the company for a new leaſe, and paid part of the fine, and by C.'s conſent a new leaſe was made to M. by the company, and to him executed, and C. was at the time of the treaty a bankrupt; the queſtion was, whether the commiſſioners could aſſign the leaſe to the prejudice of M. and Drake's caſe was cited; the Lord Keeper ordered, that the plea and demurrer be ouſted, and the benefit thereof ſaved till the hearing, and he doubted of the leaſe; there were other matters for the benefit of M. alſo in the plea. 2 Ch. Caſ. 196.

Two joint traders, one of them became bankrupt; per Holt Ch. J. The commiſſioners cannot meddle with the intereſt of the other, for it is not affected by the bankruptcy of his companion. 3 Salk. 61.

If there be ſeveral joint traders, payment to one of them is payment to all; ſo if they all, except him to whom the payment was made, were bankrupts, the payment is only unavoidable as to his proportion. At niſi prius. 12 Mod. 447.

And if there be four partners, whereof three are bankrupts, and their ſhares aſſigned, and a payment was made to him that was no bankrupt, it is a payment to all the aſſignees, for now they are all partners. 12 Mod. 447.

If a bankrupt be outlawed after he committed an act of bankruptcy, and upon the outlawry the King leaſes the profits of his lands, and grants his chattles, and after a commiſſion of bankruptcy is taken out, this will not defeat the intereſt which the creditors have by the bankruptcy in his eſtate. Salk. 108.

Sale of goods by a bankrupt, after an act of bankruptcy, is not merely void; the contract is good between the parties, but it may be avoided, or not avoided, by the commiſſioners, or aſſignees, at pleaſure, therefore they may either bring trover for the goods, as ſuppoſing the contract to be void, or may bring debt, or aſſumpſit, for the value, which affirms the contract. 3 Salk. 59.

A. living

A. living in a remote part of England from B. and having dealings with him, ſends him a quantity of goods; B. apprehenſive he ſhould ſoon be a bankrupt, and not thinking it reaſonable that theſe goods ſhould go to the payment of other creditors, delivers a quantity of goods, which were moſtly the very ſame that were ſent him, to C. for the uſe of A.; after that, but before A.'s acceptance of them, B. breaks; the queſtion was, whether the delivery of theſe goods to C. for the uſe of A. did not veſt the property of them in A. ſo abſolutely as to put them out of the diſpoſal of the commiſſioners of bankruptcy; and upon this appearing by evidence at the trial to be the caſe, it was ſtated by the direction of Parker Ch. J. who tried the cauſe, for the opinion of the court, who all delivered their opinion ſeriatim this term, that the property of the goods were ſo veſted in A. by the delivery of the goods to C. for his uſe, that they were not ſubject to the diſpoſal of the commiſſioners. 10 Mod. 432. Stra. 165.

Three commiſſioners of bankruptcy appoint a dividend to be made of the bankrupt's eſtate, a creditor under the commiſſion neglects to receive of the aſſignees his proportion of that dividend, the aſſignees afterwards break and run away with the dividend that was in their hands; the creditor ſhall not be allowed to come upon the bankrupt's eſtate for that money, but muſt take his remedy againſt the aſſignees as well as he can. Cited by Lord Chancellor Hardwick as a caſe that had been put; but his Lordſhip ſaid, that caſe wholly depends upon the deed of diſtribution made by the commiſſioners aſcertaining the dividend; for if no ſuch deed of diſtribution had been made, the creditor would have been allowed to have come upon the bankrupt's eſtate, and would not have been confined to have taken his remedy againſt the aſſignees. Barnard. Chan. Rep. 419, 420.

H. and other the plaintiffs are creditors of a bankrupt, but H. the plaintiff was the principal creditor, and they all complain againſt the defendants, who were aſſignees of the commiſſioners, for that they have recovered judgment for 331 l. of the bankrupt's eſtate in the ſaid H.'s hands, whereas the ſaid bankrupt was indebted to him in 700*l.* and that H. and ſome other of the creditors, are willing to take their proportion of the ſaid 331 l. whoſe debts are now in danger of being loſt, if the whole ſhould be received by the defendant K. and others, aſſignees, &c. who had obtained the ſaid judgment, and therefore they exhibited a bill for relief: the defendants demurred, for that there is no equity in the bill to change the law, by which the aſſignees are enabled to recover the bankrupt's eſtate; and there is no particular charge in the bill that makes the demands of the aſſignees unreaſonable; the court decreed, that H. ſhould prove his debt before the commiſſioners, and pay to the defendants their proportion of the 331 l. and coſts, and to be diſtributed to them reſpectively. Finch Rep. 264, 265.

A commiſſion of bankrupt was taken out againſt Watſon, the commiſſioners find him a bankrupt, aſſignees were choſen, and a dividend made; afterwards ſeveral other effects of the bankrupt came to their hands; the creditors petitioned that the aſſignees might account, and make a new dividend; and accordingly the commiſſioners took the account, and certified that Green, Hall, and Aires, were the aſſignees; that Green did not appear, and ſo no account was taken as to him, but only from the other two; that Green had received ſeveral ſums of money, and whether the other two aſſignees ſhould be charged with his receipts, they ſubmitted to the judgment of the court; and the aſſignees ſold a real eſtate of the bankrupt; that Aires received part of the purchaſe-money, and let Green have 67 l. of it, and they likewiſe ſubmit whether Aires ſhould be chargeable with this ſum? and it ſeems reaſonable, that all the aſſignees ſhould be anſwerable for the effects come to any of their hands, for all were truſted by the creditors, and the commiſſioners veſted the effects in all jointly, and it was upon their joint credit that they were intruſted by the creditors, and it was only for their own eaſe and convenience that they let one another receive the effects. As to the 67 l. it is plain, that Aires muſt be accountable for it; he admits in his own affidavit, that on his receiving 220 l. reſidue of the purchaſe-money, upon Green's deſire he let him have 67 l. to lend to ſome of the creditors; he admits then that he received the money, and therefore he is accountable tothe creditors for it, he having paid it over to another aſſignee, not for the proper purpoſe, but to lend over; and he truſted Green with this ſum, for he ſwears he lent it him upon his own credit, and becauſe he thought him a ſubſtantial perſon; and your Lordſhip adjudged in the caſe of Lane and Wroth, that if one executor pays over to another executor money of the teſtator he has received, this ſhall not diſcharge him of it; and in the caſe of Stanley and Darrington, the Maſter of the Rolls was of the ſame opinion, it coming before him in judgment on the Maſter's ſpecial report in 1727.

Where money is paid to one aſſignee, the other ſhall not be anſwerable; for ſince an executor or truſtee for payment of debts ſhall anſwer for no more than he himſelf received, neither ſhall an aſſignee; for executors or truſtees for payment of debts are forced upon the creditors, it is not in their power to change them; but the aſſignees are truſtees choſe by the creditors themſelves, who gave them an equal truſt, and can have them changed, and the aſſignees expreſsly covenant to anſwer only ſeverally. Nor is Aires to be charged with the 67 l. all the aſſignees ſell the eſtate, and Aires and Green came to the place appointed to receive the purchaſe-money; but Aires is there firſt, and receives the money, and whilſt he is counting it over, Green comes in and deſires to have 67 l. of it; if Green had received this 67 l. and Aires only the reſt, without doubt he ſhould not anſwer for it; and as Green came before the meeting was over, it ought to be conſidered, as if it had been originally received by Green, and as if Aires had never received it.

Lord Chancellor King: It would be of very ill conſequence, if a ſolvent aſſignee might diſcharge himſelf, by paying money over to an inſolvent one; he ought to have kept the money when he received it; and therefore Mr. Aires muſt account for the 67 l. but neither he or Mr. Hall are to be charged with what Mr. Green received. Moſ. 35.

W. a victualler, was greatly indebted to M. his brewer, and quitted that trade, and turned innkeeper, and borrowed money of N. his landlord, to buy goods to furniſh his houſe, and for ſecurity thereof made a bill of ſale to N. but kept the poſſeſſion of them; afterwards W. became further indebted to M. for drink delivered after his becoming innkeeper; but not able to go on with his trade, he agrees with N. to give him ſecurity by a new bill of ſale of the ſame and other goods; but before the execution, W. by contrivance with M. commits an act of bankruptcy, and N. not knowing of the trick, accepts a new bill of ſale; M. ſues out a commiſſion, and gets an aſſignment, and brought trover for theſe goods. Holt Ch. J. held, quod nullus dedixit, that if theſe goods of W. had been aſſigned to any other creditor, the keeping poſſeſſion of them had made the bill of ſale fraudulent as to the other creditors; but ſince the original agreement was as here, and ſo honeſtly and really made for ſecuring the defendant's money lent to W. for the ſaid purpoſe, the agreement was good and honeſt. Ld. Raym. 286.

A. being aſſignee under a commiſſion of bankruptcy, and dying indebted by bond, &c. the creditors of the bankrupt petitioned, that the adminiſtrator of the aſſignee might account before the commiſſioners, ſuggeſting that the adminiſtratrix had confeſſed, that ſhe believed her inteſtate, the aſſignee kept the bankrupt's money in a ſeparate bag, with a note in it, ſhewing it to be ſuch. But the adminiſtratrix denying this upon oath, and that ſhe did not believe the fact to be ſo, and likewiſe ſwearing that teſtator died indebted by ſpecialty ſeveral thouſand pounds beyond all his aſſets; whereupon Lord C. King ordered the petition of the new aſſignees to be diſmiſſed, and directed them to bring their bill. 2 Will. Rep. 546.

Aſſignees may ſue actions in their own names for the debts due to the bankrupt, for they are transferred by act of parliament, but yet it is not a debt upon record: but as in debt upon contract defendant might have waged his law againſt the bankrupt, ſo he may againſt the aſſignees. Cro. Jac. 105.

Debt againſt adminiſtrator, and declared, that the inteſtate was indebted to J. S. 120*l.* for wares ſold, and that J. S. became a bankrupt, and was ſo adjudged by the commiſſioners, and this debt was aſſigned to the plaintiff being a creditor; it was inſiſted, that by the aſſignment, this is now quaſi a debt on record, and the plaintiff enabled to this ſuit by act of parliament, and that ley gager lies not; but reſolved, the action did not lie; for that debt upon a ſingle contract lies not againſt an executor or adminiſtrator; and that the aſſignment by the commiſſioners of bankrupts did not alter the law, but that againſt an aſſignee wager of law did lie; adjudged for the defendant. Cro. Car. 187.

Notice of the aſſignment of the debt is not neceſſary to be given to the debtor, before action brought by the aſſignees for the debt. Lutw. 456.

In ſpecial action on the caſe brought by the plaintiff as aſſignee of the commiſſioners of bankrupts, he need not ſhew how the perſon became bankrupt. Carth. 29.

When an action is brought by an aſſignee under a commiſſion of bankruptcy, it need not be ſet forth in the declaration how he became aſſignee. Barnard. K. B. 309.

Though in caſe of bankruptcy it was once held, that no trover lay but on ſpecialty, ſhewing the bailment before and converſion meſne, yet it has been ſince held to lie generally; per cur'. 3 Keb. 294. pl. 22.

Where a perſon makes payment of a debt to a creditor, ſoon after he becomes a bankrupt, and the creditor had no notice of the bankruptcy at the time he received the money, the aſſignees under the commiſſion ſhall not be allowed to recover the money back again in an indebitatus aſſumpſit, but only in an action of trover, and the reaſon is that they cannot inſiſt upon having the money by way of contract, but as a tort. Barnard. Ch. Rep. 207.

Sale of goods by a bankrupt after an act of bankruptcy is not merely void, the contract is good between the parties; but it may be avoided by the commiſſioners or aſſignees at pleaſure; therefore they may either bring trover for the goods, as ſuppoſing the contract may be void, or may bring debt or aſſumpſit for the value, which affirms the contract. 3 Salk. 59. pl. 2.

Action by the plaintiff as aſſignee under a commiſſion of bankruptcy, and the declaration was, that the defendant was indebted to the bankrupt, and being ſo indebted he promiſed to pay to the bankrupt, but throughout the whole declaration there was no aſſumpſit to the plaintiff the aſſignee.

On demurrer it was inſiſted on by the defendant, that the ſtatute had transferred the promiſe to the aſſignee, and that a promiſe before made to the bankrupt, was afterwards, in point of law, a promiſe to the aſſignee, and ought to have been declared on as ſuch.

Sed per curiam, What reaſon is there to differ this from the common caſe of an action by an executor, where you always declare on a promiſe to the teſtator, and yet the promiſe is as ſtrongly transferred to the executor as it is here to the aſſignee. Stra. 697.

Satur, a bankrupt, at the time of his going off left ſome plate with his wife, who, in order to raiſe money upon it, delivered it to her ſervant, who went along with the defendant to the door of Mr. Woodward a banker, and there the defendant took the plate into his hands, and went into the ſhop and pawned it in his own name, gave his own note to repay the money, and immediately upon receipt of it went back to the bankrupt's wife, and delivered the money to her. And in trover for the plate, the jury (conſidering the defendant acted only as a friend, and that it would be hard to puniſh him) found a verdict for the defendant; but upon application to the court, a new trial was granted, upon the foot of its being an actual converſion in the defendant, notwithſtanding he did not apply the money to his own uſe, and upon a ſecond trial the plaintiff obtained a verdict for the value of the plate.

N. B. A difficulty aroſe upon the motion for a new trial, which was this; there were other things beſides plate in the declaration, and as to them the verdict for the defendant was right; and yet a new trial muſt be granted upon the whole; but upon conſideration the court held, that could be no reaſon to refuſe a new trial; for if the merits as to thoſe other things were with the defendant, it would be found for him as to them. But it was agreed on all hands, that if one defendant be acquitted, and another found guilty, that defendant can have no new trial. 2 Stra. 813.

Trover by the plaintiff, as adminiſtratrix of William Wilſon, the aſſignee of the effects of Edward Poulter, a bankrupt, for ready money, ad damnum 6co*l.* Upon Not guilty, a ſpecial caſe was made for the opinion of the court.

That Edward Poulter on the ſeventh of May 1724, became a bankrupt, and a commiſſion iſſued againſt him the third of Auguſt following, by virtue of which he was declared a bankrupt, and the plaintiff's inteſtate choſen aſſignee, and had an aſſignment.

That on the ſixteenth of June 1724, the bankrupt's wife brought to the defendant 3082*l.* 3*s.* 11*d.* of the bankrupt's money, and deſired the defendant to buy ſome India and South-Sea bonds with it. That the defendant, knowing of the bankruptcy, and that the money was part of the bankrupt's effects, received the ſame, and on the ſaid 16th of June, and 23d of June, with part of the ſaid money bought twenty South-Sea and India bonds, and John Abington, the defendant's ſervant, by defendant's order, with other part of the money bought ten bonds more, and defendant delivered all the thirty to the bankrupt's wife. That on the ſecond of September 1724, the aſſignees having notice where ſome of the effects were depoſited by the wife, ſeized 22 of the bonds for the benefit of the creditors, and accepted them as part of the bankrupt's eſtate; and upon this ſtate of the caſe, the point reſerved was, whether the defendant is liable in this action to make ſatisfaction for the money with which the eight bonds that did not come to the hands of the aſſignee were purchaſed?

It was argued for the plaintiff, that here was a plain property in the plaintiff, and a converſion in the defendant; in order to make it out, there are ſome things ſtated, which ſhould be laid out of the caſe. Firſt, That at the time of receiving the money and buying the bonds, there was no commiſſion, the tranſaction by defendant being in June, and the commiſſion and aſſignment not till Auguſt following. But as to this it is ſtated, that he became a bankrupt the 7th of May before, and from that time the property of the aſſignee commences. Secondly, That ten of the bonds were bought by another perſon, one John Abington; but this is ſtated to have been done by the defendant's order, and with part of the money received by him of the bankrupt's wife, and that the defendant had the bonds of his ſervant, and delivered them to his wife, by which he has made it his own act. Thirdly, The ſeizing 22 of the bonds, by virtue of the commiſſion, for the benefit of the creditors, and accepting them as part of the bankrupt's eſtate; this is not ſtated to be done in affirmance, and by way of authenticating the act done by the defendant in purchaſing theſe bonds; but only to leſſen the damages, which otherwiſe muſt be given for all the money; and to ſhew, that in point of juſtice and equity, the plaintiff is intitled only to a ſatisfaction for the money with which the eight bonds, not yet brought to light, were purchaſed; for if the plaintiff had taken a verdict for the whole, ſhe muſt have been compelled in a court of equity, either to deliver up the 22 bonds, or abate for them; and it is in caſe and favour of the defendant, who had parted with the poſſeſſion, to take theſe bonds out of the hands of a third perſon, and at the ſame time allow him the benefit of the ſeizure. The purchaſe of every bond is a diſtinct act, and where that which is the produce of my money is to be come at, I have my election to ſue for the money, or the thing ſo purchaſed with my money. Huſſey v. Phydal, 12 W. 3. If the bankrupt ſells goods, the aſſignee may bring trover for the goods, goods, or affirm the ſale and ſue for the money; and if the bankrupt does ſo in two inſtances, the aſſignee is not bound to make one uniform election for both caſes; but as they are diſtinct and independant, he may ſue one vendee for the money, and as to the other, may diſaffirm the ſale and maintain trover. In this caſe it is ſtated, that the bonds were purchaſed at different times, ſome upon the 16th and others upon the 23d of June; not that it is material what he did with the money; for as he was poſſeſſed of the money of the aſſignees, he can no otherwiſe diſcharge himſelf of it than by a payment to them. Fourthly, The danger that in general will attend brokers and others, if they ſhould be charged merely on account of the money's paſſing through their hands, may be laid out of the caſe; if they do not know it, it may be hard; but if they know it, they ought to be charged; and there is expreſs knowledge ſtated in this caſe, not only of the bankruptcy, but that the money was the bankrupt's effects.

If theſe things are laid out of the caſe, there will then be a plain property in this money in the plaintiff, and a converſion in the defendant; it will be no more than this: A man, knowing of the bankruptcy, and having money or goods of the aſſignee, diſpoſes of them without his authority; and it will not at all differ from the preceding caſe of Parker v. Goodwin; where in trover for the plate it was held, that he was liable tho' he did not apply the money to his own uſe; he was charged with the plate as having had it in his cuſtody, and not delivering it to the aſſignees; and there the plate was forth-coming; but theſe eight bonds are not. There the directions were to pawn, but here to buy. There the produce of the plate was delivered to the wife, here the produce of the money was delivered to her. In neither caſe had the defendant any advantage; if any difference, his diſadvantage was greater there than here, becauſe there he had by note ſubjected himſelf to pay the money.

It may be ſaid, he laid out the money as directed, and purſued his authority. To which it is anſwered, that nobody could give him any directions or authority but the aſſignee, and he was not privy to the tranſaction; for though in another caſe it ſhall be taken that the wife acts as a ſervant, yet that is only where the huſband himſelf has power; and though the aſſignee comes in, in privity under the bankrupt, yet that is only as to all tranſactions previous to the bankruptcy; but no act of the bankrupt ſubſequent can bind the aſſignee, there being then no privity between them.

The court, without hearing any argument of the other ſide, declared, that if the four things inſiſted on for the plaintiff were all to be laid out of the caſe, the concluſion drawn from thence, and the application of the caſe of Parker v. Goodwin, would be right; and as to the firſt, ſecond, and fourth things, they thought they ought to have no weight againſt the plaintiff; but as to the third, they were all very clear in opinion, that the ſeizing part of the bonds was an affirmance of the defendant's act in laying out the money, and that the plaintiff therefore could not avoid the act as to part, and diſavow it for the reſt. So the defendant had judgment. 2 Stra. 859. Barnard. K. B. 77, 118.

The plaintiff, as aſſignee of the effects of Cripps and Quarme, bankrupts, brings trover againſt the defendants for ſeveral parcels of ſilks. And upon the trial a caſe was made for the opinion of the court.

That the defendants were mercers and partners in London, and uſually dealt with Cripps and Quarme, who were alſo partners, living at Penryn in Cornwall; and on the ſeventh of April 1715, the defendants by their order ſent the goods in the declaration, and gave them credit in their books, they being at the ſame time indebted to them for other goods; the eighteenth of May following, Cripps and Quarme, without the knowledge of the defendants, ſent divers ſilks (the ſame ſent down in April) to Mr. Penhallow at Penryn, for the uſe of the defendants. June the fourth Cripps and Quarme became bankrupts: June the ſixth he wrote a letter to the defendants, ſignifying their affairs were in a declining condition, and thinking it not reaſonable that the laſt parcel of goods ſhould go to ſatisfy their other creditors; therefore they had not entered them in their books, but left them with Penhallow, who had orders to deliver them to the defendants. June the ninth a commiſſion of bankruptcy iſſued, and the effects were aſſigned to the plaintiff. June the thirteenth the defendants received the letter, which was the firſt notice they had of the delivery to Penhallow, and as ſoon as poſſible, they ſignified their conſent to take the goods again.

It was argued for the plaintiff, that the bankrupt had undoubtedly a good property in the goods by the ſale made the ſeventh of April; the queſtion now to be conſidered is, whether any thing appears to diveſt that property, before the act of bankruptcy? The goods it is true were delivered for the uſe of the defendants; but that delivery was without their knowledge. They were not obliged to accept them, and therefore before acceptance the property could not be altered, and the bankrupts might have countermanded that delivery. If inſtead of ſending them to Penhallow, they had kept them in their hands until an anſwer to the letter, would that have altered the property? Certainly it would not. This letter can amount to no more than a propoſal, and therefore the ſubſequent conſent (if it has any retroſpect) can only have relation to the time of the propoſal, which was two days after the act of bankruptcy. Though the delivery is ſtated to be to the uſe of the defendants, yet it does not appear to be in ſatisfaction of the precedent debt, ſo there is no conſideration, and then the delivery is fraudulent as to creditors.

It was argued for the defendants, that by the delivery to Penhallow the property was altered before acceptance, and the bankrupt could not countermand it, for there was a good conſideration, viz. in ſatisfaction of the debt; and this is explained by not entering it in their books, and their unwillingneſs that the other creditors ſhould come into an average for theſe goods; this does not take effect as a gift, but as a ſatisfaction, and therefore not countermandable. Dy. 49. a. 2 Rol. Rep. 39. 2 Leon. 30. And ſince it cannot be countermanded, the perſon to whoſe uſe they were delivered has an abſolute property in them, until diſagreement. Rol. Abr. 32. pl. 13. Sty. 296. Yelv. 164. Cro. Jac. 667. Here was no diſagreement, but as ſpeedy a conſent as poſſible.

An accord executory is no ſatisfaction before it is executed; it is admitted, that a delivery without conſideration may be countermanded: and this is ſuch, for the precedent debt is not merged, becauſe the party could not plead this re-delivery in bar of any action for the value of the goods, unleſs they actually were returned to the perſon who ſold them, or he ſignified his conſent; which was not done before the act of bankruptcy committed.

Ch. J. The queſtion is, whether, by the delivery to Penhallow, without more, the property was altered? for if that delivery was countermanded, then the act of bankruptcy intervening, before any aſſent of the defendants, will prevent the property from veſting in them. I think upon the circumſtances, that there appears a ſufficient conſideration to take away a ſubſequent power of countermanding, and that this delivery was in ſatisfaction of the debt; it is true, the bare delivery will not extinguiſh it, becauſe he had a power to diſſent; but yet, according to Butler and Baker's caſe in 3 Co. the abſolute property paſſes, ſubject to a diſagreement by one of the parties; the contract does not ſtand open till agreement, but is compleat, unleſs there be an actual diſagreement; the conſequence of all this is, that the delivery to Penhallow, to the uſe of the defendants, being before the act of bankruptcy, and founded upon a good conſideration, tranſfers the abſolute property to them, it being ſtated that they never diſagreed. Powys, J. accordingly.

Eyre, J. All theſe caſes go upon the diſtinction, where the delivery is with and without conſideration, Dy. 49. and if the delivery is of money, debt lies. Yelv. 23, 24. 2 Cro. 687. Raſt. 159. If of goods, trover. Buſſ. 68. The precedent debt is a ſufficient conſideration, and it veſts before notice; for it being to his benefit, a diſagreement ſhall not be preſumed.

Forteſcue,

Forteſcue, J. Property, by our law, may be diveſted, without any actual delivery; as a horſe ſold in a ſtable; but it is otherwiſe by the Civil law. A general bailment alters no property; but this is not ſuch. It cannot be taken for a releaſe, for defect of contract; but it is properly a payment in ſatisfaction; it is more reaſonable to apply it to diſcharge the debt, and not as a gift; for a man is juſt before he is kind; and ſince he paid it in ſatisfaction, he will intend an acceptance, until the contrary appears. Stra. 165. Forteſcue 353. 10 Mod. 432.

A. hath one in execution for debt, and then he becomes a bankrupt; the commiſſioners aſſign the debt; if the party eſcape, whether may this aſſignee have an action of eſcape? And I conceive it may be anſwered in the affirmative; for by Weſtm. 2. c. 11. debt is given in ſuch caſe againſt the gaoler by the equity of that ſtatute (for the words extend only to accounts) and by the 1 Jac. cap. 15. ſect. 13. [which ſee under the firſt diviſion of this title.] So that by the aſſignment the debt is veſted to all intents and purpoſes in the grantee, as if he had been the original debtor; therefore the grantee might have had his action againſt the ſheriff; and the ſtatute ſhall be liberally expounded for the relief of creditors; eſpecially ſeeing in this caſe the aſſignee or grantee is without any remedy for the debt, if he cannot relieve himſelf againſt the ſheriff. Billing. 127.

He who comes in as a creditor, and hath a debt made over unto him by the commiſſioners, &c. ſhall be barred by the ſtatute of limitations; for neither of the ſtatutes gives the aſſignee any larger power, &c. than the original debtor had; alſo the ſtatute of limitations was made for quieting of men's eſtates, and avoiding of ſuits, which ſtatute ſhall not be taken away without ſpecial words. Billing. 129.

Caſe by the aſſignee of the commiſſioners of bankrupt; the defendant pleaded non aſſumpſit infra ſex annos. Holt moved, that the aſſignment and promiſe, which gave a new cauſe of action, are within the ſix years, and the aſſignee ſhall have a new ſix years; cur' contra. The ſix years ſhall be accounted from the original action, and the new promiſe is but a fiction in law. The court inclined to give judgment for the defendant; but a diſcontinuance was granted, &c. Comb. 70.

Statute of limitations was pleaded to an aſſignee of commiſſioners of bankruptcy, and reſolved by the court, that the ſtatute of bankruptcy transfers the right to the aſſignee; but it is no more than the old right, which the bankrupt had before he had committed any act of bankruptcy, and therefore the aſſignee muſt take it in the ſame plight and condition as the bankrupt himſelf had it; ſo it hath been adjudged in the caſe of Maſon and Plunket, that the aſſignee was in the ſame caſe (as to the right) with the bankrupt himſelf, and conſequently if he was barred by the ſtatute of limitations, ſo ſhall the aſſignee. 8 Mod. 171, 172.

Though the aſſignee of the effects of a bankrupt claims under the act of parliament, yet as the ſtatute of limitations might be pleaded againſt the bankrupt, by the ſame reaſon it is pleadable againſt ſuch aſſignee; per Ld. Chancellor. 3 Will. Rep. 144.

A doubt ariſing, whether an aſſignment over of a term by the bankrupt was abſolute, or by way of mortgage only; the queſtion at a meeting of the creditors for that purpoſe was, whether the aſſignees ſhould bring a bill to redeem this leaſehold eſtate, or not; but the majority of the creditors were of opinion not to do it; and the aſſignees being thereby diſabled from doing it by this clauſe in the ſtatute, the reſt of the creditors, who were of opinion for bringing ſuch a bill, brought a bill in their own names againſt the ſuppoſed mortgagee and aſſignees of the commiſſioners, praying to be let in to redeem. The aſſignees anſwered, that they were deſirous it ſhould be redeemed, but the ſuppoſed mortgagee oppoſed it. The queſtion now was, whether this bill was well brought? And Parker, J. who ſat for the Lord Chancellor, thought that it was; and that if the aſſignees refuſe to bring a bill that is for the benefit of the bankrupt's eſtate, any creditor has a right to bring ſuch bill, under peril of coſts; and decreed, that the aſſignees, in the firſt place, have liberty to redeem, and in default thereof, that the plaintiffs (the major part of the creditors) ſhall have this redemption.

But he ſaid, that in general, where there are proper perſons to get in the eſtate of another, a court of equity will not ſuffer either the creditors of the teſtator, or the creditors of a bankrupt, to bring a bill in equity, in order to get in that eſtate; but if an executor, or aſſignees under a commiſſion, will collude with a debtor, there is no doubt a creditor may bring his bill, in order to take care of that eſtate; and charge the aſſignees or executor with ſuch colluſion. Barnard. Ch. Rep. 32.

A bankrupt, indebted to A. in 20*l.* and to B. in 10*l.* hath a debt due to him on a bond of 20*l.* the court was of opinion, that this bond debt might be aſſigned by the commiſſioners to the creditors reſpectively, in proportion to their debts; and per Warburton, J. When it is ſo aſſigned, they may ſeverally ſue for the ſame, becauſe the act of parliament operates upon the aſſignment. Godb. 195. pl. 282.

One joint trader becomes a bankrupt, and the other receives 100*l.* of a joint debt; aſſignee brought trover for the whole money received; but reſolved, that he could only maintain an action for a moiety, for he can only have ſuch action as the bankrupt could. 2 Show. 103.

In trover by the plaintiff, as aſſignees of the effects of Samuel Fairclough, a bankrupt, a caſe was made for the opinion of the court.

That the bankrupt was appointed collector of the land tax for the precinct of Aldgate, in the city of London, during the year 1730; on the ſeventh of July 1731, he committed an act of bankruptcy, having then 190*l.* of the tax in his hands, and on the ſixteenth of July the commiſſioners of the land tax iſſued their warrant, upon which the goods in the declaration were ſeized the ſame day; that on the ſeventeenth of July a commiſſion of bankruptcy iſſued; that an aſſignment was made to the plaintiffs on the nineteenth of July; and that on the twenty-ſecond of July the defendants took away the goods and ſold them.

Upon this ſtate of the caſe, the general queſtion was, whether the plaintiffs had a property in theſe goods? for as to a converſion (ſuppoſing there was a property) the defendants did not offer to diſpute it.

For the plaintiff this caſe was conſidered two ways. Firſt, as if it was between private perſons; and ſecondly, whether there was any intervention of the prerogative.

As to the firſt, to make theſe goods ſeizable they muſt be his, i. e. bankrupt's, at the time of ſuch ſeizure. The power in 3 Geo. 2. c. p. 25. is, for the commiſſioners to ſeize the eſtate real and perſonal, of ſuch collector, to him belonging; and it was inſiſted, that on the ſixteenth of July theſe goods were not his, an act of bankruptcy being ſtated to have been before. And that though in the caſe of the crown it has been held, that it is ſufficient to come any time before the aſſignment, and there is no relation to bind the crown; yet in the caſe of a ſubject, the goods are in the aſſignee by relation from the act of bankruptcy; and all meſne acts will be avoided. Salk. 111. And therefore it is conſtant experience, to overreach a compleat execution at the ſuit of a ſubject, by ſhewing only an act of bankruptcy before; and 21 Ja. 1. c. 19. ſuppoſes ſo, by providing that the goods ſhall be equally diſtributed between the creditors, whereof no execution is ſerved and executed before an act of bankruptcy. So in Philips and Thompſon, 3 Lev. 69, 191. where the writ was delivered before, but not executed until after an act of bankruptcy; it was doubted, but it would have been bad, had the act of bankruptcy been before both. Bankrupts are conſidered as offenders, who have forfeited their eſtate, and are not capable of conveying any property; and therefore where, after an act of bankruptcy, and before any commiſſion, the bankrupt ſells the goods, it is in the election of the aſſignee to diſavow it, and bring trover; he may indeed avow it, and ſue for the money; but then the bankrupt is not conſidered as transferring any property of his own, but as acting as ſervant to the aſſignees. This ſhews there is no ſort of property remaining in the bankrupt. However, it will be ſufficient cient if we only ſuppoſe the property to be in abeyance, as in the common caſe of inteſtacy before adminiſtration; for then the goods were not his, and conſequently not ſeizable.

Secondly, If it would be thus in the caſe of the ſubject, let us ſee if there is any intervention of the prerogative, to give it a different turn. This indeed is the main point between us; for if he is conſidered as the debtor of the crown, and the warrant of the commiſſioners to be equal to an extent, it muſt be admitted that it will be againſt us, and the crown muſt take, the warrant coming before any aſſignment. And on the other hand, if the crown is out of the caſe, it is to be preſumed it will not be diſputed but that the plaintiffs are intitled to be.

It was inſiſted for the plaintiffs, that the collector is not to be conſidered as the debtor of the crown; but the receiver general is, and ſo is the diviſion; and there is a plain reaſon for this diſtinction; the diviſion is originally charged, and can no way be diſcharged, but by a payment to the receiver general. The collector is a middle man between them, in whom the crown repoſes no confidence, and therefore leaves him to be appointed by the diviſion; and at the ſame time the crown reſerves to itſelf the appointment of the receiver general, as the perſon by whoſe act the crown may be affected. Had the act intended to turn the crown round to a remedy againſt the collector in the firſt place, it would only have provided, that what had remained after diſpoſal of the collector's effects, ſhall be levied on the diviſion by a re-aſſeſſment: but leſt ſuch a conſtruction ſhould be made, there is added an expreſs declaration, that payment to the collector is no diſcharge to the diviſion, until the money is lodged in the receiver general's hands; the plain import of which is, let the diviſion take care who it ſends the money by, for he ſhall be conſidered as their agent, and not the crown's. If the crown was in any danger of loſing the duty, there might be ſome colour to ſet up the prerogative; but here the duty is ſecured to the crown in all events by aſſeſſments and re-aſſeſſments. The receiver general is the crown's debtor, becauſe the crown can reſort to no one elſe, when the money is in his hands; but its being in the collector's hands is a circumſtance of no conſequence to the crown, or that makes the leaſt alteration; put the caſe that I am debtor to the crown, and ſend my ſervant to the Exchequer with the money, and he neglects to pay it in, can that ſervant be ſaid to be the debtor on whom the crown can levy the money? No; the crown conſiders me as the debtor ſtill, and as the perſon who is to ſuffer by the other's neglect. Will any body ſay, the crown is bound to take the collector for its paymaſter? The acts provide for the contrary.

Now if the crown has liberty to avow or diſavow the payment to the collector, then the diviſion's having once paid the money, and being bound to pay it again, is bettering the condition of the crown, and no eaſe but a load on the diviſion.

There is one thing more to be conſidered, and that is; ſuppoſing the crown has its election to reſort to the collector or the diviſion, and they are to be conſidered only as ſo many ſecurities to the crown; yet, whether this warrant of the commiſſioners, which came before the aſſignment, is to be conſidered as equal to an extent, which comes in time, if before the aſſignment. And it is preſumed there is a great difference between them. An extent is a matter of record, an ancient Common law proceſs, and binds from the teſte, notwithſtanding the ſtatute of frauds; whereas this warrant of the commiſſioners is a mere matter in pais, the date whereof is of no conſequence. And can it be imagined, that if the parliament had intended to make the collector debtor to the crown, that they would not have left to the crown ſo noble a remedy as an extent; or at leaſt have provided, that this warrant ſhould be equal to an extent? Whereas, having not done ſo, but only impowered the commiſſioners to iſſue a warrant, and continued the charge on the diviſion, it muſt be taken to be a proviſion in favour of the diviſions and for their re-imburſement: That whereas, without ſuch proviſion, every man who is re-aſſeſſed would have no other remedy but a ſeparate action for the money had and received to his uſe, which would certainly lie againſt the collector who receives and does not pay over; they ſhall now all have a more expeditious and leſs expenſive remedy: This is finding a proper uſe for the warrant of the commiſſioners: it falls in with the declarations in favour of the duty, that the diviſion is not diſcharged, until the receiver general has the money; and it falls in too with the different conſtitutions of the two officers, for one of which the diviſion is anſwerable, and not for the other; and therefore it is to be hoped that this action of trover is well brought.

Lord Hardwick Ch. J. This caſe has been properly divided by the bar into two points. Firſt, What the conſequence would be, if this is conſidered as between two ſubjects; and ſecondly, Whether the prerogative of the crown makes any difference: and as to the firſt of theſe, we are all of opinion, that if this was a caſe between two ſubjects, the property of theſe goods would be in the plaintiff. The commiſſioners of bankruptcy have neither by 13 Eliz. nor the ſtatute of Jac. 1. any property veſted in them, but only a power to take order about them by their diſcretion. Jo. 196. And when they have once executed that authority by aſſignment, the property is in the aſſignees by relation from the time of the act of the bankruptcy committed; and an execution taken after ſuch act of bankruptcy, and before the aſſignment, at the ſuit of the ſubject, will certainly be avoided, as was held in Cole v. Davies. Hil. 10 W. 3. and ſo is 3 Lev. 191, 69. for the execution is a meſne act, and as ſuch will be avoided. Salk. 111. The property is not in abeyance until aſſignment, but remains in the bankrupt, according to Salk. 108.

But then, ſecondly, we think here is ſuch an intervention of the prerogative of the crown as will defeat the plaintiffs in this action. For this purpoſe two things are to be conſidered; firſt, whether the money in the hands of the collector made him debtor to the crown for ſo much: and ſecondly, what effect the warrant and ſeizure will have in the preſent caſe.

And firſt we hold, that, notwithſtanding the objections made at the bar, the collector is to be conſidered as the King's ſervant, and indebted to him. It is the King's money that he has collected, and the allowance to the collector is not made by the diviſion, but by the King: and though the diviſion is liable for his imbezilments, yet that is only as ſo many ſeveral ſecurities to the crown. To what purpoſe are powers given to the commiſſioners, t ſummon any perſon they ſuſpect of imbeziling, if he not conſidered as indebted to the crown?

And as to the ſecond thing to be conſidered, viz. wh. effect the warrant of the commiſſioners will be of; we d. not think it is equal to an extent, ſo as to bind the goo from the date. But what we ground our judgment upo is, that, until an aſſignment, the property was in t bankrupt: That the crown's hands were upon theſe good and created a lien before the aſſignment. The crown not bound by the act relating to bankrupts, not bein named. 2 Jo. 202. Bunb. Rep. 202. And though t King is bound by an actual aſſignment, 2 Show. 481. y that is becauſe the property is then abſolutely transferr to a third perſon; but relations, which are but fictions law, cannot bind the crown. Hob. 339. And tho' t actual ſale was not until after the aſſignment, yet t goods were in cuſtadia legis before. Cro. Car. 148. Up this ſeizure, all the right which the aſſignees had, is redeem the goods on payment of the money, which a in the hands of the commiſſioners as a pledge for that pu poſe; but they have brought their action without payme or tender of the money, and conſequently muſt fail it.

The poſtea muſt be delivered to the defendants, and t plaintiff muſt pay the coſts of a nonſuit, which, upon a fidavit of the defendants acting as officers, were order to be treble. 2 Stra. 878. Barnardiſt. K. B. 342, 38 Braſſey et al. v. Dawſon et al'.

C. about two months before bankruptcy, having tru money, tallies, &c. in her hands belonging to her children, makes a declaration, declaring the truſt of what belonged to her children reſpectively, &c. the creditors would have ſet this aſide. Lord Chancellor ſaid, it was a fair and honeſt proceeding; there can be no bankrupt in equity, but at law only. 10 Mod. 489, 490.

The bankrupt having been a very conſiderable merchant, in large dealings, committed a ſecret act of bankruptcy the 18th of April 1743, but afterwards appeared publickly, and acted openly as a merchant. The plaintiff, ignorant of ſuch act, had, after the act, very large dealings with him of bills of exchange, and relating to ſeveral other ſums of money, which were paid by the bankrupt to the plaintiff, and all other ſums paid by the plaintiff to the bankrupt, for inſurance of ſhips and duties at the Cuſtomhouſe, all which dealings appeared to be very fair and honeſt. The ſums paid by the bankrupt to the plaintiff amounted to the ſum of 3000*l.* and thoſe on the other hand charged by the plaintiff to the bankrupt, to the ſum of 712*l.* After theſe tranſactions a commiſſion iſſued againſt the bankrupt, November 30th 1744, and the aſſignee brought an action againſt the plaintiff for the 3000*l.* as ſo much money had and received to the uſe of the aſſignee, which was tried; and it appearing that the ſum of 3000*l.* was paid by the bankrupt after the act of the 18th of April 1743, the aſſignees recovered the whole at law. The defendant at law becomes plaintiff here, praying that the ſeveral ſums he paid to the bankrupt, to the amount of 712*l.* ſhould be allowed him, to be deducted out of the 3000*l.* recovered againſt him at law.

Lord Chancellor: There are two queſtions in this caſe: Firſt, Whether the party has a right to have ſuch deductions made him. Secondly, Whether he hath taken a proper method to be relieved, or whether this court can relieve as to that, which in this caſe he cannot be relieved or allowed in law: As to the

Firſt, It is certain the aſſignee may maintain an action for all ſuch monies paid by a bankrupt, and the act of bankruptcy committed ſhall over-reach alſo all records, as judgments, ſtatutes, &c. ſuffered afterwards, and even executions executed; nor does the law allow the dealer with the bankrupt after ſuch act any ſuch deductions, but where the dealings are fair, as they appear to be in the preſent caſe; perhaps it is one of the hardeſt caſes any intendment of law upon the ſtatute obliges the party to ſubmit to. But though this be a fiction of law, and it be a rule of law, that fiction ſhall not be made to the prejudice of any one, yet this caſe is taken out of that rule of law by another, that it is better there ſhould be a miſchief ſuffered than a general inconveniency. For the difficulty to find out the fairneſs of ſuch contracts would be otherwiſe inſurmountable; and eſpecially ſince trade is now become more general, and conſequently more intricate, particularly in this caſe, the negotiating of bills of exchange; and here the aſſignee recovering on an indeb. aſſump. for money paid by the bankrupt, the plaintiff in the action ſhould have inſiſted on the tort, and might have brought trover, or treſpaſs for it; for there are two caſes only wherein an indeb. aſſump. cannot be brought for money had and received, viz. for money won at play, and for money paid by a bankrupt, after the act of bankruptcy, to a creditor; nor can an indeb. aſſump. be maintained here; but the plaintiff might have been nonſuited, for that muſt denote a contract, when the plaintiff ſhould have ſurmiſed a fraud; and therefore, as this action was tried, it muſt have been maintained on ſome contract: Why ſhall not the bankrupt be conſidered as the agent or factor for the aſſignees in all acts fairly done? And if ſo, the aſſignees muſt allow the deductions on the one ſide, as well as inſiſt on the charges on the other; for they ſhall not be permitted to affirm the act done by the bankrupt in one part, and diſaffirm it in another, as it is proved in the caſe of Wilſon and Poulter, Hill. 3 Geo. 2. (Stra. 859.) Therefore the plaintiff here has right to have the deductions made. And as to the ſecond point,

It does not appear, whether the defendant at law made a ſet-off at the trial, or gave his account in mitigation of damages. It is reaſonable to imagine he gave it in mitigation of damages; and as he was not even therein, or that way relieved, he has no other means or place to ſeek redreſs from, than to fly hither.

But it is ſaid, theſe allowances ought to have been at law; and that if the party could not have them there, he ſhall not here; yet this is not concluſive; for where no intent or ſuſpicion of fraud can be imagined, favourable circumſtances ſhall take the caſe out of the ſtrict doctrine of the ſtatute, as in the caſe of Rider and Bowen, 3 Lev. 58. Where on an action of trover for 120*l.* (not in a bag) a ſpecial verdict found, that the bankrupt, after the act of bankruptcy, put his ſon apprentice to a goldſmith, and paid a ſum of money with him; and a commiſſion being after iſſued, the aſſignees brought trover for the money; and it was the opinion of the court, that there was no fraudulent intention in the bankrupt, and ſo declared it out of the intention of the ſtatute, though it was exactly within the words of it. So judgment for the plaintiff.

But the counſel moving, that ſome of the ſums charged by the plaintiff to the bankrupt were for money lent; Lord Chancellor ſaid, ſuch ſums were not to be charged, for he had not borrowed them as a factor for the aſſignees; and ſo left the decree open for a time, until the parties agreed on the proper ſums. Gen. Syſ. Law Bank. 163. cites MS. Rep. Mich. 1749, before Hardwicke Chancellor. Billon v. Hide, aſſignee of Mitchell, a bankrupt.

Commiſſioners of bankrupts have only a power, and no eſtate; and to paſs the eſtate, there muſt not only be a deed indented, but the indenture muſt be inrolled alſo; and in ſuch caſe there is no relation, for no time is mentioned within which it is to be done, ſo that it might extend to ſeven or twenty years, which would be dangerous. 2 Jo. 196, 197. Vent. 360. Skin. 30.

Aſſignment for a term by commiſſioners of bankruptcy was made to a creditor, who before inrolment of the deed of aſſignment made a leaſe to the defendant, and then the deed was inrolled. Per cur. Such a leſſee cannot maintain an ejectment, becauſe the leaſe could not have been before the inrollment; the words of the ſtatute are, "that commiſſioners may ſell by deed inrolled;" ſo without inrollment no ſale. 12 Mod. 3. Elliot v. Danby.

In ejectment, brought by the aſſignees of commiſſioners of bankrupt, upon the bankruptcy of Alderman Blackwell, in which theſe aſſignees were leſſors of the plaintiff in ejectment; and a ſpecial verdict being found, which was now to be argued, the Attorney general Trevor interrupted the arguing it, for that the verdict had abated the declaration; for it appeared by the verdict, that the demiſe to the plaintiff, upon which this ejectment was brought, was made by the aſſignees of the bankrupt before the inrollment of the bargain and ſale, by which the commiſſioners had aſſigned the lands to the leſſor of the plaintiff; and though the inrollment of a deed ſhall relate to the delivery of the ſame deed, to avoid meſne incumbrances; yet every bargain and ſale before inrollment is void, and cannot be made good by any relation, becauſe the bargainee hath no eſtate before inrollment; and if ſo, he could not grant any eſtate; and here it appears, that the leſſors of the plaintiff had not any thing at the time of the demiſe, upon which the plaintiff declared; and the court held this to be a fatal exception. Carth. 178. Bennet v. Gundy.

J. H. by a ſpecial verdict appeared to be a bankrupt, and was committed two months in 1651, and recommitted for another act in 1657, and them the term of years whereof he was poſſeſſed was ſold to the defendant by the bankrupt; and in 1660, the commiſſioners ſold to the plaintiff; the words of the act are, "not after he ſhall firſt be a bankrupt;" for then the earlier being a bankrupt would after five years be a perpetual ſuperſedeas to all tradeſmen; but if one has ſold, and then five years paſs without any act of bankruptcy, the purchaſer is ſafe, and no after-act can hurt him; but where the bankrupt continues in poſſeſſion, any after-act is ſufficient to bind the term. Keb. 722. Spencer v. Venacre.

The plaintiff obtained judgment in debt, and afterwards became a bankrupt; the defendant brought error in the Exchequer-Chamber, and there the judgment was affirmed, and the record ſent back into B. R. then a commiſſion miſſion of bankruptcy was taken out, and the commiſſioners aſſigned this judgment; but the plaintiff ſued out execution, and the money was levied by the ſheriff, and brought into court, and the aſſignee moved, that it might not be delivered to the plaintiff, ſurmiſing that the judgment was aſſigned to him as before; the court thought it would be hard to ſtay the money upon a bare ſurmiſe, and for aught appeared it was the plaintiff's due; but however, becauſe it might be hazardous to deliver it to him, they conſented to detain it; ſo that the aſſignee would forthwith take out a ſcire facias, in order to try the bankruptcy, or otherwiſe that it ſhould be delivered to the plaintiff. Vent. 193. Mod. 93.

If there be an act of bankruptcy committed, and a creditor obtains a judgment ſubſequent to it, and then a commiſſion is taken out, the judgment is thereby avoided. 15 Mod. 446.

Trover. The plaintiff's title was under a bill of ſale from the ſheriff; the defendant's under an aſſignment from the commiſſioners of bankrupts. The caſe was, A. was arreſted at the ſuit of J. S. and put in bail; then ſurrendered himſelf in diſcharge of the bail, and continued in priſon two months; ſo that by 21 Jac. cap. 19. by relation he became a bankrupt from the time of the arreſt, which being prior to the bill of ſale, the plaintiff had no property; and of that opinion was Holt Ch. J. But in this caſe, the commiſſion of bankruptcy being taken out before the two months were expired, he directed the jury to find for the plaintiff. 2 Show. 519. Salk. 110.

One Mills, the 14th of October, became a bankrupt, afterwards a judgment, &c. and a fi. fa. was had againſt his goods, &c. which were ſeized and ſold. In December following, a commiſſion was taken out, and in March an aſſignment was made of the goods, and the aſſignees brought trover generally. Held, that if a man becomes a bankrupt, the property of his goods continues in him until aſſignment; but the property from the act of bankruptcy is ſo bound, that it cannot be altered until aſſignment. The aſſignee ſhall have all the goods the bankrupt had at the time of the bankruptcy being committed; the aſſignee doth come in in the place of a bankrupt, but doth not repreſent him as an adminiſtrator doth his inteſtate; and if there had been a demand proved in this caſe, the trover would have lain; but without proving an actual demand by the aſſignee, it was held, that the action would not lie. Per Holt; but Powell, J. contra. No judgment.

By the aſſignment the aſſignee had a property from the time of the bankruptcy, and there was no meſne interval of time. As where one takes out letters of adminiſtration, he has the property from the death of the inteſtate, and may declare generally, ut de bonis ſuis propriis, even before an adminiſtration ſued out: but Holt denied this, and ſaid he ought to declare ſpecially, and ſo the plaintiff might have done in the principal caſe; and he relied on the caſe of Parry v. Bowyers, and ſaid the aſſignee was in by relation from the time of the bankruptcy, ſo as to avoid all meſne acts, but not ſo as to be actually inveſted with the very property. Salk. 111. 7 Vin. Abr. 116. pl. 11.

An aſſignment from the commiſſioners has in many reſpects a relation from the time when the act of bankruptcy was committed; and therefore, if after ſuch an act the bankrupt diſpoſes of his effects, the aſſignment ſhall certainly over-reach it. Agreed by the Ch. J.

And he agreed too, that where a ſheriff takes goods in execution of a bankrupt, and does not deliver them over to the party before the aſſignment made, the aſſignment ſhall not have a relation to defeat that execution, becauſe there the execution was compleated. 2 Barnard. K. B. 343. 2 Stra. 981.

A leaſe for years is made, with a proviſo that leſſee ſhall not alien; the leſſee becomes a bankrupt, and the queſtion is, whether the ſale of the commiſſioners is a forfeiture? which may be anſwered in the negative, that it is not; becauſe this intereſt is tranſmitted by act of parliament, to which every man is intended party, and not by ſale of the leſſee. Billing. 121.

Appeal was from a decree of diſmiſſion at the Rolls upon this caſe; the defendant Warner made a leaſe of an inn to A. for years, with a proviſo in the leaſe, that the leſſee, his executors or adminiſtrators, ſhould not aſſign the term to any perſon, without the conſent of the leſſor, under his hand in writing, firſt had and obtained, with a power of re-entry in ſuch caſe to the leſſor, and that the leaſe ſhould be void. Leſſee dies, and his executor enters and enjoys the premiſſes, and afterwards becomes a bankrupt. The commiſſioners aſſign this leaſe, inter alia, to the aſſignees choſen by the creditors; and afterwards, in conſideration of 50*l.* they aſſign to the plaintiff Goring, who brought this bill to be relieved againſt this proviſo, and to ſtay proceedings in an ejectment brought by the leſſor againſt him upon this proviſo, &c. The defendant Warner by his anſwer inſiſts upon the forfeiture at law, and that the proviſo was reaſonable, and ought not to be ſet aſide in equity. Per Macclesfield C. I do not think that this is a breach of the proviſo or condition at law; but whether it be ſo or not, I think this is a proper caſe for relief in a court of equity. I think the aſſignment by the commiſſioners is clearly no breach of the proviſo, for that is done by authority of a ſtatute, which will ſuperſede any private agreement between the parties inconſiſtent with it; and I am inclined to think the aſſignment over by the aſſignees is not a breach of condition; for the firſt aſſignment by the commiſſioners is not a perfect and compleat aſſignment within the meaning of the ſtatute, and paſſes only the legal intereſt ſubject to a truſt, to be ſold and diſpoſed of for the benefit of the reſt of the creditors. The firſt aſſignment is only formal, and in eaſe of the commiſſioners, and in order only to make a ſale thereof for the benefit of the creditors, and their aſſignees ſtand in the place of the bankrupt, and are in effect his aſſignees; and it is unjuſt and unreaſonable, that ſuch a proviſo ſhould fruſtrate and overthrow the intent of a ſtatute made in favour of honeſt creditors, and deprive them of the advantage they may make of a beneficial leaſe. And though it was inſiſted, that the commiſſioners nor their aſſignees can be in no better a condition than the bankrupt himſelf, and conſequently cannot aſſign over without licence; I think, though that rule holds true generally, yet there may be ſome exceptions to it, and that the preſent caſe is an exception out of that rule; and decreed the plaintiff to hold and enjoy, and an injunction to ſtay proceedings at law. 7 Vin. Abr. 85. pl. 9. Goring v. Warner.

Sir Stephen Evans had diamonds conſigned to him by Governor Pitt, to ſell for his uſe: He charged them fraudulently at a leſs value than he ſold them for, and after became a bankrupt; upon which a queſtion aroſe, whether the aſſignees under the commiſſion of bankruptcy ſhould pay coſts? And reſolved they ſhould out of the eſtate; for if he had been here himſelf, he muſt have paid coſts, and the aſſignees ſtand in his place as to his eſtate: but it appearing that the paper, in which he charged them at a leſs value than what he ſold them for, was not delivered to Mr. Pitt, it was looked upon not as an effectual fraud, but only a preparation to it, of which he might have repented; ſo no coſts againſt the aſſignees. Select Ca. in Ch. 16, 17.

D. the receiver of the New River rent, aſſigned to the plaintiff by a bond, wherein the defendant S. and G. were bound to him in 700*l.* for payment of 350*l.* and this aſſignment was to indemnify him againſt two debts, for which P. ſtood bound as ſurety for D. and in ſatisfaction of 30*l.* he owed the plaintiff; D. became a bankrupt, ſo P. could not ſue in the name of D. at law, and brought his bill to have the money decreed to him in equity. Defendant S. inſiſted, that D. is indebted to him for four New River ſhares, and inſiſted to retain it out of the bond; and the aſſignees inſiſted to have the bond, they being juſt creditors as well as the plaintiff, and had the law, as well as equity, on their ſide. Per Lord Keeper Wright, the aſſignees can have no better right than the bankrupt himſelf; and as the bankrupt is bound by the aſſignment, the aſſignees under the ſtatute muſt be bound likewiſe, and ſtand in his place; but they inſiſting

D. was a bankrupt before he aſſigned the bond, he directed that to be tried at law, he ſaid he was in doubt whether S. might retain for his debt, and that ſtoppage ſeemed to be a good equity in ſuch caſe. 2 Vern. 428, 429.

The law is very clear, that the aſſignees are exactly in the ſame place as the bankrupt, and ſtand in his place to every particular, and any agreement entered into ſhall bind them; and though there may not be the ſame remedy againſt them, that is not from the nature but the neceſſity of the thing; for he ſhall make an adequate and compleat ſatisfaction as far as his fortune in the hands of the aſſignees will admit of. Select. Ca. in Ch. 77.

The aſſignees are bound by all acts done by the bankrupt before he becomes ſo, whether of a legal or equitable nature, if they were done upon a valuable conſideration, and without fraud; and wha ever diſpoſition of his eſtate he makes, that will affect himſelf, does equally conclude to the aſſignees, who ſtand directly in his place. 2 Eq. Abr. 101. pl. 5.

John Savage was ſeiſed of copyhold land within the manor of Whitechurch and Dodington, the cuſtom of which manor is, that the firſt wife ſhall have her free-bench in all the land the huſband was ever ſeiſed of during the coverture; that the ſecond wife ſhould have a moiety, and the third a third part, ſo long as ſhe kept her huſband above ground. J. S. in conſideration of marriage with Elizabeth, the daughter of A. covenanted, within two months after the marriage, to ſettle all his lands to the uſes following, viz. for the one part to him and his wife for life; remainder to his firſt ſon in tail male, &c. remainder to the firſt and every other daughter in tail female; remainder to his own right heirs: as to the other moiety to himſelf for life, remainder ut ſupra, to the iſſue, &c. provided that the lands not ſettled in jointure on his wife ſhould be charged with the payment of 300*l.* for younger children's portions: provided alſo, that the lands ſettled on the wife ſhould be in lieu of her cuſtomary eſtate. By indorſement on the articles of the ſame date with them, it was mutually agreed by all the parties, that J. S. ſhould have a power to charge the land, not ſettled in jointure, with 300*l.* for the payment of his debts. J. S. became a bankrupt, and died without performing the articles, or executing the power, and the aſſignees brought their bill againſt the heir and the younger children of J. S. to have 300*l.* which J. S. might have raiſed for the benefit of creditors; and the younger children filed their bill againſt the heir, the mother, and the aſſignees, to have their fortunes raiſed; and in this caſe, the points following were determined by King Lord Chancellor:

Firſt, As the jointure ſettled on the wife is not made expreſsly in lieu of her free-bench; but only mentioned in the proviſo; and ſhe being an infant at the time of making the articles, and not party to them, whether ſhe be excluded from claiming her free-bench; and it was held ſhe ſhould, and be obliged to abide by her jointure; and the caſe of Vizet v. Longdon was cited, where a ſum of money was ſettled on a woman before marriage, for her proviſion and maintenance; and the Maſter of the Rolls was of opinion, ſhe ſhould have both that and her dower; but the Chancellor reverſed the decree, and confined her to her ſettlement. Secondly, Whether the ſettlement ſhould be carried into execution; and reſolved it ſhould; for as it muſt have been ſpecifically executed againſt the covenantor, if he had not become a bankrupt, ſo the aſſignees, who ſtand in his place, ſhall make it good. Thirdly, Whether the power of charging the land with debts was veſted in the aſſignees; and it was compared to a power of revocation, which a man leaves unexecuted, and for which his creditors ſhall have remedy againſt the heir; but my Lord Chancellor decreed, that the aſſignees, who were in poſſeſſion of the land, ſhould account for all the profits; for as to the money chargeable on the eſtate, he ſaid the charging was a perſonal act, which not being done, he would ſupply the defect; the court decreed the ſettlement ſhould be ſtrictly executed, and the reverſion in fee to the aſſignees. 2 Eq. Abr. 101. pl. 8.

The plaintiffs and the defendant were all creditors of one S. who was a lead merchant, and who, on the 19th of January 18 Car. 2. was declared a bankrupt, and the commiſſioners aſſigned his eſtate to the plaintiff and others, in the month of October, anno 19 Car. 2. the defendant was then in poſſeſſion of his eſtate, and refuſing to deliver it to the aſſignees, they brought their ejectment. Now though the deed under which the defendant held the lands, was dated in February after S. was declared bankrupt, yet the plaintiffs were nonſuited. Then they brought a bill to diſcover, whether the defendant did not know, at the time of executing this deed, that S. had committed an act of bankruptcy, and ſo to ſet forth the fraud of obtaining the deed, and to have a new tryal; the defendant pleaded his deed, and that S. was really indebted at the time it was executed, and demanded judgment, whether he ſhould diſcover any thing to weaken his title, and, upon long debate, the plea was allowed. Nelſ. Chan. Rep. 141, 142.

The aſſignee of a bankrupt exhibits his bill againſt the defendant, to diſcover goods of the bankrupt, that came to his hands after the bankruptcy. The defendant, by way of plea, ſets forth, that he had no goods of the bankrupt's, or that ever were his, but what he bought for full and valuable conſideration, and bona fide; and that at the time of the ſale and payment of his money, he had no notice either of the commiſſion, or of any act of bankruptcy committed by the bankrupt. On long debates, the plea was allowed by the Lord North, and to take what remedy they could before the commiſſioners, or at law. Hutchins, counſel for the defendant, cited a former precedent, but it was not produced. 2 Chan. Ca. 135.

A. purchaſes of a man, who had committed an act of bankruptcy, but without notice thereof: Afterwards a commiſſion is taken out, and there being a term ſtanding out in truſtees, the aſſignee brings a bill againſt them and the purchaſer to have the term aſſigned to him; and bill diſmiſſed. 2 Vern. 599.

A. puts out 1000*l.* at intereſt to the Eaſt-Indaia company, and takes bond for it in the name of J. S. his wife's relation, and afterwards A. is bankrupt; J. S. is ſummoned before the commiſſioners, but, before his examination, tells the company, that the money was not his, but that they ſhould pay it to the perſon as ſhould bring the bond; and accordingly A.'s wife brought the bond, and received the money. The court will not inforce J. S. to pay the money. Ch. Pre. 18.

Two foreigners beyond ſea conſign goods to B. then in good circumſtances in London, but before the goods arrive, B. becomes a bankrupt. If they can by any means prevent the coming of the goods to B. or the aſſignees, they may, and B. or the aſſignees, ſhall have no relief in equity. 2 Vern. 203.

An award is made in an adverſary ſuit between A. and B. partners in iron mills, in a reference by conſent, and after exceptions taken to it, it was confirmed by the court. A. was then a bankrupt, but not known to be ſo. A commiſſion is afterwards taken out; aſſignees brought a bill againſt B. for an account of A.'s eſtate; but per cur', There appearing no fraud in obtaining the award, but it being an adverſary ſuit, and the award after excepted to, &c. tho' A. might be then a bankrupt, yet not being known to be ſo at the time of the award, ſuch award ought to ſtand. 2 Vern. 229.

A man had deviſed lands, which were in mortgage, to be ſold, and the ſurplus of the money to be paid to his daughter; the daughter married a man who ſoon after became a bankrupt, and the commiſſioners aſſigned this intereſt of the wife's; the huſband died, and the aſſignees brought this bill againſt the wife and truſtees, to have the land ſold, and the ſurplus of the money paid to them; but the court would not aſſiſt in ſtripping the wife (who was wholly unprovided for) of this intereſt, but diſmiſſed the bill at the Rolls. Eq. Ca. Abr. 54.

7. Of the creditors; who are ſuch; how to prove their debts, and when to come in.

A. and B. were ſureties for one C. for the payment of money, and had counter-bonds to ſave them harmleſs. The money was not paid at the day, and the ſureties paid it, and afterwards C. became a bankrupt; and whether they were creditors within the ſtatute was the queſtion; and it was reſolved that they were. Cro. Jac. 127.

If A is bail for B. either to bring in his body, or to pay the condemnation money, and B. becomes a bankrupt, whereupon A. pays the money, he may come in as a creditor. Stone 132.

A. ſells land to B. who afterwards becomes a bankrupt. Part of the purchaſe money not being paid, A. ſhall not be bound to come in as creditor under the ſtatute, but the land ſhall ſtand charged with the money unpaid, tho' no agreement for that purpoſe. Vern, 268.

A merchant mortgages his land, the mortgagee may chuſe to come in as a creditor. Stone 130.

A. makes a mortgage, and afterwards a commiſſion of bankruptcy is taken out againſt him, and commiſſioners make an aſſignment of his eſtate, and then B. lends 2000*l.* to the bankrupt on a ſecond mortgage, having no notice of the bankruptcy, and afterwards he gets in the firſt mortgage. This prior mortgage ſhall not protect the mortgage ſubſequent to the bankruptcy. 2 Vern. 157.

A merchant pledges goods, and becomes a bankrupt, the party need not come in. Stone 130.

An executor becomes bankrupt, a legatee ſhall be relieved. Stone 131.

The plaintiff that hath the defendant's body in execution, ſhall not come in to be relieved. Stone 130.

One that hath the bankrupt's body in execution upon a ſtatute merchant, may come in. Stone 131.

And he that hath judgment for a debt may come in before execution. Stone 130.

A. ſeiſed in fee, borrowed money of J. S. on a judgment, and then articled for ſale of the lands to B. and afterwards became bankrupt. The queſtion was upon ſtatute 21 Jac. cap. 19. ſect. 9. the judgment not being executed before the bankruptcy, 650*l.* part of the purchaſe money remained unpaid. It was decreed at the Rolls, that the aſſignees convey the premiſſes to B. as A. had articled to do, and thereupon B. to pay the aſſignees the 650*l.* for the benefit of the creditors, and J. S. to come in for a proportion only with the reſt of them. Will. Rep. 737.

But though J. S. could not come in upon the bankrupt's eſtate for more than his proportion with the other creditors, yet it was inſiſted, that he ſhould be at liberty to extend his judgment againſt the purchaſer who bought the land prior to the bankruptcy, which ſeems to be admitted; but that B. could not be deemed a purchaſer until he had paid the remainder of the money, which, when paid, muſt go to the creditors, and that he was not compellable to pay it, unleſs upon his having a good title made him by the aſſignees, who had the legal eſtate of the premiſſes aſſigned to them by the commiſſioners, and ſo decreed as above. Will. Rep. 739.

If there be an act of bankruptcy committed, and a creditor obtains a judgment ſubſequent to it, then a commiſſion is taken out; now the judgment is thereby avoided. 12 Mod. 446.

Rent due to a landlord is a debt of the higheſt nature, and affects the goods, chattels, and ſtock of the tenant upon the premiſſes; and (if there is no ſeizure made by the landlord) in the caſe of an execution or extent, a year's rent is to be reſerved for him, as appears by the ſtatute 8 Ann. c. 14. ſect. 1.

But in commiſſions of bankruptcy it is otherwiſe, and no commiſſion can remove or carry away any goods belonging to the bankrupt, if the landlord ſeizes for the rent before the goods are removed, and he is to be the firſt diſcharged, even if there are ſeveral years rent in arrear; but if the landlord does not ſeize before the commiſſion of bankruptcy carries away the goods from off the premiſſes, he muſt then come in as a creditor for his rent, with the reſt of the bankrupt's creditors. Dav. 314.

Alſo if there are not ſufficient goods upon the premiſſes to pay the landlord's rent, he can then only take what goods there are upon the premiſſes, and after they are appraiſed and ſold, as the law, in caſes of diſtreſs for rent, directs; then the landlord may come in as a creditor for the rent remaining due to him, with the reſt of the creditors under the commiſſion. Dav. 314.

On a diſtreſs for rent, goods were ſold, and 77*l.* 3*s.* remained in the conſtable's hands, who became a bankrupt. The tenant dies, and his executors pray to be paid this money by the aſſignees, in preference to other creditors.

Objection; This comes to the hands of the conſtable by due courſe of law, and cited Mar. 9, 1721. Lord Macclesfield ex parte Peviſon, where was cited Wright v. Dixon, Mich. 6 Geo. 1. C. B. Goods taken in execution by Wilcox, bailiff of Weſtminſter, and he died, judgment and execution ſet aſide, and ruled by B. R. that the widow and executrix of W. ſhould refund the money, tho' ſhe alledged ſhe had not aſſets to pay ſpecialties.

But per Lord Chancellor Hardwicke, both the caſes cited are againſt executors, and though the law makes a difference between one creditor and another, yet in caſe of bankruptcy all creditors are upon an equal foot; if any thing remain in ſpecie, it might be otherwiſe; but here the money is imbeziled by the conſtable; ſo ordered the petitioner to come in as a creditor with the reſt. 7 Vin. Abr. 74. pl. 7.

An attorney had been employed by one who became bankrupt; aſſignees petition to have up papers, and that the attorney might come in for his demands pari paſſu with other creditors.

Lord Chancellor Hardwicke: The attorney hath a lien upon the papers, in the ſame manner againſt aſſignees as againſt the bankrupt; and though it doth not ariſe by any expreſs contract or agreement, yet it is as effectual, being an implied contract by law; but as to the papers received after the bankruptcy, they cannot be retained; and therefore, if the aſſignees deſire it, let the bill be taxed, and upon payment papers delivered up; and although the attorney had come in and proved his debt, yet a creditor who hath a ſecurity may properly come in and prove his debt, becauſe poſſibly his ſecurity may prove deficient. 7 Vin. Abr. 74. pl. 8.

A. lends money to B. and C. on their bonds, B. becomes bankrupt, the commiſſioners aſſign the eſtate in truſt for the creditors.

A. ſues the bond againſt C. and gets judgment, and takes him in execution by a ca. ſa. and thereupon C. paid A. 24*l.* but being old and poor, A. conſented to diſcharge him out of cuſtody. Ld. C. Harcourt decreed A. to come in as a creditor for a moiety of what remained due on the bond, for the execution being ſubſequent to the aſſignment of the bankrupt's eſtate, ſhall not (at leaſt in equity) diſcharge A.'s demand out of the bankrupt's eſtate; but becauſe each in equity was liable but to half the debt, and C. was not the original debtor for the whole, A. ſhall have relief only for a moiety of his remaining debt againſt the aſſignees; but had the bankrupt been the original debtor, and had borrowed all the money, then A. ſhould come in before the aſſignees, as a creditor for all his debt.

P. had a current account with B. a banker, and had 3000*l.* in B.'s hands; B. paid P. 1000*l.* and P. inſtead of a receipt, gave B. a promiſſory note; B. aſſigned the note to H. and afterwards B. became a bankrupt; H. ſued the note, and P. not being able to prove on the trial, that B. was bankrupt at the time of the aſſignment, H. recovered; P. brought a bill for an injunction, and for a diſcovery whether the aſſignment was not made after it bore date; it was inſiſted, that though this was a promiſſory note, it ſhould be conſidered only as a receipt, he having at that time money in his hands, and it could not be imagined he intended to be liable on the note at the ſame time that ſo much money was due to him; and if ſo, the 1000*l.* ſhould be taken as ſo much money paid, and deducted out of the 3000*l.* ſo ſhould come in for his diſtridistributive share of 2000*l.* of the bankrupt's estate, and not be a creditor for 3000*l.* and pay the 1000*l.* note; no proof was made of the bankruptcy at the time of the assignment, only that he could not pay it, but never kept out of the way. Lord Chancellor King; That does not amount to any act of bankruptcy; and if people are so careless to give notes instead of receipts, it is more fit they should suffer than innocent people, who know nothing of their transactions; bill dismissed. Select. Ca. in Ch. 42, 43.

A clothier became a bankrupt; the question was, whether his factor having cloths in his hands of the bankrupt's, might thereout retain his debt, or must come in as a creditor under the statute, and accept of a satisfaction in proportion with other creditors, and account for the cloths he had in his hands. 2 Vern. 254. See the next division of this title.

A. by articles was to build certain houses; B. furnishes him with materials, and takes an assignment of the articles for his security, but before the assignment A. was a bankrupt.

Lord Chancellor Cowper: B. has a special equity, in as much as by what he had advanced A. was enabled to perform his agreement to the common benefit of the creditors, and therefore B. shall have all his money he advanced after he had a specifick interest in the articles; but as to what he gave credit for before, he trusted as another creditor.

And Lord Chancellor put the case of A. in building a ship, he becomes a bankrupt, and after B. furnishes materials to finish it; B. shall have all his money, and not come in average with the other creditors. 7 Vin. Abr. 73. pl. 4.

A. lent money to a bankrupt after a commission of bankruptcy sued out against him. Trevor and Hutchins Lords Commissioners held, that he could not come in as a creditor, but was excluded; but Lord Rawlinson doubted, and took it to be a new point not yet settled, and that there were no words in the act to exclude him; but Lord Trevor and Hutchins held, that when the commission was sued out he was bound to take notice. 2 Vern. 157, 161.

A bankrupt is committed by commissioners, because he will not answer interrogatories; the gaoler gives him credit for victuals, he shall not be relieved, although he come in before distribution, or any man that trusts him after. Stone 131.

If a man trade with a bankrupt between the act of bankruptcy and the commission sued out; whether by delivery of goods, or payment of money, without notice of the act of bankruptcy, the bankrupt keeping open trade, such person shall come in as a creditor for such goods or money. 7 Vin. Abr. 69. pl. 6.

Creditors shall be admitted to prove debts, due at a future day. See stat. 7 Geo. 1. c. 31. sect. 1, 2. under the first division of this title.

A trader contracted with the East India company at one of their sales for the purchase of a parcel of East India goods, to be paid for at a future day, and before the day of payment he became a bankrupt. Lord Chancellor King held the case not within the statute, because the goods were not delivered, nor the contract signed by the party. Ex parte of the East India company. 2 Will. Rep. 396.

And at this day, if a bond or note be given by a trader upon a contingency, and before it happens the trader becomes a bankrupt, and then the contingency happens, this is not within the act, neither shall the debt arising after the bankruptcy be satisfied under the commission. Per Lord Ch. King, in case of the East India company. 2 Will. Rep. 397. Mos. 28, 79. 2 Stra. 269. 2 Ld. Raym. 1549. Barnard. K. B. 59.

Upon a treaty of marriage between the plaintiff's nephew and the defendant's daughter, a settlement was agreed upon, and articles entered into between plaintiff and defendant, and also before the marriage, the plaintiff, by a separate writing, reciting, that a marriage was intended, and in consideration thereof the plaintiff promised and agreed to pay the defendant 40*l.* a year by quarterly payments, during the plaintiff's life; but if the intended husband and wife, or either of them, should die during the defendant's life, then the annuity to cease. This agreement was signed and sealed by the plaintiff; the marriage was had, and settlement made according to the articles. The plaintiff soon after became a bankrupt, and in all things conformed to the acts relating to bankrupts, and had his certificate confirmed. The defendant did not come in under the commission, but afterwards for two years and a half's annuity accrued since his bankruptcy, brought action of covenant; it was tried per Ch. J. King. The now plaintiff pleaded the bankruptcy and certificate, and it was strongly insisted, that it was within the statute of the seventh of the present King, whereby persons intitled to notes payable at a future day, should come in under the statute, and a value set on the debt, with rebate of interest; but the Ch. J. was of opinion, this agreement was not within the statute; the rather, because of the impossibility of setting a value on this annuity, being on three contingencies, and verdict for the now defendant; but upon the now plaintiff's importunity, the point was referred to be argued in the court of C. B. which was done accordingly, and all the judges were of the same opinion. Plaintiff brought a bill for an injunction.

First, On suggestion that this agreement was a fraud, being private, and not in the articles.

Secondly, For the verdict was against conscience, for that the now defendant ought to have come in under the statute, being within the late act; but on motion for continuing the injunction the Master of the Rolls said, had it been res integra he knew not what he might have done, but now the point was determined at law, so disallowed the cause, for that there was no fraud. 7 Vin. Abr. 71. pl. 4.

If J. S. gives a bond to certain persons conditioned for payment of so much, in case he shall marry such a woman, and that she shall survive him, but in trust for said woman, her executors, &c. and afterwards J. S. marries her and becomes bankrupt, and has his certificate of discharge, and dies, living his said wife; the court held that this was not barred, for that it was not within the above statute, it being uncertain whether this bond should ever become payable or not, by reason of its depending on two contingencies, which had not both happened at the time of the act of bankruptcy committed, and so it was impossible to make abatement of 5*l. per cent.* as the act directs. 2 Ld. Raym. 1546. 2 Stra. 868.

The above statute of 7 Geo. extends only to creditors at a future day certain, and not mere contingent creditors, as the above case is; and it seems clear, that a cerditor could not be prejudiced for not coming; for if he had come in, it would have done him no service; and judgment for the plaintiff nisi, and says this matter came on again next term, and the court was of the same opinien. Barnard. K. B. 59.

Edward Cock on marriage, by articles, 1716, covenanted to pay trustees 4000*l.* in case he should die, leaving a son and other children, who should arrive to twenty-one, equally, &c. C. becomes a bankrupt, and has a son and four other children, all infants, who prefer a petition, praying, that sufficient part of the estate might be set apart in order to be divided when, &c. Ld. Chan. Hardwicke; It is uncertain, whether ever any thing will become due; and before 7 Geo. 1. cap. 31. it was a question, whether bonds or promissory notes, payable at a future day, though certain, in all events could be let in, and the difference now in such cases is to be adjusted by rebate of interest. But here how is it possible to adjust the difference upon a contingency, which may never happen: he allows the case upon bottomree bonds, where contingency had happened before a distribution actually made. Objection; That this demand will be discharged by certificate by stat. 5 Geo. 2. cap. 30. But Lord Chancellor; That clause only relates to inrolling proceedings, and this is not a debt due or arising at the time of the bankruptcy. Petition dismissed. Ex parte Jefferies. 7 Vin. Abr. 72 pl. 7.

In a question about a bankruptcy, the Chief Justice held, that though the preamble of 7 Geo. cap. 31. speaks only of bonds given for goods in trade, payable at a future day, day, yet the enacting words extend to all ſorts of bonds for the payment of money; and that the words ſuch ſecurity, do not mean ſecurity for ſuch a ſort of debt, but ſecurity by bonds, bills, notes, &c. 2 Stra. 1211.

A creditor on a bond, with condition to pay money at a future day, ſubſequent to an act of bankruptcy, could not, before 7 Geo. c. 31. be admitted to prove ſuch debt, or to have any dividend before ſuch ſecurity became payable; and that act recites it to have been a queſtion; for remedy whereof that act was made, and ſo was the opinion of all the judges. 2 Ld. Raym. 1549.

Creditors taking bills, bonds, notes, payable at a future day, may petition for a commiſſion. Stat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. ſect. 22.

Obligee in any bottomree or reſpondentia bond, and the aſſured in any policy of inſurance, are admitted to claim. Stat. 19 Geo. 2. c. 32. ſect. 2.

Creditors, how to prove their debts, &c. See ſtat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. ſect. 24, 26, 27, 29, 30, 32. under the firſt diviſion of this title.

A creditor offered proof of his debt, which the commiſſioners diſallowed, whereupon application was made to the court, who at firſt declined to meddle with it, but at length conſented to hear the proof. Ch. Ca. 275.

A commiſſion of bankruptcy was taken out againſt T. F. the ſeventeenth of November 1676, but proſecuted only by R. the other creditors conſenting, that execution of the commiſſion be forborn a month; but R. did not conſent thereto, nor know thereof; but R. proſecuted and ſued M. who had poſſeſſed the eſtate by aſſignment of the bankrupt. It was inſiſted at the trial, that F. (the ſuppoſed bankrupt) was not ſo. R. had a verdict, and the four months were out; three weeks after ſhe petitions to be admitted into the diſtribution, and now would contribute to the charges, the ſuſpenſion of executing the commiſſion having been ſo ordered by the Chancellor; and now his Lordſhip directed her to be admitted into contribution. Ch. Ca. 307.

After diſtribution and four months it was admitted arguendo, that other creditors could not come in to diſturb the firſt diſtribution, but might come in for the reſidue, of which no diſtribution was made. 2 Ch. Ca. 153, 154.

If a trader, being indebted on ſimple contract, pledges goods for the payment, and promiſes intereſt, ſuch creditor ſhall have intereſt, even between the act of bankruptcy and the commiſſion; and for debts on ſpecialty, the creditor ſhall have intereſt as well between the act of bankruptcy as before. 7 Vin. Abr. 110. pl. 1.

A mortgagee ſhall have his intereſt run on upon a bankrupt's eſtate, becauſe he hath right in rem; but as to other intereſt, it ceaſeth on the bankruptcy. 7 Vin. Abr. 110. pl. 3.

8. Of ſetting off, ſubmitting to arbitration, and compounding debts due to the bankrupt.

Where there is mutual credit between a bankrupt and a creditor, the balance ſhall only be paid, and the clauſe in the ſtatute is not to be conſtrued of dealings in trade only, or in caſe of mutual running accounts, but alſo where one credit is upon mortgage, and the other upon note, per Lord Cowper; and he ſaid, that in all caſes of mutual credit, it is natural juſtice and equity, that only the balance ſhould be paid. Will. Rep. 325, 326.

Sir Stephen Evans, in the year 1711, had 5000 l. ſtock in the Hudſon's Bay company, and was their banker or caſhier, and upon that account was indebted to the company in 800 l. and ſoon after became a bankrupt: The aſſignees bring a bill againſt the company to transfer the 5000 l. ſtock to them, with all dividend due thereon: the company, by their anſwer, inſiſt, that, by virtue of a by-law in theſe words, viz. That the ſtock and dividend of each adventurer ſhall be obliged for ſuch debts and engagements as ſuch adventurer ſhall become engaged in to the company, and that the committee of the company for the time being ſhall and may diſtrain the ſame, until ſuch debts and engagements are fully ſatisfied; the company is not obliged to transfer the ſtock to the complainants, until they pay the 800 l. due to the company, and they likewiſe inſiſt upon the clauſe in the ſtatute of bankrupts, 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. ſect. 28. and that Sir Stephen Evans having credit in their books for 5000 l. ſtock, and the company on the other ſide having credit in Sir Stephen Evans's book for 800 l. they ought to deduct and have an allowance of the 800 l. out of the 5000 l. ſtock.

It was argued for the plaintiffs, that the by-law to diſtrain the adventurers ſtock for a debt due to the company was contrary to law, and void by law; that it gave the preference to a ſimple contract before a debt by ſpecialty or judgment; and it ſubverted the legal courſe of adminiſtration; that if an adventurer died indebted by ſimple contract to the company, that debt by ſimple contract would be ſatisfied before debts by ſpecialty or record to other perſons; that this by-law was contrary to the ſtatutes of bankrupts, which make all debts equal, and to be paid pari paſſu, which is moſt agreeable to natural juſtice and equity; and ſuppoſing it might bind the adventurer himſelf as an agreement, yet it would not bind the aſſignees, who are truſtees for the creditors, and the ſtock and effects of the bankrupt veſted in them by act in law, and by the party: that this caſe was out of the clauſe of the ſtatute 5 Geo. cap. 30. of ſtating accounts where mutual credit had been given; that clauſe extends only to mutual debts; here the company is not mutual debtors to the proprietors of the ſtock, nor can they demand the value of the ſtock from the company; the company is only a a truſtee for the proprietor, and not their debtor, &c.

It was argued for the defendant, that this was a good by-law to bind the members of the company; that ſuch an agreement among partners in trade would be good; that if any of the partners borrowed or took any money out of the joint ſtock, that his ſhare and intereſt in the joint ſtock ſhould be liable to make ſatisfaction for ſuch debt; that the company, having the controul and power over the proprietor's ſtock, might reaſonably detain the ſtock, until they were ſatisfied for a debt due to them from ſuch proprietor; that the aſſignees were in the ſame condition with the bankrupt himſelf, they ſtand in his place, and muſt take eſtate and effects, ſubject to the engagements and charges they were liable to in the hands of the bankrupt. Secondly, That this caſe was within the clauſe of the ſtat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. of mutual credit, &c. and that Sir Stephen Evans was a creditor of the company for his 5000 l. ſtock, and the company a creditor of Sir Stephen Evans for the 800 l. due to them; that the ſtock is called credit in the books of the company, and he has a demand againſt the company for the intereſt and produce of the ſtock; and though there was nothing due to Sir Stephen Evans for dividends at the time of his bankruptcy, yet the ſtock itſelf was a debt from the company, and ſo within the clauſe of the act for ſetting one debt againſt another, and only the balance due to Sir Stephen's aſſignees; that it would be unreaſonable, where there are mutual dealings and credit, that the debtor to the bankrupt ſhall be bound to pay the whole due from him to the bankrupt's eſtate, and he contra ſhould only come in as a creditor under the commiſſion for all due to him, and receive perhaps only two or three ſhillings in the pound for his whole debt, &c.

King C. was of opinion, that the by-law was not good; it was aſſuming a legiſlative power, and altering the law; it was different from an agreement between private partners in trade; theſe ſort of companies were of a publick nature, all people were admitted into them, and great part of the perſonal eſtates of the kingdom were inveſted in them; that it not only made debts by ſimple contract equal to ſpecialty and judgment, but gave them the preference; it gave them a power to attach their creditors effects, and to be their own carvers; it ſubverted the legal courſe of adminiſtration, and was inconſiſtent with the ſtatutes of bankrupts, which make all debts equal, &c.

But Raymond Ch. J. and Mr. Baron Price, who aſſiſted his lordſhip, thought it a good by-law; it extends only to their own members, and tends to the benefit and advantage of the corporation. All by-laws for the benefit and advantage of trade are good, unleſs ſuch by-laws be unreaſonable or unjuſt; that this, in their opinion, was neither; not unreaſonable, becauſe it extends only to their own members, whoſe conſent is implied in all by-laws, and every man that buys ſtock muſt take it ſubject to the engagement laid upon ſuch ſtock by the company; it is not unjuſt, becauſe the ſtock is only to be retained as a pledge till the debt be ſatisfied, which every debtor in juſtice is bound to do; that the aſſignees ſtand in the place of the bankrupt, and can be in no better condition than the bankrupt himſelf.

King, C. ſaid, I think this caſe is within the clauſe of the ſtatute 5 Geo. cap. 30. of ſetting off debt againſt debt, ſo need not give any direct opinion as to the by-law: here is mutual credit given, and therefore I think the company may retain the 800*l.* due to them out of the dividends due to the bankrupt's eſtate, ſubſequent to the bankruptcy, and ſhall not be obliged to come in as a creditor under the commiſſion; and decreed accordingly. Gibſon et al', aſſignees of Sir Stephen Evans, a bankrupt, v. Hudſon's Bay Company. 7 Vin. Abr. pl. 2. Stra. 645.

The petitioner was indebted to Woodward, a banker, upon account of caſh notes that he had accommodated him with, and whilſt he was ſo indebted Woodward became a bankrupt, and the aſſignees under the commiſſion againſt Woodward had brought an action againſt Riley for the money; it happened that Riley, againſt whom the action was brought, and one Chapman, who were joint-partners, were creditors of the bankrupt Woodward on other accounts, more than Riley on his own ſeparate account really owed to Woodward; therefore Riley inſiſted, as there was a mutual credit between him and the bankrupt, one debt ſhould be ſet againſt another; and that it would be hard, that aſſignees under the commiſſion ſhould recover the whole againſt him, and he and his partner come in only under the commiſſion proportionably for what Woodward owed them with other creditors. It was inſiſted for the petitioner, that altho' the 5 Geo. as to mutual credit was expired, yet this caſe was within the equity of the ſtatute 2 Geo. 2. c. 22. ſect. 13. [made perpetual by 8 Geo. 2. c. 24. ſect. 4.] for relief of inſolvent debtors, whereby mutual debts are to be ſet one againſt the other, upon notice given, &c. and that it had lately been determined in a caſe where Woodward's aſſignees were parties, and a debtor of Woodward's, though a creditor in other reſpects, ſhould have one debt ſet againſt the other upon the footing of mutual credit by the commiſſioners.

It was ſaid, on the other ſide, that joint debts cannot be ſet againſt a ſeparate demand due to the bankrupt.

King, Chancellor, was of opinion, that the caſe was not within the meaning of the ſtatute 2 Geo. 2. of one debt being joint and the other ſeparate; but if Woodward had been indebted to Riley ſingly, he thought that was a mutual credit within the ſtatute; and though in ſuch caſe the ſtatute ſpeaks only of ſetting one debt againſt another upon trials, yet commiſſioners of bankruptcy are within the equity of the ſtatute, and may allow of mutual debts being given in diſcharge, upon the demand of aſſignees. Ca. Temp. King, &c. 24.

In aſſumpſit the defendant was proved to be indebted to the bankrupt in 208*l.* by a ſet-off, and bringing money into court, this whole demand would be diſcharged, if the defendant was intitled to be allowed 127*l.* upon a note of this bankrupt's, which he claimed as indorſee; the caſe as to which was thus:

One Scott, who was poſſeſſed of this note at the time of the bankruptcy, applied to the defendant, who he knew owed more money to the bankrupt's eſtate, deſiring him to take the note and claim a credit for it, on ſettling with the aſſignees, according to the above clauſe of the ſtatute; the defendant ſcrupled it, and the bankrupt would not conſent; but at laſt the defendant ventured, upon Scott's indorſement (who he ſaid was a good man) to pay the 127*l.* and upon notice to ſet off, produced the note; Strange oppoſed its being allowed, it appearing to be an indorſement after the bankruptcy; whereas the words of the act are mutual debts before; and it was an unjuſt attempt in Scott to give twenty ſhillings in the pound; but the Chief Juſtice conſidering it might be dangerous to inquire into the preciſe time of indorſing negotiable notes, directed the jury to allow it, which, with much difficulty, and merely in deference to his opinion, they did. But upon motion for a new trial, the verdict was ſet aſide, with the concurrence of the Chief Juſtice; the words of the act being as before ſtated, and the defendant having no right to ſtand in a better condition than Scott, who could only come in for a dividend; beſides, it would be of ill conſequence in trade, if debtors to the bankrupt's eſtate ſhould be allowed to buy up debts, in order to ſet them off in this manner: they gave no opinion how it would be, if the nature of the tranſaction, and the time of the actual indorſement, did not appear. 2 Stra. 1234.

Diſputes may be ſubmitted to arbitration, and compounded. See 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. ſect. 34, 35. under the firſt diviſion of this title.

F. being a goldſmith in London, and being diſabled, agreed with moſt of his creditors to aſſign over all his eſtate upon oath, to ſeveral perſons in truſt, for the payment of his debts, as far as his eſtate would pay, he having ſuch allowance for himſelf and family as was agreed upon; and moſt of the creditors ſigned the ſaid agreement; but ſome of the perſons that ſigned, finding that F. had done ſome act in violation of the agreement, took out a commiſſion of bankruptcy againſt the ſaid F. and ſeized all the eſtate they could come by, and pretended, that ſome of the creditors aforeſaid, that ſigned the agreement, and that were not privy to the ſuing out the commiſſion, had notice in due time, though they had neglected the ſame, and that it was ſeven months from the date of the commiſſion before the commiſſioners aſſigned; and F. and other perſons concerned in the firſt agreement, and excluded by the commiſſion of bankruptcy, being not compriſed, as aforeſaid, preferred their bill againſt the aſſignees of the commiſſion of bankruptcy to have the agreement performed, or at leaſt to be admitted to an equal dividend with them; but this court would give no relief therein; and the rather, for that it was made appear that F. had made a ſale of ſome of the goods he aſſigned to the creditors, but diſmiſſed the bill. Chan. Ca. 18, 19.

Scire facias on a judgment, the defendant pleaded a compoſition for 2*s.* in the pound; ſo that it be paid within five years after the major part of his creditors in number and value ſhall ſubſcribe the ſame compoſition, and after the defendant ſhould be diſcharged from impriſonment; and upon a demurrer to this plea, Holt Ch. J. was of opinion, that a compoſition, by virtue of the ſtatute, muſt be final, and ſuch as will bind the defendant, and from which he cannot vary; that thoſe words ſo that, in things executory (as in this caſe) make a condition precedent; but in eſtates executed, they make a condition ſubſequent; and ſo is Littleton to be underſtood; that the payment of 2*s. per* pound, being a condition precedent to this agreement, and wholly in the power and will of the defendant 'till it is paid, it is therefore no compleat agreement; and conſequently not within the ſtatute: and this caſe is the ſtronger againſt the defendant, becauſe it does not appear by his plea, that he was in priſon; ſo that this condition precedent may be impoſſible to be performed, and conſequently the agreement can never ariſe. It is true, it might have been otherwiſe, if 2*s.* in the pound had been agreed to be paid within the five years, in the nature of a defeaſance to the agreement; for this ſtatute operates as a defeaſance. 3 Salk. 59.

An objection was made to a compoſition, for that the agreement appeared to be only to, for, and with, thoſe creditors who were parties, and had ſigned the compoſition; but this objection was diſallowed, becauſe the ſtatute makes this an agreement for the reſt. 3 Salk. 60.

The ſtatute of two-thirds in number and value was pleaded in bar; and the defendant, to bring himſelf within the benefit of the ſtatute, ſhews, that he abſconded at the time mentioned by the ſtatute, but did not ſhew for what he abſconded; and for this the plaintiff had judgment on demurrer. 2 Ld. Raym. 810.

When one pleads the ſtatute of two-thirds, if he would take advantage of the clauſe of being in cuſtody, he muſt ſhew it to have been on the 17th of November; if of the clauſe of abſconding, he muſt ſhew he abſconded for debt at the time of the ſtatute made; and Holt ſaid, he took the he ſtatute to be a private law; for though it concerned a great many, yet it concerned a particular ſort of people, and here the plaintiff had judgment, becauſe the defendant did not ſhew in his plea, that he abſconded at the time of the act made, but only ſaid it was on the 17th of November. 2 Ld. Raym. 811.

9. Of diſtributing the bankrupt's eſtate.

See ſtat. 1 Jac. 1. c. 15. ſect. 4. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. ſect. 1, 2, 3, 4, 25. under the firſt diviſion of this title.

A commiſſion of bankruptcy was taken out againſt T. F. the 17th of November 1676; but proſecuted only by R. the other creditors conſenting that execution of the commiſſion be forborn a month; but R. proſecuted and ſued M. who had poſſeſſed the eſtate by aſſignment of the bankrupt. It was inſiſted upon at the trial, that F. (the ſuppoſed bankrupt) was not ſo. R. had a verdict, and the four months were out; three weeks after, ſhe petitions to be admitted into the diſtribution, and now would contribute to the charges, the ſuſpenſion of executing the commiſſion having been ſo ordered by the Chancellor; and now his Lordſhip directed her to be admitted into contribution. Ch. Ca. 307.

After diſtribution and four months, it was admitted, Arg. That other creditors could not come in to diſturb the firſt diſtribution, but might come in for the reſidue, of which no diſtribution was made. 2 Ch. Ca. 153, 154.

Upon view of the ſtatute of 13 Eliz. c. 7. and 1 Jac. it was reſolved by the court, that if certain creditors ſue a commiſſion, and others within four months after or more, being creditors, come before contribution and will join in the charges of the commiſſion, and all that belongs to it, and tender their parts, that they ſhall not be refuſed, but have their equal parts as creditors. But if any diſtribution be made of any part of the eſtate, no creditors are to be admitted after, that came not in before. Hob. 287. Hut. 37, 38.

The commiſſioners may ſell and prepare for diſtribution preſently upon the execution of the commiſſion; but until the four months are paſt they may not proceed to diſtribution, for the creditors which inhabit in the remote parts of the realm, perhaps, cannot have notice; and it may be carried ſo ſecretly, that if they might diſtribute preſently, that they which ſued out the commiſſion ſhould be only ſatisfied, when, indeed, there was no default in the others. Alſo it was reſolved, that the offer of creditors to be joined, and before they be partakers, is not an effectual offer, without offering to be contributory to the charges; but to offer any particular ſum is not neceſſary, becauſe they know not what ſum is diſburſed, and that is to be aſſeſſed by the commiſſioners. And the words (for the charge of the commiſſion) is to be extended to all charges ariſing in ſuing forth the commiſſion, and in execution and defence thereof. Hut. 37, 38.

Where there are lands unſold, and the commiſſioners make a diſtribution on a ſuppoſed value thereof, without having any money to diſtribute, this was held by the court to be a good and regular diſtribution; and the words of the act are, "that the commiſſioners ſhall have the ordering of the bankrupt's eſtate," ſo that there is no neceſſity to ſell and diſtribute the money; but if they allot a proportion of the land to each creditor, it is well enough. Lord Hutchins ſaid, that a fraudulent diſtribution may be ſet aſide by the Lord Chancellor, even upon a petition; that it had been ſo done in the Lord Clarendon's time; and in the principal caſe a new diſtribution was ordered to be made, and other creditors not taken in before to have their proportions. 2 Vern. 158.

Bankrupt's goods ſhall be rateably divided, notwithſtanding any judgment, recognizance, &c. See ſtat. 21 Jac. 1. c. 19. ſect. 9. under the firſt diviſion of this title.

Creditors, upon what ſecurity ſoever they be, come in all equal, unleſs ſuch as have obtained actual execution before the bankruptcy, or had taken pledges for their juſt debts; and the reaſon is, becauſe, from the act of bankruptcy, all the bankrupt's eſtate is veſted in the commiſſioners, who are eſtabliſhed as courts of juſtice touching the bankrupt's eſtate, and before whom the creditors muſt authenticate their debts, in order to receive their dividends; and therefore they muſt equally admit all perſons to make proof of their debts; but ſuch as have pawns or mortgages have a property in the thing ſo pledged, precedent to the tranſlation of the property to the commiſſioners, in which caſe they have only an equity of redemption, and are in no better condition than the bankrupt himſelf; that the bankrupt, before the aſſignment of the commiſſioners, has ſuch property as will maintain an action for the recovery of the goods. Bac. Abr. 258. in Notes. See Salk. 108.

One ſeiſed of lands in fee owes a debt by ſtatute, and afterwards becomes a bankrupt, and the creditor by ſtatute extends the lands, then a commiſſion of bankruptcy is iſſued out. Upon a reference by the Lord Chancellor Cowper to the judges of C. B. they held, that the clauſe of the ſtatute was full and plain, that all the creditors of the bankrupt, unleſs where there was a mortgage, ſhould be equally paid. Will. Rep. 92, 93.

And Trevor Ch. J. ſaid, a judgment or recognizance did no more bind the lands, than the teſte of a fi. fa. bound the goods, at the time of the making of this ſtatute; and it was plain, if the fi. fa. was not ſerved and executed, ſuch creditor, notwithſtanding his ſuing out his fi. fa. ſhould come in only in proportion with the creditors, even by a ſimple contract. Will. Rep. 93. Same caſe.

A. being indebted to a feme covert, becomes a bankrupt, the huſband pays the contribution-money, and dies before diſtribution, and then the wife died; the executors of the wife are intitled to the dividend; for the huſband paying the contribution-money, does not alter the property of the debt. 2 Vern. 707.

A. drew a bill of exchange for 100 l. on B. in Holland, payable to C. which B. accepted, and afterwards A. and B. became bankrupts, and C. received 40 l. of the 100 l. out of B.'s effects. Ld. C. Macclesfield directed, that the creditors of A. ſhould come in for the 60 l. reſidue of the 100 l. and that if the 40 l. paid to C. ſhall appear to have been paid out of B.'s own effects, then the creditors of A. ſhall come in for the whole 100 l. out of which they muſt anſwer the other 40 l. to the creditors of B. that being to be taken by A.'s creditors in ſuch caſe only as truſtees for B.'s creditors. 2 Will. Rep. 89.

A. mortgaged lands, and afterwards became a bankrupt. The title of the mortgagee is not to be impeached by the ſtatute; and the mortgagee being a creditor likewiſe by bond, was decreed to come in, he paying his contribution-money. Finch Rep. 466.

Creditors excluded, were let in for their ſhares according to a prior agreement, tho' an aſſignment and dividend had been made of the eſtate. Finch Rep. 326.

Upcot, a merchant, mortgaged lands to W. for 1157 l. and afterwards mortgaged the ſame, together with other lands, to Howell, as a collateral ſecurity for 500 l. due by the ſaid U. to H. by bond, and about ten days afterwards U. was declared a bankrupt; part of the premiſſes were ſold for 1050 l. and the money paid to U. but the commiſſioners refuſing to ſell the reſidue, and the aſſignees refuſing to ſatisfy the demand of H. or to admit him to have any ſhare of the bankrupt's eſtate, he petitioned for a ſale to be made of the reſt of the mortgaged premiſſes, and the money to be applied towards the demands of U. and himſelf; and in caſe of any deficiency, then to be admitted a creditor on the ſaid bankrupt's eſtate, for what ſhould remain due after ſuch ſale and application as aforeſaid, and to ſtay any dividend in the mean time. Whereupon the Lord Chancellor Hardwicke, upon hearing counſel, referred it to the commiſſioners to take an account of what was due to W. and H. reſpectively, for principal and intereſt on their reſpective mortgages, and ordered, that ſo much of the ſaid mortgaged premiſſes as remained unſold, to be ſold to the beſt bidder, and the monies ariſing to be applied to the diſcharge of all principal and intereſt due to the ſaid W. in the firſt place, and then of the ſaid H. together with his coſts of application, by petition to this court to be ſettled by the ſaid commiſſioners; and in caſe the petitioner and aſſignees ſhould differ about the ſame, and if the ſame ſhould not prove ſufficient to pay the petitioner his principal, intereſt and coſts as aforeſaid; then the petitioner to be admitted a creditor for ſuch deficiency, and be admitted to a dividend, &c. for the ſame; and that the ſaid W. and H. be examined touching the account, and to produce upon oath all deeds, books of account, and vouchers, &c. upon the petition of William Hollwell, of Exeter, Eſq; 7 *Vin. Upon petition to Lord Chancellor Hardwicke, the caſe was, Hugh Payne and Deborah Bullock, May 1716, gave bond to Mary Tirrel for payment of 120*l.* In 1727, Mary Tirrel aſſigned the bond to Rachel her daughter, the petitioner; Hugh Payne and Deborah Bullock both died; Hugh Payne died inſolvent, Deborah Bullock left a conſiderable real eſtate, which devolved to Hugh Payne her grandſon; Hugh Payne the grandſon entered, and ſold part of the lands, and after became a bankrupt; his aſſignees were in poſſeſſion of the lands that were Deborah Bullock's, unſold by Hugh Payne the grandſon; the petitioners therefore prayed, that thoſe lands in the hands of the aſſignees might be liable to the bond of Deborah, preferable to the general creditors of Hugh Payne the grandſon. It was inſiſted for the petitioner, that ſince the ſtatute 3 & 4 Will. & Mar. cap. 14. of fraudulent deviſes, lands in the hands of deviſees are made liable to bond debts, as in the hands of the heir, and here the aſſignees ſtand in the place of the bankrupt, and ſubject to the ſame equity, and the bankruptcy and aſſignment is no alienation bona fide within the exception and intention of the ſtatute; and the caſe of executors becoming bankrupts, having aſſets remaining in ſpecie, is common, and always held the creditors of teſtator to have a preference; but it was inſiſted e contra, that there is no ſpecifick lien; the aſſignment is an alienation, and the caſe of executors differs; an executor is looked upon as a truſtee. Lord Chancellor ſaid, This is a point of too much difficulty to determine in this ſummary way; let the petitioner bring his bill by Eaſter term, and ſtay ſufficient of the eſtate in the mean time in the aſſignees hands. 7 Vin. Abr. 101. pl. 12.

Trover for three bank-notes, which were payable to A. and Co. and upon the trial it was objected, that the ſole intereſt of theſe notes was not in A. alone, &c. and that A. had once a partner, one J. who died before the drawing of theſe notes, and ſo the executors having renounced the partnerſhip, were ſtill intereſted in all things relating to their trade; and J. Powell held, that this was true enough; for prima facie the executors of J. ſhall be taken to continue in the partnerſhip until they renounce it; and no renunciation being made out in this caſe, but ſome of the executors having proved the will, they were intereſted in theſe notes too, though they never acted in the trade. 7 Vin. 103. pl. 5.

If a joint commiſſion of bankruptcy iſſues out againſt two joint traders, it was queſtioned, if ſeparate creditors might come in under it; and that they may, it was argued, that if there are two joint traders, and one becomes bankrupt one day, and the other the next day, and a joint commiſſion is taken out, different relations muſt be had under a joint commiſſion with regard to the different times of the bankruptcy; and the diſtribution under it muſt be the ſame, as if ſeparate commiſſions had been taken out; for in both caſes the joint fund is primarily applied to the joint debts, and the ſeparate fund to the ſeparate debts, and then in average to the joint debts, and vice verſa; ſo are the orders in the court of Chancery in the following inſtances, viz. A. and B. were partners, but the partnerſhip being diſſolved, and A. ſetting up for himſelf, became bankrupt, and a commiſſion iſſued out againſt him; the joint creditors were admitted to prove their joint debts under the ſeparate commiſſion, and cites the 22d of January 1738, the caſe of Stephens v. Brown, and Adland——That 22d of April 1729, it was ordered that the joint eſtate ſhould go to the joint creditors, and the remaining part of the joint eſtate, which reſpectively belonged to each, ſhould go to their ſeparate creditors upon a joint commiſſion ſued out againſt the then defendants, and cited Horſey v. Heyham and Heyham. And that 2 Geo. 2. in C. B. two being joint obligors, and afterwards bankrupts, ſeparate commiſſions were taken out againſt them, and the ſeparate commiſſioners refuſing to let in the obligee, he brought an action againſt one of the obligors; but the defendant having got a certificate under the ſeparate commiſſion was diſcharged. Matthews v. Aland; which proves that joint creditors may come in under ſeparate commiſſions; and by the ſame reaſon, ſeparate creditors may come in under a joint commiſſion, and the law being ſo, every aſſignee may recover by ſetting forth the ſpecial matter; and beſides, if the aſſignee of the other part will not join, he may be ſummoned and ſevered; and the court thought the laſt caſe cited came fully to the point of the principal caſe, and therefore inclined to give judgment accordingly. Sed adjournatur. Fitzgib. 281.

Joint debts are to be paid out of the joint ſtock firſt; and if there be any overplus, then that ought to be applied to pay particular debts of each partner; but if there be not enough to pay all the joint debts, and if either of the partners ſhall pay more than a moiety of the joint debts, then ſuch partner is to come in before the commiſſioners of bankrupts, and be admitted as a creditor for what he ſhall pay over and above his moiety. 2 Chan. Rep. 226.

If there be ſeveral joint traders, payment to one of them is payment to all; ſo if they all, except him to whom the payment was made, were bankrupts, the payment is only unavoidable as to his proportion. 12 Mod. 447.

And if there be four partners, whereof three are bankrupts, and their ſhares aſſigned, and a payment was made to him that was no bankrupt, it is payment to all the aſſignees, for now they are all partners. 12 Mod. 447.

On a joint commiſſion of bankruptcy againſt two traders, ſeparate creditors are allowed to come in; for the joint effects are to be applied, firſt to pay the partnerſhip debts, and then the ſeparate debts; and the ſeparate effects to pay firſt the ſeparate creditors, and afterwards the partnerſhip creditors. Per Cowper, Chan. 2 Vern. 706.

Two partners in trade put in each an equal ſtock, and agreed by covenant, that the ſtock ſhould pay the debts of the ſtock, and neither of their ſeparate debts ſhould charge the ſtock, but only his own eſtate, or to that effect; they both became bankrupts, and a commiſſion iſſued againſt them both; one of them owed ſeparately more than the other; the queſtion was between the ſeparate creditors of each bankrupt, and the creditors on account of the joint ſtock, for theſe would exclude the ſeparate creditors from charging the joint ſtock, but that it ſhould ſatisfy the ſtock debts; but the Lord North was of a contrary opinion, for the covenant of the partners cannot bind any of the creditors, but only themſelves. 2 Chan. Ca. 139.

R. S. and G. were partners together in the trade of a dry ſalter: G. embezzles and waſtes the joint ſtock, contracts private debts, and becomes a bankrupt; the commiſſioners aſſign the goods in partnerſhip. Bill by R. the plaintiff for an account, and to have the goods ſold to the beſt advantage, and inſiſted, that out of the produce of of the goods the debts owing by the joint trade ought to paid in the first place, and that out of G.'s share satisfaction must be made for what G. had wasted or embezzled; that the assignees could be in no better a case than the bankrupt himself, and were intitled only to what his third part would amount unto, clear after debts paid and deductions for his embezzlement; and the court seemed to be of that opinion, but sent it to a master to take the account and state the case. 2 Vern. 293.

If one or more of the joint traders become bankrupt, his or their proportions only are assignable by the commissioners to be held in common with the rest, who were not bankrupts. 12 Mod. 446.

10. Of the bankrupt's not appearing, nor discovering his estate; his privilege during his attendance; the allowances to be made him; his discharge and certificate.

See the statute 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. sect. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 8, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 36. and stat. 1 Jac. 1. c. 15. sect. 8. under the first division of this title.

A. was declared a bankrupt, and the commissioners being informed that he was embezzling and concealing his effects, and fraudulently conveying away and alienating his estate, thought it necessary to have him before them, before the first day appointed in the Gazette for his examination; and accordingly, at the request of the petitioning creditor, they summoned him personally to attend them to be examined touching the said complaint; and upon his refusing to comply with the summons, they got a judge's warrant, and the bankrupt, by virtue thereof, was committed to Newgate, and upon his being brought before the commissioners, pursuant to their warrant directed to the keeper of Newgate, and refusing to be examined, they re-committed him to Newgate, there to remain without bail or mainprize, according to the form of the statutes in that case made and provided; and upon the bankrupt's petition, the commissioners right of committing the bankrupt was (among other things) contested; but upon great debate of this matter, Lord Chancellor Hardwicke was clearly of opinion, that the commitment by the commissioners was legal, and therefore his lordship ordered, that such part of A.'s petition as prayed to be discharged out of prison, should be dismissed. 2 Eq. Abr. 99.

In the month of July 1732, a commission of bankrupt issued against Philip de Fries, of Lemon Street, Goodman's Fields, in the county of Middlesex, merchant, and he was declared a bankrupt, and was required to surrender himself to the commissioners on the ninth and sixteenth of August, and the ninth of September following.

Upon the messenger's executing the warrant of seizure, which was three days before the service of the summons upon him, he had without resistance delivered up his keys and effects to the messenger, and promised to submit to the commissioners, and comply with the directions of the act.

The summons was not served upon him until the first day mentioned for his surrender in the Gazette; and about an hour after the service of the summons, and before he surrendered himself, the bankrupt was arrested in his own yard, the bailiff having got over the wall; and he thereupon petitioned the Lord Chancellor, amongst other things, to be discharged, and such petition came on to be heard before he had surrendered himself to the commissioners: and upon hearing the petition, the Lord Chancellor King so far considered what he had done (and which was all that he could then do) as a compliance with the act, that he held he ought to be discharged; but he dissuaded the bankrupt from suing the officer for the penalty; whereupon an order was made accordingly by consent. Dav. 163.

A man rents an house for years, by lease, at C. and becomes a bankrupt, and surrenders all his goods and effects to commissioners, according to the 4 & 5 Ann. and with the rest this lease, and his certificate was allowed; but being taken into custody for non-payment of the rent since, he moved by counsel to be discharged; but the court would not grant it, and forced him to put in bail, for they said the act of parliament did not make void the contract between him and his landlord. 7 Vin. 129. pl. 2.

Two persons, having authority to seize the effects of a bankrupt, broke open a closet, where the bankrupt was, to search for them, and took him on an action, and threw him into the Compter, where he was served with several other actions in custody; it was ordered, that they, at their own costs, should procure him to be discharged out of custody, or to stand committed, being an abuse of the process of the court. Select. Ch. Ca. 64.

In debt on obligation the defendant pleaded, that before the action brought the plaintiff became a bankrupt, to which the plaintiff demurred; and per curiam, It is an ill plea until an assignment be made, the debtor is defenceless, and cited therefore (the case of) Hanson and Hale (that) payment before a commission sued out is well enough, and so it is before his debt be assigned; and judgment for the plaintiff. 3 Keb. 616.

The plaintiff declared upon a promissory-note; defendant pleaded 5 Ann. c. 22. sect. 3. that he became bankrupt such a day, and that before that time he was and still is indebted to J. S. in 100 l. and upwards; that a commission issued, and the commissioners proceeded and made a certificate, that he had conformed in all things to the statute, &c. (according to the common form) and that J. S. refused to subscribe the certificate 'till the defendant gave the aforesaid note in the declaration mentioned, in trust for J. S. whereupon he gave the note in the declaration to the plaintiff, in trust for J. S. intending thereby to induce him to subscribe the said certificate; and this, &c.

The court was of opinion (but Mr. J. Powys seemed of a contrary one) that the defendant ought to set forth his conformity, in all things, to the statute, that it may appear to the court he was such a bankrupt as is intitled to be discharged, which not being done by words in the plea, but only under the certificate of the commissioners, which was set forth, they held the plea ill. Eyre J. likened it to the case of the plea upon the act for discharging of poor prisoners, where the defendant must shew himself out of all the exceptions.

Parker, Ch. Just. said, the intention of the act was, that it might not be in the power of a creditor, who had four-fifths, to discharge the debts of the other fifth part, unless he fairly discharged his own; but there would be no danger of that, unless the bankrupt had so conformed himself, as to be intitled to be discharged by certificate; for otherwise, no injury would be done to other creditors by such note, therefore he thought it would best inforce the intention to make the note good, where the creditors would not be hurt by it; because it would be the greatest punishment upon the bankrupt who intended a cheat. Jackson and Amery. Quære this, and see the act, the express words of which are, that such note shall be void. Gilb. Ca. 140.

The stat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. sect. 7. extends not to debts due to a bankrupt as executor, but it is for this particular reason, because they are appropriated to pay testator's debts; and if they were assigned it would be a wrong, viz. a devastavit; and it being objected, that it extends not to debts due to the bankrupt jointly with another, it was answered by Ld. Ch. J. Parker, in delivering the opinion of the court, that the case cited for that purpose from Lev. 17. is not determined. Will. Rep. 254. Gilb. Ca. 323.

If a bankrupt has a certificate, and an action be brought against him afterwards for a debt precedent to the statute, he may plead his certificate upon the roll, and so prevent a judgment from being entered up afterwards; but having neglected so to do, it was his own default; that a court of equity is not to relieve either his pleading, or his want of a plea, or no proper plea put in in time, nor could he be relieved on an audita querela, because he had an opportunity, and might have pleaded his certificate before the judgment was entered; and upon producing such precedents where bankrupts had been relieved against judgments obtained against them, they did not come come up to the caſe in queſtion; and the petition was diſmiſſed. 2 Vern. 696, 697.

Gore brought an action for rent againſt Bagſhall, a bankrupt, and obtained judgment before his certificate was allowed by Lord Chancellor; and the certificate not being allowed till after the rules of pleading were out, the bankrupt had no opportunity to plead his certificate, and take the benefit of the act 4 Ann. but in the ſcire facias againſt the bail, the certificate was pleaded, and the plea over-ruled, ſo that the bankrupt has no relief but in equity, or by audita qnerela, which is an equitable remedy at law. A motion was made by Sir Joſeph Jekyl for an injunction; but Cowper, C. denied the motion (though Sir Joſeph Jekyl ſaid, there were ſeveral precedents of injunctions of this ſort, but had none ready to produce) becauſe this was a merciful law made in favour of the bankrupt, and in prejudice of the creditors, and therefore not to be extended in equity farther than at law. 7 Vin. Abr. 131. pl. 5.

A. a creditor of B. brought an action at law, and having got judgment took him in execution, on a ca. ſa. afterwards the act of 5 Geo. was made, where by cap. 24. a bankrupt, if he ſurrenders, is examined, and four-fifths in value and number of his creditors ſign his certificate, and teſtify their conſent, &c. is to be diſcharged. After which ſtatute a commiſſion is taken out againſt B. by C. B.'s father-in-law, and A. is perſuaded to come in and be an aſſignee, to prevent the ſinking the eſtate, and getting him diſcharged. The eſtate of B. (beſides what he had before the ſtatute made over to C.) was only ſome few ſhillings and ſome deſperate debts, it was inſiſted that, fraud appearing, equity would not interpoſe in prejudice of an honeſt creditor, and in favour of the bankrupt, which Lord Chan. Parker admitted; and as to A.'s coming in and proving the debt, it was argued, that it might be thought neceſſary, in order to prevent B.'s diſcharge, and this his lordſhip held reaſonable: and that as to not detaining the body, where all the bankrupt's eſtate was to be ſeized, here was no eſtate left to ſeize, all that being made away to C. and that in this caſe A.'s coming in cannot be conſtrued an election to be paid out of B.'s eſtate, and ſo a waiver of his former execution of the body; for here being no eſtate, there could be no election, and A. propoſing to waive any benefit under the commiſſion, his lordſhip ſaid, it ought to be accepted, and refuſed to diſcharge B. Will. Rep. 560.

Such creditors of a bankrupt as come in under the commiſſion, by which all the bankrupt's eſtate both real and perſonal (by means whereof he ſhould pay his debts) was ſeized, ſhall not be allowed to impriſon the bankrupt for not paying thoſe debts. Per Ld. Ch. Parker, who ſaid, he would order his diſcharge out of cuſtody, as to any action brought by thoſe who had come into the commiſſion of bankruptcy, and had ſought relief thereby. And though it was objected, that he ought not to be diſcharged till he had perfected his examination, yet the court held the contrary; for it did not appear, that he had been in in contempt, or refuſed; but if he had, yet when the commiſſion was irregularly ſued out, there ought not to be any proceedings upon it by way of examining the bankrupt, or otherwiſe. Will. Rep. 612.

A creditor came in under the commiſſion, and proved his debt, and after arreſted the bankrupt, who now prayed to be diſcharged. Ld. Ch. King ſaid it has been the conſtruction of equity upon ſtatute of 5 Ann. cap. 17. which diſcharges the bankrupt of his debts, on a certificate, by four-fifths of his creditors, and allowed by the Chancellor, that where a trader becomes bankrupt, and any one of his creditors comes in before (under) the commiſſion to prove his debt, though with deſign only to oppoſe the bankrupt's certificate; yet this is an election to take his remedy for his debt under the commiſſion, and if, pending that, the creditor ſues and arreſts the bankrupt, it is taken to be an oppreſſion, and ordered the creditor, at his own expence, to diſcharge the bankrupt out of cuſtody. 2 Will. Rep. 394.

But if ſuch creditor will waive any benefit under the ſtatute, and ſtay a reaſonable time, and there is an improbability of the bankrupt's being able to gain his certificate ſigned by four fifths in number and value of the creditors, or allowed by the court; in ſuch caſe, if the creditor applies to the court, declaring his conſent to waive any right or ſhare of the bankrupt's eſtate under the commiſſion, and praying, that he may ſue the bankrupt; Ld. Ch. King thought it reaſonable for the court to give leave to ſuch creditor to proceed at law againſt the bankrupt for his debt. 2 Will. Rep. 395.

Bankrupt in priſon on a meſne proceſs at ſuit of A. prayed that A. might make election, whether he would come in under the commiſſion, or take his remedy at law? per Ld. C. Talbot, A. may make a ſpecial election, to take his remedy at law, and to come in under the commiſſion, ſo far as to prove his debt, and aſſent or diſſent to the certificate, becauſe that will affect his remedy at law; but he is to waive any dividend or further benefit under the commiſſion, and accordingly A. made his election in this caſe. 7 Vin. Abr. 134. pl. 19.

F. having proved a debt of 2000*l.* under a commiſſion of bankruptcy againſt one L. and paid contribution, and yet had L. in execution for his debt. An order was made by the late Ld. C. King, that F. ſhould either diſcharge L. or loſe his dividend; and the commiſſioners having certified, that four-fifths in number and value of the creditors had conſented to L.'s diſcharge, excluſive of F. he now petitioned againſt the allowing of the certificate, and that he might be admitted to come in, ſo far under the commiſſion as to have liberty to aſſent or diſſent. Lord C. Talbot ſaid, that it was ſettled on great debate, that a creditor might be at liberty to elect to proceed at law, and, notwithſtanding, have liberty to aſſent or diſſent to the certificate. The caſe of putting creditors to election, is but modern in favour of bankrupts; but if that election is made in general terms, and in conſequence the creditor is to be excluded from a liberty of diſſenting to the certificate, the reſt of the creditors are not only to take all the reſt of the effects, but have it in their power, by allowing the certificate, to bar the other's debts, &c. So that permitting ſuch creditor to aſſent or diſſent to the certificate, is not to give him a benefit, but to prevent his being hurt; and the laſt ſtatute about bankrupts mentions four-fifths of creditors, who ſhall have proved their debts, and not who proved, &c. and ſought relief; and it would be hard to put it in the power of a few ſmall creditors, by conſenting to the certificate, to preclude the other of his debt; and therefore as the court, by equitable conſtruction, puts a creditor to his election for abiding by his remedy at law, or coming in to have his dividend under the commiſſion; ſo by the ſame rule of equity, ſuch creditor renouncing any benefit under the commiſſion, ſhould not be hurt; therefore let F. be at liberty to make a ſpecial election. 7 Vin. Abr. 134. pl. 20.

A creditor petitioned the Lord C. Parker, againſt the allowance of the bahkrupt's certificate, who, in conſideration of the plaintiff's withdrawing his petition, gave him a bond for the whole debt. The certificate was afterwards allowed, and the creditor ſued the bond againſt the bankrupt, who pleaded the act of 5 Geo. 2. and that the bond was obtained in order to procure his diſcharge; but Lord C. Parker refuſed to relieve the bankrupt, and diſmiſſed his bill with coſts. Will. Rep. 620.

Where a bankrupt is in execution before the commiſſion, and the creditors come in and receive a dividend out of the eſtate, the court will put him to his election, either to diſcharge the bankrupt, or renounce the dividend, and this in conformity to the law, where if the creditor will take the debtor in execution, he cannot afterwards take execution by fi. fa. becauſe the body is deemed a ſatisfaction; but otherwiſe, if the creditor takes a fi. fa. firſt, and levies ſhort, &c. there he may take a ca. ſa. afterwards and ſue both, and here A. ſued out a commiſſion of bankruptcy againſt B. in 1726, and after 1727, received a dividend of 2*s.* 6*d.* in the pound, and now lately took B. in execution for the reſt of his debt, and now B. petitioned to be diſcharged, but was denied. 7 Vin. Abr. 134. pl. 17.

Per Lord C. Talbot; Though a creditor of bankrupt under 20*l.* is by the laſt act excluded from aſſent or diſſent to the certificate, yet as he is affected by the conſe-

quence of allowing the certificate, he hath right to petition, and ſhew any fraud againſt allowing the certificate. 7 Vin. Abr. 134. pl. 18.

A queſtion was concerning the form of certificates on the late act; but per Lord C. Parker, the commiſſioners are to certify one day, that the bankrupt has in all things conformed, &c. and then the next day, the creditors certify on the ſame parchment their conſent, at the foot of which the commiſſioners are to certify that the creditors had conſented, according to the terms of the act. 7 Vin. Abr. 132. pl. 9.

A bankrupt ſo found, was ſued for a debt on bond, before his certificate allowed, but he had ſurrendered his effects and ſubmitted to be examined, and his certificate not being allowed, he pleaded non eſt factum, and judgment was given againſt him. He had afterwards a certificate allowed and confirmed. The obligee three or four years afterwards brought a ſcire facias upon the judgment, and the defendant pleaded the ſtat. 5 Ann. c. 22. and that the cauſe of action accrued before his bankruptcy; and upon iſſue joined, it was found againſt the bankrupt, he (as was alledged) not being able to get the commiſſion, or a copy thereof, to produce at the trial, and the plaintiff after had judgment. The plaintiff got an injunction; but the Maſter of the Rolls upon hearing diſmiſſed it, as a matter wholly at law; but upon appeal, Lord C. Macclesfield reverſed the decree, but ſeemed to admit, were the caſe only matter of miſpleading, equity ſhould not relieve; but upon the ſeveral circumſtances of the caſe, a perpetual injunction was granted. 2 Will. Rep. 70.

The defendant and his partner in trade had a joint commiſſion of bankruptcy taken out againſt them, under which they obtained a certificate. The plaintiff was a ſeparate creditor, and had obtained a judgment before the commiſſion or act of bankruptcy; and having now the body of the defendant in execution, the court was moved to diſcharge him, upon the authority of Howard v. Poole, where it was held, that a ſeparate creditor might come in under a joint commiſſion; and alſo on Eq. Caſ. Abr. 55. 2 Vern. 707. 2 Will. Rep. 500. and the court diſcharged him accordingly. 2 Stra. 1157.

If there be two partners, and one of them becomes bankrupt, and on a ſeparate commiſſion being ſued out againſt him, his certificate is allowed; this does not only diſcharge the bankrupt of what he owed ſeparately, but alſo of what he owed jointly, and on the partnerſhip account; becauſe, by the act of parliament, the bankrupt, upon making a full diſcovery, and obtaining his certificate, is to be diſcharged of all debts. Now, as the debts he owes jointly with onother are equally his debts as what he owes on his ſeparate account, conſequently he is to be diſcharged of both his joint and ſeparate debts. And ſo it has been determined by the judges of B. R. By the Lord Chancellor Parker. 3 Will. Rep. 24. in a note.

On a joint commiſſion againſt two partners, the ſeparate creditors, though they have taken out ſeparate commiſſions, ſhall yet be at liberty to come in to oppoſe the allowing of the certificate. 3 Will. Rep. 23.

Where two partners are bankrupts, and a joint commiſſion is taken out againſt them, if they obtain an allowance of their certificate, this will bar as well their ſeparate as their joint creditors. 3 Will. Rep. 24.

Three commiſſions of bankruptcy iſſued at the ſame time; one againſt A. ſeparately, one againſt B. ſeparately, and a joint commiſſion againſt A. and B. as partners, in company; and the bankrupts certificates on the two ſeparate commiſſions were confirmed by the Lord Chancellor, and delivered to them, and four-fifths in number and value of the joint creditors ſigned a certificate for the bankrupts diſcharge on the joint commiſſion.

At the time the joint certificate was to have been confirmed, one of the joint creditors applied by petition to the Lord Chancellor, ſuggeſting, that A. had loſt more than 5*l.* by gaming in one day, within the year before the commiſſion iſſued, and therefore was not intitled to be diſcharged; and the Lord Macclesfield not only refuſed to confirm the joint certificate, but ordered the former ſeparate certificate to be recalled and diſallowed, and allowed the joint certificate as to B. only.

And this being a matter of very great conſequence to A. who had traded very conſiderably; as ſoon as his certificate was allowed, he ordered his caſe to be ſtated, and the opinion of the moſt eminent counſel thereon.

And the queſtions which aroſe upon this caſe were ſeveral:

Firſt, Whether it was in the power of the Lord Chancellor, after a certificate was duly allowed, and delivered to the bankrupt, and enjoyed by him for ſeveral months, to recall the ſame, ex officio, and deprive the party of the benefit of the diſcharge?

If the bankrupt has loſt 5*l.* at one time, and the fact ſhall be proved before the allowance of the certificate, I think the certificate ought not to be allowed by the commiſſioners of bankruptcy, or by the Great ſeal; but if the bankrupt hath conformed in all things, and his certificate hath been allowed, without any objections made upon the account of gaming, by the creditors, I conceive there is not a power given to the Great ſeal to recal the certificate. S. Cowper, 14 June 1725.

The ſecond queſtion was, whether a ſeparate certificate diſcharged the partner from joint debts?

As I was clearly of opinion at firſt, that the bankrupt's ſeparate certificate, ſo long as it continued in force, diſcharged the bankrupt not only from ſuch debts as were owing from the bankrupt on the ſeparate account, but likewiſe ſuch as were owing on the partnerſhip account; ſo I continue in the ſame opinion. I alſo concur in opinion with Mr. Cowper, that the Lord Chancellor cannot legally recal the certificate, after it is once confirmed, upon the account of a fact which was never proved, or never objected to, before the allowance of the certificate.

Another opinion on the ſame queſtions.

Firſt, As to the Chancellor's power of recalling the certificate: This is a queſtion of conſiderable difficulty; but I am rather of opinion, that ſuch a confirmation cannot be revoked, ſo as to prevent the bankrupt's diſcharge; becauſe, by the ſtatutes, conforming to the acts, and a certificate confirmed, is made an actual diſcharge of the bankrupt's debts due at the time of his bankruptcy; and a revocation after the debts are once extinguiſhed, ſeems to come too late.

And as to the ſecond queſtion, whether a ſeparate commiſſion diſcharged joint debts; his anſwer was this;

As this ſtatute extends expreſsly to all debts of A. the certificate is equally a diſcharge as to thoſe debts as well as to others.

There was another queſtion which aroſe in this caſe, which was this:

The ſaid A. before his bankruptcy, being a merchant in London, and in the way of his trade, at the time he became a bankrupt, was indebted to ſeveral perſons in Virginia, and other plantations: and the queſtion was, whether his certificate, when confirmed here, would diſcharge him againſt ſuch debts, in caſe he went into thoſe parts.

And the opinion of the late Lord Talbot, when he was a counſel, was taken thereon, and was as follows.

The effects of A. in the plantations are liable to the commiſſion here, and the right of them is veſted in the aſſignees; and it ſeems reaſonable, that this certificate ſhould be equally extenſive as to his diſcharge: however, as the laws of England, made ſince Virginia and the other plantations were ſettled, do not extend to them, unleſs they are expreſsly named, and as the laws relating to certificates do not expreſsly extend to the plantations, I am of opinion, that a certificate confirmed here will be no diſcharge to A. if a ſuit is commenced againſt him in Virginia, or the other plantations.

C. Talbot, Dec. 24, 1723.

Another opinion on the ſame queſtion.

I am of opinion, that the act of parliament will not extend to any of the plantations, unleſs they had been particularly mentioned, they being governed by particular laws and conſtitutions of their own making. Dav. 343.

In the year 1732, a commiſſion of bankruptcy iſſued againſt Richaad Jackſon, by the deſcription of Richard Jackſon, of Green-Lattice-Lane, London, tea-merchant, and an assignment was made of his estate to Thomas Wright, of Lawrence-Lane, and James Huey, of Aldermanbury, London, merchants, in trust for his creditors.

Upon his first commission he made a discovery of his estate and effects, and four parts in five of his creditors signed his certificate; but the commissioners did not think proper to sign it.

Afterwards he set up the trade of a distiller, in the parish of St. George's, Southwark, and in consequence of such trading he became indebted to several persons, and particularly to one Thomas Sorrel, grocer, in 100*l.* and upwards.

On the 31st of June 1739, Sorrel sued out another commission of bankruptcy against him, by the description of Richard Jackson, of the parish of St. George's Southwark; and he submitted to such second commission, and obtained his certificate, which was allowed by the Lord Chancellor on the 5th of June 1740.

He then set up the trade of a tea-merchant, and contracted several debts, to the amount of several hundred pounds.

In May 1740, Wright and Huey, the assignees in the first commission, preferred a petition in the names of themselves and all the rest of the creditors under the first commission, in order to set aside the second commission, and his certificate, which was advertised in the Gazette to be allowed, unless cause was shewn to the contrary.

And pending this petition, viz. 24th of May 1740, a notice was published in the London Gazette, to the effect following: "The creditors of Richard Jackson, formerly of Green Lattice Lane, London, a bankrupt, who have proved their debts under the said commission, are desired to meet the assignees on Wednesday next, at the Paul's Head tavern in Cateaton Street, at five o'clock in the afternoon, to assent to or dissent from the allowance of the said bankrupt's certificate, now lying before the Right Honourable Philip Lord Hardwicke, baron of Hardwicke, Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain, for confirmation, and other special affairs."

Pursuant to this advertisement, and to circular letters also sent to the creditors under the first commission, the assignees, Huey and Wilcox, and some of the creditors under the first commission, met the creditors under the second commission; and upon payment of a sum of money to them, they agreed to withdraw the petition, which they had preferred to the Lord Chancellor, to set aside the commission, and the certificate advertised to be obtained in pursuance thereof; and Jackson carried on his trade from that time.

Edmund Proudfoot and Thomas Huet, two of Jackson's creditors under the first commission, preferred their petition to the Lord Chancellor; and amongst other things set forth the matters above mentioned; and that Jackson had not made a fair discovery of his estate, and had prevailed on the assignees under the first commission not to attend the petition; and that by means thereof he had obtained his certificate, to their great surprize, who had never consented thereto.

That they were advised that the second commission was obtained fraudulently, and that the issuing the same under these circumstances was irregular, and that the said certificate was obtained, in order to prevent the creditors under the first commission from recovering their debts from the said Richard Jackson, who was then, as they were assured, able to pay all his creditors their just demands.

They therefore prayed, that the commission might be superseded, and that all proceedings under the same, with the bankrupt's certificate, might be set aside, and that the clerks to both the commissions might attend with the proceedings therein.

His Lordship ordered the parties to attend, and that the proceedings under both commissions should be produced.

And soon afterwards such petition came to be heard before his Lordship, and was learnedly argued by the gentlemen at the bar on both sides; and it was admitted, that if a bankrupt had a first commission out against him, and had not obtained his certificate in such first commission, that such second commission could not regularly issue, and that all the proceedings thereon, and the certificate obtained by virtue thereof, was void, and of no effect; and had it been attended with those circumstances only, the petition might not have been improper.

But in this case his Lordship was pleased to make these essential distinctions, and to the effect following:

First, That the parties had acquiesced under the allowance of the certificate under the second commission from the fifth of June 1740, being the time of Jackson's obtaining such certificate, to the 17th of December 1743, being three years and an half, and had never made any complaint of the same.

Secondly, There had been a meeting between the assignees and several of the creditors under the first and second commission, and that the petition, which was intended to be presented to the court for staying Jackson's ceitificate under the second commission, was by the consent of the assignees and the creditors under the first commission, who were present, and had publick notice in the Gazette to meet the assignees and the creditors under the second, and circular letters sent them for that purpose, and that they had agreed that such petition should be withdrawn, in consideration of a sum of money paid by the creditors under the second commission, to the creditors under the first commission; and that this was in the nature of an acquiescence and consent from the creditors of the first commission, that Jackson should have his certificate under the second commission.

Thirdly, That it did not appear to him, but that the petitioners Proudfoot and Huet were well acquainted with the steps that were taken by the assignees and creditors in the first commission, and that they had notice of the same, in regard they had not denied the same in their affidavit, but had only swore, that they did not know, remember, or believe, that they ever consented to the withdrawing the petition preferred by Wright and Huey, to set aside the certificate under the second commission; and that if the assignees had done amiss, the creditors had a remedy against them.

Fourthly, That Jackson had, under the sanction of the court, carried on a considerable trade, and that it would be contrary to the justice of a court of equity, to prejudice innocent persons, who might have been induced to have given future credit, believing him to be a free person, on having such certificate; and the consequence would be, that all his dealings from that time must be opened and unravelled.

And for these reasons, amongst others, his Lordship was pleased to dismiss the petition. 2 Gen. Syst. 246.

A joint commission was taken out against the defendant and partner, and an allowance of the certificate of the commissioners of bankrupts was obtained by the Lord Chancellor, pursuant to the statute 5 Geo. 2. and the defendant was now sued by the plaintiff for a debt due on his separate account, and arrested; on which it was moved that he should be discharged out of custody upon filing common bail; for the defendant had pleaded in this case, that the cause of action arose before the cause of bankruptcy, and the statute 5 Geo. 2. says, "That in case any such bankrupt shall afterwards be arrested, prosecuted or impleaded for any debt, due before such time as he, she or they became bankrupt, such bankrupts shall be discharged upon common bail." So the only question in this case was, whether the certificate under the joint commission should operate as a discharge of all debts due upon the separate account before the bankruptcy, as it certainly does upon their joint account.

F. for the plaintiff argued, that in a joint commission the separate creditors who come in under that commission, can have no satisfaction for their debts until all the joint debts are paid off; and therefore they ought not to be bound by such a joint commission; and in this case the plaintiff was denied to be admitted a creditor under the joint commission; for this he cited Trin. 11 Ann. Golling and Bunter, to shew that if any doubt arises with the court, they will not admit the party to common bail.

D. The statute is in general words, that the bankrupt shall be discharged, on filing common bail, from all debts owing owing by him before the bankruptcy, and makes no diſtinction between a joint and ſeparate commiſſion.

Ch. J. If there was any doubt in this caſe, the court would not diſcharge the defendant on common bail, according to the caſe cited by Mr. F. but in this caſe I think the defendant ought to be diſcharged on filing common bail, for the ſtatute makes no difference between a joint and ſeparate commiſſion. I have heard it ſaid, that ſeparate commiſſions are often taken out to ſave expence, though I think it is rather to create expence; and I never could ſee any reaſon for taking out both joint and ſeparate commiſſions; for if two partners commit an act of bankruptcy, they are bankrupts in all reſpects, and cannot be ſaid to be bankrupts as to their joint eſtates, and not ſo as to their ſeparate eſtates.

The ſtatute 5 Geo. 2. is general, and takes no notice of ſeparate commiſſions; and a diſcharge under a ſeparate commiſſion has been determined to be a diſcharge of debts owing under the joint trade; before the ſtatute 10 Ann. cap. 15. if there were two partners, and only one party became bankrupt, and a ſeparate commiſſion was taken out againſt him; there was no doubt but the diſcharge of that bankrupt diſcharged him from all debts which he owed in his joint as well as private capacity; but the great queſtion in that caſe was, whether by ſuch diſcharge of the bankrupt, the partner of ſuch bankrupt ſhould likewiſe be diſcharged from ſuch debts as he was diſcharged of; and therefore that ſtatute has enacted, that ſuch partner ſhall not be diſcharged; though if a joint debt is diſcharged by a ſeparate commiſſion, there can be no queſtion but a joint commiſſion will diſcharge a ſeparate debt.

Wherefore, I think clearly, that the defendant muſt be diſcharged on filing common bail.

P. The ſuing out of a ſeparate commiſſion, is only for the benefit of the clerks; and he ſpoke to the ſame effect with the chief juſtice.

L. The caſe of Grace and Higham, Paſch. 4 Geo. 2. [Fitzgib. 281.] was the ſame in effect with this; it was an action againſt the defendant, as indorſor of a note upon his ſeparate credit; and on the evidence at the trial he produced his certificate under a joint commiſſion of bankruptcy; and though, on its being made a caſe and argued here, the court did not determine it, yet they ſeemed ſtrongly inclined to think, that the certificate was a diſcharge of the ſeparate debt. But we are now to take this caſe on the ſtatute and certificate; and the ſtatute ſays, That he who has ſuch certificate ſhall be diſcharged from all debts owing by him before the time of that bankruptcy; therefore we are not to conſider what directions are given in equity, as to the diviſion and diſtribution of the bankrupt's eſtate, and ſo I think the defendant ought to be diſcharged.

P. being of the ſame opinion, he was diſcharged on filing common bail. 2 Gen. Syſ. 246.

A note was given upon a day, promiſing payment a year after; the perſon who gave the note became a bankrupt after the note given, and before the day of payment; and the queſtion was, whether the bankrupt being diſcharged, per ſtat. 5 Ann. and 5 Geo. 2. this note was diſcharged; and per three barons againſt Price, it is not. Bunb. 120.

The defendant, the ninth of May 1734, was bail on a writ of error. On the 25th of October 1734 he committed an act of bankruptcy, and after a commiſſion obtained his certificate. On the 12th of November 1735 the judgment was affirmed; and in debt upon the regognizance he pleaded his diſcharge, and that the cauſe of action aroſe before his bankruptcy: And the chief juſtice on the trial held, that the defendant was not diſcharged according to the caſe of Tully v. Sparkes, (2 Stra. 867.); for this was but a contingent debt, for which the plaintiff could not come in under the commiſſion, the ſtat. 7 Geo. cap. 31. only letting in thoſe where the payment was certain, though future. There was a verdict for the plaintiff. 2 Stra. 1043.

A man was taken upon an attachment for not performing an award; after which he became a bankrupt, and obtained his certificate, and now moved to be diſcharged; but was oppoſed, becauſe (it was ſaid) bankruptcy does not purge a contempt. Sed per curiam, This was a demand for which debt would lie; and the act ſays, he ſhall not be arreſted, proſecuted or impleaded, for any debt due before the bankruptcy. It would therefore be hard to keep him in cuſtody when the duty is diſcharged, and therefore in this caſe he muſt be diſcharged. 2 Stra. 1152.

The defendant gave a bond of indemnity, and before any breach became a bankrupt, and being now ſued, moved to be diſcharged on common bail; but the court compared it to the caſe of Tully v. Sparkes, and ordered he ſhould give ſpecial bail. 2 Stra. 1160.

On a motion to diſcharge the defendant out of execution, as being a bankrupt, on the ſtat. 5 Geo. 2. cap. 30. it appeared, that the debt was contracted before the bankruptcy, and ſued for and recovered pending the commiſſion, and before any certificate obtained, and the judgment was afterwards affirmed on error, and coſts given on ſuch affirmance.

And the court diſcharged him as to all; for not having his certificate he could not plead to the action, and theſe coſts were attendant upon the original judgment, and cannot be conſidered as given for delay of execution, when it appears there ought to have been no execution, though no writ of error had been brought. 2 Stra. 1196.

Action of debt on a leaſe dated in 1727, for two years rent due ſince 1733, at which time the defendant became a bankrupt. He produced his certificate allowed, confirmed and inrolled, and moved that he might be diſcharged on entering a common appearance, which was ordered accordingly, the bankrupt having neither the poſſeſſion nor the legal intereſt of the eſtate. Barn. Not. C. P. 61.

Defendant having produced his certificate as a bankrupt allowed and confirmed, moved for a common appearance in this action, which was debt on bond for payment of money by inſtallments, ſome of which were not payable 'till after the bankruptcy; and the queſtion was, whether this be a debt diſcharged by the certificate or not. After the firſt default of payment, the bond is forfeited, and the penalty is the debt in law. Cur': We will not enter nicely into the matter on bail or no bail; and a rule was granted for common appearance. 2 Barn. Not. C. P. 82.

Defendant, a bankrupt, was rendered in diſcharge of his bail after judgment, and now moved to be diſcharged purſuant to the bankrupt act. Plaintiff objected, that the words of the act extended only to perſons charged in execution, or by virtue of judgments; the judgment appeared to be for a debt due before the bankruptcy, and was entered in Hilary term laſt; the render was in the beginning of April, and the bankrupt's certificate was confirmed the 18th of April. Chapple for defendant urged, that the words of the act extended to bankrupts detained in cuſtody for debts due before they become bankrupts, which debts are diſcharged by the act, let them be detained how they will, in execution or otherwiſe, they are to be diſcharged. Cur', after taking time to conſider, ordered defendant to be diſcharged. Barn. 261.

Rule made abſolute (on affidavits of ſervice, no cauſe being ſhewn to the contrary) for leave to enter an exoneretur on the recognizance of bail. Defendant pending the action having become a bankrupt, and obtained his certificate allowed and confirmed. 2 Barn. 87.

Rule made abſolute to diſcharge defendant, a bankrupt, taken in execution for a debt accrued before the bankruptcy; defendant could not plead his diſcharge in the firſt inſtance, becauſe he did not obtain his certificate until after he was obliged to plead. But it was inſiſted by plaintiff's counſel, that he might have pleaded poſt darrein continuance. Theſe caſes muſt be conſidered equitably. 2 Barn. 302.

Debt upon a bond againſt the defendants Sparkes and May, as executors of William Donelſon, ſetting forth that Donelſon entered into a bond in 800 l. conditioned, that if he, his heirs, executors or adminiſtrators, ſhould pay to the plaintiff 400 l. within two months after the death death of the obligor, in case he shall marry Martha Latimer, and she shall survive him, then the bond to be void. The plaintiff then avers, that the marriage was had, and the wife survived, and the defendants were made executors; but neither they nor the heir have paid the money according to the condition. The defendant May pleads, that he never administred or proved the will, and the plaintiff as to him enters a nolle prosequi. The other defendant Sparkes, prays oyer of the bond, which is set out without the condition; and then pleads, that the obligor was a trader, and after entering into the bond committed an act of bankruptcy, whereupon the creditors petitioned, had a commission, and he was declared a bankrupt, and had his certificate, which was confirmed; to this the plaintiff, having inrolled the condition of the bond in hæc verba, demurred; and defendant joined in demurrer.

It was argued for the plaintiff, that the plea was ill; and it was laid down as a general rule, that a creditor shall not be barred quoad a demand which he cannot come into a distribution for; although to some purpose a bond is debitum in præsenti, yet this is to be considered upon the reason of the several acts relating to bankrupts, which plainly design to bar nobody, but those who can seek relief under the commission; and this is proved by the statute 7 Geo. cap. 31. which recites the inconveniency, that creditors by bond or note, payable at a future day, could not prove their debts before the commissioners, and therefore gives a liberty to prove the debt and have a distribution, making a rebate of interest, where the money is payable at a certain future day, and where the debt arose by the sale of goods. That it could not be done before this act, is proved by the case of Callowel v. Clutterbuck, Pasch. 10 Ann. B. R. which was a note dated the first of January, payable one month after date; the party became a bankrupt the tenth of January; and it was held, that the creditor could not come in for the distribution, for though it was debitum in præsenti, yet the cause of action did not accrue until after the act of bankruptcy.

This demand depends on two contingencies, whether it shall ever arise; first, the marriage taking effect; and secondly, the wife's surviving; and it is impossible to make a rebate of interest, there being no certain time to compute it from. If the bankrupt himself would discharge himself, his plea must be, that the cause of action arose before he became a bankrupt; but could that be said in this case?

For the defendant it was insisted, that the words of 5 Geo. cap. 24. discharged the bankrupt from all debts contracted, due or owing, in the disjunctive, and that this is certainly a debt contracted; were it a bond to the bankrupt on such a contingency, it would certainly be assignable, and it was endeavoured to be proved, that the condition was no part of the bond, but only stayed the effect of it. Sed per curiam, As no cause of action could accrue upon this bond during the life of the bankrupt, the obligee could never come in for a distribution, and therefore shall not be barred. The statute 7 Geo. has not taken in this case, but explains very well what the law is concerning it, and the word debt in 5 Geo. must be expounded a demandable debt; whereas it could never appear during the life of the bankrupt, whether this would ever come to be charged upon his estate. 2 Stra. 867. 2 Ld. Raym. 1546, 1570.

On rule to shew cause, why the defendant should not be discharged out of execution upon the late act of bankruptcy made 5 Geo. 2. Mr. Strange said, the state of the fact was in the manner following: In the months of December and January 1728, the defendant drew his bills of exchange upon one Parminteer and others, beyond sea, which were not accepted. On the thirteenth of the same month of January, a commission of bankruptcy was sued out against the defendant, tested the same day, and in the months of February, March and April following, these bills were returned and protested, and notice of this was given to the defendant. The plaintiff has since brought an action upon these notes against the defendant, as drawer of them, and has obtained judgment, and taken the defendant in execution. On the twenty-fourth of March last, the defendant obtained his certificate, and since has applied for a rule to shew cause why he should not be discharged out of custody upon the late act of parliament that has been mentioned. Mr. Strange said, he did agree, that as no day is mentioned, on which the defendant became a bankrupt, it must be taken that he was a bankrupt only on the day in which the commission of bankruptcy bears teste; and therefore that he was not a bankrupt at the time the bills were drawn; but he observed the cause of this action was the protesting the bills as well as the drawing them. The protesting them was after the commission, and therefore the substance of this case was not within the relief of the statute 5 Geo. 2. but if the substance was, yet he apprehended clearly, that the method of pursuing it was not; for the clause in this statute, which the present motion is founded upon, is the last but two in that act of parliament; and that clause gives suchpersons as obtain certificates before the twenty-fifth of March last, only such relief as was given upon the statute of 5 Geo. 1. which is by plea only of the general issue before trial, and not by motion after judgment and execution. He did agree the statute of 6 Geo. 1. allowed discharges by certificate even upon motion at any time; but this clause in the statute of Geo. 2. having relation to the statute of Geo. 1. and not to the statute of the 6th, he apprehended the party was not relievable in this way upon motion, but must take his remedy by andita querela. Judge Probyn and Judge Lee were only in court; and they said, that this matter came before J. Page at his chambers, and therefore directed it to be moved again, when that judge should be in court.

This matter coming on again, Mr. Folkes argued for the defendant. He said, he did agree, that the statute of 5 Geo. 1. which was mentioned on the former motion, was a temporary act. He did agree, that the statute of 6 Geo. 1. had relation to the former statute; but yet as no time is mentioned for the expiration of that statute, he submitted it; it was a perpetual law, and subsisting at this day. The words of that statute, he said, were, that every bankrupt obtaining a certificate, shall be discharged from all debts due and owing at the time he became a bankrupt. The bills of exchange which the defendant drew, by the very drawing them, became debts of the defendant; for which reason he submitted it, that this certificate was a full discharge of those debts by the words of the act of parliament; but if there was any doubt upon that statute, the act of 7 Geo. 1. has made the present case more clear; for that act provided, that the bankrupt should be discharged from all debts contracted at that time, though payable at a future day. If this was so, he said there would be no doubt as to the second objection that was made upon the former motion, that the present application of discharging the defendant upon motion was very regular. Mr. Strange argued on the other side, and submitted, that it appears from what was allowed by Mr. Folkes, that the statute of 6 Geo. 1. expired with the 5th; and as to the statute of the 7th, the said he apprehended that was confined to such credit only as is given for goods sold in trade, which appears by the preamble of that statute; and he had an affidavit to produce, that the present bills were drawn for money lent the defendant by the plaintiff. But what he principally relied upon in the present case was, that it was incumbent upon the other side to ascertain the time by affidavits, when the defendant became a bankrupt; the act of bankruptcy makes him one, and not the commission. The act of bankruptcy must be presumed to be before the commission, and it might have been so long before, as to have been precedent to the drawing of the bills. This fact, he said, was in their knowledge, and not in the plaintiff's; the proof therefore of that fact was incumbent upon them, and not upon the plaintiff; and if the fact was so, that the bills were drawn after the act of bankruptcy, there was no pretence to say, that the certificate was a discharge of them. The court said, as the fact stands at present, they would take the act of bankruptcy to be just before the suing out the commission; and if the plaintiff insists upon the contrary, if he insists upon it that the present bills were drawn between the act of bankruptcy and the commission, that fact is incumbent upon him to make out; and as he has not done it, they would take it to be otherwiſe. Then as to the ſtatute of 6 Geo. 1. they were of opinion, it was a perpetual act, and they thought the preſent defendant well relievable under it; and if he was not under the ſtatute, they ſhould have thought he clearly would have been under that of the 7th. Accordingly they made the rule abſolute. 2 Barnard. K. B. 251, 255. 2 Stra. 949.

Note: By ſtat. 4 Geo. 3. cap. 36. the ſtat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. concerning bankrupts, is further continued to Sept. 29, 1771, and from thence to the end of the then next ſeſſion of parliament. And with reſpect to perſons intitled to privilege of parliament not paying their debts, the following act (intituled, An act for preventing inconveniencies ariſing in caſes of merchants, and ſuch other perſons as are within the deſcription of the ſtatutes relating to bankrupts, being intitled to privilege of parliament, and becoming inſolvent) was made in the laſt ſeſſion.

Stat. 4 Geo. 3. c. 33. ſect. 1. Whereas merchants, bankers, brokers, factors, ſcriveners and traders, within the deſcription of the ſtatutes relating to bankrupts, having privilege of parliament, are not compellable to pay their juſt debts, or to become bankrupts, by reaſon of freedom of their perſons from arreſt upon civil proceſs; and ſome doubts have alſo ariſen, whether, in caſes of bankruptcy, a commiſſion can be ſued out during the continuance of ſuch privilege: To remedy which inconveniencies, and to ſupport the honour and dignity of parliament, and good faith and credit in commercial dealings, which require, that in ſuch caſes the laws ſhould have their due courſe, and that no ſuch merchants, bankers, brokers, factors, ſcriveners or traders, in caſe of actual inſolvency, ſhould, by any privilege whatever, be exempted from doing equal juſtice to all their creditors; Be it enacted, &c. That from and after the 11th day of May 1764, it ſhall be lawful for any ſingle creditor, or two or more creditors, being partners, whoſe debt or debts ſhall amount to 100*l.* or upwards, and for any two creditors whoſe debts ſhall amount to 150*l.* or upwards, or any three or more creditors whoſe debts ſhall amount to 200*l.* or upwards, of any perſon or perſons deemed a merchant, banker, broker, factor, ſcrivener, or trader or traders, within the deſcription of the acts of parliament relating to bankrupts, having privilege of parliament, at any time, upon affidavit being made and filed on record in any of his Majeſty's courts at Weſtminſter by ſuch creditor or creditors, that ſuch debt or debts is or are juſtly due to him or them reſpectively, and that every ſuch debtor, as he or they verily believe is a merchant, banker, broker, factor, ſcrivener or trader, within the deſcription of the ſtatutes relating to bankrupts, to ſue out of the ſame court ſummons, or any original bill and ſummons, againſt ſuch merchant, banker, broker, factor, ſcrivener, or trader, and ſerve him with a copy thereof; and if ſuch merchant, banker, broker, factor, ſcrivener, or trader, ſhall not within two months after perſonal ſervice of ſuch ſummons (affidavit of the debt or debts having been duly made and filed as aforeſaid) pay, ſecure, or compound for, ſuch debt or debts, to the ſatisfaction of ſuch creditor or creditors, or enter into a bond in ſuch ſum, and with two ſuch ſufficient ſureties, as any of the judges of that court out of which ſuch ſummons ſhall iſſue ſhall approve of, to pay ſuch ſum as ſhall be recovered in ſuch action or actions, together with ſuch coſts as ſhall be given in the ſame, he ſhall be accounted and adjudged a bankrupt from the time of the ſervice of ſuch ſummons; and any creditor or creditors may ſue out a commiſſion againſt any ſuch perſon, and proceed thereon in like manner as againſt other bankrupts.

Sect.

Sect. 2. Provided always, and it is hereby declared, that this act ſhall not extend, or be deemed or conſtrued to extend, to any ſuch debt or debts as aforeſaid contracted before the 8th day of March 1764; any thing herein before contained to the contrary thereof in any wiſe notwithſtanding.

Sect. 3. And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That if any merchant, banker, broker, factor, ſcrivener or trader, ſhall, after the laſt day of this ſeſſion of parliament, commit any act of bankruptcy, that then, and in ſuch caſe, any creditor or creditors as aforeſaid, may ſue out a commiſſion of bankruptcy againſt any ſuch merchant, banker, broker, factor, ſcrivener or trader; and the commiſſioners in ſuch commiſſion, and other perſons, may proceed thereon in like manner as againſt other bankrupts; any privilege of parliament to the contrary notwithſtanding.

Sect. 4. Provided nevertheleſs, and be it enacted, That nothing in this act ſhall ſubject any perſon intitled to privilege to be arreſted or impriſoned during the time of ſuch privilege, except in caſes made felony by the acts relating to bankrupts, or any of them.

Bargain and ſale, Is a contract in conſideration of money, paſſing an eſtate in lands by deed indented and inrolled. This manner of conveying lands is created and eſtabliſhed by the 27 Hen. 8. cap. 10. which executes all uſes raiſed; and as this has introduced a more ſecret way of conveyancing than was known to the policy of the Common law, therefore the inrollment of the deed of bargain and ſale was made neceſſary by the 27 Hen. 8. c. 16. Co. Lit. 273. 2 Inſt. 672. Kelw. 85. 1 Co. 87. 1 New Abr. 273. But the learning on this head depending on ſtatutes, it is firſt proper to recite that,

By the 27 Hen. 8. cap. 10. " Where any perſon or perſons ſtand or is ſeiſed, of or in any honours, &c. lands, tenements, rents, ſervices, &c. to the uſe, confidence or truſt of any other perſon or perſons, or body politick, by reaſon of any bargain, ſale, feoffment, &c. ſuch perſon or perſons, &c. that have any ſuch uſe, ſhall be deemed and adjudged in lawful ſeiſin, eſtate and poſſeſſion thereof, to all intents and purpoſes, of or in ſuch like eſtates as they have in the uſe, &c. and the eſtate, right and poſſeſſion of him and them ſo ſeiſed to any uſe, &c. ſhall be deemed and adjudged in him or them which have the uſe, &c. after ſuch quality, manner, &c. as they had before in or to the uſe, &c.

By the 27 H. 8. cap. 16. "No manor, lands, tenements or other hereditaments ſhall paſs from one to another, whereby any eſtate of inheritance of freehold ſhall be made or take effect, or any uſe thereof to be made, by reaſon only of any bargain and ſale, except by writing indented, ſealed and inrolled in one of the courts at Weſtminſter, or elſe within the county or counties where the lands, &c. ſo bargained and ſold lie, before the cuſtos rotulorum, and two juſtices of peace, and the clerks of the peace, &c. or two of them, whereof the clerk of the peace to be one; the ſame inrollment to be made within ſix months after the date of the ſame writing indented.

"Provided this act extends not to any lands, &c. lying within any city, borough, &c. wherein the mayors, &c. or other officers have uſed to inrol any evidences, deeds or other writings within their precincts or limits.

By the 5 Eliz. cap. 26. "Bargains and ſales of lands, &c. in the county of Lancaſter, being within ſix months inrolled in the Chancery at Lancaſter, or before the judges of aſſiſe there, of lands, &c. in Cheſter, in the Exchequer at Cheſter, or before the judges of aſſiſe there, of lands, &c. in the biſhoprick of Durham, in the Chancery at Durham, or before the juſtices of aſſiſe there, ſhall be as effectual as if inrolled in any courts at Weſtminſter. Provided that this act extends not to any lands lying within any city, &c. wherein the mayors, &c.

1. Who may bargain and ſell, and to whom.

2. What may be bargained and ſold.

3. In what manner, and by what words, a bargain and ſale is made; where it is good, and where not.

4. Of the conſideration and inrolment of a bargain and ſale.

5. Manner of pleading bargain and ſale, good and not good.

1. Who may bargain and ſell, and to whom.

The King, and all other perſons that cannot be ſeiſed to a uſe, cannot bargain and ſell; for at Common law, when a man had ſold his land for money without giving livery, the uſe only paſſed in equity, and this is now executed, and becomes a bargain and ſale by the ſtatute; but antecedent to any ſuch execution there muſt be a uſe well raiſed, which cannot be without a perſon capable of being ſeiſed to a uſe, which the King is not, there being no means to compel him to perform the uſe or truſt; for the Chancery has only a delegated power from the King over the conſciences of his ſubjects; and the King is the univerſal judge of property, and ought to be perfectly indifferent, and not to take upon him the particular defence of any man's eſtate as a truſtee. Bro. Feoffment to Uſes 33. Hard. 468. Poph. 72.

If tenant in tail bargains and ſells his land in fee, this paſſes an eſtate determinable upon the life of the tenant in tail; for at Common law the uſe could not be granted of any greater eſtate than the party had in him; now tenant in tail had an inheritance in him, but he could diſpoſe of it only during his own life; and therefore when he ſells the uſe in fee, ceſtui que uſe has a kind of an inheritance, yet determining within the compaſs of a life; and the ſtatute executes it in the ſame manner as he has the uſe, and conſequently he will have ſome properties of a tenant in fee, and ſome of a tenant for life only; but if tenant for life bargains and ſells in fee, this paſſes only an eſtate for life, for he could not paſs the uſe of an eſtate for life to the bargainee, and the ſtatute executes the poſſeſſion as the party has the uſe. 10 Co. 96, 98. 1 Sand. 260, 261. 1 Co. 14, 15. Co. Lit. 151.

If a huſband ſeiſed of lands in right of his wife, or tenant in tail bargains and ſells the trees growing on the lands, and dies before ſeverance, the bargainee cannot afterwards cut them down and take them away. Mo. 41.

If a ſon and heir bargains and ſells the inheritance of his father, this is void, becauſe he hath no right to transfer; the ſame law of a releaſe. Kelw. 84. Co. Lit. 265.

If there be two jointenants, and one of them makes a bargain and ſale of his own eſtate in fee, and then the other dies, the other moiety ſhall ſurvive to the bargainor; for ſince the freehold is in the bargainor the inheritance continues; but if ſuch jointenant had bargained and ſold totum ſtatum ſuum in fee, though he died before inrollment; yet if the deed were afterwards inrolled, the moiety would not ſurvive, but would paſs to the bargainee. Cro. Jac. 53. Co. Lit. 186. 1 Bulſt. 3.

If an infant bargains and ſells his land by deed indented and inrolled, yet he may plead non-age; for notwithſtanding the ſtatute the bargainee claims by the deed as at Common law, which was, and therefore is ſtill, defeazible by non-age. 2 Inſt. 673.

If a wife joins with her huſband in a bargain and ſale by deed indented and inrolled, of her lands, yet it ſhall not bind her, for the wife cannot be examined by any court without writ, and there is no writ allowed in this caſe, which is for the better ſecurity of wives, who are by our law intirely ſubjected to the will of the huſband. 2 Inſt. 673.

A man may bargain and ſell to a corporation, for they may take a uſe, though the money be given by the governors in their natural capacity. 10 Co. 24, 34. 2 Rol. Abr. 788.

A man may bargain and ſell to his ſon, but then the conſideration of money ought to be expreſſed, and it ought to have all the other circumſtances of a bargain and ſale; but this ſhall operate as a covenant to ſtand ſeiſed, if there be none but the conſideration of natural love and affection expreſſed. 7 Co. 40. 2 Co. 24. Cro. Eliz. 394. 1 Vent. 137. 1 Lev. 56.

2. What may be bargained and ſold.

Any freehold or inheritance in poſſeſſion, reverſion or remainder, upon an eſtate for years, or life, or in tail, may be bargained and ſold, but the deed ſhall be inrolled. 2 Co. 54. Dyer 309. 2 Inſt. 671.

But a man ſeiſed of a freehold may bargain and ſell for years, and this ſhall be executed by the ſtatute of uſes, but it need not be inrolled by the ſtatute of inrollments. 8 Co. 93. 2 Rol. Abr. 204. 2 Inſt. 671.

A man poſſeſſed of a term cannot bargain and ſell it ſo as to be executed by the ſtatute. 2 Co. 35, 36. Poph. 76.

A rent in eſſe may be bargained and ſold, becauſe this is a freehold within the ſtatute: and before the ſtatute a rent newly created might be bargained and ſold, becauſe when money, as an equivalent, was given, and ceremonies or words of law were wanting, the Chancery ſupplied them; but it ſeems, that ſince the ſtatute, a rent newly created cannot be bargained and ſold, becauſe there ought to be a freehold in ſome other perſon, to be executed in ceſtui que uſe, but here can be no ſeiſin of his rent in the bargainor, becauſe no man can be ſeiſed of a rent in his own land, and conſequently there can be no eſtate to be executed in the bargainee. Kelw. 85. 1 Co. 126. 1 And. 327. 1 Jones 179.

If A. by indenture inrolled bargains and ſells lands to B. and his heirs, with a way over other of the lands of A. this is void as to the way; for nothing but an uſe paſſes by the deed, and there can be no uſe of a thing not in eſſe, as a way, common, &c. before they are created. Cro. Jac. 189.

3. In what manner, and by what words, a bargain and ſale is made; where it is good, and where not.

At Common law land might be bargained and ſold by words only, for it was the conſideration that in equity raiſed the uſe, but ſince the ſtatute of 27 Hen. 8. lands cannot cannot paſs without indenture. 2 Inſt. 675. Dyer 229. Poph. 48. Dalt. 63.

'Tis not neceſſary to uſe the words bargain and ſale, but any words equivalent are ſufficient, and whatever words upon valuable conſideration would have raiſed an uſe of any lands, &c. at Common law, the ſame would amount to a bargain and ſale within this act; as if a man by deed, &c. for a valuable conſideration covenants to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of another, &c. 2 Inſt. 672. Cro. Jac. 210. Mo. 34. Cro. Eliz. 166.

Though the deed may be either in parchment or paper, yet the inrollment muſt be in parchment only, for that is implied when an inrollment is to be in any of the courts of record at Weſtminſter; and in the clauſe of inrollment by the clerk of the peace, it is particularly provided, that he ſhall ſufficiently inrol and ingroſs it in parchment. 2 Inſt. 673.

A man demiſes, bargains and ſells a manor, part in demeſne and part in tenants hands for ſeventeen years: the party may chooſe either to take it by way of leaſe at Common law, and then the tenants muſt attorn; or by way of bargain and ſale with attornment; and this agrees with the policy of the Common law, to take every man's grant, ſo as to paſs an intereſt that ſhall be moſt advantageous for the grantee; and ſince, in this caſe, the words allow a double way of taking it, the grantee ſhall be judge which is moſt beneficial. 2 Co. 35.

Debtor to the Queen in 800*l.* to be paid 20*l.* every year, till the principal ſum was paid, covenanted with her to convey to the Lord Treaſurer and his heirs, certain land to the uſe of the covenantor and his heirs, until default of payment of either of the ſaid ſums, and after ſuch default, then to the uſe of the Queen, her heirs and ſucceſſors, until they ſhould have received out of the profits the aforeſaid debt, and after the ſame was paid, then to the covenantor and his heirs; and he levied a fine to the Lord Treaſurer to the uſes aforeſaid, and afterwards he bargained and ſold the lands to a ſtranger; the money was not paid; the Queen entered, and granted the lands to G. D. and his heirs, until the ſaid debt ſhonld be paid, which was afterwards paid and received out of the profits; adjudged, that the bargainor, at the time of the bargain and ſale, had an eſtate in fee, determinable upon default of payment, &c. which eſtate paſſed by bargain and ſale, and not the new eſtate which accrued to him by the limitation to him and his heirs, after the debt paid; becauſe that eſtate was not in being at the time of the bargain and ſale made; but if the conveyance had been either by fine or feoffment, inſtead of bargain and ſale, in ſuch caſe, all uſes and poſſibilities had been carried away by operation of it. Mich. 28 Eliz. 1 Leon. 33.

Tenant in fee demiſed his lands to huſband and wife, habendum to them for their lives, remainder to another for life, rendering 40*l.* rent half yearly, during their lives; the huſband died, afterwards the leſſor, in conſideration of 10*l.* to him paid, demiſed and granted the ſaid lands to G. D. habendum to him for 99 years, from the date of the indenture, rendering rent, &c. The wife did not attorn; adjudged, that the words demiſe and grant, when 'tis made in conſideration of money paid, do amount to a bargain and ſale for the ſaid years, and that 'tis immediately executed by the ſtatute 26 Hen. 8. of uſes, and there need no inrollment, becauſe only a term for years, and no freehold paſſes; adjudged likewiſe that if a father, in conſideration of money, covenanted to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of his ſon in fee, if the deed is inrolled, 'tis a good bargain and ſale, tho' thoſe words are omitted, becauſe it amounts to as much; ſo if a man, in conſideration of money, alien and grant his lands in fee by deed indented and inrolled, the ſame amounts to a bargain and ſale, and the land ſhall paſs without livery. 8 Rep. 43.

Bargain and ſale was made by tenant in tail of a houſe in London, and this was in order to make a tenant to the præcipe to ſuffer a common recovery; two days afterwards the ſame tenant in tail made a feoffment to the ſame perſon, and of the ſame meſſuage, which was executed by livery and ſeiſin; adjudged, that the houſe did paſs by the bargain and ſale tho' not inrolled (for houſes in London are out of the ſtatute of inrollment) and not by the feoffment; becauſe it was made to the ſame perſon who had the inheritance of the houſe at that time, by virtue of the bargain and ſale, and a poſſeſſion executed ſhall always hinder a poſſeſſion executory. Yelv. 123.

The bargainor reciting in the deed, that whereas G. D. became bound for him in ſeveral recogniſances and bonds; now for divers conſiderations, he bargained and ſold the lands to him and his heirs; the deed was inrolled within ſix months, but it was not found that any money was paid; adjudged, that this was not a good bargain and ſale, becauſe in every ſuch conveyance there ought to be quid pro quo; but if there had been apt words in it, the ſame might be good by way of covenant; for if the father bargains and ſells his lands to his ſon, no uſe ariſeth by ſuch a conveyance; but 'tis a good conſideration to raiſe an uſe by way of covenant. Cro. Eliz. 394.

The Lord Lumley, 15 Junii anno 22 Eliz. by bargain and ſale conveyed the manor of Hazelburg Brian in Com. Dorſet, to the Earl of Northumberland, and his heirs, with a covenant for farther aſſurance; and becauſe the manor was held in capite, the ſaid Earl 30 Sept. in the ſame year, procured a licence for the alienation in Octab. Michaelis following; the Lord Lumley levied a fine, and 2 die Novemb. the deed was inrolled, and not before; whereupon a ſci. fa. iſſued out of the Exchequer againſt the tertenants for a fine, upon alienation of the lands, made by this bargain and ſale without licence; the Earl of Northumberland appeared, and pleaded all this matter, and averred, that the fine was levied by virtue of the covenant for farther aſſurance; and upon demurrer to this plea the defendant had judgment; becauſe the alienation by the bargain and ſale was not compleat till the inrollment, and the fine being levied after the licence was procured, and before the deed was inrolled, the Earl was in poſſeſſion by virtue of the fine, which had prevented the operation of the deed before it was inrolled. Moor 337.

4. Of the conſideration and inrollment of a bargain and ſale.

If a man bargains and ſells lands for divers good cauſes and conſiderations, it is void, unleſs money be averred: for ſelling ex vi termini ſuppoſes a transferring a right of ſomething for money, the common medium of commerce; but if there be no ſuch conſideration, it may be an exchange, a covenant to ſtand ſeiſed, grant, &c. but it can be no ſale within the ſtatute. 1 Co. 176. Mo. 578.

If there be a conſideration of money expreſſed in the deed, no averment nor evidence can be admitted againſt it, for the affirmative is proved by the deed; and it is impoſſible to prove the negative. Mo. 378.

If the deed ſays for a competent ſum of money, it is ſufficient, without averring the ſum; for it is a ſale if there be any money. Moor 378.

A man in conſideration of 70*l.* bargains and ſells to his daughter and J. S. in tail, who intermarry; it may be averred tam in conſideratione maritagii quam in conſid' del 70*l.* for a man may aver any conſideration conſiſtent with that in the deed. 1 Co. 176. 2 Co. 76. a.

If a man, in conſideration that J. S. was bounden in a recognizance, and other bonds for him, and for divers other good cauſes and conſiderations, bargains and ſells his lands to him and his heirs, it is not good. Cro. Eliz. 394.

If a man, in conſideration of ſo much money to be paid at a day to come, bargains and ſells, the uſe paſſes preſently, and after the day the party has an action for the money, for it is a ſale by the money paid preſently or hereafter. Dyer 337. a.

At Common law the uſe paſſed from the delivery or date of the deed, and by the ſtatute 27 Hen. 8. cap. 10. the poſſeſſion paſſed as the party had the uſe at the time of the delivery of the deed; but it was thought proper to add ſome further circumſtances, which is done by cap. 16. and therefore, if theſe circumſtances are not obſerved, it hath the ſame effect it had before at Common law, to wit, to raiſe the uſes from the delivery; for the words of the ſtatute are only to ſome things, and not to aboliſh or ſet aſide the force it had formerly. Dyer 218. Hob. 136. 2 Inſt. 674. Cro. Jac. 1. 408. 1 Rol. Abr. 627. Owen 149, 150.

If A. bargains and ſells lands to B. and his heirs, and before inrollment B. reciting this bargain and ſale to be by indenture inrolled, bargains and ſells to C. and his heirs, all the eſtate which he had by the ſaid indenture inrolled, and after the firſt, and then the ſecond deed is inrolled. By Daniel and Kingſmill, the lands are well conveyed to C. for when the firſt indenture was inrolled, the eſtate was in B. ab initio to bargain, ſell, &c. and the words in the ſecond deed are apt enough to paſs the land, and the recital of the inrollment immaterial; but Anderſon and Warburton cont'; for a man cannot paſs what he hath not, and till the deed was inrolled B. had nothing, and he paſſed only what he had by indenture inrolled; but Walmſly held, the land paſſed not by reaſon of the miſrecital, but that otherways it would have paſſed; and it was adjudged for the defendant, according to the opinion of the three laſt judges. Cro. Jac. 52. 2 Inſt. 675. 1 Vent. 360.

If a man bargain and ſell his manor, to which there is an advowſon appendant, the bargainee can make no title to preſent before inrollment. 2 Co. 56.

If a man bargains and ſells his lands, and then ſuffers a recovery, levies a fine, or makes a feoffment to the bargainee, and then the deed is inrolled, the land paſſes by the recovery, fine or feoffment; for ſince the freehold and the uſe is in the bargainor till inrollment, it muſt paſs by the recovery, &c. and when it paſſed by the recovery, the uſe cannot riſe, nor poſſeſſion be executed from the date of the deed. 4 Co. Hind's caſe. Mo. 681. 2 And. 3, 162, 303. 4 Leon. 4. Poph. 49.

If the bargainor or bargainee died before inrollment, it may notwithſtanding be inrolled, for here are parties to give and take the intereſt when it begins to veſt, for it veſts from the date of the deed; otherwiſe in the caſe of an attornment. 2 Inſt. 674. Hob. 136. 1 And. 229, 337.

If a man bargains and ſells his land, the bargainee may be tenant to the præcipe before inrollment, and may receive a releaſe before inrollment. 1 Vent. 361.

But where the commiſſioners of a bankrupt had aſſigned the bankrupt's lands to the leſſor of the plaintiff, which indenture was afterwards inrolled, but the declaration was upon a demiſe made after the indenture, and before the inrollment; and it was adjudged, that this declaration was not ſufficient. 1 Vent. 206. 2 Show. Rep. 156. S. C. 2 Jones 196. S. C. Carth. 178. S. P. adjudged on the authority of this caſe, 1 Show. 207. S. C. where it is ſaid, that Holt, Ch. J. held, that it was not amendable.

If a man bargains and ſells a reverſion, and the rent is incurred, and afterwards the deed is inrolled, the bargainee ſhall have the rent unpaid; but if the rent be paid to the bargainor, the tenant is not only excuſed, but the bargainor is not accountable, becauſe the contract had not any effect to paſs the eſtate from the bargainor before inrollment; and the relation of the law cannot make void an act that was lawful, for it cannot be ſet aſide but by an expreſs and poſitive law. Owen 150. Godb. 209. 1 Sid. 310.

If a man make a leaſe for life, reſerving rent, with clauſe of re-entry, and then bargains and ſells the reverſion, the bargainee demands the rent, and the leſſee refuſes, and then the deed is inrolled, the bargainee cannot enter for the forfeiture; for till inrollment he is not grantee of the reverſion within the ſtatute capable of the duty, and conſequently at the day could make no legal demand, which was precedently neceſſary to this entry. Owen 69, 150. Godb. 156. Latch 157. 1 Sid. 310. Cro. Car. 217.

If a man ſeiſed in fee is bound in a recognizance, and then bargains and ſells all his lands, and then the recognizance is forfeited, and then a ſcire facias is ſued out againſt the land in the hands of the bargainor, and then the deed is inrolled, this ſcire facias is not maintainable. 2 And. 160. Owen 69, 70. 2 Inſt. 674. Cro. Car. 217.

If before inrollment the bargainor and bargainee grant a rent, &c. after inrollment, by operation of the ſtatute, it ſhall be the grant of the bargainee, and confirmation of the bargainor. Co. Lit. 147. b.

If lands are bargained and ſold, and the bargainee die before inrollment, his wife ſhall not be endowed; ſo if a man bargains and ſells lands by indenture, and then takes a wife and dies, and after the deed is inrolled, the wife ſhall not be endowed. 1 And. 161. Cro. Car. 569.

All eſtates of freehold and inheritance muſt be inrolled; but if a man bargains and ſells his lands for any number of years, the deed need not be inrolled. 2 Inſt. 671.

If a man bargain and ſell land to his ſon in conſideration of money, the deed muſt be inrolled; but if the father, in conſideration of natural love and affection, and alſo for money, grants land to his ſon, this need not be inrolled; for covenants to ſtand ſeiſed are not within the words of the ſtatute, and where the conſideration of blood is expreſſed, it may enure as a covenant to ſtand ſeiſed; but it is only a ſale where the conſideration of money is alone expreſſed, for that excludes all other tacit conſiderations. 7 Co. Badell's caſe.

Lands in cities, boroughs, &c. that have the privilege of inrollments, are not within the act; for though the intent of the ſtatute be, to have excepted them from inrollments in the courts of Weſtminſter only, yet the ſtatute is ſo worded, that they are diſcharged from any inrollment at all, and therefore the poſſeſſion of ſuch lands is executed from the date of the deed. 2 Inſt. 676. Dyer 229. Yelv. 124.

It muſt be inrolled within ſix months from the date, which ſhall be accounted according to the computation of 28 days per month; for month, in its proper and original ſignification, is the ſpace of time meaſured by the compleat courſe of the moon, as the year is the time meaſured by the complement of the ſun's courſe. 2 Inſt. 674. 6 Co. 62.

From the date, and from the day of the date, in this caſe, is taken as all one, as it is in all other caſes of computation, and therefore the inrollment may be on the day of the date, or on the laſt day of the ſixth month after the day of the date; for though when an intereſt paſſes from the day of the date, the day itſelf is excluded; yet when a time is ſtinted, in which an act ought to be done, it is in order to haſten the doing of that act; and therefore the doing of it on the day from whence the period is firſt reckoned within the time appointed, and the laſt day of the ſix month is within the words of the time given. Hob. 240. Mo. 40, 42. 2 Inſt. 674. 1 Co. 6. Dyer 282. 3 Lev. 438. Salk. 413. 6 Mod. 260.

If the deed has no date, the ſix months are to be reckoned from the delivery, but not otherwiſe. Hob. 140. 2 Inſt. 674. Mo. 42.

5. Manner of pleading bargain and ſale, good, and not good.

A bargain and ſale is a deed inrolled, and as ſuch muſt be pleaded, and the deed itſelf, whereby the uſe originally paſſes, being a matter in pais, muſt be produced, and not the tenor of the deed, which is on the roll of record; for though the inrollment being on record is of undoubted veracity, being the tranſaction of the court, yet the private deed has the ſanction of a record, though publickly acknowledged and inrolled; for it might have been falſly and fraudulently dated, or ill executed. Co. Lit. 225. b. 251. b. 2 Inſt. 673. 4 Co. 71. 5 Co. 53. 2 Rol. Rep. 119.

The party that claims by any bargain and ſale, muſt ſhew in what court the deed is inrolled, becauſe he muſt ſhew all things in certain that make out his title; otherwiſe his adverſary would be put to an infinite ſearch before he could traverſe with ſecurity. Yelv. 213. Cro. Jac. 291. S. C.

In debt for rent, the plaintiff declared upon a leaſe made by a ſtranger, who after bargained and ſold the reverſion to the plaintiff per indenturam debito modo irrotulat' in curia cancellariæ; and after verdict for the plaintiff judgment was arreſted, becauſe it was not alledged that the inrollment was within ſix months, nor ſecundum formam ſtatuti; and debito modo will not help it, for it might be ſo at Common law. Allen 19. Carter 221. Style 34. S. C.

If a man makes a leaſe for years the 10th of May, and afterwards bargains and ſells his lands, and antedates the deed by making it the 10th of April, and the inrollment is alſo as of that time, the leſſee is without remedy, for he cannot aver againſt the record. See Owen 138. 1 Leon. 183. 2 Leon. 183. 2 Leon. 121. 3 Leon. 175.

In pleading a bargain and ſale, the party ought regularly to aver payment of the money. 1 Leon. 170. See Moor 504.

Debt upon a leaſe for years, in which the plaintiff declared, that by indenture, bearing date the 27th of Nov. G. D. in conſideration of ſo much money, bargained and ſold the reverſion to him in fee, which indenture was inrolled ſuch a day, according to the ſtatute: and becauſe he did not ſhew in what court it was inrolled, the plea was held ill; for 'tis unreaſonable to put the leſſee to ſearch the courts at Weſtminſter, and the rolls of the clerks of the peace. Yelv. 313.

The leſſor made a leaſe for years, rendring rent, and afterwards he bargained and ſold the reverſion to the plaintiff, who brought an action of debt for the rent, and averred, that the deed of bargain and ſale was inrolled within ſix months, according to the ſtatute; it appeared, that this deed bore date before the rent became due, but that it was actually due before the expiration of the ſix months: it was objected againſt the declaration, that the plaintiff had not ſhewed, whether the deed was inrolled before or after the day the rent became due; but adjudged, that it being ſet forth to be inrolled according to the ſtatute, is well enough, but the bargainee is intitled to the rent before the inrollment of the deed. Latch 157.

In ejectment, the defendant pleaded a ſpecial bar, but it was inſufficient; the plaintiff replied, and conveyed a title to his leſſor by bargain and ſale, acknowledged before W. R. a juſtice of the peace of the Weſt Riding in Yorkſhire, and before R. B. clerk of the peace there, which was inrolled within ſix months: Upon demurrer to this replication, it was objected, that it was ill; becauſe the plaintiff had not ſet forth, that the lands which were conveyed, did lie within the Weſt Riding, &c. but adjudged, tho' the ſtatute requires it to be acknowledged before a juſtice of the peace of the county, yet it will ſerve before a juſtice of the peace of the Weſt Riding, if the lands lie there. Hob. 128.

In debt for rent, the plaintiff declared on a leaſe for years, made by W. R. who by a certain indenture debito modo irrotulat', in Chancery, did ſell the reverſion to the plaintiff: Upon nil debet pleaded, the plaintiff had a verdict; but the judgment was arreſted, becauſe he did not ſet forth, that the inrollment was within ſix months, or ſecundum formam ſtatuti; 'tis true, he ſet forth, that it was debito modo irrotulat', but it might be at Common law; and the verdict will not make a declaration good, which is uncertain in the very foundation of the action. Allen 19.

In replevin, the caſe upon the pleadings was, that the defendant made a title under bargain and ſale, inrolled within ſix months, and the ſtatute of uſes, and did not ſhew that it was in conſideration of money; but adjudged, that after a verdict, as this caſe was, it ſhall be intended, that evidence was given at the trial of money paid. 1 Vent. 108.

Baron, (Baro) Is a French word, and hath divers ſignifications here in England. Firſt it is taken for a degree of nobility next to a viſcount. Bracton, lib. 1. cap. 8. ſays, they are called barones, quaſi robur belli. In which ſignification it agrees with other nations, where baroniæ are as much as provinciæ: ſo that barons are ſuch as have the government of provinces, as their fee holden of the King; ſome having greater, and others leſs authority, within their territories. It is probable that formerly in this kingdom, all thoſe were called barons that had ſuch ſeignories as we now call courts-baron; as they are at this day called ſeigneurs in France, who have any manor or lordſhip: and ſoon after the Conqueſt, all ſuch came to parliament, and ſat as peers in the lords houſe. But when by experience it appeared that the parliament was too much thronged by theſe barons, who were very numerous, it was in the reign of King John ordained that none but the barones majores ſhould come to parliament, who for their extraordinary wiſdom, intereſt, or quality, ſhould be ſummoned by writ. After this, men obſerving the eſtate of nobility to be but caſual, and depending merely upon the King's will, they obtained of the King letters patent of this dignity to them and their heirs male, who were called barons by letters patent, or by creation, whoſe poſterity are now by inheritance thoſe barons that are called called Lords of the parliament; of which kind the King may create at his pleaſure. Nevertheleſs there are ſtill barons by writ, as well as barons by letters patent. And thoſe barons who were firſt by writ, may now alſo juſtly be called barons by preſcription, for that they and their anceſtors have continued barons beyond the memory of man. The calling up by writ is at this day ſeldom practiſed, unleſs it be to ſummon the ſon of ſome lord to parliament, in the life-time of his anceſtor; for creation by letters patent is almoſt altogether in uſe. 2 Inſt. 48. The original of barons by writ Camden refers to King Hen. 3. and barons by letters patent, or creation, commenced 11 R. 2. Camd. Brit. pag. 109. To theſe is added a third kind of barons, called barons by tenure, which are ſome of our ancient barons; and likewiſe the biſhops, who, by virtue of baronies annexed to their biſhopricks, always had place in the Lords houſe of parliament, as barons by ſucceſſion. Seager of Honour, lib. 4. cap. 13. There are alſo barons by office; as the barons of the Exchequer, barons of the Cinque Ports, &c. of which you may read under their proper heads. In ancient records, the word baron included all the nobility of England, becauſe regularly all noblemen were barons, though they had a higher dignity; and therefore the charter of King Ed. 1. which is an expoſition of what relates to barons in Magna Charta, concludes teſtibus archiepiſcopis, epiſcopis, baronibus, &c. And the great council of the nobility, when they conſiſted, beſides earls and barons, of dukes, marqueſſes, &c. were all comprehended under the name de la councell de baronage, Glanv. cap. 4. Theſe barons have given them two enſigns to remind them of their duties; firſt a long robe of ſcarlet, in reſpect whereof they are accounted de magno concilio regis. And ſecondly, they are girt with a ſword, that they ſhould ever be ready to defend their King and country. 2 Inſt. 5. A baron is vir notabilis & principalis: And the chief burgeſſes of London were in former times barons, before there was a Lord mayor, as appears by the city ſeal, and their ancient charters——Henricus 3. Rex. Sciatis nos conceſſiſſe & hac præſenti charta noſtra confirmaſſe baronibus noſtris de civitate noſtra London quod eligant ſibi Mayor de ſeipſis ſingulis annis, &c. Spelm. Gloſſ. The earl palatines and marches of England, had anciently their barons under them; but no barons but thoſe who held immediately of the King were peers of the realm. 'Tis certain the King's tenants were called barons; as we may find in Mat. Pariſ. and other writers: And in days of old, all men were ſtiled barons; but this, I take it, was only a term in law, not a title of nobility. Cowell. See Spelman's Gloſſary.

Barons of the Exchequer. See title Exchequer.

Barony, (Baronia) Is that honour and territory which gives title to a baron; comprehending not only the fees and land of temporal barons, but of biſhops alſo who have two eſtates; one as they are ſpiritual perſons, by reaſon of their ſpiritual revenues and promotions; the other grew from the bounty of our Engliſh Kings, whereby they have baronies and lands added to their ſpiritual livings and preferments. The baronies belonging to biſhops are by ſome called regalia, becauſe ex ſola liberalitate regum eis olim conceſſa, & a regibus in feudum tenentur. Blount. Barony, Bracton ſays (lib. 2. c. 34.) is a right indiviſible; and therefore, if an inheritance be to be divided among coparceners, though ſome capital meſſuages may be divided, yet ſi capitale meſſuagium ſit caput comitatus vel caput baroniæ, they may not be parcelled. In ſome caſes a barony may be aliened, or entailed, and the honour paſs accordingly. In antient times thirteen knights fees and a quarter made a tenure per baroniam, which amounted to 400 marks per annum.

Baronet, (Baronettus) Is a dignity or degree of honour, which hath precedency before all knights, as knights of the bath, knights batchellors, &c. except banerets, made ſub vexillis regiis in exercitu regali in aperto bello, & ipſo rege perſonaliter præſente. This order of baronets was inſtituted by King James the firſt in the year 1611, with ſuch precedency as aforeſaid, and other privileges, &c. Their number at firſt was but two hundred; but now they are without limitation: they are created by patent with an habendum ſibi & hæredibus maſculis, &c. and their dignity, on its firſt inſtitution, was a kind of purchaſed honour, by men of great eſtates qualified for titles. Cowell, edit. 1727. Jacob.

Baron and feme, Are huſband and wife by our law; and they are adjudged but one perſon. Bracton ſaith, Vir et uxor ſunt quaſi unica perſona; quia caro una et ſanguis unus. Bract. lib. 5. fo. 416.

1. Of the acts and agreements of the wife before marriage; where the huſband is bound by them; and in what caſes ſuch acts are revoked, extinguiſhed, and made void, by the marriage.

2. Of the legality of the marriage; who are eſteemed huſband and wife; and of marriage contracts.

3. What eſtate real and perſonal, of the wife, ſhall veſt in the huſband by the marriage; and of the huſband's right to things accruing to the wife during the coverture.

4. Where the huſband ſhall be charged with debts of the wife, contracted before and after marriage; and of a wife who is executrix or adminiſtratrix.

5. What acts done by the huſband or wife alone, or jointly with the wife, will bind the wife; and of her agreement or diſagreement to ſuch acts after the death of the huſband.

6. Where the huſband and wife muſt join in bringing actions; where they muſt be jointly ſued; and where a wife ſhall be conſidered as a feme ſole.

7. Of the power of the huſband over the perſon of his wife; her remedy for any injury done her by him; and of actions by the huſband for criminal converſation with his wife.

8. Of crimes and offences committed by the wife; and how puniſhable.

9. Of divorce, and the effects of it; and of ſeparate maintenance and pin-money.

10. Of ſurvivorſhip, and the effects of it; what things the huſband ſhall have after the death of the wife, and what charge of the huſband ſhall bind the wife.

1. Of the acts and agreements of the wife before marriage; where the huſband is bound by them, and in what caſes ſuch acts are revoked, extinguiſhed, and made void by the marriage.

By the marriage the huſband and wife become one perſon in law, and therefore ſuch an union works an extinguiſhment or revocation of ſeveral acts done by her before the marriage; and this not only for the benefit of the huſband, but likewiſe of the wife, who, if ſhe were allowed at her pleaſure to reſcind and break through, or confirm ſeveral acts, might be ſo far influenced by her huſband, as to do things greatly to her diſadvantage. 4 Co. 60. 5 Co. 10. Kelw. 162. Co. Lit. 55. Hal. 72. Cro. Car. 304.

But in things which would be manifeſtly to the prejudice of both huſband and wife, the law does not make her acts void; and therefore if a feme ſole makes a leaſe at will, or is leſſee at will, and afterwards marries, the marriage is no determination of her will, ſo as to make the leaſe void; but ſhe herſelf cannot without the conſent of her huſband determine the leaſe in either caſe. 5 Co. 10.

So where a warrant of attorney was given to confeſs a judgment to a feme ſole; and the court gave leave, notwithſtanding the marriage, to enter up judgment, for that the authority ſhall not be deemed to be revoked or countermanded, becauſe it is for the huſband's advantage; like a grant of a reverſion to a feme ſole, who marries before attornment, yet the tenant may attorn afterwards; otherwiſe if a feme ſole gives a warrant of attorney, and marries, for that is to charge the huſband. 1 Salk. 117.

But if a feme ſole makes her will, and deviſes her land to J. S. and afterwards marries him, and then dies, yet J. S. takes nothing by the will, becauſe the marriage was a revocation of it; for as the law will not allow a woman under coverture to make a will, leſt ſhe ſhould be influenced by her huſband in the diſpoſition of her eſtate; ſo for the ſame reaſon a will made by a feme ſole is countermanded by the marriage, leſt ſhe ſhould be influenced influenced by her husband (if it continued after the coverture) to revoke it, or let it stand, as it best answered his interest. 4 Co. 60.

If A. on the one part, and B. and C. a feme sole on the other part, submit themselves to the award of J. N. and after C. takes J. S. to husband, and after the arbitrator, before any notice of the marriage, makes an award that B. and C. shall pay 30 l. to A. yet this shall not bind J. S. and C. his wife, nor B. for the submission by the marriage of C. is revoked as to B. also, and this without any notice. 1 Rol. Abr. 332.

A. entered into a bond with his intended wife, conditioned to leave her at his death 1000 l. if she survived him, &c. A. died intestate, and the wife took out administration to him; in an action of debt brought against her as administratrix for rent incurred due in the life-time of her husband, she pleaded this bond, and that 250 l. only came to her hands, which she retains in part of satisfaction, and that she had not assets ultra; on demurrer the whole court held, that contracts and debts in præsenti, also such as were contingent, and might happen during the coverture, were extinguished by the marriage; but two judges in this case against Holt Ch. Just. held, that this bond with a condition was like a promise or covenant before marriage, to leave the wife so much (which were agreed to be good) and being to be paid in futuro, was not extinguished by the marriage, but was in custodia legis, to preserve a right, and answer the intention of the parties; but Holt held, that the bond and condition were distinct, and that upon the execution of the bond there was a debt in præsenti, which was extinguished by the marriage; but the defendant had judgment. 1 Salk. 325.

A man enters into a bond to his intended wife, conditioned to leave her 1000 l. the husband mortgages his estate, and died, not leaving personal assets to discharge the bond; and it was decreed in equity, that though the bond was void by law, being extinguished by the marriage, yet it should be made good in equity; and that the wife might redeem and hold the land till she was satisfied her debt. 2 Vern. 480.

Also equity will set aside the intended wife's contracts, though legally executed, when they appear to have been entred into with an intent to deceive the husband, and are in derogation of the rights of marriage; as where a widow made a deed of settlement of her estate, and married a second husband, who was not privy to such settlement; and it appearing to the court, that it was in confidence of her having such estate that the husband married her, the court set aside the deed as fraudulent; so where the intended wife, the day before her marriage, entred privately into a recognizance to her brother, and it was decreed to be delivered up. See 2 Chan. Rep. 79, 81. 2 Vern. 17.

But where a widow, before her marriage with a second husband, assigned over the greatest part of her estate to trustees for children by her former husband; and though it was insisted that this was without the privity of the husband, and done with a design to cheat him, yet the court thought, that a widow might thus provide for her children before she put herself under the power of a husband; and it being proved that 8000 l. was thus settled, and that the husband had suppressed the deed, he was decreed to pay the whole money, without directing any account. 1 Vern. 408.

The plaintiff's wife before marriage conveyed away her estate to the defendant, being her son, and after the defendant conveyed the same to his children, being infants; because (as the court conceived) it was passed without any consideration, it was decreed for the plaintiff against the defendant and the infants, in 32 & 33 Eliz. Toth. 162.

A widow having an estate devised to her for 400 years by her former husband, and being about to marry Sir P. N. she made a settlement thereof, in order to prevent such after-husband from having the same, and Sir P. N. having intimation that she intended to make such settlement, but now knowing of its being made, broke off the treaty of marriage, which was afterwards brought on again by some friends of the widow, and Sir P. accordingly married her upon hopes and in confidence of having the interest she had in the said estate, and without which he would not have married her; the court decreed the said deed to be absolutely set aside, and no use to be made thereof against Sir P. N. or any claiming under him. 2 Chan. Rep. 81.

A recognizance entred into by the wife the day before was set aside, and a perpetual injunction granted, tho' one witness deposed the husband's consent to the drawing it, but that witness had an assignment of it to himself. 2 Cha. Rep. 79.

It was clearly held per cur. and admitted by both parties, that if a feme, with the privity of the husband, before marriage, conveys a term for years in trust for herself, that is clearly out of the husband's power, and he can neither dispose of nor release the interest of the wife; and if the feme should join in the grant it would not amend the case: But the court seemed to incline, that if a feme does secretly, without the knowledge of her husband, before marriage, convey a term for years in trust for herself, that this shall be in the power of the husband, so as he may either grant or release the interest of the wife. 2 Freem. Rep. 29.

M. a feme possessed of a long term, being about to marry A. who was indebted to J. S. 400 l. by agreement of A. and J. S. makes a lease to J. S. for ten years to secure the 400 l. the land being reckoned 80 l. a year, and then by indenture sealed in the presence of A. (the intended husband) assigns the residue of the term in trust to be at her disposal, whether sole or covert, (but there were no other words whereby to exclude the husband) and brought in money, &c. to the value of 600 l. after marriage other creditors of A. got judgment against him, and on a fi. fa. the sheriff sold the residue of the term; and on a bill in Chancery it was decreed for the vendees against the trustees of M. because the like point had been decreed so in Sir Edward Turner's case; the Lord Chancellor holding it not fit a decree should be one way in parliament and another way in Chancery, but declared it against his own opinion, because widows in most cases cannot otherwise provide for themselves; and the husband in this case forsook his wife, and refused reconciliation, and allowed her nothing, &c. yet decreed ut supra. 2 Chan. Ca. 73.

A woman being married agreed with her husband, that she should have power to act as a feme sole notwithstanding that marriage; the husband died, and she married another husband, who was not privy to the settlement on the former marriage. It was decreed, that the second husband should not be bound by that settlement on the former marriage. 2 Vern. 17, 18.

In detinue by feme it is a good plea, that after the bailment she married the bailee; for by this the bailment is discharged; per Fineux Ch. J. and he ought to declare upon a trover. Br. Barre, pl. 53.

A. makes an obligation to B. to the use of C.——A. seals it; A. B. and C. being, at the time of sealing it, at one place, A. puts the obligation into the hands of C. and says, this will serve; this is a good delivery; and tho' C. afterwards marries A. yet the obligation remains, and is neither extinguished or suspended. Adjudged and affirmed in error. Jenk. 221.

In debt on a bond for performance of covenants in an indenture made by the baron before marriage, to pay legacies by the feme in a will made by her before marriage; tho' it was objected, that the marriage continued till her death, the will and devise was void; but adjudged for the plaintiff; for tho' it was not a will to all intents, yet it referred to that which did bear the name of a will, and tho' it was not a will in facto, it is not material. Cro. E. 27. pl. 9.

A. promised M. a feme sole, that if she would marry him, he would leave her worth 100 l. Hobart Ch. J. said, that the promise is extinguished by the marriage; but Winch and Hutton J. e contra; for that the law will not work a release contrary to the intent of the parties, and that the marriage, which was the cause, does not destroy that which itself creates. Hutt. 17, 18.

A feme sole possessed of a term, conveyed the same over in trust for her, and covenanted with J. S. whom she did intend intend to marry, that he ſhould not meddle with it, and for that purpoſe took a bond of him; they intermarried; he may intermeddle with it, but he ſhall not have it; and by equity he cannot aſſign it, by reaſon of the covenant before marriage. Mar. 88. pl. 141.

A. intending to marry ſuch a woman covenanted, that if ſhe would marry him, and ſhould ſurvive, he would give 300 l. to her next of kin, and gave a bond to a third perſon for the performance of this covenant. In debt for this 300 l. it was argued, that tho' this was a future covenant, which could not be broken in the life-time of the parties, yet it might be releaſed; and if ſo, then the marriage was a releaſe in law, and ſo the debt extinct; but the court inclined the judgment ought to be for the plaintiff, and ruled it to be moved at another time. 2 Sid. 58.

A before marriage with M. agrees with M. by deed in writing, that ſhe, or ſuch as ſhe ſhould appoint, ſhould, during the coverture, receive and diſpoſe of the rents of her jointure, by a former huſband, as ſhe pleaſed. Per cur. The aforeſaid agreement with the feme herſelf before marriage, was by the marriage extinguiſhed. Chan. Ca. 21.

The baron before marriage articled with the feme to make a ſettlement of certain lands, before the marriage ſhould be ſolemnized; but they intermarried before the ſettlement. Then the baron died; and on a bill by the widow for a execution of the articles, it was decreed againſt the heir at law of the baron; who objected, that marrying before the execution of the ſettlement was a waiver of the articles, and the benefit of them; and ſhe being the only party with whom they were made, her marriage with the other party before performance was a releaſe in law. 2 Vent. 343.

Huſband covenants with his intended wife, that ſhe ſhould have power to diſpoſe of 300 l. of her eſtate, notwithſtanding the intermarriage; whether this covenant is diſcharged by the marriage? The court inclined to diſmiſs the bill brought by the huſband for the money; but it was argued, that the wife conſented, and ſo put off for her to come and ſignify her conſent in court. Vern. 408.

Lands limited to A. in truſt for a feme covert, and that A. ſhould receive the rent, and apply them as the feme, whether ſole or covert, ſhould appoint. Per cur. This is only a truſt, and not an uſe executed by the ſtatute. Vern. 415.

Settlement by the feme before marriage, for her ſeparate uſe, without the privity of the baron. Lord Chancellor decreed, that the huſband ſhould have the poſſeſſion of the eſtate, and that the truſtees ſhould make a conveyance of the lands to the Six clerks, that it might be ſubject to the order of the court. 2 Vern. 17.

A feme ſole, being executrix and reſiduary legatee of J. S. lends 100 l. to A. and B. for which ſhe takes a note in her own name, and a bond in a truſtee's name, and afterwards marries B. one of the obligors; B. dies: On a bill againſt A. he inſiſted, that the marriage with B. was an extinguiſhment of the bond, as well as if it had been made in her own name; ſed non allocatur. 2 Vern. 290.

Debt on bond for performance of covenants, in certain articles made between the defendant and his wife before marriage, (viz. that the man ſhould bring 50 l. and the woman 25 l. into a ſtock, into the hands of a third perſon, to be ſo and ſo diſpoſed of). It was argued, that the promiſe was ſuſpended, and conſequently extinguiſhed by the marriage. But per Holt Ch. J. Tho' the articles are ſuſpended by the marriage, yet it was the intent of the parties, that the things ſhould be performed tho' the articles are gone; and the bond is not void, being made to a third perſon; and Eyres J. cited 1 Inſt. 206. and they ſaid the money was to be brought in preſently; ſo that tho' the marriage had been a releaſe, yet they ſhould plead performance to that time. Judgment for the plaintiff, unleſs cauſe. Comb. 242.

Upon a treaty of marriage, the man gave a bond to the woman, conditioned that if he did permit her to diſpoſe of 100 l. then the bond ſhould be void. Afterwards the marriage took effect, ſo that the bond became void, yet this was held to be a good agreement; and the court decreed, that the huſband ſhould give bond to truſtees with the ſame condition; it was held, that a bill may be exhibited by her prochein amy; or if truſtees exhibit a bill for or on her behalf, it is good either way. 2 Freem. Rep. 205.

Bond by a man to a woman before intermarriage, that in caſe they intermarried, and the wife ſurvived, and the huſband left her 1000 l. then to be void. Per Holt Ch. J. the bond is extinguiſhed by the marriage. Per Gould and Turton J. 'Tis only ſuſpended, becauſe it would ſubvert the marriage agreement; and the rather, becauſe it was not payable during the coverture, but it was a debt on contingency; ſo that if the wife dum ſola had releaſed all demands, the debt had not been extinguiſhed. 1 Salk. 325.

2. Of the legality of the marriage; who are eſteemed huſband and wife; and of marriage contracts.

Marriage is a compact between a man and a woman, for the procreation and education of children, which is to continue during both their lives; and it may be celebrated in a private houſe as well as in a church; for it being an exchange of mutual vows in the preſence of God, if all other circumſtances are complied with, it cannot be ſuppoſed that God is leſs preſent at theſe marriages than thoſe made in the church. 1 New Abr. 283. 1 Rol. Abr. 341, 359. 1 Sid. 64. Perk. 306. F. N. B. 150.

Before the time of pope Innocent the Third, there was no ſolemnization of marriage in the church; but the man came to the houſe where the woman inhabited, and led her home to his own houſe, which was all the ceremony then uſed. Moor 170. Per Goldingham, Doctor of the Civil Law, arguendo.

The age of conſent to a marriage in an infant male is fourteen, and in a female twelve; but they may marry before; and if they agree to them when they attain theſe ages, the marriage is good; but they cannot diſagree before then; alſo if one of them be above the age of conſent, and the other under ſuch age, the party ſo above the age may as well diſagree as the other; for both muſt be bound or neither. Co. Lit. 33, 78, 79. 2 Inſt. 434. 3 Inſt. 88, 89. 6 Co. 22. 7 Co. 43. 1 Rol. Abr. 340.

By the ſtatute 32 Hen. 8. cap. 38. it is enacted, "That no reſervation or prohibition (God's law excepted) ſhall trouble or impeach any marriage without the Levitical degrees, and that no perſon, of what eſtate, degree or condition ſoever he be, ſhall be admitted in any of the ſpiritual courts within the King's realm, or any his Grace's other lands and dominions, to any proceſs, plea or allegation contrary to the ſtatute." For the expoſition of this ſtatute, ſee Co. Lit. 24. a. 2 Inſt. 684. See 25 Hen. 8. c. 22. 28 Hen. 8. c. 7. 28 Hen. 8. c. 16. Before which the eccleſiaſtical courts had the ſole juriſdiction of matrimonial cauſes. See 13 Ed. 1. the ſtat. Circumſpecte agatis. Hob. 181. Co. Lit. 235. 2 Inſt. 683, 684. See Vaugh. 214. But if a man marries his couſin within the degrees, or his mother or ſiſter, they continue huſband and wife till a ſentence of divorce be pronounced. 1 Rol. Abr. 340, 357.

In a prohibition to the conſiſtory court of York, for proceeding againſt a perſon for inceſt who married the relict and widow of his great uncle, it was agreed by all the judges at Serjeants-Inn, that the prohibition ſhould ſtand, and the following points were reſolved; firſt, that by the ſtat. 32 Hen. 8. cap. 38. No marriage without the Levitical degrees is unlawful upon the account of conſanguinity nor affinity, nor for that reaſon can be proceeded againſt by the eccleſiaſtical court; and though the words of the ſtatute are, that no prohibition (God's law excepted) ſhall impeach ſuch marriages, yet the reſervation for God's law was not intended to leave marriages at large to the determination of the eccleſiaſtical courts, as they were before; for then the Levitical degrees need never have been ſpoken of, and then indeed the ſtatute would have been of no ſignification; the proper meaning therefore of theſe words (God's law excepted) muſt be this; that the ſtatute did not intend to reſtrain the eccleſiaſtical courts from divorces upon other accounts; as upon the account of inſufficiency, adultery, precontract, &c. ſo that the lawfulneſs lawfulneſs of marriage is hereby determined, but not as to other cauſes. Secondly, That this marriage with the uncle's wife, was a marriage without the Levitical degrees, and therefore lawful. 2 Vent. 9. Harriſon and wife againſt Dr. Burwell.

Marriage is to be ſolemnized in facie eccleſiæ; and therefore a private contract without the prieſt's bleſſing will make no marriage. 1 Rol. Abr. 357. Moor 169.

A. and B. being ſabbatarians, were married by one in their own way, who uſed the form of the Common Prayer, except the ring, but was a mere layman; the wife dying, the huſband took out adminiſtration to her; but upon the application of her ſiſter, the letters of adminiſtration were repealed, and the ſentence of repeal affirmed by the delegates; for the huſband demanding a right due to him as huſband, muſt bring himſelf within the rules preſcribed by that juriſdiction to whom he applies; alſo the conſtant form of pleading marriage is, that it was per preſbyterum ſacris ordinibus conſtitutum; and an act of parliament was made, confirming the marriages contracted during the uſurpation. 1 Salk. 119. Heydon and Gould. See 2 Salk. 438. ſeems cont.

If A. contracts himſelf to B. and after marries C. and B. ſues A. upon this contract in the ſpiritual court, and there ſentence is given that A. ſhall marry and cohabit with B. which he does accordingly, they are baron and feme, without any divorce between A. and C. for the marriage of A. and C. was a mere nullity. Moor 169. 4 Co. 29. *S. A. contracts per verba de præſenti with B. and hath iſſue by her, and after marries C. in facie eccleſiæ. B. recovers A. for her huſband by ſentence of the ordinary, and for not performing the ſentence A. is excommunicated, and after enfeoffs D. and then marries B. in facie eccleſiæ, and dies, and ſhe brought dower againſt D. and recovered, becauſe the feoffment was per fraudem, between the ſentence and ſolemn marriage; but this was reverſed coram rege & concilio, quia prædict' A. non fuit ſeiſitus during the eſpouſals between him and B. 1 New Abr. 284. But as to the legality of marriage to intitle a woman to dower, and how the biſhop muſt certify upon an iſſue ne unques accouple in loyal matrimonie, ſee Bro. 54. Co. Lit. 33. *a. A contract per verba de præſenti; as I marry you, you and I are man and wife, &c. is by the Civil law eſteemed ipſum matrimonium; for ſuch contracts the ſpiritual courts will compel them to celebrate in facie eccleſiæ. Swinb. of Eſpouſals 74. 2 Salk. 438.

A contract in futuro, as I will marry you, &c. may be inforced in the ſpiritual court; but ſuch contract either party may releaſe; alſo if either party marry another perſon, the ſpiritual court can give no remedy; for ſuch ſecond marriage diſſolves the contract. 1 New Abr. 284. If a man takes A. S. to wife, per dureſs, though the marriage be ſolemnized in facie eccleſiæ, yet it is merely void; and they are not baron and feme, becauſe there is not any conſent; and it cannot be a marriage without conſent. 1 Rol. Abr. 340.

Stat. 32 Hen. 8. cap. 38. ſect. 2. All ſuch marriages as within the church of England ſhall be contracted between lawful perſons (as all perſons be lawful that be not prohibited by God's law to marry) being contracted and ſolemnized in the face of the church, and conſummate with bodily knowledge and fruit of children, ſhall be lawful and indiſſoluble, notwithſtanding any diſpenſation, preſcription or other thing. And no reſervation or prohibition (God's law excepted) ſhall impeach any marriage without the Levitical degrees. And no perſon ſhall be admitted in the ſpiritual courts to any proceſs contrary to this act.

Stat. 2 & 3 Edw. 6. cap. 23. ſect. 2. As concerning precontracts, the ſtatute 32 Hen. 8. cap. 38. ſhall be repealed, and reduced to the ſtate of the King's eccleſiaſtical laws.

Sect. 2. This act ſhall not extend to any perſon, whoſe huſband or wife ſhall be continually remaining beyond the ſeas ſeven years together; or whoſe huſband or wife ſhall abſent him or herſelf ſeven years together within his Majeſty's dominions, the one of them not knowing the other to be living all that time.

Sect. 3. This act ſhall not extend to perſons that ſhall be divorced by any ſentence in the eccleſiaſtical court, or where the former marriage ſhall be by ſentence in the eccleſiaſtical court declared void; nor to any perſons for any former marriage to be had within age of conſent.

Sect. 4. No attainder for this offence ſhall work corruption of blood, loſs of dower, or diſinheriſon of heirs.

Stat. 6 & 7 Will. 3. cap. 6. ſect. 52. No perſon ſhall be married at any place pretending to be exempt from the viſitation of the biſhop, without a licence, except the banns be publiſhed and certified; and every parſon, vicar and curate, who ſhall marry any perſons contrary to the meaning hereof, ſhall forfeit 100*l.* to be recovered in any of his Majeſty's courts of record; one moiety to the King and the other moiety to the informer; and ſhall for the ſecond offence be ſuſpended ab officio et beneficio for three years.

Stat. 7 & 8 Will. 3. cap. 35. ſect. 2. Every parſon, vicar or curate, who ſhall marry any perſons without publication of banns, or without licences, ſhall forfeit 100*l.*

Sect. 3. Every parſon, vicar or curate, who ſhall ſubſtitute, or knowingly permit, any other miniſter to marry any perſons in any church or chapel to ſuch parſon, &c. belonging, without publication of banns or licences, ſhall forfeit 100*l.* to be recovered in any of his Majeſty's courts of record; one moiety to his Majeſty, and the other moiety to him who ſhall ſue for the ſame.

Sect. 4. Every man married without licence or publication of banns ſhall forfeit 10*l.* to be recovered with coſts as aforeſaid by any perſon who ſhall ſue for the ſame; and every ſexton or pariſh clerk who ſhall knowingly aſſiſt at ſuch marriages, ſhall forfeit 5*l.* to be recovered with coſts as aforeſaid by any perſon who ſhall ſue.

Stat. 10 Ann. cap. 19. ſect. 176. Every parſon, vicar or curate, or other perſon in holy orders, who ſhall marry any perſon without publication of banns, or without licence from the proper ordinary, ſhall forfeit 100*l.* to be recovered with coſts in any of her Majeſty's courts of record at Weſtminſter; one moiety to the Queen, and the other other moiety to him who ſhall ſue for the ſame; and if ſuch offender be a priſoner in any priſon (other than a county gaol) and ſhall be convicted of ſuch offence by action or information, upon oath made of ſuch impriſonment before any judge of her Majeſty's courts of record at Weſtminſter, and upon producing a copy of the record of ſuch conviction proved upon oath, the judge is required to grant his warrant to the keeper of the gaol where ſuch offender is a priſoner, to remove ſuch offender to the gaol of the county; and if any gaoler ſhall knowingly permit any marriage to be ſolemnized in his priſon before publication of banns, or licence obtained, he ſhall forfeit 100*l.* as aforeſaid.

Sect. 177. Saving to all archbiſhops, biſhops and other ordinaries, &c. all eccleſiaſtical juriſdictions.

Sect. 178. The ſaid proviſion for marriages ſhall not extend to Scotland.

Stat. 26 Geo. 2. cap. 23. ſect. 1. All banns of matrimony ſhall be publiſhed in an audible manner in the pariſh church, or in ſome publick chapel, in which banns of matrimony have been uſually publiſhed, belonging to ſuch pariſh or chapelry wherein the perſons to be married dwell; according to the form preſcribed by the rubrick prefixed to the office of matrimony in the book of common prayer; upon three Sundays preceding the ſolemnization of marriage, during the time of morning ſervice (or of evening ſervice, if there be no morning ſervice in ſuch church or chapel upon any of thoſe Sundays) immediately after the ſecond leſſon: And when the perſons to be married dwell in divers pariſhes or chapelries, the banns ſhall be publiſhed in the church or chapel where each of them dwell; and where both or either of the perſons to be married dwell in any extraparochial place having no church or chapel wherein banns have been uſually publiſhed, then the banns ſhall be publiſhed in the pariſh church or chapel belonging to ſome pariſh or chapelry adjoining to ſuch extraparochial place; and where banns ſhall be publiſhed in any church or chapel belonging to any pariſh adjoining to ſuch extraparochial place, the parſon, vicar, miniſter or curate publiſhing ſuch banns, ſhall under his hand certify the publication thereof, in ſuch manner as if either of the perſons to be married dwelt in ſuch adjoining pariſh; and all other rules preſcribed by the ſaid rubrick, concerning the publication of banns and the ſolemnization of matrimony, not hereby altered, ſhall be obſerved. And in all caſes where banns ſhall have been publiſhed, the marriage ſhall be ſolemnized in one of the pariſh churches or chapels where ſuch banns have been publiſhed.

Sect. 2. No parſon, vicar, miniſter, or curate, ſhall be obliged to publiſh banns of matrimony between any perſons, unleſs the perſons to be married ſhall, ſeven days before the time required for the firſt publication of ſuch banns, cauſe to be delivered to ſuch parſon, &c. a notice in writing of their chriſtian and ſurnames, and of their reſpective abodes within ſuch pariſh, chapelry, or extraparochial place, and of the time during which they have dwelt in ſuch houſes reſpectively.

Sect. 3. No parſon, &c. ſolemnizing marriages between perſons, both or one of whom ſhall be under the age of 21 years, after banns publiſhed, ſhall be puniſhable by eccleſiaſtical cenſures, for ſolemnizing ſuch marriages without conſent of parents or guardians, whoſe conſent is required by law, unleſs ſuch parſon, &c. have notice of the diſſent of ſuch parents or guardians. And in caſe ſuch parents or guardians, or one of them, publickly cauſe to be declared, in the church or chapel where the banns ſhall be ſo publiſhed, at the time of ſuch publication, their diſſent to ſuch marriage, ſuch publication of banns ſhall be void.

Sect. 4. No licence of marriage ſhall be granted by any perſon having authority to grant ſuch licences, to ſolemnize any marriage in any other church or chapel, than in the pariſh church or publick chapel belonging to the pariſh or chapelry, within which the uſual place of abode of one of the perſons to be married ſhall have been for four weeks, immediately before the granting of ſuch licence; or where both or either of the parties to be married dwell in an extraparochial place having no church or chapel wherein banns have been uſually publiſhed, then in the pariſh church or chapel belonging to ſome pariſh or chapelry belonging to ſuch extraparochial place.

Sect. 5. All pariſhes where there ſhall be no pariſh church or chapel, or none wherein divine ſervice ſhall be uſually celebrated every Sunday, may be deemed extraparochial places for the purpoſes of this act.

Sect. 6. Nothing herein contained ſhall deprive the archbiſhop of Canterbury and his officers, of the right which hath hitherto been uſed in virtue of 25 Hen. 8. cap. 21. of granting ſpecial licences to marry at any convenient time or place.

Sect. 7. No ſurrogate deputed by any eccleſiaſtical judge, who hath power to grant licences of marriage, ſhall grant any ſuch licence, before he hath taken an oath before the ſaid judge faithfully to execute his office according to law to the beſt of his knowledge, and hath given ſecurity by his bond in the ſum of 100*l.* to the biſhop of the dioceſe, for the faithful execution of his office.

Sect. 8. If any parſon ſhall ſolemnize matrimony in any other place than a church, or publick chapel, where banns have been uſually publiſhed, unleſs by ſpecial licence from the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, or ſhall ſolemnize matrimony without publication of banns, unleſs licence of marriage be firſt obtained from ſome perſon having authority to grant the ſame; every perſon wilfully ſo offending and convicted ſhall be adjudged guilty of felony, and be tranſported to ſome of his Majeſty's plantations in America, for 14 years, according to the laws for tranſportation of felons. And all marriages ſolemnized in any other places than a church or publick chapel, unleſs by ſpecial licence as aforeſaid, or without publication of banns, or licence of marriage from a perſon having authority to grant the ſame, ſhall be void.

Sect. 9. All proſecutions for ſuch felony ſhall be commenced within three years after the offence committed.

Sect. 10. After the ſolemnization of any marriage under a publication of banns, it ſhall not be neceſſary in ſupport of ſuch marriage to give any proof of the dwelling of the parties in the reſpective pariſhes or chapelries wherein the banns are publiſhed; or where the marriage is by licence, it ſhall not be neceſſary to give any proof that the uſual place of abode of one of the parties, for four weeks as aforeſaid, was in the pariſh church or chapelry where the marriage was ſolemnized; nor ſhall any evidence in either of the ſaid caſes be received to prove the contrary in any ſuit touching the validity of ſuch marriage.

Sect. 11. All marriages ſolemnized by licence, where either of the parties, not being a widower or widow, ſhall be under the age of 21 years, which ſhall be had without the conſent of the father of ſuch of the parties ſo under age, if living, or, if dead, of the guardians of the perſon of the party ſo under age, or one of them; and in caſe there be no ſuch guardian, then of the mother, if living and unmarried; or if there be no mother living and unmarried, then of a guardian of the perſon appointed by the court of Chancery, ſhall be void.

Sect. 12. In caſe any ſuch guardian or mother, or any of them, whoſe conſent is made neceſſary, ſhall be non compos mentis, or beyond the ſeas, or ſhall refuſe their conſent to the marriage, it ſhall be lawful for any perſon deſirous of marrying, in any of the before mentioned caſes, to apply by petition to the Lord Chancellor, who is hereby impowered to proceed upon ſuch petition in a ſummary way; and in caſe the marriage propoſed appear proper, the Lord Chancellor ſhall judicially declare the ſame to be ſo by an order of court, and ſuch order ſhall be deemed as good as if the guardian or mother of the perſon ſo petitioning had conſented to ſuch marriage.

Sect. 13. In no caſe ſhall any ſuit or proceeding be had in any eccleſiaſtical court, to compel a celebration of any marriage in facie eccleſiæ, by reaſon of any contract of matrimony, whether per verba de præſenti, or per verba de futuro, entered into after the 25th of March 1754.

Sect. 14. The churchwardens and chapelwardens of every pariſh or chapelry ſhall provide books of vellum, or durable paper, in which all marriages reſpectively, there there publiſhed or ſolemnized, ſhall be regiſtered: and every page thereof ſhall be marked at the top with the number of ſuch page, beginning at the ſecond leaf with number one; and every leaf or page ſo numbered, ſhall be ruled with lines at proper and equal diſtances: and all banns and marriages publiſhed or celebrated in any church or chapel, or within any ſuch pariſh or chapelry, ſhall be regiſtred, printed or written upon, or as near as may be to, ſuch ruled lines; and ſhall be ſigned by the parſon, vicar, miniſter, or curate, or by ſome other perſon in his preſence, and by his direction: and ſuch entries ſhall be made on or near ſuch lines in ſucceſſive order, where the paper is not damaged or decayed, until a new book ſhall be neceſſary; and then the directions aforeſaid ſhall be obſerved in every ſuch new book. And all books provided as aforeſaid, ſhall belong to every ſuch pariſh or chapelry reſpectively, and ſhall be carefully preſerved for publick uſe.

Sect. 15. All marriages ſhall be ſolemnized in the preſence of two witneſſes, beſides the miniſter who ſhall celebrate the ſame. And immediately after the celebration of every marriage, an entry thereof ſhall be made in ſuch regiſter; in which it ſhall be expreſſed, that the ſaid marriage was celebrated by banns or licence; and if both or either of the parties married by licence be under age, with conſent of the parents or guardians, as the caſe ſhall be; and ſhall be ſigned by the miniſter with his proper addition, and alſo by the parties married, and atteſted by ſuch two witneſſes; which entry ſhall be in the form or to the effect following, viz.

A. B. of [the / this] pariſh - and C. D. of [the / this] pariſh were married in this [church / chapel] by [banns / licence] with conſent of [parents / guardians] this day of in the year

By me J. P. {rector / vicar / curate}

This marriage was ſolemnized between us A. B. / C. D. in the preſence of E. F. / G. H.

Sect. 10. If any perſon ſhall, with intent to elude this act, wilfully inſert, or cauſe to be inſerted, in the regiſter book of ſuch pariſh or chapelry, any falſe entry of any thing relating to any marriage; or falſly make, alter, forge, or counterfeit, or cauſe to be falſly made, &c. or aſſiſt in falſly making, &c. any ſuch entry in ſuch regiſter; or falſly make, &c. or cauſe to be falſly made, &c. or aſſiſt in falſly making, &c. any ſuch licence of marriage as aforeſaid; or publiſh as true any ſuch falſe, altered, forged, or counterfeited regiſter, or a copy thereof, or any ſuch falſe, &c. licence of marriage, knowing ſuch regiſter or licence of marriage reſpectively to be falſe, &c. or if any perſon ſhall wilfully deſtroy, or cauſe to be deſtroyed, any regiſter-book of marriages, or any part of ſuch regiſter-book, with intent to avoid any marriage, or to ſubject any perſon to any of the penalties of this act; every perſon ſo offending, and being convicted, ſhall be adjudged guilty of felony, and ſhall ſuffer death.

Sect. 17. This act ſhall not extend to the marriages of any of the royal family.

Sect. 18. Nothing in this act ſhall extend to Scotland; nor to any marriages amongſt Quakers, or amongſt perſons profeſſing the Jewiſh religion, where both the parties to ſuch marriage ſhall be Quakers, or perſons profeſſing the Jewiſh religion; nor to any marriage ſolemnized beyond the ſeas.

3. What eſtate real and perſonal, of the wife, ſhall veſt in the huſband by the marriage, and what not; and of the huſband's right to things accruing to the wife during coverture.

From the time of the intermarriage, the law looks upon the huſband and wife but as one perſon, and therefore allows of but one will between them, which is placed in the huſband, as the fitteſt and ableſt to provide for, and govern the family; and for this reaſon the law gives the huſband an abſolute power of diſpoſing of her perſonal property, no act of her's being of any force to affect or transfer that, which by the intermarriage ſhe has reſigned to the huſband; but the freehold and inheritance of the wife is ſubject to other rules and regulations; for the huſband by the marriage does not become abſolute proprietor of the inheritance, but as the governor of the family is ſo far maſter of it as to receive the profits of it during her life, but has no power to make an abſolute ſale of it without her conſent. 10 Co. 42. 2 Inſt. 510. 1 Sid. 11. 1 Rol. Abr. 347.

If a man marries a woman ſeiſed in fee, he gains a freehold in right of his wife. Co. Lit. 351. a.

The marriage is a gift in law to the huſband of all the wife's chattels real, as a term for years in right of the wife; ſo of eſtates by ſtatute-merchant, ſtatute-ſtaple, elegit, &c. and of theſe he may alone diſpoſe, forfeit, or they may be extended for his debts, but if he make no diſpoſition of them in his life-time, they ſurvive to the wife, and therefore he cannot deviſe them. 7 H. 6. 1. b. Bro. 24. Co. Lit. 46, 351.

If a woman leſſee for years takes huſband, and he after purchaſes a new leaſe to them both for their lives, of the ſame lands, this is a ſurrender in law of the firſt term, and ſhall bind the wife, becauſe it amounts to an actual diſpoſition thereof, which the huſband had power to make. 2 Rol. Abr. 495.

If the huſband poſſeſſed of a term for 70 years in right of his wife, makes a leaſe of thoſe lands for 20 years, to begin after his death, this is good, and ſhall bind the wife; becauſe the term being but a chattle, he had power to diſpoſe of it wholly, and by conſequence may diſpoſe of any leſſer intereſt thereto as he thinks fit; and this being a preſent diſpoſition, which he cannot revoke, binds the intereſt of the lands immediately, though it takes not effect in poſſeſſion till after his death; and therefore this differs from a deviſe of ſuch term, or any part thereof, by the huſband, by his will; for that not taking effect, nor binding the intereſt at all till after his death, comes too late to prevent the operation of law, which at the inſtant of death immediately caſts it upon the wife ſurviving, and ſo defeats and deſtroys the operation of the deviſe; but as to the reſidue of the term, whereof the huſband makes no diſpoſition in his life-time, the wife, if ſhe ſurvives, will be intitled to it; becauſe as to that the law is left to take place, as it would have done for the whole, if he had not prevented it by ſuch his diſpoſition of part; but if the huſband had granted away the whole term upon condition, and died, though the condition were afterwards broken, and his executors entred for breach thereof, yet would the wife be for ever barred to claim any intereſt in the ſaid term, becauſe there was a total diſpoſition thereof by the huſband in his life-time, and the breach or non-performance of the condition was perfectly contingent and uncertain; beſides that, the breach of the condition happened not till after his death, and ſo the diſpoſition continued perfect and uninterrupted during his life; for if the condition had been broken during his life, and he himſelf had entred for breach thereof, it might be a great queſtion, if the wife ſurviving ſhould not have the term after his death, becauſe by his re-entry for the condition broken, he is reſtored to the whole term in ſtatu quo, and then being poſſeſſed of it in right of his wife, as he was before, it ſeems but reaſonable the wife ſhould have it, if ſhe ſurvives the huſband, as ſhe would have had if no ſuch diſpoſition had been made, ſince that diſpoſition is now defeated and gone: Alſo ſuch term, whereof the huſband is poſſeſſed in right of his wife, may be extended for the debts, or forfeited for the crimes of the huſband, for theſe are legal diſpoſitions thereof, which ſhall bind the wife; but if the huſband ſhould grant a rent, common, &c. out of ſuch term, and die, this would not bind the wife ſurviving, becauſe the term or poſſeſſion itſelf being left to come intire to the wife, all intermediate charges or grants thereout by the huſband determine with his death; for the title of the wife to ſuch term has relation to the time of their intermarriage, and ſo is paramount all collateral charges or grants made thereout by the huſband after; but a grant by the huſband of the herbage or veſture of ſuch lands which he held in right of his wife for years, will be void after his death, becauſe they are part of the land itſelf, and not collateral to it. Poph. 5, 97, 145. Co. Lit. 46. b. 351. a. Cro. Car. 344. Plowd. 418. Cro. Eliz. 33, 279. Co. Lit. 300. a. Bro. tit. Charge, 111. 8 Co. 97. 1 Rol. Abr. 851, 343, 344. Godb. 279. 3 Keb. 299. 1 Vent. 259. Note; It appears by all the above-cited books, that if the huſband makes a leaſe of part of the wife's term, rendring rent, and dies, that his executors ſhall have the rent, and not the wife, though ſhe hath the reverſion, becauſe not party or privy to the leaſe, and the rent is not incident to the reverſion.

If the huſband and wife be evicted of a term, which he hath in right of his wife, and the huſband brings an ejectment in his own name, and hath judgment to recover, this makes an alteration in the term, and veſts it in the huſband; becauſe, not making his wife a party to the recovery, he takes the whole wrong to be done to himſelf, and conſequently if he recovers, it muſt be by virtue of that right whereof he was diſpoſſeſſed. Co. Lit. 46. b. 1 Rol. Abr. 345.

If a term for years be granted to a feme covert and another, or if a feme ſole and another are joint-tenants of a term for years, and the feme takes huſband, yet in both caſes the jointenancy ſtill continues; for the marriage makes no ſeverance or alteration of it, but gives the huſband the ſame power his wife had before, by an actual diſpoſition of her moiety to break the jointenancy, and bind his wife's intereſt therein; but without ſuch diſpoſition the jointenancy continues; and if the huſband dies, the whole ſhall go accordingly; ſo if ſuch jointenants are ouſted of the term, the wife ſhall join with the huſband and the other jointenant in ejectment, and the wife ſhall have judgment to recover as well as the huſband; if his wife die, the whole term ſhall go to the ſurviving jointtenant, and no part thereof to the huſband; becauſe, tho' the huſband, if he ſurvives, is by law to have all chattles real and perſonal of his wife's, and this term was a chattle real, yet the title of the other jointenant, to have the whole by ſurvivorſhip, coming at the ſame inſtant, and being the elder title, ſhall prevail againſt the huſband. Plowd. 418. Co. Lit. 185.

A leaſe was made to the huſband and wife for years; they enter, and the leſſor afterwards enfeoffs the huſband, who dies ſeiſed, the wife ſurvives and claims the term; and betwixt her and the heir of the huſband the diſpute was, whether the term were extinguiſhed; and per totam curiam, By acceptance of the feoffment the huſband hath ſurrendred the term, and then it is extinguiſhed, and the wife barred of any title thereto; but they held that it would have been otherwiſe if the conveyance had been to the huſband by bargain and ſale inrolled, or by fine; for theſe meddle not with the poſſeſſion, but only carry ſuch intereſt as the reverſioner had in him, and then the huſband might have the term in right of his wife, and the inheritance in his own right; but by the feoffment he admits the leſſor to have a power to come upon the poſſeſſion to make livery; which, if the term ſhould ſtand in his way, he could not do; and therefore ſuch admittance amounts to a ſurrender thereof. Cro. Eliz. 912.

A huſband poſſeſſed of a term for years in right of his wife, with remainder to himſelf in fee, by deed inrolled bargains and ſells the land for money, and dies, and his wife enters, claiming the reſidue of the term; and the opinion of the book ſeems to be, that her claim was good; for though a feoffment, in ſuch caſe, by the huſband, would have paſſed the term which he had in right of his wife by way of union and extinguiſhment, yet by bargain and ſale nothing paſſes but a uſe, and by creation and grant of the uſe, the term which he had in jure uxoris ſhall not paſs; ſo that this being no diſpoſition of the legal intereſt of the term, but only of an uſe (which, in reſpect of his inheritance in remainder, he might well create) this was good as to the term during the life of the huſband only, and then the wife after his death ſhall have the leaſe diſcharged of it; as if the huſband had granted a rent, &c. out of the wife's term; but if there had been the words grant, aſſign, or any other word which would have paſſed the legal intereſt of the term, this would have barred the wife; but the words bargain and ſell, by 27 Hen. 8. could have no operation to raiſe an uſe, which ſhall be executed in poſſeſſion, but only out of the reverſion, whereof the huſband was ſeiſed, as the ſtatute ſpeaks; and therefore this being a term in groſs, whereof the huſband was not ſeiſed, but only poſſeſſed, the bargain and ſale paſſed only an uſe thereof at Common law, and not by virtue of that ſtatute, and then not being executed in poſſeſſion, the uſe at Common law, which was collateral to the land, fell off with the death of the huſband, who created it, as other collateral charges of his would do, and by conſequence the wife's title to the reſidue of the term continues good; but if the huſband had been poſſeſſed of ſuch term in groſs in his own right, without any inheritance in him, and had made a bargain and ſale thereof, though this would not have been executed by the ſtatute in poſſeſſion, for the reaſon before mentioned; yet it would have paſſed a uſe at Common law, which would have made him truſtee in equity for the bargainee. Mo. pl. 304. Plowd. 423.

If a man marries a woman who has a term for years ſettled on her in truſt, the huſband may as well diſpoſe of his truſt, as if the legal intereſt was in her. See 1 Rol. Abr. 343. Lane 54, 55. 1 Chan. Ca. 225. 1 Vern. 7, 18. 2 Vern. 270.

Leſſee for years covenanted with the leſſor, that if he, or his executors, aliened the term, it ſhould be lawful for him, &c. to enter; the leſſee made his wife executrix and died: the widow married a ſecond huſband, who aliened, &c. adjudged, that by the marriage the term veſted in the ſecond huſband, as a gift of the wife; and if he had not aliened, it ſhould return to her, if ſhe had ſurvived, this being a chattle real; but perſonal chattles are abſolutely in the huſband. Dyer 3.

A feme ſole, being poſſeſſed of a term for years in lands, married, and then ſhe and her huſband mortgaged the term for 20*l.* but before the day of payment, the wife died; and afterwards the huſband paid the money at the day, and entered, and having married a ſecond wife, he made her executrix, and died; and G. D. took out adminiſtration of the goods of the firſt wife; but adjudged againſt him, for tho' the leaſe did originally belong to the firſt wife, and the huſband was poſſeſſed of it in her right, ſo that if he had purchaſed the inheritance the leaſe had not been merged in it, yet by the intermarriage he had a power to alien the term; and therefore he having ſurvived his wife, he ſhall enjoy it againſt her adminiſtrator. Hob. 3.

The huſband being poſſeſſed of a term of twenty-one years in right of his wife, made a leaſe for ten years, rendring rent to him, or to his executors or aſſigns, and died; adjudged, that the executors of the huſband ſhall not have the rent; and that if after ſuch leaſe the huſband had aſſigned the reverſion of the term, the aſſignee ſhould not have the rent; but in Lampit's caſe, there is a contrary reſolution, (viz.) if the huſband make a leaſe of part of the term, which he had in right of his wife, rendring rent, and dieth, his executors ſhall have the rent, tho' the wife ſhall have the reverſion of the term; for the rent was not incident to the reverſion, becauſe ſhe was no party to the leaſe; ſo likewiſe, if the huſband had made a grant of the whole term, upon condition that the grantee ſhould pay a ſum of money to his executors, &c. and if after his death they had entered upon a breach of this this condition, this had been a good diſpoſition of the whole term, and the wife had been barred, becauſe the whole intereſt was paſſed by her huſband. 1 Inſt. 46. 10 Rep. in Lampit's caſe, S. P.

The huſband poſſeſſed for a term of years in right of his wife, made a leaſe for years of the ſame lands, to commence after his death, and in a ſhort time afterwards he died, and his wife ſurvived; adjudged, that the leſſee of the huſband ſhall have the lands during his leaſe; becauſe the husband, during his life, might have diſpoſed or aliened the whole term which his wife had in thoſe lands; and if he might diſpoſe of the whole, by conſequence he may diſpoſe any part of it; but the remainder of the term, whereof no diſpoſition was made by him, ſhall return to the wife. Poph. 5.

Feme ſole being leſſee for years, the leſſor covenanted with her to repair the houſes during the term; afterwards ſhe married, and not long after ſhe died; adjudged, that the husband ſhall have an action of covenant againſt the leſſor for not repairing, and this he may have as well upon the covenant in law, upon the words demiſe and grant, as upon an expreſs covenant. 5 Rep. 17. in Spencer's caſe.

Feme ſole leſſee for years married, and afterwards her husband purchaſed the fee ſimple of the lands, the term is extinct, becauſe the husband had done an act to deſtroy it; but if ſhe had married with him who had the reverſion, in ſuch caſe the term ſhould not be extinguiſhed, becauſe the husband had done no act to deſtroy it. Godb. Paſch. 17 Eliz.

The huſband was poſſeſſed of a term for eighteen years in lands, and of a reverſionary term for forty years in the ſame lands, and he dying inteſtate, his wife adminiſtred and married a ſecond husband, who made a leaſe of thoſe lands for twenty-one years, rendring rent, and died, having firſt made a will and an executor; the queſtion was, whether the wife, or this executor of her ſecond huſband, ſhould have the rent? It was inſiſted for the executor, that he ſhould have it; becauſe the firſt term for eighteen years was veſted in him by the intermarriage, and he having made a leaſe of the lands for ſo long a time, and longer, nothing of that term remains in the wife; but for the laſt three years, to make up the 21 years, that being derived out of the reverſion, the wife ſhall have the rent thereof, as annexed to the reverſion. Cro. Eliz. 278.

The Lady Cromwell was poſſeſſed of ſeveral leaſes, and conveyed them over in truſt, and afterwards ſhe married Sir John St. John; then ſhe received the money which came of the truſt, and with part of it ſhe bought jewels, and left the other part in ready money, and died; her husband adminiſtred; adjudged, that the money received upon the truſt was the money of the husband; but that a leaſe conveyed by a feme ſole in truſt, for the uſe of herſelf, who afterwards marrieth, cannot be diſpoſed by the husband; and if ſhe die, he ſhall not have it, but the executors of the wife. March 44.

A man and a feme ſole were joint-tenants for life, the woman married W. R. and then the husband and wife made a leaſe for years of their moiety; adjudged, that this leaſe was voidable by the wife, if ſhe ſurvive her huſband, but ſhall ſtand againſt the other joint-tenant after the death of the wife. Bridgm. 44.

An annuity was granted to a feme ſole, who afterwards married; the rent was in arrear, and the annuity determined by the death of the wife; but adjudged, that the husband ſhall have an action of debt at the Common law for the arrears; becauſe an annuity is more than a thing in action, for it may be granted over. Owen 3.

A feme ſole made a leaſe for years, rendring rent, and afterwards married, and after the marriage the wife received the rent; the queſtion was, whether that receipt ſhall bind the husband, or whether he may diſagree to it; adjudged, that the payment to her is void in law, without giving notice of the marriage to the leſſee. Bendl. 93.

A feme executrix was poſſeſſed of a leaſe for years, of lands; her husband purchaſed the reverſion in fee, after the determination of the leaſe for years; adjudged, that if ſhe ſurvive, the term is extinct as to her; but as to the creditors, it ſhall have a continuance, and be aſſets in her hands. Moor 54.

The husband poſſeſſed of a term, in right of his wife, made a leaſe of part of it, rendring rent, and afterwards made a will, and T. S. executor, and died; adjudged, that the executor of the husband ſhall have the rent, tho' the wife hath the reverſion, becauſe ſhe was no party to the leaſe. 2 Lev. 100.

Bill for diſcovery of aſſets, and to have a ſatisfaction for a debt due by bond, brought againſt the widow and executrix of the obligor. Defendant inſiſts by anſwer, that ſhe has not aſſets to ſatisfy the debt. The caſe upon the proof was, that the defendant had lands to the value of 700*l.* and alſo 500*l.* due to her upon bond, which remained in her brother's hands. Her huſband before marriage makes a marriage ſettlement, and in conſideration of a conſiderable fortune and portion with his intended wife, he does grant, &c. But the particulars wherein her portion did conſiſt, did not appear by the deed; and the queſtion was, if this bond to the defendant for 500*l.* part of her portion, (being a choſe en action, and not called in by the huſband) ſhould be aſſets in equity to ſatisfy a debt of the huſband, the wife having enjoyed the benefit of the ſettlement made to her out of the husband's eſtate, which would have been liable to the debt? It was argued for the plaintiff, that if this bond of 500*l.* had been mentioned in particular as part of the conſideration of the ſettlement, there would be no doubt but it would be aſſets of the husband; for in equity the husband is a purchaſer of it by making the ſettlement, and that there was no difference where the conſideration is general of the wife's portion, eſpecially in this caſe, where the wife had nothing but lands beſides this bond of 500*l.* ſo that this bond muſt be taken as the conſideration of the ſettlement, there being no other, and the rather in favour of a fair creditor, who otherwiſe muſt loſe his debt, and if there had not been ſuch a ſettlement made, might have had ſatisfaction out of thoſe very lands. Parker C. ſaid, the caſe was ſo very clear, that the defendant's counſel need not to argue it. Creditors in this caſe cannot be in a better condition than the executor of the debtor; and can it be imagined, that if another perſon had been made executor to the huſband, and ſuch executor had brought a bill againſt the wife to compel her to aſſign this bond, that the court would have decreed for the executor? What the law gives the huſband by the intermarriage, is a good conſideration for making a ſettlement, but the huſband's making a ſettlement does not veſt in the huſband the choſes en action of the wife, unleſs it be expreſsly ſo agreed between the parties, and that appears to be part of the conſideration of the ſettlement; for then the husband is a purchaſer, and well intitled to them in a court of equity. An account was decreed to be taken of the aſſets of the husband, but not of this bond of 500*l.* to the wife. 4 Vin. 40. cites M. S. Rep. Mich. 6 Geo. in Canc. Heaton v. Haſſell.

All the perſonal eſtate, as money, goods, chattels, houſhold furniture, &c. that were the property, and in the poſſeſſion of the wife at the time of the marriage, are actually veſted in the husband; ſo that theſe he may take and diſpoſe in his life-time, without her conſent, or may by will deviſe them, and ſhall without any ſuch diſpoſition go to the executors or adminiſtrators of the husband, and not to the wife, though ſhe ſurvive him. Dr. & Stud. Dial. 1. c. 7. Co. Lit. 351.

But choſes en action, as debts due to the wife by obligation, &c. which are to be demanded by action, though they are likewiſe ſo far veſted in the husband, and he may reduce them into poſſeſſion; yet if he dies before any alteration made by him, they ſhall go to his wife, nor ſhall they, without ſuch alteration, ſurvive to the husband upon the death of the wife, or he have any right in them, but as he is intitled as adminiſtrator to his wife. Co. Lit. 351. 3 Mod. 186.

If a feme ſole obligee marries, and the husband makes a letter of attorney to J. S. to receive the money, who receives it accordingly, and the feme dies, the husband ſhall have an action of account for the money; for by the receipt this was become a thing in poſſeſſion. 1 Rol. Abr. 342. Moor 45. Goldſ. 160.

If

If a legacy be deviſed to a feme, who takes husband, and the baron makes a letter of attorney to J. S. to receive the legacy, and he receives it accordingly, this, by his receipt, is become the chattle of the husband. Goldſ. 160. 1 Rol. Abr. 342.

So if the baron and feme had made a letter of attorney to J. S. to receive the legacy, and he had received it accordingly, by this receipt this ceaſes to be a thing in action, and is become a thing in poſſeſſion; and the huſband, or his executor, after the death of the feme, may have an account upon this receipt againſt J. S. Moor 452. 1 Rol. Abr. 342, 350. Goldſ. 159, 160.

The cogniſee of a ſtatute died inteſtate, and adminiſtration was granted to the widow, who married a ſecond husband, who was indebted to the King; and then the ſaid ſecond husband and wife aſſigned this ſtatute to the King in ſatisfaction of the debt; adjudged, that this aſſignment was good, notwithſtanding the act 7 Jac. which makes aſſignments of debts void, other than as did originally and bona fide grow due to the King's debtor; now, tho' this did not originally grow due to the King's debtor, for he had the ſtatute in right of his wife, who was adminiſtratrix to her firſt husband, yet by the intermarriage, the intereſt and power of the eſtate was veſted in him, and his releaſe of it had bound the wife; and if ſo, then by the ſame reaſon he might aſſign it. Hob. 253.

The husband married a widow, who had a conſiderable perſonal eſtate, which widow had a grandchild; the wife died, and the queſtion was, whether the husband ſhould maintain the grandchild within the ſtatute; and adjudged, that he ſhould; becauſe the eſtate, which he had with the wife, tranſit cum onere. 2 Bulſt. 346.

Feme covert was tenant for life, remainder to another for life, and ſeveral hops were growing out of the old roots on the lands in queſtion, when the wife died; adjudged, that the hops ſhall go to the husband, and not to the tenant for life in remainder; becauſe they are things which grow by the manurance and induſtry of the owner, and therefore like emblements ſhall go to the husband; or if no huſband, then to the executor or adminiſtrator of the tenant for life. Cro. Car. 390.

The wife had a portion given her, the payment whereof was charged on certain lands, and the husband ſettled a jointure on her in marriage, and died before he received the portion; it was decreed for his executor, that this is not in the nature of a choſe en action, but of a rent; becauſe 'tis charged on lands, and that 'tis given to the huſband by the intermarriage, and by conſequence goeth to his executor, and not to his wife ſurviving. 1 Chan. Rep. 189.

In an action of debt, brought by the huſband alone, upon a bond made to his wife dum ſola; the defendant demanded oyer of the condition, which was to pay her ſo much, and then demurred to the declaration; but the plaintiff had judgment. 3 Lev. 503.

The husband deviſed, that after his debts and legacies were paid, the reſidue of his goods ſhould be to his wife, to diſtribute for the good of his ſoul, and he made her executrix, and died; afterwards ſhe married a ſecond huſband, who made G. D. executor and died, againſt whom the widow brought an action of detinue for the goods of her firſt husband; and adjudged good, for they were not veſted in the ſecond husband by intermarriage; becauſe the wife had them as executrix, and not as a legatee to her firſt husband; and ſo ſhe being poſſeſſed of them in the right of another, they were not given to the ſecond huſband by the intermarriage. Dyer 331.

In a ſpecial verdict the caſe was, A feme ſole being ſeiſed of lands, deviſed the ſame to T. S. and his heirs, whom ſhe afterwards married, and ſoon after made a parol revocation of this will, declaring that her husband ſhould not have the lands, and died; after whoſe death the queſtion was, who ſhould have the lands, the huſband, or the heir of the wife? It was inſiſted for him, that the will was good, and ſhall be guided as circumſtances were when it was made; for ſhe was at that time of ſound memory, and capable of making a will, and ſhe had determined her power to revoke it by marriage; becauſe after marriage, ſhe is to be guided and directed by her husband, and hath no power, without his aſſent, to make or revoke a will; to which it was anſwered, and ſo adjudged, that true it is, ſhe cannot after coverture make a will; but if the will ſhe made before coverture, ſhould by operation of law continue to be her laſt will, then ſhe who made that will cannot alter it in her life-time, for ſo it muſt neceſſarily be, unleſs the law ſhall adjudge this will to be void; and accordingly it was adjudged to be a void will. 1 And. 181.

A widow, who was an executrix, married, and then ſhe and her husband join in an action, in which ſhe, as executrix, and her husband declared, but he was outlawed, and this outlawry was pleaded in bar to the action; adjudged, that he did not forfeit the goods by the outlawry, becauſe he had them in right of his wife, as executrix. 3 Bulſt. 211.

Debt brought by a man and his wife as adminiſtratrix to her firſt husband, upon a bond due to him, in which they had a verdict, and afterwards ſhe died before execution; then the husband brought a ſci. fa. to have execution, &c. but adjudged, that it did not lie by him, becauſe it was a duty which was demanded by the wife in the right of another; and tho' they both recovered, yet ſhe dying before execution, the duty remains to him who has the right of adminiſtration to her firſt husband the inteſtate; and tho' the ſecond husband was a party to the judgment, yet he had no property in the debt, but he who brings a ſci. fa. muſt have both a privity and property to the debt; 'tis true, if the judgment had been entered, and afterwards the wife had died, in ſuch caſe the husband might bring a ſci. fa. becauſe the debt being recovered, the husband ſhall have it after her death. Cro. Car. 150.

The leſſor made a leaſe for years of lands to the leſſee, to the uſe of the ſiſter of the leſſor, whom the leſſee afterwards married, and died; after his death the widow married a ſecond husband, and then ſhe died, and this ſecond husband ſued the adminiſtrator of the wife in Chancery to have this term; but decreed, by the advice of all the judges, that he had no right to it, nor to the uſe of it. Cro. Eliz. 466.

A bond was given to a ſingle woman, ſhe afterwards married, and ſoon after her marriage died; W. R. took out letters of adminiſtration to the goods and chattles of the woman, and brought an action of debt upon this bond againſt the obligor, who pleaded that by the marriage the debt became due to the husband; adjudged, that it did not, for it was a thing in action, and not recovered in her life-time. Style 105.

In Beaumont and Long's caſe, the husband and wife, who was adminiſtratrix to her husband, joined in an action of debt on a bond due to her firſt husband, and recovered, and then the wife died before execution, and the husband brought a ſci. fa. to have execution; but adjudged, that it did not lie, becauſe the judgment was obtained by them in right of the firſt husband; but if the woman had recovered a judgment dum ſola, or if a debt had been due to her dum ſola, and afterwards ſhe marries, and then husband and wife bring an action for that debt, and recover, and the wife dies before execution; in ſuch caſe the husband ſhall have execution by ſci. fa. becauſe the debt being originally due to the wife, the recovery in the action brought by her husband and her is in her right, and by conſequence 'tis become a proper debt to him, and therefore he ſhall have a ſci. fa. after her deceaſe; but if ſhe happen to die before the debt paſſes in rem judicatam, (i. e.) before 'tis recovered, then the husband cannot ſue for it; but if 'tis once recovered, then by the awarding execution he ſhall have it by ſurvivorſhip. 1 Mod. 179.

Husband and wife are conſidered as one perſon in law, and to have but one will between them, which is ſeated in the husband, as the head and governor of the family; and therefore the law gives him the ſame right over any real eſtate accruing to the wife during coverture as if ſhe were ſeiſed of it before marriage; ſo of chattles real accruing to the wife, and an abſolute power over any perſonal eſtate or intereſt accruing to the wife by gift, deviſe, or her labour. Co. Lit. 351. 1 Salk. 115. Carth. 251.

Indebitatus

Indebitatus aſſumpſit was brought by huſband and wife againſt the defendant, in which they declared, that he was indebted to them in ſuch a ſum of money for periwig-maker's work done by the wife, ad damnum ipſorum; and on demurrer, judgment was given againſt the plaintiffs, for this being a general indebitatus aſſumpſit implied by law, the law will not imply any promiſe made the wife, for ſhe is a ſervant to the huſband, who is at all the charges in furniſhing hair, &c. and therefore the law implies, that the promiſe was made to him only, for breach of which he alone ought to have ſued. Carth. 251. 1 Salk. 114. S. C. 4 Mod. 156. S. C.

If a feme covert ſues a woman in the ſpiritual court for adultery with her huſband, and obtains a ſentence againſt her, and coſts, the huſband may releaſe theſe coſts, for the marriage continues, and whatever accrues to the wife during coverture, belongs to the huſband; per Holt Ch. Juſt. on a motion for a prohibition. 1 Salk. 115.

But if the huſband and wife be divorced a menſa & thoro, and the wife has her alimony, and ſues for defamation or other injury, and there has coſts, and the huſband releaſes them, this ſhall not bar the wife, for theſe coſts come in lieu of what ſhe hath ſpent out of her alimony, which is a ſeparate maintenance, and not in the power of her huſband. 1 Rol. Rep. 426. 3 Bulſt. 264. 1 Rol. Abr. 343. 2 Rol. Abr. 293. 1 Salk. 115.

A legacy was given to a feme covert, who lived ſeparate from her huſband, and the executor paid it to the feme, and took her receipt for it; yet on a bill brought by the huſband againſt the executor, he was decreed to pay it over again, with intereſt. 1 Vern. 261.

4. Where the huſband ſhall be charged with debts of the wife, contracted before and after marriage; and of a wife who is executrix or adminiſtratrix.

The huſband is liable to the wife's debts contracted before marriage, whether he had any portion with her or not; and this the law preſumes reaſonable, becauſe by the marriage the huſband acquires an abſolute intereſt in the perſonal eſtate of the wife, and has the receipt of the rents and profits of her real eſtate during coverture; alſo whatever accrues to her by her labour, or otherwiſe, during the coverture, belongs to the huſband; ſo that in favour of creditors, and that no perſon's act ſhould prejudice another, the law makes the huſband liable to thoſe debts with which he took her attached. F. N. B. 265. 20 Hen. 6. 22. b. Moor 468. 1 Rol. Abr. 352. 3 Mod. 186.

But if a feme ſole indebted marries and dies, the huſband ſhall not be charged, for they muſt be recovered in the life-time of the wife. 10 Hen. 6. 10, 12. 20 Hen. 6. 22. 1 Rol. Abr. 351.

So though there be a judgment in debt againſt a feme ſole, and ſhe marries and dies, the baron ſhall not be charged therewith, for he is not liable to her debts before coverture, unleſs recovered in her life-time. 1 Rol. Abr. 351.

If baron and feme are ſued on the wife's bond, entered into by the feme before marriage, and judgment is had thereupon, and the wife dies before execution, yet the huſband is liable; for the judgment has altered the debt. 1 Sid. 337.

If there be judgment in debt upon a bond againſt a feme ſole, and ſhe marries, and after upon two ſci. fa. againſt the baron and feme, and nihils returned, judgment is thereupon had againſt the baron and feme, and ſo it reſts for a year and a day, and then the wife dies, ſcire facias will lie againſt the baron, to ſhew cauſe why execution ſhould not go againſt him upon the firſt judgment, for the award of execution was abſolute againſt the baron and feme, and ſo it became his debt, whereas before, it was only the debt for the wife. Carth. 30.

It is clear that a huſband is obliged to maintain his wife, and may by law be compelled to find her neceſſaries, as meat, drink, clothes, phyſick, &c. ſuitable to the huſband's degree, eſtate or circumſtances; it ſeems alſo ſettled that the wife is not to be her own carver, and that ſhe hath not an innate or abſolute power of binding the huſband by any contract of hers, though for neceſſaries, without his aſſent, precedent or ſubſequent; the law therefore in theſe caſes, which ſeems eſtabliſhed by uſage and practice, is to leave it to the jury to find whether the huſband conſented or not; and though no expreſs conſent or agreement of his be proved, yet if it appear that ſhe cohabited with her huſband, and bought neceſſaries for herſelf, children, or family, the husband ſhall be chargeable, and the jury may find, on their oaths, that they came to the husband's uſe, he being by law obliged to provide for thoſe; alſo if ſhe cohabits with her husband, and is ever ſo lewd, he ſhall be liable to her neceſſaries; for he took her for better for worſe; ſo if he runs away from her, or turns her away, or forces her by cruelty or ill uſage to go away from him; but if he allows her a ſeparate maintenance, or prohibits particular perſons from truſting her, he ſhall not be liable during the time that he pays ſuch ſeparate maintenance, nor for neceſſaries taken up of thoſe perſons particularly prohibited; for in theſe caſes no conſent, but rather the contrary appears; but a general warning or notice in the Gazette, or other news-paper, not to truſt her, is not a ſufficient prohibition. Alſo the jury are to determine as to the wife's neceſſity, the husband's degree and circumſtances, and the value of the things ſold and delivered, and give a verdict, and aſſeſs damages accordingly. 11 Hen. 6. 50. *Fitz. But the learning on this head will be beſt explained by inſerting the celebrated caſe of Scot and Manby, with my Lord Chief Baron Hale's argument at length.

A woman departs from her husband without his conſent; and during her abſence, the husband prohibits ſeveral perſons, and among the reſt J. S. to truſt her, and after ſhe makes a requeſt to cohabit again with her huſband, and he refuſes to receive her, and yet J. S. ſells to her ſilk and velvet to the value of 40*l.* which is found ſuitable to the degree of her husband; the husband ſhall not be charged.

I will ſay ſomething of the nature of contracts.

I will apply it to our caſe, in conſideration of the verdict, as it is found.

I will ſhew in what particulars we all agree, and where we differ, and ſo ſtate the queſtion.

I will ſpeak to the queſtion as it ſhall be ſo ſtated.

1. A contract is the conſent of two or more, whereby to bring in an obligation of one to the other; and the parts requiſite to ſuch a contract, are 1ſt, parties; 2dly, conſent; 3dly, an obligation.

1ſt, It is requiſite that the parties be not diſabled to contract; and as to that, in law ſome are diſabled to contract quoad hoc and ex parte, as an infant, non compos, &c. and ſome have an abſolute diſability; as a feme covert, who can no way in our law contract.

2dly, As to the conſent, that muſt be either expreſs or implied; expreſs muſt be either precedent, concomitant or ſubſequent; implied is raiſed by law; as where a man is made bailiff, ſteward or houſe-keeper, a general authority is given him; when goods come to a man's uſe, he having had notice of the contract, it is an aſſent the law will imply, and make the contract oblige him; and if either of theſe had been found in this ſpecial verdict, it had been well; for then there had been fact enough for the law to have made conſtruction upon. There is, beſides all this, evidence of a conſent in fact, which muſt induce a jury, if there be no circumſtances againſt it. As if I ſend a ſervant always with ready money, and he buys upon truſt, here is no evidence; but if I uſually ſend him upon truſt, and where he takes up goods I ſtand to his bargain, and pay for them, this is evidence that I would have all the world truſt him; and this a jury may apply to make a conſent to any particular contract; but then they muſt find the aſſent in fact, for that which is the evidence to them we cannot judge upon.

3dly, As to the obligation, it is neceſſary that this be upon the party conſenting. I know that in ſome caſes the the obligation of a contract may be transferred by way of concomitancy; as to the husband, it is carried with the chattles and person of the wife; and it lies upon the heir and executor when they have assets; but for a man to be originally bound by a contract, it is necessary that there be his consent; and the consent of no other person will serve.

2. To consider what is in this verdict, and apply what had been said to it: I find in it no assent of the husband's found, nor any authority he gave his wife, but only matter of evidence; I confess that when a wife, though not particularly appointed, contracts for necessaries for herself, her family, her husband or her children, this is great evidence to a jury to make them find the assent of the husband; for it cannot be reasonably thought that any man would be so barbarous as to deny his assent to have the necessities of his family supplied; and so it may be believed and found he did assent; but this is only in case of cohabitation; for it may be well imagined, that when a wife leaves her husband, that he may refuse to supply her; and so in the verdict, this matter of evidence is answered by finding that she departed from him; but then there is an answer on the other side, that she afterwards, and before this contract, desired to cohabit with him. To this it is replied again with a flat bar to any evidence that can be given of an assent, viz. That the husband did expressly prohibit those tradesmen to trust her; the judges in their directions to a jury direct them to be guided by such evidence of an assent, when nothing appears to the contrary; because it would be very hard in point of proof to shew express evidence of assent to every particular; but when there is an express prohibition or denial of assent, this takes off all circumstances of evidence on the other side.

3. I am to shew in what points we all agree, and where we differ.

1st, We all agree that it is not the contract of the wife's to bind her; for in our law, she has no will, nor power to bind herself; the Civil law, as it allows her a property distinct from the husband's, so it gives her power to bind herself by contract.

2dly, It is agreed of all hands, the wife ought to be maintained; the Civil law, though it allows the wife a separate property, yet the husband ought to maintain her out of her own dowry; it is more necessary for the Common law, that takes away all property from her, to make provision for her subsistence, else that which we pretend to be the most reasonable and provident law in the world would be the most barbarous; but in this we differ. It is said by those who argue that the husband should be charged, that she may be maintained by a power the law gives her to charge her husband by way of contract; which is altogether denied by us.

3dly, We all agree, that when the wife contracts for the necessaries of her husband, children or family, that this shall not charge him by any inherent power in the wife, but by a reasonable and implicit assent, which must be found by a jury; but we differ in the charging him; when she contracts for the supply of her own necessities, we say it is not by a power she has, but there must be his consent, either express or implied. Secondly, We confess, that in case of cohabitation, there is great evidence of his assent, till the contrary appears; but it is not so binding as will amount to a presumption. Thirdly, Therefore we say it must be found by the jury. Fourthly, That it is countermandable by prohibition; where it is said on the other side, and must be maintained, else they can make nothing of the case, that there is in the wife, upon the intermarriage, an original, inherent, primogenial, and uncountermandable power to charge the husband for her necessities, which the husband can no ways repeal, though there be no cohabitation or consent, but an express prohibition; and this is the true state of the question betwixt us; if there be such a power in the wife or no, independent upon any consent of the husband's; I shall consider,

1st, If there be such a power during cohabitation; 2dly, if for necessaries; and here I shall make a second question, if there be such a finding of necessaries as is requisite in a verdict; 3dly, if the departure makes nothing in the case; 4thly, admitting all this, whether it be countermandable quoad one man.

1st, I shall hold there is no such power in the wife; my reasons are,

1st, By the law of God, of nature, of reason, and by the Common law, the will of the wife is subject to the will of the husband; and therefore an indictment for being a joint-receiver with her husband was held ill; but if the law were with those who argue on the other side, this would be inverted, and the will of the husband would be subject to the will of the wife.

2dly, Because no man can be originally bound in a contract, but by his own consent.

3dly, To prove the law on their side lies upon them, which they have not, nor no ways can do, there being but one semblance of an authority they can alledge, which is 11 H. 6. which is the opinion of Judge Martin, and must be intended by way of evidence; but they say, they prove it by reason and inconvenience.

1. I answer, argumentum ab inconvenienti will not change or alter the law when it appears to be so; but it is only to prove and interpret the law when we are in doubt whether it be so or no.

2dly, I answer, the inconvenience of the other side outweighs, and is far greater, for it will bring into the law a manifold uncertainty.

1. What things are necessary, what kind of necessity, and when, and how often, this necessity may happen; as if the husband should give the wife clothes, and she gives them away the next day, she is in as much necessity the next day as she was before, and quicquid necessitas cogit debetur.

2dly, There would be great uncertainty, which way she should supply her necessities; as this way, 1. of taking up goods, and if she can find no credit with the mercer, but has the usurer for her friend, then the law surely, that provides against her necessities, will give her leave to take up money; and if that fails, it is reasonable that she should sell goods; for the two other ways failing, the law will not let her perish; if there were no goods, then it were as reasonable she might receive rents, which would be against Sir Paul Tracy and Dutton's case, Cro. Jac. And if there were none such, she might raise money upon the demise of the land; if the law will give way to her necessities in the first case, it must yield in all the rest, for the case may else be so, that the provision of law would be defective; but I hold, that in none of these cases the wife can provide for herself; but I say there must be a trust somewhere; as a father is bound by the law of nature to provide for his son, and the son is bound to provide for the father, but the law will not give the one leave to oblige the other by way of contract, because the law supposes that they will not be so unnatural, and entrusts them with it, viz. before the 43 Eliz. for the poor; if this trust must be somewhere, the husband knows best how to manage affairs, and so is fitter to be entrusted by the law than any body else: I add, that although the law will not presume so much ill, as that a husband should not provide for his wife's necessities; yet there is a severe obligation on him, not only to supply her in case of exigencies and extreme necessity, but according to conveniency; but the law has not made her her own judge, but provided her a judicature sufficient to reform the closehandedness of her husband; where she is driven to an extreme necessity and want of subsistence, the law has appointed a judge to compel the husband to supply her, I mean the Chancellor; for upon a supplicavit he may be bound to the peace, and bene & honeste tractare, which I hold not to be understood only, that he must use her gently, and forbear beating of her, but that he must supply her exigencies; then for her conveniencies the law has appointed the bishops courts; and whereas it is said, that this is not the Common law, I answer, that they are jurisdictions appointed by the Common law, and though their coercion and proceedings are after another law, yet their derivation, as to their use here, was from the Common law; and concerning the amplitude of their power, which is said not to be able to administer a medicine dicine ſufficient for this diſeaſe; I ſay, as it is aided by the brachium ſeculare, the power of it falls as ſeverely upon them that diſobey it, as the Common law can uſe when men will not pay their debts; for they may excommunicate, and upon that follows impriſonment, and a diſability to ſue any action.

The ſecond objection made on the other ſide is, by comparing the caſe of a feme covert with the caſe of an infant; but I anſwer, an infant is diſabled only quoad hoc, and may oblige himſelf for neceſſaries; but here the wife would bind her husband alſo; in the caſe of an infant there is nobody intruſted by the law to provide for him (for guardian in ſocage is only where there is land) immediately; and therefore he muſt do it himſelf, whereas the husband is intruſted for the wife; ſo the caſes are not parallel.

3dly, It is objected, that it comes to the uſe of the husband; I anſwer, it would then bind the husband in ſuperfluities, which may ſo come to his uſe; which how inconvenient, I leave any man to judge.

4thly, It is objected, that the husband is bound by the wrongs of his wife, and may be charged in trover and converſion upon her act; I ſay, that in caſe of a wrong ſhe binds herſelf, for ſhe muſt be joined in the action, and ſo ſhe will be more careful not to ſubject herſelf, than when the husband is charged alone; but I hold, that in this caſe no trover and converſion lies; for the delivery of the party knowing the fact, and intending a ſale and contract, tranſlates the property at the peril of him that delivers them. If a man knows one to be an infant, and ſells him goods, it is at his peril, for if they be not neceſſaries, he ſhall never charge the infant for the converſion; and ſo of a feme covert, if there be no conſent of the husband: for it has been held, that what the wife eats or wears comes to the uſe of the husband, and will maintain a converſion; and if the law ſhould not be taken thus, we ſhould let in a flood of inconveniencies, which would make all thoſe diſabilities the law has raiſed for the protection of infants and feme coverts, mere words and of no effect.

2dly, I ſhall lay no ſtreſs upon the imperfect finding of the verdict, leſt it might be ſaid that that was the reaſon of the judgment, but only name ſome particulars, wherein it ſeems to be imperfect. 1ſt, They ſhould have found what the ſtuffs were; for it has been adjudged, that the velvets were not neceſſary for an infant; they ought to have found the circumſtances of the neceſſity; as where manſlaughter is committed ſe defendendo, or in execution of an office; they ſhould have ſet forth of what kind the neceſſity was, as there is a neceſſity of clothes, of meat, of medicine, and of habitation; they have found, that theſe goods were neceſſary and convenient for his degree, they ſhould have ſaid alſo for his eſtate; for a high degree may have a low eſtate, and the wife cannot expect to be maintained according to the height of her huſband's degree; but I lay no hold on theſe defects in the verdict.

3dly, Upon her departure, all evidence of any obligation of the huſband to maintain her, ceaſes; it would elſe be very unreaſonable, for whilſt they are both in one houſe, the ſame proviſion will ſerve for both; in caſe of a bailiff, if he goes away, no contract of his will bind the maſter, though he had no expreſs diſcharge; and here we muſt preſume ſome unreaſonable cauſe of her departure; for a wife in no caſe ought to do it, and ſhe might have had alimony without any ſeparation.

4thly, Admitting all this, I hold that the prohibition here takes away all preſumption of any conſent of the huſband to the contract, either expreſs or implied, and though the wife ſhould be allowed ſuch a power to charge her huſband, as is affirmed on the other ſide, yet it may be diſcharged as to one particular man, by the prohibition and countermand of the huſband; it would be a very hard caſe elſe, for ſhe may make him liable to the greateſt enemy he had in the world. 12 Edw. 4. 18. The King may grant to J. S. to be exempt of juries; but if he grants it to a whole county, hundred or townſhip, the grant is void; and by this prohibition of the huſband here is no diſcharge of the whole power, but only it is taken of thoſe particular perſons. If a man enters into an obligation not to uſe his trade, it is againſt law, and void, but if it be not to ſet up his trade in ſuch a ſtreet or town, it is good.

Note; he added, that as to the charging the huſband by way of evidence, which he had reſtrained to cohabitation, he ſaid, the law is the ſame where the huſband departs from the wife; as upon going beyond ſea, &c. 1 Sid. 109, 110, &c. and 1 Mod. 128. 1 Lev. 4, 5. 1 Keb. 69, 80, &c. S. C.

Since this reſolution there have been ſeveral caſes in which tradeſmen have recovered in actions brought againſt the huſband for goods delivered to the wife; and in all theſe caſes the judges have laid down the diſtinction of an implied promiſe, and directed it as a ſufficient foundation to charge the huſband, and in their directions have ſhewn as much favour as poſſible to ſuch tradeſmen as intruſted her on the credit of her huſband, and were in no combination with the wife to charge him. 1 New Abr. 300.

An ordinary working man married a woman of the like condition, and after cohabitation for ſome time, the huſband left her, and during his abſence, the wife worked; and this action being brought for her diet, died; it was held, that the money ſhe earned ſhould go to keep her. 1 Salk. 118.

If the wife, whilſt ſhe lives ſeparate from her huſband, and has a ſeparate maintenance, buys goods of tradeſmen, who know of the ſeparation and maintenance, they cannot ſue the executors of the huſband in Chancery, for theſe goods; neither will equity give the executors any relief, becauſe they have a very good defence at law. 1 Vern. 71.

If a feme bound in debt takes baron, he ſhall be charged during the life of the feme, but not after her death, becauſe ceſſante cauſa ceſſabit effectus. Br. Baron and Feme, pl. 27. cites 49 E. 3. 23.

Citation was iſſued in the ſpiritual court againſt a feme ſole upon ſlander, and the libel proved for the plaintiff, upon which the court awarded 10*l. to the party for his coſts, and for the defamation*, and after the feme took baron, and made the baron her executor, and died; after citation was againſt the baron as executor of his feme, to pay the ſum to the party; upon which a prohibition was ſued, and the other prayed conſultation; and per the opinion of the court, becauſe the ſlander is ſpiritual, and they cannot award better recompence than money, and that the baron has proved the teſtament of the feme, and ſo agreed that ſhe made him executor, and therefore conſultation ſhall be granted; but ſeveral ſerjeants contra, and that the ſpiritual court cannot award a ſum of money, and that the ſlander dies with the perſon, and all that which depends upon it likewiſe; but Brooke ſays, it ſeems to him that it is a debt, and by the death of the feme, the debt ſhall not run upon the baron; but it ſeems, *by the probate of the teſtament he has taken upon him to pay it in law. In debt againſt baron and feme, as adminiſtratrix to her firſt huſband, judgment being againſt them, the ſheriff returned nulla bona, &c. of the inteſtate, whereupon another fi. fa. was brought againſt them, that if it be found that they devaſtaverunt bona, & ſi conſtare poterit, tunc fi. fa. and the ſheriff returned, that they had no goods of the inteſtate in their hands, but that the wife had goods to the value of 100*l. which ſhe had waſted during her widowhood, and that the huſband had not waſted any of them, & ſi devaſtaverunt* according to the writ, the jury pray the direction of the court. It was argued, that this was a devaſtavit in both; and the court held, that the return of what was found by the jury was good enough, and judgment for the plaintiff. Cro. Car. 603. pl. 7.

It was admitted on all ſides, that if a feme ſole is indebted and marries, an action will lie againſt huſband and wife, and he is liable to the payment of her debts. 3 Mod. 186.

A. marries B. an adminiſtratrix; B. had waſted great part of the eſtate before the marriage. After the marriage, a ſuit is brought againſt them for a diſtribution, according to

A freeman of London having issue two daughters, devises 6000 l. apiece to them, and makes his wife executrix: by an estimate it appeared, that his personal estate at his death was 18000 l. to 6000 l. of which the widow being intitled, A. her second husband, in consideration thereof, settled a jointure of 600 l. per ann. Afterwards a loss of 12000 l. befel the freeman's estate; and tho' the wife was dead, and it was urged that the second husband was a purchaser of her fortune, yet it was decreed, that the daughters should have a proportionable recompence out of the 6000 l. for where he takes notice in the articles, that the 6000 l. he was with his wife, who was executrix of her former husband, was part of her first husband's personal estate, upon an account open and unliquidated, he comes in as a purchaser thereof, subject and liable to an account; that is, as so much as upon the account might be coming to her; and besides having taken collateral security, that her share should amount to the 6000 l. he shall be liable to a loss befalling the personal estate afterwards, as far as the wife's proportion amounts to, (tho' she is dead) together with her two daughters-in-law, who were each intitled to a third part by the custom of London. Per Cowper C. Ch. Prec. 431.

Where a man marries a widow executrix, &c. her evidence shall not be allow'd to charge her second husband with more than she can prove to have actually come to her hands. Agreed per cur. Abr. Eq. Ca. 227. Hil. 1719.

A. bequeathed 7 l. to the plaintiff, and made his wife executrix, and died; she married the defendant, who had divers goods of the testator's in his hands, and in consideration the plaintiff would forbear to sue him, he promised to pay it. The defendant pleaded, that his wife was dead before the promise supposed to be made; and adjudged for the defendant; for the feme being dead, he is not chargeable; and as to goods in his hands, he is liable to the executor or administrator for them. *Cro. It has been held, that where a man married a woman trader, who died, and at her death was indebted to several persons for wares which she had bought of them, and which were by her in specie at the time of her death, and came to her husband, that tho' a bill be brought against him, he may either pay for those goods, or let the person have them again; yet he may insist that he is neither executor nor administrator to his wife, and therefore not liable to her debts, and that all her goods belong to him by law. Ruled upon demurrer. Abr. Eq. Ca. 60. Trin. 1700. Blackmore v. Ley. But quære.

Judgment was obtained against a feme sole; she marries; then the plaintiff sues a scire facias against husband and wife, and has judgment quod habeat executionem against them. A. married a feme sole trader, and she dies indebted. It was insisted, that tho' the husband in such cases be not liable at law to the debts, yet he ought to be so in equity; but Lord C. Parker said, that this was a question with him; for the husband runs a hazard in being liable to the debts, much beyond the wife's personal estate; and that, in recompence for such hazard, he is intitled to the whole of the personal estate, tho' exceeding the debts, and discharged therefrom, and indeed is intitled to the same upon the very marriage. Wms's Rep. 466, 469. pl. 132. Trin. 1718. in case of the Earl of Thomond v. the Earl of Suffolk.

M. was indebted to A. her mother in 2000 l. by bond, and then A. by will devised this 2000 l. to J. S. afterwards M. married, and survived her husband, and afterwards married W. R. who had with her several jewels, and a rent-charge of 1500 l. a year. About ten years after this last marriage M. died, add then A. died, without having ever put the bond in suit. Lord C. Parker held, that if W. R. had been executor or administrator of his wife, or executor of his own wrong, he had been liable at law as far as he had assets; but he appears not to the court in any of these capacities; and that, for aught appears, A. purposely omitted recovering judgment against him; that the husband, during the coverture, is answerable for the wife's debts, tho' he has nothing with her; and on the other hand, if he has received a personal estate with his wife, and happens not to be sued during the coverture, he is not liable; and in the principal case, the jointure enjoyed by W. R. might have determined the next moment after marriage; and as to the demand from W. R. of his said wife's debt, his Lordship dismissed the bill with costs. Wms's Rep. 461. pl. 132. Trin. 1718.

A woman entered into a bond, and after married, having brought her husband a very considerable fortune. The husband constantly paid the interest of the bond during the life of the wife. Now a bill is brought against the husband for the payment of the bond, and 1 *Chan. But the bill was dismissed, tho' without costs. Select Ca. in Chan. in Lord King's time, 19. Trin. 11 Geo. 1. Jordon v. Foley.

Wife of A. receives 10 l. to the use of A. and this comes to the profit of A. in a necessary and convenient way, tho' it was without A.'s order or consent after, yet A. is liable to this debt, and the count shall be of a receipt by the hands of the baron. Jenk. 4. pl. 5.

A feme covert bought tobacco, and the husband was sued for it, tho' he had made proclamation that no man should trust her, and no proof was that it came to the husband's use, or that the wife did use to buy and sell for the husband; and it was ruled, that it shall be intended she did so as his servant; and the judge took this difference, where particular notice is given not to trust the wife, there, if the party, to whom such notice is given, do trust her, it is at his peril; but not so upon this general notice by the proclamation aboveaid; and in this case it was proved she had formerly bought and sold, but not lately. Clayt. 125, 126. pl. 223.

If the baron is beyond sea in any voyage, and during his absence the wife buys necessaries, this is a good evidence for a jury to find that the baron assumpsit. Sid. 127.

But such evidence is only presumptive, and not conclusive evidence, and therefore the jury in such case finding it specially, the court cannot give judgment against the baron; for their being necessaries and the employment, with the residue of the special circumstances, is not but matter of evidence, upon which the jury should proceed to ascertain the fact, whether the baron promised or not. Sid. 127. in case of Manby v. Scott.

And the baron might contradict such presumptive evidence by other proofs; as that he gave her ready money to buy, &c. Sid. 127. in case of Manby v. Scott.

The father devised legacies to his children, and made the mother executrix. She married again, and died. The infants brought a bill against their father-in-law, to have an account of the personal estate of the father; but decreed, that not being called to account in the life-time of their mother, he was not responsible now. *Fin. If the wife pawns her cloaths for money, and afterwards borrows money to redeem them, the husband is not chargeable unless he were consenting, or that the first sum came to his use. 2 Show. 283.

In case brought for wares sold and delivered by the plaintiff, to the wife of the defendant, non assumpsit was pleaded, and upon evidence it appeared that the goods were silver fringes and laces for a petticoat and side-saddle, and that they were all delivered within the compass of four months, and that they amounted to 94 l. and that part of them were delivered to a carrier for the wife of the defendant, by the order of Mrs. Rider, upon a letter of the wife to Mr. Rider, and that the other part were delivered upon a letter of the wife to the plaintiff; and that the laces were worn and uſed by the wife in the view of the defendant, and that the wife at that time lived with the defendant in the ſame houſe. For the defendant it was inſiſted, that long time before the delivery of theſe goods, there was a difference between him and his wife, and that they for the ſpace of two or three years had not lived together, and that the wife declared to the defendant that ſhe would charge him with 500 l. in one term, and would have him in gaol in the next, and all this before the goods were delivered; and that for many years the wife had an allowance for cloaths, viz. 50 l. per ann. and no evidence was given that ſhe had any occaſion to have theſe cloaths, ſo as they could appear to be neceſſary. And the ſame day another action was tried for velvet and tiſſues of 3 l. per yard, to the value of 80 l. And Treby Ch. J. directed that if the jury found the plaintiff innocent of the deſign of the wife to ruin the huſband, and delivered the laces, &c. as goods fit for the wife, and upon the credit of the huſband, without notice of the difference between them, that the huſband ſhall be obliged to pay the plaintiff, for it is part of his promiſe of marriage to feed and cloath her; and tho' ſhe had an allowance, this was ſecret, and of which the plaintiff had not notice; but if the plaintiff had notice of the differences between the huſband and wife, and ſold them only to enable the wife to ruin the huſband, then the defendant would not be chargeable, and though the huſband be chargeable heretofore, yet after ſuch a ſolemn trial, and their differences made ſo publick, he held that the huſband ſhall not be chargeable; and likewiſe if the plaintiff was privy to their differences, but delivered the goods innocently, yet, if the goods were not ſuitable to the quality of the wife, the defendant ſhould not be chargeable; and if part be only ſuitable, he ſhould be charged for that part only. Upon this direction the jury, being of gentlemen, found generally for the plaintiff for his whole damages. Skin. 348.

R.* ſhall ſtand in their place, and be a creditor alſo; and his honour directed the truſtees (to whom the huſband then deceaſed had deviſed lands for payment of all his debts) to pay *W. A ſtranger lays claim to a term which the wife has as executrix to her baron, and her ſecond husband by writing ſubmits to an award the title and intereſt of his wife. The arbitrator awards one moiety to the claimant, and awards the other moiety to the baron and feme. The ſecond baron dies. The wife is bound. For if the baron had granted over the term, ſuch grant would bind the feme. And conſequently the ſubmiſſion in this caſe being for the title and intereſt of the term, is the ſame in effect as if the baron had granted the term over; but if the arbitrators award that the poſſeſſor ſhall hold the term, this it ſeems does not bind the right of the other, for ſuch arbitrament does not extinguiſh the right as it does in the other caſe where it makes the poſſeſſion to paſs. Dyer 183. a. pl. 57.

A feme adminiſtratrix to her former huſband, brought debt with her then husband upon an obligation to the inteſtate, and had judgment for debt, damages and coſts. The feme died. The baron after a year and a day brought ſci. fa. to have execution; and all the court (except Hide Ch. J. who doubted thereof) conceived that the ſci. fa. lay not for the huſband, becauſe, being a debt demanded by the wife as adminiſtratrix, it was en auter droit; and though they recover, yet ſhe dying before execution, the duty remains to ſuch perſon as takes a new adminiſtration as in right of the inteſtate; and though the baron is party to the judgment, yet he has no property in the debt, whereas he that ought to have a ſci. fa. muſt have privity and property to have the debt, otherwiſe it is a vain ſuit. Cro. Car. 208. pl. 2.

Obligee made his wife executrix. She married a ſecond husband, who became bankrupt, and the commiſſioners aſſigned this debt. But by Holt Ch. J. they have no power to aſſign any thing but what is the bankrupt's eſtate, and if the wife dies before aſſignment by him, there muſt be an adminiſtration de bonis non. His power to diſpoſe of her eſtate does not make a title in him; and though he may diſpoſe of a term which he has in jure uxoris, yet if he becomes a bankrupt, the commiſſioners cannot aſſign over this eſtate; and by Powel J. they have nothing to do with the debts of the teſtator, but only with the debts of the bankrupt. Holt's Rep. 104, 105.

Where the wife has debts or duties due to her, ſhe cannot, by making another perſon executor, preclude her husband from that benefit which to him ſhould appertain as adminiſtrator of her goods. Went. Off. Ex. 200.

But where they belong to her as executrix, no benefit can redound to the huſband by having ſuch adminiſtration of his wife's goods; for thoſe ſhould go to the next a-kin of the wife's teſtator, who muſt take adminiſtration de bonis non of ſuch teſtator, if ſhe has no executor, and therefore her making executor as touching theſe brings no prejudice to her baron, and ſo is out of the reaſon of the caſe of Ognell v. Underhill and Appleby. Went. Off. Ex. 200.

Where the wife is executrix and legatee, if ſhe claims as executrix, and dies, if the ſecond baron would have advantage of it, he muſt take letters of adminiſtration de bonis non of the firſt huſband, and not of the wife; but if ſhe had claimed the land and the term in it as legatee, and had not been in poſſeſſion, adminiſtration taken of the rights and debts of the wife had been good as to that intent, tho' his wife was not actually poſſeſſed of it, but only had a right unto it, and of ſuch things in action the huſband might be executor or adminiſtrator to his wife; and if the baron takes adminiſtration differently, and brings action, he will be nonſuit, and if the wife before election marries, the baron may make the election. Lev. 216. pl. 298. Mich. 32 & 33 Eliz. C. B. in caſe of Cheyney v. Smith.

The wife intitled by the ſtatute of diſtributions dies, before diſtribution, inteſtate, and ſo does the huſband too ſoon after. Whether the intereſt veſted in the wife did veſt in the baron without taking adminiſtration to his wife, or not? It was argued that it did, and ſo that it ſhould go to the adminiſtrator of the husband, and not to the adminiſtrator of the wife. See 2 Vern. 302. pl. 293.

5. What acts done by the huſband or wife alone, or jointly with the wife, will bind the wife; and of her agreement or diſagreement to ſuch acts after the death of the huſband.

The husband, as head and governor of the family, has an abſolute power over the chattles real and perſonal which he is poſſeſſed of in right of his wife, to diſpoſe of them as he thinks proper, and no act or concurrence of hers is of any avail, either in confirming or controuling ſuch diſpoſition; but the real eſtate is under a different regulation, and not under the power of the husband, longer than during the coverture; and therefore any diſpoſition of it made by him alone may be defeated, alſo all charges laid on it by him fall off with his death. 1 Rol. Abr. 346, 347. 2 Inſt. 510. 10 Co. 42. 1 Sid. 11.

At Common law, any alienation made by the husband of the wife's land, whether by feoffment, fine or recovery, was a diſcontinuance, and after his death ſhe was put to her cui in vita, to reinſtate herſelf; but now by the ſtatute 32 H. 8. cap. 28. it is provided, That no fine levied by the huſband alone, of lands, being the freehold and inheritance of the wife, ſhall in any wiſe be or make a diſcontinuance, or be otherwiſe prejudicial to her or her heirs, but that the wife and her heirs ſhall and may lawfully enter into the ſaid lands, according to their rights and titles therein. 2 Inſt. 681.

If a feme covert levies a fine of her own inheritance without her husband, this ſhall bind her and her heirs, becauſe they are eſtopped to claim any thing in the land, and cannot be admitted to ſay ſhe was covert againſt the record; but the husband may enter and defeat it, either during the coverture, to reſtore him to the freehold he held jure uxoris, or after her death, to reſtore himſelf to his tenancy by the courteſy, becauſe no act of a feme covert can transfer that intereſt which the intermarriage has veſted in the husband; and if the husband avoids it during the coverture, the wife or her heirs ſhall never after be bound by it. Bro. Tit. Fines, 33. 10 Co. 43. Hob. 225. 7 Co. 8. Co. Lit. 46.

If a husband and wife join in a fine to convey her own inheritance, it ought to be received, if upon her examination it appears to be voluntary and free from conſtraint, and if ſhe be of full age, the fine ſhall bind her as if ſhe had been ſole. 1 Rol. Abr. 347. 2 Rol. Abr. 20. 2 Inſt. 515.

Where the feme is examined by writ, ſhe ſhall be bound, elſe not. 10 Co. 43.

Baron and feme levy a fine; this will bar the feme. 1 Rol. Abr. 347.

If baron and feme ſuffer a common recovery, this binds the feme; for ſhe is examined in this. 10 Co. 43.

Baron and feme acknowledge a deed to be inrolled; this does not bind the feme, becauſe ſhe is not examined by writ. 10 Co. 43.

If the baron and feme are bound in an obligation of 100 l. for a releaſe made to them of the land de jure uxoris, and the baron dies, this obligation ſhall bind the feme, becauſe it was made for her releaſe, which is a benefit to her; per Belknap. Quære; for it was not adjudged. Br. Baron & Feme, pl. 77.

If a man leaſes to baron and feme for years rendring rent, and dies, the feme ſhall be bound by it; contrary of other collateral covenants. Br. Baron and Feme, pl. 78.

Leaſe

Leaſe made by baron and feme ſhall be ſaid the leaſe of them both, till the feme diſagrees, which ſhe cannot do in the life of the baron, and waſte lies by both. Br. Agreement, pl. 6.

A man was infeoffed to the uſe of a feme ſole, who takes an huſband. They both for money ſell the land to B. who pays it to the wife, and ſhe and her huſband do pray the feoffee to make the eſtate to B. Afterwards her huſband dies. Now, by the Chancellor and all the juſtices, ſhe ſhall have aid againſt the firſt feoffee by ſubpœna, to ſatisfy her for the land; and if the ſecond feoffee were conuſant, a ſubpœna ſhall be againſt him for the land; for all that the wife did during her coverture (as they ſaid) ſhall be taken to be done for fear of the huſband. Cary's Rep. 18, 19.

Huſband and wife, ſeiſed of lands to them and the heirs of the huſband. He covenanted, in conſideration of 20*l.* that he and his wife would ſuffer a recovery thereof by writ of right, according to the cuſtom of London, which is as binding as a fine at Common law, and that it ſhould be to the uſe of the recoverors, until they (the baron and feme) had made a good and ſufficient leaſe for 40 years, &c. and after to the uſe of the huſband and wife, and to the heirs of the feme. The leaſe was made accordingly, and afterwards the huſband died. All the judges were of opinion, that the wife ſhall not avoid this leaſe, becauſe her former eſtate was gone and extinguiſhed by the recovery; and judgment accordingly; and the reporter ſays, that all the juſtices of B. R. were of the ſame opinion. Dyer 290. a. pl. 61.

Fine by E. to the uſe of himſelf for life, remainder to his wife that ſhould be at the time of his death, for life; remainder to the ſon of E. in tail, E. took to wife A. A fine levied by E. and A. his wife, who afterwards ſurvived him, and other uſes declared, is no bar to her, becauſe it was uncertain who would be the perſon; but had the perſon been certain, there perhaps, notwithſtanding it was but a poſſibility, it might have been a bar; per Walmſley J. Cro. E. 826. pl. 31.

The examination of a feme covert is not always neceſſary in levying of fines, becauſe that being provided that ſhe may not at the inſtance of her huſband make any unwary diſpoſition of her property, it follows, that when the huſband and wife do take an eſtate by the fine, and part with nothing, the feme need not be examined; but where ſhe is to convey or paſs any eſtate or intereſt, either by herſelf or jointly with her huſband, there ſhe ought to be examined; therefore if A. levies a fine come ceo to baron and feme, and they render to the conuzor, the feme ſhall be examined; ſo it is where ſhe takes an eſtate by the fine, rendring rent. 2 Inſt. 515. 2 Rol. Abr. 17.

If huſband and wife levy a fine, and the wife is within age, they may join in a writ of error to reverſe it during the minority of the wife, not by any privilege of coverture, but becauſe, during her ſtate of infancy, no act of hers can be ſo obligatory as not to be cancelled, if ſhe thinks it prejudicial to her. F. N. B. 21. 1 Leon. 15. 3 Lev. 36.

If a man makes a jointure on his wife, either before or after marriage, and they both join in a fine, ſhe is bound thereby; and if the jointure was made before marriage, ſhe is barred to claim dower in any other lands of the huſband's; but if the jointure was made during coverture, ſhe may claim dower in the other lands. Co. Lit. 36. Dyer 358.

If baron and feme by fine ſur conceſſit grant land to J. S. for 99 years, and warrant the ſaid land to J. S. during the ſaid term, and the baron dies, and J. S. is evicted by one that hath a prior title, he may thereupon bring covenant againſt the feme, notwithſtanding ſhe was covert at the time when the fine was levied. 2 Saund. 177. 1 Sid. 466. S. C. 1 Mod. 290. 2 Keb. 684, 703.

A recovery, as well as a fine by a feme covert, is good to bar her, becauſe the præcipe in the recovery anſwers the writ of covenant in the fine, to bring her into court, where the examination of the judges deſtroys the preſumption of the law, that this is done by the coercion of the huſband, for then it is to be preſumed they would have refuſed her. 10 Co. 43. 2 Rol. Abr. 395.

But if a wife alone, or with her huſband, barga'n and ſell her lands by deed indented and inrolled, yet it ſhall not bind her, for a wife cannot be examined by any court without writ, and there is no writ allowed in this caſe. 2 Inſt. 673. Hob. 225.

If a feme covert joins her huſband in levying a fine to raiſe a ſum of money by way of mortgage, this ſhall bind her. See 2 Vern. 436, 689. 1 Vern. 41, 213.

If a huſband diſſeiſe another to the uſe of his wife, this does not make her a diſſeiſoreſs, ſhe having no will of her own; nor will any agreement of hers to the diſſeiſin during the coverture, make her guilty of the diſſeiſin, for the ſame reaſon; but the agreement after her huſband's death will make her a diſſeiſoreſs, becauſe then ſhe is capable of giving her conſent, and that makes her tenant of the freehold, and ſo ſubject to the remedy of the diſſeiſee. 1 Rol. Abr. 660. Bro. Diſſeiſin 67.

So if a man diſſeiſes another to the uſe of a feme covert, her agreement to it ſignifies nothing, though the huſband's agreement to it ſettles the eſtate in the wife, yet it makes her no ſharer in the guilt of the diſſeiſin. 1 Rol. Abr. 660. Br. Diſſeiſin 67.

A. having three daughters, B. C. and D. intails his land upon them; afterwards C. married, and being a feme covert, agreed with conſent of her husband to take 1000*l. in conſideration of extinguiſhment of her right as coheir.* The judges by their certificate held it to be no bar to her. Toth. 162.

A ſingle woman did agree to have a moiety of land, and after marriage, ſubſcribed her name with her husband to a latter agreement, though feme covert. Toth. 160.

M. a feme, before her marriage with A. conveyed land to truſtees with A.'s privity, in truſt, to pay the rents and profits to her ſole and ſeparate uſe for her life; and after to ſuch uſes as ſhe, whether ſole or covert, ſhould by her laſt will limit and appoint; and for want of ſuch appointment, then to her own right heirs for ever. After the marriage, A. mortgaged the land to the plaintiff for 500 years, to ſecure 1000*l.* A. and M. joined in a fine, and both declared the uſes to be to the plaintiff for ſecuring this principal and intereſt, the remainder to the right heirs of A. M. inſiſted that ſhe was compelled by dureſs to join in the fine, and that the mortgage was fictitious only, and in truſt for A. in order to defraud her; and it was argued that this was a naked power without any intereſt, and ſo could not be barred by the fine; but Lord Chancellor è contra; and decreed the truſtees to convey to the plaintiff, but without prejudice to any future bill that may be brought for diſcovery of the fraud or force. Caſes in Eq. in Ld. Talbot's time, 41. Mich. 1734. Penne v. Peacock.

A feme covert by dureſs joins in a leaſe with her huſband, ſhe ſhall be bound by it; per Manwood J.

Baron and feme ſeiſed in the right of the feme, mortgaged by deed for 300*l.* and covenanted to levy a fine for further aſſurance, and if the baron and feme, or either of them, or their heirs, executors, &c. did pay, &c. then the ſaid fine to enure to the baron and feme, and the ſurvivor, and after to the right heirs of the baron. A fine was levied, and the monies not paid at the time, but borrowed more money, and by deed confirmed the mortgage for the further ſum: the baron died; his heir an infant; decreed the feme to pay one third, and the infant heir two thirds. Chan. Rep. 218.

A. promiſes to leave his wife 400*l.* if ſhe will join in ſale of her lands, and let him have the money to trade with. She joins, and ſix months after he gives bond to a ſtranger to pay his wife 300*l.* after his death; per Hale Ch. J. This bond is not fraudulent againſt creditors. 2 Lev. 148.

But if a feme covert actually enters and commits a diſſeiſin, either ſole or together with her husband, then ſhe is a diſſeiſoreſs, becauſe ſhe thereby gains a wrongful poſſeſſion, but ſuch actual entry cannot be to the uſe of her husband or a ſtranger, ſo as to make them diſſeiſors, becauſe though by ſuch entry ſhe gains an eſtate, yet ſhe has has no power of transferring it to another. Co. Lit. 357. 1 Rol. Abr. 660. Bro. Diſſeiſin, 15, 67. See 8 Hen. 6. 14 cont.

If the huſband ſeiſed of lands in right of his wife, makes a leaſe thereof for years by indenture or deed parol, reſerving rent; all the books agree this to be a good leaſe for the whole term, unleſs the wife by ſome act after the huſband's death, ſhews her diſſent thereto, for if ſhe accepts rent which becomes due after his death, the leaſe is thereby become abſolute and unavoidable; the reaſon whereof is, that the wife after her intermarriage being by law diſabled to contract for, or make any diſpoſition of her own poſſeſſions, as having ſubjected herſelf and her whole will to the will and power of her huſband; the law therefore transfers the power of dealing and contracting for her poſſeſſions to the huſband, becauſe no other can then intermeddle therewith, and without ſuch power in the huſband, they would be obliged to keep them in their own manurance or occupation, which might be greatly to the prejudice of both; but to prevent the huſband's abuſing ſuch power, and leſt he ſhould make leaſes to the prejudice of his wife's inheritance, the law has left her at liberty after his death, either to affirm and make good ſuch leaſe, or defeat and avoid it, as ſhe finds it ſubſervient to her own intereſt; and this ſhe may do, tho' ſhe joined in ſuch leaſe, unleſs made purſuant to ſtatute 32 Hen. 8. cap. 28. *Bro. Huſband and wife make a leaſe for years, by indenture, of the wife's lands, reſerving rent; the leſſee enters, the huſband, before any day of payment, dies; the wife takes a ſecond huſband, and he at the day accepts the rents, and dies; and it was held, that the wife could not now avoid the leaſe, for by her ſecond marriage ſhe transferred her power of avoiding it to her huſband, and his acceptance of the rent binds her, as her own act before ſuch marriage would have done, for he by the marriage ſucceeded into the power and place of the wife, and what ſhe might have done either as to affirming or avoiding ſuch leaſe before marriage, the ſame may the huſband do after the marriage. Dyer 159. 1 Rol. Abr. 475. 1 Rol. Rep. 132.

The husband being ſeiſed of copyhold lands in right of his wife in fee, makes thereof a leaſe for years not warranted by the cuſtom, which is a forfeiture of her eſtate, yet this ſhall not bind the wife or her heirs after the huſband's death, but that they may enter and avoid the leaſe, and thereby purge the forfeiture; and the diverſity ſeems between this act, which is at an end when the leaſe is expired or defeated by the entry of the lord, or the wife after the husband's death, and ſuch acts as are a continuing detriment to the inheritance, as wilful waſte by the husband, which tends to the deſtruction of the manor; ſo of non-payment of rent, denial of ſuit or ſervice; for ſuch forfeitures as theſe bind the inheritance of the wife after the husband's death; but in the other caſe the huſband cannot forfeit by this leaſe more than he can grant, which is but for his own life. 2 Rol. Rep. 344, 361, 372. Cro. Car. 7. Cro. Eliz. 149. 4 Co. 27.

A woman guardian in ſocage marries, and joins with her husband by indenture in making a leaſe for years of the ward's lands, yet after her husband's death ſhe may avoid the ſame; for though the husband has abſolute power of all chattles, either real or perſonal, whereof he is poſſeſſed in right of his wife, and the wardſhip of the body, and the land in this caſe is but a chattle, yet the wife being poſſeſſed of it in right of the infant, and accountable to him for the profits when he comes of age, the husband's diſpoſition ſhall not bind her after his death, but that ſhe may evade it in right of the infant, whoſe guardian ſhe ſtill continues to be; and her own joining in the leaſe was not material, becauſe ſhe was then under coverture. Plowd. 293. Co. Lit. 351. 1 Rol. Abr. 343.

A feme covert is capable of purchaſing, for ſuch an act does not make the property of the husband liable to any diſadvantage, and the husband is ſuppoſed to aſſent to this, as being to his advantage, but the husband may diſagree; and it ſhall avoid the purchaſe; but if he neither agrees nor diſagrees, the purchaſe is good, for his conduct ſhall be eſteemed a tacit conſent, ſince it is to turn to his advantage; but in this caſe, though the huſband ſhould agree to the purchaſe, yet after his death ſhe may waive it, for, having no will of her own at the time of the purchaſe, ſhe is not indiſpenſably bound by the contract; therefore if ſhe does not, when under her own management and will, by ſome act expreſs her agreement to ſuch purchaſe, her heirs ſhall have the privilege of departing from it. Co. Lit. 3. a.

Jointreſs paying off a mortgage was decreed to hold over till ſhe or her executor be ſatisfied, and intereſt to be allowed her. Chan. Caſes 271.

A. and his wife ſeiſed of lands in the right of the wife, by fine and deed, mortgage them for 340 l which was not paid at the day, but 200*l. part was paid* afterwards, and then A. borrowed other money of the ſame mortgagee. The payment of the 200*l.* was indorſed on the mortgage deed. The wife, in the preſence of A. made account of what was due on the firſt and ſecond loan; for both, by agreement, were to be on ſecurity of the mortgage. The wife died, but no fine was levied on the ſecond loan, and therefore objected, that neither the wife's nor A.'s conſent ſhould bind the heir; but Finch C. contra; for the mortgagee has good title in law, and as much equity to the money as the heir has to the land. 2 Chan. Ca. 98.

Where the wife joined in a fine ſur conceſſit of her jointure, being houſes burnt down in the fire of London, in order to a mortgage or ſecurity to raiſe 1500*l.* to rebuild them, it is not an abſolute departure with her intereſt; but there is a reſulting truſt for her, when the ſecurity or mortgage is paid, to have her eſtate again, as if it had been a mortgage on condition, and the money paid at the day. 2 Chan. Ca. 98.

The husband gave a voluntary bond after marriage to make a jointure of ſuch value on his wife; the husband accordingly makes a jointure; the wife gives up the bond; the jointure is evicted; the jointure ſhall be made good out of the husband's perſonal eſtate, there being no creditors in the caſe; and the delivery up of the bond by a feme covert could no ways bind her intereſt. Vern. 427. pl. 402.

A feme covert agrees to ſell her inheritance, ſo as ſhe might have 200*l.* of the money ſecured to her; the land is ſold, and the money put out in a truſtee's name accordingly; this money ſhall not be liable to the huſband's debts, nor ſhall any promiſe by the wife to that purpoſe, ſubſequent to the firſt original agreement, be obliging in that behalf. 2 Vern. 64, 65. pl. 58. Trin. 1688.

Feme joins with baron in a mortgage of her own inheritance, to raiſe money to buy a place for the baron; baron covenants in the mortgage to pay the money (4500*l.*) and on payment thereof by proviſo the term is to ceaſe. The mortgage is afterwards aſſigned, and the proviſo is, that on payment of them, or either of them, the term to be aſſigned, as they or either of them ſhall direct. Baron, ſoon after the mortgage, promiſed his wife to apply the profits of his place to pay it off. Baron pays it off, and takes an aſſignment in truſt for himſelf, and deviſed it to a ſecond wife. The ſon and heir of the baron and firſt wife brings a bill to have the mortgage aſſigned to him. Denied relief in Chancery but on payment of principal, intereſt and coſts. But in dom. procer. decreed the mortgage to be aſſigned to the heir. 2 Vern. Rep. 437.

Baron and feme mortgaged his wife's eſtate, and baron covenants to pay the money, but the equity of redemption was reſerved to them and their heirs. Baron died, and made J. S. executor; per cur. The baron having had the money is, in equity, the debtor, and the land is to be conſidered but as additional ſecurity, and ſo decreed it according to the judgment in dom. proc. in the caſe of Lord and Lady Huntington. 2 Vern. 604. pl. 542.

6. Where the husband and wife must join in bringing actions; where they must be jointly sued; and where a wife shall be considered as a feme sole.

In those cases where the debt or cause of action will survive to the wife, the husband and wife are regularly to join in action; as in recovering debts due to the wife before marriage; in actions relating to her freehold or inheritance, or injuries done to the person of the wife. 1 Rol. Abr. 347.

But if a feme sole hath a rent-charge, and rent is arrear and she marries, and the baron distrains for this rent, and thereupon a rescous is made, this is a tort to the baron himself, and he may have an action alone. Cro. Eliz. 439. Owen 82. S. P. Moor 584. S. C.

So if a feme sole hath right to have common for life, and she takes husband, and she is hindred in taking the common, he may have an action alone without his wife, it being only to recover damages. 2 Bulst. 14.

But if baron and feme are disseised of the lands of the feme, they must join in action for the recovery of this land. 1 Bulst. 21.

If the baron be possessed of a rectory for years, in the right of his feme, he and his feme may join in an action upon the 2 Ed. 6. for not setting forth of tithes; for the possession of the baron is in the right of the feme, and the action is given by the statute to the proprietor. *Cro. If A. declares that he was seised, in right of his wife, of a messuage, bakehouse, &c. and that the defendant erected two houses of office so near the said bakehouse, which foundered the walls thereof, and by which the air was so unwholesome that he lost his custom, &c. the action lies for the husband alone. 2 Mod. 269.

If A. leases to B. for years, rendring rent, and after grants his reversion to baron and feme, and B. attorns, and then the rent is arrear, and the term expires, the baron may bring an action alone for this rent, because this action is grounded upon the duty, and upon the nature of their estate; and the money must come to the baron; and there is no difference where baron and feme are joint-lessors, and where joint-purchasers. 2 Bulst. 233. 1 Rol. Rep. 52. S. C. adjudged.

But if A. conveys lands to B. in fee, and covenants with him, his heirs and assigns to make further assurances, and these lands are assigned to J. S. and his wife, and the heirs of J. S. they must both join in an action on the covenant for further assurances. 1 Rol. Abr. 348. Cro. Car. 503, 505. 1 Jones 406, 407. S. C.

But if a bond is made to a feme covert, during coverture, conditioned to pay money to the feme, the baron alone may bring an action upon this bond. 3 Lev. 403.

Rescous was brought by the baron and feme, of rescous made by the lord in right of his feme; and it was argued that the baron alone ought to have the action, and afterward that the action is well brought in name of both; quod nota. And per Littleton; It is well brought also in the name of the baron only. Br. Baron and Feme, pl. 50.

Baron brought an action for the battery of his wife, per quod negotia sua infecta remanserunt, and had judgment to recover. Cro. Jac. 502. pl. 11.

Where the feme is administratrix, the suit must be in both their names, and they shall be named administrators; for by the intermarriage the husband hath authority to intermeddle with the goods as well as the wife; but in the declaration all the special matter must be set forth; per Wray Ch. J. and so some said is the book of Entries, that both of them shall be named administrators. Godb. 40. pl. 44.

In action for goods which the feme has as executrix, they must join, to the end that the damages thereby recovered may accrue to her as executrix in lieu of the goods. Went. Off. Ex. 207.

In battery the plaintiff declared, that on such a day the defendant assaulted and beat his wife. This action was brought by the husband after the death of his wife, and it being a personal wrong, is dead with the person; and if she had been living, the husband alone could not have the action, because damages must be given for the tort offered to the body of his wife; quod fuit concessum. Yelv. 89.

A feme sole had right of common for her life, and marries B. who, being hindered in taking the common, brings action in his own name, without naming his wife. The court held the action well brought, it being only to recover damages. 2 Bulst. 14.

The Queen leased a house to C. who covenanted for himself and his executors and assigns to repair, and leave the house repaired. Afterwards the Queen granted the reversion to B. the plaintiff and his wife, and to the heirs of B. in fee; and for not repairing, B. alone brought covenant. Resolved, that the action being personal, and damages only recoverable, the husband may alone have the action, or join the wife with him. Cro. Jac. 399. pl. 6.

Trespass of assault, and wounding of the plaintiff, nemon of assaulting and beating the plaintiff's wife, per quod consortium uxoris suæ amisit for three days. Found against the defendant in both. It was moved that the husband ought not to join the battery of his wife with the battery of himself; but resolved that the action was well brought; for it is not brought in respect of the harm done to the wife, but for the husband's particular loss, that he lost the company of his wife, which is only a damage to himself. Cro. Jac. 501. pl. 11.

If A. in consideration that B. a feme covert, will cure a wound, assumes and promises to B. to pay unto her 10*l.* if B. does cure it accordingly, she may join with her husband in an assumpsit for this money; for this promise arising upon a matter of skill and performance of the wife, she is the cause of the action; and such an action will survive to the wife. Cro. Jac. 77, 205.

If A. in consideration that baron and feme had intermarried at his request, assumes and promises to them to pay unto the feme 8*l. per ann.* during the coverture, &c. Notwithstanding the whole benefit redounds to the husband, yet in an action thereupon they may join, a fortiori, because it is an executory promise, and hath continuance, and is not to be done unica vice only. 1 New Abr. 306.

It seems clearly agreed, that for debts due to the wife, and all causes of action before coverture, the husband must join in the action. 1 Rol. Abr. 347. Mo. 422. S. P.

In an action upon a trover before marriage, and a conversion after, the baron and feme ought to join; for this action, as a trespass, disaffirms the property; but the baron ought alone to bring a replevin, detinue, &c. for these actions admit and affirm a property in the feme at the time of the marriage, which by consequence must have vested in the baron. 1 Sid. 172. 1 Keb. 641. S. C. 1 Vent. 261. 2 Lev. 107. S. P. and that he may join the wife at his election.

But if A. declares, that the defendant being indebted to him and his wife, as executrix to one J. S. in consideration that A. would forbear to sue him for three months, assumed, &c. and avers that he forbore, and that his wife is still alive, the action is well maintainable by the husband alone, for this is on a new contract, to which the wife is a stranger. Carth. 462. 1 Salk. 117. Yelv. 84. Cro. Jac. 110. S. P.

For a battery or other personal tort done to the wife they must join, and if the wife dies, the action dies with her. 1 Rol. Rep. 360.

But the baron may bring an action alone for the battery, carrying away and detaining of his wife, per quod ſolamen & conſortium of his ſaid wife amiſit, becauſe the action is founded upon the ſpecial damage done to himſelf, and will be no bar to another action brought by baron and feme, or by the feme after the death of the baron, for the ſame battery. Cro. Car. 89, 90.

In treſpaſs by baron and feme, they declared for a battery of the feme, & quod the defendant alia enormia eis intulit; and tho' objected, the feme cannot join for a wrong done to the baron, yet becauſe the alia enormia, &c. was but form, and only in aggravation of damages, and altered not the ſubſtance of the declaration; it was adjudged for the plaintiffs. Cro. Jac. 664.

So in treſpaſs and falſe impriſonment by baron and feme, per quod negotia domeſtica of the huſband remanſerunt infecta ad damnum ipſorum; and it was objected, that this being laid as a ſpecial damage to the huſband, the action ought to have been brought by him alone, but adjudged for the plaintiff after verdict, being only matter in aggravation of damages. 1 Salk. 119.

In treſpaſs by baron and feme for beating the feme; they may declare that it was ad damnum ipſorum, notwithſtanding a feme covert can have no damages, for this action will ſurvive. 1 Sid. 387.

But if in trover by baron and feme, they declare quod cum poſſeſſionat' fuerunt, &c. and that the defendant converted, ad damnum ipſorum, this is naught after verdict; for the poſſeſſion of the wife is the poſſeſſion of her huſband, and ſo is the property; ſo that the converſion cannot be to the damage of the wife, but of the huſband only. 1 Salk. 114.

The huſband is by law anſwerable for all actions for which his wife ſtood attached at the time of the coverture, and alſo for all torts and treſpaſſes during coverture, in which caſes the action muſt be joint againſt them both; for if ſhe alone were ſued, it might be a means of making the huſband's property liable; without giving him an opportunity of defending himſelf. Co. Lit. 133. Doctr. Placit. 3. 2 Hen. 6. 4.

If goods come to a feme covert by trover, the action may be brought againſt huſband and wife, but the converſion may be laid only in the huſband, becauſe the wife cannot convert goods to her own uſe; and the action is brought againſt both, becauſe both were concerned in the treſpaſs of taking them. See Co. Lit. 351. 1 Rol. Abr. 6. pl. 7. Yelv. 166. Noy 79. 1 Leon. 312. Cro. Car. 494, 254. 1 Rol. Abr. 348.

An action on the caſe was brought againſt baron and feme, for retaining and keeping the ſervant of the plaintiff, and judgment accordingly. 2 Lev. 63.

If a leaſe for life or years be made to baron and feme, reſerving rent, an action of debt for rent arrear may be brought againſt both, for this is for the advantage of the wife. 1 Rol. Abr. 348.

If an action be brought againſt the huſband and wife, and the wife be arreſted, ſhe ſhall be diſcharged upon common bail; for nobody can be ſuppoſed to undertake for a wife, who hath no property of her own. 1 Salk. 114. Comb. 355. 6 Mod. 17, 105.

In debt againſt huſband and wife he was outlawed and his wife was waived, afterwards ſhe pleaded the Queen's pardon; adjudged, that ſhe ſhall be diſcharged of her impriſonment, but the pardon was not allowed, becauſe ſhe could not ſue out a ſcire facias againſt the plaintiff to make him declare upon the original without her huſband, and becauſe there was a condition in the pardon, (viz.) Ita quod ipſa ſtaret recta in curia, which ſhe could not do without him. Dyer 271.

An action of debt was brought by the huſband alone, upon a judgment obtained in an action brought by him and his wife; and becauſe the wife was not joined in this action, the defendant demurred to the declaration; but adjudged, that the action was well brought by the huſband alone. Cro. Eliz. 844.

Huſband and wife, ſeiſed of lands in right of the wife, made a leaſe thereof for twenty-one years, and the leſſee covenanted for himſelf, his executors, &c. to build a brick wall upon part of the lands; the leſſee afterwards aſſigned his term to another, and the huſband and wife joined in an action againſt the aſſignees of the leſſee for not building the wall; and adjudged, that the action was well brought by both. 5 Rep. 16.

Where a right of action doth accrue to a woman before marriage, as where a bond is made to her and forfeited, there, if ſhe marry, ſhe muſt be joined with the huſband in an action of debt againſt the obligor; but where the right doth accrue after marriage, there it may be otherwiſe; however, in that caſe, 'tis the ſafeſt way to join both in the action. Owen 82.

Where a feme ſole is indebted, and afterwards married, ſhe and her huſband ſhall both be ſued for her debts, and the action muſt be joint againſt both during her life; but if ſhe dieth, the huſband ſhall not be charged with her debts, unleſs judgment was had againſt him and his wife during the coverture. F. N. B. 120.

The huſband being ſeiſed of an houſe in right of his wife, who was tenant thereof for life, brought an action alone againſt the defendant, for waſte done to the houſe; it was a queſtion, whether he could maintain this action alone, becauſe the wrong was done to the eſtate which he had in right of his wife, and it might ſo happen, that no loſs or injury might accrue to him, for no action might be brought againſt him by the leſſor in the life-time of his wife, and if ſo, then he is not chargeable after her death, for which reaſon the wife ought to be joined in the action; the court doubted, and no judgment was given. Cro. Eliz. 461.

Raviſhment of ward was brought upon the ſtatute W. 2. cap. 35. againſt huſband and wife; the jury found the wife guilty, but acquitted the husband, and aſſeſſed coſts and damages; adjudged, that the wife was not within this ſtatute, becauſe ſhe, being a feme covert, cannot make ſatisfaction, having nothing of her own to do it; for the goods and lands of her husband, who is innocent, are not liable by this ſtatute for the injury done by his wife, but the plaintiff might have an action of treſpaſs at Common law againſt thoſe which did the injury, or a writ de valore maritagii againſt the heir. 9 Rep. 71.

Debt againſt husband and wife as executrix to her former husband; he appeared upon the exigent, and would have put in a ſuperſedeas for himſelf alone, but was not admitted by the court ſo to do, but was compelled to put in an appearance, and to appoint an attorney, and a ſuperſedeas for his wife as well as for himſelf. Cro. Eliz. 118.

Trover againſt husband and wife, and the converſion is charged on the wife alone; if they both plead Not guilty, and the plaintiff hath judgment, 'tis not good, becauſe the husband being not charged with any wrong, the iſſue ought to have been quod ipſa is not guilty, and therefore the judgment was reverſed, and that reverſal was affirmed in a writ of error. Cro. Eliz. 883.

Aſſumpſit againſt husband and wife; after imparlance the record was ad quem diem tam prædict' (the plaintiff) by attorney, quam præd' (the husband and wife) by their attorney veniunt, &c. & præd' Brigitta dicit quod ipſa non aſſumpſit; the plaintiff had a verdict, but could never get judgment; becauſe the plea is only by the wife, and ſhe alone cannot plead without her husband, for by law they muſt both join in pleading. Yelv. 210.

Error of a judgment in aſſumpſit by husband and wife againſt the defendant, who promiſed that, in conſideration the wife would cure him of ſuch a wound, he would pay her 10*l.* the error aſſigned was, that the husband alone ſhould have brought the action, for the promiſe being made during the coverture, the not performing it was a damage to the husband and not to the wife; but adjudged, that the action was well brought by both, becauſe the cauſe of the promiſe did ariſe from the ſkill and labour of the wife. 2 Cro. 77, 205.

Debt againſt husband and wife, wherein the plaintiff declared for 39*s.* upon a contract of the wife dum ſola, and for 39*s.* more upon an inſimul computaſſet with the husband; upon nil debet pleaded, it was found for the plaintiff, but he could never get judgment, becauſe he had declared declared upon ſeveral contracts of the huſband and wife, in which caſe they cannot be joined in one action. Hob. 19, 184.

Error of a judgment in an inferior court, in an action of trover againſt huſband and wife; the goods were alledged to be in her poſſeſſion, and a requeſt made to both to deliver them; and that ſhe and her huſband refuſed, and afterwards the wife converted them to her own uſe; the error aſſigned was in the entry of the judgment, which was, that the wife be in miſericordia, when it ſhould be the huſband and wife in miſericordia; becauſe both were required to deliver the goods, and for this reaſon the judgment againſt them was reverſed. 3 Bulſt. 150.

Treſpaſs and aſſault againſt huſband and wife, ſuppoſing, that they both beat the plaintiff; upon Not guilty pleaded, the jury found, that the wife only beat him; adjudged, that in ſuch caſe the verdict is againſt the plaintiff, becauſe it appears that his action is falſe, for the huſband is not joined for conformity only in this action. 1 Brownl. 209.

Treſpaſs, &c. againſt the defendant, brought by the huſband and wife, for beating the wife, and taking the goods of the huſband only, ad damnum ipſorum; it was objected againſt the declaration, that the wife cannot join for a treſpaſs done to her huſband alone, but he may join in a treſpaſs done to her alone; ſo if the huſband and wife bring an action of treſpaſs for beating the wife, he may declare of a treſpaſs done to him ad damnum ipſius the plaintiff. Hetley 2.

A leaſe was made to huſband and wife of an ancient mill, where the inhabitants of ſuch houſes uſed to grind their corn, and for not grinding they brought an action againſt them, in which they had a verdict, but could never get judgment, becauſe the action was brought by the huſband and wife, and being only for damages, and not for the term, the wife ſhould not be joined. Hob. 189.

A feme ſole was proprietor of a parſonage, and married, and then the huſband alone brought an action upon the ſtatute 2 Edw. 6. for treble damages againſt a pariſhioner for not ſetting out his tithes; adjudged, that tho' the huſband may ſue alone for a thing which is perſonal, yet in this caſe, the ſtatute giving the action to the proprietor, the huſband cannot be intended to be the proprietor, but the wife; therefore ſhe ought to be joined in the ſuit. 2 Brownl. 9.

In falſe impriſonment brought by the huſband for aſſaulting and impriſoning his wife; the defendant juſtified by virtue of a warrant upon a ca. ſa. to take Julian Goddard, widow, who, in truth, at that time, was a widow, but before ſhe was taken, ſhe was married to one Daily, the now plaintiff; adjudged, that this was a good deſignation of the party who was to be taken, and that the capias was well awarded againſt her alone; and if the ſheriff had returned, that ſhe was married, or non eſt inventa, it had been an ill return, becauſe directly againſt all proceedings againſt her by the name of Julian Goddard; for if an action is brought againſt a widow, and ſhe marries before judgment, the capias ſhall be awarded againſt her, and not againſt her huſband. 2 Buſt. 80.

Aſſault and battery againſt huſband and wife; the huſband juſtified, for that the plaintiff aſſaulted his wife, in aid of whom molliter manus impoſuit, &c. the wife pleaded by herſelf ſon aſſault demeſne; the plaintiff replied de injuria ſua propria abſque tali cauſa; and both iſſues being found for him, and entire damages given, which being moved in arreſt of judgment, adjudged, that it was ill, and that the trial was ill, becauſe the wife could not plead by herſelf. 2 Cro. 339.

Action againſt husband and wife, upon a promiſe made by her dum ſola, they both appeared, and the woman pleaded quod ipſa non aſſumpſit, upon which they were at iſſue, and the plaintiff had a verdict; and upon a motion in arreſt of judgment it was inſiſted, that a plea of a feme covert, without her huſband, is not good, and by conſequence an iſſue joined upon ſuch a plea is idle and helped by the ſtatute of jeofails; and ſo it was adjudged. 2 Cro. 288.

The huſband diſtrained for arrears of rent due to the wife dum ſola; and upon a reſcous made, the huſband alone brought the action againſt thoſe who reſcued the diſtreſs; adjudged, that he alone, or both, might bring the action; but for a debt due to the wife dum ſola, they muſt both join in the action. Moor 422.

Husband and wife brought an action againſt the defendant, for that he preſented them in the ſpiritual court, for making hay on midſummer-day, and this upon oath, and that they made this hay in time of divine ſervice, when in truth they did not make hay on that day in time of divine ſervice; the defendant pleaded, that they did make hay on that day, &c. upon which they were at iſſue, and the plaintiffs had a verdict, but the judgment was ſet aſide, becauſe the husband and wife ought not to join in this action, no more than in an aſſault and battery, for the falſe oath againſt the huſband could not be ſo againſt the wife. 1 Rol. Rep. 108.

Caſe, &c. againſt husband and wife for ſcandalous words ſpoken by the wife; defendant pleaded, that ipſi non ſunt culpabiles, and the jury found quod ipſi ſunt culpabiles; it was objected in arreſt of judgment, that the husband was joined only for conformity, and therefore it cannot be ſaid that ipſi ſunt culpabiles, but that ipſa eſt culpabilis, and the verdict ſhould have been ſo accordingly: but per curiam, The plea of the husband is void, and if ſo, the verdict is good againſt the wife. 1 Rol. Rep. 216.

A promiſe was made to the wife, and the husband and wife brought an aſſumpſit, and concluded ad damnum ipſorum. Sed per curiam, They ought not to join in this action, for a wife cannot agree to contract during the coverture, in her own name. 2 Rol. Rep. 250.

A husband who has abjured the realm, or who is baniſhed, is thereby civiliter mortuus; and being diſabled to ſue or be ſued in right of his wife, ſhe muſt be conſidered as a feme ſole; for it would be unreaſonable, that ſhe ſhould be remedileſs on her part, and equally hard on thoſe who had any demands on her, that, not being able to have any redreſs from her husband, they ſhould not have any againſt her. Br. Baron and feme 66. Co. Lit. 133. a. 1 Rol. Rep. 400. Moor 851. 3 Bulſt. 188. 1 Bulſt. 140. 2 Vern. 104.

7. Of the power of the huſband over the perſon of his wife; her remedy for any injury done her by him; and of actions by the huſband for criminal converſation with his wife.

The husband hath by law power and dominion over his wife, and may keep her by force within the bounds of duty, and may beat her, but not in a violent or cruel manner; for in ſuch caſe, or if he but threaten to beat her outrageouſly, or uſe her barbarouſly, ſhe may bind him to the peace, by ſuing out a writ of ſupplicavit out of the Chancery, or may apply to the ſpiritual court for a divorce propter ſævitiam. Crom. 28, 136. F. N. B. 80. Hetl. 149. cont. 1 Sid. 113, 116. Dalt. c. 68. Lamb. 7. Crom. 133.

But a wife cannot, either by herſelf or her prochein amy, bring a homine replegiando againſt her husband, for he has by law a right to the cuſtody of her, and may, if he thinks fit, confine her, but he muſt not impriſon her; if he does, it will be good cauſe for her to apply to the ſpiritual court for a divorce propter ſævitiam; and the nature and proceedings in the writ de homine replegiando ſhew that it cannot be maintained by the wife againſt her husband. Prec. in Ch. 492.

Licence by husband to the wife to lie with another man, cannot be pleaded in bar to an action of treſpaſs by the husband; nor that ſhe was a notorious lewd woman; but theſe matters may be given in mitigation of damages. 12 Mod. 232.

If adultery be committed with another man's wife without any force, but by her own conſent, the husband may have aſſault and battery, and lay it vi & armis; and yet they ſhall in that caſe puniſh him below for that very offence; for an indictment will not lie for ſuch an aſſault and and battery; neither ſhall the husband and wife join in an action at Common law; and therefore they proceed below either civilly, that is, to divorce them, or criminally, becauſe they were not criminally proſecuted above; and the true action for the husband in ſuch caſe is a ſpecial action, quia the defendant uxorem rapuit, and not to lay it, per quod conſortium amiſit; per Holt Ch. J. and per cur. accordingly; for that the offence is not merely ſpiritual. 7 Mod. 81.

8. Of crimes and offences committed by the wife; where ſhe alone ſhall be puniſhed, and where the husband ſhall be anſwerable for what ſhe doth in a civil action.

A feme covert is ſo much favoured in reſpect of that power and authority which her husband has over her, that ſhe ſhall not ſuffer any puniſhment in committing a bare theft, in company with or by coercion of her huſband. Kelw. 31. S. P. C. 26, 142. H. P. C. 65. 27 Aſſ. 401. Hawk. P. C. 2. She ſhall not be deemed acceſſary to a felony for receiving her husband who has been guilty of it, as her husband ſhall be for receiving her. 3 Inſt. 108. H. P. C. 65. 2 Hawk. 320.

But if ſhe commit a theft of her own voluntary act, or by the bare command of her husband, or be guilty of treaſon, murder, or robbery, in company with, or by coercion of her husband, ſhe is puniſhable as much as if ſhe were ſole. H. P. C. 65. Dalt. 104. 27 Aſſ. pl. 40. Fitz. Coron. 199.

A feme covert generally ſhall anſwer as much as if ſhe were ſole, for any offence not capital againſt the Common law or ſtatute; and if it be of ſuch nature, that it may be committed by her alone, without the concurrence of her huſband, ſhe may be puniſhed for it without the huſband, by way of indictment, which being a proceeding grounded merely on the breach of the law, the huſband ſhall not be included in it for any offence to which he is no way privy. 9 Co. 71. Hawk. P. C. 3. See Moor 813. Hob. 93. Noy 103. Savil 25. Cro. Jac. 482. 11 Co. 61.

A feme covert lent 20*l.* to be paid at 20*s.* by the week, and one ſhilling and ſixpence intereſt; the borrower paid the intereſt, which amounted to 30*s.* which the wife exacted and received; and this appearing on evidence, in an action brought by the huſband for the money, Holt Ch. Juſt. ruled it to be an uſurious contract by the huſband, ſufficient to diſcharge and avoid the obligation civiliter, though not ſufficient to charge the huſband criminaliter. Skin. 348.

If the wife incur the forfeiture of a penal ſtatute, the huſband may be made a party to an action or information for the ſame, as he may be generally to any ſuit for a cauſe of action given by his wife, and ſhall be liable to anſwer what ſhall be recovered thereon. See 1 Hawk. P. C. 3. and the authorities there cited.

If a feme covert, pretending herſelf to be ſole, marries a ſecond huſband, he ſhall have no action againſt the firſt, becauſe this action is founded upon the communication and contract of the wife, which will not bind the huſband; beſides, this is felony. 1 Sid. 375. 1 Lev. 247.

Several goods were deviſed to A.'s wife for life, and after her deceaſe to J. S. In this caſe, though A. and his wife were parted, and there had been great ſuits for alimony, and ſhe, during the ſeparation, had waſted the goods, yet the Lord keeper thought it reaſonable that the huſband ſhould be charged for this converſion of the wife's, B.'s title being paramount the feme's. 1 Vern. 143.

Feme was arraigned of felony, and was covert baron, and would have confeſſed by command of the baron, and the court would not take it for pity, but charged the inqueſt, who ſaid that ſhe did it by coercion of her baron in ſpight of her teeth, by which ſhe went quit; and it was ſaid that the command of the baron, without other coercion, ſhall not make felony. The reaſon ſeems to be, in as much as the law intends that the feme, who is under the power of her baron, does not contradict her baron. Br. Corone, pl. 108.

A feme covert commits felony. Appeal ſhall be brought againſt her without her huſband, becauſe it concerns life, as if ſhe commits treſpaſs. Jenk. 28.

The huſband ſhall not anſwer for damages given in a criminal matter, as in an information for ſuppreſſing a will; though for civil offences it is otherwiſe, as battery, ſlander, or aſſumpſit by feme covert. Noy 103, 104.

Where debt was brought againſt husband and wife for the recuſancy of the wife, the husband would have appeared by a ſuperſedeas alone; but the court reſolved that either both muſt appear, or both be outlawed. Hob. 179.

At the ſeſſions at the Old Baily the 7th of December 1664, one Jane Jones, together with one Thomas Warton, were indicted for burglary, and ſhe pleaded herſelf to be married to Warton, on purpoſe to be excuſed, being with the husband at the burglary; and ſhe refuſed to plead by the name of Jones, and thereupon we called for the jury which found the indictment, and in their preſence, and by their conſent, we made the indictment as to her name to be Jane Warton, alias Jones, but we did not call her Jane Warton, the wife of Thomas Warton, but gave her the addition of ſpinſter, and then ſhe pleaded to it; and the court told her, that if upon her trial ſhe could prove ſhe was married to Warton before the burglary committed, ſhe ſhould have the advantage of it; but on the trial ſhe could not prove it, and ſo was found guilty, and judgment given upon her. Kel. 37.

A feme covert was indicted alone for buying and ingroſſing fiſh contrary to the ſtatute, and found guilty, and it was moved to quaſh the indictment, becauſe a married woman cannot make a contract without her husband, and that he ought to be joined in this indictment; for if any profit ariſes by buying and ingroſſing, it accrues to the husband alone, but whether ſhe might in this caſe, the court gave no judgment. Sid. 410.

Where the husband and wife uſe the ſame trade, as ſelling of ale, &c. ſhe does it as ſervant, and he alone ſhall be indicted.

Husband and wife may be found guilty of nuſance, battery, &c. and the reaſon why in burglary, larceny, &c. ſhe is excuſed, is, becauſe ſhe could not tell what property the husband might claim in the goods. Arg. 10 Mod. 63.

Husband and wife were indicted for keeping a bawdy-houſe and procuring lewdneſs. The court held the indictment good, and ſaid, that keeping the houſe does not neceſſarily import property, but may ſignify that ſhare of government which the wife has in a family as well as the husband. 10 Mod. 63.

Husband and wife were indicted for keeping a common gaming-houſe, and held good, and compared it to the caſe of Queen v. Williams; for as there the wife may be concerned in acts of bawdry, ſo here ſhe may be active in promoting gaming, and furniſh the gueſts with all conveniencies for the purpoſe. 10 Mod. 335.

9. Of divorce, and the effects of it; and of ſeparate maintenance and pin-money.

If a man gives lands in tail to baron and feme, and they have iſſue, and after divorce is ſued, now they have only frank tenement, and the iſſue ſhall not inherit; for it was once poſſible that their iſſue might inherit. Br. Tail et dones, &c. pl. 9.

The feme, after divorce, ſhall re-have the goods which ſhe had before marriage. Br. Coverture, pl. 82.

If land be given in frank-marriage, and donees are divorced, which of them firſt moves for the divorce ſhall loſe the land, per Shelly; but by Fitzherbert, the land ſhall be divided between them. Cited Dyer 13. pl. 62. Trin. 28 Hen. 8.

If the baron and feme purchaſe jointly and are diſſeiſed, and the baron releaſes, and after they are divorced, the feme ſhall have the moiety, tho' before the divorce they were no moieties; for the divorce converts it into moieties. Br. Deraignment, pl. 18. cites 32 Hen. 8.

Divorce cauſa adulterii of the huſband; afterwards the wife ſues in the ſpiritual court for a legacy; the executor pleads the releaſe of the baron; the releaſe binds the wife, for the vinculum matrimonii continues. Cro. E. 908.

Huſband may releaſe coſts adjudged to the wife ſuing in the ſpiritual court, notwithſtanding a divorce a menſa & thoro; but if ſuch divorce be, and the wife has alimony, and ſhe ſues there for defamation, &c. the huſband cannot then releaſe the coſts; for theſe coſts come in lieu of what ſhe has ſpent out of her alimony, which is a ſeparate maintenance, and not in the power of the huſband. 1 Salk. 115.

A divorce was a menſa & thoro, and then the huſband dies inteſtate. The wife by bill pray'd aſſiſtance as to dower and adminiſtration (it being granted to another) and diſtribution. The Maſter of the Rolls bid her go to law to try if ſhe was intitled to her dower, there being no impediment, and as to that diſmiſs'd the bill; and as to the adminiſtration, the granting that is in the eccleſiaſtical court; but the diſtribution more properly belongs to this court; but ſince in that court ſhe is ſuch a wife as is not intitled to adminiſtration, he diſmiſs'd the bill as to diſtribution too, and ſaid, if they could repeal that ſentence, ſhe then would be intitled to diſtribution. Ch. Prec. 111.

Land was given to baron and feme in frank-marriage, and after a divorce was had between them at the ſuit of the feme, and yet it was ſaid, that the feme remained tenant always. Br. Eſtate, pl. 55.

After a divorce a menſa & thoro, an injunction was moved for to ſtop the huſband from ſelling a term of the wife's. The court at firſt thought it ſhould not be granted; for that the marriage continued, and the huſband had the ſame power over it as before the divorce; but upon the importunity of the plaintiff's counſel it was granted; for tho' the marriage continues notwithſtanding the divorce, yet the huſband does nothing as huſband, nor the wife as wife. 9 Mod. 43, 44.

N. K. brought treſpaſs againſt K. and his feme, and two others, in B. R. of raviſhing his feme and carrying away his goods, and all came into B. Per Knivet J. If the feme was dead, yet action lies of the raviſhment, and the ſame of divorce; for he ſhall not recover the feme, but damages; and it was ſaid, that the divorce was cauſa frigiditatis; and per Knivet, Then he may recover his nature, and act as a man, and rehave his feme, therefore anſwer. Kirton ſaid, the action is brought againſt R. and his feme, and feme cannot raviſh a feme; judgment of the writ, & non allocatur; for ſhe may aſſent, or be aiding, or carry away the goods, by which he pleaded Not guilty. *Br. The baron covenanted with L. to pay his wife, or ſuch as ſhe ſhould appoint, 50*l. a year* as a ſeparate maintenance, provided ſhe live at ſuch a place as N. and W. appoint. Baron pleaded, that ſhe did not live at ſuch place as N. and W. appointed. Plaintiff replies, that ſhe was always ready to live at ſuch place, but that N. and W. appointed no place. Defendant demurred, for that it was a condition precedent; but the plaintiff inſiſted it was only ſubſequent, and ſo become impoſſible, N. being ſince dead, and no place being appointed. Per cur. The condition is ſubſequent, the covenant being, in purſuance of a former abſolute agreement, to pay ſo much, and it is like an aſſent of the huſband, which is intended, till the contrary appears. 3 Keb. 363.

A woman living ſeparate from her huſband, and having a ſeparate maintenance, contracts debts. The plaintiff replied, that they did not cohabit modo & forma, &c. Adjudged per tot. cur. for the plaintiff; for unleſs the cohabitation had been according to the firſt indenture it was no bar, the laſt indenture not having taken away the effect of the former, and a latter covenant cannot be pleaded in bar of a former; but the defendant muſt bring his action on the laſt indenture, if he would help himſelf. 2 Ven. 217.

Where the huſband, during his cohabitation with the wife, makes her an allowance of ſo much a year for her expences, if ſhe out of her own good houſewifry ſaves any thing out of it, this will be the huſband's eſtate, and he ſhall reap the benefit of his wife's frugality, becauſe when he agrees to allow her a certain ſum yearly, the end of the agreement is, that ſhe may be provided with cloaths and other neceſſaries, and whatſoever is ſaved out of this, redounds to the huſband; per Lord Keeper *Finch. Barony. See Baron.

Barr or Bar, (Lat. barra, repagulum, obex, vectis; in Fr. barre) In a legal ſenſe is a plea or peremptory exception of a defendant, ſufficient to deſtroy the plaintiff's action; and it is divided into bar to common intendment, and bar ſpecial; bar temporary, and perpetual: bar to a common intendment is an ordinary or general bar, which uſually diſableth the declaration of the plaintiff: bar ſpecial is that which is more than ordinary, and falls out upon ſome ſpecial circumſtance of the fact, as to the caſe in hand. Terms de la ley 77. Bar temporary is ſuch a bar that is good for the preſent, but may afterwards fail: and bar perpetual is that which overthrows the action of the plaintiff for ever. Plowd. 26. But a plea in bar, not giving a full anſwer to all the matter contained in the plaintiff's declaration, is not good. 1 Lill. Abr. 211. If one be barred by plea to the writ, or to the action of the writ, he may have the ſame writ again, or his right action: but if the plea in bar be to the action itſelf, and the plaintiff is barred by judgment, &c. it is a bar for ever in perſonal actions. 6 Rep. 7. And a recovery in debt is a good bar to action on the caſe for the ſame thing: Alſo a recovery on aſſumpſit in caſe, is a bar in debt, &c. Cro. Jac. 110. In all actions perſonal, as debt, account, &c. a bar is perpetual, and in ſuch caſe the party hath no remedy, but by writ of error or attaintment; but if a man is barred in a real action or judgment, yet he may have an action of as high a nature, becauſe it concerns his inheritance; as for inſtance, if he is barred in formedon in deſcender yet he may have a formedon in the remainder, &c. 6 Rep. 7.

It has been reſolved, that a bar in any action real or perſonal by judgment upon demurrer, verdict, or confeſſion, is a bar to that action, or any action of like nature for ever: But according to Pemberton chief juſtice, it is to be underſtood, when it doth appear that the evidence in one action would maintain the other; for otherwiſe the court ſhall intend that the party hath miſtaken his action. Skin. 57, 58. Bar to a common intent is good; And if an executor be ſued for his teſtator's debt, and he pleadeth that he had no goods left in his hands at the time the writ was taken out againſt him, this is a good bar to a common intendment, till it is ſhewn that there are goods: but if the plaintiff can ſhew by way of replication, that more goods have fallen into his hands ſince that time, then, except the defendant alledge a better bar, he ſhall be condemned in the action. Plowd. 26. Kitch. 215. Bro. tit. Barr.

A bar may be good to a common intent, though not to every intent; as if debt be brought againſt five executors, and three of them make default, and two appear and plead in bar a recovery had againſt them two of 300*l.* and that they have nothing in their hands over and above that ſum. If this bar ſhould be taken ſtrongeſt againſt them, it ſhould be intended that they might have abated the firſt ſuit, becauſe the other three were not named, and ſo the recovery not duly had againſt them; but according to the rule, the bar is good. For that by common intendment it will be ſuppoſed, that the two others did only adminiſter, and ſo the action well conſidered, rather than to imagine that they would have loſt the benefit and advantage of abating the firſt writ. Heath's Max. 54. cites Touchſtone of Precedents, tit. Pleas and Pleadings, fol. 192.

So if a bar have matter of ſubſtance in it, and be good to common intent, it is ſufficient, albeit it be not good to every ſpecial intent; as when one ſues as executor, and the defendant ſaith, that the teſtator made the plaintiff and one J. S. executors, and does not ſay after this, that he did not make the plaintiff executor, yet this may be ſufficient. Heath's Max. 55.

So in treſpaſs, where the defendant pleads that the place is his freehold, this is good; yet the plaintiff may have a particular eſtate. Heath's Max. 55.

So upon an obligation to perform covenants, the defendant alledgeth two covenants, and ſaith he hath performed them, and doth not ſay there are no more covenants in the deed to be by him performed, yet it is good; for it ſhall be intended there are no more for him to perform. Heath's Max. 55.

If a leaſe be made to A. and B. for life, the remainder to C. and if C. ſhall die during the life of A. or B. then that it ſhall remain to E. for life, ſi ipſe vellet eſſe reſidens, &c. and E. (being defendant) pleads his entry after the death of A. and B. and C. and doth not ſay when they died, yet held to be good in a plea in bar: for if it be a condition, it ſhall be intended that the defendant did enter as ſoon as his title accrued; and if the caſe be otherwiſe in truth, than by common intendment it is taken to be, the plaintiff muſt ſet it forth in his pleading; as in a formedon in deſcender, if the tenant pleads in bar a releaſe of the demandant without warranty, it is good; and yet the releaſe might be made by the demandant in the life of his father, and then it is no bar to the iſſue. Heath's Max. 56, 57.

But no ſubſtantial part of a bar may be omitted; as where one is bound to do a thing between ſuch and ſuch a time, and the defendant ſaith that he did it, or did it before the day, this is not ſufficient, but he muſt ſhew that he did it ſuch a day within thoſe times. Heath's Max. 55.

Debt againſt an executor upon a bond of the teſtator; the defendant pleaded a ſtatute acknowledged by the teſtator, &c. and averred that he has not, nor at the day of the bill brought he had not, any goods which were the teſtator's tempore mortis ſuæ, in his hands to be adminiſtered, unleſs to ſatisfy the ſaid ſtatute; and upon demurrer to this plea, it was objected that it was ill, becauſe the defendant might have goods liable to debts, though they were not the teſtator's goods tempore mortis ſuæ; but all the court, except Williams J. held it well, the bar being good to a common intent, and it ſhall not be intended that he had ſuch aſſets, being ſpecial aſſets, unleſs it was ſpecially ſhewed; and denied the 7 Hen. 4. 39. which was cited to be good law in that point, and judgement for the plaintiff. Cro. Jac. 131. pl. 4.

Though a bar ſhall be taken good by a common intent, yet when the bar depends upon circumſtance, therein pleading the matter, he muſt ſhew it to be within the circumſtance. Per Doderidge J. Lat. 171.

Debt upon bond for quiet enjoyment from the time, &c. the defendant pleaded, that after making the ſaid bond to the day of the bill the plaintiff had enjoyed the lands; and upon demurrer to this plea it was objected, that the defendant does not ſay, a die confectionis ſcripti obligatorii & ſemper poſt confectionem, &c. Sed non allocatur; for the bar is good to a common intent, and it ſhall be intended that he always enjoy'd it, unleſs the contrary is ſhewn. Cro. Car. 141.

The reaſon why a bar is good to a common intent, is becauſe it is to excuſe from a charge. But a replication muſt have a general certainty, becauſe it is to deſtroy the excuſe of the defendant, which is always receiv'd favourably. Per Holt Ch. J. 12 Mod. 665.

There is a bar material, and bar at large: Bar material may be alſo called ſpecial bar; as when one in ſtay of the plaintiff's action, pleadeth ſome particular matter, viz. a deſcent from him that was owner of the land, &c. a feoffment made by the anceſtor of the plaintiff, or the like: A bar at large is, when the defendant by way of exception, doth not traverſe the plaintiff's title, by pleading, nor confeſs, or avoid it, but only makes to himſelf a title in his bar. Kitch. 68. 5 Hen. 7. 29. This word bar is likewiſe uſed for the place where ſerjeants and counſellors at law ſtand to plead the cauſes in court; and priſoners are brought to anſwer their indictments, &c. whence our lawyers that are called to the bar are termed barriſters. 24 Hen. 8. c. 24.

For more of bar in general, ſee Abatement, Actions, Judgement, and the pleadings under the ſeveral other titles.

Barraſter, Barriſter, (Barraſterius) Is a counſellor learned in the law, admitted to plead at the bar, and there to take upon him the protection and defence of clients. They are termed juriſconſulti; and in other countries called licentiati in jure: and antiently barriſters at law were called apprentices of the law, in Lat. apprenticii juris nobiliores. Forteſc. The time before they ought to be called to the bar, by the ancient orders, was eight years, now reduced to five, and the exerciſes done by them (if they were not called ex gratia) were twelve grand moots performed in the inns of Chancery in the time of the grand readings, and twenty-four petty moots in the term times, before the readers of the reſpective inns: And a barraſter newly called is to attend the ſix next long vacations, the exerciſe of the houſe, viz. in Lent and Summer, and is thereupon for thoſe three years ſtiled a vacation barraſter: Alſo they are called utter barraſters, i. e. pleaders ouſter the bar, to diſtinguiſh them from benchers, or thoſe that have been readers, who are ſometimes admitted to plead within the bar, as the King, Queen, or Prince's counſel are. Barraſters who conſtantly attend the King's Bench, &c. are to have the privilege of being ſued in tranſitory actions in the county of Middleſex. But it hath been queſtioned, whether an action of debt doth lie for their fees; unleſs it be upon ſpecial retainer; for a counſellor's fee is honorarium quiddam, not mercenarium, as that of an attorney or ſolicitor. 2 Inſt. 213, 214, &c. Wood's Inſt. 448. Jacob.

Barrator, or Barreter. A barrator is deſcribed a perſon who is a common mover, exciter or maintainer of ſuits or quarrels, either in courts or in the country; and this offence conſiſting in all kinds of diſturbances of the peace, and the ſpreading of falſe rumours and calumnies, whereby diſcord and diſquiet may grow among neighbours, it is not material whether the ſuits commenced be in a court of record or not, or whether thoſe quarrels relate to a diſputed title of poſſeſſions or not. Co. Lit. 368. a. b. 8 Co. 36. b. 1 Hawk. P. C. 243. 1 Dan. 725. 3 Inſt. 175.

But if a man proſecutes an infinite number of ſuits which are his own proper ſuits againſt others, yet he ſhall not be a barrator by this; for if they are falſe and groundleſs, the defendants ſhall have coſts againſt him. 1 Rol. Abr. 335. But by 1 Hawk, P. C. 243. if ſuch ſuits are merely groundleſs, and brought only with a deſign to oppreſs the defendants, ſuch a man may as properly be called a barrator, as if he had ſtirred up others to bring them. See 3 Mod. 98. 8 Co. 36.

An attorney cannot be deemed a barrator in reſpect of his maintaining another in a groundleſs action, to the commencing whereof he was no way privy. 1 Hawk. P. C. 343.

Alſo it ſeems clear that no man can be a barrator in reſpect to one act only; for every indictment for ſuch crime muſt charge the defendant with being communis barratator. 8 Co. 36. 2 Rol. Abr. 39.

A feme covert cannot be indicted as a common barreter. 2 Rol. Abr. 39. But this opinion Serjeant Hawkins ſays is juſtly queſtionable; for ſince a feme covert is as capable of exciting quarrels, in the frequent repetition whereof the notion of barretry ſeems to conſiſt, as if ſhe were ſole, why ſhould ſhe not as properly be indictable for it? 1 Hawk. P. C. 243.

No general indictment, charging the defendant with being a common oppreſſor and diſturber of the peace, and ſtirrer-up of ſtrife among neighbours, is good, without adding the words communis barratator, which is a term of art appropriated by the law to this purpoſe. 1 Mod. 288. 1 Sed. 282. Cro. Jac. 526.

An indictment of barratry concluding cont' formam ſtatuti is good, though no ſtatute be made directly againſt it. But only for the puniſhment of it, ſuppoſing it an offence at Common law. 2 Rol. Abr. 79. Cro. Jac. 527. Cro. Car. 340. 2 Keb. 409, 410. Cro. Eliz. 148. 1 Hawk. P. C. 244.

Alſo it hath been holden that an indictment of this kind may be good, without alledging the offence at any certain place; becauſe from the nature of the thing, conſiſting in the repetition of ſeveral acts, it muſt be intended to have happened in ſeveral places; for which cauſe it is ſaid, that a trial ought to be by a jury from the body of the county. 2 Keb. 410. Cro. Eliz. 195. Latch 194. Palm. 450. and 1 Rol. Rep. 295.

It hath been reſolved that ſuch an indictment is not good, without concluding cont' pacem, &c. for this is an eſſential part of it. Cro. Jac. 527.

It ſeemeth to be the ſettled practice at this day, not to ſuffer the proſecutor to go on in the trial of an indictment of this kind, without giving the defendant a note of the particular matters which he intends to prove againſt him; for otherwiſe it will be impoſſible to prepare a defence againſt ſo general and uncertain a charge, which may be proved by ſuch a multiplicity of different inſtances. 5 Mod. 18. 1 Hawk. P. C. 244.

If they are common perſons, the uſual puniſhment is by fine and impriſonment, and alſo by binding them to their good behaviour; but if they are of any profeſſion relating to the law, they may be farther puniſhed, by being diſabled to practiſe for the future. Hut. 104. 1 Hawk. P. C. 244.

An attorney, upon barretry being proved againſt him by divers affidavits read in court, had judgement to be put out of the roll of attornies, and be fined 50 l. and turned over the bar, and ſtand committed. Sty. 483.

In caſe of barretry the defendant, upon motion, may have a rule to have articles delivered him of the inſtances, and the profecutor ſhall not give evidence of any particular beſides; and if he gives no articles, he ſhall give no evidence; per Harcourt, Maſter of the office. 6 Mod. 262.

By ſtat. 3 Ed. 1. c. 33. No ſheriff ſhall ſuffer any barreter or maintainer of pleas in the counties, nor ſtewards, who are not attornies of their lords, to make ſuit; nor to pronounce the judgments, unleſs they be requeſted of all the ſuitors; and if any do it, the King ſhall grievouſly puniſh the ſheriff and him.

An indictment for barretry.

Baſtard, (Baſtardus) From the Brit. baſtaerd, that is, nothus or ſpurius, is one that is born of any woman not married, ſo that his father is not known by the order of law; and therefore is called filius populi, the child of the people:

Cui pater eſt populus, pater eſt ſibi nullus et omnis;
Cui pater eſt populus, non habet ipſe patrem. See 1 Inſt. 244.

The learned Spelman derives the opprobrious name of baſtard from the Norman bas, and Saxon ſteort, riſe or original; as a perſon of a baſe and vile birth.

All

All well-regulated governments have laid down and ſettled certain rules of propagation, as neceſſary to the very being of human ſociety. Hence the ſolemnity of marriage was eſtabliſhed, not only as it prevents lewdneſs, but as a regulation, without which there would be no diſtinction of families, and conſequently no encouragement for induſtry, or foundation for acquiring riches; the children therefore that are born in theſe ſocieties, and are to enjoy any privileges by the laws, muſt be ſuch as are born according to the rules of copulation; for it is abſurd that the laws ſhould give ſanction and privilege to things done contrary to the law, ſince that would take away the diſtinction of right and wrong, lawful and unlawful; and therefore baſtards, by our law, lie under ſeveral diſabilities. 1 New Abr. 309.

In ancient days, baſtardy was ſo diſgraceful, that to retain a baſtard in a man's houſe was a reflection, and the ſtain and reproach of the parent's crime dwelt always upon the iſſue, ſo that he could not be admitted to a feudal ſervice; and therefore, when the biſhops requeſted that our laws ſhould be changed in the particular of baſtard eignes, the ſtatute ſays, that all the barons and earls anſwer'd una voce Nolumus leges Angliæ mutare. Merton 9. 2 Inſt. 93.

A baſtard is quaſi nullius filius, and can be heir to no man. Doct. & Stud. dial. 1. cap. 7. 2 Inſt. 143.

But though he cannot inherit any anceſtor, yet when he hath gotten a name of reputation, he may purchaſe by it; for all ſurnames were originally acquired by reputation. George Shelly conveyed lands to the uſe of himſelf, the remainder to George Shelly his ſon; whereas in truth George was born of one B. in matrimony of one C. yet was reputed the ſon of George, and educated by him; though the boy was but ſix years old, it was ruled that he ſhould take the remainder; for having got by reputation the name of George Shelly, theſe words are a certain deſignation of the perſon to take the remainder. But if a remainder be limited to the eldeſt iſſue of J. S. whether legitimate or illegitimate, and J. S. hath iſſue a baſtard, he ſhall not take this remainder; for it is not veſted in J. S. as it was in the other caſe, but is in contingency, and the certain time is not defined when this contingency ſhall happen; for the baſtard at his birth does not acquire the reputation of being the iſſue of J. S. and ſince the baſtard, when firſt in being, cannot take by virtue of this limitation, he can never take it; for he cannot be underſtood to be the perſon deſigned and marked out by theſe words, if after his birth it depends on the uncertainty of popular reputation, whether he ſhould take the remainder or not, and ſuch a deſignation of the perſon as contains no certainty in itſelf, or no relation to any other certain matter that may reduce it to certainty, is a void limitation. Co. Lit. 3. b. 6 Co. 65. 1 New Abr. 309.

But where a remainder is limited to the eldeſt ſon of Jane S. whether legitimate or illegitimate, and ſhe hath iſſue, a baſtard ſhall take this remainder, becauſe he acquires the denomination of her iſſue by being born of her body; and ſo it was never uncertain, who was deſigned by this remainder. Noy 35.

If parents are married, and afterwards divorced, this gives the iſſue the reputation of children; and ſo doth a ſubſequent marriage of the parents. 6 Co. 65. Hugh's Abr. 363.

If the mother diſpoſe of all her lands holden in chivalry, to her baſtard ſon; ſhe is not within the 32 Hen. 8. cap. 1. which forbids the owners to diſpoſe of above two-thirds of ſuch land for preferment of children; for children in any law muſt be intended ſuch as are lawfully begotten. Dyer 345. *Co. If a man, in conſideration of natural affection and love, covenants to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of a baſtard, this is not good; for he is not de ſanguine patris; but it is ſaid that a woman may give lands in frank-marriage with her baſtard, becauſe he is of the blood of the mother; but he hath no father, but from reputation only. Dyer 374. And 79. 6 Co. 77. Noy 35.

1. Who ſhall be deemed baſtards; and of baſtard eigne, and mulier puiſne.

All perſons born out of lawful matrimony are baſtards by the Common law; but by the Civil law, thoſe that are born before marriage are legitimated by a ſubſequent marriage; for by the Civil law, all perſons adopted into a man's family were inheritable; and the canoniſts have allowed of this notion, becauſe the ſubſequent marriage, they ſay, takes away the preceding guilt, and ſhews a conſent from the beginning. This difference between the Civil law may likewiſe be aſcribed to the power which the father, by the Roman law, had over his children, becauſe he was the author of their being, and had the care of their education; if therefore a child ſhould not be legitimated by a ſubſequent marriage, the parent would not have him under his power; for no man had a power over the vulgo quæſiti; and conſequently the father would not have commanded that to which he gave being; nor would the child have had the benefit of the parent's education; which would have cut a member from the commonwealth. 47 Ed. 3. 14. b. 11 H. 4. 81. Bract. lib. 5 fo. 416. 1 *Rol. If a man dies, and his wife hath iſſue, born 40 weeks and 8 days after his death, as if he dies the 23d of March, and the iſſue is born the 9th of January following, the iſſue ſhall be legitimate, for by nature it may be legitimate, and the law has not appointed any certain time for the birth of legitimate infants. Mich. 17 Jac. B. R. between upon evidence at the bar, which concerned the heir of one Andrews, reſolved per curiam; in which caſe Dr. Paddy and Dr. Monford, two phyſicians, being ſworn, informed the court, that by nature ſuch iſſue may be legitimate; for they ſaid that the exact time of the birth of an infant is 280 days from the conception, ſcilicet, 9 months and 10 days after the conception, accounting it per menſes ſolar', ſcilicet, 30 days to each month; but it is natural alſo, if the birth be at any time within 10 months, ſcilicet, within 40 weeks; for by ſuch account 10 months and 40 weeks are all one; but by accident an infant may be born after the 40 weeks or before; and in the caſe at the bar it was proved, that the wife longed for things in the life of her huſband, and the huſband died of the plague; ſo that he was ſick but one day before his death; and that the father-in-law of the woman perſecuted her, and uſed her with great inhumanity, and cauſed her to lie in the ſtreets for ſeveral nights; and that the woman was in travel ſix weeks before ſhe was deliver'd, but that it was interrupted by the ſaid uſage of her father-in-law, and that ſhe was deliver'd within 24 hours after ſhe was received into a houſe and well uſed; which was good proof of the legitimation; tho' it was proved of the other part, that the woman was a lewd woman of her body; and upon evidence the jury found him legitimate. Nota; At the trial one Chamberlain, a man-midwife, informed the court upon his oath, that he had known a woman deliver'd of one child, and within a fortnight after of another; and the doctors ſaid, the birth is ſooner or later, according to the nutriment that the mother hath for it. 1 Rol. Abr. 356. Cro. Jac. 541.

All perſons born within marriage are legitimate, unleſs there is an apparent impoſſibility that they ſhould be generated by the huſband; for there is the ſtrongeſt preſumption that can be, that they are legitimate, becauſe the huſband husband hath the power and dominion over his wife; and therefore may by the law keep her by force within the bounds of duty; to which the canoniſts have added a fanciful reaſon, to wit, the huſband having the ownerſhip of his wife, hath the property of the fruits of her body, tho' planted by another; quicunque ſemen appoſuit marito acquiritur quia eſt dominus ventris. Now the preſumption thus being that it is the huſband's child, it muſt be deſtroyed by contrary proof; and this negative, that it is not the huſband's child, is capable of no other proof than this only, that it muſt be ſhewn impoſſible it ſhould be the huſband's child; if therefore the huſband be proved caſtrate, the iſſue are baſtards. 1 New Abr. 310. 1 Rol. Abr. 358.

If the huſband be under the age of fourteen, the iſſue are baſtards; for before the age of puberty, generation is naturally impoſſible. 18 Hen. 6. 31. 34. 29 Aſſ. 54. Bro. Baſtardy 36. Co. Lit. 244. 1 Rol. Abr. 359.

If the huſband be not within the four ſeas, during the time that paſſes between the conception and birth of the child, it is a baſtard. This was ſettled when the King's dominions extended to the four ſeas only; for to paſs and repaſs in the King's dominions was poſſible; without ſome knowledge or proof of the matter, was ſuppoſed by the law not poſſible; for there is no ſuch paſſage in a realm well governed without examination. 1 Rol. Abr. 358. Co. Lit. 244. Bract. 239. If the huſband be in Ireland, during the time the wife goes with child, the iſſue is no baſtard, becauſe the huſband was within the King's dominions. 1 Rol. Abr. 358. Quære.

An order of two juſtices, which was affirmed on appeal, adjudged J. S. the reputed father of a baſtard child; the order recited ſpecially, that Mary, the wife of Jonathan Spence, mariner, was delivered of a male baſtard child, and that it appeared to them upom oath of, &c. that Jonathan Spence her huſband was in the King's ſervice at Cadiz in Spain, and not within the King of England's dominions, at the time when the ſaid child was begotten or born; and becauſe it did not appear that the huſband was abſent all the time, as well as at the time of conception and the child's being born, the order was quaſhed. Carth. 469. 1 Salk. 122. 5 Mod. 419. S. C. Note; In trials of baſtardy at this day, if the jury find that the huſband had not acceſs, tho' the huſband and wife live in England, the child is a baſtard; but this proof muſt be clear, otherwiſe acceſs will be preſumed in favour of legitimation. See 1 Salk. 123.

If the marriage is made null by divorce, the iſſue is illegitimate; as if the parties be divorced by pre-contract, conſanguinity, affinity, or frigidity; for where the marriage is nullified, it is a copulation without marriage, and conſequently the iſſue are baſtards; and it is the ſame by our law whether they have notice or not of the conſanguinity, becauſe we look no further than the diſſolution. 1 Rol. Abr. 358, 359, 360.

If a man marry his couſin within three degrees, or his ſiſter, the iſſue got between them is not a baſtard till there be a divorce; for though ſuch a marriage be unlawful, yet it remains good till ſentence of divorce be pronounced, and conſequently the iſſue muſt be eſteemed legitimate till ſuch a diſſolution. 1 Rol. Abr. 357.

In ejectment, the queſtion on a trial at bar was, whether the leſſor was ſon and heir of Caleb Lomax eſquire, deceaſed, which depended on the queſtion of his mother's marriage; and that being fully proved, and evidence given of the huſband's being frequently at London, where the mother lived, ſo that acceſs muſt be preſumed; the defendants were admitted to give evidence of his inability from a bad habit of body; but their evidence not going to an impoſſibility, but an improbability only, that was not thought ſufficient, and there was a verdict for the plantiff. Stra. 940.

And it is ſaid, that formerly if the huſband was within the four ſeas, no proof of non-acceſs to his wife was admitted, but the child was deemed to be his; but as this notion was built on no rational foundation, it is now intirely departed from; and though the huſband and wife are both in England, if there is ſufficient evidence that he had no acceſs to her, the child will be a baſtard. And this was determined in the caſe of Pendrell and Pendrell, M. 5 G. 2. which was an iſſue out of Chancery, to try whether the plaintiff was the heir at law of one Thomas Pendrell. It was agreed, that the plaintiff's father and mother were married, and cohabited for ſome months; that they parted, ſhe ſtaying in London, and he going into Staffordſhire; that at the end of three years the plaintiff was born: And there being ſome doubt upon the evidence, whether the huſband had not been in London within the laſt year, it was ſent to be tried. And the plaintiff reſted at firſt upon the preſumption of law in favour of legitimacy, which was encountred by ſtrong evidence of no acceſs. And it was agreed by court and counſel, on the trial at Guildhall before Lord Ch. J. Raymond, that the old doctrine of being within the four ſeas was not to take place, but the jury were at liberty to conſider of the point of acceſs, which they did, and found againſt the plaintiff; and the court of Chancery acquieſced in the determination. Stra. 925. Andr. 9.

An order was made upon one Moor, as the putative father of two baſtards, born of the body of Elizabeth the wife of Richard Sharpleſs; in which it is ſtated, that for ſeven years before, the huſband had had no acceſs to her, ſhe having never ſeen or heard of him all that time, and not knowing whether he was alive or dead; which the juſtices adjudge to be true, and that Moor is the father of them, and ordered him to provide accordingly. Upon appeal to the ſeſſions, the caſe is ſtated with ſome variation; that in 1728 ſhe was married to Sharpleſs, then a ſoldier in Mullin's troop, in a barn, by a perſon not in the habit of a clergyman; and that there had been no acceſs for ſeven years: but it appearing by a certificate from the commiſſary general's office, and from the evidence of Simon Clarkſon, that one Richard Sharpleſs, who he was told was formerly in Mullin's troop, was muſtered as a private gentleman in the third troop of horſe guards from June 25, 1733, to Feb. 23, 1736, though Clarkſon ſaid he could not take upon him to ſwear that it was the ſame Richard Sharpleſs pretended to be married as aforeſaid: Upon this ſuppoſition of the huſband's being alive, the ſeſſions were of opinion, the children were not baſtards, and reverſed the order of the two juſtices. And now upon debate, the order of ſeſſions was quaſhed, and the order of the juſtices confirmed: for it being ſtated in both orders, that there was no acceſs, according to the caſe of Pendrell and Pendrell, it was immaterial whether the huſband was alive or not. Stra. 1076.

The caſe was, a feme covert, during the abſence of her huſband at Cadiz, was brought to-bed of a baſtard; and her huſband was not in England from the time of her conception, till ſhe was brought to-bed. The queſtion was, whether this child was a baſtard, eſpecially within the words of the ſtatute of the 18 Eliz. (here after following) which ſaith, children begotten and born out of lawful matrimony, which cannot be ſaid of this caſe, the mother being married at the time of the birth of the child; and if ſuch a mother ſhould kill ſuch a child, ſhe could not be guilty within the ſtatute of the 21 Jac. cap. 27. But by the court; he is a baſtard who is begotten and born of a feme covert, whilſt the huſband is beyond the four ſeas. And in a real action, if general baſtardy was pleaded, the biſhop ought to certify ſuch a one a baſtard; and where a man is a baſtard, he is ſuch to all purpoſes, and why not within the 18 Eliz. for though the ſtatute of 21 Jac. is a penal law, yet the act of 18 Eliz. is a remedial law. Ld. Raym. 395, 396.

But this non-acceſs of the huſband ought to be proved otherwiſe than upon the wife's oath; as in the following caſe: The defendant Reading was adjudged, by an order of baſtardy, to be the putative father of a baſtard child, begotten of the wife of one Almont of Shelborn. The ſaid woman, on the appeal, gave evidence, that the ſaid Reading had carnal knowledge of her body in or about Auguſt 1732, and ſeveral times ſince; and that her huſband had no acceſs to her from May 1731, to the time of her examination in that court, being the 3d of October 1733; and that the ſaid Reading was the father of the ſaid child. And the queſtion on removal of the ſame into the King's Bench was, whether the wife in this caſe could could be admitted as an evidence for or againſt her huſband, and to baſtardize her own child. And the whole court were of opinion, that the wife could be a witneſs to no other fact but that of incontinence, and that this ſhe muſt be admitted to be a witneſs to from the neceſſity of the thing: but not to the abſence of her huſband; which might properly be proved by other witneſſes; and likened it to the caſe of hue and cry, where the perſon robbed ſhall be admitted a witneſs of the fact of robbery, but not to prove any other matter relating thereto, as in what hundred the place was, and the like, becauſe that may be proved by others. 2 Seſſ. Ca. 175.

Where a woman is ſeparated from her huſband by a divorce a menſa & thoro, the children ſhe has during the ſeparation are baſtards: for a due obedience to the ſentence ſhall be intended, unleſs the contrary be ſhewed: but if a huſband and wife, without ſentence, do part and live ſeparate, the children ſhall be taken to be legitimate, and ſo deemed till the contrary be proved, for acceſs ſhall be intended. But if a ſpecial verdict find the man had no acceſs, it is a baſtard; and ſo was the opinion of Ld. Hale, in the caſe of Dickens and Collins. 1 Salk. 123.

If a man be divorced from one woman propter perpetuam generandi impotentiam, and then marry another, and have iſſue by the ſecond marriage, which continues without divorce, the iſſue are lawful; for a man may be habilis & inhabilis diverſis temporibus, and the ſecond marriage is not avoided by any divorce, and therefore ſtands good in law. 5 Co. 98. *b. A bed-rid perſon marries a woman that is pregnant in his chamber, the woman is delivered twelve weeks after; the child adjudged a baſtard, for the apparent impoſſibility of his being the father of it. 2 Rol. Abr. 353.

If a woman marry groſſment enſient, it is the child of the huſband; for when they teſtify their conſent by a public marriage before the birth of the child, it is a public acknowledgment that the child is his, for at that time the child is one with the mother, and therefore in taking the mother he takes the child with her. 1 Rol. Abr. 358.

If a man be married within the age of conſent, and when he comes to that age he is divorced by reaſon of his diſſent from the marriage, and then he marries again, and hath iſſue, and dies; it cannot be averred that he cohabited with his firſt wife to avoid the divorce, and diſannul the ſecond marriage, and baſtardize the iſſue; for the eccleſiaſtical courts are proper judges in this caſe; and when by ſentence they have declared the marriage void, it cannot belong to the temporal courts to inquire into and ſet aſide their ſentence, for that is to take away their juriſdiction; the ſame law, if the firſt wife had been divorced cauſa præcontractûs. 7 Co. 41. Kenn's caſe. 1 Rol. Abr. 360. Cro. Jac. 186. 4 Co. 29. Godolph. 484.

If there be a ſeparation for adultery a menſa & thoro, the iſſue born afterwards are preſumed prima facie not to be the huſband's, unleſs it appear upon proof that the huſband after ſuch ſeparation did cohabit with his wife. 11 Hen. 7. 27. a. 1 Rol. Abr. 359. 7 Co. 42. 1 Salk. 123.

If A. takes B. to wife, and has iſſue by her, and they are afterwards divorced, becauſe they were within the age of conſent at the time of marriage, and afterwards diſagreed; and then A. takes D. to wife, by whom he had iſſue, and died; upon the ſuit of the iſſue of B. the eccleſiaſtical commiſſioners, upon a commiſſion directed to them, cannot inquire into the marriage between A. and D. becauſe they are dead; for though a ſentence of divorce may be repealed after the death of parties, by ſuit in the ſpiritual courts, yet no ſentence of divorce can paſs there after the death of the parties; for a divorce in the eccleſiaſtical courts, after the death of the parties, can be only made to baſtardize the iſſue of that marriage, which being a thing that concerns the inheritance, is properly cognizable in the temporal courts; therefore a prohibition ſhall be granted to ſtop their proceedings in it. 1 Rol. Abr. 360. 7 Co. 43. b.

As to the legitimation of children born after the death of the huſband, it is agreed, that the uſual time of birth is nine ſolar months and ten days; but it may be haſtened or prolonged by accident; as by hard uſage, want of ſuſtenance, &c. becauſe the nouriſhment of the child in the womb depends on that of the mother; ſo that a child hath been allowed legitimate nine months and twenty days after the death of the father; but if the child is born eleven months after the death of the father, and it is proved the father could not enjoy his wife within a month before his death, it was adjudged a baſtard. Palm. 91. Rol. Abr. 356. Godolph. 281. Style 277.

A lewd woman after her huſband's death married her adulterer, and within ſix months and a day after her firſt huſband's death had a child; it was adjudged the firſt huſband's, becauſe he had the dominion of the woman at the time of her conception. Palm 9. Co. Lit. 8.

A wife marries immediately after her huſband's death, and hath a child nine months and eleven days after the death of the firſt huſband, it was adjudged the ſecond huſband's, becauſe it was born one day after the uſual time, and the uſual time is the only meaſure to diſcern between them; but if it be born at the end of nine months and ten days, the father is doubtful, and ſome have ſaid, that the child might chooſe his father. 21 Ed. 3. 39. Co. Lit. 8. a. Bro 97. 1 Rol. Abr. 357. But to prevent this doubtfulneſs in heirs, and to hinder the wife from putting falſe children upon her deceaſed huſband, the law hath provided the writ de ventre inſpiciendo for the huſband's heir; and if the wife be found with child, or ſuſpected to be ſo, ſhe muſt be removed to a caſtle, and there ſafely kept till her delivery; and by this writ the heir may take her away from her ſecond huſband; but it lies not for the heir apparent, who hath no intereſt in the eſtate, in the life of the anceſtor. Co. Lit. 8. 1 Rol. Abr. 357.

This power of removing the relict of the anceſtor to a caſtle, in caſe ſhe really is, or is ſuſpected to be with child, ſeems only to be uſed where the woman continues unmarried; for if ſhe takes another huſband, and the ſheriff returns that he cauſed her to be ſearched by ſuch women, and found her to be enſient, the courſe ſeems to be this, viz. for the huſband to enter into recognizance, that ſhe ſhall not remove from the houſe where they then inhabit; after which a writ is to be awarded to the ſheriff to cauſe her to be viewed every day till her delivery by two at leaſt of the ſaid women returned by him; and that three or more of them ſhould be preſent with her at her delivery. Cro. Jac. 685. Mo. 523. Co. Lit. 8. Cro. Eliz. 566. Reg. 227.

The author of Fleta, who lived in the reign of Edward the Second, hath a whole chapter about ſuppoſititious births; where he tells us, what remedy the right heir had in ſuch caſe, viz. that a writ was directed to the ſheriff to cauſe the woman, who pretended herſelf to be with child, forthwith to appear in the county court, there to be ſearched by diſcreet and lawful women. And if it was doubtful to them whether ſhe was with child or not, then the ſheriff might commit her to ſome caſtle, there to continue; and no woman with child was to come near her, until ſhe ſhould be delivered. And this writ was uſed above ſixty years before the author of Fleta wrote, viz. in the 5 H. 3. when the widow of William Conſtable, of Manton in Norfolk, was found guilty of this cheat. And in all probability it was of uſe in the Saxon times: for the form of the writ is, to command the ſheriff to ſummon the woman to appear in the full county; as it is generally known, that all buſineſs of the law was then tranſacted in that court, where the biſhop ſate with the civil magiſtrate. Nelſ. Rights of the Clergy, tit. Baſtards.

But afterwards, when the courts at Weſtminſter came to be eſtabliſhed, then was the writ de ventre inſpiciendo framed; by which the ſheriff was commanded, that in the preſence of twelve knights and ſo many women, he ſhould cauſe examination to be made, whether the woman was with child or not; and if with child, then about what time it would be born; and that he certify the ſame to the juſtices of aſſize, or at Weſtminſter, under his ſeal, and under the ſeals of two of the men preſent. Id. ib.

And it was agreed by court and counſel, on the trial at Guildhall before Lord Ch. J. Raymond, that the old doctrine of being within the four ſeas was not to take place, but the jury were at liberty to conſider of the point of acceſs, which they did, and found againſt the plaintiff; and the court of Chancery acquieſced in the determination. Stra. 925. Andr. 9.

An order was made upon one Moor, as the putative father of two baſtards, born of the body of Elizabeth the wife of Richard Sharpleſs; in which it is ſtated, that for ſeven years before, the huſband had had no acceſs to her, ſhe having never ſeen or heard of him all that time, and not knowing whether he was alive or dead; which the juſtices adjudge to be true, and that Moor is the father of them, and ordered him to provide accordingly. Upon appeal to the ſeſſions, the caſe is ſtated with ſome variation; that in 1728 ſhe was married to Sharpleſs, then a ſoldier in Mullin's troop, in a barn, by a perſon not in the habit of a clergyman; and that there had been no acceſs for ſeven years: but it appearing by a certificate from the commiſſary general's office, and from the evidence of Simon Clarkſon, that one Richard Sharpleſs, who he was told was formerly in Mullin's troop, was muſtered as a private gentleman in the third troop of horſe guards from June 25, 1733, to Feb. 23, 1736, though Clarkſon ſaid he could not take upon him to ſwear that it was the ſame Richard Sharpleſs pretended to be married as aforeſaid: Upon this ſuppoſition of the huſband's being alive, the ſeſſions were of opinion, the children were not baſtards, and reverſed the order of the two juſtices. And now upon debate, the order of ſeſſions was quaſhed, and the order of the juſtices confirmed: for it being ſtated in both orders, that there was no acceſs, according to the caſe of Pendrell and Pendrell, it was immaterial whether the huſband was alive or not. Stra. 1076.

The caſe was, a feme covert, during the abſence of her huſband at Cadiz, was brought to-bed of a baſtard; and her huſband was not in England from the time of her conception, till ſhe was brought to-bed. The queſtion was, whether this child was a baſtard, eſpecially within the words of the ſtatute of the 18 Eliz. (here after following) which ſaith, children begotten and born out of lawful matrimony, which cannot be ſaid of this caſe, the mother being married at the time of the birth of the child; and if ſuch a mother ſhould kill ſuch a child, ſhe could not be guilty within the ſtatute of the 21 Jac. cap. 27. But by the court; he is a baſtard who is begotten and born of a feme covert, whilſt the huſband is beyond the four ſeas. And in a real action, if general baſtardy was pleaded, the biſhop ought to certify ſuch a one a baſtard; and where a man is a baſtard, he is ſuch to all purpoſes, and why not within the 18 Eliz. for though the ſtatute of 21 Jac. is a penal law, yet the act of 18 Eliz. is a remedial law. Ld. Raym. 395, 396.

But this non-acceſs of the huſband ought to be proved otherwiſe than upon the wife's oath; as in the following caſe: The defendant Reading was adjudged, by an order of baſtardy, to be the putative father of a baſtard child, begotten of the wife of one Almont of Shelborn. The ſaid woman, on the appeal, gave evidence, that the ſaid Reading had carnal knowledge of her body in or about Auguſt 1732, and ſeveral times ſince; and that her huſband had no acceſs to her from May 1731, to the time of her examination in that court, being the 3d of October 1733; and that the ſaid Reading was the father of the ſaid child. And the queſtion on removal of the ſame into the King's Bench was, whether the wife in this caſe could could be admitted as an evidence for or againſt her huſband, and to baſtardize her own child. And the whole court were of opinion, that the wife could be a witneſs to no other fact but that of incontinence, and that this ſhe muſt be admitted to be a witneſs to from the neceſſity of the thing: but not to the abſence of her huſband; which might properly be proved by other witneſſes; and likened it to the caſe of hue and cry, where the perſon robbed ſhall be admitted a witneſs of the fact of robbery, but not to prove any other matter relating thereto, as in what hundred the place was, and the like, becauſe that may be proved by others. 2 Seſſ. Ca. 175.

Where a woman is ſeparated from her huſband by a divorce a menſa & thoro, the children ſhe has during the ſeparation are baſtards: for a due obedience to the ſentence ſhall be intended, unleſs the contrary be ſhewed: but if a huſband and wife, without ſentence, do part and live ſeparate, the children ſhall be taken to be legitimate, and ſo deemed till the contrary be proved, for acceſs ſhall be intended. But if a ſpecial verdict find the man had no acceſs, it is a baſtard; and ſo was the opinion of Ld. Hale, in the caſe of Dickens and Collins. 1 Salk. 123.

If a man be divorced from one woman propter perpetuam generandi impotentiam, and then marry another, and have iſſue by the ſecond marriage, which continues without divorce, the iſſue are lawful; for a man may be habilis & inhabilis diverſis temporibus, and the ſecond marriage is not avoided by any divorce, and therefore ſtands good in law. 5 Co. 98. b. Burie's caſe. 2 Leon. 169. S. C. Jenk. Rep. 268. Noy 72. Moor 225. pl. 366. S. C.

A bed-rid perſon marries a woman that is pregnant in his chamber, the woman is delivered twelve weeks after; the child adjudged a baſtard, for the apparent impoſſibility of his being the father of it. 2 Rol. Abr. 353.

If a woman marry groſſment enſient, it is the child of the huſband; for when they teſtify their conſent by a public marriage before the birth of the child, it is a public acknowledgment that the child is his, for at that time the child is one with the mother, and therefore in taking the mother he takes the child with her. 1 Rol. Abr. 358.

If a man be married within the age of conſent, and when he comes to that age he is divorced by reaſon of his diſſent from the marriage, and then he marries again, and hath iſſue, and dies; it cannot be averred that he cohabited with his firſt wife to avoid the divorce, and diſannul the ſecond marriage, and baſtardize the iſſue; for the eccleſiaſtical courts are proper judges in this caſe; and when by ſentence they have declared the marriage void, it cannot belong to the temporal courts to inquire into and ſet aſide their ſentence, for that is to take away their juriſdiction; the ſame law, if the firſt wife had been divorced cauſa præcontractûs. 7 Co. 41. Kenn's caſe. 1 Rol. Abr. 360. Cro. Jac. 186. 4 Co. 29. Godolph. 484.

If there be a ſeparation for adultery a menſa & thoro, the iſſue born afterwards are preſumed prima facie not to be the huſband's, unleſs it appear upon proof that the huſband after ſuch ſeparation did cohabit with his wife. 11 Hen. 7. 27. a. 1 Rol. Abr. 359. 7 Co. 42. 1 Salk. 123.

If A. takes B. to wife, and has iſſue by her, and they are afterwards divorced, becauſe they were within the age of conſent at the time of marriage, and afterwards diſagreed; and then A. takes D. to wife, by whom he had iſſue, and died; upon the ſuit of the iſſue of B. the eccleſiaſtical commiſſioners, upon a commiſſion directed to them, cannot inquire into the marriage between A. and D. becauſe they are dead; for though a ſentence of divorce may be repealed after the death of parties, by ſuit in the ſpiritual courts, yet no ſentence of divorce can paſs there after the death of the parties; for a divorce in the eccleſiaſtical courts, after the death of the parties, can be only made to baſtardize the iſſue of that marriage, which being a thing that concerns the inheritance, is properly cognizable in the temporal courts; therefore a prohibition ſhall be granted to ſtop their proceedings in it. 1 Rol. Abr. 360. 7 Co. 43. b.

As to the legitimation of children born after the death of the huſband, it is agreed, that the uſual time of birth is nine ſolar months and ten days; but it may be haſtened or prolonged by accident; as by hard uſage, want of ſuſtenance, &c. becauſe the nouriſhment of the child in the womb depends on that of the mother; ſo that a child hath been allowed legitimate nine months and twenty days after the death of the father; but if the child is born eleven months after the death of the father, and it is proved the father could not enjoy his wife within a month before his death, it was adjudged a baſtard. Palm. 91. Rol. Abr. 356. Godolph. 281. Style 277.

A lewd woman after her huſband's death married her adulterer, and within ſix months and a day after her firſt huſband's death had a child; it was adjudged the firſt huſband's, becauſe he had the dominion of the woman at the time of her conception. Palm 9. Co. Lit. 8.

A wife marries immediately after her huſband's death, and hath a child nine months and eleven days after the death of the firſt huſband, it was adjudged the ſecond huſband's, becauſe it was born one day after the uſual time, and the uſual time is the only meaſure to diſcern between them; but if it be born at the end of nine months and ten days, the father is doubtful, and ſome have ſaid, that the child might chooſe his father. 21 Ed. 3. 39. Co. Lit. 8. a. Bro 97. 1 Rol. Abr. 357. But to prevent this doubtfulneſs in heirs, and to hinder the wife from putting falſe children upon her deceaſed huſband, the law hath provided the writ de ventre inſpiciendo for the huſband's heir; and if the wife be found with child, or ſuſpected to be ſo, ſhe muſt be removed to a caſtle, and there ſafely kept till her delivery; and by this writ the heir may take her away from her ſecond huſband; but it lies not for the heir apparent, who hath no intereſt in the eſtate, in the life of the anceſtor. Co. Lit. 8. 1 Rol. Abr. 357.

This power of removing the relict of the anceſtor to a caſtle, in caſe ſhe really is, or is ſuſpected to be with child, ſeems only to be uſed where the woman continues unmarried; for if ſhe takes another huſband, and the ſheriff returns that he cauſed her to be ſearched by ſuch women, and found her to be enſient, the courſe ſeems to be this, viz. for the huſband to enter into recognizance, that ſhe ſhall not remove from the houſe where they then inhabit; after which a writ is to be awarded to the ſheriff to cauſe her to be viewed every day till her delivery by two at leaſt of the ſaid women returned by him; and that three or more of them ſhould be preſent with her at her delivery. Cro. Jac. 685. Mo. 523. Co. Lit. 8. Cro. Eliz. 566. Reg. 227.

The author of Fleta, who lived in the reign of Edward the Second, hath a whole chapter about ſuppoſititious births; where he tells us, what remedy the right heir had in ſuch caſe, viz. that a writ was directed to the ſheriff to cauſe the woman, who pretended herſelf to be with child, forthwith to appear in the county court, there to be ſearched by diſcreet and lawful women. And if it was doubtful to them whether ſhe was with child or not, then the ſheriff might commit her to ſome caſtle, there to continue; and no woman with child was to come near her, until ſhe ſhould be delivered. And this writ was uſed above ſixty years before the author of Fleta wrote, viz. in the 5 H. 3. when the widow of William Conſtable, of Manton in Norfolk, was found guilty of this cheat. And in all probability it was of uſe in the Saxon times: for the form of the writ is, to command the ſheriff to ſummon the woman to appear in the full county; as it is generally known, that all buſineſs of the law was then tranſacted in that court, where the biſhop ſate with the civil magiſtrate. Nelſ. Rights of the Clergy, tit. Baſtards.

But afterwards, when the courts at Weſtminſter came to be eſtabliſhed, then was the writ de ventre inſpiciendo framed; by which the ſheriff was commanded, that in the preſence of twelve knights and ſo many women, he ſhould cauſe examination to be made, whether the woman was with child or not; and if with child, then about what time it would be born; and that he certify the ſame to the juſtices of aſſize, or at Weſtminſter, under his ſeal, and under the ſeals of two of the men preſent. Id. ib.

We have two inſtances of this writ in the books; the one in Eaſter term in the 39 El. which was thus: Percival Willoughby, and Bridget his wife, one of the coheirs of Sir Francis Willoughby (becauſe Sir Francis died ſeiſed of a great inheritance, having five daughters, whereof the eldeſt was married to Percival Willoughby, and not any ſon; and the ſaid Francis leaving his wife Dorothy, who at the time of his death pretended herſelf to be with child by Sir Francis, which if it were a ſon, all the five ſiſters ſhould thereby loſe the inheritance unto them) prayed a writ de ventre inſpiciendo out of the Chancery, directed to the ſheriff of London, that he ſhould cauſe the ſaid Dorothy to be viewed by twelve knights, and ſearched by twelve women, in the preſence of the twelve knights, & ad tractandum ubera, & ventrem inſpiciendum, whether ſhe were with child, and to certify the ſame into the court of Common Pleas; and if ſhe were with child, to certify for how long time in their judgments, and when ſhe would be delivered. Whereupon the ſheriff accordingly cauſed her to be ſearched, and returned, that ſhe was twenty weeks gone with child, and that within twenty weeks ſhe would be delivered. Whereupon another writ iſſued out of the Common Pleas, commanding the ſheriff ſafely to keep her in ſuch an houſe, and that the doors ſhould be well guarded, and that every day he ſhould cauſe her to be viewed by ſome of the women named in the writ (wherein ten were named); and when ſhe ſhould be delivered, that ſome of them ſhould be with her to view the birth, whether it be male or female, to the intent there ſhould not be any falſity. And upon this writ the ſheriff returned, that accordingly he had done, and that ſuch a day ſhe was delivered of a daughter. Cro. El. 566.

Note; this writ, and the proceedings thereupon, are grounded upon Bracton, b. 2. p. 69. and upon the writ in the Regiſter, p. 227.

The other caſe was in Eaſter term 22 J. which was thus: Alphonſus Theaker, couſin and heir of William Theaker, after the death of William Theaker, becauſe he had not any iſſue alive at the time of his death (but Mary his wife was then ſuppoſed to be enſient by him, and within one week after his death was married again to one John Duncomb) procured out of the Chancery a writ de ventre inſpiciendo of the ſaid Mary, directed to the ſheriff of London, to cauſe the ſaid Mary to be ſearched, whether ſhe were with child by the ſaid William Theaker, and when ſhe would be delivered (no mention being made of her ſecond marriage); and this writ was according to the precedent in 39 El. of the like writ againſt the lady Willoughby. And this writ was returnable in the Common Pleas. The ſheriff returned the inquiſition, that by ſuch perſons he cauſed her to be ſearched, and found her to be enſient, and that ſhe would be delivered within twenty weeks. Wherefore he now prayed a ſecond writ out of the Common Pleas to be directed to the ſheriff of Surry, becauſe ſhe was removed with her huſband to Wandſworth in Surry, and there inhabited, that the ſheriff might take her into his cuſtody, and keep her until ſhe were delivered of her child, that there might not appear to be any falſe or ſuppoſititious birth; and that in the mean time he ſhould cauſe her to be viewed every day by certain matrons named by the court in the writ, and that ſome of them might be at the birth of the child, according to the ſaid precedent of the lady Willoughby. But becauſe in that caſe the lady was a widow, and ſo ſuch a courſe might well be obſerved, but here ſhe was a feme covert, who ought to cohabit with her huſband, they would not take ſuch a courſe with her, but left her with her huſband, he entering into recognizance that he ſhould not remove from the houſe wherein they then inhabited; and that one or two of the women returned by the ſheriff ſhould ſee her every day, and that two or three of them ſhould be preſent at her travail: for it was ſaid, that this iſſue might be well ſaid to be the child of the firſt huſband, and ſhould inherit his land. So as if there were any falſe or ſuppoſititious birth, the couſin and heir might be diſinherited. Wherefore a writ was accordingly awarded to the ſheriff of Surry, to cauſe her to be ſeen every day until her delivery by two at leaſt of the ſaid women returned by him; and that three of them or more ſhould be preſent with her at her delivery, ſo as no falſhood might be in her birth. And after this courſe obſerved, ſhe was delivered of a female child, who was afterwards by inquiſition found to be the daughter and heir of the ſaid William Theaker, deceaſed. Cro. Jac. 685.

And this whole procedure ſeemeth to be deduced from the rules of the civil law, which is particularly expreſs and punctual in this behalf. For by that law, the woman, who ſuppoſeth herſelf to be with child, muſt intimate it twice in every month to thoſe who are neareſt concerned, that they may ſend five women to inſpect her; and ſhe muſt do the like for the ſpace of a month before ſhe expects to be delivered, that they may ſend ſome perſon to be there at the time. The judge may appoint in what houſe ſhe ſhall dwell; and the room wherein ſhe lies muſt be ſearched; and if there be more than one door, it muſt be nailed up; and three men, and as many women, muſt be ſet to watch her as often as ſhe comes into the chamber, who are alſo to ſearch all perſons who come into the houſe and chamber. When ſhe is in labour, five women, ſent by the party next concerned, muſt be witneſſes to the birth, of which they muſt have notice beforehand; and there muſt be no more in the chamber at that time but ten women, two midwives, and ſix ſervants, of which none muſt be with child, and therefore may be ſearched before they go in; there muſt be three lights in the room; the child when born muſt be ſhewed to thoſe who are concerned; the judge muſt appoint who ſhall keep it, unleſs the father hath otherwiſe appointed; and it muſt be ſhewed twice in a month till it is three months old, and afterwards once in a month till it is ſix months old; and once in two months till it is a year old; and from thence once in ſix months till it can ſpeak. And if any thing is done contrary to the premiſſes, or not permitted to be done; then upon proof thereof, the child is not to be admitted to the poſſeſſion of the eſtate. Nelſ. Rights of the Clergy, tit. Baſtards.

A man who hath iſſue a ſon by a woman before marriage, and afterwards marries the ſame woman, and hath iſſue a ſecond ſon born after the marriage; the firſt of theſe is termed in law a baſtard eigne, and the ſecond a mulier; by the common law, as has been ſaid, ſuch baſtard eigne is as incapable of inheriting, as if the father and mother had never married; but yet there is one caſe in which his iſſue was let into the ſucceſſion, and that was by the conſent of the lord and perſon legitimate; as if upon the death of the father the baſtard eigne enters, and the mulier during his whole life never diſturbs him, he cannot upon the death of the baſtard eigne enter upon his iſſue. Lit. Sect. 399. Co. Lit. 245.

No man can baſtardize another after his death, that was a mulier by the laws of holy church, and who carried the reputation of legitimate during his life; for a man muſt be baſtardized by the rules of the civil or common law: by the rules of the civil law, this perſon is by ſuppoſition legitimate; and if the common law be made the judge, he cannot be baſtardized; for it is a rule of common law, that a perſonal defect dies with the perſon, and cannot after his death be objected to his ſucceſſor that repreſents him; and this rule of law was taken from the humanity of the ancients, which would not allow the calumny of the dead, as alſo from an important reaſon of convenience, for pedigrees are often derived through ſeveral perſons, concerning whom there remains little knowledge or remembrance of any thing, but only of their being; and therefore it were an eaſy matter to throw on them the aſperſion of baſtardy by any forged evidence, which cannot be confronted by oppoſite proof; and ſo it is fit to limit a time in which all proofs of baſtardy are to be diſallowed. 7 Co. 44. Jenk. Rep. 268. 1 Brownl. 42. Co. Lit. 33. a. Lit. Sect. 399. Co. Lit. 245.

Though this ſeems to be the doctrine of the old books, yet there is this modern caſe. An ejectment was brought by one Pride againſt the earls of Bath and Mountague; Pride made title as heir to George duke of Albemarle, proving himſelf the ſon of one who was brother to the duke, and that the duke died without iſſue; the defendant dant gave evidence, that duke George had iſſue duke Chriſtopher, who conveyed to him; plaintiff gave evidence, that duke Chriſtopher was a baſtard, begotten of ſuch a woman, who, at the time of her marriage with the ſaid George duke of Albemarle, was married to another man, who was then, and yet living: upon which it was objected, that ſince duke George and this woman lived together as man and wife, and were now dead, the plaintiff could not be admitted to baſtardize the iſſue, who was dead alſo; and who, during his whole life, was reputed and taken to be the legitimate ſon of the duke, and ſo ſtiled by the duke himſelf in his deed of ſettlement, and in his will his ſon and heir; & quod juſtum non eſt aliquem poſt mortem facere baſtardum. The court held this true of ſuch a baſtard as is meant by Littleton, in his caſe of baſtard eigne, and mulier puiſne, that is, ſuch a baſtard as is born before the eſpouſals of a father and mother, who may afterwards marry; and ſaid, the rule extended only to that caſe. 1 Salk. 120. Pride v. Earls of Bath, &c. 7 W. & M. 3 Lev. 410. S. C. Who tells us, that though the evidence was admitted by Holt, and Gil. Eyre, who were only in court, the jury were not ſatisfied with it, and gave a verdict for the Earl of Bath.

To exclude the mulier from the inheritance, there muſt not only be an uninterrupted poſſeſſion of the baſtard eigne during his life, but a deſcent to his iſſue. Co. Lit. 244. 1 Rol. Abr. 624.

If the baſtard eigne die, having iſſue in ventre ſa mere, and the mulier enter, and then the ſon is born, the ſon of the baſtard eigne is for ever excluded, becauſe there was no deſcent; and ſo our law in this diſagrees with the civil law, which, for the benefit of the infant, reputes a child in its mother's womb in the ſame condition as if it were born. Co. Lit 244. Hughes 365.

If the baſtard eigne enter and die without iſſue, yet the lord by eſcheat cannot claim it againſt the mulier, for there is no deſcent caſt to extinguiſh his right. Co. Lit. 244.

If the mulier enter into the land after the deceaſe of the baſtard, before the heir of the baſtard eigne, yet he is barred; for the land is caſt upon the iſſue of the baſtard immediately after his death, and the deſcent to him is made without any entry, and conſequently he is within the benefit of the rule. Co. Lit. 244

If the mulier be an infant during the poſſeſſion of the baſtard eigne, yet he is barred by the deſcent; for though no laches can be imputed to an infant, becauſe not being of the age of conſent, his permiſſion cannot be taken for a conſent; yet in ſuch caſes where the time is limited by the law for pleas and actions, infants are included, unleſs ſpecially excepted, for here their permiſſion is taken for a conſent, becauſe they are ſuppoſed to conſent to the eſtabliſhed law, to which they are obliged for protection during minority; and the law hath not thought fit to except, becauſe it is a publick miſchief in a very tender point; for it might be any man's caſe to ſuffer by the baſtard of an anceſtor, and the law hath given the infants guardians to plead by; but it cannot revive the evidence of legitimation, which ſo eaſily periſhes with the life of the party. Co. Lit. 244. 8 Co. 101. Plowd. 372.

If baſtard eigne and mulier puiſne daughters enter and occupy in coparcenary, the law will not ſuppoſe the whole in the mulier, but by a more eaſy conſtruction preſume that the mulier admits the other into the inheritance; ſo if there be baſtard eigne and mulier puiſne, and the mulier enters to hunt or hawk, this doth not diſturb the baſtard's poſſeſſion, for a man's intention does always govern and denominate his actions; and in this caſe he did not enter to claim. Co. Lit. 244.

If the baſtard eigne enters after the deceaſe of his father, and the king ſeizes the land for a contempt (whereby the profits only are taken) without cauſe, and the baſtard dies, and the iſſue petitions and is reſtored, he ſhall hold it againſt the mulier; for when the king ſeizes land without cauſe, he ſhall only hold it as a ſubſtitute to the poſſeſſor. Co. Lit. 245.

The baſtard being impleaded ſhall have his age, for the dilatory plea muſt be determined before the pleas in chief can come; ſo that the plea of infancy will ſtay the ſuit before it can be inquired whether he is or is not a baſtard; alſo he ſhall be vouched as heir to the father, for qui ſentit commodum ſentire debet & onus. Co. Lit. 244.

If a man hath iſſue a ſon baſtard eigne, and a daughter, being mulier puiſne, and the daughter is married, the father dies, and the ſon enters and dies ſeiſed, this ſhall bar the mulier, for ſhe might have claimed by her huſband. The ſame law if the baſtard eigne enters and enjoys peaceably during his life, while the mulier is impriſoned or beyond the ſea, or of non-ſane memory, for the conſtant and quiet poſſeſſion of the baſtard eigne, together with the character he had, during life, of being legitimate, ſhall in caſe of ſuch nice conſequence outweigh at a trial, any evidence that can be brought to the contrary. Co. Lit. 244. 8 Co. 101.

The deſcent of ſervices, rents, or reverſions expectant upon eſtates tail, or for life, whereon rents are reſerved, ſhall bind the mulier; for the enjoyment of theſe do equally ſuppoſe the character of legitimate, as the poſſeſſion of any corporal rights; but ſuch a deſcent would not drive the party that hath right to an action, for it is a contradiction in terms, that a man ſhould be diſpoſſeſſed of a mere right. Co. Lit. 244. 8 Co. 101.

If the baſtard eigne die ſeiſed, and the ſon endow the wife, yet the deſcent takes away the right of the mulier; the baſtard eigne's entering into religion is ſuch a deſcent as takes away the right of the mulier. Co. Lit. 244. 8 Co. 101.

Tenant in tail, the remainder in tail, the remainder in fee; tenant in tail hath iſſue baſtard eigne and mulier puiſne, and dies; the baſtard entereth and continueth his poſſeſſion, and hath iſſue and dies; the iſſue enters, the mulier dies; he in remainder ſhall have a formedon againſt the iſſue of the baſtard, and the continuance of the poſſeſſion of the baſtard ſhall not prejudice him; for the ſtatute Weſtm. 2. ſays, that the will of the donor manifeſtly expreſſed in his gift muſt be obſerved; now the baſtard cannot bring himſelf within the intention of the donor, for he is neither the heir, nor a perſon begotten by tenant in tail, ſince, in law, he is the ſon of no man, and conſequently the expreſs words of the ſtatute excludes him from the inheritance, which ſets aſide the rules of common law in this caſe. 1 Rol. Abr. 625.

If a man hath iſſue baſtard eigne and mulier puiſne; and the baſtard in the life of the father dies, leaving iſſue, and then the father dies, and the ſon of the baſtard enters and dies ſeiſed, and it deſcends to his iſſue, the deſcent ſhall bind the mulier; for if otherwiſe, it would be baſtardizing the anceſtor after one deſcent, which is contrary to the rule. Co. Lit. 244.

2. The ſtatutes concerning the ſettling and providing for baſtards, and the caſes determined upon them.

By the ſtat. 18 Eliz. cap. 3. it is enacted, "That two juſtices of the peace, whereof one to be of the quorum, in or next unto the limits where the pariſh church is, within which pariſh the baſtard ſhall be born, upon examination of the cauſe and circumſtance, ſhall and may by their diſcretion take order, as well for the puniſhment of the mother and reputed father of ſuch baſtard child, as alſo for the better relief of every ſuch pariſh, in part or in all; and ſhall and may likewiſe by like diſcretion take order for the keeping of every ſuch baſtard child, by charging ſuch mother or reputed father with the payment of money weekly, or other ſuſtentation for the relief of ſuch child, in ſuch wiſe as they ſhall think meet and convenient; and if, after the ſame order by them ſubſcribed under their hands, and the ſaid perſons, viz. mother or reputed father, upon notice thereof, ſhall not for their part obſerve and perform the ſaid order, then every ſuch party ſo making default, in not performing the ſaid order, to be committed to ward to the common gaol, there to remain without bail or mainprize, except he, ſhe, or they ſhall put in ſufficient ſurety to perform the ſaid order, or elſe perſonally to appear at the next general ſeſſions of the peace to be held in that county where ſuch order ſhall be taken, and alſo to abide ſuch order as the ſaid ſaid juſtices of the peace, or the greater part of them, then and there ſhall take in that behalf, if they then and there ſhall take any; and that if at the ſaid ſeſſions the ſaid juſtices ſhall take no other order, then to abide and perform the order before made, as is above ſaid."

Two juſtices] A ſingle juſtice may bind to the good behaviour him that is charged or ſuſpected to have begotten a baſtard child. Lam. 122. Crom. 196. Dalton 44. But the two juſtices cannot make any order purſuant to this ſtatute, unleſs the child has been a charge to the pariſh. Comb. 39. 1 Vent. 37, 363.

If the two juſtices diſagree, ſo that they make no order, the two juſtices of the next diviſion, being of the ſame county, may make the order. Dalt. 45.

If five juſtices make the order, it is good; for the ſtatute is not reſtrictive, but requires two at leaſt. 2 Salk. 477.

If J. S. is adjudged the father of a baſtard child, and by the order it appears, that the examination of the woman was by one juſtice only, though the ordering part thereof is ſaid to be made by two, the court will quaſh it. Rex v. Beard, 2 Salk. 122. We the ſaid juſtices doth, inſtead of do, an order was quaſhed for this fault. 1 Salk. 478.

Whereof one to be of the quorum] Many orders have been formerly quaſhed, for want of ſetting forth that one of the juſtices was of the quorum. See Dalt. 47. 2 Salk. 477. 1 Sid. 222. S. P. But now by the ſtatute 26 Geo 2. cap. 27. no order ſhall be quaſhed for that defect only.

Shall be born] The place of birth muſt be ſet forth in the order, becauſe it may be born in a pariſh where the two juſtices who made the order had no juriſdiction; and that it may appear that it was born in that pariſh to which the relief is ordered. Style 368. Dalton 47.

Upon examination] And therefore not only the mother, but likewiſe the putative father, ſhould be ſummoned to appear, and both parties examined before any order is made; but this, however agreeable it ſeems to natural juſtice, is not always practiſed, the juſtices being apprehenſive that ſuch warning would tend to no other uſe, but to make the father keep out of the way; however, it has been reſolved, that ſuch ſummons is neceſſary. Dalt. 52.

An order made by two juſtices of the peace was quaſhed, becauſe it was made on an affidavit brought to them without the examination of any witneſſes. Comb. 103.

Reputed father] They muſt adjudge him the father of the child. 1 Sid. 363. Style 154. Dalt. 52.

Take order for the keeping] An order that the reputed father ſhould pay ſo much till further order, was quaſhed; for that further order might be 40 years hence. 2 Show. 129.

An order that the reputed father ſhould give ſuch ſecurity as overſeers or churchwardens ſhall think fit, is naught; for by ſuch order the juſtices delegate their authority to others. Salk. 477. Dalt. 47.

An order to pay ſo much money a week till the child is fourteen years of age, is naught; for the juſtices have no power but to indemnify the pariſh, and that is done by obliging the father to maintain the child as long as it may be chargeable to the pariſh. 1 Salk. 121. Comb. 232. S. P.

An order that the father ſhould pay ſo much a week to the pariſh till the child was twelve years old, quaſhed; for the father may take it away and maintain it himſelf. 1 Vent. 48. 151. 1 Sid. 222. S. P. 1 Mod. 20.

An order that the father ſhould pay ſo much weekly, without ſaying for how long, is naught; for it ſhould be ſo long as it is chargeable to the pariſh. Style 134. S. P. 2 Keb. 575. 2 Salk. 480.

The juſtices may order the payment of a ſum in groſs, for the charges the pariſh has been already at to midwife, nurſe, &c. Dalton 47. 1 Vent. 336. 1 Salk. 124, 477.

But an order that the father ſhould pay 4*s.* to the midwife, and 7*s.* a week until the child was able to get its living by working, was quaſhed. 1ſt, Becauſe it did not appear that the pariſh procured the midwife, or were at any charge with reſpect to her; and they have no power to order any money but for the indemnity of the pariſh. 2dly, 7*s.* a week is exceſſive, and uncertain as to the time; for the father may, if he pleaſes, maintain it cheaper; and the order ſhould have been for ſo long time as it ſhall be chargeable to the pariſh. 1 Vent. 210.

An order that the father ſhould pay 2*d.* a week is too little and unreaſonable. 1 Sid. 363.

When they order a ſum in groſs, they muſt ſhew for what, and the charges the pariſh had been at. Comb. 103.

They cannot order a ſum in groſs for putting out the child apprentice. Comb. 448.

An order to pay ſo much weekly to the overſeers of the poor, for, &c. is good; for before the inſtitution of theſe it might have been ordered to be paid to two or three of the inhabitants. Salk. 122.

The order directed that ſecurity ſhould be given for the performance of it; and becauſe the ſtatute directs, that the ſecurity ſhould be either to perform the order, or appear at the next ſeſſions; for this the order was quaſhed. 2 Show. 258. 2 Bulſt. 242. S. P.

Such baſtard child] If the child is no baſtard, and yet they adjudge him ſuch, an action lies againſt them. Comb. 482.

Where the huſband was ſeven years abſent beyond ſea, and they adjudged the child which the wife had in that time a baſtard. 5 Mod. 419. 1 Salk. 122, 123.

At the next general ſeſſions] Muſt be intended that the order made by the two juſtices muſt be confirmed or diſcharged at the next quarter ſeſſions of that part of the county where it was made, and not at the ſeſſions in the county, for that would be miſchievous in many counties, where there are ſeveral ſeſſions in diſtinct parts of the county. Dalton 48. 1 Sid. 149. Muſt be the next ſeſſions after the notice of the order. 1 Sid. 325.

Held in that county] Exception was taken to an order, that it was made ad ſeſſionem pacis in com' præd', and did not ſay pro com', but over-ruled. 1 Vent. 37.

And alſo to abide ſuch order] It ſeems by the better opinions, that the juſtices in their ſeſſions have no power to make an original order, and are only to reverſe or affirm the order made by the two juſtices; for this vide 2 Bulſt. 342, 355. Dalt. 48, 49. Cro. Car. 337, 341. 2 Show. 132. 1 Vent. 59, 48. But upon the removal of the cauſe by certiorari, the court of King's Bench may either reverſe the order in whole, or in part; and though they reverſe the order for irregularity, yet will they oblige the father to give ſecurity to appear at the next ſeſſions, to abide ſuch further order as ſhall then be made. Comb. 286, 264. 2 Salk. 477.

Baſtard children gain a ſettlement in the pariſh where they are born; but if a woman big with child of a baſtard, is by order of two juſtices removed from the pariſh of A. to B. as her laſt place of ſettlement; from which order B. appeals, but before the next ſeſſions ſhe is delivered of a baſtard child in B. and afterwards the order of the two juſtices is vacated, the child muſt follow the mother, and gains a ſettlement in A. Carth. 397. 1 Salk. 121. 5 Mod. 204. Comb. 360. See 2 Bulſt. 349. Dalt. 49.

By the ſtat. 7 Jac. 1. cap. 4. it is enacted, "That every lewd woman which ſhall have any baſtard which may be chargeable to the pariſh, the juſtices of the peace ſhall commit ſuch lewd woman to the houſe of correction, there to be puniſhed and ſet to hard labour during the term of one whole year; and if ſhe ſhall eftſoons offend again, then to be committed to the ſaid houſe of correction as aforeſaid, and there to remain till ſhe can put in good ſureties for her good behaviour not to offend again."

Which ſhall have any baſtard] The woman muſt be delivered of ſuch baſtard child before ſhe can be ſent to the houſe of correction, and the child is not to be ſent with her. Dalton 48.

Which may be chargeable] The child muſt be chargeable to the pariſh; therefore if the father, or any other maintains it, it ſeems ſhe is not to be puniſhed by this ſtatute. See Dalton, c. 46.

Juſtices of the peace] Muſt be by two juſtices at leaſt. Dalt. c. 46.

Offend again] But ſhe ſhall not be puniſhed upon this part of the ſtatute, unleſs ſhe were before convicted and puniſhed on the firſt. Qu. If ſhe were before proceeded againſt purſuant to the ſtatute 18 Eliz. 2 Bulſt. 348, 349.

By ſtat. 13 & 14. Car. 2. cap. 12. ſect. 19. "Whereas the putative fathers and lewd mothers of baſtard children run away out of the pariſh, and ſometimes out of the county, and leave the ſaid baſtard children upon the charge of the pariſh where they are born, although ſuch putative father and mother have eſtates ſufficient to diſcharge ſuch pariſh; it is therefore enacted, That it ſhall and may be lawful for the churchwardens and overſeers for the poor of ſuch pariſh where any baſtard child ſhall be born, to take and ſeize ſo much of the goods and chattels, and to receive ſo much of the annual rents or profits of the lands of ſuch putative fathers or lewd mothers, as ſhall be ordered by any two juſtices of the peace, for or towards the diſcharge of the pariſh, to be confirmed at the ſeſſions, for the bringing up and providing for ſuch baſtard child; and thereupon it ſhall be lawful for the ſeſſions to make an order for the churchwardens or overſeers of the poor of ſuch pariſh to diſpoſe of the goods by ſale or otherwiſe, or of ſo much of them for the purpoſes aforeſaid as the court ſhall think fit, and to receive the rents and profits, or ſo much of them as ſhall be ordered by the ſeſſions as aforeſaid, of his or her lands."

To ſeize ſo much of the goods] Order to the churchwardens and overſeers to ſeize, of the putative father's goods, what they ſhould judge proper for ſecuring of the pariſh, quaſhed; for that it ſhould be what the juſtices think proper, and not what the churchwardens and overſeers think proper. L. Raym. 858.

By ſtat. 6 Geo. 2. ſect. 1. it is enacted, "That if any ſingle woman ſhall be delivered of a baſtard child, which ſhall be chargeable, or likely to become chargeable to any pariſh or extraparochial place; or ſhall declare herſelf to be with child, and that ſuch child is likely to be born a baſtard, and to be chargeable to any pariſh or extraparochial place, and ſhall in either of ſuch caſes, in an examination to be taken in writing upon oath before any one or more juſtice or juſtices of the peace of any county, riding, diviſion, city, liberty, or town corporate, wherein ſuch pariſh or place ſhall lie, charge any perſon with having gotten her with child, it ſhall and may be lawful to and for ſuch juſtice or juſtices, upon application made to him or them by the overſeers of the poor of ſuch pariſh, or by any one of them, or by any ſubſtantial houſeholder of ſuch extraparochial place, to iſſue out his or their warrant or warrants for the immediate apprehending ſuch perſon ſo charged as aforeſaid, and for bringing him before ſuch juſtice or juſtices, or before any other of his Majeſty's juſtices of the peace of ſuch county, &c. and the juſtice and juſtices before whom ſuch perſon ſhall be brought is and are hereby authorized and required to commit the perſon ſo charged as aforeſaid to the common gaol or houſe of correction of ſuch county, &c. unleſs he ſhall give ſecurity to indemnify ſuch pariſh or place; or ſhall enter into a recognizance with ſufficient ſurety, upon condition to appear at the next general quarter ſeſſions, or general ſeſſions of the peace, to be held for ſuch county, &c. and to abide and perform ſuch order or orders as ſhall be made in purſuance of an act paſſed in the 18th year of Queen Elizabeth, concerning baſtards begotten and born out of lawful matrimony.

Sect. 2. Provided that if the woman ſo charging any perſon as aforeſaid ſhall happen to die or be married before ſhe ſhall be delivered, or if ſhe ſhall miſcarry of ſuch child, or ſhall appear not to have been with child at the time of her examination, then and in any of the ſaid caſes ſuch perſon ſhall be diſcharged from his recognizance at the next general quarter ſeſſions, or general ſeſſions of the peace to be holden for ſuch county, &c. or immediately releaſed out of cuſtody, by warrant under the hand and ſeal or hands and ſeals of any one or more juſtice or juſtices of the peace reſiding in or near the limits where ſuch pariſh or place ſhall lie.

Sect. 3. Provided alſo, that upon application made by any perſon who ſhall be committed to any gaol or houſe of correction by virtue of this act, or by any perſon on his behalf, to any juſtice or juſtices reſiding in and near the limits where ſuch pariſh or place ſhall lie, ſuch juſtice or juſtices are hereby authorized and required to ſummon the overſeer or overſeers of the poor of ſuch pariſh, or one or more of the ſubſtantial houſholders of ſuch extraparochial place, to appear before him or them at a time and place to be mentioned in ſuch ſummons, to ſhew cauſe why ſuch perſon ſhould not be diſcharged; and if no order ſhall appear to have been made in purſuance of the ſaid act of the 18th of Elizabeth, or within ſix weeks after ſuch woman ſhall have been delivered, ſuch juſtice or juſtices ſhall and may diſcharge him from his impriſonment in ſuch gaol or houſe of correction to which he ſhall have been committed.

Sect. 4. Provided always, that it ſhall not be lawful for any juſtice or juſtices of the peace to ſend for any woman whatſoever before ſhe ſhall be delivered, and one month after, in order to her being examined concerning her pregnancy, or ſuppoſed pregnancy, or to compel any woman before ſhe ſhall be delivered to anſwer to any queſtions relating to her pregnancy.

3. Of general and ſpecial baſtardy; how baſtardy is to be tried; and of murdering baſtard children.

Baſtardy, in relation to the ſeveral manners of its trial, is diſtinguiſhed into general and ſpecial baſtardy. General baſtardy is the baſtardy tried by the biſhop, which in its notion contains two things: 1ſt, It ſhould not be a baſtard made legitimate by a ſubſequent marriage. 2dly, That it ſhould be a point collateral to the original cauſe of action. 1 Rol. Abr. 361.

Formerly baſtards had a way in ſuch iſſues to trick themſelves into legitimation, for they uſed to bring feigned actions, and get ſuborned witneſſes before the biſhop to prove their legitimation, and then got the certificate returned of record, and after that their legitimation could never be conteſted; for being returned of record as a point adjudged by its proper judges, and remaining among the memorials of the court, all perſons were concluded by it; but this created great inconveniencies, as it is taken notice of in the preamble of the 9 Hen. 6. cap. 11. in the caſe of ſeveral perſons of quality; for the evidence of the contrary parties concerned were never heard at the trial, and yet their intereſt was concluded: to remedy this inconvenience, without altering the rules of law, it was enacted, that before any writ to the biſhop there ſhould be a proclamation made in the ſame court, and after that the iſſue ſhould be certified into Chancery, where proclamation ſhould be made once in every month for three months, and then the Chancellor ſhould certify to the court where the plea depends, and afterwards it ſhall be again proclaimed in the ſame court, that all that are concerned may go to the ordinary to make their allegations; and without theſe circumſtances, any writ granted to the ordinary, and all proceedings thereupon, ſhall be utterly void. 1 Rol. Abr. 361.

If the ordinary certify or try baſtardy without a writ from the King's temporal courts, it is void; for the ſpiritual juriſdiction within theſe kingdoms is derived from the King, and therefore it muſt be exerciſed in the manner the King hath appointed; for it would be injurious if they ſhould declare legitimation where the rights of inheritance heritance are ſo nearly concerned, without any apparent neceſſity. 1 Rol. Abr. 361.

The certificate muſt be under the ſeal of the ordinary, and not under the ſeal of the commiſſary only, for the command is to the biſhop himſelf to certify, and therefore the execution of the command muſt appear to be by the biſhop in proper perſon. 1 Rol. Abr. 362.

If a man be certified baſtard, this binds perpetually, though the perſon ſo adjudged a baſtard is not party to the action, for all perſons are eſtopped to ſpeak againſt the memorial of any judicatory; becauſe the act of the publick judicatory under which any perſon lives is his own act; and were he not thus bound, there might be contradiction in certificates. 1 Rol. Abr. 362.

If a man be certified baſtard, that doth not bind a ſtranger till returned of record, becauſe it is no judicial act till recorded in the place appointed to record ſuch tranſactions, nor doth it bind the party to the action till judgment thereon, becauſe if he avoid the action he avoids all conſequences of the action; and therefore if the defendant be certified baſtard by the ordinary, yet if the plaintiff be nonſuit they cannot go on to trial, and ſo the biſhop's certificate never appears of record, and therefore is not binding. 1 Rol. Abr. 362.

If a man be certified mulier, no man is eſtopped to baſtardize him, for though he may be a mulier by the ſpiritual law, yet he may be a baſtard by our law; and therefore any man, notwithſtanding the certificate, may plead the iſſue of ſpecial baſtardy. 1 Rol. Abr. 362.

When a writ is awarded to the biſhop to certify baſtardy, day is given in court to attend ſuch certification, otherwiſe the parties would be without day in court in waiting for the biſhop's certificate, and this would create a diſcontinuance, and therefore the parties muſt attend the day, and not expect that the proceeding ſhould be revived by reſummons, though ſome have held the contrary, becauſe the biſhop is judge, and ſo not held to a certain day. Bro. 76. 4 Ed. 3. 39. Raſt. 289.

Ne unques accouple in loyal matrimony is no plea but in dower, and in appeal for to baſtardize any perſon, baſtardy general or ſpecial muſt be pleaded; for the matrimony is there to be queſtioned, where there is a claim under the relation of a wife, but there is more than marriage in queſtion in the point of legitimation. Bro. Baſtardy, 97. a.

The plea of baſtardy may be tried by the biſhop in actions perſonal as well as in real. 1 Rol. Abr. 361.

If there be no biſhop, the certificate muſt be made by the guardian of the ſpiritualties, for he is to ſuſtain the office in the mean time. Bro. 97, 98.

In an aſſiſe the tenant makes bar as heir, the plaintiff ſays the tenant is a baſtard, the tenant ſays he is a mulier, born at London, and prays a writ to the biſhop of London; the plaintiff ſays, that he was born at L. in Surrey (the county alſo where the land lies) and prays that it may be tried by aſſize; but this could not be granted, becauſe here baſtardy was particularly pleaded, and not left at large upon the iſſue; but the certificate in this caſe was directed to the biſhop of Wincheſter, within whoſe juriſdictions Surrey is, becauſe where the place of birth is in diſpute, the trial muſt be in the place where the land lies, for where the place of birth is controverted it is uncertain, and ſo is the ſame as if not alledged. Bro. Baſtardy, 97.

In an aſſize the biſhop certified directly, that the defendant was a baſtard, and it was indorſed on the certificate, that A. the mother of the defendant left her huſband for ſeven years, in which time the defendant was begot by one B. a prieſt, and ſo a baſtard; but becauſe the defendant was made a baſtard in the certificate, they gave no heed to the indorſement, as a thing foreign and immaterial. Bro. Baſtardy, 98.

Special baſtardy, which is always tried by a jury in the temporal courts, is twofold: 1ſt, Where the baſtardy is the giſt of the action, and the material part of the iſſue. 2dly, Where thoſe are baſtards by the common law that are muliers by the ſpiritual law, and ſuch are thoſe that are born before marriage, whoſe parents afterwards intermarry. 1 New Abr. 314.

If a man receives any temporal damage by being called a baſtard, and brings his action in the temporal courts, and the defendant juſtifies that the plaintiff is a baſtard, this muſt be tried at common law, and by writ to the biſhop; for otherwiſe you ſuppoſe an action brought in a court which hath not a capacity to try the cauſe of action. 1 Brownl. 1. Hob. 179. Godol. 479. Co. Ent. 29.

If it be found by an aſſiſe taken at large that a man is a baſtard, the temporal courts are judges of it, for the jury cannot be eſtopped to ſpeak truth which may fall within their own knowledge, and what they find becomes the record of the temporal courts, and ſo within their conuzance. Bro. Baſtardy, 97.

In an aſſiſe of mort d'anceſtor, one of the three points inquirable is, whether the demandant be heir to J. S. the anceſtor; in which caſe, if the tenant plead he is ready to hear the recognizance of the aſſiſe (& hoc paratus eſt per aſſiſam inquirere) he cannot give in evidence that the demandant is a baſtard, but he ought to have pleaded the ſame; for if this were given in evidence, and not pleaded, the ſpiritual court would be ouſted of their juriſdiction. Fitz Abr. 12. 2 Inſt. 400.

By the ſtat. 21 J. 1. c. 27. "If any woman be delivered of any iſſue of her body, male or female, which being born alive, ſhould by the laws of this realm be a baſtard, and ſhe endeavour privately, either by drowning, or ſecret burying thereof, or any other ways, either by herſelf, or the procuring of others, ſo to conceal the death thereof, as that it may not come to light whether it were born alive or not, but be concealed, ſhe ſhall ſuffer death as in caſe of murder, except ſhe can prove, by one witneſs at the leaſt, that the child was born dead."

It hath been adjudged, that in order to convict a woman by force of this ſtatute, there is no need that the indictment be drawn ſpecially, or conclude againſt the form of the ſtatute; for the ſtatute doth not make a new offence, but only makes ſuch concealment an undeniable evidence of murder. 2 Hawk. 438.

Alſo it hath been agreed, that where a woman appears to have endeavoured to conceal the death of ſuch child within the ſtatute, there is no need of any proof that the child was born alive, or that there were any ſigns of hurt upon the body, but it ſhall be undeniably taken that the child was born alive, and murdered by the mother. 2 Hawk. 438.

But it hath been adjudged, that where a woman lay in a chamber by herſelf, and went to bed without pain, and waked in the night, and knocked for help, but could get none, and was delivered of a child, and put it in a trunk, and did not diſcover it till the following night, yet ſhe was not within the ſtatute, becauſe ſhe knocked for help. 2 Hawk. 438.

Alſo it hath been agreed, that if a woman confeſs herſelf with child beforehand, and afterwards be ſurprized and delivered, nobody being with her, ſhe is not within the ſtatute, becauſe there was no intent of concealment, and therefore in ſuch caſes it muſt appear by ſigns of hurt upon the body, or ſome other way, that the child was born alive. 2 Hawk. 438.

If a woman be with child, and any gives her a potion to deſtroy the child within her, and ſhe takes it, and it works ſo ſtrongly that it kills her, this is murder; for it was not given to cure her of a diſeaſe, but unlawfully to deſtroy the child within her; and therefore he that gives her a potion to this end muſt take the hazard, and if it kills the mother, it is murder. 1 Hal. H. 429, 430.

If a woman be quick or great with child, if ſhe take, or any other give her any potion to make an abortion, or if a man ſtrike her, whereby the child within her is killed, though it be a great crime, yet it is not murder nor manſlaughter by the law of England, becauſe it is not yet in rerum natura, nor can it legally be known, whether it were killed or not: ſo it is, if after ſuch child were born alive, and after die of the ſtroke given to the mother, this is not homicide. 1 Hal. H. 433.

But if a man procure a woman with child to deſtroy her infant when born, and the child is born, and the woman in purſuance of that procurement kill the infant; this this is murder in the mother, and the procurer is acceſſary. 1 Hal. H. 433.

Batſwaine, Sax. Bat, a boat, and ſwaine, a ſervant; a mariner, or boatſwain. Domeſday. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Battel, (Fr. Battaile) Signifies a trial by combat, which was anciently allowed of in our laws, where the defendant in appeal of murder or felony may fight with the appellant, and make proof thereby whether he be culpable or innocent of the crime. Glan. lib. 14. cap. 1. When an appellee of felony wages battel, he pleads that he is not guilty, and that he is ready to defend the ſame by his body, and then flings his glove; and if the appellant will join battel, he replies, that he is ready to make good his appeal by his body upon the body of the appellee, and takes up the glove; and then the appellee lays his right hand on the book, and with his left hand takes the appellant by the right, and ſwears thus: Hear this, thou who calleſt thyſelf John by the name of baptiſm that I who call myſelf Thomas by the name of baptiſm, did not felonioufly murder thy father W. by name, in the year of, &c. at B. as you ſurmiſe, nor am any way guilty of the ſaid felony; ſo help me God. And then he ſhall kiſs the book, and ſay; And this I will defend againſt thee by my body, as this court ſhall award. Then the appellant lays his right hand on the book, and with his left hand takes the appellee by the right, and ſwears to this effect: Hear this, then thou who calleſt thyſelf Thomas by the name of baptiſm, that thou didſt felonioufly on the day, and in the year, &c. at B. murder my father W. by name; ſo help me God. And then he ſhall kiſs the book, and ſay; And this I will prove againſt thee by my body, as this court ſhall award. This being done, the court ſhall appoint a day and place for the battel, and in the mean while the appellee ſhall be kept in cuſtody of the marſhal, and the appellant ſhall find ſureties to be ready to fight at the time and place, unleſs he be an approver, in which caſe he ſhall alſo be kept by the marſhal: and the night before the day of battel both parties ſhall be arraigned by the marſhal, and ſhall be brought into the field before the juſtices of the court where the appeal is depending, at the riſing of the ſun, bare-headed and bare-legged from the knee downwards, and bare on the arms to the elbows, armed only with baſtons an ell long, and four-corned targets; and before they engage they ſhall both make oath, that they have neither eat nor drank, nor done any thing elſe by which the law of God may be depreſſed, and the law of the devil exalted: and then, after proclamation for ſilence under pain of impriſonment, they ſhall begin the combat, wherein, if the appellee be ſo far vanquiſhed that he cannot or will not fight any longer, he may be adjudged to be hanged immediately; but if he can maintain the fight till the ſtars appear, he ſhall have judgment to be quit of the appeal: and if the appellant becomes a crying coward, the appellee ſhall recover the damages, and may plead his acquittal in bar of a ſubſequent indictment of appeal; and the appellant ſhall for his perjury loſe his liberam legem. And if an appellant becomes blind by the act of God after he has waged battel, the court will diſcharge him of the battel; and in ſuch caſe it is ſaid, that the appellee ſhall go free. This trial by battel is at the defendant's choice; but if the plaintiff be under an apparent diſability of fighting, as under age, maimed, &c. he may counter-plead the wager of battel, and compel the defendant to put himſelf upon his country: alſo any plaintiff may counter-plead a wager of battel, by alledging ſuch matters againſt the defendant, as induce a violent preſumption of guilt; as in appeal of death, that he was found lying upon the deceaſed with a bloody knife in his hand, &c. for here the law will not oblige the plaintiff to make good his accuſation in ſo extraordinary a manner, when in all appearance he may prove it in the ordinary way. It is a good counter-plea of battel, that the defendant hath been indicted for the ſame fact; when, if appeal be brought, the defendant ſhall not wage battel. And if a peer of the realm bring an appeal, the defendant ſhall not be admitted to wage battel, by reaſon of the dignity of the appellant. 2 Hawk. P. C. 426, 427. This trial by battel is before the conſtable and marſhal; but with all its ceremonies is now diſuſed. See Glanv. lib. 14. Cowell. Jacob.

Battery, (from the French, battre, to ſtrike; or from the Saxon, batte, a club) Seems to be, when any injury whatſoever, be it never ſo ſmall, is actually done to the perſon of a man in an angry, or revengeful, or rude, or inſolent manner, as by ſpitting in his face, or any way touching him in anger, or violently joſtling him out of the way, and the like. 1 Hawk. 134. The wrong-doer is ſubject to an action at the ſuit of the party, wherein he ſhall render damages; and alſo to an indictment at the ſuit of the king, wherein he ſhall be fined according to the heinouſneſs of the offence. 1 Hawk. 134. See Aſſault and Battery.

Battle, Batellus, a little boat. In the reign of Ed. 3. every great ſhip landing at Billingſgate in London paid for ſtandage two-pence; every little ſhip with orelocks, a penny; and the leſſer boat called a battle, a half-penny. See Stow's Survey of London.

Bawdy-houſe, (Lupanar, fornix) A houſe of ill fame, kept for the reſort and commerce of lewd people of both ſexes. The keeping of a bawdy-houſe comes under the cognizance of the temporal law, as a common nuiſance, not only in reſpect of its endangering the public peace, by drawing together diſſolute and debauched perſons, and promoting quarrels, but alſo in reſpect of its tendency to corrupt the manners of the people, by an open profeſſion of lewdneſs. 3 Inſt. 205. 1 Hawk. P. C. 196.

And in general, all open lewdneſs groſly ſcandalous is puniſhable upon indictment at the common law. 1 Hawk. 7. And offenders of this kind are puniſhable not only with fine and impriſonment, but alſo with ſufficient infamous puniſhment, as to the court in diſcretion ſhall ſeem proper. 1 Hawk. 196.

And upon information given to a conſtable, that a man and a woman of evil report are gone to a ſuſpected houſe together in the night, the officer may take company with him, and if he find them ſo, he may carry them before a juſtice, to find ſureties of the good behaviour. Dalt. c. 124. 2 Hawk. 61. For it ſeems always to have been the better opinion, that a man may be bound to his good behaviour for haunting bawdy-houſes with women of bad fame, as alſo for keeping bad women in his own houſe. 1 Hawk. 132.

And a wife may be indicted together with her huſband, and condemned to the pillory with him for keeping a bawdy-houſe; for this is an offence as to the government of the houſe, in which the wife has a principal ſhare; and alſo ſuch an offence as may generally be preſumed to be managed by the intrigues of her ſex. 1 Hawk. 2.

But if a perſon is indicted for frequenting a bawdy-houſe, it muſt appear that he knew it to be ſuch a houſe; and it muſt be expreſly alledged, that it is a bawdy-houſe, and not that it is ſuſpected to be ſuch a houſe. Wood, b. 3. c. 3.

On an indictment for keeping a diſorderly houſe, a female witneſs ſwore, that ſhe was a ſailor's wife, and during her huſband's abſence out of the realm ſhe had often proſtituted herſelf there: Lord Raymond ſaid it was an odious piece of evidence, and ought not to be heard. Barlow's Juſtice, tit. Bawdy-houſe.

But it is ſaid, a woman cannot be indicted for being a bawd generally: for that the bare ſolicitation of chaſtity is not indictable. 1 Hawk. 196. 1 Salk. 382.

Stat. 25 Geo. 2. cap. 36. ſect. 5. If any two inhabitants of any pariſh or place, paying ſcot, and bearing lot therein, give notice in writing to any conſtable (or other peace-officer, where there is no conſtable) of ſuch pariſh, &c. of any perſon keeping a bawdy-houſe, gaming-houſe, or any other diſorderly houſe, in ſuch pariſh, &c. the conſtable or officer, on ſuch notice, ſhall forthwith go with ſuch inhabitants to a juſtice of peace of the county or liberty, and ſhall, upon ſuch inhabitants oath before ſuch juſtice, that they believe the contents of ſuch notice to be true, and entering into a recognizance in the penal ſum of 20 l. each, to give or produce material evidence againſt ſuch perſon for ſuch offence, enter into recognizance in the penal ſum of 30 l. to proſecute with effect ſuch perſon for ſuch offence at the next general or quarter ſeſſions of the peace, or at the next aſſizes for the county in which ſuch place lies, as to the ſaid juſtice ſhall ſeem meet; and ſuch conſtable, &c. ſhall be allowed the expences of ſuch proſecution, to be aſcertained by two juſtices of peace of the county, &c. where the offence ſhall have been committed, and ſhall be paid the ſame by the overſeers of the poor of ſuch pariſh, &c. and in caſe ſuch perſon be convicted, the overſeers of the poor of ſuch pariſh, &c. ſhall pay 10 l. to each of ſuch inhabitants; and in caſe ſuch overſeers neglect to pay to ſuch conſtable, &c. ſuch expences of proſecution, or neglect to pay upon demand the ſaid ſums of 10 l. and 10 l. ſuch overſeers, and each of them, ſhall forfeit to the perſon intitled to the ſame double the ſum ſo neglected to be paid.

Sect. 6. Upon ſuch conſtable, &c. entering into ſuch recognizance to proſecute, the juſtice ſhall make out his warrant to bring the perſon accuſed before him, and ſhall bind him over to appear at ſuch general or quarter ſeſſion or aſſizes, to anſwer to ſuch indictment as ſhall be found againſt him; and ſuch juſtice may, if he thinks fit, take ſecurity for ſuch perſon's good behaviour in the mean time.

Sect. 7. In caſe ſuch conſtable ſhall neglect, upon ſuch notice, to go before any juſtice of peace, or to enter into recognizance, or ſhall be wilfully negligent in carrying on the proſecution, he ſhall for every ſuch offence forfeit 20 l. to each of ſuch inhabitants ſo giving notice.

Sect. 8. Any perſon who ſhall appear, act, or behave him or herſelf as maſter or miſtreſs, or as having the management of any bawdy-houſe, gaming-houſe, or other diſorderly houſe, ſhall be deemed the keeper thereof, and ſhall be liable to be puniſhed as ſuch, notwithſtanding he or ſhe ſhall not be the real owner or keeper.

Sect. 9. Upon any ſuch proſecution againſt any perſon for keeping a bawdy-houſe, gaming-houſe, or other diſorderly houſe, any perſon may give evidence againſt the defendant, or on behalf of the defendant, notwithſtanding his being an inhabitant of the pariſh, or having entered into ſuch recognizance.

Sect. 10. No indictment preferred againſt any perſon for keeping a bawdy-houſe, gaming-houſe, or other diſorderly houſe, ſhall be removed by any writ of Certiorari into any other court; but ſhall be tried, and finally determined, at the ſame general or quarter ſeſſions or aſſizes where ſuch indictment ſhall have been preferred, unleſs the court think proper upon cauſe ſhewn to adjourn the ſame.

Sect. 13. Any perſon intitled to any of the forfeitures by this act impoſed may ſue for the ſame by action of debt in any court at Weſtminſter, in which it ſhall be ſufficient to declare, that the defendant is indebted to the plaintiff in the ſum of being forfeited by an act, intitled, An act for the better preventing theſts and robberies, and for regulating places of publick entertainment, and puniſhing perſons keeping diſorderly houſes: and the plaintiff, if he recover, ſhall have his full coſts.

Sect. 14. No action ſhall be brought by virtue of this act, unleſs the ſame be commenced within ſix calendar months after the offence committed.

Sect. 15. This act ſhall continue for three years from the firſt day of this ſeſſion of parliament, and to the end of the then next ſeſſion.

Made perpetual by 28 Geo. 2. cap. 19. ſect. 1.

Indictment for keeping a bawdy or diſorderly houſe.

THE jurors of our lord the King upon their oath preſent, that A. Beer and Ale. Ordinance for bakers, &c. Incerti Temporis, cap. 6. the aſſiſe of ale ſhall be aſſeſſed, proclaimed, and kept according to the price of the corn whereof the malt is made; and the brewer ſhall not increaſe more in a gallon, but according to the rate of ſixpence riſing in a quarter of malt; and if he break the aſſiſe, the firſt, ſecond, and third time he ſhall be amerced; but the fourth time he ſhall ſuffer the pillory.

Stat. 1 Will. & Mar. ſtat. 1. cap. 22. ſect. 1. Any perſon may ſhip off, within any of the uſual and allowed ports by law, and at the common keys, and within the uſual hours of exciſe, to be exported into foreign parts, in the preſence of a ſworn officer to be appointed by the farmers, &c. of exciſe within the limits where the ſame ſhall be ſhipped, any ſtrong ale, ſtrong beer, cyder, or mum, to be ſpent beyond the ſeas, paying cuſtom for the ſame after the rate of 1 s. per ton, and no other duty: ſuch officer to certify the quantity ſo ſhipped off to the commiſſioners and officers of exciſe, where the entry thereof ſhall be made, who are required to make allowance, or repay the exciſe of the beer, ale, cyder, or mum ſo exported, to the brewer or maker thereof, within one month after ſuch exportation, deducting 3*d. per* ton for the charges of their officers.

Sect. 2. If any perſon ſhall cauſe or ſuffer any liquors ſo ſhipped to be laid on land, or put into any other veſſel, within England, Wales, or Berwick, he ſhall forfeit the ſame, and 50 l. more for every caſk ſo unduly landed, or put on board any veſſel; the one moiety to the King, &c. the other to the informer; and their Majeſties commiſſioners and officers of the cuſtoms ſhall charge every maſter of any veſſel, in his victualling bill, with ſo much beer, ale, cyder, or mum, and no more, as ſuch number of men uſed to ſpend in ſuch voyages; the exciſe whereof to be recovered according to the laws eſtabliſhed.

Sect. 3. The ſaid rate of 1 s. the ton for beer, &c. exported ſhall be levied and paid under ſuch rules and penalties, and in ſuch manner, as by the laws of tonnage and poundage are ordained.

Sect. 4. No mum imported from foreign parts ſhall have any part of the cuſtom or exciſe repaid upon exportation.

Stat. 11 & 12 Will. 3. cap. 15. ſect. 1. for aſcertaining the meaſure for retailing ale and beer, all perſons retailing ale or beer ſhall ſell their ale and beer by the full ale quart, or ale pint, according to the ſtandard remaining with the chamberlains of the exchequer, in a veſſel made of wood, earth, glaſs, horn, leather, pewter, or other wholeſome metal, marked from the ſaid ſtandard in the Exchequer, or city of London, or ſome other place where a ſtandard ſhall be kept; and not any other veſſel not marked, on forfeiture of a ſum not exceeding 40 s. nor leſs than 10 s.

Sect. 2. If any innkeeper, alehouſekeeper, &c. ſhall ſell any ale or beer in a veſſel not marked, or deny to give give the particular number of quarts, &c. in any reckoning, ſuch innkeeper, &c. ſhall not, for non-payment of the reckoning, detain any of the perſon's things not paying the ſame, but be left to his action in law.

Sect. 3. The ſub-commiſſioners, or collectors of exciſe, ſhall procure a ſubſtantial ale quart and ale pint of braſs, according to the Exchequer ſtandard, to be made, ſealed, and certified from the chamberlains there, without fee, and deliver to the mayor or chief officer in each city, corporation, borough, and market town within their diviſions, where there is not one already; and the chief officer giving a receipt for it, the ſame is to be delivered to the ſucceeding officer. The ſub-commiſſioner or collector to forfeit for every default therein 5 l.

Sect. 5. Every mayor or chief officer of every city, borough, or market town, ſhall, on requeſt, cauſe all ſuch ale quarts and pints, made of wood, &c. as ſhall be brought to him to be meaſured and ſized with ſuch ſtandard, and marked with W. R. and a crown; which marks the ſaid mayor or chief officer are to provide, and to take not above a farthing for marking each meaſure. The mayor or chief officer not doing his duty herein to forfeit 5 l. and treble damages to the party grieved.

Sect. 6. One moiety of the penalties in this act to the poor of the place, the other to the proſecutor, to be recovered by the oath of a credible witneſs before a juſtice of peace, and proſecution within thirty days after the offence committed; and the juſtice of peace to cauſe to levy the penalty.

Sect. 7. Nothing in this act ſhall extend to beer or ale ſold to be ſpent out of the houſe, if it be meaſured out by the ſtandard.

Sect. 8. Actions brought againſt juſtices of peace, or perſons employed by them, upon the execution of this act, ſhall be laid in the proper county only, to which the general iſſue may be pleaded, &c. and upon a verdict, &c. the defendant to recover treble coſts.

Sect. 9. The juſtice of peace at their quarter ſeſſions are to give this act in charge to the juries.

Sect. 10. This act ſhall not extend to colleges or halls in the univerſities.

The 12 & 13 Will. 3. cap. 11. ſect. 19. Nothing in this act 11 Will. 3. cap. 15. ſhall extend to deprive the univerſities of their right of ſizing and marking of meaſures for ale and beer within their juriſdictions.

Stat. 13 Will. 3. cap. 5. ſect. 34. No common brewer, innkeeper, victualler, or retailer of beer and ale, ſhall uſe any ſugar, honey, foreign grains, Guiney pepper, the liquor called eſſentia bine made from malt and water boiled up, coculus Indiæ, or any unwholeſome ingredients in the brewing or making of beer or ale; or mix any ſugar, &c. with any beer or ale in caſks, after the ſame is cleanſed; on pain of forfeiture of 20 l. See Alehouſes and Brewers.

Benefice, (Beneficium) Is generally taken for all eccleſiaſtical livings, be they dignities, or other. And by ſtat. 13 Rich. 2. ſtat. 2. cap. 8. benefices are divided into elective and donative. In the ſame ſenſe it is uſed alſo in the Canon law. Duarenus de beneficiis, lib. 2. c. 3. The portions of land, and other immoveable things, granted by the lords to their followers, for their ſtipend or maintenance, were at firſt called munera, while revocable at the pleaſure of the lord: they were after called beneficia, while temporary, or held for ſome limited time, which was commonly one year. But when by degrees theſe tenures, from an arbitrary condition, became perpetual and hereditary, then they left their former name of beneficia to the livings of the clergy, and retained to themſelves the proper names of feuds, and became perpetual and hereditary. See Spelman of Feuds, cap. 2. See Beneficium.

In order to be legally intitled to a benefice, the ſeveral following particulars are conſiderable, viz.

1. Preſentation.
2. Examination.
3. Refuſal.
4. Admiſſion.
5. Inſtitution, or Collation.
6. Induction, and requiſites after induction.

1. Preſentation.

Preſentation, nomination, and collation are ſometimes uſed in law for the ſame thing; and yet they are commonly diſtinguiſhed; for preſentation is an offering of the clerk to the ordinary; and nomination may be of the clerk to him that may and ought to preſent him to the ordinary, by reaſon of a grant made by him that hath the power of preſenting, obliging him thereto; and collation is the giving of the church to the clerk, and is that act by which the ordinary doth admit and inſtitute a clerk to a church or benefice of his own gift, in which caſe there is no preſentation. Watſ. c. 15.

For it is to be obſerved, that the right of nomination may be in one perſon, and the right of preſentation in another. And this is, where he who was ſeiſed of the adowſon doth grant unto another and his heirs, that as often as the church becomes void, and the grantee and his heirs ſhall nominate to the grantor and his heirs; who ſhall be bound to preſent accordingly. In which caſe, it was agreed by the whole court in the caſe of Shirly and Underhill, M. 16 Ja. that the nomination is the ſubſtance of the adowſon, and the preſentation no more than a miniſterial intereſt; and that if the preſentor ſhall preſent without nomination, or the nominator preſent in his own perſon, each ſhall have his quare impedit, for the ſecurity of their reſpective rights. And if the nominator neglect to appoint his clerk, till lapſe incurs, and then the patron preſents before the biſhop collates, the biſhop is bound to admit his clerk. Gibſ. 794. Mo. 894.

Preſentation muſt be to avoid benefice. Thus in the caſe of Owen and Stainoe, E. 34 Car. 2. Owen moved for a mandamus to admit him a prebendaty of St. David's, and ſet forth a cuſtom, that they uſed to chooſe a ſupernumerary (all the places being full) who is admitted upon the death of the next prebendary; and ſays, that he was choſen a ſupernumerary in ſuch a year, and that one of the the prebendaries died, and that Stainoe was admitted: but the court refuſed to grant a mandamus, and held the cuſtom to be void and fooliſh; for that there cannot be an election but to a void place. Skin. 45.

The King ſhall not preſent in prejudice of another's right. Thus by ſtat. 25 Ed. 3. ſt. 3. cap. 1. "Touching preſentments to be made by the King to a benefice of holy church, in another's right by old title; our lord the King, to the honour of God and holy church, willeth and granteth, of the aſſent of the parliament, that from henceforth he nor any of his heirs ſhall not take title to preſent to any benefice, in any other's right, of any time of his progenitors; nor that any prelate of this realm be bound to receive any ſuch preſentment to be made, nor to do thereof any execution; nor that any juſtice of the one place or the other may not nor ought not to hold plea or give judgment upon any ſuch preſentment to be made; but that the ſaid King and his heirs be for ever clearly barred of all ſuch preſentments: ſaving always to him and his heirs, all ſuch preſentments in another's right, fallen or to fall, of all his time, and of the time to come.

And by the 25 Ed. 3. ſt. c. 3. "Whereas before this time, our lord the King had taken title to preſent to benefices at the ſuggeſtion of many clerks, where the title hath not been true, and by ſuch preſentments and judgments thereupon given, the clerks have been received by the ordinaries of the places, againſt God and good faith, and in depreſſion of them which had good and true title to the ſaid benefices; now the King willeth and granteth, that at what time he ſhall make collation or preſentment from henceforth to any benefice in another's right, that the title whereupon he groundeth himſelf ſhall be well examined that it be true: and at what time before judgment the title be found by good information untrue or unjuſt, the collation or preſentment thereof made ſhall be repealed; and the patron, or the poſſeſſor, which ſhall ſhew and prove the falſe title, ſhall have thereupon writs out of the Chancery, as many as to him ſhall be needful."

And by the 13 Rich. 2. cap. 1. "Whereas notwithſtanding the laſt-recited ſtatute, ſome of the King's preſentees, by favour of the ordinaries, be inſtituted and inducted in benefices of holy church without due proceſs, the parties not warned nor called, and ſometimes taken by falſe inqueſts favourably, and the incumbents in ſuch manner put out; it is ordained, that the ſaid ſtatute be firmly holden and kept: and moreover the King, for the reverence of God and holy church, doth will and grant, that if he preſent to any benefice that is full of any incumbent, the preſentee of the King ſhall not be received by the ordinary to the benefice, till the King hath recovered his preſentment by proceſs of the law in his own court: and if any preſentee of the King be otherwiſe received, and the incumbent put out without due proceſs, as afore is ſaid, the ſaid incumbent ſhall begin his ſuit within a year after the induction of the King's preſentee at the leaſt." Or at any time after, at his will, by ſtat. 4 Hen. 4. c. 22.

2. Examination.

It is very well known, that in the firſt ſettlement of this church of England, the biſhops of the ſeveral dioceſes had them under their own immediate care; and that they had the clergy living in a community with them, whom they ſent abroad to ſeveral parts of the dioceſes, as they ſaw occaſion to employ them; but that by degrees they found a neceſſity of fixing preſbyters within ſuch a compaſs, to attend upon the ſervice of God amongſt the inhabitants, and thoſe precincts, which are ſince called pariſhes, were at firſt much larger; that when lords of manors were inclined to build churches for their own conveniencies, they found it neceſſary to make ſome endowments, to oblige thoſe who officiated in their churches to a diligent attendance: that upon this, the ſeveral biſhops were very well content to let thoſe patrons have the nomination of perſons to thoſe churches, provided they were ſatisfied of the fitneſs of thoſe perſons, and that it were not deferred beyond ſuch a limited time. So that the right of patronage is really but a limited truſt; and the biſhops are ſtill, in law, the judges of the fitneſs of the perſons to be employed in the ſeveral parts of their dioceſes. But the patrons never had the abſolute diſpoſal of their benefices upon their own terms; but if they did not preſent fit perſons within the limited time, the care of the places did return to the biſhop, who was then to provide for them. 1 Still. 309.

And by the ſtatute of Articuli Cleri, 9 Ed. 2. ſt. 1. cap. 13. it is enacted as followeth: "It is deſired, that ſpiritual perſons, whom our lord the King doth preſent unto benefices of the church (if the biſhop will not admit them, either for lack of learning, or for other cauſe reaſonable) may not be under the examination of lay perſons in the caſes aforeſaid, as it is now attempted, contrary to the decrees canonical; but that they may ſue unto a ſpiritual judge for remedy, as right ſhall require. The anſwer: Of the ability of a parſon preſented unto a benefice of the church, the examination belongeth to a ſpiritual judge; ſo it hath been uſed heretofore, and ſhall be hereafter."

3. Refuſal.

The moſt common and ordinary cauſe of refuſal is want of learning: but there are alſo many other cauſes for which a clerk preſented may lawfully be refuſed; as, if he be perjured before a lawful judge; or if he be an heretick or ſchiſmatick; or irreligious; or (as is ſaid in the old books) if he is a baſtard, and not diſpenſed withal; or if he is within age; or if he or his patron be excommunicated for the ſpace of forty days; or if he be outlawed; or guilty of forgery; or hath committed ſimony in the procuring of the preſentment he brings, or of any other preſentment to a former benefice; or hath committed manſlaughter, that is, if he be attainted thereof, and not pardoned; and that it is ſaid, that the ordinary may refuſe a clerk upon his own knowledge for an offence committed by him, which is a good cauſe of refuſal, altho' he be not convicted thereof by the law; and this ſhall be tried by iſſue, whether it be true or not: and generally, all ſuch as are ſufficient cauſes of deprivation, are alſo ſufficient cauſes of refuſal. Watſ. c. 20.

If the clerk refuſed be the preſentee of a biſhop, or other eccleſiaſtical patron, the ordinary is not bound to give notice of the refuſal; or if he ſhould do it, ſuch patron can never revoke nor vary his preſentation, by preſenting one afterwards that is better qualified, without the ordinary's conſent; the law ſuppoſing him that is a ſpiritual perſon to be capable of chooſing an able clerk: and ſo lapſe may come upon him unavoidably, if the clerk firſt preſented be juſtly refuſed. But if the clerk preſented be the preſentee of a lay patron, and be refuſed by the ordinary, the ordinary in moſt caſes is bound to give notice to the patron of ſuch refuſal: for if in ſuch caſe no notice is given, no lapſe can run, though no other clerk be preſented; nor if notice be given, unleſs upon trial the clerk was juſtly refuſed. But if a clerk be for good cauſe refuſed, and notice thereof be in due time and manner given to the patron, and no other clerk be preſented in time, lapſe doth run to the ordinary. Watſ. c. 12.

In the caſe of Hele and the biſhop of Exeter, M. 3 Will. it was ſaid by the court, That if the ordinary refuſe becauſe he is criminous, he need not give notice of the refuſal; for the crime is as much in the cognizance of the patron as of the biſhop; but if he refuſe becauſe illiterate, he muſt give notice. 2 Salk. 539.

4. Admiſſion.

In a larger ſenſe, admiſſion is ſometimes uſed to include alſo inſtitution; but more frequently and properly, admiſſion is taken to be, when the biſhop upon examination doth approve of the preſentee, as a fit perſon to ſerve the cure of the church to which he is preſented: and inſtitution is that act by which he doth commit to him the cure thereof. Watſ. c. 15.

5. Inſtitution,

5. Inſtitution, or collation.

There is no difference between inſtitution and collation as to the action itſelf, but this; that the biſhop doth not preſent to ſuch livings as are in his own gift, but immediately inſtituteth his own clerk, in much the ſame form as he or his chancellor inſtitute a clerk preſented by another patron. And as the biſhop collates to benefices of his own gift jure pleno, ſo he doth to thoſe which fall to him by lapſe. Johnſ. 81.

By the ſtat. 1 Eliz. c. 1. and 1 W. c. 8. ſ. 5. "Every perſon who ſhall be promoted or collated to any ſpiritual or eccleſiaſtical benefice, or miniſtry; before he ſhall take upon him to receive, uſe, exerciſe, ſupply, or occupy the ſame, ſhall take the oaths of allegiance and ſupremacy before ſuch perſon as ſhall have authority to admit him." See title Oaths.

By the ſtat. 13 & 14. Car. 2. c. 4. "Every dean, canon, and prebendary of every cathedral or collegiate church, and every parſon, vicar, curate, lecturer, and every other perſon in holy orders, who ſhall be incumbent, or have poſſeſſion of any deanry, canonry, prebend, parſonage, vicarage, or any other eccleſiaſtical dignity or promotion, or of any curate's place or lecture, ſhall, at or before his admiſſion to be incumbent, or have poſſeſſion aforeſaid, ſubſcribe the declaration or acknowledgment following, viz. I A. B. do declare, that I will conform to the liturgy of the church of England, as it is now by law eſtabliſhed." Stat. 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 4. ſect. 8, 12. 1 Will. Seſſ. 1. c. 8. ſect. 11.

"Which ſaid declaration and acknowledgment ſhall be ſubſcribed before the archbiſhop, biſhop, or ordinary of the dioceſe [or before their vicar general, chancellor, or commiſſary reſpectively, 15 C. 2. c. 6. ſ. 5.] on pain that every perſon failing in ſuch ſubſcription ſhall loſe and forfeit ſuch reſpective promotion, and ſhall be utterly diſabled, and ipſo facto deprived thereof; and the ſame ſhall be void, as if ſuch perſon ſo failing were naturally dead." Stat. 13 & 14. Car. 2. c. 4. ſect. 10.

"And after ſuch ſubſcription made, every ſuch perſon, vicar, curate, and lecturer ſhall procure a certificate under the hand and ſeal of the reſpective archbiſhop, biſhop, or ordinary of the dioceſe (or ſuch their vicar general, chancellor, or commiſſary as aforeſaid) who ſhall on demand make and deliver the ſame, to be read by him publickly in the church afterwards. Stat. 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 4.

By ſtat. 31 Eliz. c. 6. ſect. 6. "If any perſon ſhall, for any reward or other profit, or any promiſe, or other aſſurance thereof, directly or indirectly (other than for uſual and lawful fees) admit, inſtitute, inſtal, induct, inveſt, or place any perſon in or to any benefice with cure of ſouls, dignity, prebend, or other living eccleſiaſtical, he ſhall forfeit the double value of one year's profit thereof, and the ſame ſhall be void as if ſuch were naturally dead.

6. Induction, and requiſites after induction.

After inſtitution given, the ordinary iſſues a mandate for induction, directed to the perſon who hath power to induct; and this perſon, of common right, is the archdeacon. But by preſcription or compoſition, others as well as archdeacons may make inductions, and ſo do the dean and chapter of St. Paul's. Watſ. c. 15.

So if a church is exempt from archidiaconal juriſdiction (as many churches are) then the mandate is to be directed to the chancellor or commiſſary; and if it be a peculiar, then to the dean or judge within ſuch peculiar. And when an archbiſhop collates by lapſe, or when a ſee is vacant, the mandate goes, not to the officer of the archbiſhop, but of the biſhop. Gibſ. 815.

If a biſhop dies, or is removed, after inſtitution given, and whilſt a mandate of induction is either not iſſued, or not executed, the clerk may repair to the archbiſhop for a mandate of induction. This is becauſe the authority of the biſhop is determined, and that authority devolved to the archbiſhop as guardian of the ſpiritualties ſede vacante. And the ſame rule takes place if the biſhop is viſited, and his juriſdiction ſuſpended after inſtitution, and before induction. And though ſuch mandate is not executed before a new biſhop is confirmed (who then hath authority to grant it) but is executed after, it ſhall not be void (becauſe it is the act of one who hath authority throughout his province) but only voidable at moſt; as was determined in the Exchequer Chamber, M. 29 C. 2. in the caſe of Robinſon and Wooley; a contrary judgment, which had been given in the court of King's Bench (viz. that it was void) being at the ſame time reverſed. Gibſ. 815.

By the ſtat. 13 & 14 C. 2. cap. 4. "Every perſon who ſhall be preſented or collated, or put into any eccleſiaſtical benefice or promotion, ſhall, in the church, chapel, or place of publick worſhip belonging to his ſaid benefice or promotion, within two months next after he ſhall be in the actual poſſeſſion of the ſaid eccleſiaſtical benefice or promotion, upon ſome Lord's day, openly, publickly, and ſolemnly read the morning and evening prayers appointed to be read by and according to the Book of Common Prayer, at the times thereby appointed or to be appointed; and after ſuch reading thereof ſhall openly and publickly, before the congregation there aſſembled, declare his unfeigned aſſent and conſent to the uſe of all things therein contained and preſcribed, in theſe words, and no other: I A. B. do here declare my unfeigned aſſent and conſent to all and every thing contained and preſcribed in and by the book, intitled, The book of common prayer and adminiſtration of the ſacraments, and other rites and ceremonies of the church, according to the uſe of the church of England; together with the pſalter or pſalms of David, appointed as they are to be ſung or ſaid in churches; and the form or manner of making, ordaining, and conſecrating of biſhops, prieſts, and deacons."

Sect. 6. "And every ſuch perſon who ſhall (without ſome lawful impediment to be allowed and approved by the ordinary of the place) neglect or refuſe to do the ſame within the time aforeſaid) or in the caſe of ſuch impediment, within one month after ſuch impediment removed, ſhall ipſo facto be deprived of all his ſaid eccleſiaſtical benefices and promotions; and from thenceforth it ſhall be lawful for all patrons and donors of all and ſingular the ſaid eccleſiaſtical benefices and promotions, according to their reſpective rights and titles, to preſent and collate to the ſame, as though the perſon or perſons ſo offending or neglecting were dead."

By the ſtat. 13 Eliz. cap. 12. ſect. 3, 8. "Every perſon admitted to any benefice with cure ſhall publickly read the thirty-nine articles in the pariſh church of that benefice, with declaration of his unfeigned aſſent to the ſame: and every perſon admitted to a benefice with cure, except that within two months after his induction he do publickly read the ſaid articles, in the ſame church whereof he ſhall have cure, in the time of Common Prayer there, with declaration of his unfeigned aſſent thereunto, ſhall be upon every ſuch default ipſo facto immediately deprived.—Provided, that no title to confer or preſent by lapſe ſhall accrue upon deprivation ipſo facto, but after ſix months after ſuch notice of deprivation given by the ordinary to the patron."

Admitted to any benefice with cure] This is meant of ſuch benefices as have parochial churches belonging to them, and extends to dignities or prebends in cathedral and collegiate churches; and therefore where the caſe was about reading the articles, and it was alledged in the declaration that the benefice was a benefice with cure, it was held to be ill. 1 And. 62.

Except that within two months after his induction] Computing twenty-eight days to the month: for in the caſe of Brown and Spence, where the induction was Sept. 15. and the articles were read Nov. 15. this was adjudged inſufficient. 1 Lev. 101.

But by the ſtatute of 23 Geo. 2. cap. 28. "Whereas it hath happened, and may happen, through ſickneſs or other lawful impediment, that divers perſons have been and may be hindered from reading the ſaid articles, and making the ſaid declaration within the two months, and yet ſuch perſon, after ſuch ſickneſs or other lawful impediment removed, hath read or may read the ſaid articles, ticles, and hath made or ſhall make the ſaid declaration; and it is reaſonable, that ſuch perſons ſhould be deemed to have complied with the true intent and meaning of the ſaid act; it is therefore enacted, That every perſon who hath read or ſhall read the ſaid articles, and hath made or ſhall make the ſaid declaration, at the ſame time that he did read or ſhall read the morning and evening prayer, and declare his unfeigned aſſent and conſent thereto, according to the ſtatute 13 & 14 Car. 2. cap. 4. ſhall be, and is hereby declared and adjudged to have complied with the true intent and meaning of the ſaid act of 13 Eliz. although the ſame were not, or may be read within the ſpace of two months after ſuch perſon's induction into any benefice with cure; and every ſuch perſon ſhall be freed and diſcharged from any deprivation, or other forfeiture by virtue of the ſaid act."

In the ſame church whereof he ſhall have cure] In the aforeſaid caſe of Brown and Spence, where the keys of the church could not be had, and ſo divine ſervice was performed in the church porch, and the articles read there; this was held to be ſufficient, as Keble reports it: but by Levinz, what the court there held to be good, was the reading of them in the porch of a chapel of eaſe within the pariſh. 1 Lev. 101.

In the time of common prayer there] And therefore not to be put off till divine ſervice or common prayer is ended.

With declaration of his unfeigned aſſent thereunto] In the caſe of Smith and Clark the jury found, that the incumbent (who was ſued in the ſpiritual court in order to deprivation for not giving aſſent to the articles) did read the articles and then ſaid, I give my conſent unto them, ſo far forth as they agree with the word of God: and it was adjudged that this was not an unfeigned aſſent, as the ſtatute intendeth; but that the aſſent ought to be abſolute, and without condition. For (as Lord Coke ſaith) the act was made for the avoiding diverſity of opinions; and by this addition the party might, by his own private opinion, take ſome of them to be againſt the word of God: and by this means diverſity of opinions ſhould not be avoided, and the act hereby made of none effect. Gibſ. 817. 4 Inſt. 324.

Shall be upon every ſuch default] But in a ſuit for tithes, or the like, though the pariſhioner may plead, that the parſon did not read the thirty-nine articles, yet the law preſumes the affirmative, and (in that caſe) the negative muſt be proved. Gibſ. 817.

Ipſo facto immediately deprived] So as the church is preſently void, without any declaratory ſentence; for avoidance by act of parliament needeth not any ſentence declaratory, and if it did, the ſtatute ſhould be defrauded at the ordinary's pleaſure if he would not deprive. And this is the received interpretation of the ſtatute; altho' the contrary ſeems to be ſuppoſed in the caſe of Bacon and the biſhop of Carliſle (which was but ſix years after making of the act) as it is reported by Dyer; inaſmuch as the notice given by the biſhop is there declared inſufficient, for this, among other reaſons, that he did not notify, that he had deprived the clerk by ſuch ſentence. Gibſ. 817. 4 Inſt. 324.

But after ſix months notice of ſuch deprivation given by the ordinary to the patron] In the aforeſaid caſe of Bacon and the biſhop of Carliſle, a queſtion aroſe concerning the manner of giving notice. The biſhop of Carliſle had ſigned in an inſtrument under ſeal, that Bacon had not ſubſcribed to the articles, according to the ſtatute; which inſtrument the jury found was publickly read in the church by the curate of the place, and after affixed by the apparitor to the parſonage-houſe. But this notice was declared ſufficient, not only becauſe no mention was made therein either of the patron, or of the deprivation by declaratory ſentence; but chiefly becauſe the notice ought to be given to the patron immediately. And accordingly, Lord Coke lays down two qualifications of the notice mentioned in this act; 1. It ought to be given by a perſon certain, that is, the ordinary; for if any other, of his own head, giveth notice to the patron, it is not material. 2. The notice ought to be certain and particular; and therefore it is not ſufficient for the ordinary in ſuch caſe to give notice, that the preſentee had not read the articles, and ſubſcribed generally; but he ought particularly to inform the patron that he had not ſo done, for which default he is deprived, and that thereupon it belongeth to the patron to preſent. Gibſ. 818. 6 Co. 29.

By the ſtat. 13 & 14 Car. 2. cap. 4. ſect. 11. He ſhall publickly and openly read the ordinary's certificate of his having ſubſcribed the declaration of conformity to the liturgy of the church of England, as it is now by law eſtabliſhed, together with the ſame declaration or acknowledgment, upon ſome Lord's day, within three months next after ſuch ſubſcription, in his pariſh church where he is to officiate, in the preſence of the congregation there aſſembled, in the time of divine ſervice; upon pain that every perſon failing therein (without ſome lawful impediment to be allowed and approved by the ordinary of the place, 23 Geo. 2. cap. 28.) ſhall loſe ſuch parſonage, vicarage, or benefice, curate's place, or lecturer's place reſpectively; and ſhall be utterly diſabled, and ipſo facto deprived of the ſame; and the ſaid parſonage, vicarage, or benefice, curate's place, or lecturer's place, ſhall be void, as if he was naturally dead. For more matter relative to the ſeveral diviſions of this title, ſee Dr. Burne's Eccleſiaſtical law, title Benefice.

Beneficio primo eccleſiaſtico habendo, Is a writ directed from the King to the chancellor or lord keeper, to beſtow the benefice that firſt ſhall fall in the King's gift, above or under ſuch value, upon this or that man. Reg. Orig. fol. 307. b.

Beneficium, Was an eſtate in land at firſt granted for life; and it was called beneficium, becauſe it was held ex mero beneficio of the donor. Theſe tenants were bound to ſwear fealty to the donor, and to ſerve him in the wars: they were only uſufructuaries at firſt, and no more; and moſt commonly ſuch eſtates were given to military men, that they might be more firmly bound to perform military ſervices. At length, by the conſent of the donor or his heirs, theſe eſtates were continued to the poſterity of the donee, ſubject to the ſame ſervices as before. And thoſe which were given by kings, were called regalia beneficia. But ſometimes ſuch benefices were given to biſhops and abbots, ſubject alſo to the like ſervices, viz. to provide men to ſerve in the wars; and when they, as well as the laity, had obtained a property in theſe lands, they were called regalia, which upon the death of a biſhop returned to the King till another was choſen. Thus we read in Randulphus de Diceto, anno 1093. viz. That W. 2. commanded, that the city of Canterbury, which archbiſhop Lanfranck held of him in beneficio, and that the abbey of St. Alban's, which was enjoyed by him and his predeceſſors, ſhould for the future be held by archbiſhop Anſelme in Alodium eccleſiæ Cantuariæ perpetuo jure. And thus began feodatary or feudatary eſtates, which we now call fee ſimple. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Benefit of Clergy. The privilege of clergy took its root from a conſtitution of the pope, that no man ſhould accuſe the prieſts of holy church before a ſecular judge; which, being contrary to the crown and dignity of the King and the Common law, bound not here till it was confirmed by parliament. 2 Inſt. 636.

Concerning which, by ſtat. 3 Ed. 1. c. 2. It is enacted as follows: "When a clerk is taken for guilty of felony, and is demanded by the ordinary, he ſhall be delivered to him according to the privilege of holy church. And they which be indicted of ſuch offences by ſolemn inqueſt of lawful men in the King's court, in no manner ſhall be delivered without due purgation."

When a clerk] For the ſcarcity of clergy in the realm of England, to be diſpoſed of in religious houſes, or for prieſts, deacons, and clerks of pariſhes, there was a prerogative allowed to the clergy, that if any man that could read as a clerk were to be condemned to death, the biſhop of the dioceſe might, if he would, claim him as a clerk; and he was to ſee him tried in the face of the court, court, whether he could read or not: the book was prepared and brought by the biſhop, and the judge was to turn to ſome place as he ſhould chooſe, and if the priſoner could read, then the biſhop was to have him delivered over unto him, to diſpoſe of in ſome places of the clergy, as he ſhould think meet: but if either the biſhop would not demand him, or the priſoner could not read, then was he to be put to death. Lord Bacon's Uſe of the Law 122.

A clerk] And by a favourable interpretation of the ſtatutes relating to the clergy, not only thoſe actually admitted into ſome inferior order of the clergy, but alſo thoſe who were never qualified to be admitted into orders, have been taken to have a right to this privilege as much as perſons in holy orders, whether they were perſons lawfully born or baſtards, aliens or denizens, in the communion of the church or excommunicate, within the common benefit of the law or outlaws; ſo that they were not hereticks convict, nor Jews, Mahometans, nor Pagans, nor under perpetual diſability of going into orders, admitting of no diſpenſation, as blind and maimed perſons formerly were, and women ſtill are; nor liable to the objection of bigamy, which (by a conſtitution of the council of Lyons received in this kingdom) was a bar to the demand of the privilege of the clergy. 2 Hawk. P. C. 338.

And by the ſtat. 3 W. 3. c. 9. ſect. 6. Where a man being convicted of any felony for which he may demand the benefit of his clergy, if a woman be convicted for a like offence, upon her prayer to have the benefit of this ſtatute, judgment of death ſhall not be given againſt her, but ſhe ſhall ſuffer the ſame puniſhment as a man ſhould ſuffer that has the benefit of clergy allowed.

Is taken for guilty of felony] This ſtatute, and the cuſtom of the realm, reſtrained the benefit of clergy only to felony; ſo as they were to anſwer to high treaſon, and all offences under felony. 2 Inſt. 636.

And is demanded by the ordinary] Yet a man might wave the privilege of his clergy if he would, and put himſelf upon his country. 2 Inſt. 638.

By ſolemn inqueſt of lawful men] Before this ſtatute, if any clerk had been arreſted for the death of a man, or any other felony, and the ordinary did demand him before the ſecular judge, he was delivered without any inquiſition to be made of the crime; but after this ſtatute, to the end that the ordinary might have more care of purgation to be duly done according to the proviſion of this act, when any clerk was indicted of any felony, and refuſed to anſwer to the felony, but claimed the privilege of the clergy, and was demanded by his ordinary, yet he was not delivered to the ordinary before he had been firſt indicted and arraigned, and his offence had been inquired of, and found by an inqueſt of office: which was done, both to the end that if the priſoner were found guilty, he might abſolutely forfeit his goods (which anciently were ſaved by a purgation) and alſo that the court might be appriſed, whether it were proper from the circumſtances of the caſe, diſcloſed upon ſuch an injury, to deliver the clerk to the ordinary generally, in which caſe he was allowed to make his purgation; or eſpecially, without purgation to be made. But this practice being found inconvenient to priſoners, becauſe they loſt their goods, if found guilty by ſuch inquiry, and yet could take no challenge to any of the jury, it being but an inqueſt of office, it hath been the general practice ever ſince the reign of Hen. 6. to oblige thoſe who demand the benefit of clergy to plead and put themſelves upon their trial, under pain of being dealt with as thoſe that ſtand mute, whereby they forfeit their goods without any inquiry concerning their crime. 2 Inſt. 164. 2 Hawk. 358.

In no manner ſhall be delivered without due purgation] When a perſon was delivered to the ordinary, he was to remain in the ordinary's priſon; if committed generally, then he might make his purgation, which was a trial before the ordinary by a jury of twelve clerks, wherein if he was acquit, he was diſcharged; if found guilty, he was degraded, and delivered over to the ſecular power. And when he had made his purgation, he had always reſtitution of his lands ſeized, unleſs he were attaint. And as touching his goods, the difference was thus; if before conviction, upon his arraignment, the priſoner had his clergy (as was uſed commonly before the time of Hen. 6.) then if he made his purgatiou, he had reſtitution of his goods, unleſs he had fled: but if he had pleaded to inqueſt, and were convict, then the goods were forfeited by the conviction; and he ſhould not have reſtitution upon his purgation. 2 *Hal. Bent. 15 Geo. 2. c. 33. ſect. 6. Whereas upon the north weſt coaſt of this kingdom, and eſpecially in the county palatine of Lancaſter, the ſea is bounded, and the adjacent lands are prevented from being overflowed by large ſand-hills, which are compoſed of ſuch looſe ſand, that in dry weather, when any violent ſtrong weſt winds happen to blow, the ſame is carried away, and thrown upon the adjacent lands, not only to the damage thereof, but alſo to the great terror and danger of the inhabitants, who are thereby expoſed to the inundation of the ſea: and whereas it has been found by experience, that the beſt way to preſerve the ſaid hills from being blown away as aforeſaid, is to plant them with a certain ruſh or ſhrub called ſtar or bent, which proves an effectual method for keeping the ſame firm and ſolid, and which the owners of the ſaid lands are at great coſts and charges in yearly ſetting and planting for that purpoſe: and whereas it frequently happens, that many idle and diſorderly perſons, reſiding near the ſaid coaſts, do unlawfully and maliciouſly in the night-time, as well as by day, cut, pull up, and carry away the ſtar or bent ſo planted as aforeſaid, and inſtead of working in an honeſt manner for the maintenance and ſupport of their families, do privately ſell and diſpoſe of the ſaid ſtar or bent, for making of mats, bruſhes, and brooms and beeſoms, and thereby the ſaid hills are rendered ſo looſe and open, that the ſame are often blown upon the adjacent lands, which are covered over therewith in ſuch manner as to deſtroy the corn, graſs, and and herbage thereof, and expoſe the ſame to inundations, to the great loſs and damage of the owners and occupiers of the ſaid lands :——therefore if any perſon or perſons ſhall by day or night, without the conſent of the lord or owner of ſuch ſtar or bent hills, cut, pull up, or carry away any ſtar or bent planted or ſet on the ſaid hills or banks, on the north-weſt coaſts of England, in order to preſerve and to prevent the ſame from being blown upon the ſaid adjacent lands, it ſhall be lawful for one or more juſtices of the peace of the county, riding, city, town corporate, liberty, or diviſion where ſuch ſtar or bent ſhall be cut, pulled up, or carried away ; and ſuch juſtice or juſtices is and are hereby impowered, upon complaint or information upon oath made of ſuch offence, to ſummon the party or parties ſo complained of ; and in default of appearance thereon to iſſue out his or their warrants to apprehend and bring before him or them the perſon or perſons ſo accuſed or complained of ; and upon proof thereof made, either by confeſſion of the party or parties ſo accuſed, or upon the oath of one or more credible witneſs or witneſſes, to convict the offender or offenders ; and every perſon ſo offending, and being thereof convicted as aforeſaid, ſhall forfeit and pay the ſum of twenty ſhillings : one moiety thereof to the informer, and the other moiety to the lord or owner of ſuch ſtar, bent, or ſand-hills ; the ſame to be levied by diſtreſs and ſale of the offender's goods and chattels, by warrant under the hands and ſeals of ſuch juſtice or juſtices, together with the charges of ſuch diſtreſs and ſale, rendering the overplus, if any be, to the owner or owners thereof ; and for want of ſufficient diſtreſs, the ſaid juſtice or juſtices are hereby required to commit the perſon or perſons ſo convicted as aforeſaid to the houſe of correction, there to remain and be kept to hard labour for the ſpace of three months ; and if any perſon or perſons ſo convicted ſhall afterwards be guilty of a ſecond offence, and thereof lawfully convicted by ſuch juſtice or juſtices, either by the confeſſion of the party or parties, or upon the oath of one or more credible witneſs or witneſſes, ſuch perſon or perſons ſhall be committed to the houſe of correction for the ſpace of one year, there to be whipt and kept to hard labour.

Sect. 7. And if any ſtar or bent ſhall be found in the cuſtody or poſſeſſion of any perſon or perſons within five miles of any ſuch ſtar, bent or ſand-hills as aforeſaid, ſuch perſon or perſons being convicted thereof before one or more ſuch juſtice or juſtices in manner aforeſaid, ſhall be deemed, adjudged, and taken to be the cutter and puller of ſuch ſtar or bent from ſuch ſand-hills, and ſhall forfeit and pay the ſum of twenty ſhillings; one moiety thereof to the lord or owner of ſuch ſtar, bent, or ſand-hills, the ſame to be levied in manner aforeſaid, by diſtreſs and ſale of the offender's goods and chattels ; and for want of ſufficient diſtreſs, ſuch perſon or perſons ſhall be committed in manner aforeſaid to the houſe of correction, there to remain and be kept to hard labour for the ſpace of three months.

Sect. 8. Provided that nothing in this act contained ſhall extend, or be conſtrued to extend, to prohibit or reſtrain any perſon or perſons from the exerciſe or enjoyment of any ancient preſcriptive right to cut ſtar or bent upon the ſea-coaſts in the county of Cumberland.

Beria, Berra, Berrie, Berry. Moſt of our gloſſographers in the names of places, have confounded the termination of Berrie, with that of Berry and borough, as if the appellative of ancient towns; whereas the true ſenſe of the word Beria, Eng. berie, is a flat wide campaign, as from ſufficient authorities is proved by the learned Du Freſne in his gloſſary, under the word Beria, and in his notes on the life of St. Lewis, p. 89. where he obſerves, that Beria Sancti Edmundi, mentioned by Mat. Paris, ſub. ann. 1174, is not to be taken for the town, but for the adjoining plain. To theſe and other his remarks on that word, may be added, that many flat and wide meads, and other open grounds, are ſtill called by the name of Beries and Berie-fields. So the ſpacious mead between Oxford and Iſley, was in the reign of king Athelſton called Bery. B. Twine. MS. c. 2. pag. 253. As now the largeſt paſture-grounds in Quarendon, in the county of Bucks, is known by the name of Bery-field. And ſuch indeed were the Berie meadows, which, though Sir Henry Spelman interprets to be the demeſne meadows, or manor meadows, yet were they truly any flat open meadows that lay adjoining to any vill or firm: the ſame with Berras, in that plea between the biſhop and prior of Carliſle, 18 E. 1. Et quod rex in foreſta ſua prædicta (ſcil. de Inglewood) poteſt villas ædificare, eccleſias conſtruere, Berras aſſartare, & eccleſias illas cum decimis terrarum illarum pro voluntate ſua cuicunque voluerit conferre; where Berras aſſartare muſt be to aſſart or plough up the plain open heaths, or downs. Bidale, or Bidall, Is the invitation of friends to drink at ſome poor man's houſe, who thereby hopes to receive ſome aſſiſtant benevolence from the gueſts for his relief; ſtill in uſe in the Weſt of England, and falſly written by ſome bildale, and mentioned 26 Hen. 8. c. 6. The ſame is uſed alſo in the county palatine of Cheſter by ſome perſons of quality towards the relief of their own or neighbours poor tenants. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Bidding of the beads, Was a charge or warning that the pariſh prieſt gave to his pariſhioners at certain ſpecial times to ſay ſome particular prayers, or do other acts of devotion in behalf of ſome deceaſed friend's ſoul; in imitation of which the miniſters of the church of England are commanded by the canons on the Sunday precedent to give notice of or bid the feſtivals in the following week, that the pariſhioners may the better obſerve them; this is mentioned 27 Hen. 8. c. 26. we may eaſily find bidding in the Sax. words bidden, to pray or deſire, and bead, a prayer. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Biga, (Bigata) Properly a cart with two wheels, and not, as ſome have offered, a chariot drawn with coupled horſes; theſe words have it ſufficiently, Et quod eant cum bigis & carris cum cæteris phaleris, &c. ſuper tenementum ſuum, &c. Mon. Angl. f. 256. b. This biga, or cart with two wheels, was drawn ſometimes with one horſe, a more expreſs refutation of the above-mentioned conjecture. King Hen. 3. confirmed to the priory of Repingdon com. Derb. unam bigam cum unico equo ſemel in die in boſco ſuo de Tickenhall errantem, ad focale ad uſus ſuos proprios portandum. Mon. Angl. tom. 2. pag. 280.

Bigamus, Is any perſon that hath at ſeveral times married two or more wives ſucceſſively after each other's death, or a widow; as appears by the ſtatutes 18 Ed. 3. c. 2. 1 Ed. 6. c. 12. 2 part. Co. 2 Inſt. fol. 273.

Bigamy, (Bigamia) Signifies a double marriage, and is uſed in common law for an impediment to be a clerk, by reaſon he hath been twice married, 4 Ed. 1. c. 5. which ſeems to be grounded upon the words of St. Paul to Timothy, epiſt. i. c. 5. verſ. 2. Oportet ergo epiſcopum irreprehenſibilem eſſe, & unius uxoris virum. The canoniſts have founded their doctrine upon this, that he that hath been twice married may not be a clerk; and him who hath married a widow they reckon to have been twice married; ſo that they do not only exclude ſuch from holy orders, but alſo deny them all privileges that belong to clerks: but this law is aboliſhed by ſtat. 1 Ed. 6. c. 12. and ſee ſtat. 18 Eliz. cap. 7. The ſtat. called the ſtatute de bigamis, is the 4 Ed. 1. c. 5. and the ſtat. 1 Jac. 1. c. 11. calls it bigamy, where a perſon marries a ſecond wife, the firſt being living, which is felony; but this is properly polygamy, and not bigamy, which laſt is not where a perſon hath two wives together, but where he hath two wives one after another. 2 Inſt. 273.

Matrimonial cauſes are properly cognizable in the ſpiritual courts, and offences againſt the rights of marriages puniſhable by the eccleſiaſtical law; but this offence of bigamy, or marrying a ſecond wife, the firſt being alive, is made felony by ſtatute, but the offender is not ouſted the benefit of his clergy.

By the ſtat. 1 Jac. 1. c. 11. it is enacted, "That if any perſon or perſons within his Majeſty's dominions of England and Wales, being married, do marry any perſon or perſons, the former huſband or wife being alive, that then every perſon or perſons ſo offending ſhall ſuffer death as in caſes of felony; and the party and parties ſo offending ſhall receive ſuch and like proceeding, trial, and execution in ſuch county where ſuch perſon or perſons ſhall be apprehended, as if the offence had been committed in ſuch county where ſuch perſon or perſons ſhall be taken or apprehended: but it is provided, that nothing in this ſtatute contained ſhall extend to any perſon or perſons whoſe huſband or wife ſhall be continually remaining beyond the ſeas by the ſpace of ſeven years together, or whoſe huſband or wife ſhall abſent him or herſelf the one from the other by the ſpace of ſeven years together, in any parts within his Majeſty's dominions, the one of them not knowing the other to be living within that time. Alſo it is provided, that the ſaid ſtatute ſhall not extend to any perſon or perſons who ſhall be at the time of ſuch marriage divorced by a ſentence in the eccleſiaſtical court declared to be void and of no effect; nor to any perſon or perſons, for or by reaſon of any former marriage had or made within age of conſent. Alſo it is provided, that no attainder for this offence ſhall make or work any corruption of blood, loſs of dower, or diſinheriſon of heir or heirs."

As if the offence had been committed in ſuch county] It is agreed, that if the firſt marriage were beyond ſea, and the latter in England, the party may be indicted here; but if the firſt were in England, and the latter beyond ſea, it is ſaid that the party cannot be indicted, becauſe the ſecond marriage, which made the offence, was not within any county here. 1 Sid. 171. Kely. 8. But 1 Hawk. P. C. 111. holds, that the party may in the laſt caſe be indicted, and relies on the expreſs words of the ſtatute.

At the time of ſuch marriage divorced] Divorces a menſa et thoro cauſa adulterii and ſævitiæ are within the exception in the ſtatute, though the word ſeparamus, and not divortiamus, be made uſe of in the ſentence; for the ſtatute being penal ſhall be conſtrued favourably; and ſuch ſeparations are taken for divorces in common underſtanding.

ſtanding. 1 Hawk. P. C. 111. 3 Inſt. 89. H. P. C. 122. Kel. 27. Cro. Car. 461. Q.

Made within age of conſent] If one of the parties only were under the age of conſent at the time of ſuch marriage, the exception extends as well to the party above the age of conſent as to the other; becauſe the power of diſagreeing was equal on both ſides.

Bigot, Is a compound of ſeveral old Engliſh words, and ſignifies an obſtinate perſon, or one who is wedded to his own opinion. Rollo, the firſt duke of Normandy, refuſed to kiſs the King's foot, unleſs he held it out to him for that purpoſe; it being a ceremony uſed in token of ſubjection for that dukedom, with which the King at that time inveſted him: thoſe who were preſent taking notice of the duke's refuſal adviſed him to comply with the King's deſire, to which he anſwered them, Ne ſe bigot, upon which he was in deriſion called bigot; and the Normans are ſtill ſo called. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Bilagines. See By-Laws.

Bilanciis deferendis, Is a writ directed to a corporation for the carrying of weights to ſuch a haven, there to weigh the wools that ſuch a man is licenſed to tranſport. Reg. Orig. fol. 270. a.

Bilinguis, In general is a man of a double tongue; but in a legal ſenſe is uſed for a jury that paſſeth in any caſe between an Engliſhman and an alien, whereof part ought to be Engliſhmen, and part ſtrangers. 28 Ed. 3. c. 13. This we call vulgarly a party-jury; but in proper language, it is a jury de medietate linguæ. See Medietas linguae.

Bill, (Billa) Is diverſly uſed: in law proceedings it is a declaration in writing, expreſſing either the wrong the complainant hath ſuffered by the party complained of, or elſe ſome offences committed againſt the law or ſtatutes of the realm: and this bill is ſometimes addreſſed to the Lord Chancellor of England, eſpecially for unconſcionable wrongs done to the complainant; and ſometimes to others having juriſdiction, according as the law directs. It contains the fact complained of, the damage thereby ſuſtained, and petition of proceſs againſt the defendant for redreſs; and it is made uſe of as well in criminal as civil matters. In criminal caſes, when a grand jury upon a preſentment or indictment find the ſame to be true, they indorſe on it billa vera; and thereupon the offender is ſaid to ſtand indicted of the crime, and is bound to make anſwer unto it: and if the crime touch the life of the perſon indicted, it is then referred to the jury of life and death, viz. the petty jury, by whom if he be found guilty, then he ſhall ſtand convicted of the crime, and is by the judge condemned to death. Termes de la Ley 86. 3 Inſt. 30. See title Ignoramus and Indictment.

Bill is alſo a common engagement for money given by one man to another; and is ſometimes with a penalty, called penal bill, and ſometimes without a penalty, though the latter is moſt frequently uſed. By a bill we ordinarily underſtand a ſingle bond without a condition; and it was formerly all one with an obligation, ſave only its being called a bill when in Engliſh, and an obligation when in Latin. Weſt Symbol. lib. 2. ſect. 146. A bill has been defined to be a writing, wherein one man is bound to another to pay a ſum of money on a day that is future, or preſently on demand, according to the agreement of the parties at the times it is entered into, and the dealings between them: and it is divided into ſeveral ſorts, as bill that is ſingle, a bill that is penal, &c. Where there is a bill of 100*l.* to be paid on demand, it is a duty preſently, and there needs no actual demand. Cro. Eliz. 548. And a ſingle obligation or bill, upon the ſealing and delivery, is debitum in præſenti, though ſolvendum in futuro. On a collateral promiſe to pay money on demand there muſt be a ſpecial demand; but between the parties it is a debt, and ſaid to be ſufficiently demanded by the action: it is otherwiſe where the money is to be paid to a third perſon; or where there is a penalty. 3 Keb. 176. If a perſon acknowledge himſelf by bill obligatory to be indebted to another in the ſum of 50*l.* and by the ſame bill bind him and his heirs in 100*l.* and ſays not to whom he is bound, it ſhall be intended he is bound to the perſon to whom the bill is made. Rol. Abr. 148. A bill obligatory written in a book, with the party's hand and ſeal to it, is good. Cro. Eliz. 613. And if a man makes a bill thus: I do owe and promiſe to pay to A. B. 50*l. &c. for payment whereof I bind myſelf to* C. D. &c. another perſon; it is good by the words of the firſt part, and the words obligatory to another perſon are void. A man ſays by his deed: Memorandum, That I A. B. have received of C. D. the ſum of 20 l. which I promiſe to pay to E. F. In witneſs whereof I have hereunto ſet my ſeal, &c. Or if the bill be, I ſhall pay to C. D. In witneſs, &c. and be ſealed: Or if it runs as follows, I owe to C. D. 20 l. to be paid at, &c. Or, I had of C. D. 20 l. to be paid him again: Or, I A. B. do bind myſelf to C. D. that he ſhall receive 20 l. &c. All theſe are ſaid to be obligatory. 2 Rol. 146. 22 E. 4. c. 22. Bill of Exception. See Exception.

Bill of Exchange, Is a piece of paper commonly long and narrow, on which is wrote a ſhort order, given by a banker, merchant, trader, or other perſon, for paying to ſuch a perſon, or to his order, or alſo in ſome countries to the bearer in a diſtant place, a ſum of money equivalent to that which ſuch a banker, merchant, or other trader has received in his dwelling-place. Dict. Tr. and Com. 253. Savary's Dict. tit. Lettre de Change.

The commerce of changing money for money is carried on two ways. The firſt is, by changing the ſpecies of money for others of the ſame value; ſuch as pieces of ſilver for gold, and the coin of one country for that of another. The ſecond is, where one gives money to a banker, or other perſon, in one place, that he may remit it to another place; whether it be within or without the kingdom. And it is only this ſecond kind of commerce that we ſhall treat of here. This commerce of remitting money from one place to another is carried on by the means of bills of exchange: and in order to the right underſtanding of the nature and rules of this matter, we muſt conſider in this commerce the ſeveral perſons concerned in it, and what paſſes with regard to every one of them.

There are commonly in the commerce of bills of exchange three perſons concerned, whom we ought to diſtinguiſh. There is he who wants to have his money remitted from one place to another; then he who receives it, as the banker or drawer does, who undertakes to remit the money; and thirdly, there is the perſon who delivers the money in the place to which it is to be remitted, ſuch as the banker or drawer's correſpondent. And there is often a fourth perſon concerned, viz. he to whom the perſon who paid in the money ſends his order to receive it: and this fourth perſon may likewiſe transfer his right to others, to whom he gives his order. It may alſo happen that there are only two perſons concerned, he who gives the money, and he who receives it in one place, place, and delivers it back in another place to the ſame perſon who gave it to him on that condition. We muſt, in the next place, conſider the different covenants that paſs between thoſe perſons.

The covenant which paſſes between the perſon who gives the money, and him who undertakes to remit it to another place, hath in it ſome particular characters which diſtinguiſh it from all other kinds of covenants that may ſeem to have ſome reſemblance with it. It is not a ſale; for no body ſells or buys in it: and in the contract of ſale there is a ſeller, who gives ſomething elſe than money, as there is a buyer, who gives nothing but money. It is not an exchange; for thoſe who barter for exchange in any thing give ſomething different from what they receive; and each party takes for his own uſe a thing which he ſtands in need of, and gives away another thing which he can ſpare; but in the commerce of bills of exchange, he who gives his money takes nothing in counterchange, and does not give one thing that he may receive another of a different kind; ſince he who received the money may reſtore the ſame individual ſpecies which he received. It is not a depoſitum; for he who has received the money remains anſwerable for it, although it ſhould be loſt by any unforeſeen accident. It is not a loan; becauſe he who receives the money does not borrow it. It would be a letting and hiring, if he who receives the money did nothing elſe but barely carry it to the place whither it ought to be remitted, having a certain allowance for carrying it, as is uſual for meſſengers, carriers, and maſters of ſtage-coaches to do, who take the charge of a bag of money, to carry it from one place to another, without anſwering for accidents;—but when he who receives the money engages himſelf by a bill of exchange to remit it to another place, the money remains in his hands, at his peril, and is no longer the money of the perſon who gave it. Thus, it is not a letting and hiring; and conſequently, it is a covenant, different from all the others; which conſiſts in the commerce of tranſmitting money belonging to a perſon from one place to another: and which is diſtinguiſhed from all theſe other kinds of covenants by the characters which we have juſt now remarked.

The covenant that paſſes between the perſon who has received the money, whether banker or other perſon, and him to whom he gives order to pay it in another place, is a partnerſhip, if they are partners and correſpondents with one another: or it is a procuration or commiſſion, if the correſpondent be only the factor or agent of the perſon who has received the money.——

The covenant between the perſon who has paid the money, and him to whom he gives his order to receive it, is either an aſſignment, if he ſubſtitutes him in his place, and transfers his right to him; or it is a procuration, if he gives him barely the power to receive the money for his uſe.——

There is, laſtly, another covenant which paſſes between him who paid down the money, and the perſon who is ordered to anſwer the bill of exchange, when he accepts the bill. And this covenant is the ſame with that which paſſed between him who paid in the money, and him who received it; for it only adds an obligation of him who accepts the bill, to that of the perſon who drew it: and it obliges the perſon who accepts the bill to pay it on the day and in the place ſpecified in the bill. Domat, vol. 1. p. 231.

As the cuſtom of merchants hath eſtabliſhed theſe bills and notes, ſo hath it preſcribed their form, and required that the ſame ſhould be in writing, and drawn by the party, or thoſe having legal authority from him; and ſuch drawing raiſes a contract to pay the ſame without any expreſs promiſe. 3 New Abr. 606. Carth. 510. Salk. 128. Starky v. Cheeſman.

As to the form of the bill, it is ſaid, that the ſame ſtrictneſs and nicety are not required in penning of bills current between merchant and merchant, as in deeds, wills, &c. On the other hand it may happen, that a writing may have the form of a bill of exchange, and yet be otherwiſe. 3 New Abr. 606. Lucas 287.

As if A. draw a bill in this form; Sir, pray pay to H. 1945 l. upon demand out of the money belonging to the proprietors of the Devonſhire mines, being part of the conſideration-money for the purchaſe of the manor of Weſt-Buckland. This is no ſuch bill of exchange as will intitle H. to an action againſt the drawer on the cuſtom of merchants; for it is only a direction or appointment to the caſhier to pay the money, and that out of a particular fund, and doth not anſwer the neceſſity of trade, not being a negotiable note, nor indorſable over; and charging the drawer on ſuch a note would be liable to this further inconveniency, that hereby every one, who gives his ſteward an order or authority to pay money, might be charged for non-payment. Stran. 591. 3 Geo. 1. Jenny v. Herle. L. Raym. 1361.

So where a bill drawn by an officer upon his agent, requiring him to pay ſo much out of his growing ſubſiſtence, was held no bill of exchange, nor the drawer liable, though he accepted ſuch bill; for it concerns neither trade nor credit; but is to be paid out of the growing ſubſiſtence of the drawer; ſo that if the party die, or the fund be taken away, the payment is to ceaſe and determine. And it would be of dangerous conſequence to make thoſe orders which a man gives to his ſteward or bailiff, no way concerning trade, to be bills of exchange. L. Raym. 1361. 1 Geo. 1. Jocelyn v. Laſerre

In action upon the caſe upon ſeveral promiſes, the plaintiff in his firſt count declared, that one Thomas Rogers, 8th of Auguſt 1728, &c. according to the cuſtom of merchants, his certain bill of exchange with his own hand, and in the name of the ſaid Thomas ſubſcribed, did make, dated the ſame day and year, and directed the ſaid bill of exchange to the ſaid Rogers, and thereby requeſted the ſaid Rogers to pay the ſaid Henry, or his order, 14 l. 3 s. out of the fifth payment when it ſhould become due, and it ſhould be allowed by the ſaid Thomas, which was afterwards accepted by the defendant; ratione quorum præmiſſorum, the defendant became liable to pay the ſaid 14 l. 3 s. to the plaintiff Henry, and ſo being liable, promiſed to pay, &c. Then there were other counts in the declaration, to which counts the defendant pleaded non aſſumpſit, &c. and as to this count the defendant demurred. And it was inſiſted upon by Mr. Parker for the defendant, that this action was not maintainable upon this bill as a bill of exchange, according to reſolutions in the caſe of Jocelyn v. Laſerre, and Jenny v. Herle (the two foregoing caſes). And of that opinion was the court, and gave judgment for the defendant. Ld. Raym. 1563. 3 Geo. 2. Heydock v. Lynch.

Error of a judgment in C. B. wherein the plaintiff declares, that A. B. drew a bill of exchange, dated the 25th of May, whereby he requeſted the defendant, one month after date, to pay the plaintiff or order 9 l. 10 s. as my quarterly half-pay, to be due from the 24th of June to the 27th of September next by advance. And the action is againſt the defendant upon his acceptance. It was objected, that this was no bill of exchange; it is not to pay in all events, but is left to the pleaſure of the perſon on whom it is drawn, either to advance the money or not: and it was compared to the caſe of Jocelyn v. Laſerre (the laſt but one) which was to pay out of his growing ſubſiſtence, and to the caſe of Jenny v. Herle (the laſt laſt but two) which was payable out of a particular fund, and in both caſes held to be as no bill of exchange. Sed per curiam, The quarterly half-pay is a certain fund, which the growing ſubſiſtence was not: the mention of the half-pay is only by way of direction how he ſhall reimburſe himſelf, but the money is ſtill to be advanced on the credit of the perſon. The reaſon it was held no bill of exchange in Jenny v. Herle was, becauſe it was no more than a private order to a man's ſervant. Judgment affirmed. Strang. 762. 13 Geo. 1. Macleod v. Snee & al'. Ld. Raym. 1481.

The plaintiff declared upon the cuſtom of merchants againſt the defendants as acceptors of a bill of exchange, and the inſtrument run in theſe words.

Meſſrs. Gilly and Co.

Pray pay Mr. Richard Banbury one month after date two hundred pounds on account of freight of the Veale Galley, Edward Champion, and this order ſhall be your ſufficient diſcharge for the ſame.

J. Gibſon.

Accepted for Leſſet and Gilly at Leghorn, to pay as remitted from thence at uſance.

March 18, 1748. H. Gilly.

And two objections were made by the defendants: 1ſt, That this was not a bill of exchange; for it is not payable to order, ſo as to be negotiable: it is not to be for valued received: and it is only an order upon a particular fund, like the caſe of Jenny v. Herle; and ſeveral merchants proved, that they did not look upon it to be a bill of exchange; and others were of a contrary opinion.

The chief juſtice ruled it to be a bill of exchange. He ſaid it was not in the power of the parties to make what form they pleaſe paſs for ſuch a bill; it ought to be agreeable to the Lex Mercatoria: the privilege ariſes from the convenience to trade, which is not conſulted in this caſe. And he thought it bad upon the objection of the fund out of which it was to be paid: however, being a mercantile tranſaction, he left it to the ſpecial jury of merchants, who found it to be no bill of exchange on the objection for want of value received.

The ſecond objection was, that the plaintiff (ſuppoſing it a bill of exchange) had not ſhewn there was any remittance to the defendants; and that this was not an abſolute acceptance, but only conditional: and ſo the chief juſtice declared he underſtood it, and left it to the jury. But they, finding for the defendants upon the firſt point, gave no opinion as to this. Stran. 1211. 17 Geo. 2. Banbury v. Liſſet and Gilly.

In caſe for money had and received to the plaintiff's uſe, the defendant pleaded non aſſumpſit, and gave notice to ſet-off the following bill of exchange, directed to J. S. Sir, at ſix weeks after date pay to Benjamin Wheatly, Eſq; or order, eight guineas for your humble ſervant, John Pierce, London, Auguſt 23, 1736. At the trial it was objected, and agreed to by the court, firſt, That this was not a bill of exchange within the cuſtom of merchants, nor could be taken advantage of as ſuch, either by way of ſet-off, or by any action brought upon it; nor would it be any ſort of evidence of money lent; there being no conſideration, either appearing on the note, or offered to be proved, and it is nothing more than a bare power or authority to receive ſo much to the plaintiff's uſe. Secondly, That if it had amounted to a bill of exchange, yet the laches of the defendant, in not demanding the money, and giving notice in caſe of non-payment for ſo long a time, would effectually diſcharge the plaintiff; and accordingly the plaintiff had a verdict, at the ſittings in C. B. at Weſtminſter, before Lord Chief Juſtice Willes, after Trinity term 1742. Pierce v. Wheatly. Vin. Abr. tit. Bills of Exchange (A) 20.

2. Of foreign and inland bills.

The cuſtom of merchants, in relation to foreign bills of exchange, ſeems to have prevailed time out of mind; and was at firſt introduced for the expedition of trade and its ſafety, and to prevent the exportation of money out of the realm; and, therefore, hath been always countenanced and encouraged as a matter of great eaſe and advantage to trade, and is now become part of the law of the land; and as bills of exchange are eſtabliſhed merely by the cuſtom of merchants, and for their benefit, ſo their rules and cuſtoms are allowed to preſcribe their form and ſeveral properties, as to their creating engagements on the parties that are concerned in them. 3 New Abr. Law 602.

By this cuſtom, if a merchant abroad draw a bill on a merchant here, or vice verſa, requeſting him to pay a certain ſum of money, and the drawer ſets his name to it; this amounts to a promiſe to pay, and ſubjects him, though but a collateral engagement, to an action on the non-payment. 1 Rol. Abr. 6. Cro. Jac. 306. Cro. Car. 301.

A writ of error was brought in the Exchequer Chamber upon a judgment in B. R. where the plaintiff declared, in caſe, on the cuſtom of merchants, that if any merchant, or other trading perſon, make and direct any bill of exchange to another, payable to a merchant, or any other trading perſon, and the bill be tendered, and, for want of acceptance, proteſted; in ſuch caſe the drawer, by the cuſtom, is chargeable to pay, &c.—That the defendant at Paris, in France, did draw a bill on his father here in London, payable to the plaintiff, and the ſame was preſented, but refuſed; and he, according to cuſtom, proteſted the bill, whereby the defendant became chargeable, and, in conſideration of the premiſſes, did aſſume, &c. To this the defendant pleaded, that he was a gentleman, the ſon and heir of Dr. Thomas Witherley, and at the time of drawing the bill was a traveller, and at Paris; and that he was no merchant, nor trader, nor did ever deal as ſuch; and he was then at Paris as a gentleman and traveller, as aforeſaid, abſque hoc, and denies that he is, or ever was a merchant, &c. The plaintiff demurs to the defendant's plea; and ſhews for cauſe, that it amounts to the general iſſue, is double and uncertain, &c.

Holt C. J. It is not every plea that amounts to the general iſſue that is ill; and the cuſtom is the foundation, and the plea is an anſwer to that, and therefore enough: but this drawing a bill muſt ſurely make him a trader for that purpoſe: for we all have bills directed to us, and payable to us, which muſt be all voidable, if the negotiating a bill will not oblige the drawer of it. The judgment for the defendant was reverſed. Holt's Rep. 113. 2 Ven. 292, 295. Sarsfield v. Witherley, 1 W. & M. 1 Show. 125. Comb. 45.

Carth. 82. S. C. ſays it was agreed by all that the judgment ſhould be reverſed accordingly; and that this was, upon conſideration had of the inconveniencies which might enſue, and the ſuſpicion which might increaſe among foreign merchants upon bills of exchange, if perſons, who took upon themſelves to draw ſuch bills, ſhould not be liable to the payment thereof. See Salk. 125. Hodges and Steward; where it is determined, that the drawing of a bill makes a merchant for that purpoſe.

And if the drawer, or he on whom the bill is drawn, refuſe to accept it, or having accepted it, refuſe to pay it, the payee, or he in whoſe favour it is drawn, may proteſt it, and ſhall recover againſt the drawer, not only the principal ſum, but likewiſe all intereſt, coſts, and damages, by reaſon of the proteſt or refuſal of acceptance, or payment of the money. Cro. Car. 301.

The uſe of the proteſt is this, that it ſignifies to the drawer, that the party on whom he drew his bill was unwilling, not to be found, or inſolvent, and to let him have timely notice of the ſame, and to enable the party to recover againſt the drawer; for, if one draws a bill from France upon a perſon in England, who accepts and fails, fails, or becomes inſolvent at the time of payment, if there be not a proteſt and timely notice ſent to the drawer there, it will be difficult to recover the money. Molloy, book 2. cap. 10. ſ. 31.

A proteſt is no more but to ſubject the drawer to anſwer in caſe of non-acceptance or non-payment; nor does the ſame diſcharge the party acceptor if once accepted; for the payee, or perſon to whom payable, hath now two remedies, one againſt the drawer, and the other againſt the acceptor. Molloy, book 2. cap. 10. ſ. 17.—A proteſt on a foreign bill is part of the cuſtom; per Holt. Ld. Raym. 993. Borough and Perkins. S. C. in Salk. 131. where it is ſaid to be part of its conſtitution.

In caſe of foreign bills of exchange, the cuſtom is, that three days are allowed for payment of them; and if they are not paid upon the laſt of the ſaid three days, the party ought immediately to proteſt the bill, and return it, and by this means the drawer will be charged; but if he does not proteſt it the laſt of the three days, which are called the days of grace, there, although he upon whom the bill is drawn fails, the drawer will not be chargeable; for it ſhall be reckoned his folly that he did not proteſt: but if it happens that the laſt of the three days is a Sunday, or great holiday, as Chriſtmas-day, &c. upon which no money uſed to be paid, there the party ought to demand the money upon the ſecond day; and if it is not paid, he ought to proteſt the bill the ſaid ſecond day; otherwiſe it will be at his own peril, for the drawer will not be chargeable. Merchants in evidence at a trial at Guildhall, Trin. 7. W. 3. before Holt Chief Juſtice, ſwore the cuſtom of merchants to be ſuch, which was approved by Holt Chief Juſtice. Ld. Raym. 743. Taſſel v. Lewis.

But though the cuſtom of merchants, in relation to bills of exchange, be eſtabliſhed by the Common law, and ſuch bills being ſecurities for money, are of great credit among them; yet they are not allowed to be ſecurities of as high a nature as bonds or ſpecialties; and therefore it hath been adjudged, that a bill of exchange is within the ſtatute of limitations, and muſt be ſued for within ſix years after it becomes payable. 3 New Abr. 602. Carth. 3. Renew v. Axton.

So, if a merchant in London draw a bill of exchange on his correſpondent in Newcaſtle, in favour of J. S. and the bill is refuſed, and J. S. dies inteſtate, his adminiſtrator, on letters of adminiſtration taken out in Durham, cannot bring an action on the cuſtom of merchants againſt the drawer, and lay the ſame in London; for that a bill of exchange is not equal to a bond or ſpecialty, (which are the deceaſed's goods where they happen to be at his death) but is a ſimple contract, which follows the perſon of the debtor, and makes bona notabilia where the debtor reſides; and therefore adminiſtration ought to have been taken out in London. 3 New Abr. 603. Carth. 373. Yeoman v. Bradſhaw. Comb. 392. S. C.

Alſo this cuſtom ſhall not prevail againſt the privilege of infants, ſo as to bind them; and accordingly it hath been adjudged, that if an infant draw a bill of exchange, infancy is a good plea in bar to an action brought againſt him. 3 New Abr. 603. Carth. 160. Williams v. Harriſon.

Bills of exchange are uſually drawn payable on ſight, ſo many days after date, or at ſingle, double, or treble uſance; and it is frequent to draw two or three for the ſame ſum, and of the ſame date, for fear of loſs or miſcarriage, which carry a condition with them that only one ſhall be paid. 3 New Abr. 603. Molloy, b. 2. cap. 10. ſ. 10.

Inland bills of exchange are thoſe drawn by one merchant reſiding in one part of the kingdom on another reſiding in ſome city or town within the ſame kingdom; and theſe alſo being found uſeful to trade and commerce have been eſtabliſhed on the ſame foot with foreign bills; but at Common law they differ from them in this, that there was no cuſtom of proteſting them, ſo as to ſubject the drawer to intereſt and damages in caſe of non-payment, as there was on foreign bills. 3 New Abr. 603. 1 Salk. 131. Borough v. Perkins.

To remedy this inconveniency, by the 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 17. reciting, That great damages and other inconveniencies do frequently happen in the courſe of trade and commerce by reaſon of delays of payment, and other neglects on inland bills of exchange, it is enacted, "That all and every bill or bills of exchange drawn in, or dated at and from any trading city or town, or any other place in the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, of the ſum of 5*l.* or upwards, upon any perſon or perſons of or in London, or any other trading city or town, or any other place (in which ſaid bill or bills of exchange ſhall be acknowledged and expreſſed the ſaid value to be received) and is and ſhall be drawn payable at a certain number of days, weeks, or months after date thereof; that from and after preſentation and acceptance of the ſaid bill or bills of exchange (which acceptance ſhall be by the under writing the ſame under the party's hand ſo accepting) and after the expiration of three days after the ſaid bill or bills ſhall become due, the party to whom the ſaid bill or bills are made payable, his ſervant, agent, or aſſigns may and ſhall cauſe the ſaid bill or bills to be proteſted by a notary public, and in default of ſuch notary public by any other ſubſtantial perſon of the city, town, or place, in the preſence of two or more credible witneſſes; refuſal or neglect being firſt made of due payment of the ſame; which proteſt ſhall be made and written under a fair written copy of the ſaid bill of exchange, in the words following. Know all men that I A. B. on the day of at the uſual place of abode of the ſaid have demanded payment of the bill, of which the above is the copy, which the ſaid did not pay; whereof I the ſaid do hereby proteſt the ſaid bill. Dated at this day of; which proteſt ſo made as aforeſaid ſhall, within fourteen days after making thereof, be ſent, or otherwiſe due notice ſhall be given thereof to the party from whom the ſaid bill or bills were received, who is, upon producing ſuch proteſt, to repay the ſaid bill or bills, together with all intereſt and charges from the day ſuch bill or bills were proteſted, for which proteſt ſhall be paid a ſum not exceeding the ſum of ſixpence; and in default or neglect of ſuch proteſt made and ſent, or due notice given within the days before limited, the perſon ſo failing or neglecting thereof is and ſhall be liable to all coſt, damages, and intereſt, which do and ſhall accrue thereby.

"Provided, nevertheleſs, that in caſe ſuch inland bill or bills of exchange ſhall happen to be loſt or miſcarried within the time before limited for payment of the ſame, then the drawer of the ſaid bill or bills is and ſhall be obliged to give another bill or bills of the ſame tenor with thoſe firſt given; the perſon or perſons to whom they are and ſhall be ſo delivered giving ſecurity, if demanded, to the ſaid drawer to indemnify him againſt all perſons whatſoever, in caſe the ſaid bill or bills of exchange, ſo alledged to be loſt or miſcarried, ſhall be found again."

But this ſtatute was defective, becauſe it could not operate, unleſs the party, on whom the bill was drawn, accepted it by under writing the ſame, which few or none cared to do. 3 New Abr. 604.

To remedy which inconveniency, by 3 & 4 Anne, cap. 9. it is enacted, "That in caſe, upon preſenting any ſuch bill or bills of exchange, the party or parties on whom the ſame ſhall be drawn, ſhall refuſe to accept the ſame by under writing the ſame as aforeſaid, the party to whom the ſaid bill or bills are made payable, his ſervant, agent, or aſſigns may and ſhall cauſe the ſaid bill or bills to be proteſted for non-acceptance, as in caſe of foreign bills of exchange; any thing in the ſaid act, or any other law to the contrary notwithſtanding; for which proteſt there ſhall be paid two ſhillings and no more.

"Provided, that no acceptance of any ſuch inland bill of exchange ſhall be ſufficient to charge any perſon whatſoever, unleſs the ſame be under written, or indorſed in writing thereupon; and if ſuch bill be not accepted by ſuch under writing or indorſement in writing, no laſt but two) which was payable out of a particular fund, and in both caſes held to be as no bill of exchange. Sed per curiam, The quarterly half-pay is a certain fund, which the growing ſubſiſtence was not: the mention of the half-pay is only by way of direction how he ſhall reimburſe himſelf, but the money is ſtill to be advanced on the credit of the perſon. The reaſon it was held no bill of exchange in Jenny v. Herle was, becauſe it was no more than a private order to a man's ſervant. Judgment affirmed. Strang. 762. 13 Geo. 1. Macleod v. Snee & al'. Ld. Raym. 1481.

The plaintiff declared upon the cuſtom of merchants againſt the defendants as acceptors of a bill of exchange, and the inſtrument run in theſe words.

Meſſrs. Gilly and Co.

Pray pay Mr. Richard Banbury one month after date two hundred pounds on account of freight of the Veale Galley, Edward Champion, and this order ſhall be your ſufficient diſcharge for the ſame.

J. Gibſon.

Accepted for Leſſet and Gilly at Leghorn, to pay as remitted from thence at uſance.

March 18, 1748. H. Gilly.

And two objections were made by the defendants: 1ſt, That this was not a bill of exchange; for it is not payable to order, ſo as to be negotiable: it is not to be for valued received: and it is only an order upon a particular fund, like the caſe of Jenny v. Herle; and ſeveral merchants proved, that they did not look upon it to be a bill of exchange; and others were of a contrary opinion.

The chief juſtice ruled it to be a bill of exchange. He ſaid it was not in the power of the parties to make what form they pleaſe paſs for ſuch a bill; it ought to be agreeable to the Lex Mercatoria: the privilege ariſes from the convenience to trade, which is not conſulted in this caſe. And he thought it bad upon the objection of the fund out of which it was to be paid: however, being a mercantile tranſaction, he left it to the ſpecial jury of merchants, who found it to be no bill of exchange on the objection for want of value received.

The ſecond objection was, that the plaintiff (ſuppoſing it a bill of exchange) had not ſhewn there was any remittance to the defendants; and that this was not an abſolute acceptance, but only conditional: and ſo the chief juſtice declared he underſtood it, and left it to the jury. But they, finding for the defendants upon the firſt point, gave no opinion as to this. Stran. 1211. 17 Geo. 2. Banbury v. Liſſet and Gilly.

In caſe for money had and received to the plaintiff's uſe, the defendant pleaded non aſſumpſit, and gave notice to ſet-off the following bill of exchange, directed to J. S. Sir, at ſix weeks after date pay to Benjamin Wheatly, Eſq; or order, eight guineas for your humble ſervant, John Pierce, London, Auguſt 23, 1736. At the trial it was objected, and agreed to by the court, firſt, That this was not a bill of exchange within the cuſtom of merchants, nor could be taken advantage of as ſuch, either by way of ſet-off, or by any action brought upon it; nor would it be any ſort of evidence of money lent; there being no conſideration, either appearing on the note, or offered to be proved, and it is nothing more than a bare power or authority to receive ſo much to the plaintiff's uſe. Secondly, That if it had amounted to a bill of exchange, yet the laches of the defendant, in not demanding the money, and giving notice in caſe of non-payment for ſo long a time, would effectually diſcharge the plaintiff; and accordingly the plaintiff had a verdict, at the ſittings in C. B. at Weſtminſter, before Lord Chief Juſtice Willes, after Trinity term 1742. Pierce v. Wheatly. Vin. Abr. tit. Bills of Exchange (A) 20.

2. Of foreign and inland bills.

The cuſtom of merchants, in relation to foreign bills of exchange, ſeems to have prevailed time out of mind; and was at firſt introduced for the expedition of trade and its ſafety, and to prevent the exportation of money out of the realm; and, therefore, hath been always countenanced and encouraged as a matter of great eaſe and advantage to trade, and is now become part of the law of the land; and as bills of exchange are eſtabliſhed merely by the cuſtom of merchants, and for their benefit, ſo their rules and cuſtoms are allowed to preſcribe their form and ſeveral properties, as to their creating engagements on the parties that are concerned in them. 3 New Abr. Law 602.

By this cuſtom, if a merchant abroad draw a bill on a merchant here, or vice verſa, requeſting him to pay a certain ſum of money, and the drawer ſets his name to it; this amounts to a promiſe to pay, and ſubjects him, though but a collateral engagement, to an action on the non-payment. 1 *Rol. "Provided, nevertheleſs, that in caſe ſuch inland bill or bills of exchange ſhall happen to be loſt or miſcarried within the time before limited for payment of the ſame, then the drawer of the ſaid bill or bills is and ſhall be obliged to give another bill or bills of the ſame tenor with thoſe firſt given; the perſon or perſons to whom they are and ſhall be ſo delivered giving ſecurity, if demanded, to the ſaid drawer to indemnify him againſt all perſons whatſoever, in caſe the ſaid bill or bills of exchange, ſo alledged to be loſt or miſcarried, ſhall be found again."

But this ſtatute was defective, becauſe it could not operate, unleſs the party, on whom the bill was drawn, accepted it by under writing the ſame, which few or none cared to do. 3 New Abr. 604.

To remedy which inconveniency, by 3 & 4 Anne, cap. 9. it is enacted, "That in caſe, upon preſenting any ſuch bill or bills of exchange, the party or parties on whom the ſame ſhall be drawn, ſhall refuſe to accept the ſame by under writing the ſame as aforeſaid, the party to whom the ſaid bill or bills are made payable, his ſervant, agent, or aſſigns may and ſhall cauſe the ſaid bill or bills to be proteſted for non-acceptance, as in caſe of foreign bills of exchange; any thing in the ſaid act, or any other law to the contrary notwithſtanding; for which proteſt there ſhall be paid two ſhillings and no more.

"Provided, that no acceptance of any ſuch inland bill of exchange ſhall be ſufficient to charge any perſon whatſoever, unleſs the ſame be under written, or indorſed in writing thereupon; and if ſuch bill be not accepted by ſuch under writing or indorſement in writing, no drawer of any ſuch inland bill ſhall be liable to pay any coſts, damages, or intereſt thereupon, unleſs ſuch proteſt be made for non-acceptance thereof; and within fourteen days after ſuch proteſt the ſame be ſent, or otherwiſe notice thereof be given to the party from whom the bill was received, or left in writing at the place of his or her uſual abode; and if ſuch bill be accepted, and not paid before the expiration of three days after the ſaid bill ſhall become due and payable, then no drawer of ſuch bill ſhall be compellable to pay any coſts, damages, or intereſt thereupon, unleſs a proteſt be made and ſent, or notice thereof be given in manner and form above-mentioned: nevertheleſs, every drawer of ſuch bill ſhall be liable to make payment of coſts, damages, and intereſt upon ſuch inland bill, if any one proteſt be made for non-acceptance, or non-payment thereof, and notice thereof be ſent, given, or left as aforeſaid.

" Provided, that no ſuch proteſt be neceſſary, either for non-acceptance or non-payment of any inland bill of exchange, unleſs the value be acknowledged and expreſſed on ſuch bill to be received; and unleſs ſuch bill be drawn for the payment of 20 l. or upwards, and that the proteſt hereby required for non-acceptance ſhall be made by ſuch perſons as are appointed by the above ſtatute 9 & 10 W. 3.

And it is further enacted by the ſaid ſtat. 3 & 4 Ann. " That if any perſon doth accept any ſuch bill of exchange for and in ſatisfaction of any former debt, or ſum of money formerly due to him, the ſame ſhall be accounted and eſteemed a full and complete payment of ſuch debt; if ſuch perſon accepting of any ſuch bill for his debt doth not take his due courſe to obtain payment thereof, by endeavouring to get the ſame accepted and paid, and make his proteſt as aforeſaid, either for non-acceptance or for non-payment thereof.

" Provided that nothing herein contained ſhall extend to diſcharge any remedy that any perſon may have againſt the drawer, acceptor, or indorſer of ſuch bill."

A writ of error was brought on a judgment by nil dicit, in an action againſt the drawer of an inland bill of exchange, and it was objected, that ſince the act of 9 W. 3. no damage ſhall be recovered againſt the drawer upon a bill of exchange without a proteſt, and therefore the action lies not, there being no proteſt.

But by Holt C. J. the ſtatute never intended to deſtroy the action for want of a proteſt, but only to deprive the party of recovering intereſt and coſt upon an inland bill againſt the drawer, without notice of non-payment by proteſt: for before the ſtatute there was this difference between foreign and inland bills of exchange; if a bill was foreign, one could not reſort to the drawer for non-acceptance or non-payment without a proteſt, and reaſonable notice thereof. But in caſe of an inland bill, there was no occaſion for a proteſt; but if any prejudice happened to the drawer by the non-payment of the drawee, and that for want of notice or non-payment, which he to whom the bill is made ought to give, the drawer was not liable; and the word damages in the ſtatute was meant only of damages that the party is at of being longer out of money by the non-payment of the drawer than the tenor of the bill purported, and not of damages for the original debt: and the proteſt was ordered for the benefit of the drawer; for if any damages accrue to the drawer for want of a proteſt, they ſhall be borne by him to whom the bill is made; and if no damages accrue to him, then there is no harm done him; and a proteſt is only to give a formal notice, that the bill is not accepted, or is accepted and not paid; and if in ſuch caſe the damage amount to the value of the bill, there ſhall be no recovery, but otherwiſe he ought not to loſe his debt; but that ought either to appear by evidence upon non aſſumpſit or by ſpecial pleading; and the act is very obſcurely and doubtfully penned, and we ought not by conſtruction upon ſuch an act to take away a man's right. And the judgment was affirmed per totam curiam. 1 Salk. 131. Ld. Raym. 993.

A. having a bill of exchange payable to him, and he being indebted to B. in a ſum of money, ſends and indorſes this bill to B. Afterward B. brought aſſumpſit againſt A. for the money; and on non aſſumpſit, A. gave in evidence this bill of exchange indorſed, and that it had lain ſo long in B.'s hands after it was payable, and reckoned it as money paid in his hands; but it was diſallowed; for a bill ſhall never go in diſcharge of a precedent debt, except it be part of the contract that it ſhould be ſo. If A. ſells goods to B. and B. is to give a bill in ſatisfaction, B. is diſcharged though the bill is never paid; for the bill is payment: but otherwiſe a bill ſhould never diſcharge a precedent debt or contract; but if part be received, it ſhall be only a diſcharge of the old debt for ſo much. 1 Salk. 124. Clark v. Mundal.

The defendant took up ſeveral goods of the plaintiff, who ſent his ſervant with a bill to him for the money. The defendant orders the ſervant to write him a receipt in full of the bill, which he did, and thereupon he gave him a note upon a third perſon, payable in two months: The maſter ſent ſeveral times to the third perſon to preſent him the note, but could not get ſight of him within the time; the party breaks; and all this appearing in evidence, and that the defendant went to ſea the next day after he gave the note. Now this action was brought againſt the defendant for the money.

Holt, Chief Juſtice: If a man gives a note upon a third perſon in payment, and the other takes it abſolutely as payment; yet if the party giving it knew the third perſon to be breaking, or to be in a failing condition, and the receiver of the note uſes all reaſonable diligence to get payment, but cannot, this is a fraud, and therefore no payment; for the party failed before the money was payable. The chief juſtice directed for the plaintiff. Holt's Rep. 122. Popley v. Aſhley.

3. Of the acceptance, and what ſhall be deemed a good acceptance.

The acceptance of a bill of exchange is the ſubſcribing, ſigning, and making a perſon debtor for the ſum of its contents, by obliging him in his own name to diſcharge it at the time mentioned therein. The acceptance is uſually made by the perſon upon whom the bill is drawn, when it is preſented to him by the bearer. Dict. Tr. and Com. 5. Savary's Dict. tit. Acceptance.

A very ſmall matter will amount to an acceptance; and any words will be ſufficient for that purpoſe which ſhew the party's aſſent or agreement to pay the bill; as if, upon the tender thereof to him, he ſubſcribes, Accepted, or Accepted by me A. B. or, I accept the bill, and will pay it according to the contents; theſe clearly amount to an acceptance. Molloy, book 2. cap. 10. ſ. 15.

If the party underwrites the bill, Preſented ſuch a day, or only the day of the month, this is ſuch an acknowledgment of the bill as amounts to an acceptance. 3 New Abr. 610. Comb. 401.

If the party ſays, Leave your bill with me and I will accept it, or, Call for it to-morrow and it ſhall be accepted; theſe words, according to the cuſtom of merchants, as effectually bind, as if he had actually ſigned or ſubſcribed his name according to uſual manner.

But if a man ſays, Leave your bill with me; I will look over my accounts and books between the drawer and I, and call to-morrow, and accordingly the bill ſhall be accepted; this does not amount to a complete acceptance; for the mention of his books and accounts ſhews plainly that he intended only to accept the bill, in caſe he had effects of the drawer's in his hands. And ſo it was ruled by the Lord Chief Juſtice Hale at Guildhall. Molloy, book 2. cap. 10. ſ. 20.

A foreign bill was drawn on the defendant, being returned for want of acceptance, the defendant ſaid, that if the bill came back again he would pay it; this was ruled a good acceptance. 3 New Abr. 610. cites Mich. 6 Geo. 1. B. R. Carr v. Coleman.

The defendant was ſued as acceptor of a bill of exchange. And upon the evidence it appeared to be a parol acceptance only, which the Chief Juſtice ruled to be ſufficient, that being good at Common law, and the ſtat. 3 & 4 Anne, cap. 9. which requires it to be in writing in order to charge the drawer with damages and coſts, having a proviſo viſo that it ſhall not extend to diſcharge any remedy that any perſon may have againſt the acceptor. Upon this direction the jury found for the plaintiff. But the Chief Juſtice of the Common Pleas having lately ruled it otherwiſe, the court was moved for a new trial; and, in order finally to ſettle this point, it was ordered to be argued: and after argument the court was of opinion, that the direction in the preſent cauſe was right and agreeable to conſtant practice. Stran. 1000. 8 Geo. 2. Lumley v. Palmer.

The bill was for ſatisfaction of a bill of exchange drawn upon the defendant and accepted by him. Pending the ſuit, the original defendant died, and it was revived againſt his executors, praying alſo a diſcovery of aſſets, and to be ſatisfied thereout. On the proofs ſome queſtion was made, whether the acceptance was ſufficient to charge the defendant, and whether the plaintiff, by keeping the note about ten years after it became due, without coming to the drawee for the money, had not diſcharged the acceptor? But it was inſiſted for the defendant as a previous matter, that the plaintiff had a plain remedy at law; that his caſe depended upon facts, and ought to be tried by a jury, and not to be determined in this court.

Hardwicke Lord Chancellor: Regularly the plaintiff ought to purſue his remedy at law, and not in this court: and, if the caſe ſtood as it did at firſt, I ſhould certainly diſmiſs the bill; but the bill of revivor praying a ſatisfaction out of aſſets, and diſcovery of aſſets, it is made a caſe of which the court takes cognizance; and then the prayer of ſatisfaction is an incident that follows it. I have therefore no doubt but that the plaintiff is proper in praying remedy in this court. But with regard to the acceptance, if there were a doubt of it, as to the fact, or whether in law what has been done amounts to an acceptance, it might be ſtill neceſſary to ſend the parties to a trial at law; but I think there is no doubt of either. The teſtator, when the bill was brought to him, received it, entered it in his book according to his courſe of trade, and the entry is proved to have been made under a particular number, and wrote that number under the bill, and returned it. Now it is ſaid to be the cuſtom of merchants, that if a man underwrites any thing to a bill, it amounts to an acceptance. But if there were no more than this in the caſe, I ſhould think it of little avail to charge the defendant; but what determines me is the teſtator's letters; and I think there can be no doubt, but that an acceptance may be by letter, and it has been ſo determined. There was a doubt whether a parol acceptance be good. Lord Chief Juſtice Eyre held it was; Lord Raymond held the contrary; and there was a like caſe came once before me at a Niſi prius, Lumley and Palmer (the preceding caſe) and I had a caſe made of it for the opinion of the court; and it was ſeveral times argued, and at laſt ſolemnly determined, that ſuch acceptance is good; much more therefore an acceptance by letter.

As to the plaintiff's being intitled to intereſt, I think it a clear caſe that he is, tho' no proteſt has been made; for that is neceſſary only to intitle the payee to damages againſt the drawer, and all the damage that can be had in ſuch a caſe is the intereſt.——Decree for the defendant to pay the note with intereſt, at the rate of four per cent. the plaintiff to pay the coſts to the time of the bill of revivor, and after each party to bear their own coſts. Dict. Tr. and Com. 10 Geo. 2. in Chan. Powell and Moliere. Law of Bills, &c. 27.

Caſe upon a bill of exchange againſt acceptor. And it was objected, that the plaintiff ſhould not be admitted to prove the acceptance until he had proved the hand of the drawer. And a difference was taken between this caſe and the caſe of an action againſt the indorſer, who is liable though the bill be not ſigned by the perſon who is ſuppoſed to draw it; becauſe an indorſer is in the nature of a new drawer; whereas an acceptor is not liable, unleſs the bill was fairly ſigned by the drawer. But as to this the Chief Juſtice was of opinion, that the proof of an acceptance was a ſufficient acknowledgment on the part of the acceptor, who muſt be ſuppoſed to know the hand of his own correſpondent: but he ſaid it would not be concluſive evidence; and therefore if the defendant could ſhew the contrary, the reading the bill on behalf of the plaintiff ſhould not preclude him; whereupon the bill was read, and the queſtion came upon the validity of the acceptance. As to which the caſe was this: The bill was drawn from New-England for a ſum of money advanced there to fit out a ſhip that had put in there after having been taken by pirates. The bill was drawn upon the defendant, who was the freighter; and, he living at Whitehaven, the plaintiff applied to a merchant in London, who was his correſpondent, to get him to ſend this bill, and another of 150 l. drawn by the ſame perſon, and on the ſame account; he ſent both bills incloſed to the defendant, who by letter acknowledged the receipt of them, and writes thus: The two bills of exchange which you ſent me, I will pay them in caſe the owners of the Queen Anne do not; and, they living in Dublin, muſt firſt apply to them: I hope to have their anſwer in a week or ten days. I do not expect they will pay them, but I judge it proper to take their anſwer before I do; which I requeſt you will acquaint Mr. Wilkinſon with, and that he may reſt ſatisfied of the payment. In another letter he writes, I have not had an opportunity of ſending the bills you ſent me to the owners of the Queen Anne to Ireland, but will take the firſt opportunity, and ſhall remit to the gentleman concerned, according to my promiſe.

The defendant upon this paid the 150 l. bill; but in this action inſiſted, that it did not amount to any acceptance, being conditional, to pay it in caſe the owners of the Queen Anne did not; and his promiſe to procure it from them was in favour of the plaintiff. But the Chief Juſtice was of opinion, that it was rather in favour of himſelf; and he having undertaken to write to them, it was incumbent on the plaintiff to ſhew an application to them; and as to the acceptance, it was in his opinion a very ſtrong one. The bill was preſented to the defendant; ſays he, This is a good bill, and I will pay it; you need not proteſt it, for it ſhall be paid; I only deſire, that for my convenience you would ſtay till I can write to the owners in Ireland, who I do not expect will do any thing in it: this will be of ſervice to me; and as to you, you ſhall be ſecured, for I promiſe you ſhall have the money at all events.——The bill being payable thirty days after ſight, the jury gave intereſt for thirty days after the date of the firſt letters, which acknowledged the receipt of the bill. Strange 648. Wilkinſon v. Lutwidge.

The defendant accepted a bill of exchange to pay it when the goods conſigned to him, and for which the bill was drawn, were ſold. And the plaintiff declared upon the cuſtom of merchants; after a verdict for the plaintiff, it was moved in arreſt of judgment, that this acceptance depending on the contingency of the ſale of the goods was not within the cuſtom of merchants, or negotiable. But the court, upon conſideration, held it good; for tho' the plaintiff might have refuſed to take ſuch an acceptance, and have proteſted the bill, yet no body can ſay he might not ſubmit to it. And it will affect trade, if factors are not allowed to uſe this caution, when bills are drawn before they have an opportunity to diſpoſe of the goods. A man who is drawn upon to pay at ten days ſight, may accept for thirty; though the other might proteſt the bill. Stran. 1152. Smith v. Abbot.

It is held, that an acceptance may be qualified, as thus: I accept this bill, half to be paid in money, and half bills. And this is good by the cuſtom of merchants; for he who may refuſe the bill totally may accept it in part; but he to whom the bill is due may refuſe acceptance, and proteſt it ſo as to charge the drawer. Alſo it is ſaid, that after ſuch an acceptance, and refuſal of payment, he hath the liberty of charging the drawer, that he had in caſe the bill had been accepted abſolutely, and payment refuſed. 3 New Abr. 611. Cumb. 452. Petit v. Benſon.

The plaintiff declared on a bill of exchange drawn by J. S. on the defendant, dated the 25th of March 1696, payable a month after ſight, and that afterwards, to wit, the 27th of April 1697, he ſhewed it to the defendant, and he promiſed to pay it ſecundum tenorem billæ prædictæ. After verdict for the plaintiff, on non aſſumpſit, it was moved in arreſt of judgment, that this manner of declaring claring was abſurd, it being impoſſible to pay ſecundam tenorem billæ at the time of the promiſe. Et per Cur. Where the time of payment is paſt at the acceptance of the bill, the acceptance can be only to pay the money, and if he was ſo abſurd as to promiſe to pay the money ſecundum tenorem billæ, yet that is no more now, than a promiſe to pay the money generally. But it is better to declare, in ſuch a caſe, on a general promiſe to pay the money. 1 Salk. 127. Jackſon v. Pigot.

In aſſumpſit the plaintiff declared upon a bill of exchange, drawn the 28th of October at double uſance for 700 ducats payable at Amſterdam, which the defendant accepted the 31ſt of December following, per quod devenit onerabilis to pay the bill, & in conſideratione inde, the ſame day and year he aſſumed to pay it ſecundum tenorem & formam billæ prædictæ. Upon non aſſumpſit pleaded verdict for the plaintiff. Sir Bartholomew Shower moved in arreſt of judgment, that the time of payment of the bill being expired at the time of the acceptance, it was impoſſible that the defendant ſhould aſſume to pay it ſecundum tenorem billæ, for that was out of his power. And though this acceptance was within the three days of grace, viz. the laſt day, within which time payment is good, and no proteſt for want of payment can be made until the ſaid days are elapſed, yet it is a breach not to have paid the money within the uſance; and the plaintiff has no need to ſay in his declaration upon a bill of exchange, that he did not pay it within the days of grace; but if the fact was that it was then paid, it ought to be ſhewn of the other ſide. So that here the time of payment was elapſed at the time of acceptance; and therefore it was impoſſible to accept it then to be paid ſecundum tenorem billæ. And this objection is the ſtronger in reſpect to the diſtance of the place; for admitting that payment within any of the three days of grace would be according to the tenor of the bill, yet when the acceptance here was upon the laſt of the ſaid days, it was impoſſible to pay the money to the plaintiff the ſame day at Amſterdam. 2. The acceptance here is not good, becauſe no houſe is mentioned where the bill ſhould be paid. Mr. Hall for the plaintiff cited the caſe of Jackſon and Pigot, as a caſe adjudged in point. And Mr. Northey for the plaintiff ſaid, that there might be ſome difficulty if the action had been brought againſt the firſt drawer; but none where the defendant is chargeable by his own acceptance; for a man may tender a bill to be accepted after the time of payment is expired, to oblige the acceptor if he will accept it, but not to affect the drawer.

Holt Chief Juſtice: There muſt be ſuch acceptance as will bind the acceptor, and that is ſufficient. As if a bill of exchange be payable at London, and the perſon upon whom it is drawn accepts it, but names no houſe where he will pay it; the party that has the bill is not bound to be ſatisfied with this acceptance, but nevertheleſs, if he will be content with it, it will bind the acceptor: ſo if A. draws a bill upon B. who refuſes to accept it; and C. rather than it ſhall be proteſted, accepts it for the honour of A. this acceptance will bind C. So if a man offer to B. a bill of exchange payable in Amſterdam, and B. refuſes to accept it unleſs ſome merchant in London will ſign it; if the merchant ſigns, he becomes acceptor for the honour of the drawer. Acceptance after the day of payment is common, and there is no inconvenience in it. And Holt Chief Juſtice ſaid, that he remembered a caſe where an action was brought upon a bill of exchange, and the plaintiff declared upon the bill, where it was negotiated after the day of payment; and a queſtion was made, whether the plaintiff could declare upon the bill, or whether he ought to bring indebitatus aſſumpſit? And he ſaid, that he had all the eminent merchants in London with him at his chambers at Serjeants Inn, in the long vacation about two years ago, and they all held it to be very common, and a very good practice. And as to the matter of the ſecundum formam, &c. it is the payment of the money that is the ſubſtance of the promiſe; and ſo it was held in the caſe of Jackſon and Pigot; judgment for the plaintiff. Ld. Raymond. 1 W. 3. Mutford v. Walcot.

In caſe on a bill of exchange the plaintiff ſets forth, that there is a cuſtom, that if any merchant in London draws his bill or bills upon any merchant in Rotterdam, payable to any merchant or order, and if the merchant there accept any ſuch bill, and before the acceptance or after, the merchant to whoſe order the money is directed to be paid, doth indorſe it to any other merchant, and that other merchant doth indorſe it to ſome other, and the merchant to whom the bill is directed accepts it after ſuch indorſement, and fails in payment to the merchant to whom indorſed at the time limited, whereby the bill becomes proteſted, and notice thereof is given to the drawer; that, in ſuch caſes, the drawer becomes liable to pay the ſame with damage to the indorſer. That the defendant drew a bill of exchange, November 19, 1688, on Edward Williams, payable in two months and a half, to the order of one Hartopp, for 300 l. value of him; and Hartopp the ſame day indorſed it to Marques, and Marques indorſed it to the plaintiff: that the plaintiff afterwards, viz. February 8, 1689, gave notice to Williams, and he then accepted the bill: that Williams failed to pay it, and, by reaſon thereof, the ſaid 8th of February the bill was proteſted; of which proteſt the defendant had notice the 28th of April, and did not pay it.

The defendant demurred generally to the declaration, the bill not being accepted till after the day of payment was expired; and it was inſiſted, that the proteſt ſhould have been for non-acceptance within the time, and failure of payment at the time.

By Holt Ch. J. the law of merchants made him liable who was the drawer of the bill, though the acceptance were after the day; for it need not be tendered within the time. Now by that law the drawer is chargeable by the value received; and though the money were not paid, or the bill preſented within the time mentioned, yet it ought ſtill to be paid; and if the party do not tender and proteſt at the day, and the perſon upon whom the bill is drawn fails in the mean time, he loſes his money; otherwiſe, if there be no particular damage. Judgment was given for the plaintiff. Holt's Rep. 114. 3 W. & M. Megadara v. Holt.

A bill once accepted cannot be revoked by the party that accepted it, though immediately after, and before the bill becomes due, he hath advice that the drawer is broke.

If a bill is not accepted to be paid at the exact time, it muſt be proteſted; but if accepted for a longer time, the party to whom the bill is made payable muſt proteſt the ſame for want of acceptance according to the tenor; yet he may take the acceptance offered notwithſtanding. Nor can the party, if he once ſubſcribes the bill for a longer time, revoke the ſame, or blot out his name, although it is not according to the tenor of the bill; for by his acceptance he hath made himſelf debtor, and owns the draught made by his friend upon him, whoſe right another man cannot give away, and therefore cannot refuſe or diſcharge the acceptance.

Note; This caſe will admit of two proteſts, perhaps three.

1. One proteſt muſt be made for not accepting according to the time.

2. For that the money, being demanded according to the time mentioned in the bill, was not paid.

3. If the money is not paid according to the time that the acceptor ſubſcribed or accepted.

A bill was drawn the firſt of January; the perſon upon whom the bill was drawn accepts it to be paid the firſt of March; the ſervant brings back the bill. The maſter perceiving this enlarged acceptance, ſtrikes out the firſt of March, and puts in the firſt of January, and then ſends the bill to be paid. The acceptor then refuſes; whereupon the perſon to whom the monies were to be paid ſtrikes out the firſt of January, and put in the firſt of March again. On an action brought on this bill, the queſtion was, whether theſe alterations did not deſtroy the bill? and ruled they did not. Per L. Ch. Ju. Pemberton, Price and Shute. Molloy, b. 2. c. 10. ſect. 28.

A bill may be accepted for part; for that the party upon whom the ſame was drawn, had no more effects in his hands; which being uſually done, there muſt be a proteſt, if not for the whole ſum, yet at leaſt for the reſidue: however, after payment of ſuch part, there muſt be a proteſt for the remainder.

Before the time of payment of the bill, the party may notwithſtanding accept it, and pay it at the time of payment; or any other may accept the bill for the honour of the drawer, and if he pay it in default of the party, yet before payment he is bound to make a proteſt, with a declaration that he hath paid the ſame for the honour of the drawer, whereby to receive his money again. Molloy, b. 2. c. 10. ſect. 21.

Action upon the caſe upon the cuſtom of merchants brought by the perſon to whom a foreign bill of exchange is made payable, againſt the acceptor; and the declaration ſets forth, that one James Collet, being a merchant, reſiding at Chriſtiana in Norway, according to the cuſtom of merchants drew his firſt bill of exchange upon the defendant, requeſting him to pay the plaintiff ſuch firſt bill (his ſecond not being paid) of 127*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.* which bill was afterwards, viz. December 9 1717, ſhewed to the defendant, who accepted to pay 100*l.* part thereof, upon the 8th day of February following; by virtue whereof he became chargeable, & in conſideratione inde eiſdem die & anno ultimo ſupradictis ſuper ſe aſſumpſit, to pay the ſame on the ſaid 8th day of February tunc prox' ſequentem, which he hath not done according to his undertaking. There is likewiſe a count for monies had and received, and an inſimul computaſſent. The defendant as to thoſe two counts pleads non aſſumpſit, and as to the count upon the bills, he pleads, that the ſaid James Collet drew another bill for 100*l.* only, wherein he countermands the payment of the odd 27*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.* by virtue whereof the defendant paid the 100*l.* in ſatisfaction of the firſt bill, and the plaintiff accordingly received it in ſatisfaction. The plaintiff proteſtando that the defendant did not pay it in ſatisfaction, for plea ſaith, that he did not receive it in ſatisfaction. And to this replication defendant demurs; but adjudged, that an acceptance to pay leſs than is mentioned in a bill of exchange, is good for ſo much againſt the acceptor; and therefore judgment for the plaintiff. Stran. 214.

Caſe by the indorſee of a bill of exchange againſt the defendant as acceptor, who on tender of the bill wrote, "Meſſrs. Caſwal and Mount, pay this bill when due for "Thomas Chitty." The bill fell due the 2d day of January 1741; the bankers paid till the 19th at two, and the 21ſt of January, the money was demanded of the defendant. For the defendant it was inſiſted, that the plaintiff had given ſuch a credit to the bankers, as to make it his loſs; and it was compared to the common caſe of a note or draught kept.

For the plaintiff it was ſaid, that there was no limited time, but that of the ſtatute of limitation, to ſue the acceptor; and that the plaintiff cannot come in as a creditor of the goldſmiths; becauſe they had done nothing to make themſelves liable.

The chief juſtice held, that it was the loſs of the plaintiff, who, though he might have refuſed to take ſuch an acceptance, yet had now agreed to it: and it was to all purpoſes in the nature of a draught, which is always conſidered as actual payment, when a reaſonable time to receive it in is elapſed. Stran. 1195. Biſhop and Chitty.

A bill drawn on two muſt regularly have a joint acceptance; but by the cuſtom of England, where there are two joint traders, and one accepts a bill drawn on both for him and partner, it binds both, if it concerns the joint trade; otherwiſe, if it concerns the acceptor only in a diſtinct intereſt and reſpect. Salk. 126. Pinkney v. Hall. Ld. Raym. 175.

If a book-keeper, or ſervant, or other perſon have authority, or uſually tranſacting buſineſs of this nature for the maſter, ſhall accept a bill of exchange, this ſhall bind ſuch maſter. 3 New Abr. Law 611.

The plaintiff was indorſee of a bill of exchange drawn from Scotland upon the defendant, in theſe words, At thirty days ſight pay to J. S. or order, 200l. value received of him, and place the ſame to account of the York-Buildings company per advice from Charles Mildmay. To Mr. Humphrey Biſhop, caſhier of the York-Buildings company, at their houſe in Wincheſter-ſtreet, London. Accepted the 13*th of* June 1732, per H. Biſhop. This bill not being paid, an action was brought againſt the defendant upon his acceptance. And the defendant proved that the letter of advice was addreſſed to the company; and that the bill being brought to their houſe, he was ordered to accept it, which he did in the ſame manner as he had accepted other bills. But Mr. Juſtice Page, who tried the cauſe, directed the jury to find for the plaintiff, which they did accordingly.

And now upon motion for a new trial, the court held that the direction was right; for the bill, upon the face of it, imports to be drawn upon the defendant, and it is accepted by him generally, and not as a ſervant to the company, to whoſe account he had no right to charge it, till actual payment by himſelf. And this being an action by an indorſee, it would be of dangerous conſequence to trade, to admit of evidence ariſing from ſuch extrinſic circumſtances as the letter of advice. And they ſaid, this differed widely from the caſe of a bill addreſſed to the maſter, and underwrote by the ſervant; where undoubtedly the ſervant would not be liable, but his acceptance would be conſidered as the act of the maſter. A bill of exchange is a contract by the cuſtom of merchants, and the whole of that contract muſt appear in writing. Now here is nothing in writing to bind the company, nor can any action be maintained againſt them upon the bill; for the addition of caſhier to the defendant's name is only to denote the perſon with more certainty, and the York-Buildings houſe is only to inform the order, where the drawee is to be found; and the direction, whoſe account to place it to, is for the uſe of the drawee only. And they compared it to the caſe of Carth. 5. 2 Ven. 307, where a bill was drawn payable to Price, for the uſe of Calvert, and held that the legal property was in Price, which is ſtronger than the preſent caſe. They ſaid it might be otherwiſe, if the action had been by J. S. who was privy to the tranſaction, and it had appeared he tendered the bill as a bill on the company. But this plaintiff being a ſtranger, they could not conſider thoſe circumſtances. The plaintiff had judgment. Strange 955. Thomas v. Biſhop.

4. Of the proteſt and indorſement.

A proteſt does not raiſe any debt, but only ſerves to give formal notice that the bill is not accepted, or accepted and not paid; and this by the Common law was, and is ſtill neceſſary on every foreign bill before the drawer can be charged, but it was not required in any inland bill before the ſtat. 9 & 10 W. 3. Nor does the want of it ſince that ſtatute deſtroy the remedy, which the party had before againſt the drawer, for the principal. 3 New Abr. Law 612.

He, to whom a bill is payable, muſt generally reſort to the drawee, and deſire him to accept the bill before there can be a proteſt; but if he be dead, or cannot be found, theſe are good cauſes fot proteſting the bill; alſo, if after acceptance the drawee dies, there is to be a demand of his executors or adminiſtrators, and in default of payment a proteſt; and in caſe the money becomes due before an executor or adminiſtrator can be appointed, yet this delay is ſufficient cauſe to proteſt the bill. 3 New Abr. Law 612.

But if he to whom the bill is to be paid dies, there can be no proteſt before a probate of his will, or adminiſtration granted; for none but his executors or adminiſtrators can give a legal diſcharge or acquittance for the money, and conſequently no other perſon can ſue for or demand the ſame; and though ſecurity be offered to indemnify the drawee againſt the executors, yet he is not obliged to accept thereof; being a matter left entirely to his conſideration, to judge and determine on the ſufficiency of ſuch ſecurity; and in this caſe it is ſaid, that if a public notary proteſt the bill, an action on the caſe lies againſt him. 3 New Abr. Law 612.

If a bill be left with a merchant to accept, which is loſt or miſlaid, he to whom it is payable is to requeſt the merchant to give him a note for the payment, according to the time limited in the bill; otherwiſe there muſt be two proteſts, the one for non-acceptance, and the other for non-payment: and though ſuch note be given, yet if the merchant happens to fail, there muſt be a proteſt for non-payment in order to charge the drawer. 3 New Abr. Law 613.

The proteſt is uſually made by ſome notary publick, and ſuch proteſt is, prima facie, good evidence that the bill was not accepted, or if accepted, that it was not paid, and ſufficient to put the proof on the other ſide. 3 New Abr. Law 613.

A proteſt on a foreign bill of exchange is abſolutely neceſſary to intitle the party to recover againſt the drawer, not only intereſt and coſt, but likewiſe the principal ſum; and for this purpoſe the bill muſt be preſented in a reaſonable time; and in caſe of refuſal of acceptance, or in caſe the drawee cannot be found, it muſt be proteſted in a reaſonable time; and notice of ſuch proteſt, as alſo notice of a proteſt after acceptance and non-payment given to the drawer in a reaſonable time; for though the drawer is bound to the party, to whom the bill is payable, till payment be actually made, yet it is with this condition and proviſo, that proteſt be made in due time, and a lawful and ingenuous diligence uſed for the obtaining payment of the money; and the reaſon hereof is, that the drawer might have had effects, or other means of his, upon whom he drew, to reimburſe himſelf the bill, which ſince, for want of timely notice, he hath remitted or loſt, it were unreaſonable the drawer ſhould ſuffer through his neglect. 3 New Abr. Law 613.

As to inland bills, though a proteſt was not neceſſary at Common law in order to ſue the drawer, and is only now neceſſary by the ſtat. 9 & 10 W. 3. and the 3 & 4 Anne, to intitle the party to intereſt and coſts; yet convenient notice muſt be given by the party to whom the bill is payable, to the drawer, of the drawee's refuſal of payment; and if any damages accrue to the drawer for want of ſuch notice, it muſt be borne by the perſon to whom the bill is payable; but this muſt be left to a jury, who are to determine herein according to the cuſtom of merchants. 3 New Abr. Law 613.

A bill was drawn on Sutor payable in three days; Sutor broke; the perſon to whom it was payable kept the bill by him four years, and then brought aſſumpſit againſt the drawer: and by Treby C. J. when one draws a bill of exchange, he ſubjects himſelf to the payment, if the perſon on whom it is drawn refuſes either to accept or pay: yet that is with this limitation, that if the bill be not paid in convenient time, the perſon to whom it is payable ſhall give the drawer notice thereof; for otherwiſe the law will imply the bill paid, becauſe there is a truſt between the parties; and it may be prejudicial to commerce, if a bill may riſe up to charge the drawer at any diſtance of time; when in the mean time all reckoning and accounts are adjuſted between the drawer and drawee. 1 Salk. 127. Allen v. Dockwra.

The cuſtom of merchants is, that if B. upon whom a bill of exchange is drawn, abſconds before the day of payment, the man to whom it is payable may proteſt it, to have better ſecurity for the payment, and to give notice to the drawer of the abſconding of B. and after time of payment is incurred, then it ought to be proteſted for non-payment, or after it. But no proteſt for non-payment can be before the day whereon it is payable. Proved by merchants at Guildhall, Trin. 6 W. & M. before Treby Chief Juſtice. And the plaintiff was non-ſuited, becauſe he had declared upon a cuſtom, to proteſt for non-payment before the day of payment. Ld. Raym. 742. Anon'.

The uſual cuſtom in this caſe is, that the drawer or indorſor, having received the value, muſt procure an able man, ſome friend of his to underwrite the proteſt, which is common for non acceptance, or for want of better ſecurity, uſing theſe or the like words: I here underwritten do bind myſelf as principal, according to the cuſtom of merchants, for the ſum mentioned in the bill of exchange whereupon this proteſt is made, Dated, &c. Marius 117.

Indorſement is a term known in law, which by the cuſtom of merchants transfers the property of the bill or note to the indorſee; and is uſually made on the back of the bill, and muſt be in writing: but the law hath not appropriated any ſet form of words as neceſſary to this ceremony, and therefore it hath been held, that if a man write on the back of a bill of exchange, This is to be paid to J. S. or The contents of this is to be paid to J. S. and ſets his hand to it, this is a good indorſement. 3 New Abr. Law 609.

Clark having a bill of exchange payable to him or order, puts his name upon it, leaving a vacant ſpace above, and ſends it to J. S. his friend, who got it accepted; but the money not being paid, Clark brought an indebitatus aſſumpſit againſt the acceptor: and it was objected on evidence, that the property was transferred to J. S.

Et per Holt C. J. J. S. had it in his power to act either as ſervant or aſſignee: if he had filled up the blank ſpace, making the bill payable to him, that would have witneſſed his election to have received it as indorſee; but that being omitted, his intention is preſumed to act only as ſervant to Clark, whoſe name he would uſe only in order to write the acquittance over it. 1 Salk. 126. Clark v. Pigot.

A bill of exchange was indorſed in this manner: Pay the contents of this bill unto the order of J. S. who brought his action as indorſee, averring he had made no order to any body to receive the money; and on demurrer it was objected, that J. S. could not maintain an action, becauſe the indorſement was not to him, but to his order: but the court held the action well brought againſt the indorſor; and that among tradeſmen, this form of indorſement is commonly uſed, although it is intended to be made payable to the perſon whoſe order is mentioned, 3 New Abr. Law 609.

It has been adjudged, that a bill of exchange cannot be indorſed for part, ſo as to ſubject the party to ſeveral actions; as if A. having a bill of exchange upon B. indorſes part of it to J. S. J. S. cannot bring an action for his part, although he alledged a cuſtom amongſt merchants for ſuch kind of indorſement; for the contract being intire, and ſubjecting him only to one man's action, no cuſtom can make him liable to two or more actions for the ſame debt. 3 New Abr. Law 610. Carth. 466. Hawkins v. Cardy. 1 Salk. 65. S. C. where it is ſaid, that the plaintiff ſhould have acknowledged ſatisfaction for the reſt. 3 New Abr. Law 610.

If a bill of exchange is made payable to A. who indorſes it to B. who indorſes it to C. which is proteſted for non-payment; B. may bring an action on this bill, notwithſtanding his indorſement. 3 New Abr. Law 608. 1 Show. 163. Deckers v. Harriat.

The money is to be paid to him in whoſe favour the bill is drawn, or to the indorſee, in caſe it be indorſed over, of which indorſement the drawer and acceptor muſt take notice at their peril; alſo if there are ſeveral indorſors and indorſees, the laſt indorſee is intitled to the money. 3 New Abr. Law 608. Carth. 130.

5. Of ſuing the drawer, indorſor, and acceptor.

Every drawer of a bill is liable to the payment thereof, as is every acceptor and indorſor. Alſo if there are ſeveral indorſors of the ſame bill, the laſt indorſee may bring his action againſt the firſt indorſor, or any of them; for the indorſement is, as it were, a new bill, or at leaſt a warranty, as ſome books expreſs it, by the indorſor that the bill ſhall be paid. 3 New Abr. Law 607.

If a bill be drawn upon A. and he accepts it, and afterwards refuſes payment, upon which the bill is proteſted, the perſon to whom it is payable may bring ſeveral actions againſt the acceptor and drawer; for the proteſt is no diſcharge of the acceptor. 3 New Abr. Law 607.

But

But though the drawer, acceptor, and indorſor are all liable, yet the party can have but one ſatisfaction; and until ſuch ſatisfaction is actually had, he may ſue all, or any of them: and accordingly it was adjudged in the Exchequer Chamber, where the caſe was, an indorſee ſued the drawer, and had judgment againſt him, and he alſo brought an action againſt the indorſor, to which the indorſor pleaded the judgment againſt the drawer: but the plea was held ill: for that the judgment was not ſatisfaction, without which the party could not be barred of the remedy which he had againſt the other. 3 New Abr. Law 607. 3 Mod. 86. Skin. 255. Claxton v. Swift. Lut. 878, 882. S. C. ſays the judgment was reverſed, becauſe there was not ſatisfaction; for the court were of opinion, that this caſe differs from the caſe of treſpaſſes, and is rather to be reſembled to two debtors by a joint and ſeveral obligation, becauſe by the cuſtom the firſt drawer of the bill, and every indorſor thereof, is liable to the payment of a ſum certain to the laſt indorſee, though the action be to recover by way of damages.

And not only the drawer, acceptor, and indorſor are liable, but alſo, by the cuſtom of merchants, if one merchant draw a bill which is proteſted, and another hearing thereof declare, that he, for the honour of the drawers will pay the contents, and thereupon ſubſcribes in theſe or like words: I the underwritten do bind myſelf as principal, according to the cuſtom of merchants for the ſum mentioned in the bill of exchange whereupon this proteſt is made, &c. This ſhall as effectually bind him as if he had been the original drawer; and by this the perſon to whom the bill is payable hath his remedy both againſt ſuch perſon as ſurety, and alſo againſt the principal; but the principal or original drawer is liable to him who ſubſcribes for his honour. 3 New Abr. Law 608.

A. draws a bill upon B. who had effects enough in his hands to anſwer the bill, which ſome time after is proteſted, whereupon the bill is indorſed to A. the drawer, who brings an action as indorſee. Per Parker, C. J. at niſi prius, there being effects, the acceptance was not upon the honour of the drawer, and ſo the action is well brought; for when a merchant draws a bill on his correſpondent, who accepts it, this is payment; for it makes him debtor to another perſon, who may bring his action; ſo that this is ſuch a payment as may be ſet off upon a former action, and pleaded in bar of ſuch action: but if there were no effects, the action would not lie; for it would have been an acceptance upon honour only, and the money would be recovered only to be recovered again. Vin. Abr. tit. Bills of Exchange (H. 12) 12 Mod. Trin. 10 Anne, B. R. Loviere v. Lanbray.

A bill was drawn at ſix days ſight, and preſented and accepted the 8th of February, which made it payable the 14th, and the three days of grace brought it to the 17th, which was a Saturday, and the acceptor ſtopt payment on the Tueſday following, before which the bill was tendered. And upon this evidence it was left to the jury, who were of opinion, that the drawer was diſcharged at the end of the three days of grace. Stran. 829. Coleman v. Sayer.

In an action upon an inland bill of exchange brought by the indorſee againſt the drawer, it appeared the bill was payable the 14th of May; that upon promiſe of payment, the indorſee gave the acceptor to the 18th, from thence to the 20th, thence to the 24th, and from thence to the 7th of June, when the acceptor failed. And there being no notice to the drawer, the chief juſtice held it to be the loſs of the indorſee. Stran. 702. Gee v. Brown, 1 Geo. 2.

In caſe upon a bill of exchange, upon the evidence at the trial before Holt Ch. J. at Guildhall, Novem. 23 Mich. 12 W. 3. the caſe was thus: A. drew a bill of exchange upon B. payable to C. at Paris; B. accepted the bill; C. indorſed it payable to D. D. to E. E. to F. F. to G. G. demanded the bill to be paid by B. and upon non-payment G. proteſted it within the time, &c. and then G. brought an action againſt D. and it was well brought, and he recovered. Afterwards D. brought an action againſt B. and though D. produced the bill and the proteſt, yet becauſe he could not produce a receipt for the money paid by him to G. upon the proteſt, as the cuſtom is among merchants, as ſeveral merchants upon their oaths affirmed, he was nonſuited. But Holt Ch. J. ſeemed to be of opinion, that if he had proved payment by him to G. it had been well enough. Lord Raym. 743. Mendez v. Carreroon.

An action was brought by the plaintiff againſt the defendant as indorſor of an inland bill of exchange for 100*l.* drawn at forty days ſight by one Carrick upon one Dodd, in favour of the defendant, who indorſed it to the plaintiff. Dodd accepted the bill, but did not pay it; upon which it was proteſted by the plaintiff. All which was proved to the jury; but it did not appear that the drawer had notice of the non-payment before this action was brought, or that any application was firſt made to him for payment: and this matter being objected by the defendant's counſel, and they inſiſting that for want of ſuch notice or demand, or due diligence uſed for that purpoſe, the plaintiff muſt be nonſuited, the jury gave a verdict for the plaintiff ſubject to the opinion of the court. And as this was a point unſettled, and many contradictory opinions thereon, as appears from the ſeveral preceding caſes, the court took time to conſider of it, and this term unanimouſly were of opinion, that in the preſent caſe it was not neceſſary to demand the money from the drawer, or to uſe any diligence for that purpoſe, or to give him notice of non-payment by the drawee. That a bill of exchange was an order or command given by the drawer on or to the drawee (who has, or is ſuppoſed to have, effects of the drawer in his hands) to pay a ſum of money to a third perſon; that when the bill is accepted, the drawee is become the principal debtor, and the drawer is liable only in default of the drawee; and if due diligence be not uſed to get the money from the acceptor or drawee, and notice of his non-payment given in convenient time to the drawer, the drawer ſhall not be liable; for if it ſhould be otherwiſe, and the perſon upon whom the bill was drawn ſhould become inſolvent, without ſuch due diligence uſed by the payee, or perſon to whom the bill is payable, to demand payment from the drawee, or without his giving the drawer timely notice of the non-payment, then would the drawer unreaſonably ſuffer through the laches of the payee; having no intimation to call in his effects before the drawee become inſolvent.

That when a bill of exchange is indorſed by the perſon to whom it is made payable, it is become a new bill, and the indorſor is in the place of the drawer; and therefore if the indorſee uſes due diligence to get the money from the acceptor, and is refuſed payment, then the indorſor, who has put himſelf in the place of the original drawer, upon notice of ſuch non-payment, is become liable immediately, but not otherwiſe; in like manner, and for the reaſon that the original drawer would have been, in the like caſe, had there been no indorſement: and the indorſee is not obliged to make any demand upon the drawer, or to give him any notice; for he does not truſt the drawer (who may not perhaps be known to him); the indorſor is his debtor, and not barely a warrantor or ſecurity for the payment of the money.

That there was no difference between foreign and inland bills of exchange, except in the degree of the conveniency; and as to foreign bills, this matter has been determined before in Strange 441. The reaſon of the judgment there given was for the inconveniencies that would enſue to commerce in general, from the diſcredit it would bring upon bills of exchange to be thus clogged with a neceſſity of giving ſuch notice, and making a demand on the original drawer. Now every inconvenience attending a foreign bill holds to a great degree, though not equally in reſpect to an inland bill, if a perſon ſhould be obliged perhaps in ſeveral remote parts of the kingdom to enquire after, and find out the drawer; and therefore in this caſe it was not neceſſary to prove any enquiry after, or demand upon, the original drawer, or any notice of the non-payment to him.

That what gave riſe to the ſeeming contrariety of opinions upon this point is the confuſed manner in which caſes upon inland bills of exchange and promiſſory notes are reported and bleaded together. There is a ſtrong reſemblance between a promiſſory note indorſed, and an inland bill of exchange, and the law ſhould be ſettled on the analogy between them.—Whilſt a promiſſory note remains in its original ſtate without indorſement, it bears no reſemblance to an inland bill of exchange; but when it is indorſed to a third perſon the ſimilitude begins; for then the maker of the note is in the ſame ſituation with the drawer or acceptor of the bill of exchange; and the indorſee of either bill or note muſt demand the money from the acceptor of the bill, or maker of the note, before an action can be brought againſt the indorſor; that this was determined with reſpect to the maker of a note in the court of Common Pleas, as cited in Strange 1087; that where Holt ſaid in Oakes's caſe, reported in Ld. Raym. 443, that the indorſee muſt demand or endeavour to demand the money from the maker of the note before he can ſue the indorſor; and added further, The ſame law if the bill was drawn upon any other perſon payable to C. or order; he does not mean that the demand muſt be firſt made on the drawer of the bill of exchange, before the indorſee can ſue the indorſor, but upon the perſon who is in the ſame ſituation with the drawer (or maker) of the promiſſory note, who is the real debtor, and this is the acceptor of the bill of exchange.

That this opinion of Holt, which, thus conſtrued, agreed with the preſent opinion of the court, was miſunderſtood in Salk. 127. (which is manifeſtly a wrong collection from Holt's opinion in Coke's caſe) where it is ſaid, that the indorſee of a bill of exchange muſt, in an action againſt the indorſor, prove that he demanded the money from the drawer, or him upon whom it is drawn, and that he refuſed to pay it, or elſe that he ſought him and could not find him; that there was the ſame miſtake in Mod. 244; and that the confuſed and ſhort notes taken of theſe and other caſes were the true occaſion of all the contrariety of opinions on this point.

And that upon the whole, in an action by the indorſee of an inland bill of exchange againſt the indorſor, he muſt prove a demand, or due diligence uſed to make it, upon the acceptor, or perſon upon whom the bill was drawn: and in an action by the indorſee of a promiſſory note againſt the indorſor, he muſt prove a demand made, or due diligence uſed to make it, from the maker of the note. In the King's Bench, Michaelmas term, 1758. Heylins and Adamſon.

If the indorſee of a bill accepts but two pence from the acceptor, he can never reſort to the drawer. Ld. Raym. 743. Taſſel and Lee v. Lewis.

A bill of exchange was drawn upon plaintiff at Leghorn, which he accepted: but by the law there, if a bill be accepted and the drawer fails, and the acceptor hath not ſufficient effects of the drawer in his hands at the time of the acceptance, the acceptance becomes void. And this happening to be the plaintiff's caſe, in order to diſcharge himſelf of this acceptance he inſtituted a ſuit at Leghorn, and his acceptance was thereupon vacated by a ſentence in that court. Afterwards the plaintiff returned to England and was ſued here at law upon this bill, and thereupon he exhibited his bill in the court of Chancery for an injunction and relief.

King, Lord Chancellor, was clearly of opinion, that this cauſe was to be determined according to the local laws of the place where the bill was negotiated: and the plaintiff's acceptance of the bill having been vacated, and declared void by a competent juriſdiction, he thought that ſentence was concluſive, and bound the court of Chancery here. And in this caſe a perpetual injunction was granted to enjoin the defendant from ſuing upon this bill. 22d of November 1720. 2 Eq. Abr. 524. Stran. 733. Burrow v. Jemino.

In an action by the indorſee of a bill of exchange againſt the acceptor, it was held not to be neceſſary to prove the hand of the drawer: and the plaintiff reſted on the proof of the acceptance. The defendant offered to prove it a forged bill by calling perſons who were acquainted with the hand of the drawer, and would ſwear they did not believe it to be his hand. But the Chief Juſtice would not admit this, from the danger to negotiable notes, and becauſe a man might with deſign write contrary to his uſual method. And he ſtrongly inclined, that even actual proof of forgery would not excuſe the defendant againſt his own acceptance, which had given the bill a credit with the indorſee. Stran. 946. Jenys v. Fawler.

Upon a caſe made at niſi prius before Pratt, Chief Juſtice, it appeared that the plaintiff had declared on an indorſement made by William Abercrombie, whereby he appointed the payment to be to Louiſa Acheſon or order; and upon producing the bill in evidence, it appeared to be payable to Abercrombie or order; but the indorſement was only in theſe words, "Pray pay the contents to Louiſa Acheſon:" and therefore it was objected, that the indorſement not being to order, did not agree with the plaintiff's declaration; but upon conſideration the whole court were of opinion it was well enough, that being the legal import of the indorſement, and that the plaintiff might upon this have indorſed it over to another, who would be the proper order of the firſt indorſor. Judgment for the plaintiff. Stran. 557. Acheſon v. Fountain.

Huſſey brought aſſumpſit againſt the defendant Jacob, upon his acceptance of a bill of exchange drawn upon him by the Lord Chandos according to the cuſtom of merchants. The defendant Jacob pleaded, that the Lord Chandos played at hazard with the plaintiff Huſſey, and loſt to him at one and the ſame time 150*l.* and that for payment and ſecurity of the ſaid ſum of 150*l.* loſt to the plaintiff, he drew this bill of exchange upon the defendant payable to the plaintiff, which the defendant accepted; and then he pleaded the ſtatute of gaming of 16 Car. 2. cap. 7. by which this bill of exchange, being given for ſecurity of the ſaid ſum gained at play, became void, &c. The plaintiff demurs: and Sir Bartholomew Shower for the plaintiff argued, 1ſt, That this was not within the ſtatute; for though he well agreed, that an action could not be maintained againſt the Lord Chandos himſelf for this money, by reaſon of this ſtatute; yet here a third perſon had made himſelf chargeable by his own collateral engagement, viz. by the acceptance of the bill, which ſeems to be out of the intent of the act; the aſſumpſit of the acceptor being altogether different from that of the drawer; for although the conſideration of the drawer was for money won at play, yet the conſideration of the acceptor was the honour of the drawer, or his effects in the hands of the acceptor: and the defendant has not pleaded, that the acceptance was pro ſolutione et ſecuritate of it. Beſides, that it would be of very ill conſequence to ſuffer the defendant to avoid his own bill and acceptance by this means; for a bill of exchange once accepted by a reſponſible man, is of ſuch credit among traders, that it paſſes as current as ready money, and is negotiated from one to another through all Europe, and exchanged upon valuable conſideration, till it comes back to London. But if the firſt acceptor ſhall be admitted to avoid it by the ſtatute of gaming, this will diminiſh the credit of bills of exchange, and will be a great check to merchandizing. But to this it was anſwered and reſolved by the court, That if a collateral engagement of a third perſon ſhall not be within the intent of the act, the act will be very eaſily evaded, and in effect rendered uſeleſs. And therefore all the court was of opinion, that if a man loſt money at gaming, viz. more than 100*l.* at one time. and he procures J. S. to be bound for the payment of it, or as the principal caſe is, gives a bill of exchange for the payment of it, which is accepted, both theſe ſecurities are void by the ſaid act. But if he who wins, being indebted to the ſtranger, procures him who loſes to bind himſelf to the ſtranger for the payment of the money due by him who wins to the ſtranger, in conſideration of a diſcharge of the money which he hath loſt at gaming, this bond which he makes to the ſtranger is not within the act, becauſe it is made for a juſt debt. So in this principal caſe, if the bill of exchange had been afterwards aſſigned for a valuable conſideration, the honeſty of this aſſignment had purged the original canker, and rendered it good enough. As where a fraudulent conveyance is aſſigned upon valuable conſideration, the fraud is purged. (But Sir Bartholomew Shower Shower ſaid, that it was ſtrange, that the party by his aſſignment could make that good which was void ab initio.) But in this caſe at bar, the money loſt at play is the foundation of the whole, which is ill, and therefore the bill and the acceptance, which are the ſuperſtructure, are ill alſo. Note; This is called an acceptance for the honour of the drawer, when a ſtranger upon whom the bill was not drawn, in reſpect of the drawer, and having no effects of his in his hands, accepts it.

2. It was objected for the plaintiff, that the defendant has not brought himſelf within the ſtatute; for he has not alledged, that the Lord Chandos and the plaintiff played upon tick or credit, according to the words of the act, which is a penal law, and ought to be purſued ſtrictly; for ſuch gaming was not prohibited by the common law. Sed non allocatur; for per curiam, The giving of the bill of exchange makes it evident, that they did not play for ready money, but for credit.

3. It was objected, that the cuſtom, which was the ground of the action, is not anſwered by the plea. Sed non allocatur; for per curiam, It is confeſſed and avoided. It is admitted to be good generally, but not with this ingredient. And by Holt Chief Juſtice, though theſe declarations ſeem to be grounded upon cuſtom, yet this cuſtom is properly the common law. For the acceptance of the bill amounts to a promiſe in law to pay it, and this promiſe is grounded upon the conſideration of trade.

4. It was objected, that the defendant ſhould have pleaded the general iſſue, and given this matter in evidence; for the ſtatute ſays that ſuch contract ſhall be void; then nothing is due to the plaintiff, and conſequently the defendant ſhould have pleaded the general iſſue; for in effect this plea does but amount to it. Sed non allocatur; for per curiam, Where the defendant has ſpecial matter conſiſting not only of bare matter of fact, but intermixed with matter of law, which will avoid the charge or action of the plaintiff, he is not obliged to plead the general iſſue, but may plead it ſpecially; for otherwiſe he ſhould be obliged to commit a point of law to a jury who is ignorant of it, which would be abſurd; therefore in debt upon a bond made by a feme coverte while ſhe was coverte de baron, the defendant may plead the ſpecial matter, or non eſt factum, and give it in evidence. See 3 Cro. 871, 900. 4 Co. 13, 14. Lord Cromwell's caſe, Hob. 127. Poph. 65. Dyer 121. So in this caſe the defendant might have pleaded the general iſſue, and have given this matter in evidence, or he might do as he has done, viz. plead it ſpecially. And therefore judgment was given by the whole court for the defendant.

Note; In this caſe, the caſe of one Roſindale lately adjudged was cited, where the caſe in effect was thus: A. covenanted with B. that the horſe of A. ſhould run with the horſe of B. four heats, for 30 l. each heat; and in covenant brought for the 120 l. having won every heat, the defendant pleaded the ſtatute of gaming: and upon demurrer it was objected, that this was not within the ſtatute; becauſe the running of each heat for 30 l. was a diſtinct and ſingle wager; and then being but for 30 l. the ſtatute did not extend to it, the ſum prohibited by the ſtatute being 100 l. or more. But it was adjudged that it was void for the whole; for it was but one intire and ſingle contract, though the horſes were to run four times, and then the ſum won amounting to 120 l. it was expreſly prohibited by the act. *S. If A. draws a bill of exchange payable to B. for the uſe of C. and B. for a valuable conſideration, indorſes it over to D. D. may bring an action againſt A. the drawer; and he cannot plead that the money was extended in his hands at the ſuit of the King, for a debt due from C. for C. being only ceſtui que truſt, had only an equitable intereſt, and no legal remedy for the money; and B. is only reſponſible in equity to C. for the breach of truſt. 3 New Abr. Law 608. Carth. 5. Skin. 264. 1 Show. 5. S. C. Evans v. Cramlington. Adjudged and affirmed in the Exchequer-Chamber. 2 Vin. 309. S. C. Adjudged, it appearing that the bill was indorſed before any ſeizure or writ of extent iſſued out; and an indorſement on ſuch a bill was good by the cuſtom of merchants.

A. gave B. a bill of exchange for value received; B. aſſigns it to C. for an honeſt debt; C. brings an indebitatus aſſumpſit on this bill againſt A. and had judgment; on which A. brings his bill to be relieved in equity againſt this judgment; becauſe there was really no value received at the giving this bill, and C. would have no prejudice, who might ſtill reſort to B. upon his original debt: it was anſwered, that A. might be relieved againſt B. or any claiming as factor or ſervant of or to the uſe of B. But the Chancellor held, that C. being an honeſt creditor, and coming by this bill fairly for the ſatisfaction of a juſt debt, he would not relieve againſt him; becauſe it would tend to deſtroy trade, which is carried on every where by bills of exchange, and he would not leſſen an honeſt creditor's ſecurity. Comyns 28. Anon'.

In action brought upon a bill of exchange made payable to the order of the plaintiff, the declaration ſet forth, that the defendant by his acceptance became liable to pay the plaintiff ſecundum conſuetudinem mercatorum. Upon this declaration there is a demurrer.

It was argued for the defendant, that the plaintiff had only an authority to indorſe the bill, and then the indorſee might maintain an action; but that the plaintiff was not intitled to receive the money. It was compared to the caſe of a deviſe, that executors ſhall ſell land, where the executors have only an authority to ſell, but no intereſt; and therefore immediately upon ſale, the vendee is in, not from the executors, but under the will.

On the other ſide it was ſaid, that if this was law, multitude of bills of exchange would be overthrown; that by the cuſtom of merchants there is no difference between payable to the order of ſuch a one, and payable to ſuch a one or order; and that the cuſtom is confeſſed by the demurrer; that the ſame ſtrictneſs and nicety are not required in the penning of bills current between merchant and merchant, as in deeds, wills, &c. Court: Even in caſe of land, a grant or deviſe of the profits of land carries the land: order implies property; no difference between having a power to diſpoſe of money, and having the money itſelf. What is an order, but an authority to appoint the payment of it; which the plaintiff here does to himſelf. Judgment for the plaintiff. Lucas 286. ——— v. Ormſton, B. R. 1 Geo. 1.

A. drew a bill of exchange upon B. payable to C. then B. accepts the bill; C. indorſes it to D. now by this indorſement by C. to D. B. is diſcharged of any payment as to C. and if D. indorſes it over to E. then B. is diſcharged of any payment to D. but if D. pays the money to E. then D. by this payment becomes again intitled to receive the money of B. and at ſuch time no other, whether E. or C. is intitled to bring any action againſt B. but D. only. So if C. pays the money to D. then B. is diſcharged, but C. becomes really intitled, and B. is again intitled as to him, but diſcharged againſt D. and E. See Lutw. 885. b. 888. b. 1 Jac. 2. *in Cam. 6. Of the action and remedy on a bill of exchange; and the manner of declaring and pleading thereon.

It ſeems agreed, that againſt the drawer an action of debt, or a general indebitatus aſſumpſit will lie; for he having received the money, the law raiſes a contract, and lays him under an obligation to pay it; but it hath been adjudged, that neither an action of debt, nor an indebitatus aſſumpſit will lie againſt the acceptor of a bill of exchange, and therefore the remedy againſt him muſt be by a ſpecial action on the caſe founded on the cuſtom of merchants; for the acceptance is only a collateral engagement to pay the debt for another, in the ſame manner as a promiſe by a ſtranger to pay, &c. if the creditor will forbear his debt. 3 New Abr. Law 614. Hard. 485. Hill 20 & 21 Car. in the Exchequer, Anon'. But ſeems, ſays Mr. Viner, to be Milton's caſe. S. C. cited by Rainsford J. as Milton's caſe lately adjudged in the Exchequer, and ſays, that tho' Hale Ch. B. ſaid it were well if the law were otherwiſe, yet we all agreed, that a bill of exchange accepted, &c. was indeed a ground for a ſpecial action upon the caſe, but that it did not make a debt; firſt, becauſe the acceptance is only conditional on both ſides. If the money be not received, it returns back upon the drawer, and he remains liable ſtill, and this is only collateral. 2dly, Becauſe onerabilis does not imply debt. 3dly, Becauſe the caſe is primæ impreſſionis, and there is no precedent for it. 1 Mod. 286. Trin. 22 Car. 2. B. R. in the caſe of Brown v. London.

In caſe the plaintiff declared upon the cuſtom of merchants, and that T. S. drew a bill of exchange upon the defendant to pay to the plaintiff, which he accepted, and has not paid, and likewiſe upon an indebitatus, for that the defendant had accepted it; it was inſiſted in arreſt of judgment, that an indebitatus aſſumpſit would not lie, but an action on the caſe only; and of that opinion were Hale and Rainsford, who ſaid it was ſo adjudged in the Exchequer ſince the king's reſtoration; and ſo judgment was ſtayed, hæſitante Twiſden; for he conceived that the cuſtom made it a debt by him that accepted the bill. Vent. 152. Mich. 25 Car. 2. Brown v. London.——Freem. Rep. 14. pl. 13. S. C. accordingly.—2 Lutw. 1594. In the caſe of Bellaſyſe v. Heſter, it was ſaid by Powell J. that an indebitatus aſſumpſit does not lie upon a bill of exchange; and the reporter obſerves, that at this time it was not denied by the other juſtices; and cites the caſe of Brown v. London, wherein judgment in like caſe was arreſted after verdict, as reported by Lev. 298. and ſays it has been adjudged after verdict, that action of debt does not lie upon a bill of exchange, and cites Hard. 485.

But tho' a general indebitatus aſſumpſit will not lie againſt the acceptor of a bill of exchange, yet if A. delivers money to B. to pay over to C. and give C. a bill of exchange drawn upon B. and B. accepts it, C. may have an indebitatus aſſumpſit againſt B. as having received money to his uſe, but muſt not declare only upon the bill of exchange accepted. 3 New Abr. Law 614. 1 Vin. 153. 1 Rol. Abr. 32.

As to the manner of declaring on a bill of exchange, this is ſaid to have varied; the declaration in ſome caſes being general, ſometimes ſpecial, and laid with an expreſs promiſe, and at other times without it: but it ſeems to be now ſettled, that the cuſtom of merchants concerning bills of exchange being part of the common law, of which the judges will take notice ex officio, it is unneceſſary to ſet forth the cuſtom ſpecially in the declaration, and that it is ſufficient to ſay, that ſuch a perſon, according to the uſage and cuſtom of merchants, draw the bill. 3 *New Abr. In caſe upon a bill of exchange againſt the acceptor, it was alledged generally quod acceptavit: and on demurrer to the declaration, exception was taken, that by 3 Annæ, c. 9. the acceptance muſt be in writing, and therefore this ought to be alledged to be ſo. Sed per curiam, Acceptavit is enough, and, if writing is neceſſary, it will be implied. Beſides, the writing required by the ſtatute is only in order to make the drawer liable to damages and coſts. The plaintiff muſt have judgment. Stran. 817. Erſkine v. Muray.

As by the cuſtom of merchants public notaries uſually proteſt bills, it hath been held, that pleading proteſtavit ſeu proteſtari cauſavit, is ſufficient; and that the party may plead proteſtavit, and give in evidence that the notary public did it. 3 New Abr. 613. Cumb. 153.

If the drawee be dead, or cannot be found to accept a bill, theſe are good cauſes of proteſting it; and alledging in pleading, that the party on whom the bill was drawn non fuit inventus, is ſufficient, without ſhewing inquiry was made after him. Carth. 510.

If a bill of exchange be drawn at uſance, it muſt be averred what this uſance is; otherwiſe the court will not take notice of it. 1 Salk. 131. Buckley v. Cambell.

Debt againſt a merchant upon a bill by him payable at the feaſt of the purification called Candlemas-day; and after judgment for the plaintiff, it was moved in arreſt thereof, becauſe payment at Candlemas is not known in our law: but judgment was affirmed; for that amongſt merchants ſuch payment is known to be on the 2d of February; and the judges ought to take notice thereof for the maintenance of traffic. Vin. Abr. tit. Bill of Exchange, &c. (A.) 1 Yelv. 135. Mich. 6 Jac. B. R. Pierſon v. Pounteys. Note; It ſeems by this caſe it is not neceſſary to aver in the declaration that Candlemas-day was the 2d of February.

In an action upon the caſe upon a bill of exchange, the plaintiff in his declaration declared upon a bill of exchange, and that he offered it to the perſon on whom it was drawn, and he refuſed it, per quod the firſt drawer devenit onerabilis per conſuetudinem, &c. And there was an indebitatus aſſumpſit, and a quantum meruit, in the declaration. Judgment by default, and a writ of inquiry of damages given. And now it was moved in arreſt of judgment, that as the matter ſtood upon the firſt count, this action was founded upon a deceit, the bill not being paid according to the warranty, every one who draws a bill warranting the payment thereof; and therefore being in the nature of an action for a deceit, which is a tort, it cannot be joined with an aſſumpſit, which is founded upon a contract; and therefore, for want of laying an expreſs promiſe, it was ill, intire damages being given. Northey ſaid, That the action was founded upon the cuſtom, and that the obligation aroſe by that, and therefore the action is maintainable without ſhewing a promiſe. Cro. Car. 302. A declaration upon a bill of exchange without ſhewing any promiſe; and the bill is ſo. 2. This founds all in contract; for the cuſtom raiſes a promiſe in law, that the drawer will pay the money if the perſon upon whom it was drawn refuſes to pay it. And 2 Cro. 307. ſays, that if a merchant accepts a bill, it has by the cuſtom the force of a promiſe to compel him to pay the money. Holt Chief Juſtice, at the beginning ſeemed to agree with the objection, and ſaid, that he who draws the bill warrants the payment of it, and, if he does not, it is a deceit, and one may have an action upon it; but then they ought not to join it with an action upon a promiſe. That is the caſe of Sir John Dalſton and Johnſon, Mich. 7 W. B. R. Raym. 58. In the time of 2 Cro. they were not arrived at this way of declaring upon bills of exchange. Gould Juſtice cited 1 Sid. 306. that if a man brings aſſumpſit for the arrears of an account, where the action formed is debt, he ought to lay an expreſs promiſe to maintain the action. Holt ſaid, that the notion of promiſes in law was a metaphyſical notion; for the law makes no promiſe but where there is a promiſe in the party. Afterwards in this term judgment was given for the plaintiff, becauſe the drawing of the bill was an actual promiſe. Ld. Raym. 538. Strake v. Cheeſman. S. C. 1 Salk. 128. Carth. 509.

Aſſumpſit for 40 l. the plaintiff declares upon a bill of exchange for 20 l. payable ten days after ſight, and that the bill was ſeen by the defendant, and accepted the 5th of May; and then he ſhews another aſſumpſit for the other 20 l. &c. The defendant craves oyer of the original, and upon that prays, that the writ may abate quoad primam promiſſionem, becauſe the original bears teſte the 15th of May, and the bill was not payable until ten days after ſight; & quoad alteram promiſſionem, he pleads in bar without defence. The plaintiff demurs. It was argued by the defendant's counſel, that if the bill be payable ten days after ſight, the day of ſight ſhall be taken excluſive, as well by reaſon of the word poſt, as becauſe it is always ſo underſtood among merchants. But the court was of opinion, 1ſt, That in real actions the writ may abate in part, but in perſonal actions a writ cannot abate in part: therefore, admitting that the day is excluded here, the writ muſt abate for the whole, or not at all. 2dly, That there is no fraction of a day in this caſe; for the law will never account by minutes or hours to make priorities in a ſingle day, unleſs it be to prevent a great misfortune or inconvenience; as if a bond be made the firſt day of January, and this bond is releaſed the ſame day, the bond may be averred to be made before the releaſe. So if a feme ſole bind herſelf in a bond, and the ſame day marries, one may aver that ſhe married after the bond delivered. In aſſize it appears, that the diſſeiſin was done the ſame day on which the writ was teſted; yet this ſhall not abate the writ, becauſe the aſſize might be purchaſed after the diſſeiſin. 3dly, That if there is a cuſtom among merchants, that the day of the ſight ſhall be excluded, it ought to have been pleaded ſpecially; for it is a ſpecial cuſtom of which the court cannot take notice without pleading. And Powell Juſtice ſaid, that the court would take notice of the lex mercatoria, as that there is no ſurvivorſhip, or of a general cuſtom, as gavel-kind; but that ſuch ſpecial cuſtom as this here ought to be pleaded. As in action upon a bill of exchange, unleſs the plaintiff declares upon a cuſtom to ſupport the action according to the common form, the action will not be maintainable. 4thly, Powell and Nevill, Juſtices, were of opinion, that the day on which the bill was ſhewn be reckoned one of the ten: for according to Clayton's caſe (5 Co. 1. 2 Vin. 308, 310.) and all the books, when the computation is to be made from an act done, the day on which the act was done muſt be included; becauſe ſince there is no fraction in a day, that act relates to the firſt moment of the day in which it was done, and was as it were then done. But when the computation is to be from the day itſelf, and not from an act done, there the day on which the act was done muſt be excluded by the expreſs words of the parties. As if a leaſe be made to commence a die datus, the day is excluded; but if it be a confectione, which is an act done, the day of the making ſhall be included. But Treby Chief Juſtice contra held, that if a bill be payable ten days after ſight, the day of ſight cannot be accounted one of the ten days, but ſhall be excluded. 1. Becauſe it may be ſeen the laſt minute of the day, and that may be intended as reaſonably, as that it was ſeen the firſt minute. 2. The party may have the whole day to view the bill, and that is allowed him by the law. 3. Becauſe the contrary conſtruction ſeems abſurd; for then if a bill be payable one day after ſight, it muſt be paid the ſame day that it is ſeen, which is not the day after the ſight, as the bill requires. As to Clayton's caſe, he admitted that it was good law, but not contrary to his opinion; for if a man makes a leaſe the firſt of January, to have and to hold a confectione for a year; there the day of the making muſt be accounted one, becauſe being a leaſe from the delivery, and to continue but for one year; unleſs the day be included, the leaſe will not determine until the end of the firſt of January the next year, and ſo there will be two firſt days of January in one year. But notwithſtanding his opinion, becauſe his brothers were of a contrary opinion, he ordered that the defendant ſhould anſwer over.

Note; Before this opinion of the court was pronounced, the defendant's counſel offered to take exceptions to the declaration, but the court refuſed to admit them; for per curiam, upon a plea to the writ, the defendant cannot take exceptions to the count before the writ be adjudged good; for then the defendant has time enough to take advantage of the declaration, and before it is needleſs, becauſe if the writ be abated, that will determine the whole. After that it was objected, that the defendant had not made defence; and the queſtion was, if this was matter of form, and ſo aided by the general demurrer. And prima facie the court was of opinion this was matter of ſubſtance; becauſe the defendant is no party to the action without defence. But after having conſulted the judges of the King's Bench, where it has been a long time held matter of form, they agreed that it was aided by the general demurrer; tho' at the ſame time they ſeemed to comply with that opinion, rather than to approve it with their own judgments, to the end that there might be a conformity between the two courts. Ld. Raym. 280. in C. B. 9 W. 3. Bellaſis and Heſter. S. C. Lutw. 1589.

The plaintiff brought an action upon the caſe upon a bill of exchange againſt the defendant, and declared upon the cuſtom of merchants, which he ſhewed to be thus: That if any merchant ſubſcribes a bill, by which he promiſes to pay a ſum of money to another man or his order, and afterwards the perſon to whom the bill was made payable indorſes the ſaid bill for the payment of the whole ſum therein contained, or any part thereof, to another man, the firſt drawer is obliged to pay the ſum ſo indorſed to the perſon to whom it is indorſed payable; and then the plaintiff ſhews, that the defendant Cardy, being a merchant, ſubſcribed a bill of 46*l.* 19*s.* payable to Blackman or his order; that Blackman indorſed 43*l.* 4*s.* of it payable to the plaintiff, &c. the defendant pleaded an inſufficient plea. The plaintiff demurred, and the defendant joined in demurrer; and adjudged per totam curiam, that the declaration is ill: for a man cannot apportion ſuch perſonal contract; becauſe he cannot make a man liable to two actions, where by the contract he is liable but to one. As if A. granted a rent-charge of 20*l.* per annum to B. B. grants 10*l.* to C. C. cannot compel the ter-tenant to attorn. So if lands are conveyed with warranty to A. and B. their heirs and aſſigns, if partition be made, the warranty is extinct. See Hob. 25. but if in the principal caſe plaintiff had acknowledged the receipt of 3*l.* 15*s.* the declaration had been good. And though it was objected by Mr. Northey for the plaintiff, that the plaintiff has made payment of a part to be a part of the cuſtom, and therefore it was well enough by the cuſtom. Holt Chief Juſtice anſwered, that this is not a particular local cuſtom, but the common cuſtom of merchants, of which the law takes notice; and therefore the court cannot take the cuſtom to be ſo. And the whole court were of opinion, that judgment ought to be entered for the defendant. But, upon the importunity of Mr. Northey, leave was given to the plaintiff to diſcontinue upon payment of coſts. Ld. Raym. 360. Hawkins v. Cardy.

7. Of bills loſt, forged, and ſtolen.

A bill of exchange was accepted by the drawee, by underwriting his name; but the perſon to whom it become payable by indorſement loſt or miſlaid it, and the drawee refuſing payment, the indorſee exhibited his bill in Chancery, ſetting forth the refuſal, and that he offered to give ſecurity to the defendant to indemnify him, and annexed an affidavit to the bill of the loſing or miſlaying it. This being confeſſed by the anſwer, it was objected, that it did not appear by the plaintiff's affidavit, that he had not aſſigned the bill to another; but decreed the defendant to pay the money, the plaintiff giving ſecurity to indemnify the defendant, as the maſter ſhall think reaſonable, againſt any perſon that may hereafter demand the ſame. Fin. 301. Ferceaſe v. Gray.

By ſtat. 9 & 10 Will. 3. c. 17. ſect. 3. it is enacted, "That if any inland bill of exchange for 5*l.* or upwards, for value received, drawn payable at a certain number of days, &c. after the date thereof, be loſt, or miſcarry within the time limited for the payment of the ſame, the drawer of the ſaid bills ſhall give other bills of the ſame tenor, ſecurity being given (if demanded) to indemnify him, in caſe the ſaid bills ſo loſt or miſcarried be found again."

By ſtat. 2 Geo. 2. c. 25. ſect. 1. (made perpetual by 9 Geo. 2. c. 9.) it is enacted, "That if any perſon ſhall falſly make, forge, or counterfeit, or cauſe or procure to be falſly made, &c. or willingly act or aſſiſt in the falſe making, &c. any bill of exchange, with intention to defraud any perſon whatſoever, or ſhall utter or publiſh as true any falſe, &c. bill of exchange, with intention to defraud any perſon, knowing the ſame to be falſe, &c. ſuch perſon ſhall be guilty of felony, without benefit of clergy."

Sect. 3. "If any perſon ſhall ſteal or take by robbery any bills of exchange, being the property of any other perſon or perſons, or of any corporation, notwithſtanding they are deemed in law choſes in action, it ſhall be deemed and conſtrued to be felony of the ſame degree, and with or without the benefit of clergy, in the ſame manner as it would have been, if the offender had ſtolen or taken by robbery any other goods of like value with the money due on ſuch bills, or ſecured thereby, and remaining unſatisfied; and ſuch offender ſhall ſuffer ſuch puniſhment puniſhment as he or ſhe ſhould or might have done, if he or ſhe had ſtolen other goods of the like value with the monies due on ſuch bills, or ſecured thereby, and remaining unſatisfied.

8. Of the evidence neceſſary to ſupport the action on a bill of exchange, and the damages recovered for non-payment thereof.

A. gives B. a bill of exchange on C. in payment of a former debt; this will not be allowed as evidence on non aſſumpſit unleſs paid, though B. kept it in his hands long after it was payable; for a bill ſhall never go in payment of a precedent debt, unleſs it be part of the contract that it ſhould be ſo. Salk. 124. pl. 1. coram Holt. Ch. As to notice given by the indorſee to the acceptor before he commences his action, that he muſt provide the money, it was offered in evidence, that he gave him notice by ſending him a letter to do ſo. But the Chief Juſtice ſaid, that he did not think the bare ſending a letter to the poſt-houſe would be ſufficient evidence of notice, without ſome further proofs of the acceptor's receiving it; and beſides he ſaid, that generally a perſonal demand is expected. *Barnard. Since the ſtatute 3 & 4 Annæ, cap. 9. it hath been adjudged, That an indorſee of an inland bill of exchange may maintain an action againſt the acceptor, on a parol acceptance, as to the principal ſum, though not as to intereſt and coſts; for the act being made to give a further remedy for intereſt, damages, and coſts againſt the drawer, cannot be ſuppoſed to take any advantage from the payee which he had before; and therefore the true conſtruction of the act is, that to charge the drawer with intereſt and coſts, the drawee muſt refuſe to accept it in writing; nevertheleſs, if he accepts the bill by parol, he is liable to the principal ſum in the bill, as he would have been before the act. 3 *New Abr. Bill of lading, Is a memorandum ſigned by maſters of ſhips, acknowledging the receipt of the merchants goods, &c. Jacob.

Bill of ſale, Is a ſolemn contract under ſeal, whereby a man paſſes the right or intereſt that he has in goods and chattels; for if a man promiſes or gives any chattels without valuable conſideration, or without delivering poſſeſſion, this alters no property, becauſe it is nudum pactum unde non oritur actio; but if a man ſells goods by deed under ſeal duly executed, this alters the property between the parties, tho' there be no conſideration, or no delivery of poſſeſſion, becauſe a man is eſtopped to deny his own deed, or affirm any thing contrary to the manifeſt ſolemnity of contracting. Yelv. 196. Cro. Jac. 270. 1 Brown 111. 6 Co. 18.

But what is chiefly to be conſidered under this head, is the ſtatute of 13 Eliz. cap. 5. by which it is enacted, "That all fraudulent conveyances of lands, &c. goods and chattels, to avoid the debt or duty of another, ſhall (as againſt the party only, whoſe debt or duty is ſo endeavoured to be avoided) be utterly void, except grants made bona fide, and on a good (which is conſtrued a valuable) conſideration." And by the latter clauſe of that ſtatute it is provided, That all parties to ſuch fraudulent conveyance, who being privy thereunto, ſhall wittingly juſtify the ſame to be done bona fide and on good conſideration, or ſhall alien or aſſign any lands, leaſe, or goods ſo to them conveyed as aforeſaid, ſhall forfeit one year's value of the lands, leaſe, rent, common, or other profit out of the ſame, and the whole value of the goods; and being thereof convicted ſhall ſuffer half a year's impriſonment without bail; the forfeiture to be divided between the Queen and the party grieved.

For the explanation of this ſtatute, it is thought proper to inſert the following caſes.

A. being indebted to B. in 400 l. and to C. in 20 l. C. brings debt againſt him, and hanging the writ, A being poſſeſſed of goods and chattels to the value of 300 l. makes a ſecret conveyance of them all, without exception, to B. in ſatisfaction of his debt; but notwithſtanding continues in poſſeſſion of them, and ſells ſome of them, and others of them, being ſheep, he ſets his mark on; and reſolved that it was a fraudulent gift and ſale within the aforeſaid ſtatute, and ſhall not prevent C. of his execution for his juſt debt; for though ſuch ſale hath one of the qualifications required by the ſtatute, being made to a creditor for his juſt debt, and conſequently on a valuable conſideration, yet it wants the other; for the owner's continuing in poſſeſſion is a fixed and undoubted character of a fraudulent conveyance, becauſe the poſſeſſion is the only indicium of the property of a chattel, and therefore this ſale is not made bona fide. 3 Co. 80. Mo. 638. 2 Bulſt. 226.

Upon

Upon the ſame reaſons the following caſe turns: A. is indebted to five ſeveral perſons in the ſums of 20*l.* each and having goods to the value of 20*l.* makes a gift of them to one of the five, in ſatisfaction of his debt, but upon this ſecret truſt between them, that the grantee, in compaſſion to his circumſtances, ſhould deal favourably with him, in permitting him, or ſome other for him, to uſe and poſſeſs the ſaid goods, paying this creditor as he was able, and could afford it, the ſaid debt of 20*l.* and reſolved to be a fraudulent conveyance and deed of ſale. 3 Co. 81. Mo. 639.

So in that caſe, if A. makes a bill of ſale of all his goods, in conſideration of blood and natural affection, to his ſon, or one of his relations, it is a void conveyance in reſpect of creditors; for the conſiderations of blood, &c. which are made the motives of this gift, are eſteemed in their nature inferior to valuable conſiderations, which are neceſſarily required in ſuch ſales, by 13 Eliz. cap. 5. and this is a conſtruction ſuitable to the ſtricteſt rules of equity; for if conſideration of blood and natural affection were allowed to be of equal dignity with, or to come under the notion of, valuable conſiderations required by this ſtatute, then it would be in the power of any debtor, by ſuch conveyances of his perſonal eſtate to his kindred, to defeat creditors of their juſt debts; moreover, there is a ſtrong preſumption that ſuch ſales to relations are conſtantly attended with a ſecret truſt and perſonal confidence of reconveying part of the goods to the vendor for his ſubſiſtence; ſo that they are intirely inconſiſtent with the ſcheme laid down by the ſtatute; and therefore void and illegal. 2 Rol. Abr. 779. 3 Co. 81, Palm. 214.

A. poſſeſſed of divers goods to the value of 250*l.* by covin to defraud his creditors, made a gift thereof to his daughter, on condition to be void on payment of 20*s.* Adjudged that it was apparently a fraudulent conveyance, and void. Cro. Eliz. 810.

As the owner's continuing in poſſeſſion of his goods after his bill of ſale of them is an undoubted badge of a fraudulent conveyance, becauſe the poſſeſſion is the only indicium of the property of a chattel, which is a thing unfixed and tranſitory; ſo there are other marks and characters of fraud; as a general conveyance of them all without any exception; for it is hardly to be preſumed, that a man will ſtrip himſelf intirely of all his perſonal property, not excepting his bedding and wearing apparel, unleſs there was ſome ſecret correſpondence and good underſtanding ſettled between him and the vendee, for a private occupancy of all or ſome part of the goods for his ſupport; alſo a ſecret manner of tranſacting ſuch bill of ſale, and unuſual clauſes in it; as that it is made honeſtly, truly, and bona fide, are marks of fraud and colluſion; for ſuch an artful and forced dreſs and appearance give a ſuſpicion and jealouſy of ſome defect varniſhed over with it. 3 Co. 81. Mo. 633.

If goods continue in the poſſeſſion of the vendor after a bill of ſale of them, though there is a clauſe in the bill that they ſhall account annually with the vendee for them, yet it is a fraud; ſince if ſuch colouring were admitted, it would be the eaſieſt thing in the world to avoid the proviſions and caution of the aforeſaid act. Mo. 638.

A. by bill of ſale made over his goods to a truſtee, for B. who lived with him as his wife and was ſo reputed, and he alſo purchaſed a leaſe of the houſe wherein he dwelt, in the name of a truſtee, and declared the truſt thereof to himſelf for life, then in truſt for B. during the reſidue of the term; and this bill of ſale was held fraudulent as to creditors; but as to the declaration of the truſt of the term, the court held it good, and not liable to A.'s debts, the term being never in him, and being ſo ſettled at the time it was purchaſed, and A. might have given the money to B. who might have purchaſed it for herſelf, and in her own name. 2 Vern. 490.

If A. makes a bill of ſale to B. a creditor, and afterwards to C. another creditor, and delivers poſſeſſion at the time of the ſale to neither; afterwards C. gets poſſeſſion of them, and B. takes them out of his poſſeſſion, C. cannot maintain treſpaſs, becauſe the firſt bill of ſale is fraudulent againſt creditors, and ſo is the ſecond, yet they both bind A. and B.'s is the elder title, and the naked poſſeſſion of C. ought not to prevail againſt the title of B. that is prior, where both are equally creditors, and poſſeſſion at the time of the bill of ſale is delivered over to neither. Abr. Eq. 148.

Fraud may be given in evidence to defeat a fraudulent and covinous conveyance, and the party that offers it need not plead it; for the acts to prevent fraud are to be conſtrued literally in ſuppreſſion of the miſchief; beſides, it were a hardſhip to force the party to plead a thing that is managed with ſo much ſubtilty, that he cannot attain a competent knowledge of it to plead it in due time. 5 Co. 60.

A man takes a wife, and afterwards marries another, his firſt wife living, and by deed gave part of his goods to his pretended ſecond wife; it ſeems this is a fraudulent gift within 13 Eliz. and by the Common law too, in reſpect of creditors, becauſe made without any valuable conſideration; for the ſecond pretended marriage is ſo far from coming under the notion of a conſideration, that it is a crime puniſhable by law. 2 Leon. 223.

Where there is an abſolute conveyance or gift of a leaſe for years, and the perſon who makes it continues in poſſeſſion after ſuch ſale, the gift is fraudulent, becauſe attended with that diſtinguiſhing character of a fraud; but if the conveyance or ſale be conditional, as that upon payment of ſo much money the leaſe ſhall go to the vendee, there continuance in poſſeſſion after the gift does not make it fraudulent, becauſe the vendee is not to have the leaſe in poſſeſſion till he performs the condition. 2 Bulſt. 226.

A. has a leaſe of certain lands for ſixty years abſolutely, and by indenture reciting this forged leaſe, bargains and ſells it for a valuable conſideration, together with all his intereſt in the land to B. in this caſe B. is not a purchaſer within 27 Eliz. cap. 4. for though there were general words in the ſale to paſs the true intereſt, yet it is plain, that it was never contracted for, or originally included in the bargain; ſo that the bargain being made of an imaginary intereſt, the bargainee can never come under the character of a real purchaſer, to defeat the purchaſer of the true leaſe of ſixty years which A. was really poſſeſſed of. Co. Lit. 3.

Black act. Stat. 9 Geo. 1. c. 22. Whereas ſeveral ill-deſigning and diſorderly perſons have of late aſſociated themſelves under the name of Blacks, and entered into confederacies to ſupport and aſſiſt one another in ſtealing and deſtroying of deer, robbing of warrens and fiſh-ponds, cutting down plantations of trees, and other illegal practices, and have, in great numbers, armed with ſwords, fire-arms, and other offenſive weapons, ſeveral of them with their faces blacked, or in diſguiſed habits, unlawfully hunted in foreſts that belonged to his Majeſty, and in the parks of divers of his Majeſty's ſubjects, and deſtroyed, killed, and carried away the deer, robbed warrens, rivers, and and fiſh-ponds, and cut down plantations of trees, and have likewiſe ſolicited ſeveral of his Majeſty's ſubjects, with promiſes of money, or other rewards, to join with them, and have ſent letters, in fictitious names, to ſeveral perſons, demanding veniſon and money, and threatening ſome great violence, if ſuch their unlawful demands ſhould be refuſed, or if they ſhould be interrupted in, or proſecuted for ſuch their wicked practices, and have actually done great damage to ſeveral perſons, who have either refuſed to comply with ſuch demands, or have endeavoured to bring them to juſtice, to the great terror of his Majeſty's peaceable ſubjects: therefore, if any perſon or perſons, being armed with ſwords, fire-arms, or other offenſive weapons, and having his or their faces blacked, or being otherwiſe diſguiſed, ſhall appear in any foreſt, chaſe or park, paddock or grounds incloſed within any wall, pale, or other fence, wherein any deer have been or ſhall be uſually kept, or in any warren or place where hares or conies have been or ſhall be uſually kept, or in any high road, open heath, common, or down; or ſhall unlawfully and wilfully hunt, wound, kill, deſtroy, or ſteal any red or fallow deer, or unlawfully rob any warren or place where conies or hares are uſually kept; or ſhall unlawfully ſteal or take away any fiſh out of any river or pond; or if any perſon or perſons ſhall unlawfully and willfully, hunt, wound, kill, deſtroy, or ſteal any red or fallow deer, fed or kept in any places, in any of his Majeſty's foreſts or chaſes, which are or ſhall be incloſed with pales, rails, or other fences, or in any park, paddock, or ground incloſed, where deer have been or ſhall be uſually kept; or ſhall unlawfully and maliciouſly break down the head or mound of any fiſh-pond, whereby the fiſh ſhall be loſt or deſtroyed; or ſhall unlawfully and maliciouſly kill, maim, or wound any cattle, or cut down or otherwiſe deſtroy any trees planted in any avenues, or growing in any garden, orchard, or plantation, for ornament, ſhelter, or profit; or ſhall ſet fire to any houſe, barn, or out-houſe, or to any hovel, cock-mow, or ſtack of corn, ſtraw, hay, or wood; or ſhall wilfully and maliciouſly ſhoot at any perſon in any dwelling-houſe, or other place; or ſhall knowingly ſend any letter without any name ſubſcribed thereto, or ſigned with a fictitious name, demanding money, veniſon, or other valuable thing; or ſhall forcibly reſcue any perſon, being lawfully in cuſtody of any officer or other perſon, for any of the offences before-mentioned; or if any perſon or perſons ſhall, by gift, or promiſe of money, or other reward, procure any of his Majeſty's ſubjects to join him or them in any ſuch unlawful act; every perſon ſo offending, being thereof lawfully convicted, ſhall be adjudged guilty of felony, without benefit of clergy.

Sect. 4. And for the more eaſy and ſpeedy bringing the offenders againſt this act to juſtice, if any perſon or perſons ſhall be charged with being guilty of any of the offences aforeſaid, before any two or more of his Majeſty's juſtices of the peace of the county where ſuch offence or offences ſhall be committed, by information of one or more credible perſon or perſons upon oath by him or them to be ſubſcribed, ſuch juſtices before whom ſuch informations ſhall be made as aforeſaid, ſhall forthwith certify under their hands and ſeals, and return ſuch information to one of the principal ſecretaries of ſtate of his Majeſty, his heirs or ſucceſſors, who is hereby required to lay the ſame, as ſoon as conveniently may be, before his Majeſty, his heirs or ſucceſſors, in his or their privy council; whereupon it ſhall and may be lawful for his Majeſty, his heirs or ſucceſſors, to make his or their order in his or their ſaid privy council, thereby requiring and commanding ſuch offender or offenders to ſurrender him or themſelves, within the ſpace of forty days, to any of his Majeſty's juſtices of the court of King's-Bench, or to any one of his Majeſty's juſtices of the peace, to the end that he or they may be forth coming to anſwer the offence or offences wherewith he or they ſhall ſo ſtand charged, according to due courſe of law; which order ſhall be printed and publiſhed in the next London Gazette, and ſhall be forthwith tranſmitted to the ſheriff of the county where the offence ſhall be committed, and ſhall, within ſix days after the receipt thereof, be proclaimed by him or his officers, between the hours of ten in the morning and two in the afternoon, in the market places, upon the reſpective market days, of two market towns in the ſame county, near the place where ſuch offence ſhall have been committed; and a true copy of ſuch order ſhall be affixed upon the ſame public place in ſuch market towns: and in caſe ſuch offender or offenders ſhall not ſurrender him or themſelves purſuant to ſuch order of his Majeſty, his heirs or ſucceſſors, to be made in council as aforeſaid, he or they ſo neglecting or refuſing to ſurrender him or themſelves as aforeſaid, ſhall, from the day appointed for his or their ſurrender as aforeſaid, be adjudged, deemed, and taken to be convicted and attainted of felony, and ſhall ſuffer pains of death, as in caſe of a perſon convicted and attainted by verdict and judgment of felony, without benefit of clergy; and that it ſhall be lawful to and for the court of King's Bench, or the juſtices of oyer and terminer, or general goal-delivery for the county where the offence is ſworn in ſuch information to have been committed, upon producing to them ſuch order in council, under the ſeal of the ſaid council, to award execution againſt ſuch offender and offenders, in ſuch manner as if he or they had been convicted and attainted in the ſaid court of King's Bench, or before ſuch juſtices of oyer and terminer, or general goal-delivery reſpectively.

Sect. 5. And all and every perſon and perſons who ſhall, after the time appointed as aforeſaid for the ſurrender of any perſons or perſon ſo charged upon oath with any the offences aforeſaid be expired, conceal, aid, abet, or ſuccour ſuch perſon or perſons, knowing him or them to have been ſo charged as aforeſaid, and to have been required to ſurrender him or themſelves by ſuch order or orders as aforeſaid, being lawfully convicted thereof, ſhall be guilty of felony, and ſhall ſuffer death as in caſes of felony, without benefit of clergy.

Sect. 6. Provided that nothing herein contained ſhall be conſtrued to prevent or hinder any judge, juſtice of the peace, magiſtrate, officer, or miniſter of juſtice whatſoever from taking, apprehending and ſecuring ſuch offender or offenders againſt whom ſuch information ſhall be given, and for requiring ſuch ſurrender, ſuch order in council ſhall be made as aforeſaid by the ordinary courſe of law; and in caſe ſuch offender or offenders, againſt whom ſuch information, and for requiring whoſe ſurrender ſuch order in council ſhall be made as aforeſaid, ſhall be taken and ſecured, in order to be brought to juſtice before the time ſhall be expired, within which time he or they ſhall be required to ſurrender him or themſelves, by ſuch order in council as aforeſaid, that then in ſuch caſe no further proceedings ſhall be had upon ſuch order made in council againſt him or them ſo taken and ſecured as aforeſaid, but he or they ſhall be brought to trial by the courſe of law.

Sect. 7. And the inhabitants of every hundred within that part of Great Britain called England, ſhall make full ſatisfaction and amends to all and every the perſon and perſons, their executors and adminiſtrators, for the damages they ſhall have ſuſtained or ſuffered by the killing or maiming of any cattle, cutting down or deſtroying any trees, or ſetting fire to any houſe, barn, or out-houſe, hovel, cock-mow, or ſtack of corn, ſtraw, hay, or wood, which ſhall be committed or done by any offender or offenders againſt this act; and that every perſon and perſons, who ſhall ſuſtain damages by any of the offences laſt mentioned, ſhall be, and are hereby enabled to ſue for and recover ſuch his or their damages, the ſum to be recovered not exceeding the ſum of two hundred pounds, againſt the inhabitants of the ſaid hundred, who by this act ſhall be made liable to anſwer all or any part thereof; and that if ſuch perſon or perſons ſhall recover ſuch action, and ſue execution againſt any of ſuch inhabitants, all other the inhabitants of the hundred, who by this act ſhall be made liable to all or any part of the ſaid damage, ſhall be rateably and proportionably taxed, for and towards an equal contribution for the relief of ſuch inhabitant againſt whom ſuch execution ſhall be had and levied; which tax ſhall be made, levied, and raiſed by ſuch ways and means, and in ſuch manner and and form, as is preſcribed and mentioned for the levying and raiſing damages recovered againſt inhabitants of hundreds in caſes of robberies, in and by an act, intituled, An act for the following hue and cry, and in the twenty-ſeventh year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth.

Sect. 8. Provided, that no perſon or perſons ſhall be enabled to recover any damages by virtue of this act, unleſs he or they, by themſelves, or by their ſervants, within two days after ſuch damage or injury done him or them by any ſuch offender or offenders as aforeſaid, ſhall give notice of ſuch offence done and committed unto ſome of the inhabitants of ſome town, village, or hamlet, near unto the place where any ſuch fact ſhall be committed, and ſhall, within four days after ſuch notice, give in his, her, or their examination upon oath of his, her, or their ſervant or ſervants, that had the care of his or their houſes, out-houſes, corn, hay, ſtraw, or wood, before any juſtice of peace of the county, liberty, or diviſion, where ſuch fact ſhall be committed, inhabiting within the ſaid hundred, where the ſaid fact ſhall happen to be committed, or near unto the ſame, whether he or they do know the perſon or perſons that committed ſuch fact, or any of them; and if upon ſuch examination it be confeſſed, that he or they do know the perſon or perſons that committed the ſaid fact, or any of them, that he or they ſo confeſſing ſhall be bound by recognizance to proſecute ſuch offender or offenders by indictment, or otherwiſe, according to the laws of this realm.

Sect. 9. Provided, that where any offence ſhall be committed againſt this act, and any one of the ſaid offenders ſhall be apprehended and lawfully convicted of ſuch offence, within the ſpace of ſix months after ſuch offence committed, no hundred, or any inhabitants thereof, ſhall in any wiſe be ſubject or liable to make any ſatisfaction to the party injured for the damages he ſhall have ſuſtained.

Sect. 10. Provided alſo, that no perſon who ſhall ſuſtain any damage by reaſon of any offence to be committed by any offender contrary to this act, ſhall be hereby enabled to ſue, or bring any action againſt any inhabitants of any hundred, where ſuch offence ſhall be committed, except the party or parties ſuſtaining ſuch damage ſhall commence his or their action or ſuit within one year next after ſuch offence ſhall be committed.

Sect. 11. And for the better and more effectual diſcovery of the offenders above-mentioned, and bringing them to juſtice, it ſhall be lawful to and for any juſtice of the peace to iſſue his warrant to any conſtable, headborough, or other peace officer, to enter into any houſe, in order to ſearch for veniſon, ſtolen or unlawfully taken, contrary to the ſeveral ſtatutes againſt deer-ſtealers, in ſuch manner as by the laws of this realm ſuch juſtice of the peace may iſſue his warrant to ſearch for ſtolen goods.

Sect. 12. And if any perſon or perſons ſhall apprehend, or cauſe to be convicted, any of the offenders above-mentioned, and ſhall be killed or wounded, ſo as to loſe an eye, or the uſe of any limb, in apprehending or ſecuring, or endeavouring to apprehend or ſecure any of the offenders above-mentioned, upon proof thereof made at the general quarter ſeſſions of the peace for the county, liberty, or diviſion, or place where the offence ſhall be committed, or the party killed, or receive ſuch wound, by the perſon or perſons ſo apprehending, and cauſing the ſaid offender to be convicted, or the perſon or perſons ſo wounded, or the executors or adminiſtrators of the party killed, the juſtices of the ſaid ſeſſions ſhall give a certificate thereof to ſuch perſon or perſons ſo wounded, or to the executors or adminiſtrators of the perſon or perſons ſo killed, by which he or they ſhall be intitled to receive of the ſheriff of the ſaid county the ſum of fifty pounds, to be allowed the ſaid ſheriff in paſſing his accounts in the Exchequer; which ſum of fifty pounds the ſaid ſheriff is hereby required to pay within thirty days from the day on which the ſaid certificate ſhall be produced and ſhewn to him, under the penalty of forfeiting the ſum of ten pounds to the ſaid perſon or perſons to whom ſuch certificate is given: for which ſaid ſum of ten pounds, as well as the ſaid ſum of fifty pounds, ſuch perſon may and is hereby authorized to bring an action upon the caſe againſt ſuch ſheriff, as for money had and received to his or their uſe.

Sect. 13. And whereas the ſhortneſs of time within which proſecutions for offences againſt the ſtatute made in the third and fourth years of the reign of their late majeſties King William and Queen Mary (intituled, An act for the more effectual diſcovery and puniſhment of deer-ſtealers) are limited to be commenced, has been a great encouragement to offenders: be it thereforefore enacted by the authority aforeſaid, that any proſecution for any offence againſt the ſtatute ſhall or may be commenced within three years from the time of the offence committed, but not after.

Sect. 14. And for the better and more impartial trial of any indictment or information which ſhall be found, commenced, or proſecuted for any the offences committed againſt this act, every offence, that ſhall be done or committed contrary to this act, ſhall and may be enquired of, examined, tried, and determined in any county within that part of Great Britain called England, in ſuch manner and form as if the fact had been there committed: provided, that no attainder for any of the offences made felony by virtue of this act ſhall make or work any corruption of blood, loſs of dower, or forfeiture of lands or tenements, goods or chattels.

Sect. 15. And this act ſhall be openly read at every quarter ſeſſions, and at every leet or law day.

Sect. 16. And this act ſhall continue in force from June 1, 1723, for three years, and from thence to the end of the then next ſeſſion of parliament, and no longer.

Continued for five years by 12 Geo. 1. c. 30.

Continued to Sept. 1, 1736, by 6 Geo. 2. cap. 37. ſect. 4. with the following additions.

Sect. 5. If any perſon ſhall, during the continuance of the laſt before-mentioned act (9 Geo. 1. cap. 22.) unlawfully and maliciouſly break down, or cut the bank or banks of any river, or any ſea bank, whereby any lands ſhall be overflowed or damaged, every perſon ſo offending ſhall be adjudged guilty of felony, and ſuffer death, without benefit of clergy.

Sect. 6. If any perſon or perſons ſhall, during the continuance of the before-mentioned act (9 Geo. 1. c. 22.) unlawfully and maliciouſly cut any hop-binds growing on poles in any plantation of hops, every perſon or perſons ſo offending ſhall be guilty of felony, without benefit of clergy.

Made perpetual together with the two before-mentioned clauſes of 6 Geo. 2. c. 37. by 31 Geo. 2. c. 42.

By ſtat. 27 Geo. 2. c. 15. If any perſon or perſons ſhall knowingly ſend any letter without any name ſubſcribed thereto, or ſigned with a fictitious name or names, letter or letters, threatening to kill or murder any of his majeſty's ſubjects, or to burn their houſes, out-houſes, barns, and ſtacks of corn or grain, hay or ſtraw, though no money, veniſon, or other valuable thing ſhall be demanded in or by ſuch letter or letters; or ſhall forcibly reſcue any perſon being lawfully in cuſtody of any officer or other perſon for the ſaid offence; every perſon ſo offending, being thereof lawfully convicted, ſhall be adjudged guilty of felony, and ſhall ſuffer death, as in caſes of felony, without benefit of clergy.

Black-book, Is a book lying in the Exchequer.

Black lead Stat. 25 Geo. 2. c. 10. ſect. 1. Whereas by experience it hath been found, that wad or black cawke, commonly called black-lead, is and hath been neceſſary for divers uſeful purpoſes, and more particularly in the caſting bomb-ſhells, round-ſhot, and cannon balls; and that ſuch wad, black cawke, or black-lead hath hitherto been diſcovered in one mountain or ridge of hills only in this realm; and that great waſte and deſtruction therein hath of late years been made by wicked and evil-diſpoſed perſons, who, by reaſon of the ſituation of the mine or mines, wad-hole or wad-holes of the ſaid wad, black-cawke or black lead, and of the great difficulty to ſecure and preſerve the ſame from being unlawfully broke, or by force entered into; and alſo by reaſon of the ſmall puniſhment by the laws now in being annexed to offences of the like kind, have been encouraged unlawfully to enter, and and by force to keep poſſeſſion of the ſame; and from thence unlawfully to take and carry away great quantities of the ſaid wad, black cawke or black lead;—Therefore it is enacted, That every perſon who ſhall unlawfully break, or by force enter into, any mine or wad-hole of wad or black cawke, commonly called black-lead, or into any pit, ſhaft, or vein thereof; or ſhall unlawfully take and carry away from thence any wad, black cawke, or black-lead; or ſhall aid, hire, or command any perſon to commit any the ſaid offences, ſhall be guilty of felony, and the court or judge may order him to be committed to priſon, or to the houſe of correction, not exceeding one year, to be kept to hard labour, and to be publickly whipt by the common hangman, or by the maſter of ſuch houſe of correction, at the times and places, and in ſuch manner as the court ſhall think proper; or he may be tranſported for a term not exceeding ſeven years; and if he ſhall voluntarily eſcape, or break priſon, or return from tranſportation before the time, he ſhall be guilty of felony without benefit of clergy.

Sect. 2. A certificate of the former conviction from the clerk of the aſſize, or clerk of the peace of the county or city, where ſuch conviction or attainder for the ſaid offence was had, ſhall be deemed ſufficient proof thereof.

Sect. 3. And if any perſon ſhall buy or receive any ſuch wad, knowing the ſame to be unlawfully taken and carried away as aforeſaid, he ſhall be guilty of felony, and be liable to all the penalties inflicted by the laws on perſons knowingly buying or receiving ſtolen goods.

Black-mail, (Fr. maille, a ſmall piece of metal or money) Signifies, in the counties of Cumberland, Northumberland, Weſtmorland, and the biſhoprick of Durham, a certain rate of money, corn, cattle, or other conſideration paid to ſome inhabiting near the borders, being men of name and power, allied with certain moſs-troopers, or robbers within the ſaid counties; to be protected from the devaſtations of thoſe robbers. Stat. 43 Eliz. cap. 23. See Mayle. Theſe robbers are of late years called moſs-troopers, and ſeveral ſtatutes have been made againſt them. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Black-mail, Alſo ſignifies the rents formerly paid in proviſions of corn and fleſh. The ſtat. 9 Ed. 3. c. 4. mentions black-money.

Black-rod, or Gentleman uſher of the black-rod, is chief gentleman uſher to the king. He is called in the Black Book, fol. 255. Lator Virgæ nigræ, and Hoſtiarius; and elſewhere Virgæ-bajulus: his duty is ad portandum virgam coram domino rege ad feſtum ſancti Georgii infra Caſtrum de Windeſore. He hath alſo the keeping of the Chapter-houſe door, when a chapter of the order of the garter is ſitting; and in the time of parliament attends on the houſe of Peers.

He hath a like habit with the regiſter of the order, and garter king at arms, which he wears at the feaſt of St. George, and at all chapters. He bears a black-rod, on the top whereof ſits a lion, gold; which rod is inſtead of a mace, and hath the ſame power and authority. His fee is now 30 l. per annum. This officer hath been antiently conſtituted by letters patent under the great ſeal. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Blackwell-hall. Stat. 8 & 9 W. 3. cap. 9. ſect. 1. The governors of Blackwell-hall, and their deputies, ſhall ſtrictly keep the following times and rules, viz. the publick market of Blackwell-hall ſhall be held every Thurſday, Friday, and Saturday, from eight o'clock in the forenoon till twelve, and from two in the afternoon till five. The ſaid hours of beginning and ending the ſaid market ſhall be known by ringing the market-bell in the hall: the ſame to be continued weekly through the year, except days of humiliation or thankſgiving; and the keepers of the hall ſhall not permit any buying or ſelling of any woollen cloth at the hall upon any other days or hours, upon the penalty of 100 l.

Sect. 2. The ſaid governors, &c. ſhall appoint to the county clothiers the moſt convenient room in the hall for the ſale of the cloth, and warehouſe for keeping the ſame, paying the antient duties of the hall.

Sect. 3. No factor, or other perſon, other than the owner of the cloth, ſhall ſell or expoſe to ſale, out of the ſaid market of Blackwell-hall, any cloth directed to be brought to the ſaid market, or any factor there, upon penalty of 5 l. for every cloth ſo ſold.

Sect. 4. The hall-keepers, clerks, and maſter-porters ſhall take care that the rules and orders appointed by this act be put in execution, and ſhall diligently keep their books and weekly regiſters of all the cloths bought and ſold there; in which books they ſhall enter the names and habitations of the owners, and buyers, and ſellers, and times of ſale, and other factor or other perſon buying or ſelling of every cloth; to which books it ſhall be lawful for the clothiers, their agents or ſervants, at all convenient times to have recourſe without fee. And any hall-keeper, clerk, or maſter-porter neglecting his duty herein, ſhall for every offence forfeit 10 l. and if any perſon buy any cloth of any perſon (except the owner) otherwiſe than for ready money, the perſon ſelling ſhall, within twelve days after ſale and delivery of the ſame, take or demand of the buyer a note, teſtifying under the buyer's hand the cloth ſold, and the ſum of money ſold for, payable to the owner, and ſhall deliver ſuch note on demand, with notice of the buyer's place of abode thereon ſubſcribed, to the owner, or any perſon authorized by him to receive the ſame; on pain to forfeit to the owner of the cloth ſold double the value thereof for every neglect of ſo doing. And if any woollen-draper or perſon trading in the woollen manufacture, buying woollen cloth upon truſt, ſhall refuſe or neglect to give ſuch note upon requeſt at any time next after eight days after ſale and delivery, he ſhall forfeit 20 s. for every cloth ſo ſold to the owner; and every piece of cloth not returned within eight days after delivery of the ſame, ſhall be deemed to be paſſed and approved of by the buyer as a merchantable cloth; and all contracts for allowing a longer time for the paſſing of any cloth ſhall be void.

Sect. 5. All penalties impoſed by this act, may be ſued for by action of debt, &c. in any of his majeſty's courts of record; and if not otherwiſe herein before diſpoſed of, one moiety to the king, and the other to the informer.

Sect. 6. If the owner of the cloth neglect to ſue for any of the penalties by the ſpace of ſix months, then any other perſon to ſue for the ſame, and one moiety ſhall be to the king, and the other to the informer. See title Drapery.

Stat. 3 Jac. 1. c. 21. For preventing and avoiding of the great abuſe of the holy name of God in ſtage-plays, interludes, may-games, ſhews, and ſuch like, Be it enacted, That if any perſon or perſons do or ſhall in any ſtage-play, interlude, ſhew, may-game, or pageant, jeſtingly or prophanely ſpeak or uſe the holy name of God, or of Chriſt Jeſus, or of the Holy Ghoſt, or of the Trinity, which are not to be ſpoken but with fear and reverence, ſhall forfeit for every ſuch offence by him or them committed, ten pounds; one moiety thereof to the king, and the other moiety to him or them that will ſue for the ſame in any court of record at Weſtminſter.

Sect. 1. Will. & Ma. ſeſſ. 1. c. 18. ſect. 17. No perſon ſhall have any benefit of the toleration act, who ſhall deny in his preaching or writing the doctrine of the Bleſſed Trinity, as it is ſet forth in the 39 articles.

Sect. 2 & 10 Will. 3. c. 32. [intituled, An act for the more effectually ſuppreſſing of blaſphemy and prophaneneſs] Whereas many perſons have of late years openly avowed and publiſhed many blaſphemous and impious opinions, contrary to the doctrines and principles of the Chriſtian religion, greatly tending to the diſhonour of Almighty God, and may prove deſtructive to the peace and welfare of this Kingdom; wherefore, for the more effectual ſuppreſſing of the ſaid deteſtable crimes, Be it enacted, &c. That if any perſon or perſons having been educated in, or at any time having made a profeſſion of the Chriſtian religion within this realm, ſhall, by writing, printing, teaching, or adviſed ſpeaking, deny any one of the perſons in the Holy Trinity to be God, or ſhall aſſert or maintain there are more Gods than one, or ſhall deny the Chriſtian religion to be true, or the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Teſtament to be of divine authority, and ſhall, upon indictment or information in any of his majeſty's courts at Weſtminſter, or at the aſſizes, be thereof lawfully convicted by the oath of two or more credible witneſſes, ſuch perſon or perſons for the firſt offence ſhall be adjudged incapable and diſabled in law, to all intents and purpoſes whatſoever, to have or enjoy any office or offices, employment or employments eccleſiaſtical, civil, or military, or any part in them, or any profit or advantage appertaining to them or any of them: and if any perſon or perſons ſo convicted as aforeſaid ſhall at the time of his or their conviction enjoy or poſſeſs any office, place, or employment, ſuch office, place, or employment ſhall be void, and is hereby declared void: and if ſuch perſon or perſons ſhall be a ſecond time lawfully convicted as aforeſaid of all or any the aforeſaid crime or crimes, that then he or they ſhall from thenceforth be diſabled to ſue, proſecute, plead, or uſe any action or information in any court of law or equity, or to be guardian of any child, or executor or adminiſtrator of any perſon, or capable of any legacy or deed of gift, or to bear any office civil or military, or benefice eccleſiaſtical, for ever within this realm; and ſhall alſo ſuffer impriſonment for the ſpace of three years, without bail or mainprize, from the time of ſuch conviction.

Sect. 2. Provided, that no perſon ſhall be proſecuted by virtue of this act for any words ſpoken, unleſs the information of ſuch words ſhall be given upon oath before one or more juſtice or juſtices of the peace within four days after ſuch words ſpoken, and the proſecution of ſuch offence be within three months after ſuch information.

Sect. 3. Provided that ſuch offender, upon his acknowledgment and renunciation of ſuch offence or erroneous opinions in the ſame court where ſuch perſon was convicted within the ſpace of four months after his conviction, be diſcharged from all penalties and diſabilities incurred by ſuch conviction.

Bloodwit, or Bloodwite, Is a compound from the Saxon blod, ſanguis, and white, an old Engliſh word ſignifying miſericordia. It is often uſed in ancient charters, and means an amerciament for bloodſhed. Skene de Verbor. Signif. writes bluidveit; which, ſays he, is in Engliſh as much as injuria or miſericordia; it being, as the Scotchmen call it, an unlaw for wrong or injury, as is the effuſion of blood; for he that hath bloodwit granted him, hath free liberty to take all amerciaments of courts for ſhedding of blood. Fleta ſaith, quod ſignificat quietantiam miſericordiæ prò effuſione ſanguinis, lib. 1. c. 47. Si aliqui pugnantes ad invicem in Rudham, & extraxerint ſanguinem, prior habebit bloodwit, i e amerciamentum inde in curia ſua. Ex. reg. priorat. de Cockesford. Sax blod, blood, and wit, a fine or penalty; for blodewite was a cuſtomary fine paid as a compoſition and atonement for the ſhedding or drawing blood, for which the place was anſwerable, if the party were not diſcovered. And therefore a privilege or exemption from this penalty was granted by the king, or ſupreme lord, as a ſpecial favour. Bockhoyd, Is, as it were, book-hoard, or a hoard for books, that is, a place where books, writings, or evidences are kept; we may term it in Latin librorum horreum. It is derived from the Sax. bock, liber, and hord, theſaurus. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Bocking. See Braintree.

Bockland (Sax. quaſi bookland) Terra hæreditaria vel teſtamentaria; a poſſeſſion or inheritance held by inſtruments in writing. Bockland vero ea poſſidendi transferendique lege coercebatur, ut nec dari licuit nec vendi, ſed hæredibus relinquenda erat, in ſcriptis aliter permitteretur; Terra inde Hæreditaria nuncupata inter leges Aluredi, cap. 36. See Charter-land, Copyhold, Freehold, and Land-boc. See alſo Gloſſarium in decem ſcriptores. This was one of the titles by which the Engliſh Saxons held their lands, and was always in writing, and from hence called bockland, which ſignifies terram codicillariam, or librariam, deed-land, or charter-land. It commonly carried with it the abſolute inheritance and property of the land, and was therefore preſerved in writing; and poſſeſſed by the Thanes, or nobler ſort, as prædium nobile liberum & immune a ſervitiis vulgaribus & ſervilibus. It was the very ſame as allodium, deſcendible (according to the common courſe of nations, and of nature) unleſs all the ſons, and therefore called gavel-kind; deviſable alſo by will, and thereupon called terræ teſtamentales, as the Thane that poſſeſſed them was ſaid to be teſtamento dignus. See Spelman of Feuds, c. 5.

Bolter. See Buſtel.

Bolting, Is a term of art uſed in Gray's-Inn, whereby they intend private arguing of caſes; the manner of it is this: An ancient and two barriſters ſit as judges; three ſtudents bring each a caſe, out of which the judges chooſe one to be argued; which done, the ſtudents firſt begin and argue, and after them the barriſters. Bolting hath alſo a more common acception, which country houſewives ſay is the ſifting of the meal or flour through a bag, to make it finer, which bag they call a bolter: and why may not the law term be drawn hence? becauſe the bolting of caſes is the thorough ſifting and debating of them. It is inferior to mooting, and may be derived from the Sax. bolt, an houſe; becauſe done privately in the houſe for inſtruction. In Lincoln's-Inn, in vacation time, Monday and Wednesday are the bolting days; Tueſday and Thurſday the moot days; but in term-time, e contra. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Bona notabilia, Are ſuch goods as a party dying hath in another dioceſe than that wherein he dies, amounting to 5 l. at leaſt, which, whoever hath, his will muſt be proved before the archbiſhop of the province, unleſs by compoſition or cuſtom, other dioceſes are authorized to do it, where bona notabilia are rated at a greater ſum. Book of Canons, 1 Jac. can. 92, 93. Perk. ſect. 89. And in the city of London, bona notabilia are 10 l. by compoſition. 4 Inſt. 335. One that hath a debt upon bond or ſpecialty, &c. in another dioceſe, hath bona notabilia. 1 Rol. Abr. 908. Though if a perſon happens to die in another dioceſe than that wherein he lives, on a journey, what he hath about him of the value of 5 l. &c. ſhall not be bona notabilia. Can. 93. There muſt be ſeveral adminiſtrations where a perſon dies, leaving bona notabilia notabilia in each province of Canterbury and York; for adminiſtration granted in one province doth not extend to goods in the other, becauſe the archbiſhops have diſtinct ſupreme juriſdictions; but then there is to be bona notabilia in ſeveral dioceſes in each province. Dyer 305. 2 Lev. 86. If a man dies in one dioceſe without any goods, and leaves to the value of 5 l. in another dioceſe, the archbiſhop of that province may grant adminiſtration, as he hath a general juriſdiction there; though ſuch adminiſtration is voidable by ſentence. Cro. Eliz. 457. But where a biſhop grants adminiſtration, and there are bona notibilia, ſuch adminiſtration is merely void; for he had no juriſdiction out of his dioceſe. 5 Rep. 30. 1 *Nelſ. Books. Stat 25 Hen. 8. cap. 15. ſect. 1. No perſon inhabiting within this realm ſhall buy to ſell again any printed books brought from any parts out of the king's obeiſance, ready bound in boards, leather, or parchment, upon pain to forfeit for every book bound out of the king's obeiſance, and brought within the ſame to ſell again, 6 s. 8 d.

Sect. 3. No perſon inhabiting within this realm, ſhall buy within this realm of any ſtranger, any printed books brought from beyond the ſea, except only by engroſs, and not by retail, upon pain of forfeiture of 6 s. 8 d. for every book ſo bought; the ſaid forfeitures to be levied of the buyers; the one half to the king, and the moiety to the party that will ſeize or ſue for the ſame.

Sect. 4. If any of the ſaid printers, or ſellers of printed books, inhabiting within the realm, at any time hereafter increaſe the prices of ſuch books in ſale or binding, in ſuch wiſe as complaint be made thereof unto the king, or the lord chancellor, lord treaſurer, or any of the chief juſtices; then the lord chancellor, &c. or any two of them, ſhall have power to inquire thereof, as well by the oaths of twelve perſons, as by examination, by their diſcretions. And after the increaſing of the ſaid prices of the ſaid books and binding ſhall be found, the lord chancellor, &c. or two of them, ſhall have power to redreſs ſuch inhauncing of the prices, by their diſcretions, and to limit the prices as well of the books as for the binding; and the offenders, being convicted by examination or otherwiſe, ſhall forfeit, for every book by them ſold, whereof the price ſhall be inhaunced, for the book or binding, 3 s. 4 d. the one half to the king, and the other half to the parties grieved.

Stat. 3 & 4 Ed. 6. cap. 10. ſect. 1. All books called antiphoners, &c. or other books or writings, heretofore uſed for ſervice of the church, written or printed in Engliſh or Latin, other than ſuch as ſhall be ſet forth by the king, ſhall be aboliſhed, and forbidden to be uſed or kept in the king's dominions.

Sect. 6. Provided, that any perſon may uſe and retain any primers in Engliſh or Latin ſet forth by king Henry the Eighth, ſo that the ſentences of invocation, or prayer to ſaints, be blotted or put out of the ſame.

Stat. 17 Car. 2. cap. 4. ſect. 2. Every printer within the city of London, or any other place, except the two univerſities, ſhall reſerve three copies of the beſt paper of every book new printed, or reprinted by him with additions; and ſhall, before any publick vending of the ſaid book, bring them to the maſter of the company of ſtationers, and deliver them to him; one whereof ſhall by the ſaid maſter, within ten days after he hath received the ſame, be delivered to the keeper of his majeſty's library, and the other two, within the ſaid ten days, ſent to the vice-chancellor of the two univerſities, for the uſe of the publick libraries.

Sect. 3. The printers in the univerſities ſhall deliver one ſuch copy of every book printed, or re-printed in the univerſities, to the keeper of his majeſty's library, as alſo to the vice-chancellor of either of the ſaid univerſities two other ſuch copies for the uſe of the public libraries. And if any of the printers, or the maſter of the company of ſtationers, ſhall not obſerve the direction of this act, they ſhall ſeverally forfeit 5 l. for every copy not ſo delivered, as alſo the value of the ſaid copies; the ſame to be recovered by his majeſty, and by the chancellor, maſters, and ſcholars of either of the univerſities reſpectively, in any of his majeſty's courts of record at Weſtminſter. Qu. If not expired.

Stat. 8 Ann. c. 19. ſ. 1. The author of any book not yet printed, and his aſſigns, ſhall have the ſole liberty of printing it for fourteen years, to commence from the day of publiſhing thereof: and if any perſon, within the ſaid time, ſhall print, reprint, or import any ſuch book, without the conſent of the proprietor in writing ſigned in the preſence of two credible witneſſes, or ſhall knowingly publiſh it without ſuch conſent, the offender ſhall forfeit the books and ſheets to the proprietor, who ſhall forthwith damaſk, and make them waſte paper, and ſhall forfeit 1*d.* for every ſheet found in his cuſtody, either printed, or printing; one moiety to the crown, the other to him who will ſue in any court at Weſtminſter.

Sect. 2. No bookſeller, printer, or other perſon ſhall be liable to theſe forfeitures. by printing or re-printing any book without conſent, unleſs the title to the copy of the book ſhall, before ſuch publication, be entered in the regiſter-book of the company of ſtationers, as uſual, at the hall of the ſaid company; and unleſs the conſent of the proprietor be entered, paying 6 d. for each entry; which regiſter-book may at all ſeaſonable times be inſpected without fee: and the clerk of the company of ſtationers, when required, ſhall give a certificate of ſuch entry; for which certificate he ſhall have 6 d.

Sect. 3. If the clerk ſhall neglect to make ſuch entry, or to give ſuch certificate, being required by the proprietor of the copy in the preſence of two witneſſes, then notice being given of ſuch refuſal by an advertiſement in the Gazette, the perſon ſhall have the ſame benefit as if an entry were actually made; and the clerk for refuſing ſhall forfeit to the proprietor 20 l. to be recovered in the courts at Weſtminſter.

Sect. 4. If any bookſeller ſhall ſet an unreaſonable price on any book, any perſon may complain to the archbiſhop of Canterbury, the lord chancellor, the biſhop of of London, the chief juſtices, chief baron, the vice-chancellor of the two univerſities in England, the lord preſident of the ſeſſions, the lord juſtice general, the lord chief baron of the Exchequer, the rector of the college of Edinburgh in Scotland; who, or any of them, may call the bookſeller before them, and inquire into the cauſe of the dearneſs; and, upon examination, may redreſs and ſettle the price; and, in caſe of alteration of the price which the bookſeller ſet, to ordain him to pay the coſts of the perſon complaining. And this ſhall be done in writing under their hands and ſeals, and public notice ſhall be given by the bookſeller by an advertiſement in the Gazette. And if any bookſeller ſhall, after ſuch price ſet, expoſe to ſale, or ſell any book at a higher rate, he ſhall forfeit 5 l. for every book, one moiety to the crown, the other to him who ſhall ſue in any court in Weſtminſter. This ſect. is repealed by 12 Geo. 2. cap. 36. ſect. 3.

Sect. 5. Nine copies of each book on the beſt paper ſhall be delivered to the warehouſe-keeper of the company of ſtationers at their hall, before publication, for the uſe of the royal library, the libraries of the univerſities of Oxford and Cambridge, the libraries of the four univerſities in Scotland, of Sion College in London, and the library of the advocates at Edinburgh; which ſaid warehouſe-keeper is to deliver the ſaid books within ten days after demand; and if any proprietor, bookſeller, or printer, or the ſaid warehouſe-keeper, ſhall not obſerve the direction of this act therein, they ſhall forfeit the value of the books, and 5 l. for every copy not delivered; the ſame to be recovered by the crown, by the chancellor, maſter and ſcholars of the univerſities, and by the preſident and fellows of Sion College, &c.

Sect. 6. The penalties in Scotland ſhall be recovered by an action before the court of ſeſſions there.

Sect. 7. The importation or ſelling of Greek or Latin books, or in any foreign language printed beyond ſea, ſhall not be hindered.

Sect. 8. If any action ſhall be brought for any thing done in purſuance of this act, the defendant may plead the general iſſue.

Sect. 9. The right of the univerſities, or of any other perſon, to the printing or reprinting any book already printed, ſhall not be prejudiced or confirmed

Sect. 10. All actions for any offence againſt this act ſhall be brought within three months after the offence done.

Sect. 11. After the end of fourteen years, the ſole right of printing or diſpoſing of copies ſhall return to the authors, if then living, for other fourteen years.

By ſtat. 7 Ann. c. 14. ſect. 10. If any book ſhall be taken or otherwiſe loſt out of any parochial library, any juſtice may grant his warrant to ſearch for it; and if it ſhall be found, it ſhall by order of ſuch juſtice be reſtored to the library.

Stat. 12 Geo. 2. cap. 36. ſect. 1. It ſhall not be lawful for any perſon to import into this kingdom for ſale any books firſt compoſed and printed and publiſhed in this kingdom, and reprinted in any other country; and if any import for ſale any ſuch books, or knowing the ſame to be ſo reprinted or imported, ſell, publiſh, or expoſe to ſale any ſuch books, he ſhall forfeit the ſaid books; and the ſame ſhall be forthwith damaſked, and made waſte paper; and every ſuch offender ſhall forfeit 5 l. and double the value of every book, one moiety to the King, and the other moiety to any perſon that ſhall ſue; to be recovered with coſts in any court of record at Weſtminſter by action of debt, &c. in which no wager of law, &c. ſhall be allowed; and if the offence be committed in Scotland, to be recovered before the court of ſeſſion there by ſummary action. Provided, that this act ſhall not extend to any book that has not been printed or reprinted in this kingdom within twenty years before the ſame be imported.

Sect. 2. Nothing in this act ſhall extend to prevent the importation of any book firſt compoſed and printed in this kingdom, which ſhall be reprinted abroad, and inſerted among other books or tracts, and ſo to be ſold therewith, in any collection where the greateſt part of ſuch collection ſhall have been firſt compoſed and printed abroad. Sect. 3. repeals 8 Ann. cap. 19. ſect. 4.

Boꝛdaꝛii, or Borduanni, often occur in Domeſday; by ſome eſteemed to be boors, huſbandmen, or cottagers; which are there always put after villains. Dicuntur bordarii vel quod in tuguriis (quæ cottagia vocant) habitabant, ſeu villarum limitibus, quaſi borderers. Spelm. Tenentes per ſervitia plus ſervilia quam villani, & qui tenent niſi paucas acras. MS. but ſee Boꝛdlands. Some derive it from the old Gall. bords, the limits or extreme parts of any extent: as the borders of a country, and the borderers, inhabitants in thoſe parts: whence the border of a garment, and to imborder, which we corrupt to imbroider; but our old bordarii, bordmen, were rather ſo called from Sax. bord, a houſe. The bordarii, often mentioned in the Domeſday inquiſition, were diſtinct from the ſervi and villani, and ſeem to be thoſe of a leſs ſervile condition, who had a bord or cottage, with a ſmall parcel of land, allowed to them on condition they ſhould ſupply the lord with poultry and eggs, and other ſmall proviſions for his bord, or entertainment. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Boꝛdel, Lat. Bordellum. At firſt it ſignified any ſmall cottage which grew infamous for a licentious alehouſe, and the common habitation of proſtitutes; thence by degrees a bordel, or by Metatheſis a brodel; brothel and brothel-houſe came to ſignify a lewd place, a ſtew; from which femme-bordelier, a common whore. Hence in Chaucer, a borelman, contraction of brothelman, a looſe idle fellow; and borel folks, drunkards and Epicures, which the Scotch now call buriel-folk. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Bord-halfpenny (Sax. board, tabula, and halfpenny, obolus) Is money paid in fairs and markets for ſetting up tables, boards, and ſtalls for ſale of wares. In antiquis chartis multi immunes fiunt ab iſta ſolutione, ſays Spelman. It is corruptly written borthalpeny, and brodhalpeny in ſome authors.

Bord lands, The lands which lords keep in their hands for the maintenance of their board or table. Eſt dominicum quod quis habet ad menſam ſuam & proprie, ſicut ſunt bordlands Anglice, i. e. dominicum ad menſam. Bract. lib. 4. tract. 3. cap. 9. num. 5. which poſſeſſion was anciently termed bordage. Sax. Dict. verbo Bord. And the bordarii (often mentioned in Domeſday) were ſuch as held thoſe lands which we now call Demeſne lands. See Antiq. of purveyance, fol. 49.

Bordlode, The firm, or quantity of food or proviſion, which the bordarii or bord-men payed for their bordlands. The old Scots had the term of burd, and meet-burd, for victuals and proviſions; burden-ſack, for a ſack full of provender. From whence probably came our Engliſh burden at firſt; only a load of meat and drink; which we ſeem ſtill to retain in the proverb, He has got his burden, i. e. as much drink as he can bear or carry off. Bordlode was alſo a ſervice required of the tenant to carry timber out of woods of the lord to his houſe. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Bord-ſervice, Is a tenure of bordlands; by which ſome lands in the manor of Fulham, in com. Middleſex, and elſewhere, are held of the biſhop of London, and the tenants do now pay ſixpence per acre in lieu of finding proviſions anciently for their lord's board or table. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Borg-brigch, or Burg-brych, The breach or violation of ſuretiſhip, or pledge, or mutual fidelity among the Saxons.

Borough, or Borow, In Latin burgus, burgum; may be derived either from the French burg, i. e. pagus; or from the Saxon borhoe, pignus. It ſignifies with us a corporate town, that is not a city, 2 Edw. 3. cap. 3. namely, ſuch as ſend burgeſſes to the parliament, the number of which may be ſeen in Gromp. Juriſd. f. 24. it may be probably conjectured, that anciently it was taken for thoſe companies conſiſting of ten families, which were to be pledges for one another. See Bract. lib. 3. tract 2. cap. 10. See Head-borow, and Borow-head; and Lamb. Duty of Conſt. pag. 8. Lyndewood upon the Provincial (ut ſingula de ſenſibus) ſpeaks to this effect, Aliqui interpretantur burgum eſſe caſtrum, vel locum ubi ſunt crebra caſtra, vel dicitur burgus, ubi ſunt per limites habitacula plura conſtituta; but afterwards defines it thus: Burgus dici poteſt villa quæcunque, alia a civitate, in qua eſt univerſitas approbata. Some derive it from the Greek word πυργος, that is, turris. See Skene de verb. ſignif. Vergeſtan, in his reſolution of decayed intelligence, ſaith, that burg or burgh, whereof we take our borough, metaphorically ſignifies a town having a wall, or ſome kind of cloſure about it. All places that in old time had amongſt our anceſtors the name of borough, were one way or other fenced or fortified. Lit. ſect. 164. Yet ſometimes this word is uſed for villa inſignior, or county-town of more than ordinary note not walled. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Borough-Engliſh, (Sax. borhoe engliſe) Is a cuſtom which prevails in certain ancient boroughs, by virtue of which the youngeſt ſon ſhall inherit his father, as to the lands of which he is ſeiſed in fee or fee tail. The reaſon of this cuſtom ſeems to be, that in theſe boroughs people chiefly maintain and ſupport themſelves by trade and induſtry; and the elder children being provided for out of their father's goods, and introduced into his trade in his life-time, were able to ſubſiſt of themſelves without any land proviſion, and therefore the lands deſcend to the youngeſt ſon, he being in moſt danger of being left deſtitute. Lit. ſect. 165. Noy 106. It is called borough engliſh, becauſe, as ſome hold, it firſt prevailed in England. Co. Lit. 110. b. Others have told us, that the reaſon of this inſtitutirn was, becauſe the lord demanded the firſt night with the bride, ſo that they thought the eldeſt not legitimate. Preface to 3 Mod. Rep.

If land in borough engliſh be given to A. and his heirs, for the life of B. and A. dies in the life of B. having two ſons, the youngeſt ſhall be the ſpecial occupant, becauſe the heir that is repreſentative of the father, as to land of that nature, muſt be the occupant, ſince the heir muſt take by deſcent, and not by purchaſe. Co. Lit. 110. b. 2 Lev. 138. 3 Keb. 475. Vaugh. 201.

By the cuſtom of borough engliſh the widow ſhall have the whole of her huſband's lands in dower, which is called her free-bench; and this is given to her the better to provide for the younger children, with the care of whom ſhe is intruſted. Co. Lit. 33, 111. F. N. B. 150. Cro. Eliz. Mo. pl. 566.

For a condition broken, the heir at Common law ſhall enter; becauſe the condition is a thing of a new creation, and collateral to the land; but when the eldeſt ſon enters, the youngeſt ſhall enjoy the land; for by breach of the condition he is reſtored to the ancient eſtate. Cro. Eliz. 204. Plow. 28.

If a man be ſeiſed of land of the nature of borough engliſh, and hath iſſue two ſons, and die, and the eldeſt ſon, before any entry made by the youngeſt, enters into the land by abatement, and dies ſeiſed, this ſhall not take away the entry of the youngeſt brother, becauſe the eldeſt ſhall be preſumed to enter to preſerve the eſtate in the family, which he or his heirs may ſome time or other, upon failure of his brother's line, happen to enjoy. Co. Lit. 242.

If a man ſeiſed of borough engliſh lands makes a feoffment in fee, to the uſe of himſelf and the heirs male of his body (ſecundum curſum communis legis) and dies, having iſſue two ſons, the youngeſt, notwithſtanding the feoffment and theſe words, ſhall inherit thoſe lands. Dyer 179. Jenk. 220.

The law takes notice of the cuſtoms of gavelkind and borough engliſh; and therefore it is ſufficient to alledge generally, that the lands are of the cuſtom of gavelkind or borough engliſh. Dyer 179. b. Jenk. Rep. 220.

If A. hath iſſue five ſons, and the youngeſt dies in the life-time of the father, having iſſue a daughter, after which the father purchaſes lands in borough engliſh, and dies, the daughter of the fifth ſon ſhall jure repræſentationis inherit thoſe lands, and not the fourth ſon. 1 Salk. 243.

And it ſeems, that as before the ſtatute of 32 & 34 H. 8. no lands were deviſable at the Common law, but in ancient baronies; ſo perhaps at the making the ſtatute of Acton Burnel it was doubtful, whether the goods were deviſable but in ancient borows: for it ſeemeth by the writ de rationalibus parte bonorum, that anciently the goods of a man were partible between the wife and children. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Borrowing, A man borrows money, corn, or ſuch thing of another, he may not expect the ſame again, but the like, or ſo much: but if one lend me a horſe, &c. he muſt have the ſame reſtored. If a thing be uſed to any other end or purpoſe than that for which it was borrowed, the party may have his action on the caſe for it, tho' the thing be never the worſe; and if what is borrowed be loſt, altho' it be not by negligence of mine; as if I be robbed of it; or where the thing is impaired or deſtroyed by by my neglect, admitting I put it to no more ſervice than that for which borrowed, I muſt make it good: ſo where I borrow a horſe, and put him in an old rotten houſe ready to fall, which falls on and kills him, I muſt anſwer for the horſe. But if ſuch goods borrowed periſh by the act of God in the right uſe of them; as where I put the horſe, &c. in a ſtrong houſe, and it fall and kill him, or it dies by diſeaſe, or by default of the owner, I ſhall not be charged. *Co. Bottomry or Bottomary, Is when the maſter of a ſhip borrows money upon the keel or bottom of his ſhip, and binds the ſhip itſelf, that if the money be not paid by the day aſſigned, the creditor ſhall have the ſhip. Ceo bottomage eſt quand argent eſt borrow ſur keil del neif, & le neif oblige al payment de ceo, viz. ſi ne ſoit pay al temps, que l'auter avera le neif. Latch's Rep. fol. 252. Scarborough's caſe. Cowell.

Others define bottomry to be the act of borrowing money on a ſhip's bottom, by engaging the veſſel for payment; ſo that in caſe ſhe miſcarries, the lender loſes his money: but if ſhe finiſhes her voyage, and arrives in ſafety, the borrower is to repay the loan with a premium or intereſt agreed on (which is always adequate to the riſk); and if this be denied or deferred, the lender ſhall have the ſhip.

Bottomry is likewiſe caled foenus nauticum, pecunia trajectitia, and ſometimes uſura marina, though improperly; for notwithſtanding the intereſt in theſe contracts is always much larger than the law preſcribes for monies lent on landed ſecurities, yet it is never accounted uſury, as marine loans are furniſhed at the hazard of the lender, which the others are not; and where the riſk is greateſt on the advanced monies, the profit ought in reaſon to be ſo too.

Money lent on bottomry is commonly on the ſhip only, though ſometimes it is upon the perſon of the borrower, and ſometimes on both. The firſt is where a man takes up money, and obliges himſelf, that if the ſhip agreed on arrives at ſuch a port, then to repay the loan, with the intereſt ſtipulated; but if the ſhip miſcarry, then nothing: but when money is lent at intereſt, it is delivered at the peril of the borrower, and the profit of this is merely the price of the loan; whereas the profit of the other is a reward for the danger and adventure of the ſea, which the lender takes upon himſelf, and makes the intereſt lawful. Lex Mercat. Red. 123.

By ſtat. 19 Geo. 2. c. 37. it is enacted, That after the firſt of Auguſt 1746, every ſum lent on bottomry, or at reſpondentia, upon any ſubjects ſhips to or from the Eaſt Indies, ſhall be lent only on the ſhip, or the merchandizes laden on board her, and ſo expreſſed in the condition of the bond; and the benefit of ſalvage ſhall be allowed to the lender, his agents, &c. who alone ſhall have a right to make aſſurance on the money lent: and no borrower of money upon bottomry, or at reſpondentia as aforeſaid, ſhall recover more on any aſſurance than the value of his intereſt on the ſhip or effects, excluſive of the money borrowed.

borrowed. And if the value of his intereſt doth not amount to the money borrowed, he ſhall be reſponſible to the lender for the ſurplus, with lawful intereſt for the ſame, together with the aſſurance and all charges, &c. notwithſtanding the ſhip and merchandize be totally loſt.

Stat. 19 Geo. 2. c. 32. intituled, An act for amending the laws relating to bankrupts.

The preamble obſerves, that many perſons within the deſcription of, and liable to the ſtatutes concerning bankrupts, frequently commit ſecret acts of bankruptcy, unknown to their creditors, and other perſons with whom they had dealings; and after committing thereof, continue to appear publickly, and carry on buſineſs, by buying and ſelling of goods, drawing, accepting, and negotiating bills of exchange, and paying and receiving money on account thereof, in the uſual way of trade, and in the ſame open manner as if they were ſolvent, and not being bankrupt. And as the permitting ſuch ſecret acts of bankruptcy to defeat payment really made in the caſes and circumſtances above-mentioned, where the perſon receiving the ſame had no notice of, nor were privy to their having committed any act of bankruptcy, will be a diſcouragement to trade, and a prejudice to credit in general; it is therefore enacted, That after the 29th of October 1746, no real creditor of a bankrupt in reſpect of goods ſold to, or bills of exchange really drawn, negotiated, or accepted by ſuch bankrupt in courſe of dealing, ſhall be liable to refund to the aſſignees of the bankrupt's eſtate any money, which before the ſuing forth of ſuch commiſſion was really in the courſe of trade received by him of ſuch bankrupt, before he had knowledge or notice of his becoming a bankrupt, or being in inſolvent circumſtances.

And as merchants and other traders frequently lend money on bottomry, or at reſpondentia, and cauſe their veſſels with their cargoes to be inſured; and where commiſſions of bankruptcy have iſſued againſt the obligor, or aſſurer, before the loſs of the ſhip or goods hath happened, it hath been made a queſtion, whether the obligee, or the aſſured, ſhould be let in to prove their debts, or be admitted to have any benefit under ſuch commiſſion, which may be a diſcouragement to trade: for remedy whereof it is enacted, That the obligee in any bottomry or reſpondentia bond, and the aſſured in any policy of inſurance made bona fide upon a valuable conſideration, ſhall be admitted to claim; and after the loſs or contingency, to prove the debt thereon, in like manner as if the ſame had happened before the iſſuing of the commiſſion of bankruptcy, and ſhall receive a proportionable dividend of the bankrupt's eſtate; and every bankrupt ſhall be diſcharged from the debt on ſuch bond and policy of inſurance as aforeſaid, and ſhall have the benefit of all the ſtatutes againſt bankrupts, in like manner as if ſuch loſs or contingency had happened, and the money due thereon had become payable, before the time of the iſſuing of ſuch commiſſion.

The defendant had lent 300 l. on a bottomry bond, and afterwards inſured 450 l. on that ſhip with the plaintiff for ſix guineas per cent. premium, as intereſted for money lent, &c. The ſhip outlived the time at which the money was payable, and afterwards was loſt in the Eaſt Indies. The defendant recovered the money on the bottomry bond, and afterwards ſued the inſured upon their policy, who brought their bill to be relieved, for that the money inſured by the policy was the money lent upon the bottomry, and that the defendant was no otherwiſe intereſted in the ſhip; and that the money being paid, no uſe ought to be made of the policy. The court decreed the policy to be delivered up. 2 Eq. Abr. 371. Trin. 1692. Goddart and Garret. S. C. 2 Vern. 269. where it is held, that a perſon having no intereſt but his bottomry bond cannot inſure; and that a perſon who has no intereſt in the ſhip or cargo cannot inſure, though the policy was intereſted or not; but inſurances are for the benefit of traders only, not that others unconcerned ſhould make unreaſonable gain.

Where the defendant lent the plaintiff 250 l. on a bottomry bond, and afterwards inſured on the ſame ſhip; but the inſurance was larger as to the voyage, there being liberty to go to other ports and places than what were contained in the condition of the bottomry bond. The ſhip being loſt, the defendant recovered the money on the policy of inſurance, and alſo put the bottomry bond in ſuit, the ſhip, though loſt, having deviated from the voyage mentioned in the bond; the plaintiff brought his bill, pretending the defendant ought not to recover both on the inſurance, and alſo on the bond, he having inſured only in reſpect of the money he had lent on the bottomry. And therefore the plaintiff would have had the benefit of the inſurance paying the premium; but the court held, that the defendant having paid the premium was intitled to the benefit of the policy; and the inſurers might as well pretend to have aid of the bottomry bond, and to diſcount the money recovered on the policy to eaſe the bottomry bond. Mich. 1716. Harman and Vanhatton, 2 Vern. 717.

The plaintiff entered into a penal bond of bottomry to pay 40 s. per month for 50 l. The ſhip was to go from Holland to the Spaniſh iſlands, and ſo to return for England; but if ſhe periſhed, the defendant was to loſe his 50 l. She went accordingly to the Spaniſh iſlands, took in Moors at Africa, and upon that occaſion went to Barbadoes, and then periſhed at ſea; the plaintiff, being ſued on the bond and penalty, pretended, that the deviation was on neceſſity: but his bill was diſmiſſed, ſaving as to the penalty. 2 Chan. Caſ. 130. Vid. 2 Salk. 444.

But where J. S. entered into a bottomry bond, whereby he bound himſelf, in conſideration of 400 l. as well to perform the voyage within ſix months, as at the ſix months end to pay 400 l. and 40 l. premium, in caſe the veſſel arrived ſafe, and was not loſt in the voyage. And it fell out that J. S. never went the voyage, whereby his bond became forfeited; and he preferred a bill to be relieved: and in regard the ſhip lay all along in the port of London, and ſo the defendant run no hazard of loſing his principal, the lord keeper thought fit to decree, that the defendant ſhould loſe the premium of 40 l. and be contented with his ordinary intereſt. Mich. 1684. Deguidler ahd Depeiſter, 1 Vern. 263.

A part-owner of a ſhip borrowed money of the plaintiff upon bottomry bond, payable on the return of the ſhip from the voyage ſhe was then going in the ſervice of the Eaſt India company; and the Eaſt India company broke up the ſhip in the Indies; and the owners brought their action againſt the company, and recovered damages; but they did not amount to a full ſatisfaction. And the obligee brought his bill to have his proportionable ſatisfaction out of the money recovered: but his bill was diſmiſſed, and he left to recover as well as he could at law; for a court of equity will never aſſiſt a bottomry bond, which carries an unreaſonable intereſt. Mich. 1701. Danby and Turner, 1 Eq. Abr. 372.

Bill to be relieved againſt a bottomry bond, with condition, that if the ſhip S. bound to the Eaſt Indies, ſhall return to L. within thirty-ſix months, or if ſhe does not return within thirty-ſix months, not being taken, or loſt by inevitable accidents within that time, then the money to be paid, &c. The ſhip was detained in the port of Surat in India by imbargo by the Great Mogul, ſo that ſhe could not ſail from Surat till after the thirty-ſix months were elapſed, and in her return home was taken by the French; but, being after the thirty-ſix months, the bond was forfeited: but there being no fault in the maſter, and the voyage delayed by inevitable accident, viz. by the ſaid embargo, the bill prayed to be relieved againſt the penalty of the bond. Harcourt C. diſmiſſed the bill, but without coſts, ſaying, He could not relieve againſt the expreſs agreement of the parties; but if the defendant had inſured this money upon the ſhip, the plaintiff ſhould have the benefit of the inſurance, upon allowing the defendant the charges of the inſurance, if the plaintiff pays the money within three months. Vin. Abr. tit. Bottomry Bonds.

Debt upon an obligation with condition to pay ſo much money (which was more by a third part than the legal intereſt of the money) if the ſhip returned within ſix months from Oſtend in Flanders to London, and if ſhe do not return, then the obligation to be void. The defendant pleaded, that there was a corrupt agreement between him and the plaintiff; and that at the time of making of

of the obligation, it was agreed he ſhould have no more for intereſt than the law allowed, in caſe the ſhip ſhould ever return, and avers that the bond was entered into by covin to avoid the ſtatute of uſury. Per Hale, Clearly this bond is not within the ſtatute, for this is the common way of inſurance, and if this were void by the ſtatute of uſury, trade would be deſtroyed; for it is a caſualty whether every ſuch ſhip ſhall return or not: but he agreed the averment was well taken, becauſe it diſcloſed the manner of the agreement. Hardres 418. Joy and Kent. Molloy, b. 2. c. 7. ſect. 12.

Where A. lends B. 100*l.* to freight a ſhip abroad and they agree that if the ſhip comes home ſafe, A. ſhall have 150*l.* and that if ſhe does not, that he ſhall loſe the 100*l.* this is not uſury, but good by the cuſtom of merchants; becauſe of the great perils of the ſea, and both principal and intereſt run the ſame hazard of being loſt; but if the principal be ſecured, and the intereſt only depend on hazard, if it be more than is lawful, it is uſury. 2 Rol. Rep. 48. 5 Co. 70, &c. Cro. Jac. 208, 508. 1 Keb. 339, 711.

So where the condition of a bottomry bond was, that if the obligor, or the ſhip, or the goods return ſafe, then to pay more than the legal intereſt; this was adjudged good by the cuſtom of merchants, though it depends on many contingencies; and though the obligee may be ſaid to run little hazard; and though any of the contingencies become impoſſible, as if the obligor die before his return, &c. yet the bond remains payable, contary to the general rule of law in ſuch caſes; for the law ſupplies theſe words, which ſhall firſt happen, and foreclоſes the election of the obligor, and gives it to the obligee to take his election on which of the contingencies ſhall firſt happen. 1 Lev. 54. 1 Sid. 27.

A ſhip going in the fiſhing trade to Newfoundland (which voyage muſt be performed in eight months) the plaintiff gave the defendant 50 l. to repay 60 l. upon the return of the ſhip to Dartmouth; and if by leakage or tempeſt he ſhould not return in eight months, then to pay the principal money only; and if ſhe never returned, then he ſhould pay nothing; all the court held, that this is no uſury within the ſtatute; for if the ſhip had ſtaid at Newfoundland two or three years, he was to pay but 60*l.* upon the return of the ſhip, and if ſhe never return, then nothing; ſo that the plaintiff run a hazard of having leſs than the intereſt which the law allows, and poſſibly neither principal nor intereſt. Cro. Jac. 208. pl. Trin. 6 Jac. B. R. Sharpley v. Sturrell. S. C. cited by Dodderbridge J. Cro. J. 508, 509. pl. 20. By name of Dartmouth's caſe, where one went to Newfoundland, and another lent him 100*l.* for a year, to victual his ſhip; and if he returned with the ſhip, he was to have ſo many 1000*l.* fiſhes, and expreſſed at what rate, which exceeded the intereſt allowed by the ſtatute; and if he did not return, then he ſhould loſe his principal, and adjudged no uſury. Vin. Abr. tit. Bottomry bonds (A.)

Debt upon a bond of 300*l.* conditioned, that if ſuch a ſhip ſailed to Surat in the Eaſt Indies, and returned ſafe to London, or if the owner and his goods return ſafe, &c. the defendant ſhould pay to the plaintiff the principal ſum 300*l.* and alſo 40*l.* for every 100*l.* but if the ſhip ſhould periſh by any unvoidable caſualty of the ſea, fire, or enemies, to be proved by ſufficient evidence, then the plaintiff was to have nothing. The queſtion was, whether this was an uſurious contract? Adjudged, that it was not, and that it was a good bottomry contract. Bridgman Chief Juſtice, diſtinguiſhed between a bargain and a loan; for if the bargain is plain, and the principal is in a hazard, it cannot be ſaid within the ſtatute of uſury; but it is otherwiſe if a loan, where it is intended that the principal is in no hazard; and adjudged per tot cur. for the plaintiff, that this contract is not uſurious Sid. 27. pl. 8. Hill. 12 Car. 2. C. B. Soome v. Gleem, Vin. Ab.. tit. Bott. Bonds (A. 2.)

A maſter of a ſhip hath no power to take up money by bottomry in places where his owner or owners dwell, unleſs it were only for ſo much as his part comes to in the ſaid ſhip: otherwiſe, he and his eſtate muſt ſtand liable to anſwer the ſame. But when a maſter is out of the country, and where he hath no owners, nor any goods of theirs, nor of his own, and cannot procure money by exchange or otherwiſe, and that for want of money the voyage might be retarded or defeated, money may be taken up upon bottomry, and all the owners are liable thereunto: otherwiſe he ſhall bear the loſs, that is, the owners are liable by their veſſel; and the owners have their remedy againſt the maſter. But the perſons of the owners are no ways liable by the act of the maſter for money taken up. Molloy, b. 2. c. 11. ſect. 11.

It is certain, that the greater the danger is, if there be a real adventure, the greater may the profit be of the money advanced; though ſome ſeem to be of opinion, that any profit or advantage ought not to be made of money ſo lent, no more than of that which is advanced on a ſimple loan, and on the peril of the borrower. However, all or moſt of the trading nations of Chriſtendom do at this day allow it as a matter moſt reaſonable on account of the contingency or hazard that the lender runs: and therefore ſuch money may be advanced ſeveral ways; ſo that the lender runs a hazard. Molloy, b. 2. c. 11. ſect. 14.

There is another way of advancing money called uſura marina, joined the advanced money, and the danger of the ſea together; and this is binding ſometimes upon the borrower's ſhip, goods, and perſon: the produce of this will advance ſometimes to 20, 30, and ſometimes 40 per cent. As for inſtance: a private gentleman has a 1000*l.* ready money lying by him; and having notice of an ingenious merchant who has credit beyond ſeas, and underſtands his buſineſs well, applies himſelf to him, and offers him 1000*l.* to be laid out in ſuch commodities as the merchant ſhall think convenient for that port or country the borrower deſigns them for, and that he will bear the adventure of that money during the whole voyage (which he knows may be accompliſhed within a year). Hereupon the contract is agreed upon; 5 per cent. is accounted for the intereſt, and 12 per cent. for the adventure outwards, and 12 per cent. for the goods homeward; ſo that upon the return the lender receives 29 per cent. and this cannot be uſury by the laws of this realm, on account of the riſk and danger which the lender runs. Molly, b. 2. c. 11. ſect. 14.

Bouche of court, or, as it is commonly called, budge of court, Was a certain allowance of provision from the King to his knights and servants that attended him in any military expedition. The French avoir bouche a la cour, is to have an allowance at court of meat and drink; but sometimes it is extended only to bread beer, and wine; and this was anciently in use as well in the houses of noblemen, as in the King's court, as appears by this indenture.

Breach of Promiſe, (Violatio fidei) A breaking or violating a man's word. And breach ſignifies where a perſon commits any breach of the condition of a bond, or his covenant, &c. entered into, on action upon which the breach muſt be aſſigned. In debt on bond, conditioned to give account of goods, &c. a breach muſt be alledged, or the plaintiff will have no cauſe of action. 1 Saund. 102. And when a breach is aſſigned it muſt not be general, but muſt be particular; as in action of covenant for not repairing of houſes, the breach ought to be aſſigned particularly, what is the want of reparation. If one covenants he was ſeized, and breach is aſſigned that he was not ſeized, it muſt be ſet forth who is ſeized, &c. Cro. Jac. 369.

But on mutual promiſe for one to do an act, and in conſideration thereof another to do ſome act, as to ſell goods, &c. for ſo ſuch money, a general breach that the defendant hath not performed his part, is well aſſigned, 3 Lev. 369. If the condition of a bond conſiſts of ſeveral parts in the affirmative, performance generally is a good plea. Sid. 215. In caſe of bond for performance of an award, if the defendant pleads any matter by which he admits a non-performance, and excuſes it, the plaintiff in his application muſt ſhew the award, and aſſign the breach, that the court may ſee an award was made, and judge whether it was good or not; for if it ſhould be of a void part thereof, it need not be performed. 1 Salk 138. Breaches aſſigned ought to be according to the very word of the condition or covenant, when they may be well enough, though too general. 1 Lutw. 326. Where a thing is to be done by a perſon or his aſſigns, the breach is to be that it was done neither by the one or the other. 5 Nod. 133.

If a perſon is to tender a conveyance, &c. to another, his heirs or aſſigns, breach aſſigned that the defendant did not tender a conveyance to the the plaintiff, without the words his heirs or aſſigns, is good: but if the tender be to be made by another man, his heirs, &c. and not to him, it is otherwiſe. 1 Salk. 139. Where a leſſee for years is to leave all the timber on the land which was growing there at the time of the leaſe, and he cuts down any trees, though he leaves the timber on the land at the end of his leaſe, there is a breach of covenant: for in contracts the intention of parties is chiefly to be conſidered. Raym. 464. If lands are only excepted out of a leaſe, and a perſon is diſturbed in enjoying by the leſſee, this is no breach of covenant; though it is ſaid it might be otherwiſe if a way, common, &c. be excepted. Moor 553. A perſon brings an action for a covenant broken, he ought to aſſign the breach of it in ſuch a manner that the defendant may have an iſſue. 1 Lill. Abr. 240. If ſeveral breaches are aſſigned, and the defendant demurs upon the whole declaration, the plaintiff ſhall have judgment for all that are well aſſigned, for they are as ſeveral actions. Cr. Jac. 557. Where a declaration aſſigns no particular breach of covenant, it is cured by a verdict, though ill upon demurrer. 1 Vent. 114, 126.

Formerly a plaintiff could aſſign but one breach in action of debt upon a bond for performance of covenants, though ſeveral things were broken, for one breach being proved, was a forfeiture of the bond. But in action of covenant, as many breaches might be aſſigned as the plaintiff would, becauſe he might have a particular damage upon each covenant broken; and a ſeveral iſſue muſt be taken upon every breach. 1 Neſſ. Abr. 406. And now by ſtatute, in action on bond for performance of covenants, the plaintiff may aſſign as many breaches as he pleaſes, and the jury ſhall aſſeſs damages and coſts for ſuch covenants as are proved to be broken. Stat. 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 10. And where judgment ſhall be given for the plaintiff in ſuch action on a demurrer, nil dicit, &c. he may ſuggeſt on the roll as many breaches as he thinks fit; upon which a writ of inquiry ſhall go, &c. And if before execution executed the defendant brings the coſts and damages into court, execution ſhall be ſtayed; and the plaintiff ſhall acknowledge ſatisfaction if the execution be executed: but the judgment ſhall ſtill ſtand as a ſecurity to anſwer the future breach of any covenant in the deed; for which the plaintiff, or his executors, &c. may have a ſcire facias upon ſuch judgment againſt the defendant. See the ſtat. 8 & 9 Will. 3. c. 10. See titles Condition, Covenant, and Obligation.

Bread Stat. 31 Geo. 2. c. 29. [Intituled, An act for the due making of bread; and to regulate the price and aſſize thereof; and to puniſh perſons who ſhall adulterate meal, flour, or bread.]

Sect. 1. Whereas by an act of parliament made in the 51ſt year of Hen. 3. intituled, Aſſiſa panis, & cerviſiæ, proviſion was made, among other things, for ſettling the aſſize of bread: and whereas by an act of parliament made in the 8th year of the reign of her late majeſty Queen Anne, intituled, An act to regulate the price and aſſize of bread, ſo much of the ſaid act [intituled, Aſſiſa panis & cerviſiæ] as related to the aſſize of bread, was repealed, annulled, and made void; and the ſaid act made in the ſaid 8th year of the reign of her ſaid late majeſty Queen Anne, was only made to continue in force three years, and from thence to the end of the then next ſeſſion of parliament; but by ſome ſubſequent acts of parliament the ſaid in part recited act made in the 8th year of Queen Anne, with ſeveral alterations and amendments thereto, hath been continued until the twenty-fourth of June 1757, and from thence to the end of the then next ſeſſion of parliament: and whereas it is expedient to reduce into one act the ſeveral laws now in force relating to the due making, and to the price and aſſize of bread, and to make ſome alterations in and amendments to the ſame; Be it therefore enacted, &c. that the ſaid act made in the ſaid 8th year of the reign of her ſaid late majeſty Queen Anne, and all alterations and amendments made by any acts of parliament ſubſequent thereto, for continuing, explaining, or amending the ſame, is and are hereby further continued from the expiration thereof, until the 29th of September 1758; and that from and after the ſaid 29th day of September 1758, ſo much of the ſaid ſtatute [intituled, Aſſiſa panis & cerviſiæ] as relates to the aſſize of bread, and which would otherwiſe be revived, when the ſaid recited act made in the ſaid 8th year of the ſaid Queen Anne, ſhall expire; and alſo the ſaid act of parliament of the 8th of Queen Anne, and all the alterations and amendments made by any acts of parliament ſubſequent thereto, for continuing, explaining, or amending the ſame, ſhall be and are hereby repealed, annulled, and made void.

Sect. 2. And to the intent that a plain and conſtant rule and method may be duly obſerved and kept in the making and aſſizing of the ſeveral ſorts of bread, which ſhall be made for ſale in any place or places where an aſſize of bread ſhall at any time be thought proper to be ſet in purſuance of this act, Be it further enacted, &c. it ſhall be lawful for the court, or perſon or perſons herein after authorized by this act to ſet the aſſize of bread, to ſet, aſcertain, and appoint, in any place or places within their reſpective juriſdictions, the aſſize and weight of all ſorts of bread, which ſhall, in any ſuch place or places, be made for ſale, or expoſed to ſale, and the price to be paid for the ſame reſpectively, when, and as often from time to time as any ſuch court, or perſon or perſons as aforeſaid, ſhall think proper; and that in every aſſize of bread which ſhall be ſet in purſuance of this act, reſpect ſhall from time to time be had by the court, perſon or perſons as aforeſaid, who ſhall ſet the ſame, to the price which the grain, meal, or flour, whereof ſuch bread ſhall be made, ſhall bear in the public market or markets in or near the place or places for which any ſuch aſſize ſhall ſo at any time be ſet; and making from time to time reaſonable allowance to the maker of bread for ſale, where any ſuch aſſize ſhall be ſo ſet, for their charges, labour, pains, livelihood, and profit, as ſuch court, or perſon or perſons as aforeſaid reſpectively, who ſhall at any time think fit to ſet any ſuch aſſize, ſhall from time to time deem proper.

Sect. 3. And where any aſſize of bread ſhall at any time be thought proper to be ſet for any place or places by virtue of this act, no perſon or perſons ſhall there make for ſale, or ſell, or expoſe to or for ſale, any ſort of bread, except wheaten and houſhold, otherwiſe brown bread, and ſuch other ſort or ſorts of bread, as in ſuch place or places ſhall be publickly allowed to be made or ſold by the court, or perſon or perſons who by this act are authorized to ſet an aſſize of bread for any ſuch place or places; but where it hath been uſual to make bread with the meal or flour of rye, barley, oats, beans, peaſe, or with the meal or flour of any ſuch different ſorts of grain mixed together, or the court or perſon or perſons impowered to ſet an aſſize of bread by virtue of this act, ſhall at any time think fit to order or allow in any place or places within the limits of their reſpective juriſdictions, bread to be made with rye, barley, oats, beans, or peaſe, or with the flour or meal thereof, or with the meal or flour of any ſuch different ſorts of grain mixed together, ſuch bread ſhall and may be there made and ſold; and if any perſon ſhall offend in the premiſes, and ſhall be convicted of any ſuch offence, either by his, her, or their own confeſſion, or by the oath of one or more credible witneſs or witneſſes, before any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices of the peace, within the limits of his or their juriſdiction, every one ſo offending ſhall, on every ſuch conviction, forfeit and pay any ſum not exceeding forty ſhillings, as any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, ſhall think fit and order.

Sect. 4. And in every place and places for which an aſſize of bread ſhall at any time be thought proper to be ſet by virtue of this act, the aſſize and weight of the ſeveral ſorts of bread which ſhall be there made for ſale, or ſold, or expoſed to or for ſale, and the price to be paid for the ſame reſpectively, ſhall be ſet and aſcertained according to the tables hereafter following, marked N° I. and II.

N° I.

N° I.

A TABLE

OF THE

ASSIZE and PRICE of BREAD made of WHEAT,

IN TWO PARTS.

Part the Firſt; or, The Aſſize Table,

Contains, in column N° I. the price of the buſhel of wheat Wincheſter meaſure, from 2 s. 9 d. to 14 s. 6 d. the buſhel, the allowance of the magiſtrates or juſtices to the baker for baking being included; and in column N° II. are the weights of the ſeveral loaves: ſo that (for example) if the price of wheat in the market is 5 s. the buſhel, and the magiſtrates allow 1 s. 6 d. the buſhel to the baker for baking, find 6 s. 6 d. in column N° I. and even therewith, under N° II. will be found the weights of the ſeveral loaves; but if the price in the market is 3 s. and the allowance 1 s. then the weight of the ſaid loaves will be found even with 4 s.

Note, That the wheaten loaves are three-fourths of the weight of the houſhold loaves; and if the magiſtrates or juſtices ſhall think fit to allow of any white loaves of the price of one penny or two pence, they are to weigh at all times three-fourths of the weight of the wheaten loaves of the ſame price.

Part the Second; or, The Price Table,

Contains, in column N° I. the price of the buſhel of wheat Wincheſter meaſure, from 2 s. 9 d. to 14 s. 6 d. the buſhel, the allowance of the magiſtrates or juſtices to the baker for baking being included; and in column N° II. are the prices of the peck, half peck, and quartern, wheaten and houſhold loaves: ſo that (for example) if the price of wheat in the market is 5 s. the buſhel, and the magiſtrates allow 1 s. 6 d. to the baker for baking, find 6 s. 6 d. in N° I. and even therewith, under N° II. will be found the prices of the ſeveral loaves; but if the price in the market is 3 s. the buſhel, and the allowance 1 s. then the prices of the ſaid loaves will be found even with 4 s.

Note, That the prices of the houſhold loaves are always three-fourths of the prices of the wheaten loaves; and where it ſhall be thought proper to allow of half quartern loaves, the prices of ſuch loaves (if ſold ſingly) are to be half a farthing higher than is allowed by this table, when it ſhall ſo happen that the farthing is ſplit.

And magiſtrates and juſtices, within their reſpective juriſdictions, being to ſet the aſſize and fix the price of the ſeveral loaves of bread, having reſpect to the price which the grain, meal, or flour of which the ſame are made ſhall bear in the market; but no proviſion being made how they ſhould know what price the reſpective ſorts of meal and flour ſhould be eſteemed to bear, in proportion to the price of wheat, they are therefore to take notice, That the peck loaf of each ſort of bread is to weigh, when well baken, 17 lb. 6 oz. averdupois, and the reſt in proportion; and that every ſack of meal or flour is to weigh 2 cwt. 2 qrs. net; and that from every ſack of meal or flour there ought to be produced, on the average, 20 ſuch peck loaves of bread; and, by obſerving the ſaid rule, magiſtrates and juſtices may at all times know if the baker hath more or leſs than the allowance they intend to give him.

A TABLE of the Aſſize and Price of the Bread made of the ſeveral Grains hereunder mentioned.

THIS table is divided into ſeven columns: Columns the firſt and ſeventh contain the prices of the buſhel of grain, the allowance for baking included; which prices are adapted ſo as to ſerve either for the Wincheſter buſhel of rye, the Wincheſter buſhel of barley, the Wincheſter buſhel of oats, the Wincheſter buſhel of beans, the Wincheſter buſhel of maſlin alias miſcellany, conſiſting of two-thirds wheat and one-third rye; the price of either of which buſhels in the market being known, the magiſtrates are to add the intended allowance thereto; the amount of which being found either in the column N° I. or VII. the weights which the ſeveral penny, two-penny, ſix-penny, and twelve penny loaves ought to be of will be found under the columns N° II. III. IV. and V. and the price of the reſpective peck loaves (which are to weigh 17 lb. 6 oz. each) under N° VI.

Example, When the price of the buſhel of barley in the market, with the allowance to the baker, is 4 s. look for that ſum in column the firſt or ſeventh, and under their reſpective titles in the ſame line will be found the weights which the ſeveral aſſize barley loaves ſhould be of and the price of the peck barley loaf, and ſo of each of the other ſorts.

Note, Where bread is allowed at any time to be made for ſale of peaſe only, the aſſize and price thereof are to ſet and fixed from the bean columns; and where bread is ordered to be made for ſale of a coarſe ſort of maſlin or miſcellany grain, conſiſting of one-third rye, one-third barley, and one-third either peaſe or beans, the aſſize and price thereof are to be ſet and fixed from the barley columns.

Note alſo, That this table is framed for bread to be made of the whole produce of the ſaid ſeveral grains, except the bran or hull thereof only.

Sect. 5. And every aſſize, which ſhall from time to time be ſet in any city, town corporate, hundred, diviſion, liberty, rape, or wapentake, in purſuance of this act, ſhall be always ſet in averdupoize weight, of ſixteen ounces to the pound, and not troy weight, and in the ſeveral proportions directed in or by the ſaid tables above ſet forth, or as near the ſame as may be, as to the ſeveral ſorts of bread in this act ſpecified: and that the ſaid tables ſhall extend as well to ſuch bread which ſhall be made with the flour of wheat mixed with the flour of other grain, as alſo to bread which ſhall be made with the flour of other grain or grains than wheat, which ſhall be publickly licenſed and allowed to be made into bread, in any place or places in purſuance of this act; and that the aſſize of all ſuch mixed bread ſhall be ſet and aſcertained, as near as may be, according to the ſaid tables.

Sect. 6. And the reſpective prices which the ſeveral kinds of grain, meal, and flour, fit and proper to make the different ſorts of bread which ſhall be allowed to be made in purſuance of this act, ſhall from time to time, bona fide, ſell for in the markets or places in London, where ſuch grain, meal, and flour ſhall be openly and publickly ſold during the whole market, and not at particular times thereof, or on particular contracts only, ſhall from time to time be given in and certified on oath, on ſome certain day in every week, as the court of mayor and aldermen of the city of London ſhall from time to time appoint, by the meal-weighers of the ſaid city of London, or ſuch other perſons as the ſaid court of mayor and aldermen in London ſhall from time to time direct; and ſhall alſo on ſome certain day in every week, to be appointed by the ſaid court of mayor and aldermen in London, be entered by ſuch weighers, or other perſons to be appointed as aforeſaid, in writing under their hands, in ſome book to be for that purpoſe provided by the ſaid city of London, and kept at the town clerk's office in the ſaid city: and the next day after every ſuch price ſhall be ſo given in and certified as aforeſaid, the aſſize and weight of all ſorts of bread to be ſold or expoſed to ſale by any perſon within the limits of their juriſdiction, and the price to be paid for the ſame reſpectively, ſhall from time to time be ſet by the ſaid court of mayor and aldermen in London, if the ſaid court ſhall then ſit, and if ſuch court ſhall not then ſit, by the mayor of the ſaid city for the time being; and that the aſſize of bread which ſhall be ſo ſet in London ſhall take place from ſuch time as the ſaid court ſhall order, and be in force for the ſaid city of London and the liberties thereof, and the weekly bills of mortality (the city of Weſtminſter and liberties thereof, the borough of Southwark, and weekly bills of mortality in the county of Surry excepted) until a new or other aſſize of bread in London ſhall be ſet; and that after the fixing or ſetting of every ſuch aſſize of bread by the ſaid court of mayor and aldermen of London, or the mayor of the ſaid city for the time being, when the ſaid court of mayor and aldermen of London ſhall not ſit, the aſſize ſo from time to time ſet ſhall, with all convenient ſpeed after ſetting thereof, be made publick in ſuch manner as the ſaid court of mayor and aldermen ſhall order or direct: but before any advance or reduction ſhall in any week be made by the ſaid court of mayor and aldermen, or the mayor of the ſaid city of London for the time being, in the price of bread, the meal-weighers of the ſaid city of London for the time being, or ſuch other perſons as the ſaid court of mayor and aldermen ſhall from time to time appoint to return the price of grain, meal, and flour, ſhall leave in writing at the common hall of the company of bakers in the ſaid city of London a copy of every return of the price of grain, meal, and flour which they ſhall make, and enter in ſuch book to be provided and kept at the town-clerk's office as aforeſaid, ſome time of the ſame day on which ſuch meal-weighers or other perſons ſhall make every ſuch return and entry as aforeſaid; to the intent that the ſaid company of bakers may the morning of the next day after every ſuch return and entry ſhall be made, and before any aſſize ſhall be ſet from time to time, have an opportunity to offer to the ſaid court of mayor and aldermen, if ſuch court ſhall then ſit, and if ſuch court ſhall not then ſit, to the mayor of the ſaid city of London for the time being, all ſuch objections as the ſaid company of bakers ſhall have and think fit to offer againſt any advance or reduction being that day made in London in the price of bread.

Sect. 7. And the court of mayor and aldermen of evey other city, where there ſhall be any ſuch court, and when ſuch court ſhall ſit; and where there ſhall be no ſuch court, or, there being any ſuch, when the ſame ſhall not ſit, the mayor, bailiffs, or other chief magiſtrate or magiſtrates of every ſuch other reſpective city; and in towns corporate or boroughs, the mayor, bailiffs, aldermen, or other chief magiſtrate or magiſtrates for the time being of every ſuch town corporate or borough; or two or more juſtices of the peace in ſuch towns and places where there ſhall be no ſuch mayor, bailiffs, aldermen, or chief magiſtrates, ſhall and may ſeverally and reſpectively, from time to time, as there ſhall be occaſion, within their ſeveral and reſpective juriſdictions, cauſe the reſpective prices which the ſeveral ſorts of grain, meal, and flour, fit and proper to make the different ſorts of bread which ſhall be allowed to be made in every ſuch other reſpective city, town corporate, borough, town, or place, ſhall from time to time, bona fide, ſell for in the reſpective publick markets in or near to every ſuch other town corporate, borough, town, or place, during the whole market, and not at particular times thereof, or on particular contracts only, from time to time to be given in and certified upon oath unto ſuch court, mayor, bailiffs, aldermen, chief magiſtrate or magiſtrates, or juſtices as aforeſaid reſpectively, within their ſeveral juriſdictions, in ſuch manner, and by ſuch perſon or perſons, and on ſuch day in every week, as any ſuch reſpective court, mayor, bailiffs, aldermen, chief magiſtrate or magiſtrates, or juſtices as aforeſaid, within their reſpective juriſdictions, ſhall from time to time appoint; and the price which ſhall be ſo certified, ſhall from time to time be entered by the reſpective perſon or perſons who ſhall certify the ſame, in ſome book or books to be provided by ſuch reſpective perſon or perſons, and kept by him or them for that purpoſe: and within two days after every ſuch price ſhall be ſo returned, the aſſize and weight of bread for every ſuch other reſpective city, town corporate, borough, town, and place, and the price to be paid for the ſame, ſhall, from time to time, be ſet by the court of mayor and aldermen of every ſuch other city where there ſhall be any ſuch court, and when the ſame ſhall ſit; and when ſuch court ſhall not ſit, by the mayor of every ſuch other reſpective city, and where there ſhall be no ſuch court of mayor and aldermen in any ſuch other city, then by the mayor, bailiffs, or other chief magiſtrate or magiſtrates of every ſuch other city; and in towns corporate, and boroughs, by the mayor, bailiffs, aldermen, or other chief magiſtrate or magiſtrates of every ſuch town corporate or borough; and by two or more juſtices of the peace in towns or places where there ſhall be no ſuch mayor, bailiffs, aldermen, or chief magiſtrate or magiſtrates: and the aſſize and weight of bread, and price to be paid for the ſame, which ſhall be ſo from time to time ſet in every ſuch other city, and in every town corporate or borough, and in every town and place where there ſhall be no ſuch mayor, bailiffs, aldermen, or chief magiſtrate or magiſtrates as aforeſaid, ſhall commence and take place on ſuch day in every week, and be in force for ſuch time, not exceeding ſeven days from the ſetting of every ſuch aſſize, and ſhall be made publick in ſuch manner as ſuch court of mayor and aldermen in every ſuch other city where there ſhall be any ſuch court, and when the ſame ſhall ſit, and where there ſhall be no ſuch court of mayor and aldermen, or there being any ſuch, when the ſame ſhall not ſit, as the mayor, bailiffs, or other chief magiſtrate or magiſtrates as aforeſaid of every ſuch other city, and as the mayor, bailiffs, aldermen, or other chief magiſtrate or magiſtrates as aforeſaid of every ſuch town corporate or borough; and in towns and places where there ſhall be no ſuch mayor, bailiffs, aldermen, or chief magiſtrate or magiſtrates as aforeſaid, as any two ſuch juſtices as aforeſaid ſhall, within their reſpective juriſdictions, from time to time direct.

Sect. 8. And if any two or more juſtices of the peace of counties at large, ridings, or diviſions, ſhall at any time think fit to ſet an aſſize of bread for any place or places within the limits of their reſpective juriſdictions, then and in any ſuch caſe, it ſhall be lawful for any ſuch two or more juſtices, within the limits of their reſpective juriſdictions, to cauſe the price which grain, meal, and flour fit to make the ſeveral ſorts of bread which ſhall be made for ſale in any ſuch place or places, ſhall from time to time, bona fide, ſell for in the reſpective public corn market or corn markets, in or near any ſuch place or places reſpectively, during the whole market, and not at particular times thereof, or on ſpecial contracts only, to be from time to time given, and certified on oath, to them at their reſpective houſes or places of abode in any ſuch county, riding, or diviſion, on ſuch day in every week as any ſuch two or more juſtices ſhall for that purpoſe fix on and appoint, by the reſpective clerks of the market of the ſeveral markets in or near ſuch reſpective place or places, or ſuch other perſon or perſons as any ſuch two or more juſtices as aforeſaid reſpectively, within their reſpective juriſdictions, ſhall for that purpoſe appoint; and that the price of grain, meal, and flour which ſhall be ſo returned, ſhall from time to time be entered by the reſpective perſon or perſons who ſhall ſo return the ſame, in ſome book or books to be provided by him or them, and kept for that purpoſe; and within two days after any ſuch return of the price of grain, meal and flour, ſhall be made to any ſuch two or more juſtices as aforeſaid, the price and aſſize of bread may be by them, or any two of them, ſet for every ſuch place or places, for any time not exceeding fourteen days from every ſetting thereof; and the aſſize which ſhall be ſo from time to time ſet, ſhall commence and be in force at ſuch time after every ſetting thereof, and be made public in ſuch place or places for which the ſame ſhall be ſo ſet, in ſuch manner as the juſtices, who ſhall ſet the ſame, ſhall order or direct.

Sect. 9. And any maker of bread for ſale in any ſuch other city, town corporate, borough, or place, where the price and aſſize of bread, in purſuance of this act, ſhall at any time be thought proper to be ſet, ſhall have liberty, at all ſeaſonable times, in the day time, the next day after every return of the price of grain, meal, and flour ſhall be made for any ſuch other city, town corporate, borough, town, or place, and entered in the proper book hereby directed to be provided and kept for that purpoſe, to ſee the entry which ſhall be made in ſuch book of the price of grain, meal, and flour, without paying any thing for the ſame; to the intent that every ſuch maker of bread for ſale may have an opportunity on the ſaid next day after any ſuch entry as aforeſaid ſhall be made as hereby is directed, to offer to any ſuch court, mayor, bailiffs, aldermen, or other chief magiſtrate or magiſtrates, or juſtices as aforeſaid, who ſhall think fit to ſet any ſuch aſſize of bread within their reſpective juriſdictions, and before any ſuch aſſize ſhall be ſet, ſuch objections as any ſuch maker of bread for ſale can reaſonably make againſt any advance or reduction being at any time made in the aſſize or price of bread in any ſuch other city, town corporate, borough, town, or place.

Sect. 10. And no baker or maker of bread for ſale ſhall be liable or compellable to pay any fee, gratuity, or reward to any perſon or perſons for or by means of any aſſize of bread being at any time ſet, altered, or publiſhed by virtue of or under this act.

Sect. 11. And the form of the return, or the certificate of the price of grain, meal, or flour ſhall from time to time be to the purport or effect as followeth; that is to ſay,

And in places where quartern, half-peck, and peck loaves ſhall be made, then as follows;

	lb.	oz.		s.	d.
The peck loaf wheaten is to weigh			and to be ſold for
Ditto houſehold is to weigh			and to be ſold for

And the half-peck and quarter of a peck loaves of wheaten and houſehold bread are to weigh, from time to time, in proportion to the weight of a peck loaf of wheaten or houſehold bread ought to weigh, and are to be ſold according to the price a peck loaf of wheaten or houſehold bread reſpectively is to be ſold; and whenever any bread ſhall be ordered to be made by any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, or juſtices, within the limits of their juriſdiction, with the meal or flour of rye, barley, oats, peas or beans, either alone or mixed with the meal or flour of any other grain or grains, the aſſize of ſuch bread ſhall be made public in ſuch manner as the ſaid magiſtrate or magiſtrates, or juſtices, who ſhall ſet ſuch aſſize, ſhall from time to time direct.

Sect. 13. And in places where any ſix-penny, twelve-penny, and eighteen-penny loaves ſhall at any time be ordered or allowed to be made or ſold, no peck, half-peck, or quarter of a peck loaves ſhall be permitted or allowed at the ſame time to be there made or ſold; to the intent that one of thoſe ſorts of loaves of bread may not be ſold deſignedly or otherwiſe for the other ſort thereof, to the injury of unwary people; upon pain that every one who ſhall offend in the premiſſes, and ſhall be thereof convicted convicted in manner herein after prescribed, shall, for every such offence, forfeit a sum not exceeding forty shillings, nor less than twenty shillings, as the magistrate or magistrates, justice or justices before whom any such offender shall be convicted, shall from time to time think fit.

Sect. 14. And if, for the better carrying into execution this act, the justices of the peace of any county, riding, or division, shall at any general or general quarter sessions of the peace to be held by them for any such county, riding, or division, think fit to ascertain or fix, that any hundred or hundreds, or other place or places, in any such county, riding, or division, ought to be estimated or considered, as of, or in any one particular hundred, riding, or division of any such county, riding, or division, in order that the assize of bread which shall be set for such particular hundred, place or places, may extend to or comprize such other hundred, place or places, then, and in any such case, it shall be lawful for them so to do; but by so doing thereof, no justice of the peace of any such county, riding, or division shall be excluded or debarred from acting as a justice of the peace in any hundred, riding, or division of any such county in which any such particular towns, districts, or places shall lie, or the assize for them shall be set.

Sect. 15. And an entry shall from time to time be made by every clerk of the market, or other person or persons, who, in pursuance of this act, shall be appointed to make such return and certificate as hereby is directed respectively, in some book or books to be provided and kept by them respectively for that purpose, of every return which shall be made, in pursuance of this act, by them respectively; and also of the rate at which the price, assize, and weight of bread shall from time to time be set or fixed within the jurisdiction of every such clerk of the market, or other person who shall, in pursuance of this act, be appointed to make such return or certificate as aforesaid; which book or books any inhabitant of every such city, town corporate, borough, franchise, hundred, riding, division, liberty, lath, rape, or wapentake, shall at all seasonable times, in the day-time, have liberty to see and inspect, without any fee or reward being to be paid for the same.

Sect. 16. And after an assize of bread shall be set, no alteration shall be made therein in any subsequent week, either to raise the same higher, or to sink the same lower, unless and except when the price of wheat or other grain shall be returned as having rose three-pence each bushel more than the last return made, or having fallen three-pence each bushel lower than the said last return; no provision being made by the said assize tables for altering any assize, when the variation in the price of wheat or other grain shall not in any week have amounted to, and have been returned three-pence a bushel.

Sect. 17. And if any meal-weigher, clerk of any market, or other person or persons who shall be appointed to certify or return, as hereby is directed, the price of grain, meal, and flour, shall in any wise neglect, omit, or refuse to do any matters or things by this act required or directed to be done by him or them respectively, or shall designedly or knowingly make any false certificate or return; or if any constable, headborough, or other peace-officer, shall refuse or neglect to observe or obey any warrant in writing which shall be delivered to him under the hand and seal of any magistrate or justice of the peace, or to do any other act requisite to be done by him or them for the carrying this act, or any of the powers or authorities hereby given, into execution; then every person so offending in any of the premisses, on being convicted of any such offence, shall forfeit and pay for every such offence, any sum not exceeding five pounds, nor less than twenty shillings, as the magistrate or magistrates, justice or justices, before whom any such offender or offenders shall be convicted, shall think fit and order, every time he or they shall so offend and be convicted, as hereby is directed.

Sect. 18. And in case any buyers or sellers of or dealers in corn, grain, meal, or flour, on reasonable request to him, her, or them made by the meal-weighers of the city of London in London, or by the respective clerks of the markets or other persons, who, in pursuance of this act, shall be appointed to give in and certify, as hereby is directed, the prices of grain, meal, and flour from the respective markets or places within their respective jurisdictions, shall refuse to disclose and make known to such meal-weighers, clerks of the markets, or other persons who shall be appointed to make such returns and certificates as hereby are directed respectively, and also shall request the same within their respective jurisdictions, the true real prices the several sorts of grain, meal, and flour shall be bona fide bought at or sold by or for him, her, or them respectively, at any corn market or corn markets, or other place where corn, grain, meal, or flour is or shall be usually, openly, or publickly sold, within the jurisdiction of any such person or persons as aforesaid, who shall request any such account to be given to him or them; or shall knowingly give in to any such meal-weigher, clerk of the market, or other person who shall be appointed in pursuance of this act to give in and certify the price of grain, meal, and flour, any false or untrue price or prices of any grain, meal, or flour bought or sold, or agreed so to be, or any price which hath been made by any deceitful means; then, and in every such case, he, she, or they so offending, on being convicted of any such offence by the oath of one or more credible witness or witnesses, or solemn affirmation of any credible witness or witnesses, being a quaker, or on the confession of the party accused, shall forfeit any sum not exceeding ten pounds, nor less than forty shillings, as the magistrate or magistrates, justice or justices, before whom any such offender or offenders shall be convicted, shall think fit and order, every time he, she, or they shall so offend, and be convicted of any such offence.

Sect. 19. And if any such court, magistrate or magistrates, justice or justices as aforesaid, who shall have thought proper to have ordered any return to be made of the price of grain, meal, or flour, within their respective jurisdictions, shall, at any time within the space of three days after any such return shall have been made, suspect that the same was not truly and bona fide made, then, and in such case, it shall be lawful for any such court, magistrate or magistrates, justice or justices, within their respective jurisdictions, to summon before them respectively any person or persons who shall have bought or sold, or shall be suspected to have bought or sold, or agreed to buy or sell any grain, meal, or flour, within their respective jurisdictions, or who shall be thought likely to give any information concerning the premisses, and to examine them respectively upon their several oaths, touching the rates and prices the several sorts of grain, meal, and flour, or any of them, were there really and bona fide bought at, or sold for, or agreed so to be by him, her, or them respectively, at any time or times within the space of seven days preceding the summoning of him, her, or them respectively: and if any person or persons who shall be so summoned as aforesaid, shall neglect or refuse to appear on such summons (and proof shall be made on oath of such summons having been duly served upon him, her, or them for that purpose) or if any person or persons so summoned shall appear, and neglect or refuse to answer such lawful questions touching the premisses, as shall be proposed to him, her, or them by any such court, magistrate or magistrates, justice or justices as aforesaid, within their respective jurisdictions, without some just or reasonable excuse, to be allowed of by any such court, magistrate or magistrate, justice or justices as aforesaid, he, she, or they so offending on being convicted of any such offence, either by the oath of one or more credible witness or witnesses, or his, her, or their own confession before any such court, magistrate or magistrates, justice or justices, shall, on every such conviction, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten pounds, and not less than forty shillings, as any such court, magistrate or magistrates, justice or justices, shall think fit and order: and if any person who shall be so examined on oath shall wilfully wilfully forfwear him or herſelf, every ſuch perſon ſhall be ſubject and liable to be proſecuted as for perjury, by indictment or information by due courſe of law; and, if convicted, ſhall be liable to the penalties perſons convicted of wilful and corrupt perjury are ſubject and liable to; provided that the party or parties ſo ſummoned be not obliged to travel above five miles from the place or places of his, her, or their abode.

Sect. 20. And whenever any court as aforeſaid, magiſtrate or magiſtrates, or juſtices of the peace, ſhall order any bread to be made within their reſpective juriſdictions, of or with the flour or meal of any other grain or grains than wheat, or to be mixed with the flour of wheat, or to be made with the flour or meal of any other ſort or ſorts of grain or grains, either ſeparate or mixed together, all perſons who ſhall make any bread for ſale, in any place where any ſuch order or orders ſhall at any time be made, ſhall from time to time make bread with ſuch mixed meal or flour, in every ſuch place and places, in ſuch manner as they ſhall be required and ordered by any ſuch court, magiſtrate or magiſtrates, or juſtices as aforeſaid, within their reſpective juriſdictions, and ſhall from time to time make the ſame of ſuch weight and goodneſs, and ſhall ſell the ſame at ſuch prices, as any ſuch court, magiſtrate or magiſtrates, or juſtices, within their reſpective juriſdictions, ſhall from time to time order or direct; upon pain that every perſon who ſhall at any time offend in the premiſſes, and ſhall be convicted of any ſuch offence in the manner herein after preſcribed by this act, ſhall forfeit any ſum not exceeding five pounds, nor leſs than forty ſhillings, as the magiſtrate or magiſtrates before whom any ſuch offender or offenders ſhall be convicted ſhall think fit and order, every time he, ſhe, or they ſhall ſo offend and be convicted.

Sect. 21. And the ſeveral ſorts of bread which ſhall be made for ſale, or ſold, or expoſed to or for ſale, in any place or places, ſhall always be well made, and in their ſeveral and reſpective degrees, according to the goodneſs of the ſeveral ſorts of meal or flour whereof the ſame ought to be made; and that no alum, or preparation or mixture in which alum ſhall be an ingredient, or any other mixture or ingredient whatſoever (except only the genuine meal or flour which ought to be put therein, and common ſalt, pure water, eggs, milk, yeaſt, and barm, or ſuch leaven as ſhall at any time be allowed to be put therein by the court, or perſon or perſons who ſhall, by virtue of this act, have ſet any aſſize of bread, for the place or places where any ſuch leaven ſhall be uſed; and where no ſuch aſſize ſhall have been ſet, then ſuch leaven as any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices of the peace, within his or their juriſdiction, ſhall allow to be uſed in making of bread) ſhall be put into, or in any wiſe uſed in making dough, or any bread to be ſold, or as or for leaven to ferment any dough, or on any other account in the trade or myſtery of making bread, under any colour or pretence whatſoever; upon pain that every perſon (other than a ſervant or journeyman) who ſhall knowingly offend in the premiſſes, and ſhall be convicted of any ſuch offence, either by his, her, or their own confeſſion, or by the oath of one or more credible witneſs or witneſſes, before any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices of the peace, within the limits of his or their juriſdiction, ſhall, on every ſuch conviction, forfeit and pay any ſum of money not exceeding ten pounds, and not leſs than forty ſhillings; or ſhall, by warrant under the hand and ſeal or hands and ſeals of any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, within his or their reſpective juriſdiction, be apprehended and committed to the houſe of correction, or ſome priſon of the county, city, town corporate, borough, riding, diviſion, or place where the offence ſhall have been committed, or the offender or offenders ſhall be apprehended, there to remain and be kept to hard labour for any time not exceeding one calendar month, nor leſs than ten days from the time of ſuch commitment, as any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, ſhall think fit and order; and if any ſervant or journeyman baker ſhall knowingly offend in the premiſſes, and ſhall be convicted of any ſuch offence, either by his, her, or their own confeſſion, or by the oath of one or more credible witneſs or witneſſes, before any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices of the peace, within the limits of his or their juriſdiction, he, ſhe, or they who ſhall ſo offend, ſhall, on every ſuch conviction, forfeit and pay any ſum of money not exceeding five pounds, and not leſs than twenty ſhillings; or ſhall, by warrant under the hand and ſeal or hands and ſeals of any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, within his or their reſpective juriſdiction, be apprehended and committed to the houſe of correction, or ſome priſon of the county, city, town corporate, borough, riding, diviſion, liberty, or place, where the offence ſhall have been committed, or the offender or offenders ſhall be apprehended, there to remain and be kept to hard labour for any time not exceeding one calendar month, nor leſs than ten days from the time of every ſuch commitment, as any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, ſhall think fit and order; and it ſhall and may be lawful for the magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom any ſuch offender ſhall be convicted, out of the money forfeited, when recovered, to cauſe the offender's name, place of abode, and offence to be publiſhed in ſome news-paper, which ſhall be printed or publiſhed in or near the county, city, or place where any ſuch offence ſhall have been committed.

Sect. 22. And no perſon ſhall knowingly put into any corn, meal, or flour which ſhall be ground, dreſſed, bolted, or manufactured for ſale, either at the time of grinding, dreſſing, bolting, or in any wiſe manufacturing the ſame, or at any other time or times, any ingredient, mixture, or thing whatſoever; or ſhall knowingly ſell, offer, or expoſe to or for ſale any meal or flour of one ſort of grain as or for the meal or flour of any other ſort of grain, or any thing as or for, or mixed with, the meal or flour of any grain, which ſhall not be the real and genuine meal or flour of the grain the ſame ſhall import to be and ought to be; upon pain that every perſon who ſhall offend in the premiſſes, and ſhall be thereof convicted in manner herein after preſcribed, ſhall forfeit and pay for every ſuch offence, any ſum not exceeding five pounds, nor leſs than forty ſhillings, as the magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom any ſuch offender or offenders ſhall be convicted, ſhall think fit or order.

Sect. 23. And no perſon ſhall knowingly put into any bread which ſhall be made for ſale, any mixture of meal or flour of any other ſort of grain than of the grain the ſame ſhall import to be, and ſhall be allowed to be made of, in purſuance of this act; or ſhall put into any bread which ſhall be made for ſale, any larger or other proportion of any other or different ſort or ſorts of grain, or the meal or flour thereof, than what ſhall be appointed or allowed to be put therein by this act; or any mixture or thing as for or in lieu of flour, which ſhall not really be the genuine flour the ſame ſhall import to be, and ought to be; upon pain that every perſon who ſhall offend in the premiſſes, and ſhall be convicted of any ſuch offence in manner herein after preſcribed, ſhall forfeit and pay any ſum not exceeding five pounds, nor leſs than twenty ſhillings, as the magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom any ſuch offender or offenders ſhall be convicted, ſhall think fit and order, every time he, ſhe, or they ſhall ſo offend and be convicted.

Sect. 24. And if any perſon or perſons who ſhall make any bread for ſale, or who ſend out, or ſell, or expoſe to or for ſale any bread, ſhall make, ſend out, ſell, or expoſe to or for ſale any bread which ſhall be deficient in weight, according to the aſſize which ſhall be ſet for any ſuch bread from time to time to be ſold at, in purſuance of this act, he, ſhe, or they ſo offending in the premiſſes, and being thereof convicted in manner herein after preſcribed of any ſuch offence, ſhall forfeit and pay a ſum not exceeding five ſhillings, nor leſs than one ſhilling, for every ounce of bread which ſhall at any time be wanting or deficient in the weight every ſuch loaf ought to be of; and for every loaf of bread which ſhall be found wanting leſs than an ounce of the weight the ſame ought to be of, a ſum not exceeding two ſhillings and ſix pence, nor leſs than ſix-pence; as any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, ſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom any ſuch bread which ſhall not be of the due weight the ſame ought to be, ſhall be brought, ſhall think fit or order, ſo as ſuch bread which ſhall be complained of as wanting at any time in the weight the ſame ought to be of, in any city, town corporate, borough, liberty, or franchiſe, or the juriſdiction thereof, or within the weekly bills of mortality, ſhall from time to time be brought before ſome magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, having juriſdiction in the premiſſes, and ſhall be weighed before ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, within 24 hours after the ſame ſhall have been baked, ſold, or expoſed to or for ſale; and ſo as ſuch bread which ſhall be complained of as wanting at any time in the weight the ſame ought to be of, in any hundred, riding, diviſion, liberty, rape, wapentake, or place, ſhall from time to time be brought before ſome juſtice or juſtices of the peace of ſuch hundred, riding, diviſion, liberty, rape, or wapentake, or other place, and ſhall be weighed before ſuch juſtice or juſtices within three days after the ſame ſhall have been baked, ſold, or expoſed to or for ſale; unleſs it ſhall be made out to the ſatisfaction of any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, by or on the behalf of the party or parties againſt whom any ſuch complaint or information ſhall be made, that ſuch deficiency in weight wholly aroſe from ſome unavoidable accident in baking, or otherwiſe, or was occaſioned by or through ſome contrivances or confederacy.

Sect. 25. And every perſon who ſhall make for ſale, or ſell, expoſe, or ſend out, to or for ſale, any ſort of bread whatſoever, ſhall from time to time cauſe to be fairly imprinted or marked on every loaf of each reſpective ſort of bread which he, ſhe, or they ſhall make or ſell, or carry out, or expoſe to or for ſale, the Roman letters herein after-mentioned; that is to ſay, upon every loaf of bread which ſhall be made, ſold, carried out, or expoſed to or for ſale, as wheaten bread, a large Roman W; and upon every loaf of bread which ſhall be made, ſold, carried out, or expoſed to or for ſale, as houſhold or brown bread, a large Roman H; and that every perſon who ſhall make for ſale, or ſhall ſell, carry out, or expoſe to or for ſale, any loaf of any ſort of bread, which ſhall be allowed to be made in purſuance of this act, which ſhall not be marked purſuant to the directions of this act, ſo as the ſame may, on the view thereof, be aſcertained from time to time under what denomination or ſort of bread every ſuch loaf was made, and ought to be weighed (except as to ſuch loaves which ſhall be raſped after the beſpeaking or purchaſing thereof, by the particular deſire of any perſon who ſhall order the ſame to be ſo raſped, for his, her, or their own uſe or uſes) ſhall, for every time he, ſhe, or they ſhall offend in the premiſſes, and be thereof convicted, in manner herein after preſcribed, forfeit and pay a ſum not exceeding twenty ſhillings, nor leſs than five ſhillings, as any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom the offender ſhall be convicted, ſhall direct, for every loaf of bread not marked as hereby is directed.

Sect. 26. And no baker, or other perſon or perſons, ſhall aſk, demand, or take, for any bread which he, ſhe, or they ſhall ſell, or expoſe to or for ſale, any greater or higher price than ſuch bread ſhall be aſcertained to be ſold for or at by the court, magiſtrate or magiſtrates, or juſtices, hereby authorized to ſet the price and aſſize of bread, within their reſpective juriſdictions; and that no baker, or other perſon who ſhall make any bread for ſale, ſhall refuſe or decline to ſell any loaf or loaves of any of the ſorts of bread which, in purſuance of this act, ſhall be allowed or ordered to be made, to any perſon or perſons who ſhall tender ready money in payment for the ſame, at or for the price ſuch bread, by the aſſize which ſhall have been ſet in reſpect thereof, ſhall be fixed at, or aſcertained to be ſold for, when any ſuch baker, or other perſon who ſhall make bread for ſale, ſhall have any loaf of any ſuch bread in his or their houſe, bakehouſe, ſhop, or poſſeſſion, to be ſold, more than ſhall be requiſite for the immediate neceſſary uſe of his, her, or their own family, or cuſtomers; and which it ſhall be incumbent on ſuch baker, or other perſon who ſhall be complained of for refuſing or declining to ſell any ſuch bread, to prove before the magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, to whom any ſuch complaint ſhall be made, if thereunto required by the party or parties who ſhall make any ſuch complaint; upon pain that every perſon who ſhall be convicted of any ſuch offence, in manner herein after preſcribed, ſhall forfeit and pay a ſum not exceeding forty ſhillings, nor leſs than ten ſhillings, as the magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom any ſuch offender or offenders ſhall be convicted, ſhall think fit and order, every time he, ſhe, or they ſhall ſo offend and be convicted.

Sect. 27. Provided further, that no perſon ſhall ſell, or offer to ſale, any bread of an inferior quality to wheaten bread, at a higher price than houſhold bread ſhall be ſet at by the aſſize; and if any perſon ſhall offend in the premiſſes, he ſhall forfeit and pay for every ſuch offence, on being convicted thereof, either by his, her, or their confeſſion, or by the oath of one or more credible witneſs or witneſſes, before any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, within whoſe juriſdiction any ſuch offence ſhall have been committed, the ſum of twenty ſhillings.

Sect. 28. And that the good deſign of this ſtatute may be the more effectually accompliſhed, it ſhall be lawful for any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices of the peace, within the limits of their reſpective juriſdictions, and alſo for any peace officer or officers, authorized by warrant under the hand and ſeal or hands and ſeals of any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, and which warrant any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, is and are hereby impowered to grant, at ſeaſonable times in the day-time to enter into any houſe, ſhop, ſtall, bakehouſe, warehouſe, or outhouſe, of or belonging to any baker, or ſeller of bread, to ſearch for, view, weigh, and try all or any the bread which ſhall be there found: and if any bread, on any ſuch ſearch, ſhall be found to be wanting either in the goodneſs of the ſtuff whereof the ſame ſhall be made, or to be deficient in the due baking or working thereof, or ſhall be wanting in the due weight, or ſhall not be truly marked according to the directions of this act, or ſhall be any other ſort of bread than ſhall be allowed to be made by virtue of this act; any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, peace officer or peace officers, within the limits of their reſpective juriſdictions, may ſeize the ſame; and any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, may diſpoſe thereof as he or they, in his or their diſcretion, ſhall think fit.

Sect. 29. And if information ſhall be given, on oath, to any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices of the peace, that there is reaſonable cauſe to ſuſpect that any miller who grinds any grain for toll or reward, or any perſon or perſons who doth or do dreſs, bolt, or in any wiſe manufacture any meal or flour for ſale, or any maker of bread for ſale, within the limits of the juriſdiction of any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, doth or do mix up with, or put into, any meal or flour ground or manufactured for ſale, any mixture, ingredient, or thing whatſoever, not the genuine produce of the grain ſuch meal or flour ſhall import and ought to be, or whereby the purity of any meal or flour in the poſſeſſion of any ſuch miller, mealman, or baker, is or ſhall be in any wiſe adulterated; then, and in every ſuch caſe, it ſhall be lawful for any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, and alſo for any peace officer or officers, authorized by warrant or warrants, to him or them directed, under the hand and ſeal or hands and ſeals of any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, within the limits of their reſpective juriſdictions (and which warrant or warrants every ſuch magiſtrate and magiſtrates, juſtice and juſtices, is and are hereby impowered to grant) at all ſeaſonable times in the day-time to enter into any houſe, mill, ſhop, bake-houſe, ſtall, bolting-houſe, paſtry, warehouſe, or outhouſe, of or belonging to any ſuch miller, mealman, or baker, and to ſearch and examine whether any mixture, ingredient, or thing, not the genuine produce of the grain ſuch meal or flour ſhall import and ought to be, ſhall have been mixed up with, or put into wilfully forſwear him or herſelf, every ſuch perſon ſhall be ſubject and liable to be proſecuted as for perjury, by indictment or information by due courſe of law; and, if convicted, ſhall be liable to the penalties perſons convicted of wilful and corrupt perjury are ſubject and liable to; provided that the party or parties ſo ſummoned be not obliged to travel above five miles from the place or places of his, her, or their abode.

Sect. 20. And whenever any court as aforeſaid, magiſtrate or magiſtrates, or juſtices of the peace, ſhall order any bread to be made within their reſpective juriſdictions, of or with the flour or meal of any other grain or grains than wheat, or to be mixed with the flour of wheat, or to be made with the flour or meal of any other ſort or ſorts of grain or grains, either ſeparate or mixed together, all perſons who ſhall make any bread for ſale, in any place where any ſuch order or orders ſhall at any time be made, ſhall from time to time make bread with ſuch mixed meal or flour, in every ſuch place and places, in ſuch manner as they ſhall be required and ordered by any ſuch court, magiſtrate or magiſtrates, or juſtices as aforeſaid, within their reſpective juriſdictions, and ſhall from time to time make the ſame of ſuch weight and goodneſs, and ſhall ſell the ſame at ſuch prices, as any ſuch court, magiſtrate or magiſtrates, or juſtices, within their reſpective juriſdictions, ſhall from time to time order or direct; upon pain that every perſon who ſhall at any time offend in the premiſſes, and ſhall be convicted of any ſuch offence in the manner herein after preſcribed by this act, ſhall forfeit any ſum not exceeding five pounds, nor leſs than forty ſhillings, as the magiſtrate or magiſtrates before whom any ſuch offender or offenders ſhall be convicted ſhall think fit and order, every time he, ſhe, or they ſhall ſo offend and be convicted.

Sect. 21. And the ſeveral ſorts of bread which ſhall be made for ſale, or ſold, or expoſed to or for ſale, in any place or places, ſhall always be well made, and in their ſeveral and reſpective degrees, according to the goodneſs of the ſeveral ſorts of meal or flour whereof the ſame ought to be made; and that no alum, or preparation or mixture in which alum ſhall be an ingredient, or any other mixture or ingredient whatſoever (except only the genuine meal or flour which ought to be put therein, and common ſalt, pure water, eggs, milk, yeaſt, and barm, or ſuch leaven as ſhall at any time be allowed to be put therein by the court, or perſon or perſons who ſhall, by virtue of this act, have ſet any aſſize of bread, for the place or places where any ſuch leaven ſhall be uſed; and where no ſuch aſſize ſhall have been ſet, then ſuch leaven as any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices of the peace, within his or their juriſdiction, ſhall allow to be uſed in making of bread) ſhall be put into, or in any wiſe uſed in making dough, or any bread to be ſold, or as or for leaven to ferment any dough, or on any other account in the trade or myſtery of making bread, under any colour or pretence whatſoever; upon pain that every perſon (other than a ſervant or journeyman) who ſhall knowingly offend in the premiſſes, and ſhall be convicted of any ſuch offence, either by his, her, or their own confeſſion, or by the oath of one or more credible witneſs or witneſſes, before any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices of the peace, within the limits of his or their juriſdiction, ſhall, on every ſuch conviction, forfeit and pay any ſum of money not exceeding ten pounds, and not leſs than forty ſhillings; or ſhall, by warrant under the hand and ſeal or hands and ſeals of any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, within his or their reſpective juriſdiction, be apprehended and committed to the houſe of correction, or ſome priſon of the county, city, town corporate, borough, riding, diviſion, or place where the offence ſhall have been committed, or the offender or offenders ſhall be apprehended, there to remain and be kept to hard labour for any time not exceeding one calendar month, nor leſs than ten days from the time of ſuch commitment, as any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, ſhall think fit and order; and if any ſervant or journeyman baker ſhall knowingly offend in the premiſſes, and ſhall be convicted of any ſuch offence, either by his, her, or their own confeſſion, or by the oath of one or more credible witneſs or witneſſes, before any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices of the peace, within the limits of his or their juriſdiction, he, ſhe, or they who ſhall ſo offend, ſhall, on every ſuch conviction, forfeit and pay any ſum of money not exceeding five pounds, and not leſs than twenty ſhillings; or ſhall, by warrant under the hand and ſeal or hands and ſeals of any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, within his or their reſpective juriſdiction, be apprehended and committed to the houſe of correction, or ſome priſon of the county, city, town corporate, borough, riding, diviſion, liberty, or place, where the offence ſhall have been committed, or the offender or offenders ſhall be apprehended, there to remain and be kept to hard labour for any time not exceeding one calendar month, nor leſs than ten days from the time of every ſuch commitment, as any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, ſhall think fit and order; and it ſhall and may be lawful for the magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom any ſuch offender ſhall be convicted, out of the money forfeited, when recovered, to cauſe the offender's name, place of abode, and offence to be publiſhed in ſome news-paper, which ſhall be printed or publiſhed in or near the county, city, or place where any ſuch offence ſhall have been committed.

Sect. 22. And no perſon ſhall knowingly put into any corn, meal, or flour which ſhall be ground, dreſſed, bolted, or manufactured for ſale, either at the time of grinding, dreſſing, bolting, or in any wiſe manufacturing the ſame, or at any other time or times, any ingredient, mixture, or thing whatſoever; or ſhall knowingly ſell, offer, or expoſe to or for ſale any meal or flour of one ſort of grain as or for the meal or flour of any other ſort of grain, or any thing as or for, or mixed with, the meal or flour of any grain, which ſhall not be the real and genuine meal or flour of the grain the ſame ſhall import to be and ought to be; upon pain that every perſon who ſhall offend in the premiſſes, and ſhall be thereof convicted in manner herein after preſcribed, ſhall forfeit and pay for every ſuch offence, any ſum not exceeding five pounds, nor leſs than forty ſhillings, as the magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom any ſuch offender or offenders ſhall be convicted, ſhall think fit or order.

Sect. 23. And no perſon ſhall knowingly put into any bread which ſhall be made for ſale, any mixture of meal or flour of any other ſort of grain than of the grain the ſame ſhall import to be, and ſhall be allowed to be made of, in purſuance of this act; or ſhall put into any bread which ſhall be made for ſale, any larger or other proportion of any other or different ſort or ſorts of grain, or the meal or flour thereof, than what ſhall be appointed or allowed to be put therein by this act; or any mixture or thing as for or in lieu of flour, which ſhall not really be the genuine flour the ſame ſhall import to be, and ought to be; upon pain that every perſon who ſhall offend in the premiſſes, and ſhall be convicted of any ſuch offence in manner herein after preſcribed, ſhall forfeit and pay any ſum not exceeding five pounds, nor leſs than twenty ſhillings, as the magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom any ſuch offender or offenders ſhall be convicted, ſhall think fit and order, every time he, ſhe, or they ſhall ſo offend and be convicted.

Sect. 24. And if any perſon or perſons who ſhall make any bread for ſale, or who ſend out, or ſell, or expoſe to or for ſale any bread, ſhall make, ſend out, ſell, or expoſe to or for ſale any bread which ſhall be deficient in weight, according to the aſſize which ſhall be ſet for any ſuch bread from time to time to be ſold at, in purſuance of this act, he, ſhe, or they ſo offending in the premiſſes, and being thereof convicted in manner herein after preſcribed of any ſuch offence, ſhall forfeit and pay a ſum not exceeding five ſhillings, nor leſs than one ſhilling, for every ounce of bread which ſhall at any time be wanting or deficient in the weight every ſuch loaf ought to be of; and for every loaf of bread which ſhall be found wanting leſs than an ounce of the weight the ſame ought to be of, a ſum not exceeding two ſhillings and ſix pence, nor leſs than ſix-pence; as any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, ſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom any ſuch bread which ſhall not be of the due weight the ſame ought to be, ſhall be brought, ſhall think fit or order, ſo as ſuch bread which ſhall be complained of as wanting at any time in the weight the ſame ought to be of, in any city, town corporate, borough, liberty, or franchiſe, or the juriſdiction thereof, or within the weekly bills of mortality, ſhall from time to time be brought before ſome magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, having juriſdiction in the premiſſes, and ſhall be weighed before ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, within 24 hours after the ſame ſhall have been baked, ſold, or expoſed to or for ſale; and ſo as ſuch bread which ſhall be complained of as wanting at any time in the weight the ſame ought to be of, in any hundred, riding, diviſion, liberty, rape, wapentake, or place, ſhall from time to time be brought before ſome juſtice or juſtices of the peace of ſuch hundred, riding, diviſion, liberty, rape, or wapentake, or other place, and ſhall be weighed before ſuch juſtice or juſtices within three days after the ſame ſhall have been baked, ſold, or expoſed to or for ſale; unleſs it ſhall be made out to the ſatisfaction of any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, by or on the behalf of the party or parties againſt whom any ſuch complaint or information ſhall be made, that ſuch deficiency in weight wholly aroſe from ſome unavoidable accident in baking, or otherwiſe, or was occaſioned by or through ſome contrivances or confederacy.

Sect. 25. And every perſon who ſhall make for ſale, or ſell, expoſe, or ſend out, to or for ſale, any ſort of bread whatſoever, ſhall from time to time cauſe to be fairly imprinted or marked on every loaf of each reſpective ſort of bread which he, ſhe, or they ſhall make or ſell, or carry out, or expoſe to or for ſale, the Roman letters herein after-mentioned; that is to ſay, upon every loaf of bread which ſhall be made, ſold, carried out, or expoſed to or for ſale, as wheaten bread, a large Roman W; and upon every loaf of bread which ſhall be made, ſold, carried out, or expoſed to or for ſale, as houſhold or brown bread, a large Roman H; and that every perſon who ſhall make for ſale, or ſhall ſell, carry out, or expoſe to or for ſale, any loaf of any ſort of bread, which ſhall be allowed to be made in purſuance of this act, which ſhall not be marked purſuant to the directions of this act, ſo as the ſame may, on the view thereof, be aſcertained from time to time under what denomination or ſort of bread every ſuch loaf was made, and ought to be weighed (except as to ſuch loaves which ſhall be raſped after the beſpeaking or purchaſing thereof, by the particular deſire of any perſon who ſhall order the ſame to be ſo raſped, for his, her, or their own uſe or uſes) ſhall, for every time he, ſhe, or they ſhall offend in the premiſſes, and be thereof convicted, in manner herein after preſcribed, forfeit and pay a ſum not exceeding twenty ſhillings, nor leſs than five ſhillings, as any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom the offender ſhall be convicted, ſhall direct, for every loaf of bread not marked as hereby is directed.

Sect. 26. And no baker, or other perſon or perſons, ſhall aſk, demand, or take, for any bread which he, ſhe, or they ſhall ſell, or expoſe to or for ſale, any greater or higher price than ſuch bread ſhall be aſcertained to be ſold for or at by the court, magiſtrate or magiſtrates, or juſtices, hereby authorized to ſet the price and aſſize of bread, within their reſpective juriſdictions; and that no baker, or other perſon who ſhall make any bread for ſale, ſhall refuſe or decline to ſell any loaf or loaves of any of the ſorts of bread which, in purſuance of this act, ſhall be allowed or ordered to be made, to any perſon or perſons who ſhall tender ready money in payment for the ſame, at or for the price ſuch bread, by the aſſize which ſhall have been ſet in reſpect thereof, ſhall be fixed at, or aſcertained to be ſold for, when any ſuch baker, or other perſon who ſhall make bread for ſale, ſhall have any loaf of any ſuch bread in his or their houſe, bakehouſe, ſhop, or poſſeſſion, to be ſold, more than ſhall be requiſite for the immediate neceſſary uſe of his, her, or their own family, or cuſtomers; and which it ſhall be incumbent on ſuch baker, or other perſon who ſhall be complained of for refuſing or declining to ſell any ſuch bread, to prove before the magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, to whom any ſuch complaint ſhall be made, if thereunto required by the party or parties who ſhall make any ſuch complaint; upon pain that every perſon who ſhall be convicted of any ſuch offence, in manner herein after preſcribed, ſhall forfeit and pay a ſum not exceeding forty ſhillings, nor leſs than ten ſhillings, as the magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom any ſuch offender or offenders ſhall be convicted, ſhall think fit and order, every time he, ſhe, or they ſhall ſo offend and be convicted.

Sect. 27. Provided further, that no perſon ſhall ſell, or offer to ſale, any bread of an inferior quality to wheaten bread, at a higher price than houſhold bread ſhall be ſet at by the aſſize; and if any perſon ſhall offend in the premiſſes, he ſhall forfeit and pay for every ſuch offence, on being convicted thereof, either by his, her, or their confeſſion, or by the oath of one or more credible witneſs or witneſſes, before any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, within whoſe juriſdiction any ſuch offence ſhall have been committed, the ſum of twenty ſhillings.

Sect. 28. And that the good deſign of this ſtatute may be the more effectually accompliſhed, it ſhall be lawful for any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices of the peace, within the limits of their reſpective juriſdictions, and alſo for any peace officer or officers, authorized by warrant under the hand and ſeal or hands and ſeals of any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, and which warrant any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, is and are hereby impowered to grant, at ſeaſonable times in the day-time to enter into any houſe, ſhop, ſtall, bakehouſe, warehouſe, or outhouſe, of or belonging to any baker, or ſeller of bread, to ſearch for, view, weigh, and try all or any the bread which ſhall be there found: and if any bread, on any ſuch ſearch, ſhall be found to be wanting either in the goodneſs of the ſtuff whereof the ſame ſhall be made, or to be deficient in the due baking or working thereof, or ſhall be wanting in the due weight, or ſhall not be truly marked according to the directions of this act, or ſhall be any other ſort of bread than ſhall be allowed to be made by virtue of this act; any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, peace officer or peace officers, within the limits of their reſpective juriſdictions, may ſeize the ſame; and any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, may diſpoſe thereof as he or they, in his or their diſcretion, ſhall think fit.

Sect. 29. And if information ſhall be given, on oath, to any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices of the peace, that there is reaſonable cauſe to ſuſpect that any miller who grinds any grain for toll or reward, or any perſon or perſons who doth or do dreſs, bolt, or in any wiſe manufacture any meal or flour for ſale, or any maker of bread for ſale, within the limits of the juriſdiction of any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, doth or do mix up with, or put into, any meal or flour ground or manufactured for ſale, any mixture, ingredient, or thing whatſoever, not the genuine produce of the grain ſuch meal or flour ſhall import and ought to be, or whereby the purity of any meal or flour in the poſſeſſion of any ſuch miller, mealman, or baker, is or ſhall be in any wiſe adulterated; then, and in every ſuch caſe, it ſhall be lawful for any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, and alſo for any peace officer or officers, authorized by warrant or warrants, to him or them directed, under the hand and ſeal or hands and ſeals of any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, within the limits of their reſpective juriſdictions (and which warrant or warrants every ſuch magiſtrate and magiſtrates, juſtice and juſtices, is and are hereby impowered to grant) at all ſeaſonable times in the day-time to enter into any houſe, mill, ſhop, bake-houſe, ſtall, bolting-houſe, paſtry, warehouſe, or outhouſe, of or belonging to any ſuch miller, mealman, or baker, and to ſearch and examine whether any mixture, ingredient, or thing, not the genuine produce of the grain ſuch meal or flour ſhall import and ought to be, ſhall have been mixed up with, or put into any meal or flour in the poſſeſſion of any ſuch miller, mealman, or baker, either in the grinding of any grain at the mill, or in the dreſſing, or bolting, or manufacturing thereof, or whereby the purity of any meal or flour is or ſhall be in any wiſe adulterated: and if on any ſuch ſearch it ſhall appear that any offence hath been committed in any mill, bolting-houſe, or other place allowed to be ſearched, contrary to the true intent of this act; then, and in every ſuch caſe, it ſhall and may be lawful to and for any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices of the peace, officer or officers, authorized as aforeſaid reſpectively, within the limits of their reſpective juriſdiction, to ſeize and take any meal or flour which ſhall be deemed on any ſuch ſearch to have been adulterated, and all mixtures and ingredients which ſhall be found and deemed to have been uſed, or intended to be uſed, in or for any ſuch adulteration; and ſuch thereof as ſhall be ſeized by any peace officer or officers authorized as aforeſaid, ſhall, with all convenient ſpeed after ſeizure thereof, be carried to ſome magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices of the peace, within the limits of whoſe juriſdiction the ſame ſhall have been ſo ſeized: and if any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices of the peace, who ſhall make any ſeizure in purſuance of this act, or to whom any thing ſeized under the authority of this act ſhall be brought, ſhall adjudge that any mixture or ingredients, not the genuine produce of the grain any ſuch meal or flour, which ſhall have been ſo ſeized, ſhall import and ought to be, ſhall have been put into any ſuch meal or flour, or that the purity of any ſuch meal or flour ſo ſeized was adulterated by any mixture or ingredient put therein; then, and in any ſuch caſe, every ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, is and are hereby required, within the limits of their reſpective juriſdiction, to diſpoſe of the ſame as he or they, in his or their diſcretion, ſhall from time to time think poper.

Sect. 30. And every miller, mealman, baker, or ſeller of bread as aforeſaid, in whoſe houſe, mill, ſhop, bake-houſe, ſtall, bolting-houſe, paſtry, warehouſe, outhouſe, or poſſeſſion, any mixture or ingredient ſhall be found which ſhall be adjudged by any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, to have been lodged there with an intent to have adulterated the purity of meal, flour, or bread, ſhall, on being convicted of any ſuch offence, either by his, her, or their own confeſſion, or by the oath of one or more credible witneſs or witneſſes, before any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices of the peace, within whoſe juriſdiction any ſuch offence ſhall have been committed, forfeit and pay for every ſuch offence a ſum not exceeding ten pounds, nor leſs than forty ſhillings, as the magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom any ſuch offender or offenders ſhall be convicted, ſhall think fit and order; unleſs the party or parties charged with any ſuch offence ſhall make it appear to the ſatisfaction of the magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, who ſhall find or ſeize any ſuch mixture or ingredients, or before whom the ſame ſhall be brought, that ſuch mixture or ingredients was or were not brought or lodged, where the ſame was or were found or ſeized, with any deſign or intent to have been put into any meal or flour, or have adulterated therewith the purity of any meal or flour, but that the ſame was in the place or places in which the ſame ſhall have been ſo found or ſeized as aforeſaid for ſome other lawful purpoſe; and it ſhall and may be lawful for the magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom any ſuch offender ſhall be convicted, out of the money forfeited, when recovered, to cauſe the offender's name, place of abode, and offence, to be publiſhed in ſome news paper which ſhall be printed or publiſhed in or near the county, city, or place where any ſuch offence ſhall have been committed.

Sect. 31. And if any perſon or perſons ſhall wilfully obſtruct or hinder any ſearch as herein before is authorized to be made, or the ſeizure of any bread, or of any ingredients which ſhall be found on any ſuch ſearch, and deemed to have been lodged with an intent to adulterate the purity or wholeſomeneſs of meal, flour, or bread, or ſhall wilfully oppoſe or reſiſt any ſuch ſearch being made or the carrying away any ſuch ingredient as aforeſaid, or any bread which ſhall be ſeized, as not being made pursuant to this act, he, ſhe, or they ſo doing or offending in any of the caſes aforeſaid, ſhall, on being convicted thereof, in manner herein after preſcribed, forfeit and pay for every offence ſuch ſum, not exceeding five pounds, nor leſs than twenty ſhillings, as the magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom any ſuch offender or offenders ſhall be convicted, ſhall think fit and order.

Sect. 32. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, that no perſon who ſhall follow, or be concerned in the buſineſs of a miller, mealman, or baker, ſhall be capable of acting, or ſhall be allowed to act, as a magiſtrate, or juſtice of the peace, under this act, or in putting in execution any of the powers in or by this act granted; and if any miller, mealman, or baker ſhall preſume ſo to do, he or they ſo offending in the premiſſes, ſhall for every ſuch offence forfeit and pay the ſum of fifty pounds to any perſon or perſons who will inform and ſue for the ſame; to be recovered in any of his Majeſty's courts of record at Weſtminſter, by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, wherein no eſſoign, wager of law, or more than one imparlance ſhall be allowed; or by way of ſummary complaint before the court of ſeſſion in that part of Great Britain called Scotland.

Sect. 33. Provided always, that if any perſon who ſhall carry on or follow the trade of a baker, ſhall make complaint to any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices of the peace, within their juriſdiction, and make appear to them, by the oath of any credible witneſs, that any offence, which any ſuch perſon who ſhall ſo carry on or follow the trade of a baker ſhall have been charged with, and ſhall have incurred and paid any penalty under this act, ſhall have been occaſioned by or through the wilful neglect or default of any journeyman or other ſervant employed by or under any ſuch perſon who ſhall ſo follow or carry on the ſaid trade of a baker; then, and in any ſuch caſe, any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, may and are hereby required to iſſue out his or their warrant, under his or their reſpective hands and ſeals, for bringing any ſuch journeyman or ſervant before any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, or any magiſtrate or juſtice of the county, city, riding, diviſion, or place, where the offender can be found; and, on any ſuch journeyman or ſervant being thereupon apprehended, and brought before any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, he or they, within their reſpective juriſdictions, is and are hereby authorized and required to examine into the matter of ſuch complaint; and, on proof thereof, being upon oath, to the ſatisfaction of ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices of the peace, who ſhall hear ſuch ſaid complaint, then any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, is and are hereby directed and authorized, by any order under his or their reſpective hand or hands, to adjudge and order what reaſonable ſum of money ſhall be paid by any ſuch journeyman or ſervant to his maſter or miſtreſs, as or by way of recompence to him or her for the money he or ſhe ſhall have paid by reaſon of the wilful neglect or default of any ſuch journeyman or ſervant: and if any ſuch journeyman or ſervant ſhall neglect or refuſe, on his conviction, to make immediate payment of the ſum of money which any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices ſhall order him to pay by reaſon of ſuch his ſaid wilful neglect or default; then any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, within their reſpective juriſdictions, is and are hereby authorized and required, by warrant under his or their hands and ſeals, to cauſe every ſuch journeyman or ſervant to be apprehended and committed to the houſe of correction, or ſome other priſon of the county, riding, diviſion, city, town corporate, borough, or place, in which any ſuch journeyman or ſervant ſhall be apprehended or convicted, to be there kept to hard labour for any time not exceeding one calendar month from the time of ſuch commitment, as to ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, ſhall ſhall ſeem reaſonable, unleſs payment ſhall be made of the money ordered after ſuch commitment, and before the expiration of the ſaid term of one calendar month.

Sect. 34. And, for the better and more eaſy recovery of the ſeveral penalties and forfeitures to be incurred by diſobedience to this act, and the powers herein contained, and diſpoſing of the money which ſhall be forfeited by breach or non-obſervance of any part of this act, it ſhall and may be lawful to and for the mayor of the ſaid city of London for the time being, or any alderman of the ſaid city, within the ſaid city or liberties thereof, and to and for any other of his Majeſty's juſtices of the peace, or any one of them, within their reſpective counties, ridings, diviſions, cities, towns corporate, boroughs, liberties or juriſdictions, to hear and determine in a ſummary way all offences committed againſt the true intent and meaning of this act; and, for that purpoſe, to ſummon before them, or any of them, within their reſpective juriſdictions, any party or parties accuſed of being an offender or offenders againſt the true intent and meaning of this act: and in caſe the party accuſed ſhall not appear on ſuch ſummons, or offer ſome reaſonable excuſe for his default; then, upon oath by any credible witneſs of any offence committed contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, ſhall iſſue his or their warrant or warrants for apprehending the offender or offenders within the juriſdiction of any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices: and upon the appearance of the party or parties accuſed, or, in caſe he or they ſhall not appear, on notice being given to, or left for, him or them, at his or their uſual place of abode, or if he or they cannot be apprehended on a warrant granted againſt him or them as herein before is directed; then, and in any ſuch caſe, any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, is and are hereby authorized and required to proceed to make inquiry touching the matters complained of, and to examine any witneſs or witneſſes who ſhall be offered on either ſide, on oath, as aforeſaid, and which every ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, is and are hereby authorized, impowered, and required to adminiſter; and, after hearing of the parties who ſhall appear, and the witneſſes who ſhall be offered on either ſide, ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, ſhall convict or acquit the party or parties accuſed: and if the penalty or money forfeited on any ſuch conviction, ſhall not be paid within the ſpace of 24 hours after any ſuch conviction, every ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, ſhall thereupon iſſue a warrant or warrants, under his hand and ſeal or their hands and ſeals reſpectively, directed to any peace officer or officers within their reſpective juriſdictions, impowering him or them to make diſtreſs of the goods or chattels of the offender or offenders: and if any offender ſhall convey away his goods out of the juriſdiction of any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom he was convicted, or ſo much thereof that the penalty cannot be levied, then ſome magiſtrate or juſtice, within whoſe juriſdiction the offender ſhall have removed his goods, ſhall back the warrant granted by any ſuch magiſtrate or juſtice, or magiſtrates or juſtices; and thereupon the penalty forfeited, ſhall be levied on the offender's goods and chattels, by diſtreſs and ſale thereof; and if within five days from the diſtreſs being taken, the money forfeited ſhall not be paid, the goods ſeized ſhall be appraiſed and ſold, rendering the overplus (if any) after deducting the penalty or forfeiture, and the coſts and charges of the proſecution, diſtreſs, and ſale, to the owner; which charges ſhall be aſcertained by the magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom any ſuch offender or offenders ſhall have been ſo convicted, or by the magiſtrate or juſtice who backed the warrant, if either of them ſhall continue alive; and if not, by ſome other magiſtrate or juſtice of the county, riding, diviſion, city, or place, in which the offender ſhall have been convicted; and for want of ſuch diſtreſs, then every ſuch magiſtrate or juſtice, within whoſe reſpective juriſdiction any ſuch offender or offenders ſhall reſide or be, ſhall, on the application of any proſecutor or proſecutors, and proof made of the conviction and non-payment of the penalty and charges, by warrant under his hand and ſeals, commit every ſuch offender or offenders to the common gaol or houſe of correction of the city or county, riding, diviſion, or place, where ſuch offender or offenders ſhall be found; there to remain for the ſpace of one calendar month from the time of ſuch commitment, unleſs, after ſuch commitment, payment ſhall be made of the ſaid penalty or forfeiture, coſt and charges, before the expiration of the ſaid calendar month; and all ſuch penalties and forfeitures, when recovered, ſhall be paid to the informer.

Sect. 35. And if it ſhall be made out, by the oath of any credible perſon or perſons, to the ſatisfaction of any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, that any one within the juriſdiction of any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, is likely to give or offer material evidence on behalf of the proſecutor of any offender or offenders againſt the true intent and meaning of this act, or on behalf of the perſon or perſons accuſed, and will not voluntarily appear before ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, to be examined, and give his, her, or their evidence concerning the premiſſes, is and are hereby authorized and required to iſſue his or their ſummons to convene every ſuch witneſs and witneſſes before any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, at ſuch ſeaſonable time as in ſuch ſummons ſhall be fixed; and if any perſon ſo ſummoned ſhall neglect or refuſe to appear at the time by ſuch ſummons appointed, and no juſt excuſe ſhall be offered for ſuch neglect or refuſal, then (after proof by oath of ſuch ſummons having been duly ſerved upon the party or parties ſo ſummoned) every ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, is and are hereby authorized and required to iſſue his or their warrant under his hand and ſeal, or their hands and ſeals, to bring every ſuch witneſs or witneſſes before any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices; and on the appearance of any witneſs before any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, every ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, is and are hereby authorized and impowered to examine upon oath every ſuch witneſs; and if any ſuch witneſs on his or her appearance, or on being brought before any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, ſhall refuſe to be examined on oath concerning the premiſſes, without offering any juſt excuſe for any ſuch refuſal, any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, within the limits of his or their juriſdiction, may, by warrant under his hand and ſeal, or their hands and ſeals, commit any perſon or perſons ſo refuſing to be examined to the public priſon of the county, riding, diviſion, city, liberty, or place, in which the perſon or perſons ſo refuſing to be examined ſhall be, there to remain for any time not exceeding fourteen days, nor leſs than three days, as any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, ſhall direct.

Sect. 36. And the magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom any perſon ſhall be convicted in manner preſcribed by this act, ſhall cauſe ſuch reſpective conviction to be drawn up in the form, or to the effect following (that is to ſay)

(To wit) BE it remembered, that on this day of in the year of the reign of A. B. is convicted before Majeſty's juſtice of the peace for the ſaid county of or for the riding or diviſion of the ſaid county of or for the city, liberty, or town of (as this caſe ſhall happen to be) for and to adjudge him, her (or them) to pay and forfeit for the ſame the ſum of

Given under the day and year aforeſaid.

Sect. 37. And no certiorari, letters of advocation, or of ſuſpenſion ſhall be granted to remove any conviction, or other proceedings had thereon in purſuance of this act.

Sect. 38. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, that if any perſon convicted of any offence puniſhable by this act, ſhall think him, her, or themſelves aggrieved by the judgment of the magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom he, ſhe, or they ſhall have been convicted, ſuch perſon ſhall have liberty from time to time to appeal to the juſtice at the next general or quarter ſeſſion of the peace, which ſhall be held for the county, riding, diviſion, city, liberty, town, or place where ſuch judgment ſhall have been given, and that the execution of the ſaid judgment ſhall, in ſuch caſe, be ſuſpended; the perſon ſo convicted entering into recognizance at the time of ſuch conviction, with two ſufficient ſureties in double the ſum which ſuch perſon ſhall have been adjudged to pay or forfeit, upon condition to proſecute ſuch appeal with effect, and to be forthcoming to abide the judgment and determination of the juſtices at their ſaid next general or general quarter ſeſſions; which recognizance the magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom ſuch conviction ſhall be had, is and are hereby impowered and required to take; and the juſtice in the ſaid general or general quarter ſeſſions are hereby authorized and required to hear and finally determine the matter of every ſuch appeal, and to award ſuch coſts as to them ſhall appear juſt and reaſonable to be paid by either party: and if upon hearing the ſaid appeal, the judgment of the magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, before whom the appellant or appellants ſhall have been convicted, ſhall be affirmed, ſuch appellant or appellants ſhall immediately pay down the ſum he, ſhe, or they ſhall have been adjudged to forfeit, together with ſuch coſts as the juſtices in their ſaid general or general quarter ſeſſions ſhall award to be paid to the proſecutor or informer, for defraying the exſpences ſuſtained by reaſon of any ſuch appeal; and in default of the appellant's paying the ſame any two ſuch juſtices, or any one magiſtrate or juſtice of the peace, having juriſdiction in the place into which any appellant or appellants ſhall eſcape, or where he, ſhe, or they ſhall reſide, ſhall and may, by warrant under their hands and ſeals, or his hand and ſeal, commit every ſuch appellant and appellants to the common gaol of the county, city, riding, diviſion, or place, where he, ſhe, or they ſhall be apprehended, until he, ſhe, or they ſhall make payment of ſuch penalty, and of the coſts and charges which ſhall be adjudged on the conviction, to the informer; but if the appellant or appellants in any ſuch appeal ſhall make good his, her, or their appeal, and be diſcharged of the ſaid conviction, reaſonable coſts ſhall be awarded to the appellant or appellants againſt ſuch informer or informers, who would (in caſe of ſuch conviction) have been intitled to the penalty to have been recovered as aforeſaid; and which coſts ſhall and may be recovered by the appellant or appellants againſt any ſuch informer or informers, in like manner as coſts given at any general or general quarter ſeſſions of the peace are recoverable.

Sect. 39. Provided alſo, that if any ſuch conviction ſhall happen to be made within ſix days before any general or general quarter ſeſſions of the peace which ſhall be held for the county, riding, diviſion, city, town corporate, borough, or place where ſuch conviction ſhall have been made, then the party or parties who ſhall think him, her, or themſelves aggrieved by any ſuch conviction, ſhall and may, on entering into recognizance in manner and for purpoſes before directed, be at liberty to appeal either to the then next or the next following general or general quarter ſeſſions of the peace which ſhall be held for any ſuch county, riding, diviſion, city, town corporate, borough, liberty, or place where any ſuch conviction ſhall have been made.

Sect. 40. And every action or ſuit which ſhall be brought or commenced againſt any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, or any peace officer or officers, for any matter of thing done or committed by virtue of or under this act, ſhall be commenced within ſix months next after the fact committed, and not afterwards, and ſhall be laid or brought in the county, city, or place where the matter in diſpute ſhall ariſe, and not elſewhere; and that the ſtatute made in the twenty-fourth year of his late majeſty's reign, intituled, An act for rendering the juſtices of the peace more ſafe in the execution of their office, and for indemnifying conſtables and others, acting in obedience to their warrants; ſo far as the ſaid act relates to the rendering the juſtices more ſafe in the execution of their office, ſhall extend and be conſtrued to extend to the magiſtrate and magiſtrates, juſtice and juſtices of the peace, acting under the authority or in purſuance of this act; and that no action or ſuit ſhall be had or commenced againſt, nor ſhall any writ be ſued out, or copy of any writ be ſerved upon any peace officer or officers, for any thing done in the execution of this act, until ſeven days after a notice in writing ſhall have been given to or left for him or them at his or their uſual place of abode by the attorney for the party intending to commence ſuch action; which notice in writing ſhall contain the name and place of abode of the perſon intending to bring ſuch action, and alſo of his attorney, and likewiſe the cauſe of action or complaint; and any peace officer or officers ſhall be at liberty, and may by virtue of this act, at any time within ſeven days after any ſuch notice ſhall have been given to, or left for him, tender or cauſe to be tendered any ſum or ſums of money, as amends for the injury complained of, to the party complaining, or to the attorney named in any ſuch notice; and if the ſame is not accepted of, the defendant or defendants in any ſuch action or actions may plead ſuch tender in bar of ſuch action or actions, together with the general iſſue, or any other plea, with leave of the court in which the action ſhall be commenced: and if upon iſſue joined on ſuch tender, the jury ſhall find the amends tendered to have been ſufficient, they ſhall find a verdict for the defendant or defendants; and in every ſuch caſe, or if the plaintiff ſhall become nonſuit, or diſcontinue his action, or if judgment ſhall be given for the defendant or defendants upon demurrer; or if any action or ſuit ſhall be brought after the time limited by this act for bringing the ſame, or ſhall be brought in any other county or place than as aforeſaid; then and in any ſuch caſe, the jury ſhall find for the defendant or defendants; and the defendant or defendants ſhall be intitled to his or their coſts; but if the jury ſhall find that no ſuch tender was made, or that the amends tendered was not ſufficient, or ſhall find againſt the defendant or defendants, on any plea or pleas by him or them pleaded, they ſhall then give a verdict for the plaintiff, and ſuch damages as they ſhall think proper; and the plaintiff ſhall thereupon recover his coſts againſt every ſuch defendant or defendants.

Sect. 41. And if any action or ſuit ſhall be commenced againſt any perſon or perſons for any thing done in purſuance of this act, the defendant or defendants in any ſuch action or ſuit may plead the general iſſue, and give this act, and the ſpecial matter in evidence, at any trial to be had thereupon; and that the ſame was done in purſuance and by the authority of this act; and if it ſhall appear ſo to have been done, or if verdict ſhall be recorded for the defendant or defendants; or if the plaintiff ſhall be nonſuited, or diſcontinue his action after the defendant or defendants ſhall have appeared; or if judgment ſhall be given upon a verdict or demurrer againſt the plaintiff or plaintiffs; the defendant or defendants in every ſuch action ſhall and may recover treble coſts, and have the like remedy for the ſame as any defendant or defendants hath or have in other caſes by law for recovery of his, her, or their coſts.

Sect. 42. Provided always, that no perſon ſhall be convicted in manner aforeſaid for any of the before-mentioned offences, unleſs the proſecution, in order to ſuch conviction, be commenced within three days next after the offence committed.

Sect. 43. Provided alſo, that this act, or any thing herein contained, ſhall not extend to prejudice any right or cuſtom of the city of London, or the practice there uſed, or any right or cuſtom of any lord or lords of any leet leet, to ſet, inquire, and puniſh the breach of aſſize of bread, within their reſpective leets or views of frank-pledge, or the right of any clerk or clerks of the market in any place.

Sect. 44. Provided further, that neither this act, or any thing herein contained, ſhall extend or be conſtrued to extend to prejudice the ancient right or cuſtom of the dean of the collegiate church of Saint Peter, Weſtminſter, or the high ſteward of the city of Weſtminſter and the liberties thereof, or his deputy, or any of them, to ſet aſcertain, and appoint, the aſſize and weight of all ſorts of bread to be ſold or expoſed to ſale within the ſaid city of Weſtminſter and the liberties thereof; but they and every of them ſhall and may ſeverally and reſpectively from time to time, as there ſhall be occaſion, ſet, aſcertain, and appoint, within the ſaid city of Weſtminſter and the liberties thereof, according to the true intent and meaning of this act, the aſſize and weight of all ſorts of bread which ſhall be made, ſold, or expoſed to ſale by any perſon or perſons within the limits of the ſaid city of Weſtminſter and the liberties thereof; and ſhall and may inquire and puniſh the breach of every ſuch aſſize and weight of bread, as fully and freely in all reſpects, as they or any of them have heretofore been accuſtomed to do, and as if this act had never been made; any thing herein contained to the contrary thereof notwithſtanding.

Sect. 45. Provided likewiſe, that neither this act, nor any thing herein contained, ſhall extend or be conſtrued to extend to prejudice the ancient right or cuſtom of the two univerſities of Oxford or Cambridge, or either of them, or of their or either of their clerks of the market, or the practice within the ſeveral juriſdictions of the ſaid univerſities, or either of them, uſed to ſet, aſcertain, and appoint the aſſize and weight of all ſorts of bread to be ſold or expoſed to ſale within their ſeveral juriſdictions; but that they and every of them ſhall and may ſeverally and reſpectively from time to time, as there ſhall be occaſion, ſet, aſcertain, and appoint, within their ſeveral and reſpective juriſdictions, the aſſize and weight of all ſorts of bread to be ſold or expoſed to ſale by any baker or other perſon whatſoever, within the limits of their ſeveral juriſdictions; and ſhall and may inquire and puniſh the breach thereof as fully and freely in all reſpects as they uſed to do, and as if this act had never been made.

Stat. 32 Geo. 2. c. 18. Whereas ſeveral of the penalties or forfeitures made payable by an act paſſed in the thirty-firſt year of his preſent Majeſty's reign, intituled, An act for the due making of bread, and to regulate the price and aſſize thereof, and to puniſh perſons who ſhall adulterate meal, flour, or bread, were not by ſuch ſaid laſt-mentioned act appropriated how or to whom the ſame ſhould, when paid or recovered, go or be diſtributed; Be it therefore enacted, &c. That ſuch of the penalties or forfeitures which, from and after the 24th day of June 1759, ſhall incur or become payable by or under the ſaid laſt mentioned act, or by reaſon of any thing therein contained (as by the ſaid act are not particularly diſpoſed of, or appropriated, how or to whom the ſame ſhould go or be applied) ſhall, when the ſame ſhall be recovered or paid, go and be diſtributed in manner following; that is to ſay, one moiety thereof, where any offender or offenders ſhall be convicted, either by his, her, or their own confeſſion, or by the oath of one or more credible witneſs or witneſſes, ſhall go and be paid to the perſon or perſons who ſhall inform againſt, and proſecute to conviction, any ſuch offender or offenders; and the other moiety thereof, and alſo all penalties and forfeitures, which from the ſaid 24th day of June 1759, ſhall incur, be due, or payable, under the ſaid laſt-mentioned act, on the weighing, trying, or ſeizure of any bread by any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, ſhall go and be applied for the better carrying into execution the purpoſes of the laſt-mentioned act, as any ſuch magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices, within his or their juriſdiction, ſhall from time to time think fit and order.

Stat. 3 Geo. 3. c. 6. (intituled, An act for explaining and amending an act made in the thirty-firſt year of the reign of his late Majeſty King George the Second, intituled, An act for the due making of bread, and to regulate the price and aſſize thereof, and to puniſh perſons who ſhall adulterate, meal, flour, or bread; ſo far as the ſame relates to that part of Great Britain called Scotland; and for rendering the ſaid act more effectual in that part of the united kingdom.)

Sect. 1. Whereas by an act of parliament made in the thirty-firſt year of the reign of his late Majeſty King George the Second, intituled, An act for the due making of bread, and to regulate the price and aſſize thereof, and to puniſh perſons who ſhall adulterate meal, flour, or bread, certain powers are granted to the ſeveral courts, magiſtrates, and juſtices of the peace therein mentioned, to ſet, aſcertain, and appoint the aſſize and weight of bread which ſhall be made for ſale, or expoſed to ſale, and the price to be paid for the ſame reſpectively, within the bounds of their ſeveral juriſdictions, from time to time, as they ſhall think proper: and it is thereby enacted, That in every aſſize of bread which ſhall be ſo ſet and appointed, reſpect ſhall from time to time be had to the price which the grain, meal, or flour, whereof ſuch bread ſhall be made, ſhall bear in the public market or markets in or near the public place or places for which any ſuch aſſize ſhall be ſo at any time ſet; and, for aſcertaining ſuch price of grain, meal, or flour from time to time, the ſeveral courts, magiſtrates, and juſtices of the peace, therein mentioned, are thereby empowered from time to time, as there ſhall be occaſion, within their reſpective juriſdictions, to cauſe the reſpective prices which the ſeveral ſorts of grain, meal, and flour, ſhall from time to time, bona fide, ſell for in ſuch public markets, to be given in and certified upon oath unto ſuch court, magiſtrates, or juſtices of the peace reſpectively, within their ſeveral juriſdictions, by the clerk of the market, or by ſuch perſon or perſons, and in ſuch manner, and on ſuch day of the week, as they ſhall reſpectively appoint within their ſeveral juriſdictions; and the price which ſhall be ſo certified, ſhall from time to time be entered by the reſpective perſon or perſons who ſhall certify the ſame, in a book or books to be provided and kept by him or them for that purpoſe, in the form and manner as therein directed: and whereas the above method of aſcertaining the price of wheat and rye, and the flour and meal made of thoſe grains, cannot take place within that part of Great Britain called Scotland, by reaſon that there are few public markets for ſuch grains, flour, or meal, within that part of the united kingdom; and where there are public markets for grain, flour, or meal of any kind, there is no ſuch officer as clerk of the market, who can certify to the magiſtrates or juſtices of the peace the reſpective prices which the ſeveral ſorts of grain, meal, and flour ſell for in ſuch public markets, whereby the ſalutary effect, and execution of the ſaid act made for the whole united kingdom, is prevented and totally diſappointed within that part thereof called Scotland: for remedy whereof be it enacted, &c. That in place of the method preſcribed and laid down in the ſaid act for aſcertaining the price of the ſeveral kinds of grain, meal, and flour it ſhall and may be lawful, in that part of Great Britain called Scotland, for the magiſtrates and juſtices of the peace who are by the ſaid act authorized to ſet the aſſize of bread from time to time, and ſo often as they ſhall judge proper, within their reſpective juriſdictions, to inquire into and take proof of the prices which the ſeveral ſorts of grain, meal, and flour, fit and proper to make the ſeveral ſorts of bread which ſhall be allowed to be made by them, ſhall bona fide ſell for in the public markets in or near the city, borough, or place for which they are reſpectively authorized to ſet the aſſize of bread; or where there are no public markets for any particular ſpecies of grain, meal, or flour, in or near ſuch city, borough, or place, to inquire into and take proof of the preſent or laſt ſelling price of ſuch ſpecies of grain, meal, or flour, whether of the growth of the country or brought from diſtant places; to which ſelling price or prime coſt ſhall be added ſuch an allowance for the expence and riſk of carriage or tranſportation, as from the inquiry and proof ſhall to the ſaid magiſtrates and juſtices of the peace appear juſt and reaſonable ; ſo as that the price of ſuch grain, meal, or flour be from time to time aſcertained according to what thoſe ſeveral ſpecies do or may truly coſt the bakers before they can manufacture the ſame into bread.

Sect. 2. And that previous to the proof to be taken in the ſeveral caſes aforeſaid, notice in writing ſhall be given to the deacon of the incorporation of bakers, or, where there is no ſuch incorporation, to any two reputable bakers within the city, borough, or place where ſuch proof is to be taken, 48 hours at leaſt before taking the ſame, to the end that the makers of bread within ſuch city, borough, or place may, if they think proper, attend the taking ſuch proof, and ſuggeſt ſuch queſtions as may be proper to be put to the witneſſes ſummoned by the magiſtrates or juſtices of the peace reſpectively, or offer ſuch other witneſſes or evidence, as may appear proper for proving the prices of the grain, meal, or flour in queſtion.

Sect. 3. And that ſuch proof ſhall only proceed upon the oaths of two or more credible witneſſes converſant in the prices of the ſeveral ſorts of grain, meal, or flour which ſhall be the ſubject of ſuch inquiry, or by writings legally proved ; and that it ſhall and may be lawful to the ſaid magiſtrates and juſtices of the peace, within their reſpective juriſdictions, to ſummon ſuch perſon or perſons as to them ſhall appear moſt proper for that purpoſe, and to compel them to appear, and give their evidence ; and that either by ſuch remedies, and under ſuch penalties as are provided by the ſaid act, in the caſe of perſons duly ſummoned to give evidence, touching the rates and prices of the ſeveral ſorts of grain, meal, and flour, where the return of the prices of ſuch grain, meal, or flour ſhall be ſuſpected as not truly and bona fide made, or by ſuch remedies as are competent by the common law of Scotland for compelling witneſſes to appear and give evidence in any judicial trial before a competent court.

Sect. 4. Provided always, that the perſon or perſons ſo ſummoned be not obliged to travel above five miles from the place of his, her, or their abode.

Sect. 5. And that the whole evidence to be taken as above ſhall be fairly ingroſſed, in a book to be kept for that purpoſe, by the town clerks of the ſeveral cities and boroughs where ſuch proofs ſhall be taken by the magiſtrates, or by the clerk of the peace where the proof ſhall be taken by the juſtices of the peace ; and the evidence as taken down in ſuch book ſhall be duly ſigned by the ſeveral witneſſes, and by the magiſtrates or juſtices of the peace who ſhall take the ſame reſpectively, according to the practice of the law of Scotland; and that ſo often as ſuch proof ſhall be taken, the magiſtrates or juſtices of the peace before whom the ſame ſhall be taken reſpectively, ſhall, immediately after cloſing the evidence, or as ſoon as it can conveniently be done, declare the prices of the ſeveral kinds of grain, meal, or flour, concerning which the inquiry has been made, according as theſe ſhall appear to them to be proved, from conſidering the whole evidence; and which declaration ſhall be ingroſſed in the book appointed to be kept as aforeſaid, immediately after the evidence, and ſhall be ſigned by the magiſtrates or juſtices of the peace reſpectively before whom ſuch proof ſhall be taken ; and which book containing the evidence and declaration aforeſaid, ſhall be open and patent to the inſpection of the makers of bread, and all other perſons, without fee or reward ; and ſhall, to all intents and purpoſes, be deemed and taken to be equivalent to the returns or certificates of the market prices of all kinds of grain, meal, or flour appointed to be taken by the ſaid act ; and the magiſtrates and juſtices of the peace in that part of Great Britain called Scotland ſhall thereupon proceed to ſet, aſcertain, and appoint the aſſize and weight of all ſorts of bread which ſhall be made for ſale, or expoſed to ſale, and the price to be paid for the ſame, within their reſpective juriſdictions, when and as often, from time to time, as they ſhall think fit, according to the directions, and agreeable to the tables enacted and referred to by the ſaid act.

Sect. 6. Provided always, that when and ſo often as any aſſize of bread ſhall be ſet, aſcertained, and appointed for any city, borough, or place within that part of Great Britain called Scotland, by the magiſtrates or juſtices of the peace impowered for that purpoſe, ſuch aſſize ſhall not be limited to endure for any certain time, but ſhall continue and ſtand in force until a new aſſize be ſet, aſcertained, and appointed by the ſaid magiſtrates or juſtices of the peace for ſuch city, borough, or place reſpectively ; any thing in the aforeſaid act of the thirty-firſt year of the reign of his late majeſty to the contrary notwithſtanding.

Sect. 7. And upon an application in writing by any two or more of the inhabitants or bakers, within any city, borough, or county, where ſuch aſſize of bread ſhall be ſet, to the magiſtrates or juſtices of the peace who ſet the laſt aſſize, or to the magiſtrates or juſtices of the peace of ſuch city, borough, or county for the time being, ſetting forth, and offering to prove by proper evidence, that the price of any of the ſpecies of grain before-mentioned has roſe or fallen ſince the laſt aſſize of bread was ſet, ſo as to authorize an alteration of ſuch laſt aſſize, according to the aforeſaid act of his late majeſty, and tables therein referred to; in every ſuch caſe the magiſtrates or juſtices of the peace to whom ſuch application ſhall be made, ſhall, within their reſpective juriſdictions, be obliged to take evidence of the then current prices, in the manner before directed; and if, upon adviſing ſuch proof, they ſhall find ſuch a variation of the prices ſince the laſt aſſize, as deſcribed in the ſaid act, they ſhall immediately ſet and aſcertain a new aſſize of bread, which ſhall remain till altered agreeable to the directions herein before given.

Sect. 8. And that in caſe any perſon or perſons ſhall be convicted of any of the offences mentioned in the ſaid act, or in this preſent act, before any magiſtrate or magiſtrates, juſtice or juſtices of the peace, in that part of Great Britain called Scotland, ſuch conviction ſhall proceed and be drawn up in the form commonly uſed and practiſed before ſuch magiſtrates or juſtices of the peace, in convictions for other offences of the like nature; any thing in the ſaid act to the contrary notwithſtanding.

Sect. 9. And whereas it may happen, that the magiſtrates of ſome of the cities or boroughs in that part of Great Britain called Scotland may neglect to execute the powers committed to them, of ſetting and appointing the aſſize of bread, within their reſpective cities and boroughs; Be it therefore enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That in caſe of ſuch neglect of the magiſtrates of any ſuch city or borough to ſet an aſſize of bread, or to alter any former aſſize ſet by them by a new aſſize, when ſuch alteration in the price of wheat or other grain ſhall occur, as is ſufficient to authorize an alteration of the laſt aſſize of bread according to the ſaid act, it ſhall and may be lawful for any two or more of the juſtices of the peace of the county within which ſuch city or borough lies, to require the chief magiſtrate of ſuch city or borough, by a writing under their hands, to ſet the aſſize of bread, or to alter any former aſſize of bread, according as the caſe ſhall occur ; and in caſe ſuch chief magiſtrate, or the other magiſtrates of the ſaid city or borough, ſhall refuſe or neglect, for the ſpace of ten days after ſuch requiſition, to ſet ſuch aſſize, or to alter any aſſize then in force, when the alteration of the price of wheat or other grain does permit the ſame, then and in every ſuch caſe any two or more juſtices of the peace of ſuch county ſhall have power, and are hereby authorized, after taking proof of the prices of the ſeveral kinds of grain, meal, or flour in manner above directed, to ſet, aſcertain, and appoint an aſſize of bread for ſuch city or borough, which ſhall remain in full force until altered by the magiſtrates thereof, or in caſe of their neglect, by any two or more of the ſaid juſtices of peace.

Sect. 10. And that every clauſe, matter, and thing contained in the aforeſaid act of the thirty-firſt year of his late Majeſty's reign ſhall remain and continue in full force in that part of the kingdom of Great Britain called Scotland, except in ſo far as the ſame is altered by this act.

Stat. 3 Geo. 3. c. 11. (intituled, An act for explaining and amending an act made in the thirty-first year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Second, intituled, An act for the due making of bread, and to regulate the price and assize thereof, and to punish persons who shall adulterate meal, flour, or bread.)

Sect. 1. Whereas the statute made in the thirty-first year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Second, intituled, An act for the due making of bread, and to regulate the price and assize thereof, and to punish persons who shall adulterate meal, flour, or bread, is deficient in several of the provisions thereby made, when an assize of bread is not set pursuant to the directions of the said act; for remedy wherein, and in order that makers of bread for sale, and the sellers thereof, may in all places, altho' the assize of bread shall at any time not be set, be under due regulations; Be it enacted, &c. That from and after the first day of May one thousand seven hundred and sixty-three, although no assize of bread shall be set in pursuance of the said act, no loaf or loaves of bread, called or deemed assize loaf or loaves in the tables of the assize and price of bread in the said act enacted and referred to, and the weight of which varies according to the variation in the price of grain, shall be made for sale, sold, or carried out for sale, or be offered or exposed to or for sale, or be allowed to be sold in any place, where any loaf or loaves of the bread called or deemed prized loaf or loaves in the said tables of the assize and price of bread, in and by the said act enacted and referred to, and the price of which varies according to the variation in the price of grain, shall at the same time be made for sale, or be allowed to be sold, that is to say, no assize loaves of the price of three-pence, and prized loaves called half quartern loaves, nor assize loaves of the price of six-pence, and prized loaves called quartern loaves, nor assize loaves of the price of twelve-pence, and prized loaves called half peck loaves, nor assize loaves of the price of eighteen-pence, and prized loaves called peck loaves, shall, at the same time, in any place be made for sale, sold, or carried out for sale, or be offered or exposed to or for sale, or allowed to be sold; that unwary persons may not in any wise be imposed on, and prejudiced by buying assize loaves referred to in the said tables, as or for prized loaves referred to in the said tables, or by buying such prized loaves as or for such assize loaves; and every person who shall offend in the premisses, and be convicted of any such offence in manner hereafter specified, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings, nor less than ten shillings, as the justice or justices before whom any such offender or offenders shall be convicted, shall from time to time adjudge.

Sect. 2. And that from and after the said first day of May one thousand seven hundred and sixty-three, although no assize of bread shall be set pursuant to the directions of the said act, the justices of the peace of every county, riding, division, city, town, liberty, and place, shall and may, at any general or quarter sessions of the peace which shall be held within their respective counties, divisions, cities, towns, liberties, or jurisdictions, or at any petty session which shall be held by any such justices within their respective jurisdictions, from time to time ascertain and appoint (as often as they shall think proper) for all or any part of their respective jurisdictions, which of the sorts of assize or prized loaves shall be allowed from time to time to be made and sold within their respective jurisdictions; and also what other sorts of bread, and of what sort and sorts of grain shall be allowed to be made and sold within their respective jurisdictions, or within any part thereof; and every order which shall be so from time to time made in or touching the premisses by any such justices, shall be entered in a book to be provided and kept for that purpose by such justices, and which book shall and may be inspected by the makers of bread for sale, within the respective jurisdiction of any such justices, at all seasonable times in the day-time, and without paying any fee or reward in respect thereof; and after the making every such order by any such justices, the justices who shall make the same shall, with all convenient speed, cause a copy of every such order to be affixed or put up in some market, or other public town within the division or part of the county, riding, liberty, rape, wapentake, city, town, or place, in which such order is to be observed and take place: or else every such justices, within their respective jurisdictions, shall cause a copy of every such order to be, with all convenient speed after the making thereof respectively, inserted in some public news-paper which shall be published in the county, riding, division, liberty, rape, wapentake, city, town, or place, or some part thereof, in which every such order respectively is to be observed and take place.

Sect. 3. Provided always, that no justices, within their respective jurisdictions, shall at any time allow the making for sale, or selling any sorts of assize bread made of the flour or meal of wheat, other than and besides wheaten and household bread, and loaves of white bread of the price of two-pence or under.

Sect. 4. And that from and after the said first day of May one thousand seven hundred and sixty-three, although the assize of bread shall not be set pursuant to the said act, every maker of bread for sale shall observe and keep the same or like proportion between white and wheaten bread, and wheaten and household assize bread, as to weight, as is mentioned or intended, enacted and referred to in the said assize tables; that is to say, every white loaf of the price of two-pence, or under, shall always weigh three parts in four of the weight of the wheaten loaf of the like price, as near as may be; and every wheaten assize loaf of bread, of whatsoever price the same shall be, shall always weigh three parts in four of the weight of every household assize loaf of bread of the like price, as near as may be; and that every household assize loaf of bread, of whatever price, the same shall be, shall always weigh one third part more than every wheaten assize loaf of the like price as near as may be; and every person who shall make for sale, sell, offer, or expose to or for sale, or have in his or her custody for sale, any loaf of white, wheaten, or household bread, in which the said proportions or regulations shall not be observed and kept, as near as may be, shall, on being convicted of any such offence in manner herein after-mentioned, forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings, as the justice or justices before whom any such offender or offenders shall be convicted, shall from time to time adjudge.

Sect. 5. And that from and after the said first day of May one thousand seven hundred and sixty-three, although the assize of bread shall not be set pursuant to the said act, every peck, half peck, quarter of a peck, and half quarter of a peck loaf, made for sale, of the meal or flour of wheat, and called wheaten bread, shall always be sold in proportion to each other respectively, as to price; and that every peck, half peck, quarter of a peck, and half quarter of a peck loaf, made for sale, of the meal or flour of wheat, and called household bread, shall always be sold in proportion to each other, and for one fourth less in price than the loaf made for sale with the meal or flour of wheat, called wheaten bread, of the same denomination; and every person who shall in any wise offend in the premisses, shall for every loaf of either the said wheaten or household bread which shall be sold by him or her, or offered or exposed to or for sale, or found in his or her custody for sale, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings, nor less than ten shillings, as the justice or justices before whom any such offender or offenders shall be convicted, shall from time to time adjudge.

Sect. 6. And that from and after the said first day of May one thousand seven hundred and sixty-three, altho' the assize of bread shall not be set pursuant to the said recited act, the several loaves herein after mentioned of every sort of bread which shall be made for sale, shall always weigh in averdupoize weight as follows; that is to say, every peck loaf, seventeen pounds six ounces; every half peck loaf, eight pounds eleven ounces; every quarter of a peck loaf, four pounds five ounces and one half ounce; and every h quarter of a peck loaf, two pounds two ounces and three quarters of one ounce: and every perſon who ſhall make for ſale, or offer or expoſe to or for ſale, or have in his or her poſſeſſion for ſale, any peck, half peck, quarter of a peck, or half quarter of a peck loaf in any wiſe deficient of the due weight the ſame ought to be as aforeſaid, ſhall, on being convicted of any ſuch offence in manner herein after mentioned, forfeit and pay a ſum not exceeding five ſhillings, nor leſs than one ſhilling, for every ounce of every loaf of ſuch bread which ſhall at any time be found wanting, or deficient of or in the due weight the ſame ought to be as aforeſaid; and for every ſuch loaf of bread which ſhall be found wanting leſs than one ounce of the due weight the ſame ought to be as aforeſaid, a ſum not exceeding two ſhillings and ſix pence, nor leſs than ſix-pence, as any juſtice or juſtices before whom any ſuch loaf of bread, which ſhall not be of the due weight the ſame ought to be as aforeſaid, ſhall adjudge; ſo as all ſuch bread which ſhall be complained of as want ing at any time of the due weight the ſame ought to be in any city, town corporate, borough, liberty, or franchiſe, or the juriſdiction thereof, or within the weekly bills of mortality, ſhall from time to time be brought before ſome juſtice or juſtices, having juriſdiction in the premiſſes, and ſhall be weighed before ſuch juſtice or juſtices within twenty-four hours after the ſame ſhall have been baked, ſold, or expoſed to or for ſale, or found in any perſon's cuſtody for ſale: and ſo as all ſuch bread which ſhall be complained of as wanting at any time in the due weight the ſame ought to be as aforeſaid, in any hundred, riding, diviſion, rape, wapentake, or other place out of any city, town corporate, borough, liberty, or franchiſe, or the juriſdiction thereof, or out of the weekly bills of mortality, ſhall from time to time be brought before ſome juſtice or juſtices of ſuch hundred, riding, diviſion, liberty, rape, or wapentake, or other place, and ſhall be weighed before ſuch juſtice or juſtices within three days after the ſame ſhall have been baked, offered, or expoſed to or for ſale, or found in any perſon's cuſtody for ſale; unleſs it ſhall be made out to the ſatisfaction of any ſuch juſtice or juſtices before whom any ſuch bread ſhall be brought, by or on the behalf of the party or parties againſt whom any ſuch complaint or information ſhall be made, that ſuch deficiency in weight wholly aroſe from ſome unavoidable accident in baking or otherwiſe, or was occaſioned by or through ſome contrivance or confederacy.

Sect. 7. And that after the ſaid firſt day of May one thouſand ſeven hundred and ſixty-three, although an aſſize of bread ſhall not be ſet purſuant to the ſaid act, no perſon ſhall ſell, or offer, or expoſe to or for ſale, or have in his or her cuſtody any bread of any inferior quality to wheaten bread, with intent to ſell the ſame at an higher price than houſhold bread ſhall at the ſame time ſell for in the place where any bread of ſuch inferior qua lity ſhall be ſold, or offered to or for ſale, or be found for ſale in any perſon's cuſtody; upon pain that every one who ſhall offend in the premiſſes ſhall for every ſuch offence, on being thereof convicted in manner herein after mentioned, forfeit and pay not exceeding the ſum of twenty ſhillings, as the juſtice or juſtices before whom any ſuch offender or offenders ſhall be convicted, ſhall from time to time adjudge.

Sect. 8. And that from and after the ſaid firſt day of May one thouſand ſeven hundred and ſixty-three, altho' the aſſize of bread ſhall not be ſet purſuant to the ſaid act, all perſons who ſhall make for ſale, ſell, offer, or expoſe to or for ſale, or have in his or her cuſtody for ſale, any of the ſaid wheaten or houſhold bread, ſhall from time to time cauſe to be imprinted on every reſpective loaf thereof as followeth; that is to ſay, on every loaf of the ſaid wheaten bread, a large Roman (W) and on every loaf of the ſaid houſhold bread, a large Roman (H): and if any perſon, after the ſaid firſt day of May one thouſand ſeven hundred and ſixty-three, ſhall make for ſale, ſell, offer or expoſe to or for ſale, or have in his or her cuſtody for ſale, any loaf of the ſaid wheaten or houſhold bread, which ſhall not be marked as hereby is directed, ſo as the ſame may, on the view thereof, be aſcertained under what denomination or ſort of bread every ſuch loaf was and ought to be weighed (except as to ſuch loaves as ſhall be raſped after the beſpeaking or purchaſing thereof, by the particular deſire of the perſon who ſhall order the ſame to be ſo raſped for his or her own uſe); he or ſhe who ſhall ſo offend in the premiſſes, and ſhall be thereof convicted in manner herein after mentioned, ſhall for every loaf of ſuch bread not marked as hereby is directed, which ſhall be found in his or her cuſtody, forfeit and pay a ſum not exceeding forty ſhillings, nor leſs than ten ſhillings, as the juſtice or juſtices before whom any ſuch offender or offenders ſhall be convicted, ſhall from time to time adjudge; unleſs it ſhall be made out to the ſatisfaction of ſuch juſtice or juſtices, by or on the behalf of the party or parties againſt whom any ſuch complaint or information ſhall be made, that the not marking or not duly marking thereof wholly aroſe from ſome unavoidable accident in baking, or otherwiſe, or was occaſioned by or through ſome contrivance or confederacy.

Sect. 9. And that from and after the ſaid firſt day of May one thouſand ſeven hundred and ſixty-three, although the aſſize of bread ſhall not be ſet purſuant to the directions of the ſaid act, every loaf of every ſort of bread made of the meal or flour of any other ſort of grain than wheat, which ſhall be made for ſale, or be ſold, carried out, offered, or expoſed, in any wiſe, to or for ſale, ſhall be marked with ſome ſignificant and diſtinct letter or letters, not more than two thereon reſpectively, as the juſtices of any county, riding, diviſion, liberty, city, town, or place, at any general or quarter ſeſſion of the peace which ſhall be holden within their reſpective counties, ridings, diviſions, liberties, cities, towns, or places within their reſpective juriſdictions, or at any petty ſeſſions which ſhall be held by any ſuch juſtices within their reſpective juriſdictions, ſhall from time to time, for their reſpective counties, ridings, diviſions, liberties, rapes, wapentakes, cities, towns, or places, or any part thereof, order or direct; and every ſuch order ſhall, with all convenient ſpeed after the making thereof, be entered in ſome book to be for that purpoſe provided and kept by ſuch juſtices, and whereunto any maker of bread for ſale reſiding within any ſuch county, diviſion, liberty, rape, wapentake, city, town, or place, ſhall be at liberty to reſort at ſeaſonable times in the day-time, and to peruſe every ſuch order without being ſubject or liable to pay any fee or reward in reſpect thereof; and ſuch juſtices as aforeſaid ſhall, with all convenient ſpeed after the making any ſuch order as aforeſaid, cauſe a copy thereof to b affixed or put up in ſome market or other public town within the diviſion or part of the county, riding, liberty, or place, in which ſuch order as aforeſaid is to be obſerved or take place, or in ſome public place in every city, town, or place, where ſuch order is to be obſerved or take place; or otherwiſe ſuch juſtices, within their reſpective juriſdictions, ſhall cauſe a copy of every ſuch their reſpective order, with all convenient ſpeed after the making thereof, to be inſerted in ſome public news-paper which ſhall be uſually publiſhed in the county, riding, diviſion, liberty, rape, wapentake, city, town, or place, or ſome part thereof, in which ſuch order as aforeſaid is to be obſerved or take place; and if the juſtices as aforeſaid ſhall at any time, in any place, neglect or omit to make any order, from time to time, with what letter or letters ſuch bread which ſhall be made for ſale of the meal or flour of any other ſort of grain than wheat, ſhall be marked, then the maker of all ſuch bread for ſale ſhall, in every place where no ſuch order ſhall be made or be in force, cauſe every loaf of ſuch bread he or ſhe ſhall make, or cauſe to be made, for ſale, or ſhall ſell, or offer or expoſe to or for ſale, to be reſpectively marked with any two diſtinct capital letters as he or ſhe ſhall think fit; and every perſon who, after the ſaid firſt day of May one thouſand ſeven hundred and ſixty-three, ſhall make for ſale, ſell, offer, or expoſe to or for ſale, or have in his or her cuſtody for ſale, any loaf of any ſuch ſort of bread which ſhall be made with the meal or flour of any other ſort of grain than wheat, which ſhall not be marked as herein before is directed, ſo as that the ſame may, on view thereof, be aſcertained aſcertained under what denomination every ſuch loaf was made (except ſuch loaves thereof which ſhall be raſped, after the beſpeaking or purchaſing thereof, by the particular deſire of the perſon who ſhall order the ſame to be raſped for his or her own uſe, ſhall, for every time he, ſhe, or they ſhall ſo offend in the premiſſes, and be thereof convicted in manner herein after directed, forfeit and pay a ſum not exceeding forty ſhillings, nor leſs than five ſhillings, for every loaf of ſuch bread which ſhall not be ſo marked as herein before is firſt directed, as the juſtice or juſtices before whom any ſuch offender ſhall be convicted, ſhall from time to time adjudge.

Sect. 10. And to the end the good deſign of this ſtatute may be more effectually accompliſhed, be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That from and after the ſaid firſt day of May one thouſand ſeven hundred and ſixty-three it ſhall and may be lawful for any juſtice or juſtices within the limits of their reſpective juriſdictions, although the aſſize of bread ſhall not be there ſet according to the ſaid herein before in part recited act; and alſo for any peace officer or officers authorized by warrant under the hand and ſeal or hands and ſeals of any ſuch juſtice or juſtices (and which warrant any ſuch juſtice or juſtices is and are hereby impowered to grant within their reſpective juriſdictions) to enter into any houſe, ſhop, ſtall, bake-houſe, warehouſe, or outhouſe or other place, of or belonging to any baker or ſeller of bread, and to ſearch, view, weigh, examine, and try all or any bread which ſhall be there found; and alſo to view, weigh, and try all bread made for ſale, which at any time ſhall be offered or expoſed to or for ſale, or found in any one's cuſtody for ſale, in any wiſe howſoever, within the reſpective juriſdiction of any ſuch juſtice or juſtices: and if any loaf or loaves of bread of any denomination ſhall, on any ſearch, view, weighing, trial, or examination thereof, by any juſtice or juſtices, or on any complaint made to, or information given before, any juſtice or juſtices, and proved by the oath of one or more credible witneſs or witneſſes, be found to be deficient in the due weight the ſame ought to be, or not to be marked according to the directions and intent of this act, or to be deficient in the due baking or working thereof, or to be wanting in the goodneſs of the ſtuff whereof or wherewith any ſuch loaf ſhall have been made; or to have been made with any mixture of meal or flour of any other ſort of grain than of the grain the ſame ſhall import to be made with; or to be made with any larger or other proportion of any other or different ſort or ſorts of grain, or the meal or flour thereof, than what ought to be put therein; or to be made with any mixture or ingredient which by the ſaid in part recited act ought not to be put therein; or to be made with any thing as or for or in lieu of flour which ſhall not really be the genuine flour the ſame ſhall import to be and ought to be; or that any ſuch bread ſhall be made with any leaven not allowed by the ſaid in part recited act to be uſed in making bread; then, and in every or any of the ſaid caſes, every juſtice and juſtices, peace officer and officers as aforeſaid, is and are hereby reſpectively, within the limits of their ſeveral juriſdictions, impowered and required by the authority of this act to ſeize every loaf of ſuch bread, and to diſpoſe thereof to poor perſons, as ſuch juſtice or juſtices in his or their diſcretion ſhall from time to time, within their reſpective juriſdictions, think fit; unleſs it ſhall be made out to the ſatisfaction of any ſuch juſtice or juſtices, by or on the behalf of the party or parties againſt whom any ſuch complaint or information as aforeſaid ſhall be made, that the default found or complained of wholly aroſe from ſome unavoidable accident, or was occaſioned by or through ſome contrivance or confederacy; and every maker and ſeller of bread reſpectively as aforeſaid, whoſe bread ſhall at any time be found before any juſtice or juſtices wanting in the goodneſs of the ſtuff whereof or wherewith the ſame ſhould have been made, or to be made with any mixture of meal or flour of any other ſort of grain than of the grain the ſame ſhall import to be made with, or to be made with any larger or other proportion of any other or different ſort or ſorts of grain, or the meal or flour thereof, than what ought to be put therein, or to be made with any mixture or ingredient not allowed by the ſaid in part recited act to be put therein, or to be made with any thing as for or in lieu of flour, which ſhall not really be the genuine flour the ſame ſhall import to be and ought to be; or to be made with any leaven not allowed by the ſaid in part recited act to be uſed in making ſuch bread, ſhall for every ſuch offence, on being convicted thereof in manner herein after mentioned, alſo forfeit and pay a ſum not exceeding five pounds, nor leſs than twenty ſhillings, as the juſtice or juſtices before whom any ſuch offender or offenders ſhall be convicted, ſhall from time to time adjudge; unleſs the default found or complained of ſhall be made out to the ſatisfaction of any ſuch juſtice or juſtices, by or on the behalf of the party or parties againſt whom ſuch complaint or information as aforeſaid ſhall be made, to have wholly aroſe from ſome unavoidable accident, or to have been occaſioned by or through ſome contrivance or confederacy.

Sect. 11. And that from and after the ſaid firſt day of May one thouſand ſeven hundred and ſixty-three, although the aſſize of bread ſhall not be ſet according to the ſaid in part recited act, if any perſon or perſons ſhall wilfully obſtruct, hinder, reſiſt, or in any wiſe oppoſe any ſearch, view, weighing, trying, or ſeizing of any loaf or loaves of bread, authorized by this act to be made or tried, he, ſhe, or they, who ſhall ſo offend in the premiſſes, ſhall for every ſuch offence, on being convicted thereof in manner herein after mentioned, forfeit and pay ſuch ſum of money not exceeding forty ſhillings, nor leſs than twenty ſhillings, as the juſtice or juſtices before whom any ſuch offender or offenders ſhall be convicted, ſhall from time to time adjudge.

Sect. 12. Provided always, That no perſon who ſhall follow, or be concerned in the buſineſs of a miller, mealman, or baker, ſhall be capable of acting, or ſhall be allowed to act as a juſtice of the peace under this act, or in putting in execution any of the powers in or by this act granted; and if any miller, mealman, or baker ſhall preſume ſo to do, he or they ſo offending in the premiſſes ſhall for every ſuch offence forfeit and pay the ſum of fifty pounds to any perſon or perſons who will inform or ſue for the ſame; to be recovered in any of his Majeſty's courts of record at Weſtminſter by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, wherein no eſſoin, wager of law, or more than one imparlance ſhall be allowed, or by way of ſummary complaint before the court of ſeſſion in that part of Great Britain called Scotland.

Sect. 13. Provided always, That if any perſon who ſhall carry on or follow the trade of a baker ſhall, at any time after the ſaid firſt day of May one thouſand ſeven hundred and ſixty-three, make complaint to any juſtice or juſtices of the peace within his or their juriſdiction, and make appear to him or them by the oath of any credible witneſs, that any offence, which any ſuch perſon who ſhall ſo carry on or follow the ſaid trade of a baker, ſhall have been charged with, and ſhall have incurred and paid any penalty under this act, ſhall have been occaſioned by or through the wilful neglect or default of any journeyman or other ſervant employed by or under any ſuch perſon, who ſhall ſo follow or carry on the ſaid trade of a baker; then, and in any ſuch caſe, every ſuch juſtice and juſtices may and is and are hereby required to iſſue out his or their warrant under his or their reſpective hand and ſeal or hands and ſeals, for bringing any ſuch journeyman or ſervant before any ſuch juſtice or juſtices, or any juſtice of the county, city, riding, diviſion, or place, where the offender can be found; and on any ſuch journeyman or ſervant being thereupon apprehended, and brought before any ſuch juſtice or juſtices, he or they, within their reſpective juriſdictions, is and are hereby authorized and required to examine into the matter of ſuch complaint; and on proof thereof being made upon oath to the ſatisfaction of any ſuch juſtice or juſtices who ſhall hear ſuch ſaid complaint, ſuch juſtice and juſtices is and are hereby directed and authorized, by any order under his or their reſpective hand or hands, to adjudge and order what reaſonable ſum of money ſhall be paid by every ſuch journeyman or ſervant to his maſter or miſtreſs, as or by way of recompenſe to him or her for the money he or ſhe ſhall have paid by reaſon of the wilful neglect or default of any ſuch journeyman or ſervant; and if any ſuch journeyman or ſervant ſhall neglect or refuſe, on his conviction, to make immediate payment of the ſum of money which any ſuch juſtice or juſtices ſhall order to be paid, by reaſon of ſuch ſaid wilful neglect or default, then any ſuch juſtice and juſtices, within their reſpective juriſdictions, is and are hereby authorized and required, by warrant under his hand and ſeal or their hands and ſeals, to cauſe every ſuch journeyman or ſervant to be apprehended and committed to the houſe of correction, or ſome other priſon of the county, riding, diviſion, city, town, liberty, or place, in which any ſuch journeyman or ſervant ſhall be apprehended, and there to be kept to hard labour for any time not exceeding one calendar month from the time of ſuch commitment, as ſuch juſtice or juſtices ſhall order, unleſs payment ſhall be made of the money ordered to be paid after ſuch commitment, and before the expiration of the ſaid calendar month.

Sect. 14. And for the better and more eaſy recovery of the ſeveral penalties and forfeitures to be incurred by diſobedience to this act and the powers herein contained, Be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That it ſhall and may be lawful to and for the juſtices of the peace, or any one of them, within their reſpective counties, ridings, diviſions, cities, towns corporate, boroughs, liberties, or juriſdictions, to hear and determine, in a ſummary way, all offences committed againſt the true intent and meaning of this act; and for that purpoſe to ſummon before them, or any of them, within their reſpective juriſdictions, any party or parties accuſed of being an offender or offenders againſt the true intent and meaning of this act; and in caſe the party accuſed ſhall not appear on ſuch ſummons, or offer ſome reaſonable excuſe for his default, then, upon oath of any credible witneſs of any offence committed contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, any ſuch juſtice or juſtices ſhall iſſue his or their warrant or warrants for apprehending the offender or offenders within the juriſdiction of any ſuch juſtice or juſtices; and upon the appearance of the party or parties accuſed, or in caſe he, ſhe, or they ſhall not appear, on notice being given to, or left for him, her, or them at his, her, or their uſual place of abode, or if he, ſhe, or they cannot be apprehended, on a warrant granted againſt him, her, or them, as herein before is directed; then, and in any ſuch caſe, any ſuch juſtice or juſtices is and are hereby authorized and required to proceed to make inquiry touching the matters complained of, and to examine any witneſs or witneſſes who ſhall be offered on either ſide, on oath as aforeſaid, and which oath every ſuch juſtice and juſtices is and are hereby authorized, impowered, and required to adminiſter; and after hearing of the parties who ſhall appear, and the witneſſes who ſhall be offered on either ſide, ſuch juſtice or juſtices ſhall convict or acquit the party or parties accuſed: and if the penalty or money forfeited on any ſuch conviction ſhall not be paid within the ſpace of 24 hours after any ſuch conviction, every ſuch juſtice or juſtices ſhall thereupon iſſue a warrant or warrants under his hand and ſeal, or their hands and ſeals reſpectively, directed to any peace officer or officers within their reſpective juriſdictions, and thereby require him or them to make diſtreſs of the goods or chattels of the offender or offenders within ſuch their reſpective juriſdictions, to ſatisfy ſuch penalty or money forfeited, and the coſts of the proſecution and diſtreſs: and if any offender ſhall convey away his or her goods out of the juriſdiction of any ſuch juſtice or juſtices before whom he or ſhe was convicted, or ſo much thereof that the penalty or money forfeited cannot be levied, then ſome juſtice, within whoſe juriſdiction the offender ſhall have removed his or her goods, ſhall back the warrant granted by any juſtice or juſtices as aforeſaid, and thereupon the penalty forfeited ſhall be levied on the offender's goods and chattels by diſtreſs and ſale thereof; and if within five days from the diſtreſs being taken, the penalty or money forfeited and coſts as aforeſaid ſhall not be paid, the goods ſeized or taken ſhall be appraiſed and ſold, rendering the overplus (if any) after deducting the penalty or forfeiture, and the coſts and charges of the proſecution, diſtreſs, and ſale, to the owner or owners thereof; which charges ſhall be aſcertained by the juſtice or juſtices before whom any ſuch offender or offenders ſhall have been ſo convicted, or by the juſtice who backed the warrant (if either of them ſhall continue alive) and if not, by ſome other juſtice of the county, riding, diviſion, city, or place in which the offender ſhall have been convicted, on application for that purpoſe to be made to any ſuch juſtice; and for want of ſuch diſtreſs, then every ſuch juſtice, within whoſe reſpective juriſdiction any ſuch offender or offenders ſhall reſide or be, ſhall, on the application of any proſecutor or proſecutors, and proof on oath made of the conviction, and non-payment of the penalty and charges, by warrant under his hand and ſeal, commit every ſuch offender or offenders to the common gaol or houſe of correction of the county, riding, diviſion, city, liberty, or place where ſuch offender or offenders ſhall be found, there to remain for the ſpace of one calendar month from the time of ſuch commitment, unleſs after ſuch commitment payment ſhall be made of the penalty or money forfeited, and the coſts and charges aſcertained as aforeſaid, before the expiration of the ſaid one calendar month.

Sect. 15. And that the juſtice or juſtices before whom any perſon ſhall be convicted in that part of Great Britain called England, in manner preſcribed by this act, ſhall cauſe every ſuch reſpective conviction to be drawn up in the form or to the effect following; that is to ſay,

(To wit) BE it remembered, That on this day of in the year of the reign of A. B. is convicted before Majeſty's juſtices of the peace for the ſaid county of or for the or for the city, liberty, or town of (as the caſe ſhall happen to be) for and do adjudge (him, her, or them, as the caſe ſhall be) to pay and forfeit for the ſame, the ſum of

Given under the day and year aforeſaid.

Sect. 16. And that in caſe any perſon or perſons ſhall be convicted of any offence againſt this act before any juſtice or juſtices of the peace in that part of Great Britain called Scotland, every ſuch conviction ſhall proceed and be drawn up in the form commonly uſed and practiſed before ſuch juſtices of the peace, on convictions for other offences of the like nature.

Sect. 17. And that no certiorari, letters of advocation, or of ſuſpenſion, ſhall be granted to remove any conviction or other proceedings had thereon in purſuance of this act.

Sect. 18. Provided always, That if any perſon convicted of any offence puniſhable by this act ſhall think him, her, or themſelves aggrieved by the judgment of any juſtice or juſtices before whom he, ſhe, or they ſhall have been convicted, ſuch perſon ſhall have liberty from time to time to appeal to the juſtices at the next general or general quarter ſeſſions of the peace which ſhall be held for the county, riding, diviſion, city, liberty, town, or place where ſuch judgment ſhall have been given; and that the execution of the ſaid judgment ſhall, in ſuch caſe, be ſuſpended; the perſon ſo convicted entering into a recognizance at the time of ſuch conviction, with two ſufficient ſureties, in double the ſum which ſuch perſon ſhall have been adjudged to pay or forfeit, upon condition to proſecute ſuch appeal with effect, and to be forthcoming, to abide the judgment and determination of the juſtices at their ſaid next general or general quarter ſeſſion; which recognizance the juſtice or juſtices, before whom ſuch conviction ſhall be had, is and are hereby impowered and required to take; and the juſtices in the ſaid general or general quarter ſeſſion are hereby authorized and required to hear and finally determine the matter of every ſuch appeal, and to award ſuch coſts as to them ſhall appear juſt and reaſonable to be paid by either party; and if upon hearing the ſaid appeal, the judgment of the juſtice or juſtices, before whom the appellant or appellants ſhall have been convicted, ſhall be affirmed, ſuch appellant or appellants ſhall immediately pay down the ſum he, ſhe, or they ſhall have been adjudged to forfeit, together with ſuch coſts as the juſtices in their ſaid general or general quarter ſeſſion ſhall award to be paid to the proſecutor or informer, for defraying the expences ſuſtained by reaſon of any ſuch appeal; and in default of the appellant's paying the ſame, any juſtice or juſtices having juriſdiction in the place into which any ſuch appellant or appellants ſhall eſcape, or where he, ſhe, or they ſhall reſide, ſhall and may, by warrant under their hands and ſeals or his hand and ſeal, commit every ſuch appellant and appellants to the common gaol of the county, riding, diviſion, liberty, city, town, or place where he, ſhe, or they ſhall be apprehended, there to remain until he, ſhe, or they ſhall pay the penalty or money forfeited and coſts as aforeſaid, or ſhall compound in reſpect thereof with the informer, and pay the compoſition-money agreed on to the informer; but if the appellant or appellants in any ſuch appeal ſhall make good his, her, or their appeal, and be diſcharged of the ſaid conviction, reaſonable coſts ſhall be awarded to the appellant or appellants againſt ſuch informer or informers, who (in caſe of ſuch conviction having been affirmed) would have been intitled to the penalty to have been recovered as aforeſaid; and which coſts ſhall and may be recovered by the appellant or appellants againſt any ſuch informer or informers, in like manner as coſts given at any general or general quarter ſeſſion of the peace are recoverable.

Sect. 19. Provided always, That if any ſuch conviction ſhall happen to be made within ſix days before any general or general quarter ſeſſion of the peace, which ſhall be held for the county, riding, diviſion, city, town corporate, borough, or place where ſuch conviction ſhall have been made; then the party or parties who ſhall think him, her, or themſelves aggrieved by any ſuch conviction, ſhall and may, on entering into a recognizance in manner and for the purpoſes before directed, be at liberty to appeal, either to the then next, or the next following general or general quarter ſeſſion of the peace which ſhall be held for any ſuch county, riding, diviſion, city, town corporate, borough, liberty, or place where any ſuch conviction ſhall have been made.

Sect. 20. And that every action or ſuit which ſhall be brought or commenced againſt any juſtice or juſtices, or any peace officer or officers, in that part of Great Britain called England, for any matter or thing done or committed by virtue of or under this act, ſhall be commenced within ſix calendar months next after the fact committed, and not afterwards, and ſhall be laid or brought in the county, city, or place where the matter in diſpute ſhall ariſe, and not elſewhere; and that the ſtatute made in the twenty-fourth year of King George the Second, [intituled, An act for rendering the juſtices of the peace more ſafe in the execution of their office; and for indemnifying conſtables, and others, acting in obedience to their warrants] ſo far as the ſaid act relates to the rendering the juſtices more ſafe in the execution of their office, ſhall extend and be conſtrued to extend to the juſtice or juſtices of the peace acting under the authority or in purſuance of this act; and that no action or ſuit ſhall be had or commenced againſt, nor ſhall any writ be ſued out, or copy of any writ be ſerved upon any peace officer or officers, for any thing done in the execution of this act, until ſeven days after a notice in writing ſhall have been given to, or left for him or them at his or their uſual place of abode, by the attorney for the party intending to commence ſuch action; which notice ſhall contain the name and place of abode of the perſon intending to bring ſuch action, and alſo of his attorney, and likewiſe the cauſe of action or complaint: and any peace officer or officers ſhall be at liberty, and may, by virtue of this act, at any time within ſeven days after any ſuch notice ſhall have been given to, or left for him, tender, or cauſe to be tendered, any ſum or ſums of money, as amends for the injury complained of, to the party complaining, or to the attorney named in any ſuch notice; and, if the ſame is not accepted of, the defendant or defendants in any ſuch action or actions may plead ſuch tender in bar of ſuch action or actions, together with the general iſſue, or any other plea, with leave of the court in which the action ſhall be commenced: and if, upon iſſue joined on ſuch tender, the jury ſhall find the amends tendered to have been ſufficient, they ſhall find a verdict for the defendant or defendants: and in every ſuch caſe, or if the plaintiff ſhall become nonſuit, or diſcontinue his action; or if judgment ſhall be given for the defendant or defendants upon demurrer; or if any action or ſuit ſhall be brought after the time limited by this act for bringing the ſame, or ſhall be brought in any other county or place than as aforeſaid; then, and in every ſuch caſe, the jury ſhall find a verdict for the defendant or defendants; and the defendant or defendants ſhall be intitled to his or their coſts: but if the jury ſhall find that no ſuch tender was made, or that the amends tendered were not ſufficient, or ſhall find a verdict againſt the defendant or defendants, on any plea or pleas by him or them pleaded; then they ſhall give a verdict for the plaintiff, and ſuch damages as they ſhall think proper; and the plaintiff ſhall thereupon recover his or her coſts againſt every ſuch defendant and defendants.

Sect. 21. And that if any action or ſuit ſhall be commenced againſt any other perſon or perſons than a juſtice or juſtices, or peace officer, for any thing done in purſuance of this act, the defendant or defendants in any ſuch action or ſuit may plead the general iſſue, and give this act and the ſpecial matter in evidence at any trial to be had thereupon, and that the ſame was done in purſuance and by the authority of this act; and if it ſhall appear ſo to have been done, or if a verdict ſhall be found for the defendant or defendants; or if the plaintiff ſhall be nonſuited, or diſcontinue his action, after the defendant or defendants ſhall have appeared; or if judgment ſhall be given upon a verdict or demurrer againſt the plaintiff or plaintiffs, the defendant or defendants in every ſuch action ſhall and may recover double coſts, and have the like remedy for the ſame as any defendant or defendants hath or have in other caſes by law for recovery of his or their coſts.

Sect. 22. And that the above limitations and remedies for rendering juſtices of peace, peace officers, and all other perſons, ſafe in the execution of their ſeveral offices under this act, ſhall extend to and be available to all ſuch juſtices of peace, peace officers, and other perſons, in that part of Great Britain called Scotland, and ſhall be pleaded by them, and ſuſtained by the court or courts before which they, or any of them, may happen to be ſued, according to the forms of the law of Scotland.

Sect. 23. Provided alſo, That no perſon ſhall be convicted of any offence under this act, unleſs the proſecution in order for ſuch conviction ſhall be commenced within three days after the offence committed; and that no perſon, who ſhall be proſecuted to conviction for any offence done or committed againſt this act, ſhall be ſubject or liable to be proſecuted for the ſame offence under any other law.

Sect. 24. And that all penalties and forfeitures by this act inflicted ſhall, when recovered or paid, go and be diſtributed in manner following; that is to ſay, one moiety thereof, where any offender or offenders ſhall be convicted either by his, her, or their own confeſſion, or by the oath of one or more credible witneſs or witneſſes, ſhall go and be paid to the perſon or perſons who ſhall inform againſt and proſecute to conviction any ſuch offender or offenders; and the other moiety thereof, as the juſtice or juſtices before whom any offender or offenders againſt this act ſhall be convicted, ſhall from time to time think fit and order, for the better carrying into execution the purpoſes of this act, and defraying the charges attending the carrying the ſame into execution.

Sect. 25. Provided likewiſe, and it is hereby enacted, That this act, or any thing herein contained, ſhall not extend, or be conſtrued to extend, to prejudice the ancient right or cuſtom of the two univerſities of Oxford or Cambridge, or either of them, or of their or either of their clerks of the market, or the practice within the ſeveral juriſdictions of the ſaid univerſities, or either of them, them, uſed to aſcertain and appoint the weight of all ſorts of bread to be ſold or expoſed to ſale within their ſeveral juriſdictions; but that they, and every of them, ſhall and may, ſeverally and reſpectively, from time to time as there ſhall be occaſion, aſcertain and appoint within their ſeveral and reſpective juriſdictions the weight of all ſorts of bread to be ſold or expoſed to ſale by any baker or other perſons whatſoever, within the limits of their ſeveral juriſdictions; and ſhall and may puniſh the breach thereof as fully and freely, in all reſpects, as they uſed to do, and as if this act had never been made; any thing herein contained to the contrary thereof in any wiſe notwithſtanding.

Bread of treet or trite, (panis tritici) Is one of thoſe ſorts of bread mentioned in the ſtatute of aſſize of bread and ale, 51 Hen. 3. ſtat. 1. where we read of waſtel bread, cocket bread, and bread of treet, which may anſwer to three ſorts now in uſe with us, called white, wheaten, and houſhold bread. Bribery, In a ſtrict ſenſe, is taken for a great miſpriſion of one in a judicial place taking any valuable thing whatſoever, except meat and drink of ſmall value, of any one who has to do before him any way, for doing his office, or by colour of his office, but of the King only. 1 Hawk. 168. 3 Inſt. 145. But Bribery, in a large ſenſe, is ſometimes taken for the receiving or offering of any undue reward by or to any perſon whatſoever, whoſe ordinary profeſſion or buſineſs relates to the adminiſtration of public juſtice, in order to incline him to do a thing againſt the known rules of honeſty and integrity; for the law abhors any the leaſt tendency to corruption in thoſe who are any way concerned in its adminiſtration, and will not endure their taking a reward for the doing a thing which deſerves the ſevereſt of puniſhments. 3 Inſt. 149. Hob. 9. Cro. Ja. 65. 1 Hawk. 168.

Alſo Bribery ſometimes ſignifies the taking or giving of a reward for offices of a public nature; and ſurely nothing can be more palpably prejudicial to the good of the public, than to have places of the higheſt concernment, on the due execution whereof the happineſs of both King and people depend, diſpoſed of not to thoſe who are moſt able to execute them, but to thoſe who are moſt able to pay for them; nor can any thing be a greater diſcouragement to induſtry and virtue, than to ſee thoſe places of truſt and honour, which ought to be the rewards of thoſe who by their induſtry and diligence have qualified themſelves for them, conferred on ſuch who have no other recommendation but that of being the higheſt bidders; neither can any thing be a greater temptation to officers to abuſe their power by bribery and extortion, and other acts of injuſtice, than the conſideration of the great expence they were at in gaining their places, and the neceſſity of ſometimes ſtraining a point to make their bargain anſwer their expectations: for which reaſons, among many others, it is expreſly enacted by 12 Rich. 2. 2. "That the Chancellor, Treaſurer, Keeper of the Privy Seal, Steward of the King's Houſe, the King's Chamberlain, Clerk of the Rolls, the Juſtices of the one Bench and of the other, Barons of the Exchequer, and all other, that ſhall be called to ordain, name, or make Juſtices of Peace, Sheriffs, Eſcheators, Cuſtomers, Comptrollers, or any other officer or miniſter of the King, ſhall be firmly ſworn, that they ſhall not ordain, name, or make any of the above-mentioned officers, for any gift or brocage, favour or affection, nor that none which ſueth by himſelf, or by others, privily or openly to be in any manner of office, ſhall be put in the ſame office, or in any other, but that they make all ſuch officers and miniſters of the beſt and moſt lawful men, and ſufficient to their eſtimation and knowledge." Alſo it is further enacted by 4 H. 4. 5. "That no Sheriff ſhall let his Bailiwick to farm to any man, for the time that he occupieth ſuch office, &c." Alſo it is enacted by 5 & 6 Ed. 6. 16. "That if any perſon ſhall bargain or ſell, or take any reward, reward, or promiſe of any reward for any office, or the deputation of any office, any way concerning the King's revenue, or the keeping of his caſtles, or the adminiſtration or execution of juſtice (unleſs it be ſuch an office as had been uſually granted before the making of the ſaid act by the juſtices of the King's Bench, or Common Pleas, or by the juſtices of aſſize) that then every ſuch perſon ſo bargaining or ſelling, or taking ſuch reward, or promiſe, &c. ſhall not only forfeit his right to ſuch office, or to the nomination thereof, but alſo every perſon who ſhall give any ſuch reward or promiſe, &c. ſhall be adjudged a diſabled perſon in law to have or enjoy ſuch office, &c."

In the conſtruction of this ſtatute of 5 & 6 Ed. 6. the following points have been reſolved;

That the offices of Chancellor, Regiſter, and Commiſſary in eccleſiaſtical courts, are within the meaning of the ſtatute, inaſmuch as thoſe courts do not only determine matters which are brought before them, merely pro ſalute animæ, but alſo have the deciſion of diſputes concerning the lawfulneſs of matrimony and legitimation of children, which touch the inheritance of the ſubject, and alſo hold plea of legacies and titles, &c. in which reſpects they are courts of juſtice. Cro. Ja. 269. 3 Inſt. 148.

That one who makes a contract for any office, contrary to the purport of the ſaid ſtatute, is ſo far diſabled to hold the ſame, that he cannot at any time, during his life, be reſtored to a capacity of holding it by any grant or diſpenſation whatſoever. Hob. 75. Co. Lit. 234. Cro. Ca. 361. Cro. Ja. 386.

As to the puniſhment of bribery, it is ſaid, that at Common law bribery in a judge, in relation to a cauſe depending before him, was looked upon as an offence of ſo heinous a nature, that it was ſometimes puniſhed as high treaſon, before the 25 Ed. 3. 3 Inſt. 148. And at this day it is certainly a very high offence, and puniſhable, not only with the forfeiture of the offender's office of juſtice, but alſo with fine and impriſonment, &c. 1 Leon. 295. Cro. Ja. 65.

Alſo all the other above-mentioned kinds of bribery, taken in a large ſenſe, ſeem to be puniſhable with fine and impriſonment, &c. And in the time of King James the firſt, the Earl of M. Lord High Treaſurer of England, being impeached by the Commons for refuſing to hear petitions referred to him by the King, till he had received great bribes, and for other ſuch like miſdemeanors, was, by ſentence of the Lords, deprived of all his offices, and diſabled to have any for the future, or to ſit in the parliament, and was fined fifty thouſand pounds, and impriſonment during the King's pleaſure. 3 Inſt. 148. 1 Hawk. 170. Bridges. Publick Bridges, which are of general conveniency, are of common right to be repaired by the whole inhabitants of that county in which they lie. Hale's P. C. 143. 13 Co. 33, Cro. Car. 365.

But a corporation aggregate, either in reſpect of a ſpecial tenure of certain lands, or in reſpect of a ſpecial preſcription; alſo any other perſon, by reaſon of ſuch a ſpecial tenure, may be compelled to repair them. Hale's P. C. 143. Dalt. c. 14.

Any particular inhabitant or inhabitants of a county, or tenant or tenants of land, chargeable with the repairs of a common bridge, may be made defendants to an indictment for not repairing it, and be liable to pay the whole fine aſſeſſed by the court for the default of ſuch repairs, and ſhall be put to their remedy at law for a contribution from thoſe who are bound to bear a proportionable ſhare in the charge; for caſes of this nature require the utmoſt expedition; and bridges being of abſolute neceſſity, are not to lie unrepaired till law ſuits are determined. 1 Jones 173. Pop. 192. 6 Mod. 307. Salk. 358.

If a manor held by the ſervice or tenure of repairing a common bridge comes, by the alienation of the lord, into the hands of ſeveral perſons, every alienee being tenant of any parcel, either of the demeſne or ſervices, ſhall be liable to the whole charge, and put to their remedy for a contribution from the reſt; and though the lord, on ſuch alienation, agreed that the purchaſers ſhould be exempt from the charges, yet however binding ſuch agreement might be among themſelves, it ſhall not work a general injury, by making the remedy the public had more difficult than it was before. 1 Salk. 358.

So if a manor, ſubject to ſuch charge, comes into the hands of the crown, yet the duty upon it continues; and any perſon claiming afterwards under the crown, the whole manor, or any part thereof, ſhall be liable to an indictment or information for want of due repairs. 1 Salk. 358.

If part of a bridge lie within a franchiſe, thoſe of the franchiſe may be charged with the repairs for ſo much; alſo by a ſpecial tenure, a man may be charged with the repairs of one part of a bridge, and the inhabitants of a county are to repair the reſt. Hawk. P. C. 221. Raym. 384, 385.

It hath been reſolved, that it is not ſufficient for the defendant to an indictment for not repairing a bridge, to excuſe themſelves by ſhewing that they are not bound either to repair the whole, or any part of the bridge, without ſhewing what other perſon is bound to repair the ſame; and it is ſaid, that in ſuch caſe the whole charge ſhall be laid upon ſuch defendants by reaſon of their ill plea. 1 Hawk. P. C. 221. Pop. 192.

It is ſaid, that where ſuch defendants plead that A. B. ought to repair the bridge mentioned in the indictment, and take a traverſe to the charge againſt themſelves; the Attorney General, in this ſpecial caſe, may take a traverſe upon a traverſe, and inſiſt that the defendants are bound to the repairs, and traverſe the charge alledged againſt A. B. and that an iſſue ought to be taken of ſuch traverſe; and that the Attorney General may afterwards ſurmiſe, that the defendants are bound to repair it, and that the whole matter ſhall be tried by an indifferent jury. 1 Hawk. P. C. 221. 1 Sid. 140.

It ſeems clear that thoſe who are bound to repair ſuch bridges, muſt make them of ſuch height and ſtrength as ſhall be anſwerable for the courſe of the water, whether it continue in the old channel or make a new one; and that they are not puniſhable as treſpaſſers for entering on any adjoining land for ſuch purpoſe, or for laying on the materials requiſite for ſuch repairs. 1 Hawk. P. C. 221.

No inhabitant of a county ought to be a juror for the trial of an iſſue, whether the county be bound to ſuch repairs or not; but by ſtat. 1 Ann. ſtat. 1. c. 18. he may be a good witneſs. 6 Mod. 307. 1 Hawk. 222.

No man can be compelled to build or contribute to the charges of building of any new bridge without an act of parliament; nor can the inhabitants of the whole county, by their own authority, change a bridge or highway from one place to another, 2 Inſt. 701. Carth. 193. 6 Mod. 307.

If a man makes a bridge for the common good of the King's ſubjects, he is not bound to repair it. 2 Inſt. 701.

By ſtat. 22 H. 8. c 5. ſect. 14. "The juſtices of peace in every ſhire, franchiſe, or borough, or four of them, whereof one to be of the quorum, may inquire and determine in their general ſeſſions of annoyances of bridges broken in the highways, and make ſuch proceſs and pains on every preſentment againſt the perſons charged, &c. as the King's Bench is uſed to do, or as it ſhall ſeem by their directions to be neceſſary and convenient."

Sect. 2, 3. "And where it cannot be known who ought to make ſuch bridges decayed, they ſhall be made by the inhabitants of the ſhire, city, or town corporate wherein they ſhall be; and if part ſhall be in one ſhire, &c. and part in another, the inhabitants of each ſhall repair and make ſuch part as lies within their reſpective limits."

Sect. 4. "And for ſpeedy reformation of ſuch bridges the juſtices of the peace of ſuch ſhire or town, or four of them, whereof one to be of the quorum, may call before them either the conſtables, or elſe two of the moſt honeſt inhabitants of every town and pariſh, and with the aſſent of the ſaid conſtable or inhabitants may tax every inhabitant within their limits, in ſuch ſums as may be thought convenient; and ſhall cauſe the names and ſums of each perſon to be written in a roll indented, and ſhall have power to make two collectors of every hundred for the collection of ſuch tax, which collectors receiving one part of the roll indented, under the ſeals of the juſtices, ſhall have power to collect all the ſums therein contained, and to diſtrain thoſe who ſhall refuſe to pay; and the ſame juſtices, or four of them, may alſo name two ſurveyors, who ſhall ſee every ſuch decayed bridge repaired from time to time, to whom the ſaid collectors ſhall deliver the ſaid ſums by them received; and the collectors and ſurveyors, and their executors, ſhall from time to time make a true account to the juſtices, or four of them, whereof one of the quorum, of their receipts, payments, and expences: and if any of them ſhall refuſe that to do, the ſame juſtices, or four of them, may make proceſs againſt them by attachment, under their ſeals, returnable at the general ſeſſions; and if they appear, may compel them to account, or elſe, on their refuſal, may commit them till the account be truly made."

Sect. 5. Where the bridge is in one ſhire, and the perſon bound to amend it in another; or where the bridge is in a town corporate, and the perſon bound to repair it out of it, the juſtices of ſuch ſhire or town corporate may inquire, and determine all ſuch annoyances within their limits; and on a preſentment may make proceſs againſt ſuch perſons; and do further in every behalf, in every ſuch caſe, as they might do by the ſaid act, in caſe that ſuch perſons were in the ſame ſhire, &c. And all ſheriffs and bailiffs of liberties ſhall ſerve ſuch proceſs, on pain to make ſuch fine as ſhall be ſet by the ſaid juſtices.

Sect. 6. Provided that nothing in this act ſhall be prejudicial to the liberties of the five ports; but that the warden, mayor, bailiffs, jurats of the ſame ports may inquire and determine all annoyances of bridges therein, and make ſuch proceſs, &c. as the juſtices of peace may do in other places by virtue of the ſaid act.

Sect. 8. The ſaid juſtices, &c. may allow ſuch reaſonable coſts and charges to the ſaid ſurveyors and collectors, as by their diſcretion ſhall be thought convenient.

Sect. 9. Such parts of highways as lie next adjoining to the ends of the bridges, by the ſpace of 300 foot, ſhall be amended as often as need ſhall require; and that the juſtices, or four of them, whereof one of the quorum, within their ſeveral limits may inquire and determine in their general ſeſſions all annoyances therein, and do in every thing concerning the ſame, in as ample a manner as they may do for making and repairing bridges.

Stat. 1 Ann ſt. 1. c. 18. ſect. 2. The juſtices of peace ſhall at their quarter ſeſſions have power, upon preſentment that any bridge is out of repair, which by them ought to be repaired, to aſſeſs upon every place within their comm ſſions, as they uſually have been aſſeſſed towards the repair of bridges; which money ſhall be collected by the conſtables, or ſuch perſons as the ſeſſions ſhall appoint. And the money ſhall be paid over to the high conſtable in ſix days: and they ſhall in ten days pay the ſame to ſuch perſons, as the juſtices by order of ſeſſions ſhall appoint to be treaſurers of the ſame. And the money ſhall be employed and accounted for according to order of the juſtices, for amending ſuch decayed bridges and the highways at the end of the ſame. The aſſeſſments to be levied by diſtreſs and ſale of goods of the perſons not paying in ten days after demanded.

Sect. 3. Perſons neglecting to aſſeſs, collect or pay the money ſhall forfeit 40*s.* and every treaſurer that ſhall pay money, except by order of ſeſſions, ſhall forfeit 5*l.*

Sect. 4. No fine for not repairing ſuch bridges and highways ſhall be returned into the Exchequer, but ſhall be paid to the treaſurer, and applied by the ſaid juſtices towards the building or repairing of ſuch bridges and highways.

Sect. 5. All matters concerning repairing ſuch bridges and highways ſhall be determined in the county, and not removed by certiorari.

Sect. 6. The quarter ſeſſions ſhall have power to allow perſons concerned in the execution of this act, 3*d. per* pound.

Sect. 7. Perſons authorized by this act may plead the general iſſue, and give this act and the 22 Hen. 8. cap. 5. in evidence, and if judgment be for them they ſhall have double coſts.

Sect. 8. This act ſhall not diſcharge particular perſons, eſtates, or places from reparations.

Sect. 9. All penalties upon this act ſhall be applied to repairing the ſaid bridges and highways.

Sect. 12 Geo. 2. c. 29. The charges of repairing and amending bridges, and highways at the ends of bridges, ſhall be paid out of the general county rate.

Sect. 13. No money ſhall be applied to the repair of bridges, until preſentment be made by the grand jury at the aſſizes or ſeſſions of their inſufficiency, inconveniency, or want of repair.

Sect. 14. When any public bridges, ramparts, banks, or cops are to be repaired at the expence of the county, the juſtices at their general or quarter ſeſſions, after preſentment made by the grand jury of their want of reparation, may contract with any perſon for rebuilding, repairing, and amending the ſame, for any term not exceeding ſeven years at a certain annual ſum; in order to which they ſhall give public notice of their intention of contracting with any perſon for rebuilding, repairing, and amending the ſame. And ſuch contracts ſhall be made at the moſt reaſonable price which ſhall be propoſed by the contractors; who ſhall give ſufficient ſecurity for the due performance thereof, to the clerk of the peace. And all contracts when agreed to, and all orders relating thereto, ſhall be entered in a book to be kept by the clerk of the peace for that purpoſe; who ſhall keep the ſame amongſt the records of the county, to be inſpected by any of the juſtices at all ſeaſonable times, and by any perſon employed by any pariſh or place contributing to the ſame without fee.

Stat. 14 Geo. 2. c. 33. ſect. 1. Juſtices at their ſeſſions may purchaſe any parcel of land, adjoining or near any county bridge, for the more commodious enlarging, or convenient rebuilding the ſame, not exceeding one acre, to be paid for by the treaſurer out of the county rates, by order under the hands and ſeals of the ſaid juſtices in their ſaid ſeſſions; which lands ſo purchaſed ſhall be conveyed to ſuch perſon or perſons as the juſtices in the ſaid ſeſſions ſhall appoint, in truſt for enlarging or rebuilding the ſaid bridge.

Briſtol. A great city, famous for trade. The mayor, burgeſſes, and commonalty of the city of Briſtol are conſervators of the river Avon, from above the bridge there to Kingroad, and ſo down the Severn to the two iſlands called Holmes; and the mayor and juſtices of the ſaid city may make rules and orders for preſerving the river, and regulating the pilots, maſters of ſhips, &c. Alſo for the government of the markets: and the ſtreets are to be kept clean and paved; and lamps or lights hung out at night. Stat. 11 & 12 Will. 3. c 23. No perſon ſhall act as a broker in the city of Briſtol, till admitted and licenſed by the mayor and aldermen, &c. on pain of forfeiting 500*l.* and thoſe who employ any ſuch to forfeit 50*l. &c.* by ſtat. 3 Geo. 2. c. 31. Britton, Was a famous lawyer that lived in the days of King Edward the Firſt, at whoſe command and by whoſe authority he wrote a learned book of the law of this realm. The tenor runneth in the King's name as if it had been penned by himſelf, anſwerable to the inſtitutions which Juſtinian aſſumed to himſelf, though compoſed by others. Standf. Prær. fol. 6 & 21. Sir Edw. Coke ſaith, that this Britton wrote his book in the fiftieth year of Edward the Firſt. Lib. 4. fol. 126. a. & lib. 6. f. 67. a. Mr. Guin, in his preface to his Reading, mentioneth, that this John Britton was biſhop of Hereford.

Brocage, Is commonly taken for the wages, hire, or trade of a broker. In 12 Ric. 2. cap. 2. it is taken for the means uſed by a ſpokeſman. An. 1 Jac. cap. 21. it is written brokerage. See alſo 11 H. 4. n. 28 not printed.

Brocella.——Dedi unam brocellam vocatam Rehag. Reg. de Thurgaton. MS. Dr. Thoroton interprets it a wood. I have not elſewhere met with the word, nor know I whence to derive it. (So Blount.) The word did properly ſignify a thicket or covert of buſhes, and bruſh-wood; from the obſolete Lat. bruſcia, bruſca, terra bruſcoſa, brocia; French broce, brocelle. Hence our brouce, or brouſe of wood, and brouſing of cattle.

Brocha, (from the Fr. broche) An awl or large packing needle, carried as a neceſſary implement to mend ſacks, ſaddles, and other horſe-geer; from the French broche, a ſpit, which in ſome parts of England is called a broche; whence to broach or pierce a barrel. Lat. brocha, brochia, Gall. broches, armour. Broccen were ſharp wooden ſtakes, which, as uſed upon the ſea-banks in Romney-Marſh, are called needles. It is true, the learned Spelman did conjecture the word brochia, or brocha, to be a ſort of can or pitcher to hold liquid things, as ſaccus to carry dry things; as it is rendered in the following word brochia : but it ſeems much rather to ſignify, as I have before explained it, an awl, or a needle. It was certainly an iron inſtrument, as in this authority,——— Henricus de Havering tenet manerium de Morton, com. Eſſex, per ſerjantiam inveniendi unum hominem, cum uno equo, pret. x s. & quatuor ferris equorum, & uno ſacco de corio, & una brochia ferrea. Anno 13 Ed. 1. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Brochia, (from the French broc, quod lagenam majorem aut cantharum ſignificat) A great can or pitcher. Bracton, lib. 2. tract. 1. c. 6. hath theſe words, Si quis teneat per ſervitium inveniendi domino regi, certis locis & temporibus, unum hominem & unum equum, & ſaccum cum brochia, pro aliqua neceſſitate vel utilitate exercitum ſuum contingente. By which it ſeems that he intends ſaccus to carry dry, and brochia liquid things. See Saccus and Brocha.

Broders. This may take its derivation from the French brodeur, and that of bordure, fimbria, the edge or hem of a garment, which we yet call border, and that becauſe it is uſually diſtinguiſhed from the reſt by ſome coſtly work: he that worketh it is known amongſt us by the name of an embroiderer.

Brodehalpeny, in ſome copies broad-half-peny, and in others bordhal-peny. It ſignifies a ſmall toll by cuſtom paid to the lord of the town for ſetting up of tables, booths, or boards in fairs or markets: and thoſe that were freed by the King's charter of this cuſtom, had this word put in their letters patent; by reaſon whereof at this day the freedom itſelf, for brevity of ſpeech, is called broad-halfpeny. It ſeems to be derived from three Saxon words, bret or bred, that is a board, and halve, that is, in the behalf of, as we ſay in Latin (cujus rei gratia) and penning, a toll, which in all makes a toll in behalf of or for a board. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Broggars (from the Fr. bragard) A gay vain perſon who lives in luxury, and that from the old French word braguerie, i. e. braving or ſwaggering.

Brok, An old ſort of ſword or dagger,———Jurati dicunt ſuper ſacramentum, quod Johannes de Monemne miles per Robertum armigerum ſuum, percuſſit Adam Gilberd capellanum de Wilton, in gutture, quodam gladio, qui dicitur Brok, per quod propinquior erat morti, &c. Rot. Parl. 35. Ed. 6.

Broke, Commonly called Sir Robert Broke, was a great lawyer, and Lord Chief Juſtice in Queen Mary's time. Cromp. Juſtice of the Peace, fol. 22. b. He made an abridgment of the whole law, from him intituled, Broke's Abridgment.

Brokers, (Broccatores, broccarii & auxionarii) Are thoſe that contrive, make and conclude bargains and contracts between merchants and tradeſmen in matters of money money and merchandize, for which they have a fee or reward. Theſe are Exchange brokers; and by the ſtat. 10 R. 2. c. 1. they are called broggers; alſo broggers of corn is uſed in a proclamation of Queen Elizabeth for badgers. Baker's Chron. fol. 411. The original of the word is from a trader broken, and that from the Sax. broc, which ſignifies misfortune, which is often the true reaſon of a man's breaking; ſo that the broker came from one who was a broken trader by misfortune, and none but ſuch were formerly admitted to that employment; and they were to be freemen of the city of London, and allowed and approved by the lord mayor and aldermen for their ability and honeſty.

Stat. 6 Ann. cap. 16. ſect. 4. All perſons that ſhall act as brokers within London ſhall be admitted by the court of mayor and aldermen, under ſuch reſtrictions for their good behaviour as the court ſhall think fit; and ſhall upon their admiſſion pay to the chamberlain 40*s.* and ſhall alſo yearly pay 40*s.* upon the twenty-ninth of September for the uſe of the mayor and commonalty and citizens of the city of London.

Sect. 5. If any perſon ſhall take upon him to act as a broker, or employ any under him to act as ſuch within the ſaid city, not being admitted, every ſuch perſon ſhall forfeit to the mayor and commonalty, &c. for every offence 25*l.* to be recovered by action of debt, in the name of the chamberlain, in any of her Majeſty's courts of record.

Stat. 10 Ann. cap. 19. ſect. 121. Every perſon employed as a broker, ſolicitor, or otherwiſe, in behalf of any other perſon, to make any bargain or contract for the buying or ſelling of any tallies, orders, &c. or intereſt in any joint ſtock erected by act of parliament or letters patent, or bonds of any company thereby erected, who ſhall take any money or reward exceeding 2*s.* 9*d.* for every 100*l.* and ſo in proportion for his ſervice in ſoliciting or procuring ſuch contract or bargain, ſhall forfeit 20*l.* with coſts to ſuch perſon as will ſue for the ſame in any of her Majeſty's courts of record at Weſtminſter.

Stat. 6 Geo. 1. cap. 18. ſect. 18. All undertakings by public ſubſcriptions relating to fiſheries, and other affairs of trade, and acting as corporate bodies without charter, or under charters intended for other purpoſes, or under obſolete charters, and tending to the common grievance of his Majeſty's ſubjects in their trade, and all public ſubſcriptions, receipts, payments, transfers, and other things for proceeding in ſuch undertaking, and particularly the acting as a corporate body, by raiſing transferrable ſtocks, the transferring any ſhare in ſuch ſtocks without legal authority; and all acting under any charter formerly granted for particular purpoſes therein expreſſed, by perſons who ſhall uſe or endeavour to uſe the ſame charters for raiſing a capital ſtock, or for making transfers of ſuch ſtock, not intended by ſuch charter to be raiſed or transferred, and all acting under any obſolete charter, become void or voidable by nonuſer or abuſer, or for want of making lawful election, ſhall be deemed illegal and void.

Sect. 19. All ſuch unlawful undertakings and all proceedings therein ſhall be deemed public nuſances, and all offenders therein being convicted upon information or indictment in any of his Majeſty's courts of record at Weſtminſter, Edinburgh, or Dublin, ſhall be liable to ſuch puniſhments whereto perſons convicted for public nuſances are by any laws of this realm liable; and ſhall moreover incur ſuch farther pains, &c. as were provided by the ſtatute of proviſion and præmunire. 16 Rich. 2. cap. 5.

Sect. 20. If any merchant or trader ſhall ſuffer any particular damage by occaſion of any new undertaking, &c. by this act declared unlawful, he ſhall have his remedy by action on this ſtatute in any of his Majeſty's courts of record, and ſhall recover treble damages with coſts.

Sect. 21. If any broker, or perſon acting as a broker, for himſelf or in behalf of any others ſhall bargain, ſell, or buy, or contract for any ſhare or intereſt in any of the undertakings hereby declared unlawful, he ſhall not only be diſabled to act as a broker, but ſhall alſo forfeit 500*l.* one moiety to the King, the other to the informer with coſts.

Sect. 22. Nothing herein ſhall extend to any undertakings eſtabliſhed before June 24, 1718.

Sect. 23. This act ſhall not prejudice the two corporations for aſſurance of ſhips, &c.

Sect. 24. This act ſhall not hinder the South Sea Company from enjoying ſuch powers as belong to them, except as to inſurance upon ſhips and merchandize at ſea, or going to ſea.

Sect. 25. This act ſhall not reſtrain the carrying on of any home or foreign trade in partnerſhip, except only as to the inſuring of ſhips, and lending money on bottomry.

Sect. 27. Nothing in this act ſhall extend to any corporation formerly erected for the carrying on a trade, which they have publickly continued to exerciſe; or to ſubſcriptions for enlarging the capital ſtock of the South Sea Company.

Sect. 28. Nothing herein ſhall extend to hinder the Eaſt-India Company from enjoying all ſuch powers as belong to them.

Stat. 3 Geo. 2. cap. 31. ſect. 1. No perſon ſhall exerciſe the employment of a broker within the city of Briſtol, or within five miles thereof, in making bargains between merchant and merchant, or tradeſmen, or other perſons concerning their merchandizes to be bought and ſold, or concerning monies to be taken up by exchange, till he ſhall be firſt admitted by the mayor, aldermen, and common council of Briſtol, and ſuch reſtrictions for his good behaviour, and as to fees, and the number of brokers as the ſaid mayor, &c. ſhall think fit.

Sect. 2. Upon the admittance of any broker, ſuch perſon ſhall take his oath to the effect following, viz.

I A. B. do ſincerely promiſe and ſwear, that I will truly and faithfully execute and perform the office and imployment of a broker between party and party in all things appertaining to the duty of the ſaid office and imployment, without fraud or colluſion, to the beſt of my ſkill and knowledge, and according to the tenor and purport of the act, intituled, An act for the admiſſion and regulation of brokers within the city of Briſtol.

Sect. 3. Which oath the mayor and court of aldermen of Briſtol ſhall adminiſter; and every ſuch perſon at the time of his admittance ſhall with ſureties enter into obligation with the mayor, &c. of the penalty of 200*l.* with condition there under-written, to the effect following, viz.

THE condition of this obligation is ſuch, that whereas the above bounden A. B. is ſworn and admitted a broker, purſuant to the ſtatute in that behalf lately made; now therefore if the ſaid A. B. do and ſhall well and truly uſe, and execute, and perform the imployment and office of a broker between party and party, without fraud, covin, or any corrupt or crafty devices, according to the purport, true intent and meaning of the ſaid ſtatute in that caſe lately made and provided, then this obligation to be void, or elſe to remain in full force and virtue.

Sect. 4. Every perſon at the time of his admittance ſhall pay to the town clerk of Briſtol 10*s.* as the fee of admittance.

Sect. 5. The mayor and court of aldermen ſhall order the names of all ſuch brokers, and the places of their habitation, to be fixed on the Tholſel and in the Council-houſe, and other public places within the city.

Sect. 6. If any perſon ſhall act as broker, not being ſworn and admitted, he ſhall forfeit 100*l.* And if any perſon ſhall knowingly imploy any perſon as a broker, not being ſworn, &c. he ſhall forfeit 50*l.*

Sect. 7. Every ſworn broker ſhall keep a broker's book, in which he ſhall enter all contractsthat he ſhall make, within three days after making, with the parties names; and if ſuch broker ſhall omit to enter ſuch contract, &c. he ſhall forfeit 20*l.*

Sect. 8. Every ſuch broker ſhall carry about him a medal of ſilver, upon which ſhall be his Majeſty's arms and on the reverſe the arms of the city of Briſtol, with the name of ſuch broker, which medal he ſhall produce, if required, at the concluding of every bargain by him made, to the parties concerned, on pain to forfeit 5 l.

Sect. 9. If any ſuch broker ſhall deal for himſelf in remittance of monies, or buy any goods to ſell again for his own benefit, or ſhall make profit in buying or ſelling any goods, &c. for the benefit of any other perſon, ſave in the way of a broker only, he ſhall forfeit for the firſt offence 20 l. for the ſecond offence 50 l. and for the third offence 100 l. and being convicted of ſuch third offence, ſhall be incapable to act as a broker within the city of Briſtol.

Sect. 10. All forfeitures given by this act ſhall be recovered by action of debt, &c. in any of his majeſty's courts of record; one moiety whereof ſhall be to the uſe of the poor of the corporation of Briſtol, and the other moiety to him who ſhall ſue for the ſame.

Sect. 11. This act ſhall be a publick act.

Stat. 7 Geo. 2. cap. 8 ſect. 1. All contracts, upon which any premium ſhall be given for liberty to put upon, deliver, accept, or refuſe any publick ſtock or ſecurities, and all wagers, puts, and refuſals relating to the preſent or future price of ſtock or ſecurities, ſhall be void; and all premiums upon ſuch contracts or wagers ſhall be reſtored to the perſon who ſhall pay the ſame, who ſhall be at liberty, within ſix months from the making ſuch contract, or laying ſuch wager, to ſue for the ſame, with double coſts; and it ſhall be ſufficient therein for the plaintiff to alledge, that the defendant is indebted to the plaintiff, or has received to the plaintiff's uſe, the money or premium ſo paid, whereby the plaintiff's action accrued according to the form of this ſtatute, without ſetting forth the ſpecial matter.

Sect. 2. Perſons, who by this act ſhall be liable to be ſued, ſhall alſo be obliged to anſwer upon oath ſuch bill as ſhall be preſented in equity, for diſcovering any ſuch contract or wager, and the premium given.

Sect. 3. Provided that the plaintiffs, relators, or informers in ſuch bill give ſecurity to anſwer coſts.

Sect. 4. Every perſon who ſhall make any ſuch contract, upon which any premium ſhall be given for liberty to put upon, deliver, accept, or refuſe any publick ſtock or ſecurities, or any contract in the nature of puts and refuſals, or ſhall lay any wager (except ſuch who ſhall bona fide ſue, and with effect proſecute, for the recovery of the premium paid by them; and except ſuch who ſhall voluntarily, before ſuit commenced, repay or tender ſuch premium as they ſhall have received; and alſo except ſuch as ſhall diſcover ſuch tranſactions in any court of equity) ſhall forfeit 500 l. And all perſons negotiating or writing ſuch contract ſhall likewiſe forfeit 500 l. which penalties may be recovered by action of debt or information in any of his majeſty's courts of record at Weſtminſter; one moiety to his majeſty, and the other moiety to them who ſhall ſue for the ſame.

Sect. 5. No money or other conſideration ſhall be voluntarily given or received for the compounding any difference for the not delivering or receiving any publick ſtock or ſecurities; but all ſuch contracts ſhall be ſpecially executed, and all perſons who ſhall voluntarily compound ſuch difference, ſhall forfeit 100 l. one moiety to his majeſty, and the other moiety to them who ſhall ſue for the ſame.

Sect. 6. No perſon who ſhall ſell ſtock to be delivered and paid for on a certain day, and which ſhall be refuſed or neglected to be paid for, ſhall be obliged to transfer the ſame; but it ſhall be lawful for ſuch perſons to ſell ſuch ſtock to any other, and to receive and recover from the perſon who firſt contracted for the ſame the damage which ſhall be ſuſtained.

Sect. 7. It ſhall be lawful for any perſon, who ſhall buy ſtock to be accepted and paid for on a future day, and which ſhall be refuſed or neglected to be transferred, to buy the like quantity of ſuch ſtock of any other perſon, at the current market price, and to recover and receive from the perſon who firſt contracted to deliver the ſame the damage ſuſtained.

Sect. 8. All contracts which ſhall be made for the buying or transferring of ſtock, whereof the perſon, on whoſe behalf the contract ſhall be made to transfer the ſame, ſhall not, at the time of making ſuch contract, be actually poſſeſſed in his own right, or in the name of truſtees, ſhall be void; and every perſon on whoſe behalf, and with whoſe conſent, any contract ſhall be made to ſell ſtock, whereof ſuch perſon ſhall not be actually poſſeſſed in his own name, or in the name of truſtees, ſhall forfeit 500 l. one moiety to his Majeſty, and the other moiety to them who ſhall ſue for the ſame; and every broker or agent who ſhall negotiate any ſuch contract, and ſhall know that the perſon, on whoſe behalf ſuch contract ſhall be made, is not poſſeſſed of ſtock, ſhall forfeit 100 l. one moiety to his Majeſty, and the other moiety to them who ſhall ſue for the ſame.

Sect. 9. Every perſon receiving brokerage in the buying or diſpoſing of ſtocks ſhall keep a broker's-book, in which he ſhall enter all contracts, with the names of the principal parties; and ſuch broker who ſhall not keep ſuch book, or ſhall wilfully omit to enter any ſuch contract, ſhall forfeit 50 l. one moiety to his Majeſty, and the other moiety to them who ſhall ſue for the ſame.

Sect. 10. Nothing in this act ſhall extend to any contracts for the purchaſe or ſale of ſtock, to be made with the privity of the Accountant General of the court of Chancery, in purſuance of any decree or order of the ſaid court.

Sect. 11. Nothing in this act ſhall hinder any perſon from lending money on ſtock, ſo as no premium be paid more than legal intereſt.

Sect. 12. This act ſhall continue three years.

money and merchandize, for which they have a fee or reward. Theſe are Exchange brokers; and by the ſtat. 10 R. 2. c. 1. they are called broggers; alſo broggers of corn is uſed in a proclamation of Queen Elizabeth for badgers. Baker's Chron. fol. 411. The original of the word is from a trader broken, and that from the Sax. broc, which ſignifies misfortune, which is often the true reaſon of a man's breaking; ſo that the broker came from one who was a broken trader by misfortune, and none but ſuch were formerly admitted to that employment; and they were to be freemen of the city of London, and allowed and approved by the lord mayor and aldermen for their ability and honeſty.

Stat. 6 Ann. cap. 16. ſect. 4. All perſons that ſhall act as brokers within London ſhall be admitted by the court of mayor and aldermen, under ſuch reſtrictions for their good behaviour as the court ſhall think fit; and ſhall upon their admiſſion pay to the chamberlain 40*s.* and ſhall alſo yearly pay 40*s.* upon the twenty-ninth of September for the uſe of the mayor and commonalty and citizens of the city of London.

Sect. 5. If any perſon ſhall take upon him to act as a broker, or employ any under him to act as ſuch within the ſaid city, not being admitted, every ſuch perſon ſhall forfeit to the mayor and commonalty, &c. for every offence 25*l.* to be recovered by action of debt, in the name of the chamberlain, in any of her Majeſty's courts of record.

Stat. 10 Ann. cap. 19. ſect. 121. Every perſon employed as a broker, ſolicitor, or otherwiſe, in behalf of any other perſon, to make any bargain or contract for the buying or ſelling of any tallies, orders, &c. or intereſt in any joint ſtock erected by act of parliament or letters patent, or bonds of any company thereby erected, who ſhall take any money or reward exceeding 2*s.* 9*d.* for every 100*l.* and ſo in proportion for his ſervice in ſoliciting or procuring ſuch contract or bargain, ſhall forfeit 20*l.* with coſts to ſuch perſon as will ſue for the ſame in any of her Majeſty's courts of record at Weſtminſter.

Stat. 6 Geo. 1. cap. 18. ſect. 18. All undertakings by public ſubſcriptions relating to fiſheries, and other affairs of trade, and acting as corporate bodies without charter, or under charters intended for other purpoſes, or under obſolete charters, and tending to the common grievance of his Majeſty's ſubjects in their trade, and all public ſubſcriptions, receipts, payments, transfers, and other things for proceeding in ſuch undertaking, and particularly the acting as a corporate body, by raiſing transferrable ſtocks, the transferring any ſhare in ſuch ſtocks without legal authority; and all acting under any charter formerly granted for particular purpoſes therein expreſſed, by perſons who ſhall uſe or endeavour to uſe the ſame charters for raiſing a capital ſtock, or for making transfers of ſuch ſtock, not intended by ſuch charter to be raiſed or transferred, and all acting under any obſolete charter, become void or voidable by nonuſer or abuſer, or for want of making lawful election, ſhall be deemed illegal and void.

Sect. 19. All ſuch unlawful undertakings and all proceedings therein ſhall be deemed public nuſances, and all offenders therein being convicted upon information or indictment in any of his Majeſty's courts of record at Weſtminſter, Edinburgh, or Dublin, ſhall be liable to ſuch puniſhments whereto perſons convicted for public nuſances are by any laws of this realm liable; and ſhall moreover incur ſuch farther pains, &c. as were provided by the ſtatute of proviſion and præmunire. 16 Rich. 2. cap. 5.

Sect. 20. If any merchant or trader ſhall ſuffer any particular damage by occaſion of any new undertaking, &c. by this act declared unlawful, he ſhall have his remedy by action on this ſtatute in any of his Majeſty's courts of record, and ſhall recover treble damages with coſts.

Sect. 21. If any broker, or perſon acting as a broker, for himſelf or in behalf of any others ſhall bargain, ſell, or buy, or contract for any ſhare or intereſt in any of the undertakings hereby declared unlawful, he ſhall not only be diſabled to act as a broker, but ſhall alſo forfeit 500*l.* one moiety to the King, the other to the informer with coſts.

Sect. 22. Nothing herein ſhall extend to any undertakings eſtabliſhed before June 24, 1718.

Sect. 23. This act ſhall not prejudice the two corporations for aſſurance of ſhips, &c.

Sect. 24. This act ſhall not hinder the South Sea Company from enjoying ſuch powers as belong to them, except as to inſurance upon ſhips and merchandize at ſea, or going to ſea.

Sect. 25. This act ſhall not reſtrain the carrying on of any home or foreign trade in partnerſhip, except only as to the inſuring of ſhips, and lending money on bottomry.

Sect. 27. Nothing in this act ſhall extend to any corporation formerly erected for the carrying on a trade, which they have publickly continued to exerciſe; or to ſubſcriptions for enlarging the capital ſtock of the South Sea Company.

Sect. 28. Nothing herein ſhall extend to hinder the Eaſt-India Company from enjoying all ſuch powers as belong to them.

Stat. 3 Geo. 2. cap. 31. ſect. 1. No perſon ſhall exerciſe the employment of a broker within the city of Briſtol, or within five miles thereof, in making bargains between merchant and merchant, or tradeſmen, or other perſons concerning their merchandizes to be bought and ſold, or concerning monies to be taken up by exchange, till he ſhall be firſt admitted by the mayor, aldermen, and common council of Briſtol, and ſuch reſtrictions for his good behaviour, and as to fees, and the number of brokers as the ſaid mayor, &c. ſhall think fit.

Sect. 2. Upon the admittance of any broker, ſuch perſon ſhall take his oath to the effect following, viz.

I A. B. do ſincerely promiſe and ſwear, that I will truly and faithfully execute and perform the office and imployment of a broker between party and party in all things appertaining to the duty of the ſaid office and imployment, without fraud or colluſion, to the beſt of my ſkill and knowledge, and according to the tenor and purport of the act, intituled, An act for the admiſſion and regulation of brokers within the city of Briſtol.

Sect. 3. Which oath the mayor and court of aldermen of Briſtol ſhall adminiſter; and every ſuch perſon at the time of his admittance ſhall with ſureties enter into obligation with the mayor, &c. of the penalty of 200*l.* with condition there under-written, to the effect following, viz.

THE condition of this obligation is ſuch, that whereas the above bounden A. B. is ſworn and admitted a broker, purſuant to the ſtatute in that behalf lately made; now therefore if the ſaid A. B. do and ſhall well and truly uſe, and execute, and perform the imployment and office of a broker between party and party, without fraud, covin, or any corrupt or crafty devices, according to the purport, true intent and meaning of the ſaid ſtatute in that caſe lately made and provided, then this obligation to be void, or elſe to remain in full force and virtue.

Sect. 4. Every perſon at the time of his admittance ſhall pay to the town clerk of Briſtol 10*s.* as the fee of admittance.

Sect. 5. The mayor and court of aldermen ſhall order the names of all ſuch brokers, and the places of their habitation, to be fixed on the Tholſel and in the Council-houſe, and other public places within the city.

Sect. 6. If any perſon ſhall act as broker, not being ſworn and admitted, he ſhall forfeit 100*l.* And if any perſon ſhall knowingly imploy any perſon as a broker, not being ſworn, &c. he ſhall forfeit 50*l.*

Sect. 7. Every ſworn broker ſhall keep a broker's book, in which he ſhall enter all contracts that he ſhall make, within three days after making, with the parties names; and if ſuch broker ſhall omit to enter ſuch contract, &c. he ſhall forfeit 20*l.*

Sect. 8. Every ſuch broker ſhall carry about him a medal of ſilver, upon which ſhall be his Majeſty's arms and on the reverſe the arms of the city of Briſtol, with the name of ſuch broker, which medal he ſhall produce, if required, at the concluding of every bargain by him made, to the parties concerned, on pain to forfeit 5 l.

Sect. 9. If any ſuch broker ſhall deal for himſelf in remittance of monies, or buy any goods to ſell again for his own benefit, or ſhall make profit in buying or ſelling any goods, &c. for the benefit of any other perſon, ſave in the way of a broker only, he ſhall forfeit for the firſt offence 20 l. for the ſecond offence 50 l. and for the third offence 100 l. and being convicted of ſuch third offence, ſhall be incapable to act as a broker within the city of Briſtol.

Sect. 10. All forfeitures given by this act ſhall be recovered by action of debt, &c. in any of his majeſty's courts of record; one moiety whereof ſhall be to the uſe of the poor of the corporation of Briſtol, and the other moiety to him who ſhall ſue for the ſame.

Sect. 11. This act ſhall be a publick act.

Stat. 7 Geo. 2. cap. 8 ſect. 1. All contracts, upon which any premium ſhall be given for liberty to put upon, deliver, accept, or refuſe any publick ſtock or ſecurities, and all wagers, puts, and refuſals relating to the preſent or future price of ſtock or ſecurities, ſhall be void; and all premiums upon ſuch contracts or wagers ſhall be reſtored to the perſon who ſhall pay the ſame, who ſhall be at liberty, within ſix months from the making ſuch contract, or laying ſuch wager, to ſue for the ſame, with double coſts; and it ſhall be ſufficient therein for the plaintiff to alledge, that the defendant is indebted to the plaintiff, or has received to the plaintiff's uſe, the money or premium ſo paid, whereby the plaintiff's action accrued according to the form of this ſtatute, without ſetting forth the ſpecial matter.

Sect. 2. Perſons, who by this act ſhall be liable to be ſued, ſhall alſo be obliged to anſwer upon oath ſuch bill as ſhall be preſented in equity, for diſcovering any ſuch contract or wager, and the premium given.

Sect. 3. Provided that the plaintiffs, relators, or informers in ſuch bill give ſecurity to anſwer coſts.

Sect. 4. Every perſon who ſhall make any ſuch contract, upon which any premium ſhall be given for liberty to put upon, deliver, accept, or refuſe any publick ſtock or ſecurities, or any contract in the nature of puts and refuſals, or ſhall lay any wager (except ſuch who ſhall bona fide ſue, and with effect proſecute, for the recovery of the premium paid by them; and except ſuch who ſhall voluntarily, before ſuit commenced, repay or tender ſuch premium as they ſhall have received; and alſo except ſuch as ſhall diſcover ſuch tranſactions in any court of equity) ſhall forfeit 500 l. And all perſons negotiating or writing ſuch contract ſhall likewiſe forfeit 500 l. which penalties may be recovered by action of debt or information in any of his majeſty's courts of record at Weſtminſter; one moiety to his majeſty, and the other moiety to them who ſhall ſue for the ſame.

Sect. 5. No money or other conſideration ſhall be voluntarily given or received for the compounding any difference for the not delivering or receiving any publick ſtock or ſecurities; but all ſuch contracts ſhall be ſpecially executed, and all perſons who ſhall voluntarily compound ſuch difference, ſhall forfeit 100 l. one moiety to his majeſty, and the other moiety to them who ſhall ſue for the ſame.

Sect. 6. No perſon who ſhall ſell ſtock to be delivered and paid for on a certain day, and which ſhall be refuſed or neglected to be paid for, ſhall be obliged to transfer the ſame; but it ſhall be lawful for ſuch perſons to ſell ſuch ſtock to any other, and to receive and recover from the perſon who firſt contracted for the ſame the damage which ſhall be ſuſtained.

Sect. 7. It ſhall be lawful for any perſon, who ſhall buy ſtock to be accepted and paid for on a future day, and which ſhall be refuſed or neglected to be transferred, to buy the like quantity of ſuch ſtock of any other perſon, at the current market price, and to recover and receive from the perſon who firſt contracted to deliver the ſame the damage ſuſtained.

Sect. 8. All contracts which ſhall be made for the buying or transferring of ſtock, whereof the perſon, on whoſe behalf the contract ſhall be made to transfer the ſame, ſhall not, at the time of making ſuch contract, be actually poſſeſſed in his own right, or in the name of truſtees, ſhall be void; and every perſon on whoſe behalf, and with whoſe conſent, any contract ſhall be made to ſell ſtock, whereof ſuch perſon ſhall not be actually poſſeſſed in his own name, or in the name of truſtees, ſhall forfeit 500 l. one moiety to his Majeſty, and the other moiety to them who ſhall ſue for the ſame; and every broker or agent who ſhall negotiate any ſuch contract, and ſhall know that the perſon, on whoſe behalf ſuch contract ſhall be made, is not poſſeſſed of ſtock, ſhall forfeit 100 l. one moiety to his Majeſty, and the other moiety to them who ſhall ſue for the ſame.

Sect. 9. Every perſon receiving brokerage in the buying or diſpoſing of ſtocks ſhall keep a broker's-book, in which he ſhall enter all contracts, with the names of the principal parties; and ſuch broker who ſhall not keep ſuch book, or ſhall wilfully omit to enter any ſuch contract, ſhall forfeit 50 l. one moiety to his Majeſty, and the other moiety to them who ſhall ſue for the ſame.

Sect. 10. Nothing in this act ſhall extend to any contracts for the purchaſe or ſale of ſtock, to be made with the privity of the Accountant General of the court of Chancery, in purſuance of any decree or order of the ſaid court.

Sect. 11. Nothing in this act ſhall hinder any perſon from lending money on ſtock, ſo as no premium be paid more than legal intereſt.

Sect. 12. This act ſhall continue three years.

Buggery (from the Italian bugarone, a buggerer, this vice being ſaid to have been brought into England out of Italy by the Lombards) Is a deteſtable and abominable ſin, amongſt Chriſtians not to be named, committed by carnal knowledge, againſt the ordinance of the Creator, and order of nature, by mankind with mankind, or with brute beaſt, or by woman kind with brute beaſt. 3 Inſt. 58.

All unnatural carnal copulations, whether with man or beaſt, ſeem to come under the notion of buggery or ſodomy, which was felony by the ancient Common law, and puniſhed, according to ſome authors, with burning, according to others, with burying alive. But at this day, by force of the ſtatutes 25 Hen. 8. c. 6. and 5 El. c. 17. it is puniſhed in the ſame manner as other felonies which are excluded from the clergy. 1 Hawk. 6. 3 Inſt. 58. 12 Co. 36, 37.

The ſaid ſtatute of 25 Hen. 8. making it felony generally, there may be acceſſaries both before and after; but thoſe that are preſent, aiding, and abetting, are all principals. And although none of the principals are admitted to their clergy, yet acceſſaries before and after are not excluded from clergy. 1 Hale H. 670.

If the party buggered be within the age of diſcretion (which is generally reckoned the age of 14,) it is no felony in him, but in the agent only. But if buggery be committed upon a man of the age of diſcretion, it is felony in them both. 3 Inſt. 59.

In every indictment for this offence there muſt be the words rem habuit Veneream et carnaliter cognovit; and conſequently ſome kind of penetration, and alſo of emiſſion muſt be proved; but any the leaſt degree is ſufficient, and emiſſion is prima facie an evidence of penetration. 1 Hawk. 6. 12 Co. 36, 37. 3 Inſt. 58.

By the articles of the navy, (22 Geo. 2. c. 33.) if any perſon in the fleet ſhall commit the unnatural and deteſtable ſin of buggery or ſodomy, with man or beaſt; he ſhall be puniſhed with death by the ſentence of a court martial.

This crime is excepted out of the act of general pardon. 20 Geo. 2. c. 25. ſ. 17.

Burglary (Burglaria, from the Sax. burgh, domus, or arx, and larcin, furtum) Is a felony at common law, in breaking and entering the manſion houſe of another in the night, with intent to commit ſome felony within the ſame, whether the felonious intent be executed or not. Hale's P. C. 79.

Every entrance into the houſe by a treſpaſſer is not a breaking in this caſe, but there muſt be an actual breaking. As if the door of a manſion houſe ſtand open, and the thief enter, this is no breaking. So it is if the window of the houſe be open, and a thief with a hook or other engine draweth out ſome of the goods of the owner, this is no burglary, becauſe there is no actual breaking of the houſe. But if the thief breaketh the glaſs of the window, and with a hook or other engine draweth out ſome of the goods of the owner, this is burglary, for there was an actual breaking of the houſe. 3 Inſt. 64. Theſe acts amount to an actual breaking, viz. opening the caſement, or breaking the glaſs window, picking open the lock of a door, or putting back the lock, or the leaf of a window, or unlatching the door that is only latched. 1 Hal. H. 552.

One of the ſervants in the houſe opened his lady's chamber door, which was faſtened with a braſs bolt, with deſign to commit a rape; and it was ruled to be burglary, and the defendant was convicted and tranſported. Stran. 481.

It is deemed an entry, when the thief breaketh the houſe, and his body, or any part thereof, as his foot, or his arm, is within any part of the houſe; or when he putteth a gun into a window which he hath broken, or into a hole of the houſe which he hath made, of intent to murder or kill; this is an entry and breaking of the houſe; but if he doth barely break the houſe, without any ſuch entry at all, this is no burglary. 3 Inſt. 64.

If divers come in the night to do a burglary, and one of them break and enter, the reſt of them ſtanding to watch at a diſtance, this is burglary in all. 3 Inſt. 64.

All out-buildings, as barns, ſtables, dairy-houſes, adjoining to a houſe, are looked upon as part thereof; and conſequently burglary may be committed in them: but if they be removed at any diſtance from the houſe, it ſeems that it hath not been uſual of late to proceed againſt offences therein as burglaries. 1 Hawk. 104.

The manſion-houſe doth not only include the dwelling-houſe, but alſo the out-houſes that are parcel thereof, as barn, ſtable, cow-houſe, dairy-houſe, if they are parcel of the meſſuage, though they are not under the ſame roof, or joining contiguous to it; and ſo, he ſays, it was agreed by all the judges: but if they be not parcel of the meſſuage, as if a man take a leaſe of a dwelling-houſe from one, and of a barn from another; or if it be far remote from the dwelling-houſe, and not ſo near to it as to be reaſonably eſteemed parcel thereof, as if it ſtand a bow ſhot off from the houſe, and not within or near the curtilage of the chief houſe, then the breaking of it is not burglary, for it is not a manſion-houſe, nor any part thereof. 1 H. H. 558, 559.

To break and enter a ſhop, not parcel of the manſion-houſe, in which the ſhop-keeper never lodges, but only works or trades there in the day-time, is not burglary, but only larceny; but if he, or his ſervant, uſually or often lodge in the ſhop at night, it is then a manſion-houſe, in which a burglary may be committed. 1 H. H. 557, 558.

It is not neceſſary to make it burglary, that any perſon be actually in the houſe at the very time of the offence committed. 1 Haw. 103.

As long as the day continues, whereby a man's countenance may be diſcerned, it is called day; and when darkneſs comes, and the day-light is paſt, ſo as by the light of day you cannot diſcover the countenance of a man, then it is called night. 3 Inſt. 63. And this doth aggravate the offence; ſince the night is the time wherein man is at reſt, and wherein beaſts run about ſeeking their prey. Hence in ancient records, the twilight was ſignified, when it was ſaid, inter canem & lupum (between the dog and the wolfe); for when the night begins, the dog ſleeps, and the wolf ſeeketh his prey. 3 Inſt. 63.

There can be no burglary but where the indictment both expreſly alledges, and the verdict alſo finds, an intention to commit ſome felony: for if it appear, that the offender meant only to commit a treſpaſs, as to beat the party or the like, he is not guilty of burglary. 1 Haw. 105. However, it ſeems the much better opinion, that the intention to commit a rape, or other ſuch crime, which is made felony by ſtatute, and was a treſpaſs only at Common law, will make a man guilty of burglary as much as if ſuch offence were a felony at common law; becauſe where a ſtatute makes any offence felony, it incidentally gives it all the properties of a felony at common law. 1 Hawk. 105.

Stat. 24 Hen. 8. c. 5. If any perſon be indicted or appealed for the death of any evil-diſpoſed perſons, attempting to murder, rob, or burglarily to break manſion-houſes, the perſon ſo indicted or appealed, and by verdict ſo found, ſhall not forfeit any lands or goods, but ſhall thereof be acquitted, in like manner as if they were acquitted of the death of the ſaid evil-diſpoſed perſons.

Stat. 18 El. c. 7. ſect. 1. If any perſon ſhall commit any felonious rape, raviſhment, or burglary, and be found guilty by verdict, or ſhall be out-lawed, or ſhall confeſs ſuch rape or burglary, every perſon ſo found guilty, &c. ſhall ſuffer death, and forfeit as in caſes of felony, without benefit of clergy.

Stat. 10 & 11 W. 3. c. 23. ſect. 2. Every perſon who ſhall apprehend any one guilty of burglary, and proſecute him to conviction, ſhall have a certificate, without fee, under the hand of the judge, certifying ſuch conviction, and within what pariſh or place the burglary was committed, and alſo that ſuch burglar was diſcovered and taken, or diſcovered or taken, by the perſon ſo diſcovering or apprehending; and if any diſpute ariſe between ſeveral perſons ſo diſcovering or apprehending, the judge ſhall appoint the certificate into ſo many ſhares to be divided among the perſons concerned, as to him ſhall ſeem juſt and reaſonable; which certificate may be once aſſigned over; and the original proprietor, or the aſſignee of the ſame, ſhall by virtue thereof be diſcharged from all manner of pariſh and ward offices within the pariſh or ward where the felony was committed; which ſaid certificate ſhall be inrolled by the clerk of the peace of the county in which the ſame ſhall be granted, for which he ſhall have 1 s. and no more.

Sect. 3. And if any perſon ſhall happen to be ſlain by ſuch burglar, in endeavouring to apprehend him, the executors or adminiſtrators of ſuch perſon ſlain ſhall have the like certificate.

Stat. 5 Ann. c. 31. ſect. 1. Every perſon who ſhall apprehend any perſon guilty of burglary, and proſecute him to conviction, ſhall have and receive, over and above the rewards given by 10 & 11 W. 3. cap. 23. the ſum of 40 l. within one month after ſuch conviction, to be paid by the ſheriff or ſheriffs of the county where ſuch felony or burglary ſhall be made and done, without any fee for the ſame, to the perſon or perſons ſo taking, apprehending, and proſecuting the ſaid offenders, he and they tendering a certificate to the ſaid ſheriff or ſheriffs, under the hand or hands of the judges or juſtices before whom ſuch felon ſhall be convicted, certifying the conviction of ſuch felon, and in what pariſh the burglary was committed, and alſo that the burglar was taken by the perſon claiming the reward; and if any diſpute ſhall happen to ariſe between the perſons claiming, the judge ſhall by the ſaid certificate appoint the ſame to be paid amongſt the parties claiming the ſame, in ſuch ſhare and proportion as to him ſhall ſeem juſt and reaſonable.

Sect. 2. And if any watchman or any other perſon be killed in endeavouring to apprehend any ſuch burglar, his executors or adminiſtrators, upon certificate delivered under the hand and ſeal of the judge, or of the two next juſtices of the peace, of ſuch perſon being ſo killed; which certificate they ſhall, on ſufficient proof before them made, give without fee; ſhall receive the ſum of 40*l.* from the ſheriff or ſheriffs of the county where the ſaid fact was committed.

Sect. 3. And the ſheriff upon producing the certificates and receipts for the ſaid rewards, may deduct the ſame on his accounts; and if he had not money in his hands he ſhall be repaid out of the treaſury, on certificate from the clerk of the pipe.

Sect. 4. And moreover if any perſon, being out of priſon, ſhall commit any burglary, and afterwards diſcover two or more the like offenders, ſo as two or more be convicted; he ſhall have the like reward and allowance of 40*l.* and alſo all other advantages which are given to perſons who ſhall apprehend and convict any the like offenders: and ſhall alſo have the King's pardon for all burglaries, robberies, and felonies (except murder and treaſon) by him committed before ſuch diſcovery made; which pardon ſhall be likewiſe a good bar to an appeal.

Stat. 12 Ann. ſt. 1. c. 7. If any perſon ſhall enter into the manſion-houſe of another, by day or by night, without breaking the ſame, with an intent to commit felony, or being in ſuch houſe ſhall commit any felony, and ſhall in the night-time break the ſaid houſe to get out, he ſhall be guilty of burglary and ouſted of the benefit of clergy, in the ſame manner as if he had broken and entered the houſe in the night-time with intent to commit felony.

Joſhua Cornwall was indicted with another perſon for burglary. And upon the evidence it appeared, that he was a ſervant in the houſe where the robbery was committed, and in the night-time opened the ſtreet door, and let in the other priſoner, and ſhewed him the ſide-board, from whence the other priſoner took the plate; then the defendant opened the door and let him out; but the defendant did not go out with him, but went to bed. Upon the trial it was doubted, whether that was burglary in the ſervant, he not going out with the other. But afterwards, at a meeting of all the judges at Serjeants-Inn, they were all of opinion, that it was burglary in both, and not to be diſtinguiſhed from the caſe where one watches at the ſtreet end, whilſt another goes in and commits the burglary, which hath been often ruled to be burglary in both; and upon report of this opinion, the defendant was executed. Stra. 881.

Stat. 3 Geo. 1. cap. 15. ſect. 4. No ſheriff ſhall be obliged to bring or charge in his accounts any ſum or ſums of money paid for the rewards for convicting burglars, but ſhall and may immediately apply for the ſame to the commiſſioners of the treaſury, who ſhall forthwith repay the ſame without fee.

Stat. 6. Geo. 1. c. 23. ſect. 10. The reward of 40*l.* for the apprehending and convicting any perſon or perſons for burglary ſhall be paid without any deduction for every offender who ſhall be apprehended for the ſaid crime.

Stat. 25 Geo. 2. cap. 36. ſect. 11. The charges of proſecuting and convicting a burglar ſhall be paid by the treaſurer of the county where the burglary was committed, on producing to him the order of the court for that purpoſe, which the clerk of aſſize, or of the peace ſhall make out for the fee of 1*s.*

Burning. Maliciouſly and voluntarily burning the houſe of another by night or by day is felony at the Common law. 1 Hawk. 105. 3 Inſt. 66. By the commiſſion of the peace, any juſtice may cauſe to come before him all thoſe, who to any of the people, concerning the firing of their houſes, have uſed threats, to find ſufficient ſecurity for the peace, or their good behaviour towards the King and his people; and if they ſhall refuſe to find ſuch ſecurity, may cauſe them to be ſafely kept in the King's priſon, until they ſhall find ſuch ſecurity.

The burning muſt be maliciouſly and voluntarily; for if it be done by miſchance, or negligence, it is no felony. 3 Inſt. 67. Yet if a man maliciouſly intending only to burn one perſon's houſe, happens thereby to burn the houſe of another, it is certain that he may be indicted as having maliciouſly burned the houſe of that other; for where a felonious deſign againſt one man miſſeth its aim, and takes effect upon another, it ſhall have the like conſtruction as if it had been levelled againſt him who ſuffers by it. 1 Haw. 106.

Neither a bare intention to burn a houſe, nor even an actual attempt to do it, by putting fire to a part of a houſe will amount to felony, if no part of it be burned; but if any part of the houſe be burnt, the offender is guilty of felony, notwithſtanding the fire afterwards be put out, or go out of itſelf. 1 Haw. 106.

Not only a manſion-houſe, and the principal parts thereof, but alſo any other houſe and the out-buildings, as barns and ſtables adjoining thereto; and alſo barns full of corn, whether they be adjoining to any houſe or not, are ſo far ſecured by law that the malicious burning of them is felony at Common law. 1 Haw. 105.

A perſon ſeiſed in fee, or but poſſeſſed for years of a houſe ſtanding by itſelf at a diſtance from all others, cannot commit felony in burning the ſame. Alſo it ſeems the much ſtronger opinion, that a man ſo ſeiſed or poſſeſſed of a houſe in a town, that burns his own with an intent to burn his neighbour's, but in the event burns his own only, is not guilty of felony: but however it is certainly an offence highly puniſhable in regard of the malice thereof, and the great danger to the publick which attends it; and the offender may be ſeverely fined, and impriſoned during the King's pleaſure, and ſet on the pillory, and bound to his good behaviour during life. 1 Haw. 106.

By ſtat. 3 Ed. 1. c. 15. Such as be taken for houſe-burning felonioufly done, are not bailable by juſtices of the peace.

Stat. 37 Hen. 8. cap. 6. ſect. 4. If any perſon ſhall maliciouſly, willingly, and unlawfully burn or cauſe to be burnt any wain, or cart laden with coals, or with any goods or merchandize; or any heap of wood prepared, cut, or felled for making coals, billets, or talwood, he ſhall forfeit treble damages to the party grieved, to be recovered by action of treſpaſs; and alſo 10*l.* as a fine to the King.

Stat. 4 & 5 P. & M. cap. 4. Every perſon who ſhall maliciouſly command, hire, or counſel any perſon wilfully to burn any dwelling-houſe, or any part thereof, or any barn then having corn or grain in the ſame, ſhall not have the benefit of his clergy.

And juſtices of peace in ſeſſions may hear and determine the ſame.

Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2. ſect. 2. Where in any part of this kingdom, any perſon or perſons ſhall in the night-time maliciouſly, unlawfully, and willingly burn, or cauſe to be burnt or deſtroyed, any ricks or ſtacks of corn, hay, or grain, barns or other houſes or buildings, or kilns, every ſuch offence ſhall be adjudged felony, and the offenders and every of them ſhall ſuffer as in caſe of felony

Sect. 3. Provided, that no attainder for any of the offences made felony by virtue of this act ſhall make or work any corruption of blood, loſs of dower, or diſinheritance of heirs.

And if any perſon being found guilty (in order to avoid judgment of death, or execution thereupon) ſhall make his election to be tranſported, the court ſhall cauſe judgment to be entered, that he be tranſported to ſome of the plantations, in the ſaid judgment to be particularly mentioned and expreſſed, for the ſpace of ſeven years; and if he ſhall return before the expiration of the term, he ſhall ſuffer death as a felon, and as if no ſuch election to be tranſported had been made by him.

Sect. 6. And the judges of aſſize, or three juſtices of the peace, whereof one be of the quorum, may determine the ſaid offence: and the ſaid juſtices, on requeſt of the party injured, ſhall iſſue their warrant for apprehending all ſuch perſons as ſhall be ſuſpected thereof, and take their examination; and ſhall cauſe all others who to them ſhall ſeem likely to make diſcovery, to appear before them, and give information upon oath; yet ſo as no perſon to be examined ſhall be proceeded againſt for any offence concerning which he ſhall be examined as a witneſs, and ſhall upon his examination make a true diſcovery: and if ſuch witneſs, being duly ſummoned, ſhall refuſe to appear or be examined, they may commit him to the common gaol, till he ſubmit to be examined upon oath: and they ſhall iſſue warrants for ſummoning jurors.

Sect. 7. The proſecution muſt be in ſix months after the offence committed.

Stat. 4 & 5 W. 3. cap. 23. ſect. 11. No perſon ſhall on any mountains, hills, heaths, moors, foreſts, chaſes, or other waſtes, burn between February the ſecond and June the twenty-fourth, any grigling, heath, furze, goſs, or fern, on pain of being committed to the houſe of correction for any time not exceeding one month, nor leſs than twenty days, there to be whipt and kept to hard labour.

Stat. 6 Ann. cap. 31. If any ſervant through neglect or careleſneſs ſhall fire, or cauſe to be fired any dwelling-houſe or out-houſe or houſes, and be thereof convicted on the oath of one witneſs before two juſtices, he ſhall forfeit 100*l.* to the churchwardens of the pariſh where the fire ſhall happen, to be diſtributed by them to the ſufferers in ſuch proportions as to them ſhall ſeem juſt; and if he do not pay the ſame immediately on demand of the churchwardens, the ſaid juſtices ſhall commit him to ſome workhouſe or houſe of correction for eighteen months, there to be kept to hard labour.

Stat. 1 Geo. 1. ſtat. 2. cap. 48. If any perſon ſhall maliciouſly ſet on fire, or burn any wood, underwood, or coppice, he ſhall be guilty of felony, and be liable to all the penalties and forfeitures as other felons by law now are.

Stat. 6 Geo. 1 cap. 16. Owners of trees, hedges, &c. burnt, cut down, ſpoiled, &c. either by day or by night, ſhall have ſatisfaction from the inhabitants of the place, in the ſame manner as for dikes, &c. overthrown in the night is provided by 13 Ed. 1.

Butter and Cheeſe. Stat. 9 Hen. 6. cap. 8. To the intent that poor people ſhall not be deceived in the weight of cheeſe, it is ordained that the weight of a wey of cheeſe may contain thirty-two cloves, that is to ſay, every clove ſeven pounds by the ſaid weight couching, [that is, bending downwards].

Stat. 3 & 4 Ed. 6. cap. 21. ſect. 1. No perſon ſhall buy to ſell again any butter or cheeſe, unleſs he ſell the ſame again by retail in open ſhop, fair, or market, and not in groſs, on pain of double value; half to the king, and half to him that will ſue.

Sect. 2. Provided that the word retail, mentioned in this act, ſhall not be expounded only where a weight of cheeſe, or a barrel of butter of leſs quantity, and not above, ſhall be ſold at any time to any perſon or perſons in open ſhop.

Sect. 3. This act not to extend to innholders or victuallers. Stat. 5 & 6 Ed 6. cap. 14. ſect. 3. whoſoever ſhall ingroſs or get into his hands any butter or cheeſe, to ſell the ſame again, ſhall be deemed an ingroſſer.

Sect. 7. But the buying of any butter or cheeſe by any licenſed badger, lader, kidder, or carrier, who ſhall ſell or deliver in open fair or market, ſhall not be deemed regrating.

Stat. 5 Eliz. cap. 12. ſect. 4. No badger, lader, kidder, carrier, buyer, or tranſporter of butter and cheeſe, ſhall be licenſed to thoſe offices, unleſs he be or have been a married man, and be an houſholder, and of the age of thirty years or upwards, and unleſs it be in open ſeſſions of the county, where he hath dwelt for three years laſt paſt; and the licence ſhall continue only for one year.

Sect. 5. And the licence ſhall bear date of the day and place of the ſeſſions, and to be ſigned and ſealed by three juſtices there, one whereof to be of the quorum, upon pain that every perſon taking any licence contrary hereto ſhall forfeit to the king five pounds, and the licence to be void.

Sect. 6. And the court may take recognizance, that he ſhall not foreſtall, nor ingroſs, nor do any thing contrary to the ſtatute 5 & 6 Ed. 6. cap. 14. againſt regrating, ingroſſing, or foreſtalling: the licence and recognizance to be written by the clerk of the peace or his deputy, and by no other perſon; for which he ſhall have for the licence one ſhilling, for the recognizance eightpence, and for regiſtering them four-pence: for which fee he ſhall alſo enter the names and dwelling-places of the perſons licenſed, and a brief declaration of the licence, with the day, time, and place when granted, in a regiſter-book, which he ſhall have at every ſeſſions.

Sect. 7. The moiety of the ſaid forfeitures ſhall be to the king, and the other moiety to him that will ſue for the ſame in any of the king's courts of record.

Sect. 8. Juſtices of peace in their ſeſſions ſhall inquire of and determine theſe offences by inquiſition, preſentment, bill, or information before them exhibited.

Sect. 9. But this ſhall not extend to prejudice the liberty of a city or town corporate, but that they may licenſe purveyors for the proviſion thereof.

Stat. 21 Jac. 1. cap. 22. ſect. 6. Nothing in the ſtatutes of the 3 & 4 Ed. 6. cap. 21. and 5 & 6 Ed. 6. cap. 14. ſhall extend to cheeſemongers or tallow-chandlers in London and Weſtminſter, for what they ſhall ſell for victualling of ſhips, or what they ſhall ſell in their ſhops or markets, not exceeding four weights of cheeſe, and four barrels of butter.

Sect. 7. Provided, that if the juſtices of the peace in any county in their quarter-ſeſſions ſhall declare, that the aid traders in butter and cheese shall forbear to buy any in such county for any time, and they do buy within that time, and sell the same by retail, they shall not have the benefit of this act.

Stat. 13 & 14 Car. 2. cap. 16. sect. 2. Every kilderkin of butter shall contain one hundred and twelve pounds, and every firkin fifty-six pounds neat, or above; every pound containing sixteen ounces, besides the tare of the cask, of good and merchantable butter; and every pot of butter shall contain fourteen pounds neat, or above, besides the weight of the pot; and no butter which is old or corrupt shall be mixed or packed up with any butter which is new and sound; nor any whey butter shall be packed or mixed with any butter made of cream; and every cask of butter shall be of one sort and goodness; and no butter shall be salted with any great salt, but shall be salted and saved with small salt; nor more salt shall be intermixed with it than shall be needful for its preservation: upon pain that every owner, farmer, or packer of butter, not putting up in each kilderkin, firkin, and pot, to be sold or exposed to sale, such quantities as aforesaid, or offending in false packing as aforesaid, for every offence shall forfeit the value of all the butter so false packed; and for every offence where any kilderkin, firkin, or pot shall be found to contain a lesser quantity of butter than as above, six times the value of every pound of butter that shall be wanting in such cask or pot.

Sect. 3. And every cheesemonger, or other person who shall sell any kilderkin, firkin, or pot, or other cask of butter, shall deliver therein the full quantity and due quality, or shall be liable to make satisfaction, according to the price thereof.

Sect. 4. And no cheesemonger or other person shall repack for sale any butter in any kilderkin, firkin, or other cask, or pot, on pain of forfeiting double value thereof.

Sect. 5. Every farmer and other person, packing up butter for sale, shall pack up his butter into good and sufficient casks made of sound, dry, and well-seasoned timber, and shall set up every firkin and cask whatsoever, when the same is thoroughly and fully seasoned in water, a continuing visible mark of the just weight of the empty cask, and do likewise set upon every kilderkin, firkin, and cask, when the same is filled with butter, the first letter of his or their Christian name, and his or their surname at length with an iron brand; on pain of forfeiting for every offence the sum of 10 s. for every hundred weight of butter otherwise packed, and for more or less proportionably.

Sect. 6. And every potter shall set on every pot which he shall make for packing up butter, the just weight of the pot when it is burnt, together with the first letter of his Christian name, and his surname at length, on pain of 1 s. and no person shall expose to sale any butter packed up in any pot not so marked, under pain of 2 s. for every such pot: the said offences to be inquired of, heard, and determined in the sessions of the peace for the county, city, borough, town, or liberty wherein such offence shall be committed, by action of debt, indictment, information or presentment; one half of such forfeitures shall be to the use of the poor of the place where such offence shall be committed, and the other half with double costs to him that will sue for the same.

Sect. 7. Every suit and information brought upon this act shall be commenced in four months after the sale of such butter.

Stat. 32 Car. 2. cap. 2. sect. 9. Butter or cheese shall be imported from Ireland.

Stat. 4 W. & M. cap. 7. sect. 2. No seller of butter shall be charged with any of the penalties in 13 & 14. Car. 2. c. 26. after the buyer hath bought the butter and approved of it.

Sect. 3. And for preventing any fraud in the seller, after the factor or buyer hath bought the butter, the said factor or buyer shall set his seal, or mark, or name upon it, or upon the cask; and if it shall be afterwards exchanged or opened, and the cask changed, or any bad butter mixed or packed up with good butter, or any other fraud be committed by the seller, and he be convicted thereof before one justice by oath of one witness, or confession, he shall forfeit twenty shillings for every firkin and offence, to be levied by the constable by distress, and to be distributed by the justice, half to the churchwardens and overseers for the use of the poor, and half to the informer.

Sect. 4. Every warehouse keeper, weigher, searcher, or shipper of butter and cheese, shall receive all butter and cheese that shall be brought to him for the London cheesemongers, and ship the same without undue preference; and shall have for his pains two shillings and six-pence for every load; and if he shall make default, he shall on conviction before one justice, on oath of one witness, or confession, forfeit for every firkin of butter ten shillings, and for every wey of cheese five shillings, to be levied by the constable by distress and sale.

Sect. 5. And he shall keep a book of entry of receiving and shipping the goods; on pain of two shillings and six-pence for every firkin of butter and wey of cheese, to be levied and applied in like manner; and for want of distress he shall be committed till paid.

Sect. 6. A master of a ship refusing to take in butter or cheese before he is fully laden, shall forfeit for every firkin of butter refused five shillings, and for every wey of cheese two shillings and six-pence, to be levied in like manner.

Sect. 7. One half of the said penalties to be paid to the churchwardens and overseers of the poor, and the other half to be distributed by the justice or justices before whom such offender shall be convicted.

Sect. 8. Cheesemongers may send their own proper vessels, or such other vessels as they shall hire and send from London for their own proper goods, and the warehouse-keeper where such vessels shall be sent, may ship the said goods on board, and the masters of such ships and their servants may receive the same.

Sect. 9. This act shall not extend to any warehouse in Cheshire or Lancashire.

Sect. 10. Provided that the person aggrieved by the determination of the justice may appeal to the next sessions, giving 20 l. with one or more sureties, to the party, to pay costs within a month after, if he is not relieved on his appeal.

Sect. 3. The justices of peace shall have the same power to issue their warrants to seize all foreign buttons, as by the said act is given them to seize foreign buttons made of thread and silk.

Stat. 10 W. 3. cap. 2. No person in England, Wales, or Berwick shall make, sell, or set on any clothes any buttons buttons or button-holes made or bound with cloth, ſerge, drugget or any other ſtuffs, of which clothes are uſually made; or any buttons made of wool only, turned in imitation of other buttons, on forfeiture of 40 s. for every dozen of buttons ſo made, ſold, or ſet on, and like proportion for a leſſer quantity; one moiety to the king, the other to the proſecutor.

Stat. 8 Ann. cap. 6. No taylor or other perſon ſhall make, ſet on, ſell, uſe, or bind on any clothes, any buttons or button-holes made or bound with ſerge, or other ſtuff of which clothes is uſually made, on pain of 5 l. for every dozen of buttons or button-holes; one moiety to to the crown, the other to him who will ſue for the ſame: or two juſtices may by warrant levy the penalty, upon conviction of the offender by one witneſs; but the party aggrieved may appeal to the next quarter ſeſſions, and ſhall have coſts.

Stat. 4 Geo. 1. cap. 7. ſect. 1. No taylor or other perſon ſhall make, ſell, ſet on, uſe, or bind any clothes, button, or button-holes made of or bound with cloth, ſerge, drugget, frize, camlet, or any ſtuffs that clothes are uſually made of, on forfeiture of 40 s. for every dozen of ſuch buttons and button-holes ſo made, or in proportion for a leſſer quantity: and every perſon being thereof convicted, upon oath of one witneſs, ſhall forfeit as aforeſaid.

Sect. 2. Nothing in this act ſhall extend to clothes made of velvet.

Sect. 3. Perſons inhabiting in any gaol or houſe of correction, or in any privileged place, offending againſt this act, and being convicted, ſhall be ſubject to the penalties.

Sect. 4. Offences againſt this act ſhall be proſecuted within three months.

Sect. 5. Offences againſt this act ſhall be heard and determined by one juſtice of the peace of the county, city, &c. where the ſame ſhall be diſcovered, or where the offender dwells (ſuch juſtice being not concerned in the matter) upon the oath of one witneſs. And one moiety of the forfeitures, the charge of conviction deducted, ſhall be paid to the informer, the other to the poor of the pariſh where the offence ſhall be diſcovered. And if any offender refuſe to pay the forfeitures for fourteen days after conviction, ſuch juſtice ſhall iſſue his warrant to the conſtable, to levy the ſame by diſtreſs and ſale of goods; and for want of diſtreſs to commit the offender to the common gaol, there to be kept three calendar months to hard labour.

Sect. 6. If any perſon find himſelf aggrieved by the juſtice's order or warrant, he may appeal to the quarter-ſeſſions; and coſts ſhall be allowed to the party grieved, to be levied as in other caſes of appeals.

Sect. 7. If any action is commenced againſt any perſon ſo proſecuted, he may plead the general iſſue; if the plaintiff be nonſuited, &c. the defendant ſhall have treble coſts.

Sect. 8. All wearing garments made with buttons and button-holes of the ſame clothes, &c. and expoſed to ſale, ſhall be forfeited and ſeized, and applied to the uſes in this act.

Sect. 9. If any taylor or other perſon ſhall cauſe his ſervant to make any clothes contrary to this act, he ſhall be ſubject to the penalties; and this act ſhall be a publick act.

Stat. 7 Geo. 1. cap. 12. ſect. 1. It ſhall not be lawful for any perſon to uſe or wear any clothes, buttons, or button-holes made of or bound with cloth, ſerge, drugget, frize, camlet, or any ſtuffs whereof clothes or wearing garments are uſually made; and if any perſon ſhall uſe or wear ſuch buttons or button-holes, ſuch perſon being convicted in manner hereafter mentioned ſhall forfeit for every dozen of ſuch buttons or button-holes 40*s.* or in proportion for a leſſer quantity.

Sect. 2. It ſhall be lawful for one juſtice of peace of the county or place where any offence ſhall be committed againſt this act, or where ſuch offender ſhall inhabit, upon oath of one credible perſon, to ſummon the party accuſed, and upon his appearance or contempt to proceed to the examination of the matter, and on due proof made, either by confeſſion of the party, or ſuch oath, to determine the ſame, and to convict the offender; and to cauſe the penalties, on the offender refuſing to pay the ſame on demand, by warrant to be levied by diſtreſs and ſale of goods, rendering the overplus; and one moiety of the forfeiture ſhall be to him on whoſe oath the perſon ſhall be convicted, and the other to the poor of the pariſh where ſuch offence ſhall be committed.

Sect. 3. Perſons aggrieved by the order or warrant of ſuch juſtice may appeal to the next quarter-ſeſſions, giving eight days notice, which ſeſſions are to hear and determine the ſame, and their judgment ſhall be final.

Sect. 4. Offences againſt this act ſhall be proſecuted within one month after ſuch offence committed.

Sect. 5. This act ſhall not extend to clothes made of velvet.

Sect. 6. Perſons ſued may plead the general iſſue, &c. and on a verdict, &c. recover treble coſts.

Sect. 7. This act ſhall be a publick act.

Bye, Bee, Words ending in bye and bee are derived from the Saxon bye, which ſignifies a dwelling-place or habitation.

By-law, (from the Goth, by, pagus, and lagen, lex) Is a private law made by thoſe who are duly authoriſed thereunto by charter, preſcription, or cuſtom, for the conſervation of order and good government within ſome particular place or juriſdiction. Moor 583, 584. 5 Co. 62.

A power of making by-laws is included in the very act of incorporating, and incident to every corporation aggregate, without expreſs words in the charter; and all by-laws muſt ever be ſubject and ſquared to the rule of the general law of the realm, as ſubordinate to it. Hob. 211.
